GREAT SEA HUNT FOR KIDNAPERS

Hawk Elected Head of W. T. C. C.; Big Spring Lands Meet

BIG SPRING FIRST TOWN SO HONORED Wins Over Amarillo, Mineral Wells In Ballot

SWEETWATER, May 14. (UP).—Wilbur C. Hawk, business manager of The Amarillo News Globe, today was elected by acclamation president of the West Texas chamber of commerce.

Big Spring, the first town to get the convention the first time it petitioned for it, received more than twice as many votes as Amarillo and Mineral Wells as next year's headquarters for the regional meeting.

Spencer Wells of Lubbock and Walker D. Cline of Wichita Falls were elected first and second vice-presidents, respectively.

A. J. Swenson of Stamford was named treasurer and D. A. Barden was re-elected manager.

Big Spring, listed in the census as having a population of 13,500, made the claim it is the largest town of West Texas never to have entertained a West Texas chamber of commerce convention, and sent a large delegation on a special train to bombard the session with propaganda.

The town is next to the smallest one to ever land the convention, Plainview once getting it when its population was reckoned at 6,000.

Spirited electioneering marked the last of the session, when Amarillo, Big Spring and Mineral Wells put forward their best spokesmen.

The convention was unanimously agreed on as being the best in the history of the organization.

GOODMAN ASKS CATTLEMEN GET FEDERAL FUND

Leon Goodman was elected a member of the executive committee of the West Texas chamber of commerce at its district meeting held in Sweetwater at the annual convention. He succeeds Clarence Scharbauer, who declined to take the office again.

Goodman has a prominent part in the convention. Scharbauer was a member of the important resolutions committee. Paul T. Vickers secretary of the Midland chamber of commerce, is secretary of the agricultural and livestock group conference and was a teller on the convention city tallying Saturday.

Goodman will talk on crop feeding and feeding in the corn belt versus the South. He was also on a special committee which drew up a resolution asking that the approximately $8,500,000 left in the Federal farm loan fund be made available to livestock men with extended loan limits and extended payment time.

The resolution provoked argument and Goodman warmly defended it on the open convention floor, succeeding in getting the general idea incorporated in a resolution of the program of work committee.

Others at the convention were: Mrs. Scharbauer, Mrs. Crockett, C. A. McClintic, Audrey Francis, Frank Dale, John S. Andrews and others.

The organization paid special heed this year to taxes, and a commendable stand against more taxes and offered definite data on reduction of municipal, school, county, state and federal taxes. Members of the midland group attended the convention, as well as the general sessions.

Rankin Rodeo 3 Days Next Week

Will Nix, manager of the rodeo and race meet to be staged at Rankin late in the week, was in Midland Friday evening conferring with rodeo contestants and race owners who are entering events there.

The rodeo covers three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday next. A full program of calf roping, goat roping, team tying, wild cow milking, bronc riding and other contests is scheduled.

A quarter mile free for all race is scheduled for Friday, May 20, a three eighths for Saturday and a Sunday there will be a half mile free for all and a 300 yard cowpony race.

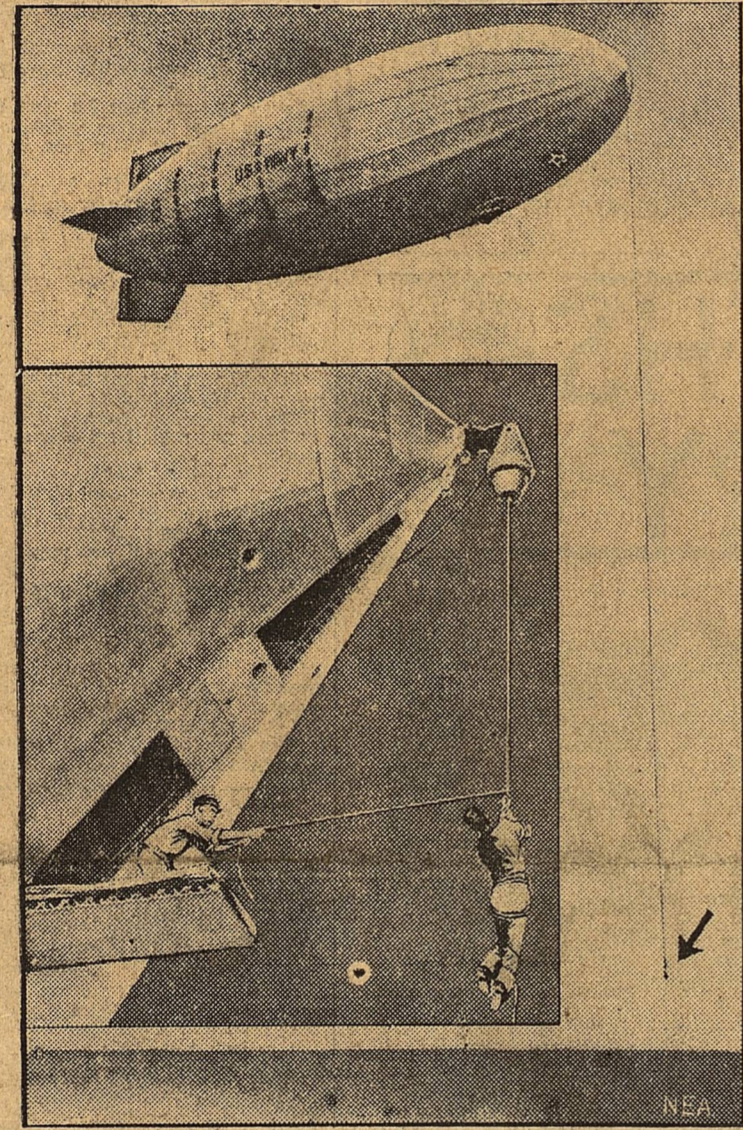

Nix said that a circular track, slightly shorter than a half mile, has been constructed and that it is built for fast time.

High Tone, the big bay Fort Stockton horse owned by Dick Davis and who was run on the local track last September, will be at Rankin and may be pitted against Gerald Bloss' George Keith in the three eighths race Saturday.

John Dublin was reported to be planning a trip to the rodeo and race meet with three or four horses. Allen Hilder left with Nix late Friday and will enter the roping events. L. E. Cook was expecting to take his brown horse, Billy B, to run in the three eighths or half mile events.

He's Going Where He's Going—This 61-Year-Old Man

An old man who weeks ago trekked through Midland to "somewhere in the west where I can die in peace on a piece of land I hope will be given me," was seen here again Friday, driving his four donkeys eastward.

Did he fail to find the land he hoped to homestead?

Or did he decide that the country was too different from Fredericksburg, where he had lived for 61 years?

These questions were not answered, for it was a different Albert Gauley who sat on the hard seat of the wagon. Even his chickens and dogs and horse and cow, riding in the wagon or hitched under and behind a trailer were quieter and more tired than on the first visit.

"I thought you would have been settled down in the west by this time," a reporter said.

Cauley kept driving.

"They don't you remember me? I talked with you not long ago, when you were here."

The old man kept his eyes glued on a spot that must have been between the ears of the donkey, right ahead.

"Can I do anything for you before you get-out of town?"

"He shook his head and spoke for the first time.

"No, son."

"Do you know where you are going?"

"No—but it's all right. I'll find some place that suits me. I've got to go back to Fredericksburg."

One got the idea that was just where the old man was headed for—the place where he has lived all his life.

Senators Work on Relief Bill Draft

WASHINGTON, May 14. (UP).—A group of democratic senators worked today over the draft of the emergency unemployment relief bill which would throw billions into what President Hoover describes as a war against economic consequences of over-liquidation and unjustified fear as to the future of the United States.

The senators were spurred by a strongly worded appeal to the president by heads of seven great railroad brotherhoods that unless something is done, "we would have to demand a dole."

Two Big Ranches In Reeves Sold

Two large ranches in western Reeves county, have changed hands in recent weeks.

George Daniels of Lexington, Ky., has purchased from Matt Grisham of Abilene, the old Sid Cowan ranch which lies in northwestern Reeves and Culberson counties. The boundary of the pasture, which comprises some 50,000 acres in all, lies about 20 miles from Toyah.

The other deal was the sale of the old Figure Four ranch in Reeves and Culberson counties to Shiel Brooks of Toyah and Van Horn. Brooks bought the ranch from Matt Grisham of Abilene. It was formerly owned by Ab Tinnin and is one of the best known ranches of the southwest.

Adopted Baby Dies, Woman Gets Another

A homeless waif born a few hours earlier in a Big Spring tourist camp and left with no identification in a Stanton camp in the city of Mrs. J. E. Moffett of Stanton, and she carried the child home to care for it until it should be claimed.

That was several months ago. The child was finally identified but, the parents plainly evincing no desire to have it restored, Mrs. Moffett had grown to consider it as her own child. She kept it until it died following an operation in a Lubbock sanitarium.

Mrs. Moffett grieved so that Dr. Moffett, her husband, made arrangements for her to go to Dallas and adopt another child.

She returned last week with a baby girl, Mary Sue, three and a half months old.

Darden Test Case Set For May 18; Determines Specified Places Row

AUSTIN, May 14. (UP).—A certified question, submitted by the San Antonio court of civil appeals and a request for an early ruling on whether candidates for congressmen-at-large must run for specified places, was on file in the supreme court today.

The state democratic executive committee ruled that candidates must run for place one, two or three. Mrs. Ida Darden of Fort Worth contested the order, contending that it should be a "free-for-all" with the three highest successful.

The supreme court later set the Darden case for May 18.

A SUPREME TRAGEDY

It has been assumed from the start that the Lindbergh kidnaping was a case of many ramifications. Thousands of police officers have sought for clues. Many were found whose genuineness was considered beyond question. The assumption of nearly everybody concerned directly in the search was that it was the work of a gang.

The mystery may never be solved, yet there is reason to believe that the dastardly deed was the work of a single person, and if that is so, that single person was either a moron or a fanatic. One person, working alone and keeping his silence, had a much better chance to escape.

The trouble is that the police, assuming it to be the work of a gang, may dissipate their energies trying to track down several persons, instead of concentrating on the much more difficult task of uncovering a single criminal.

No crime since the assassination of William McKinley has so moved the American people as the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder. The sympathy of a whole nation goes out to the parents, not because they are famous and wealthy, but because they are just a young couple to whom has come a supreme tragedy, a tragedy that might come to any couple, whether they be celebrated or walk in humbler pathways.

A WAY TO END GANGS

There are many potential government, military and scientific leaders hiding behind the masks of gang leaders, according to experiments conducted by Dr. W. H. Cowley, of Ohio State University.

Dr. Cowley, psychology expert, studied 20 criminal leaders and 20 criminal followers at the Illinois State Penitentiary, Joliet, Ill.; 20 non-commissioned officers and 20 privates from Fort Sheridan, Ill.; and 16 student leaders and 16 student followers of the University of Chicago.

He found certain traits predominate in leaders of all three classes that were missing in the followers. These traits were: self-confidence, finality of judgment, "drive" or lack of inhibition and speed of decision.

Education, it seems, holds the answer to why two men with the same qualities follow different paths—one to public fame and the other to public defamation. Education will cure the flaws of adverse environment. Once the brilliant mind of a leader is directed along the right path, it is quick to acquire fame.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The difficulty now being experienced in obtaining agreement of legislative and executive departments of the Federal Government upon economy measures would indicate that the unique American system of "checks and balances" has little utility in balancing a budget or checking waste.

Too much publicity can hardly be given to the reply made by William Wrigley Jr. when once asked why he did not stop his tremendous advertising after he had built up a gigantic business. His response was: "Did you ever hear of trainmen taking off the locomotives after they got the train moving?"

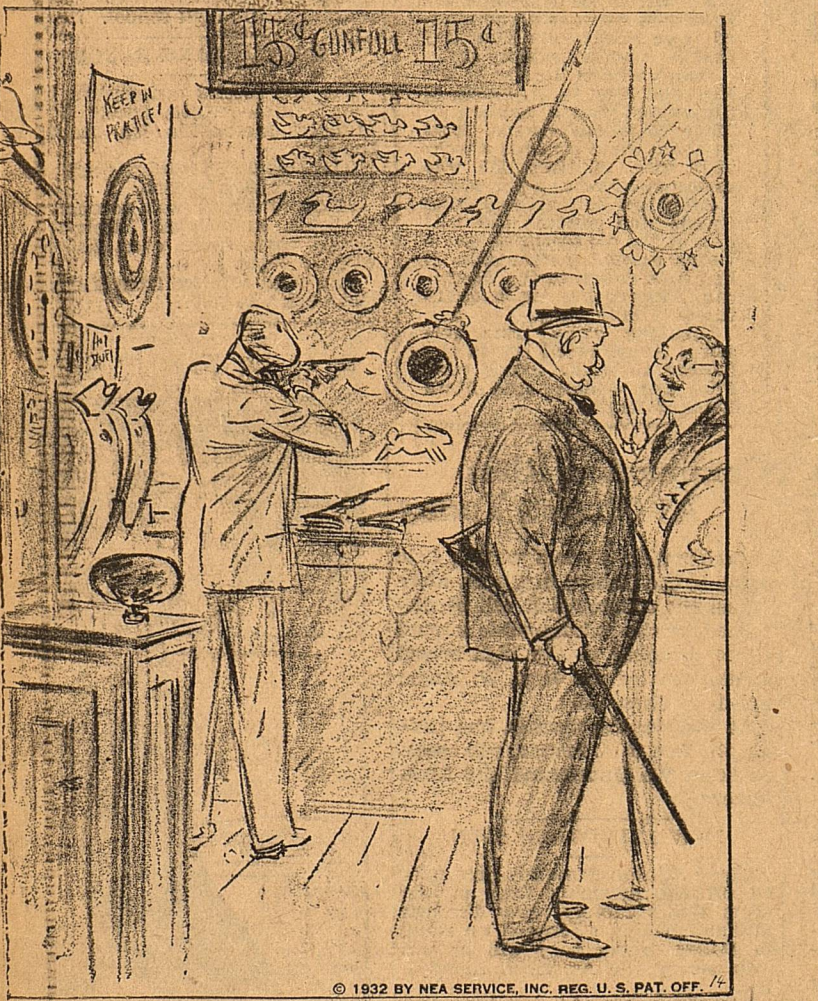

Eggs will be taken as payment for seats at the cinema in a Danish town, the proprietors have announced. Some will say the management is trying to keep one jump ahead of the audience.

"Bar" is among the English words Italy plans to drive out of her national vocabulary. Many persons in the United States are trying to drive one sense of the word out of theirs.

Perhaps that bear which showed up at a house in Brooklyn, N. Y., was simply looking for a place to hide until the Senate investigation of the New York Stock Exchange was completed.

The poem "The Man With the Hoe," said to have earned $250,000 for Edwin Markham, its author, in the last thirty-three years, seems to have hoed some profitable rows.

Desolate Island of River Is Home for Few Near Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—Eleven miles up the Mississippi river from heavy residential of Island 40 in a world almost by itself.

They have no churches, no picture shows and only one store. Their mail reaches them every third day. They didn't hear about the Lindbergh baby being kidnaped until the story was five days old.

For the first time since 1915, the Island school was revived this year as part of the school system of Shelby county.

Parents petitioned the county school board to establish a school, and Mrs. Gertrude Light is the Island "school marm."

Twelve children, ranging from 5 1/2 to 16 years of age attend. First to the sixth grades are taught. "Sometimes the roads are almost covered with terrapins," Mrs. Light says. "They are harmless, but there's a large fence type turtle—logger-heads we call them—that will try to fight you if you cross its path."

Wild turkeys are plentiful and killing snakes is an every-day occurrence. "I never have to make the children study," Mrs. Light said. "They have so little else to occupy their time, so little outside amusement to fill their minds. They love to read and they beg for stories, even at their recess time."

George Faudett, of Memphis, who tends the government lights which mark the main channel of the river, takes the mail to the islanders every third day when he goes up the river to fill the lights with oil.

Few Texas Men Offered Jobs

AUSTIN, (UP)—College graduates this year may as well "go home and pick cotton," according to Dean P. U. Taylor of the College of Engineering, University of Texas. The economic depression has shut the doors to the business world that formerly stood open for university graduates here.

The engineering profession has been hard hit, he declared.

Only in the College of Pharmacy have there been advance offers of positions, Dean W. E. Cidley says. Heaves each of the 15 graduates in the College of Pharmacy this year will be given positions.

Over supply of teachers will work a hardship on several hundred university graduates according to Miss Miriam Dozier, secretary to the Teachers' Appointment Committee of the University.

A few inquiries have been received by Dr. J. A. Fitzgerald, dean of the school of business administration, but they have resulted in no advance employment.

Patman Tries New Method

WASHINGTON—A final attempt was begun to secure a house vote at this session on legislation to cash the soldiers' bonus certificates. Rep. Patman, of Texas, and other bonus sponsors, besought the rules committee, which maps the house program, to approve a resolution giving the bonus bill a place on the calendar.

There was no great chance of their succeeding but the action might make it possible for them to employ a discharge petition to force out the bonus bill.

All's Well That Boswell

"GOODBYE, girls, and practice your Brahms Fifth Symphony!" Mr. Boswell went to Florida, but instead of continuing the classic violin, cello and piano, Connie lifted a saxophone from behind the sofa. Vet took a banjo from the same place, and Martha occupied the piano bench with syncretized intent.

Playing hockey from Brahms started the famous Boswells by thins. Papa felt a little sore, when he returned to New Orleans and listened to the vigor of their self-devised harmonies. Then they started to sing together, and radio work in New Orleans, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco soon followed. Polishing their unique rhythms on the train for New York, they invented new arrangements for auditions, and not long after landing in the big city were the sensation of the studios.

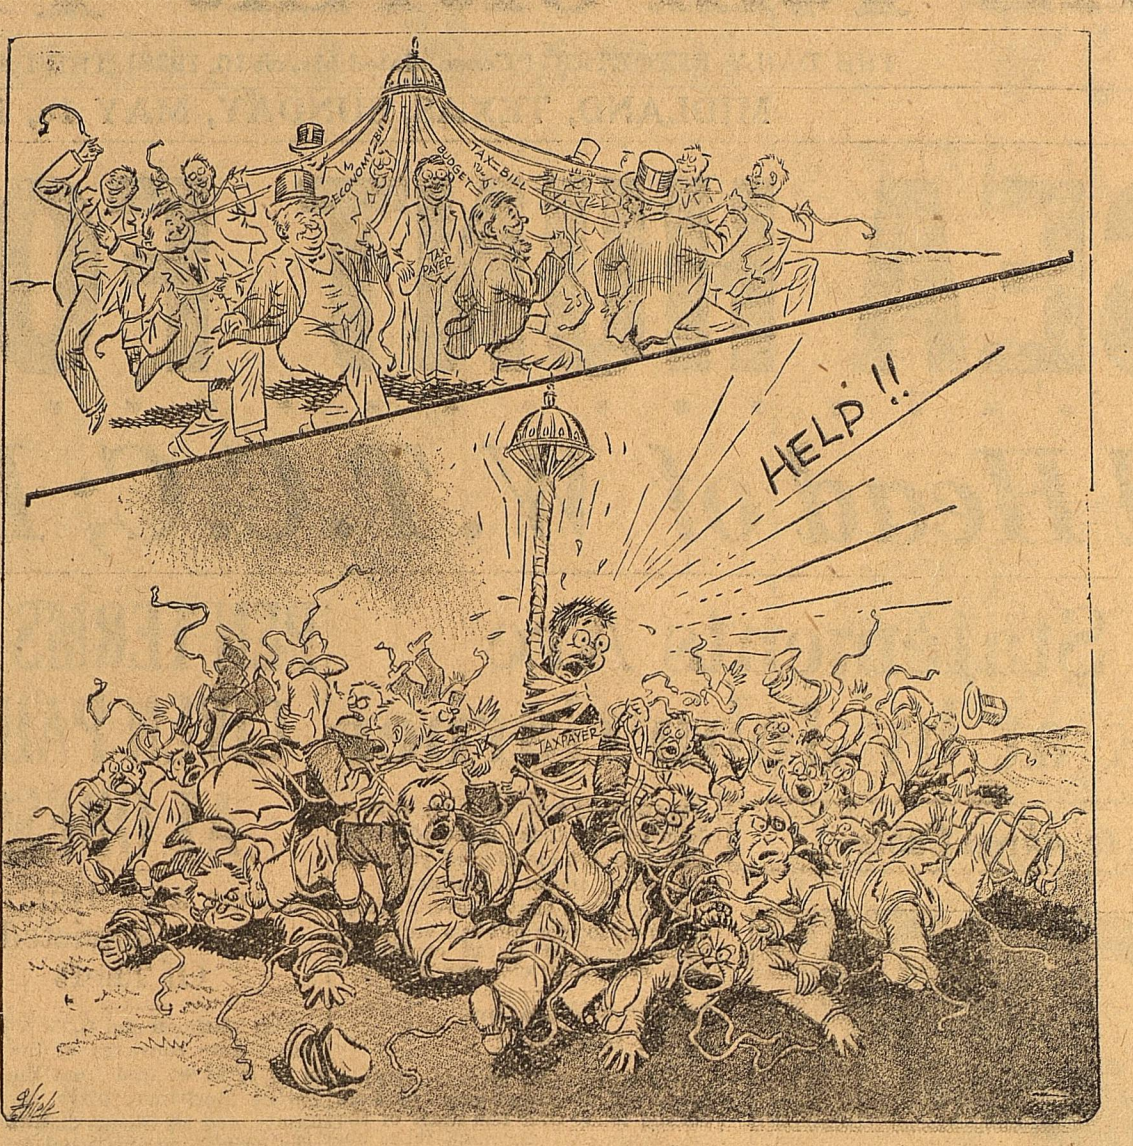

The Boswell Sisters have "arrived." The best proof is their presence in the galaxy of stars gathered by Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company for the "Music That Satisfies" programs. Every Monday and Thursday night on a Coast-to-Coast hook-up via the Columbia Broadcasting system, they perform before the nation's largest radio audience.

Originality, persistence and hobbies are the words of Boswell success. They use no notes because what they sing can't be written. Everlastingly keeping at it has brought them to the top of the radio heap, while hobbies refresh their minds for arduous hours of practice. Martha, who still plays the piano for the trio, likes to cook, Connie paints and Vet is a tap dance expert.

Maytime in Washington, or How Congress Winds Up Its Business

AIR PATHS of GLORY

By DEXTER TEED NEA Service Writer

The pleasant-faced man with graying hair whom you could see almost any day at his desk in the offices of a London, England, electrical firm does not look now like one of the great aviator-heroes of history. And if you could see him on some late spring afternoon standing beside a headstone in a Surrey cemetery, placing a bunch of new-cut flowers on a thick-turfed grave, you would think that, no, he must be just a mild-mannered business man touched by sentiment. You would be impressed, though when you saw him pause, stand silently and gaze upon the stone, and then, with a determined look, write the second bright chapter in Atlantic flights.

Taking a Chance It was less than a month after Commander Read crossed the ocean to England that the then Lieut. Brown and Capt. Alcock took off from Newfoundland, determined to be the first to make a non-stop flight across the Atlantic. The weather reports were not too encouraging, but they decided to take a chance—as your true adventurers will. Their heavily-laden Vimy-Vickers biplane lifted slowly from the runway, bounced a couple of times and then opened into the gathering mist. Within a few moments, as the Englishmen glanced back, the shore became blurred and then disappeared entirely. They were on their way—no fame or death.

They expected the worst flying conditions. The worst came. A thick fog, impenetrable as a white cotton blanket, blocked the way. They might have turned back, but for Alcock and Brown there was no turning back. They fought onward. A Close Shave The fog did not clear away. It was necessary to fly by dead reckoning and they could tell how far they were from the surface of the ocean. Once the motor sputtered, hesitated. The plane dipped downward and they thought they were doomed. If they had time to think. But suddenly the motor commenced to fire regularly again. As they caught a fleeting glimpse of rolling waves a few feet below their plane, Alcock jerked open the throttle, nosed the plane upward and with a vibrating roar it lifted out of danger.

They were in fog nearly all the way. Sometimes they flew as high as 12,000 feet; at others they sailed on top miles only 300 feet above the sea. Land in Crash At last their instruments indicated they were over Ireland. They circled the plane, and saw a hole in the clouds. By that time their gas was nearly gone. Alcock took a chance. He nosed the biplane downward. It shot into clear air. A rough field lay below. But they must land—and did. The plane struck a hummock, bounced along, swerved down and struck on its nose with a crash as high as 12,000 feet. The two aviators forward. They crawled out of the wreckage, shook themselves and discovered they were uninjured. That was the first time man had ever crossed the Atlantic on a non-stop flight in an airplane. American papers carried big headlines, London gave them a tumultuous, wildly cheering celebration. Both were knighted.

Alcock's Fate A week later in Normandy Alcock's plane crashed. He was alive when he was lifted out, but he died that fall of injuries and was buried in Surrey. Bridge Repair Near Coahoma Under Way

ABILENE—Temporary construction to replace a 20-foot concrete bridge washed out on highway 1 west of Coahoma Tuesday, will be completed probably late today. W. A. French, division highway engineer, said last night upon return from Howard county. Traffic since Tuesday has been routed from Coahoma to Big Spring over a 17-mile detour—a four-mile stretch north from Coahoma and thence due west. "We hope to have traffic back on the highway between Coahoma and Big Spring by Thursday night," French said. The bridge destroyed was a concrete structure, four miles west of Coahoma, where a 100-foot washout on the highway took a depth of 10 feet. Damages of a 50-foot washout crippling approach to a bridge east of Coahoma, were repaired Tuesday, so that traffic could be resumed late that day. Highway damages in Howard county range between $5,000 and $10,000, Mr. French estimated. With Capt. Martin Koonsman of the highway patrol, the division engineer left for Coahoma Tuesday at 2 a. m. when word was received here that the bridge had gone out on the highway.

Ancient Game Found at Ur

LONDON. (UP)—Archaeological finds of great interest at Ur, of the Chaldees, have been reported here by C. Leonard Woolley, of the British Museum-University of Pennsylvania joint expedition. One object dug up was a broken carved stone, part of a gaming board suitable to the playing of a game similar to "Snakes and Ladders," in which dice are used, and which long has been popular in England. The game, Woolley thinks, continued in use for thousands of years after its invention. The find was made in a building (dating from the fourth century, B. C. Less than two feet beneath the present surface of the ground at Ur, the party found a small bowl of polished soapstone decorated with five bulls carved in relief. The excavators believe that the bowl must have been at least 30 feet beneath the old surface. It dates from about 2400 B. C., when stone carving had reached its most advanced stage. Each bull has over its back an ear or barley, symbolizing the agricultural wealth of Mesopotamia. The bowl is the finest piece of carving yet secured at Ur and will be exhibited with the gaming board here. Woolley, who is accompanied by his wife, will return to Ur in the autumn. He has previously dug up tangible evidence of the existence of the Babylonian cities, and is in search of more treasures for the expedition. The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.) prevent it from raining." One of the clerks at the employment agency was considered a bit of a wit. "Where were you born?" he asked a Scotchman. "Glasgow?" "What for?" "I wanted to be near by mother." BILL COLLECTOR: Then I'm to tell the firm that you will probably settle the account at the end of next week? DEBTOR: Well, I hardly like to put it like that. "Probably" is a pretty strong word. Better make it "possibly." I don't know who wrote this poem, but it's just an example of how a "newspaper guy" has to operate if he gets in on any news at all: ONLY A NEWSPAPER GUY I see a man strut through a jam in a hall, Take a seat 'mid the speakers and chat with them all. "Is this Hoover?" I ask, "that the crowd he defies?" "No," says someone, "he's one of the newspaper guys." I see a man pushing his way through the lines Of cops where a fire brightly glimmers and shines. "Chief Collins?" I ask, but a fireman replies, "Oh no, why that's one of those newspaper guys." I see a man walk through the door of a show Where great crowds are blocked by the sign S. R. O. "Is that Arliss himself that no ticket he buys?" "Well, hardly. He's one of those newspaper guys." I see a man knock on a president's door And the sign, NO ADMITTANCE, completely ignore. "Is this Morgan that privacy's rights he denies?" "Morgan? Shucks! It's just one of those newspaper guys." And some day I'll walk by the great streets of gold And see a man enter, unquestioned and bold. "A saint?" I'll inquire, and old Peter'll reply, "Well, I should say not. He's a newspaper guy."

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Susan Carey, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to Ernest Heath, 45, her former employer. She has come so partly to provide for the future of her aunt who is ill and partly because she despairs of winning the man she really loves, Bob Dunbar.

Denise Ackroyd, a debutante, dislikes Susan and causes trouble between her and Bob. Ben Lappman, a former admirer of Susan's shoots at Heath and then turns the gun on himself. He recovers and the affair is hushed up. Susan realizes she doesn't love Heath enough to marry him but can not tell him so. She sees Bob at the theatre and this awakens old memories. Denise tells Bob that Susan is a "gold digger" and he becomes very angry. Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, warns Susan not to marry without love.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL

Denise sat before her taffeta-skirted dressing table, intent on the arduous business of making up. Her costume for the George Washington ball foamed over a chair and her powdered wig lay on the brocade bed spread. Her mother's English maid, pressed into duty for the occasion, hovered around. Presently Denise stood up, satisfied at last with the effect she had produced, and, slim and supple in her single, diaphanous garment, permitted herself to be arrayed in the pale blue frock with huge panniers and lacy underskirt. This done she adjusted the wig over her own shining tresses. The effect was marvelous. Instantly her gamin prettiness was transformed into spectacular beauty. She was dignified as a lady in an ancient portrait.

She tried the effect of an infinitesimal patch near the corner of one eye and liked it. Then she seized an atomizer and sprayed herself casually with scent.

"I think it stupid the club committee insists on everyone wearing masks," complained Mrs. Ackroyd, watching the performance with interest. Stevens, the maid, slipped Denise's black mask into the pocket of her white fur wrap.

"No, not there. Give it to me now," the girl demanded impatiently. "I may as well put it on before I start." She tied and adjusted it with care. The effect of the mask added piquancy to the whole costume.

"You are a picture, miss," Stevens declared with enthusiasm. Denise snatched up her fan, allowed the wrap to be adjusted around her slim shoulders, and hurried downstairs. There a young grandee in biscuit-colored satin breeches and waistcoat of the same color with lace frills at his wrists and buckled shoes on his feet awaited her. He, too, was masked.

"Come along, we're late," the girl said petulantly. The well-modeled lips of the young courtier curved in what seemed to be ill humor.

"Whose fault is it?" he demanded. "I've been waiting for hours."

This Denise ignored. "It's going to be a poisonous party, anyhow. I'm sure of that," she rattled on, flustering down the steps and managing with difficulty to insert her he-ruffled self within the confines of the "sit-in" motor car.

"Everything's poisonous," muttered Denise, slamming the door.

"What did you say?" she eyed him suspiciously.

He growled, "Nothing at all," and subsided into his corner.

"You haven't a cigarette hidden about you in all that lingerie, I suppose," Denise wanted to know.

For answer the boy reached into the pocket of his cousin coat slung over the back of the seat. He was an inconspicuous figure at the wheel of the big car, with his powdered wig and trappings of a blood of the late eighteenth century. It was strange to see him guiding this devil machine of the twentieth century through the dark night. They should have had a coach and four.

No stranger was the sight of Denise presently, a cigarette hanging limply from one corner of her elaborately rouged mouth.

"Why did you say everything is poisonous nowadays?" she demanded.

"The man in the driver's seat threw her an annoyed glance. "I thought you missed that," he muttered.

"Me? I never miss anything," Denise told him airily. "I think I know what's gripping you."

"You're smart," said Bob Dunbar with sarcastic intonation.

"Aren't I, just?" She blew a cloud of smoke in his direction. "Let me tell you one thing, young fellow—my Daddy and your father have been getting together and they've decided they don't like the way you are behaving."

"So what?" the young man wanted to know.

"I was distinctly understood," Denise told him with dignity, "that we were engaged last summer. Oh, I know it wasn't announced or anything like that but you know and Daddy knew and—well, everybody."

The boy moved restlessly. "Last summer was a long time ago," he reminded her.

"Oh, yes?" Denise's voice took on a tinge of shrewdness. "Well, you can't get away with what you've been doing lately. We Ackroyds (here she tossed her head with that familiar gesture), "we have our pride."

"What's all this got to do with me?" Bob muttered rebelliously.

Denise's manner changed. Into her tone crept the cooling note of the mourning dove. "What's the use of quarreling the way we do?" she asked. "You can be nice and so can I. We team well together. Everyone's always said so. We like the same things and run with the same gang. The way I look at it, it all boils down to this. We have a better chance of making things go than most of the people we know. Daddy's awfully keen for it, and so is your father."

"As if I didn't know that," growled the boy.

"Well, then, why not let's be sensible about it? Let's please everybody and surprise them, and stop this ridiculous rowing we've been doing all winter." Denise was enjoying her role of peace-maker now.

"I'm willing to bury the hatchet if you are," Denise went on. "If you like we needn't have a big wedding but just gallop off some place and have a justice marry us. That would be fun."

The man shrugged. "You've got it all worked out, haven't you?"

"That's because I know what's best for both of us," said Denise with sweet reasonableness. "I'm willing to overlook all the times you've been nasty to me and start with a clean slate."

"I guess you're the doctor," Bob said, compressing his lips. The girl's cigarette described a wide arc as she lunged it from her. They were curving into the drive of the country club now. She reached over and patted his shoulder possessively.

"That's my own sweet boy," she cooed, holding up her lips for a kiss.

The music struck on Susan's ear like a blow. The scene was one of incredibly brilliant color and movement. The shifting patterns which the dancers wore reminded her of the scenes peering at through the lens of a kitescope. She was thankful for the mask which had been sent with her costume. Thus furnished with anonymity, she felt

THE ANSWER TO SUBSTITUTION
IS ALWAYS "NO"

"MORE FOR YOUR MONEY"...but MORE WHAT?

How can any shopper know what she is getting when she accepts untried, unadvertised products?

In appearance, these substitutes may imitate products of recognized quality.

But quality goes deeper than a pretty label!

You may be told the imitation package "holds a little more" for the money.

Usually, it holds little more than disappointment!

Such substitutes are urged upon unsuspecting shoppers for just one reason.

There is more profit in selling them.

The merchant who tells you these imitations are "just as good" as brands you know, and commands his clerks to do likewise, is looking only at today's sales slips. Not at tomorrow's loyal patronage.

When a product is sold cheaper than one of recognized quality, you may be sure it is made cheaper. Then how can it be "just as good?"

Honest value is a product's only inlet to the advertising columns of this newspaper.

The packaged merchandise which you read of here has a reputation at stake.

It must make good to hold your confidence, and ours. False claims would be fatal.

Whenever you shop, ask for these standard, advertised brands. And get them. Always be warned by the words "just as good" that there is something better.

Let the names you know guide you to constant quality. To definite purity. To honest weight. To good products that give full value in return for the money you spend!

Songs Failed to Aid on Auto Quiz

HARRISBURGH, Pa. (UP).—Saying it with music just doesn't work with the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol.

An applicant for an automobile operator's permit appeared, accompanied by a friend.

"Read that sign," the examiner asked.

The applicant hesitated. His friend began singing softly in Italian.

"Stop," promptly read the Italian being examined.

"What is the next sign," the patrolman asked.

Again there was a delay. The singing was resumed. The applicant read "slow."

Realizing that music doesn't go hand in hand with automobile driving, the applicant's friend was told to leave the room.

The patrolman pointed to another sign.

The Italian said "fast," but the word was "danger." He then admitted he could not read English.

Mountain Coal Operations Closed

SUNBURY, Pa. (UP).—Mining operations have been abandoned on Mahanoy Mountain, near Herndon, for the fifth time in the last 50 years.

Periodically prospecting miners discover deposits of anthracite on the mountain and arrange to produce it in large quantities for the market.

The most recent effort started last fall when a number of Mt. Carmel miners said they had discovered a large vein and would erect a breaker to prepare the coal for the market.

They worked through the winter but the advent of spring found the operation closed.

Eiffel Tower Being Painted

PARIS. (UP).—The Eiffel Tower is 45 tons heavier than it was last year.

That is the amount of paint that 45 painters are applying to the giant steel skeleton, still the third highest structure in the world. Only the Empire State and Chrysler buildings are taller.

Paris engineers went over the tower on an annual inspection and found it in good shape. Several engineers say that it can stand for another century before it will have been worn out by the elements, but most engineers agree that it may become a menace in another 20 years.

By 1950, Eiffel Tower may have to be torn down or rebuilt, the process of rebuilding being such a costly and difficult task that Paris may easily lose the most visible feature of its skyline. The base of the great tower is stronger than its top and this is explained by the fact that the top sways in high winds and twists the metal.

The tower is being painted yellow and brown, which all Parisians agree is not pretty. Engineers say that the tower has a better chance of a longer life with paint of those two colors than any others.

One American firm offered to paint the tower with aluminum paint, so that it would sparkle like silver, just for the publicity concerned, but this was opposed.

Aluminum cloth is now being produced in various colors and designs. It consists of a fabric base covered with aluminum foil.

Burgoo King Wins Preakness; 3rd Derby Winner to Repeat

PIMLICO, Maryland, May 14 (UP)—Col. E. R. Bradley's Burgoo King took foremost place among the season's 3-year-olds when he won the $50,000 added Preakness stakes and became the third horse in history to win both the Derby and the Preakness.

The time was 1:59 4-5. Tick On was second, beaten by a neck, Boatswain third and Mad Pursuit fourth. Sir Braffton won both the Derby and Preakness in 1919, and Gallant Fox both in 1930.

Net value to the winner was $50,375. The race was seen by 40,000. Nine horses ran. Tick On got away well but at the half Boatswain was two lengths in front, Tick On second and Curacao third, with Burgoo King moving up on the outside.

Burgoo King was only a length behind Boatswain at the mile, with Tick On third, and they battled valiantly down the stretch to the wire with Burgoo King winning by a narrow margin. Burgoo King paid 3.50 to win, 5 to place and 4 to show.

"Forbidden" at The Grand Today

There is something awe-inspiring about a lifetime devotion—a love that burns in a steady flame through years of heartache as well as joy. Such a devotion is a rare and beautiful thing and is the subject presented tenderly, lovingly, exquisitely in "Forbidden," the picture that without a doubt, is the greatest thing Barbara Stanwyck has done. And this is no small thing to say for Miss Stanwyck has never given anything but a true and inspired performance.

Odd McIntyre Is On Autograph List

O. O. McIntyre, New York columnist, is the latest contributor to the "celebrity brand" autograph list, being collected by Marion F. Peters, Midland man. He drew a sketch of the Lazy B brand registered in the name of Bulla Bush Eskin but did not follow the outline with fidelity.

Two Baseball Games Are On Tap for the Afternoon

A brace of baseball games, deferred until today by inclement weather last Sunday, will begin at 3 o'clock on two diamonds.

Southern Ice and team from the Mexican quarter will mix it on the prairie diamond in the East side, and the Bushers will engage Euston Brunson's farmer nine at Bizzell park, on the Midland-Rankin highway.

Talent Outstanding In Follies at Ritz

The Chicago Follies, which will be the special added stage attraction at the Ritz theatre for two days beginning Sunday, is noted for the unusual excellence of its talent.

The first musical revue is headed by Ches Davis, a blackface comedian without a peer, who has been the star of his own attractions for many years.

Gene "Honey Gal" Cobb shares stellar honors with Ches Davis in the Chicago Follies and will be remembered as a featured artist with Neil O'Brien's Minstrels and many other big fun shows.

The Chicago Follies singing stage band provides the musical complement for this attraction. There are few bands on tour with the versatility necessary to combine real harmony and rhythm dances and these boys are among the select few.

Eb's Ankle Prevents His Playing with Pine Bluff

An ankle injury caused by a slide into home plate the first week he was training out E. B. Estes, Midland rookie, out for the season with the Pine Bluff ball club of the Cotton States league, according to Manager Wray Query, who wrote to Lindy Hiett, Hiett and Query played years together in the Texas league.

Estes reached home Friday. "I must release Eb, but not without disappointment," Query wrote. "If I kept him he would risk ruining his injured ankle every time he ran. I would be glad to keep him until it completely heals but for the fact that I must keep operating expenses down to a minimum. Times are not good here and every club must take every precaution with its finances."

"Another year as a semi-pro will help Eb lose, and I hope to get another chance at him next year. I wanted him bad enough to carry him longer than any other rookie who suffered training injury, but his ankle just wouldn't come along. I sent him to two doctors regularly."

"He played in only two games—both of them practice affairs. He was not hitting the apple at first, but socked out three hits out of four trips in the second game, one of them a triple. He is a natural hitter and a fast, rangy fielder, and I believe he is destined to become a good ball player. He showed lots of improvement with my club, worked hard and, in general, is a wonderful kid."

First reports here said Eb was hit on the ankle by a pitched ball, but Query said the slide was what caused the injury.

The boy is 19.

Firestone Dealer Points Out Hazard Of Worn Casings

"One car out of every five on the road today is running on smooth worn tires, unsafe for present day driving conditions," according to W. F. Hejl, of the Firestone Service store in this city.

"Motorists are content to go along with unsafe tire equipment only because they do not realize the danger of injury to their families and to themselves that they are risking. We find it very difficult to make owners understand just how fast they really do travel. Most car owners do not have any conception of what that rhythm means in distance covered. Few know that at 60 miles an hour a car travels 88 feet per second, and any car can come to grief in 88 feet, with oncoming traffic, curves or ditches. Failure of any tire, and particularly a front tire, means trouble."

"In other words the driver fails to realize that every car has three steering wheels, one in his hands and two on the road, these two being the two front tires. Failure of any one invites danger. That's why it's foolish to take chances with thin, worn tires."

"Many motorists risk trouble to literally 'run the treads' off their tires, getting the last few cents' worth of mileage out of them. This is false economy of the worst kind. The saving is insignificant when compared with the danger and possible expense they invite."

"It is hard to understand why motorists take chances when tire prices are the lowest in history. While prices have been materially reduced, values have actually been increased. For example, in today's Firestone tires the motorist gets a gum-dipped cord, two extra gum-dipped cord plies under the tread, and a safe, slowwearing non-skid tread at less cost than ever before."

"Firestone dealers are presenting facts to car owners in a special mailing of Firestone Dealer Co-operative catalogues to 20 million car owners. This is the largest mailing of its kind in history. The Firestone Dealer Co-operative Catalog shows important construction features and the new low price levels. Any car owner who has not received a copy may secure one at the local company."

"Right now we are conducting our own safety campaign. Every motorist that comes to our store receives a free tire examination and we can point out whether or not his tires are safe. Anyone who isn't sure about his tires can take advantage of our service. If we can save future troubles we'll be glad to do so."

Automobiles are owned on 59 per cent of the farms in the United States.

GREEK SOCIETY

DENTON.—Granting of membership to Theta Sigma Phi, national journalism fraternity for women, brings the first Greek letter honorary fraternity to the campus of Texas State College for Women (CIA). By a recent ruling of the Board of Regents, honorary fraternities may be brought to the campus, so long as they are basically scholastic.

The chapter will be installed as soon as arrangements can be made for the national organizer, Miss Gladys Whitney, to come from Austin.

The seven members who will be initiated are Ruth James, of Willis Point; Cathryn Calloway Smithville; Mrs. Jewel Rigler, Austin; Nina Mick, Wharton; Rachel Robinson, Alvarado; and Mabel King, Spur.

SUMMER INSTITUTE

DENTON.—The Summer institute for women, considered one of the most unique contributions to adult education in the Southwest, will open its second session June 13, continuing through July 2, at Texas State College for Women (CIA). Due to the success of the initial opening of the institute last summer, a program similar to that offered last year will be observed.

★ One of the largest magazine publishing houses published a survey which they recently made to find out the tire buying plans of car owners for this year.

In this survey they covered twelve states and interviewed 1,403 of their subscribers. They found that 68% of those interviewed are going to buy tires this summer, and that 27.2% of these car owners are going to buy Firestone Tires—the next highest is only 20.6% which shows the demand for Firestone Tires is 32% more than for any other make.
