MARRIED WOMEN AT WORK

The old outcry against the presence of married women on the payrolls of offices and factories is being raised anew these days. We are being told that married women should not be employed when there are so many men who cannot find work.

This, of course, rests on the old notion that the married woman worker is a worker because of a whim, or because she is looking for a little pin money for herself. It isn't generally realized that in the vast majority of cases she is working for the same reason that the married man is working—because she has to.

The U. S. Women's Bureau recently investigated married women who are working in the meat packing industry. It found out that only 3 per cent of them are working because they want to. All the rest are supporting themselves; most of them are supporting their families too.

Love May Lure Pretty Boy Floyd to Ambuscade Guns

By NEA Service TULSA, Okla.—Here in the southwest where Al Jennings, the Daltons and the other noted bad men have been the objects of thrilling man-hunts in bygone days, a youthful "phantom bandit" who is known to have killed six men and suspected of having killed six more, today plays hide and seek with officers and dares almost certain death to pay visits to his mother and also to his wife and seven-year-old son.

Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, on whose head there is a reward of $6000 for capture dead or alive, drove the much-sought fugitive, Phantom-like, this sleek, baby-faced bank robber frequently bobs up in his old haunts to visit members of his family and, if trapped, calmly shoots his way out. He is determined to capture or kill Floyd. He has been redoubled since he shot and killed Deputy Sheriff E. A. Kelly recently when officers tried to capture Floyd when he arrived to visit his wife at her father's farm home near Tulsa. Kelly had behind a chicken house and opened fire on Floyd and a companion as they walked away. Kelly fired five quick shots from an automatic pistol and drove off.

For weeks, Floyd lived with his wife and child in a Tulsa bungalow, right under the noses of Tulsa police who were seeking him for bank robbery and murder. Officers changed to locate his hideout by means of an auto used in a bank robbery, but when they surrounded the house Floyd and a companion escaped.

Arrested, Mrs. Floyd denied her identity, but when police showed her a picture of her husband, she exclaimed: "That's my daddy!" "I don't know what my daddy does," the boy replied in answer to police questions, "but I love my daddy and he gives me lots of money. Daddy wants me to go to school so when I grow up I can be a doctor."

Not only does Floyd defy police to see his wife and child, but he also scorns the $6000 price on his head to pay occasional visits to his mother, Mrs. W. F. Floyd, at Sallisaw, Okla. "I see him off and on," says Mrs. Floyd, with a vagueness that indicates she wants to protect her son. "Every so often he must see his old mother and he dares them all and risks his life to come and see me."

The mother explains why Floyd doesn't see from Oklahoma, where the hunt for him is hottest. "He loves me and his wife and that boy his too well to leave us," she says. "He can't go. Yet, if he stays here he will be shot down like a mad dog."

Both his wife and mother insist that Floyd is not guilty of all the crimes charged to him. They say that many crimes have been "packed on him" by officers who couldn't catch the real culprits.

But the records tell a different story. Floyd's picture has been identified as the unmasked bandit who robs banks nonchalantly, acting as leader of the gang and enforcing his calm commands with a threatening machine gun that he carries under his arm. In several cases, bank employees have been kidnaped and placed on the running board of the bandit car to act as a shield for the fleeing robbers.

"This is a desperate case," asserted Lieut. Governor Burns of Oklahoma in posting a $1000 state reward for Floyd. "This man has terrorized the entire eastern-central section of Oklahoma with his outlawry. Already, six killings and 10 bank robberies have been charged to him. He must be stopped."

It is estimated that Floyd's bank robberies have netted him more than $50,000 in Oklahoma alone. How much he has obtained in other states where he has operated, including Ohio, is a highly conjectured figure. Floyd is a fugitive from Ohio, having escaped after he had been sentenced to 15 years in the state penitentiary for a bank robbery near Toledo.

Floyd's criminal career began at 17 when he was arrested for a post-office robbery. The following year he left home to work in the harvest field, became involved in a payroll robbery in St. Louis and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. He was released in 1929.

With Bert Walker, a Missouri killer, he went to Ohio in 1930 and there committed a string of bank robberies. Walker was executed for his part.

Proceeding to Kansas, Floyd resumed his string of bank robberies and murders. One of his victims was Curtis Burks, a federal prohibition officer, whom Floyd killed when Burks tried to arrest him in a Kansas City speakeasy. Feigning drunkenness, Floyd let Burks take his gun—and then snatched it from Burks' hand and shot him dead in the street.

Early last year, two Kansas City narcotic peddlers disappeared after they had planned to betray Floyd and his partners to the police. A police officer who had ridged bodies were found in a ditch.

Returning to Oklahoma, Floyd began a series of bank robberies which have continued to the present, featured by the daring robbery of the First State bank at Stone-wall, Okla., a few days ago. Scores of Oklahoma officers leaped into the manhunt, enlisting the aid of an airplane piloted by Wiley Post, round-the-world flyer, but Floyd and his companion escaped.

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY Susan Carey, 19, and pretty, works in the office of Ernest Heath, architect. Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, tries to make love to her, but is discouraged. Susan lives with her aunt, who is unusually strict. Ray Flannery, employed in the next office, makes friends with Susan and confides her ambition in life—to marry a rich man. Susan is secretly in love with Bob Dunbar, millionaire's son she met at business school. She hears rumors he is to marry Denise Ackroyd, debutante. Susan refuses an offer of marriage from Ben Lammpan, serious-minded young musician. At a week-end party given by Denise Ackroyd, Ben and Bob fight over Susan. She runs away and meets Ernest Heath, asks him for his protection. He escorts her back to the Ackroyds, thereby incurring his wife's displeasure. Later Heath informs Susan his wife intends to sue her for alienation of affection. Waring arranges to save the situation by means of a letter involving Mrs. Heath in an affair with another man. Ray is heartbroken, telling Susan that "Sissy" Webb, who has been showing her attentions, has married.

Not in but she must do something, anything, to delay this man, Willy. She sought about in her mind for a way to keep him talking. Then she felt ashamed. Her hands were icy. She returned to the outer office and looked straight at Bob. "I'm sorry. He's not there," she told him. "He usually is by this time but perhaps there is a message I can take?"

"The young man stood up. No quite all," he informed her. He would give Heath a ring later. "It seemed to Susan that there must be something she could do to detain him. She was starved for the very sight of him yet now that the opportunity lay before her she was like one stricken dumb. They might have been utter strangers, but she had seen him in the restaurant at the Blackstone that spark of understanding flashed between them. Susan caught her breath. The young man stared at her. She was all in brown today. Simple wool frock out at the neck to show her creamy throat. Little, sensible brown Oxford. She waited for the words she felt certain were to follow.

"I want to say again that I'm sorry for what happened that night." There—she had not dreamed it! She looked up at him, her eyes flashing and darkening with the emotion that assailed her. "It's quite all right. It wasn't your fault." The stern lines of his face relaxed. "I was a bit high, I know, but it's no excuse."

She wanted to reach out and to touch the rough fabric of his overcoat. What she did was to flick her lashes demurely downward and say nothing.

"I can't run away," the boy accused her. "Why did you do that?" "I don't know. It seemed a good idea at the time," Susan smiled, and the old friendliness was re-established. Strange it was, though Susan had with some people the most foolish little phrases take on a new and shining meaning. Whatever she said to Bob and he to her seemed fresh and curiously their own.

"Look here, won't you?" What he meant to say she was not desirous to know because at Susan's instant the rear door was flung open and Mr. Heath bustled in. Susan's heart sank. The perfection of the moment was gone. Never to return. Helplessly unconscious of anything unusual in the situation, Heath held out his hand to Bob Dunbar. Luckily for his peace of mind, he had not recognized Susan's escort that night in the lane. Bob was merely another young man, son of an old friend.

Heath did not notice that Miss Carey was flushed and bright eyed, but then she was a very pretty girl and that was quite natural. Susan had to stifle her disappointment as she watched her employer lead Bob into his private office. She found it impossible to keep her mind on her work. She could hear the low murmur of the two voices and her whole being tingled with excitement. What was Bob about to say?

She prayed, "Dear God, give me another chance to talk to him!" Her heart pounded.

When Pierson returned from lunch she glanced up scarcely seeing him. He spoke to her twice before she realized the remarks were directed to her.

"I said you'd better go to the bank right away. It's almost three." Pierson repeated in a faintly acid tone.

Susan glanced at the clock. It lacked but 10 minutes of the hour. The voices in the private office still rose and fell. As Susan struggled in to her coat, she added another prayer to her litany.

"Please let him stay until I come back. It's not much to ask." You could not run on LaSalle street. People would look at you and think you were mad. But how could one walk sedately and quietly with a heart racing like a wild thing? How slow the teller was behind the bars! With that maddening deliberation he made the entry. Usually Susan smiled at him and spoke of the weather. Today she did neither.

"Hurry, hurry!" her footsteps kept time with the words. A traffic light delayed her at one corner. The policeman seemed maddeningly slow. It seemed ages before she found herself again in the elevator of the office building.

Bob would be there still. He would be coming out of Mr. Heath's office as she looked off her hat. They would have just a moment together as he would finish what he had started to say. Susan hesitated before turning the knob, saving the flavor of anticipation. Then she flung the door open, trying to remember just how she behaved on ordinary days.

Reluctantly she went to the closet and hung away her coat. She would not look in the direction of Mr. Heath's private office. It would all happen easily and naturally. She would be patient, as she crossed the room to give Pierson the bank book she was conscious of the extreme quiet of the place. She would not ask. She would not.

Pierson looked at her curiously. "The boss said to tell you he'd be back at four." "He's gone?" Susan's voice sounded to her. "Yes, galloped out with that collar-ad guy just after you left." The girl's steps went drearily across the room.

"Why? Did you want to ask him something?" Pierson could not help being inquisitive. "No. It was nothing," Susan said without hope. "Nothing at all."

She waited for the telephone to ring. The first day she was sure Bob would call. It was perfectly simple because he knew the number. She had so much to say to him that she could hardly wait. Then as the days passed Susan came at last to the realization that he was not going to phone. She told herself she was a fool. In her saner moments she was firm and brisk and decided about it. Lots of girls mooned about over lost love, but not she.

The stores began to display reminders that Christmas was at hand. Each time Susan went to the Milton's she found Rose absorbed in mysterious heaps of crepe de chaine lace and satchet. Mrs. Milton had confided to Susan in an unguarded moment that Terry intended to give Rose a ring for Christmas.

"But I thought she didn't want to be married for ages?" Susan said, surprised. Mrs. Milton's laugh was subdued. "Don't believe all you hear," she advised. Then her tone dropped, became confidential. "I'll tell you how it was," she said. "Rose has been staring at Terry along—you know all about that—for two years. She kept talking about careers and I don't know what all."

"I don't see," Susan began, but the other interrupted. "Mrs. Milton warned to her story. 'Well, it was all right as long as Terry played tame duck,' she said, relishing the words. 'They would have their Sunday and Wednesday dates as usual and whenever the poor boy tried to be serious my fine lady would put him off and talk about her chances of making a trip to Paris. Well, that was all right!' Mrs. Milton paused for dramatic effect.

"And then what happened?" "Didn't some cutie from over in his neighborhood make a dead set for Terry? He began to call up every now and then to break a date. Of course I knew what it was all about, but Rose didn't. It would take a house to fall on her. I was the one," pursued Mrs. Milton with satisfaction, "to tell her which way the wind blew. My fine young lady did not like the idea of losing Terry. She went to a little trouble for a

Hundreds Expected at First Day of Cooking School

New Ways to Prepare Tasty Dishes at Small Expense, How to Fill Market Basket Will Be Told by Mrs. Ihrig

Class is called to order! At 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the first class of the second annual Reporter-Telegram cooking school will start at the Yucca theatre. The teacher's name is Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig, nationally known culinary expert. For four days the women of Midland and the surrounding territory will receive free instruction in latest recipes and short cuts to kitchen efficiency. Mrs. Ihrig, who arrived Saturday, was busy today making preparations for her model kitchen in which she will work four days. Scratch pads will be furnished to write down the helpful advice Mrs. Ihrig gives. Women are asked to bring their pencils.

IN NUTSHELL

WHAT—The Midland Reporter-Telegram's second annual cooking school brought to Midland housewives by the cooperation of local and national advertisers, the local political candidates, and the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

WHERE—At the Yucca theatre.

WHO—Conducted by Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig, nationally recognized authority on cooking. The cooking school is absolutely free to everyone who is interested in learning new methods of making housework easier, and new ways to prepare tasty dishes. Valuable attendance prizes, given by Midland merchants will be awarded daily.

Results from Mrs. Ihrig's shopping excursion to Midland stores, today will be told housewives in her series of marketing hints, as applied to local conditions studied at first hand.

Mrs. Ihrig's programs will be enjoyable and instructive in the extreme. She is planning special recipes and menus—every one of them the latest flare of 1932 food fashions—just for your enjoyment.

Remember—the cooking school starts at the Yucca theatre tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Cooking Instructor Is Well Qualified

Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig is well qualified to aid in the release of the housewife from the arduous duties of making a home. The foundation of Mrs. Ihrig's training was laid at her home, in the little village of Bethany, a short distance from St. Joseph, Missouri. Her mother, the daughter of a Southern family, was known throughout the region for her culinary ability.

"Cooking always has been a delight with me," Mrs. Ihrig said today. "I can remember, as a little girl, my greatest enjoyment came from following, and annoying, my mother in the kitchen. She was never too busy to rush to stop and explain the details and principles of cake-baking or other cooking."

Following the death of her husband, Mrs. Ihrig found herself with two sons, Otto Lewis and Harlan, to support and educate. She tried several branches of work and became well known in the southwest as the representative of a utilities company. Tiring of this sort of employment, she returned to her first love, cooking.

For the past nine years, she has been conducting cooking schools in every part of the country. Her methods and recipes are followed by thousands of cooks. No greater proof of her ability as a cook and demonstrator is required.

The primary training, which she received from her mother, and 25 years of residence in the south, has given Mrs. Ihrig no little knowledge of the "southern" style of cooking. She is well acquainted with the old time recipes and "tricks" known only to the cooks of the old south. Years experience as the managing steward of large metropolitan hotels have established contact for her with foreign and northern styles of Members of the organization today expressed their thanks to Mr. Floyd for his hospitality.

Making the trip were Juanita Cox, Margie Ward, Mrs. Wesson, Laura Shelburne, Helen Dunagan, Leola Kerby, Charlene Parrott, Marvina Paul, Luella Cobb, Barbara and Lorena Gann, Willie Mae Wehm, Mrs. Bill Davis, Ernestine and Estylene Harring, visitors.

Many Beautiful Gowns Seen at Minuet Club

With the advent of spring days, many of the social affairs are marked with the lovely new gowns and decorations.

At the entertainment of the Minuet club Saturday evening at Hotel Scharbauer, the most beautiful array of evening gowns this spring was seen.

The event was attended by the largest group of members during the spring season. Music for dancing was furnished by the Gerald Liberty orchestra of Big Spring.

Handsome lace and dainty organdies seemed to be the preference, but there were other lovely satins and taffetas.

Only a few of the lovelier ones are listed: Mrs. Barney Smith was pretty in a pink lace and organdie creation. Mrs. Foy Proctor wore ecru lace over satin with green accessories.

Mrs. Hugh Lee Burchfiel was wearing beautiful white taffeta. Mrs. Fred Wright selected pink satin.

Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer was attractive in pink lace. Mrs. Jack Hazeltine chose a semi-formal blue model trimmed with pink. Peach net with organdie was worn by Mrs. George Klingaman. Mrs. T. B. Flood was wearing pink lace.

A lovely powder blue satin was worn by Mrs. H. J. Phillips. Mrs. Leon Goodman was lovely in black models. Mrs. Elliott Cowden selected peach organdie.

Similar affairs are held by the club the last Saturday of each month.

Attending Saturday evening were Messrs and Mmes. H. L. Burchfiel, Harvey Conger, Elliott Cowden, T. B. Flood, George Glass, Allen Donnelly, E. H. Ellison, Leon Goodman, Jack Hazeltine, Allan Hargrave, Joe Hemphill, O. B. Holt, George Klingaman, W. P. Knight, Roy Parks, A. S. Lege, H. J. Phillips, J. R. Martin, Foy Proctor, Homer Rowe, Clarence Scharbauer, John M. Shipley, B. T. Smith, Allen Tolbert, Harry Tolbert, Henry Wolcott, Fred Wright, and L. C. Waterman.

Nineteen young people attended the program.

Ben J. Jones, who was arrested by police purely squad members, told officers he washed his hands, face and neck every morning, but a bath more than once a year was sheer waste of time and dangerous to the health.

FORMER SLAVE, 112, DEAD

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UP)—Eron Ford, former negro slave, 112 years, old died because of a blister on his left foot after surviving common illnesses. Infection from the blister caused death, physicians said. Ford's oldest son is 89, his youngest 54.

HER FLAIR FOR FLIRTING WITH BOY HORSES MAY COST TOP FLIGHT RACE

By MAX RIDDLE
(Copyright 1932, NEA Service)

Can Top Flight put romance out of her mind long enough to win the immortality of a Derby victory? Or, as the horses go to the post for the Kentucky classic, will the cute filly's eyes stray to some well-groomed colt, and will she forget all about the race?

Top Flight, unseated as a 2-year-old, has been made the favorite to win. But many horsemen remain to be convinced that the Whitney entry can turn the trick.

Fillies are hard to train in the spring of their third year. They are likely to flirt at every chance they get. A race offers them a chance to get acquainted with a new boy friend.

Moreover, two-year-old champions seldom last to win three-year-old honors. In recent years there have been some lamentable failures among the Whitney races, including Whicome, Boolum and Equipoise. Top Flight is reported to have been training well, and may go to the post in fit condition to duplicate the record of Regret, the only filly that ever won the Derby.

Regret was the only filly ever favored to win the Derby—until Top Flight came along, with her achievement of winning more money as a 2-year-old than any other horse. And Regret carried the same Eton blue and brown-capped silks that Top Flight will wear May 7 at Louisville. The late Harry Payne Whitney owned Regret. His son, Cornelius "Sonny" Whitney owns Top Flight.

They say it is a poor year when 2-year-old fillies beat colts and geldings, but one can believe that Top Flight deserves her honors. Starting out at Aqueduct, the daughter of Dis Done and Flyatt, beat Polonaise and Brocado, members of her own sex, in the Clover Stakes. She then finished five lengths in front of Modern Queen and Brocado in the Lassie Stakes at Arlington Park.

It was at Saratoga that Top Flight began a career that is reminiscent of Regret—and perhaps prophetic. Regret won the Saratoga Special in 1914. After her victory, no other filly was able to halt the march of the colts until Top Flight duplicated her feat in 1931. A select band of 2-year-olds faced Top Flight that day in August, but only Indian Runner, Top Flight's half brother, could get close to her.

Probably Top Flight's best race was her victory in the forty-second running of the Belmont Futurity, richest race in the world. The brilliant filly was burdened with the heaviest weight a filly is allowed to carry—127 pounds—and only Tick On at 130 had more to carry. After her victory in the Special, Top Flight had won the Spinaway by five lengths, and the Matron Stakes by a length and a half. She was therefore a favorite in the Futurity.

Top Flight was sorely pressed in the early running by Morfair and Mad Pursuit. The former led until only 200 yards were left. But when Workman called upon Top Flight, she bounded forward with astounding speed, passed the tiring Morfair, and was by two lengths. Mad Pursuit headed Morfair to take the place.

Ten fillies have won the Futurity, but Top Flight set a record. She is the only one of the band that was able to win carrying top

How About a Break on the Prices For Dear Old Gus Phann?

Baseball attendances have been good during the first few weeks of the campaign. But a steady falling off in receipts has been shown in nearly every major league park.

Before the summer is over, there is reason to believe, baseball admission prices must be reduced. The practice followed in many of the parks, of converting ordinary grandstand seats into reserved seats, with an added tax, for important games on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, may find the fans cold.

The Brooklyn Plan.

Take the case in Brooklyn, where it appears evident the intent of the management is to make the fans weep.

After winning the Futurity, Top Flight journeyed down into Maryland where she won the Pimlico Futurity. In this event she gave another thrilling performance, running the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:44 4-5, to establish a new record for the race. In winning she had to withstand a terrific challenge from Tick On and Burgoo King.

Last year was a strange year for two-year-olds in that it witnessed the sensational rise to prominence of new stallions, stallions such as Big Blaze, sire of Burning Blaze, and Dis Done, sire of Top Flight. Dis Done was utterly useless as a race horse, and he was not considered a success as a sire. The Whitneys had even leased him to other interests. But in the one year of 1929 Dis Done sired Top Flight, Indian Runner, Dis Dat and I Say.

Top Flight ought to be able to run the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter with as little trouble as she has run the shorter distances. She can, and has, packed more weight than the Derby impost, and she can run in the mud as well.

pay for grandstand enlargements, and pay back that $40,000 shipped to St. Louis for Mack Wilson—and pay through the nose, at that.

The management has designated seven additional rows of reserved seats in the lower section of the old grandstand which heretofore sold for $1. These seats stretch from the home plate both along first and third base lines.

There are from 4000 to 5000 seats in this newly reserved section. On big days these will go for $1.50, which is 50 cents over the previous top price. With all of these seats filled, even a sports writer's mathematics will yield the fact that $2250 a day more is being coaxed out of the Brooklyn fans' pockets.

Premium on Crowd.

On Brooklyn's opening day recently, 25,000 fans filled the park, and of course the new reserved section was jammed. At the second game, the weather was bad and but 6800 turned out for the contest. The seats in question were priced at $1 that day. But, in the third and the fourth games, when crowds of 20,000 and 18,000 paid their way in, the old 50 cents "squeeze play" was on again.

For big games, with important drawing cards, such as the Giants, it appears that 50 cents more will be charged.

This switch in prices is hardly justified, even though the rabid Brooklyn fan prefers to miss meals rather than ball games. The Brooklyn club has more reserved seats than any other club in the two major leagues, even the Yankee stadium which seats 85,000.

Before the grandstand enlargements were made at Ebbetts Field, there were 3100 bleacher seats. The charge for these seats was 50 cents. But there are now only 237 bleacher seats and they are reserved for children. Adults are denied admission to the only available bleachers.

A Remote Grandstand.

Directly above the miniature bleachers in Brooklyn is a tier of $1 grandstand seats. There are seats for about 2000 people there. Since these seats are far enough from the home plate to be known as "bleachers" the Flatbush fans are demand-

Expert Gives Measurements

LONDON. (UP)—Girls! Dig out those old-fashioned tape measures and run the rule over yourselves. For here's the latest of the usual summer crop of measurements that every girl's figure should have.

They have been compiled by a beauty expert here, after taking the measurements of scores of British girls, and if your waistline doesn't agree with this expert's figures, then you do not qualify for the 1932 pulchritude stakes.

The all-important figures for figures, are:

- Height.....5 ft. 4 ins.
- Neck.....12 1/2 ins.
- Bust and chest.....34 ins.
- Waist.....27 ins.
- Upper arm.....10 ins.
- Lower arm.....9 ins.
- Hips.....34 ins.
- Thigh.....18 ins.
- Calf.....13 ins.
- Ankle.....8 1/2 ins.

PROBE RAT MENTALITY

EL PASO, Tex. (UP)—Dr. William D. Ellis, son of Homer Y. Ellis, El Paso, is conducting a psychological inquiry into the intelligence of rats at the University of Frankfurt-on-Main in Germany. Dr. Ellis, a 1920 graduate of El Paso high school, is studying in Europe on a scholarship.

That they be thrown open to the public at a 50 cent charge.

The practice of making row upon row of ordinary grandstand seats into reserved seats for big games with an extra charge is not confined to Brooklyn. It is an almost universal practice on Saturdays and Sundays in cities where the league champions are playing or where natural rivals meet on the diamond.

The fans who have done pretty well by the major league clubs during prosperous times, ought to get some kind of a break in these days when a half buck is not a tip but will buy food and a few other things more necessary than seats in a ball park.

World Diamond Stock Is Held

LONDON. (UP)—The diamond industry is in a bad way, and from the looks of it, Cupid has been nearly knocked-out by the economic depression.

The world stock of unsaleable diamonds is estimated to aggregate nearly $100,000,000. The diamond kings are facing a crisis because the public demand for the stones has nearly disappeared.

Whether young girls, on becoming engaged, no longer require a diamond ring, diamond dealers are unable to say, but purchases have declined by nearly nothing. The normal demand is estimated at $60,000,000, but last year less than $10,000,000 worth were sold. It constitutes the smallest annual sales since the World War.

Diamond dealers claim that more than $40,000,000 worth of diamonds lie in the vaults here, for which customers cannot be found.

Production in the diamond mines in South Africa has virtually ceased this year and the mines are to remain closed owing to the accumulation of unsold stocks. South African diamond exports in 1929 were valued at $60,000,000, but in 1931 were estimated to have been as low as $6,500,000.

BUT WE DO SAY THIS

consider these candidates for office and here's why:

In bringing to Midland Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig, nationally known Culinary Expert, for The Reporter-Telegram's Free Cooking School, the newspaper underwrote all expenses—a considerable sum—in the belief that the Cooking School would be worth many times its cost. Undoubtedly it is, but some one has to foot the bills.

These Candidates for elective office believe the Cooking School is a wonderful help to the people of Midland and Midland County. They are defraying a part of the expenses of the School and urge their friends and the public in general to attend every session. They are glad of the opportunity to help make possible this community event.

Costs $246 a Day To Clean Capitol

AUSTIN, (UP)—It costs $246 each day for cleaning and repairs to the Texas capitol.

The building was built at a cost of 3,000,000 acres taken from the public domain today the land is worth over $60,000,000. Construction was begun Feb. 1, 1882, and the completed building dedicated May 16, 1888.

The task of cleaning its tiled halls, polishing brass, and operating machinery requires a force of 40 men. Nine porters alone are kept busy cleaning its halls and roundabouts. During the last fiscal year these porters were paid $6,468. Many departments, such as the banking department, maintain their own staff of janitors to prevent misplacing important records.

A carpenter, an electrician, and a painter were paid $1,800 each last year. The capitol maintenance staff also includes a plasterer at $1,500 a year, a plumber at $1,000, a chief engineer of the power plant at $1,000, an assistant at $1,200, and a fireman at $1,000.

The capitol's bill for fuel, water and lights averages about $2,000 a month. Last year disinfectants, floor sweep and miscellaneous supplies for the building cost $17,308.

Despite heavy additional costs for moving laws and trimming flower beds around the capitol in spring and summer, the state board of control operates entirely within its budget. There will be no deficiency, but a surplus, at the end of the fiscal year, judging from present expenditures.

The dome of the state capitol is high by seven feet than the dome of the national capitol at Washington. The 17 watchmen who guard the building night and day refer to it as the seventh largest building in the world.

It contains 258 rooms, 900 windows, and 500 doors.

The building proper covers three acres of ground, but has 18 acres of floor space. Its wainscoting, of oak, pine, cherry, cedar, walnut, ash and mahogany, would extend over seven miles if laid end to end.

Despite the expansiveness of the building, the vast machinery of the Texas government is crowded. Near the capitol the state has already constructed a nine-story building for house records and highway departments. Contract has been let for a new eight-story Highway and Record building to cost about $500,000. Texas' court's old courthouse has been remodeled to provide offices for the banking department and the state game, fish and oyster commission.

Buoy on Spree Confuses Steamer

BOSTON, (UP)—The British steamer Marathon, en route from Trinidad to Montreal, was nosing through the night 300 miles east of Boston when her lookout was startled to hear the wailing of a whistling buoy.

It first was feared the ship had strayed from her course and was perilously near a hidden reef. Investigation revealed, however, that the buoy was on a spree, that it had broken from distant moorings and drifted into the steamship lanes.

Yet You Can Catch A Train at Depot— Believe It or Not

PARIS. (UP)—In the old days a railway station was a shed to keep the rain off passengers while they waited for a train. Today, a railway station here is the end of the voyage for many for it has more attractions than a three-ring circus. The oldest railway station on the continent, the Gare St. Lazare here, is brighter than any music hall and you can have a better time there in these depression days than you can in the deserted byways of Montmartre and Montparnasse. In this unusual railway station you can: Go to bed. Have a tooth pulled. Cash a check, day or night. Go to the movies and have a special attendant tap you on your shoulder five minutes before your train leaves. Buy a mousetrap, caviar, books, or whiskey. Go shopping for exclusive hats.

gowns, furs, diamonds, pearls and shoes. Telephone to any point. Have your hair waved, get a shave or a shine. Eat a ten-course meal or go to church.

In addition to that you can, of course, miss a train, but everything is so organized to reduce that to the minimum. The loudspeakers speak in both English and French so that even a child can distinguish between the two. In the station movie theatre, between films, a slide is thrown on the screen saying: "PARDON US"

HIGH PRAISE IS GIVEN MRS. IHRIG BY MANY EDITORS

"Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig cannot be praised too highly," said John McCarty, editor of the Dallas, Texas, Morning News, in his editorial on the conclusion of The Texan's second annual cooking school, last March.

"Mrs. Ihrig is without question the finest cook and the most likable person we have ever had in a cooking school. It has been a pleasure to know her and a joy to work with her."

Mrs. Ihrig will conduct the Reporter-Telegram's cooking school at the Yucca theatre this week. The sentiments of Editor McCarty are concurred by all Panhandle and Plains editors for whom Mrs. Ihrig has given schools.

Said William Russell Clark, of Memphis, as Mrs. Ihrig ended the Memphis Democrat's fifth annual school, "Mrs. Ihrig's cooking school classes are more like friendly chats in her own kitchen, with a few neighbors than like formal courses in school. Her informality is a great source of pleasure to everyone attending the school. In addition, she is a cook of extraordinary ability and a demonstrator without an equal."

"Mrs. Ihrig seems to so thoroughly enjoy giving her lectures and demonstrations, that one cannot deny that she conducts a marvelous school," said Albert Law, publisher of the Lamesa Reporter.

"Mrs. Ihrig introduced cooking schools to Panhandle Hereford in a great way," said Dave Warren, business manager of the Hereford and Panhandle papers. "Our schools were undoubtedly the best first schools ever held in the Panhandle."

"Shamrock wants Mrs. Ihrig back again," declared Albert Cooper, publisher of the Shamrock Texan, "and we want to be satisfied with anyone else. Mrs. Ihrig conducts a cooking school with the adroitness and ability derived only from long years of experience. However, she still retains all the personal charm and graciousness which made her one of the most popular matrons in social circles of St. Joseph, Mo., several years ago."

Trans-Atlantic Traffic Is Slow

HAMBURG. (UP)—Traffic handled by the 17 firms engaged in the trans-Atlantic service declined 31.6 per cent in 1931, compared to the previous year.

Passengers handled were little more than one-third of the 1930 figures, totaling only 685,000 persons, as compared to 1,900,000 persons. The two German firms, Hamburg-America and North German Lloyd, carried 771,696 of these, compared to 2,159,495 the previous year. Thus, despite a net loss of 21.6 per cent, these two firms were able to increase their share of the total traffic 25 per cent.

Lost Squadron Remarkable Show

Vibrant with entertainment that quickens the pulse, the spectacular air epic, "The Lost Squadron," thrilled audiences at the Grand theatre Sunday.

The picture will be shown again today and Tuesday.

"The Lost Squadron" combines a strong story of movie-making and intimate Hollywood with a glorification of intrepid stunt flyers, who daily risk their lives that theatres may be provided with thrills. No air picture has ever assembled such an imposing squadron of dare-devils, or has pictured so many hair-raising crashes and catastrophes. Responsible for the loops, spirals, spins, banks and thrilling nose dives, were Dick Grace, Art Gobel, Frank Clark, Babe Green and Garland Lincoln—aces all.

Of particular interest is a gala premiere staged at the noted Chinese theatre on "the boulevard," featuring stars, lights, dazzling gowns, limousines, radio speeches, and the pomp and display of a regular first night movie.

Frigidaire Starts Buying Campaign

DAYTON.—Encouraged by the success of General Motors' national exhibits, which drew nearly 5,000,000 people to 55 product displays in the country early in April, Frigidaire corporation, a subsidiary, launched a buying stimulation program on May 6.

Stressing "outstanding values" as the reason for the public to buy electric refrigerators and economy and thrift as justification for such purchases at this time, Frigidaire's national campaign is being used by most of its 5,000 dealers, and is being exploited with national advertising, direct mail and hundreds of thousands of door-to-door hangers.

It is being held simultaneously in all parts of the country, according to E. G. Biebler, president and general manager, and will continue until May 15.

Showrooms and windows have been redecorated in brilliant spring colors with materials supplied to the factory at less than usual cost and at a lower cost than in any previous campaign, it is said.

The entire event has been highly dramatized and is known as the "Frigidaire Spring Showing and Food Thrift exhibit." Invitations to visit the showing are being extended to as many homes in the country as possible, with the hope of reaching every wired home with some form of advertising.

Five-Day Week Used by Hittites

CHICAGO, May 2. (UP)—The "five-day week" of growing popularity here and in Soviet Russia, dates back 4,000 years. In 2200 B. C. the Hittites and Assyrians used the same system, according to tablets found at Alisnar by Dr. H. H. von der Osten, director of the Hittite Expedition of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago and translated by Dr. I. J. Gelb of the Institute staff.

The documents refer to the business methods of Assyrian merchants and money lenders, and are the second group of "Cappadocian" tablets ever uncovered. They were discovered in a building excavated by the expedition, many still in their clay envelopes.

They reveal that the capital of the Hittite empire was Hattusas, now modern Boghaz Koi. Also, that the word "Habitru," long thought to mean "Hebrew" was a generic term for any foreigner.

One, a letter to a creditor, enclosed payment and a threat of death if further payment was demanded. Two others, from an agent to his employer, relate to a business trip. Interest rates as high as 50 and 60 per cent were asked and received by the Assyrians, who doubted the ability of the Hittites to repay. In one case the rate was 180 per cent, and a bonus of honey. All were short term loans, not exceeding 6 months. Between Assyrians, however, rates were 20 to 30 per cent. When a debtor failed to pay, he was sold into slavery.

Dates on the documents show that the calendar in use was in the eponymous style, the weeks and years being named for officials, much as the Romans later named their years for the consuls. The five-day week of the Assyrians did not follow the Babylonian calendar, the other great contemporary civilization, which had a seven day week.

If we dig down into the earth to a depth of about 25,000 feet we find a temperature of about 200 degrees.
