"Pathfinder" Thought Nearing Coast Enroute to Rome

NO ANXIETY DESPITE SILENCE

European Countries Posting Watch For Ship

LORNA, Azores, July 9.—No news of American transatlantic monoplane "Pathfinder" had been received late today.

NEW YORK, July 9.—(P)—The Rome bound monoplane Pathfinder, aided by tailwinds and near perfect flying conditions, presumably was approaching the European coast today, flying high with speed increased by diminishing fuel load.

The plane's progress has not been reported since it was discovered 100 miles off Old Orchard, Maine, but no anxiety is felt for its safety.

French officials have been ordered to keep close watch for its appearance over the southern coast of France.

RADIO STATIONS WATCH NEW YORK, July 9 (UP)—Wireless stations along the Atlantic seaboard stood today awaiting word as to the whereabouts of the American monoplane which was thought nearing the coast of Spain in its attempted flight from Maine to Rome.

Burson Flies Here On Cross Country Hop in TAT Ship

Bill Burson, of Odessa, is finding life in the cloud alley these hot days.

Burson landed his ship at Sloan Field and went over to Odessa to see the folks. The manner of his arrival in Odessa did not indicate the fact that he had just finished his first long cross country flight with TAT, of which company he is a student flyer, stationed at Amarillo.

Burson is also on the TAT company's sales force in Amarillo. Mrs. Burson will join her husband in a short time, she says.

Library Report Shows Patronage Among Townsmen

The following report of Librarian Miss Emily B. Smith, to the county commissioners court shows the value of a modern library in a city of Midland's size.

Accessions We began June with 2445 books. We added during the month 114. Of these 104 were bought by the county and 10 were gifts.

Registration We registered in June 165 new members. Of these 110 are adults; 55 are children. Also we transferred 1 children to the adult group. We have now 591 adult borrowers and 427 children.

Circulation Number of days open for circulation, 25. Loans for home use, 3043. Largest daily issue, 167. Average daily issue, 122. Per cent adult fiction, 49. Per cent juvenile, 41.

In regard to the great use being made of the library Judge Hill suggested that he thought probably my figures based on the stock turnover of this and other county libraries were due merely to the fact that we had so few books. With this in mind I went over the figures again from the standpoint of population and found that the counties report an annual circulation as follows:

Dallas County, 2 1/2 books per capita. Cooke county, 2 books per capita. Potter county 1 1/2 books per capita. Wilbarger county less than 1 book per capita. Lubbock county, 2 books per capita.

Death Rate Not Increased During Month of May

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The 1929 mortality record, which got off to a bad start due to the outbreak of influenza during the winter months, has been favorably aided by the showing for the month of May when the death rate declined to a point that has been exceeded but twice in corresponding months during the last decade.

These figures are based on vital statistics kept by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company whose 19,000,000 industrial policyholders in this country and Canada constitute a reliable cross-section of the population.

The more favorable gains for May were recorded East of the Rocky Mountains and in Canada. Health conditions on the Pacific Coast were practically unchanged from a year ago.

During the month all of the principal epidemic diseases of childhood, with the exception of scarlet fever registered lower death rates than for May 1928. Influenza deaths decreased nearly 50 per cent, while favorable gains were also recorded against tuberculosis, heart disease, pneumonia and Bright's disease. Homicide fell off more than 26 per cent.

There was a small increase in deaths from cancer and a considerable rise for automobile fatalities.

Neighboring Town Pouring Topping On Its Streets

Asphalt is being spread at the rate of 3,000 square yards a day at Odessa and that town's business section is rapidly assuming a more progressive look.

This week will see the most important part of the paving project surfaced and open to traffic, with work being rushed on the downtown blocks of Grant Avenue.

Jess Hall, representing the Devlin Engineering company on the job, estimated last week that the entire street, as far South as North First, would be completed by Saturday night.

Brown & Root forces are laying the rock asphalt at the rate of 3,000 square yards—approximately a block and an intersection—a day. Last week topping was down on Grant as far as Third street, and the two main business blocks of the city were closed for completion of the work Friday and Saturday.

One block south of the railroad tracks, and one block between Seventh and Eighth will be the only remaining gaps. Brown & Root probably will wind up their work here within the next week. After completion of the topping, a 2x5 concrete drain culvert will be built under the highway near the Sunshine Tourist Camp. This will take care of drainage off the paving on Grant and Lee streets.

Legion Sponsors Rifle Range Near Town of Stanton

Stanton is to have an organized rifle club, according to a recent write-up appearing in the Stanton Reporter.

The club will establish a range near town in some safe place and there have the opportunity of practicing a few hours every week with the old army rifle. The men of the American Legion are entering into the work of establishing the club with the vim that proves they are still interested in the work of this kind. Several have expressed their desire to join this club and brush up on their old records.

MIDLAND MAN IS MAKING MONEY BY CHICKENS, GARDEN

His garden and chickens are making money for C. J. Lowke, Midland county farmer who lives six miles east of the city.

Lowke makes between $12 and $15 a week from beans, peas, cucumbers, peppers, okra, radishes and other vegetables.

"On my poultry, I am more scientific. Whereas in my gardening I do not try to irrigate or take any special course of procedure, in poultry work I am very careful as to detail.

"First of all, I conducted tests between two breeds of chickens to see which I wanted to handle. I found that Rhode Island Reds were preferable to White Leghorns.

"This done, I began improving my stock. The finest cocks I could find I bought. I sent away to a distance. It cost me $38 to raise 350 chickens this year. I have made $50 off these, and have 200 of the chickens left."

Lowke feeds green rape to his flock. He believes it to be the best green food available in this section.

New Money To Be Received Here By July 10 at Banks

The new currency adopted by the government will reach Midland banks about July 10. Samples of this new type small-size money have been on display at the banks for some time.

The new notes may be easily distinguished, as they have a distinctive portrait for each denomination. The treasury department has advised all to learn the portraits so as to avoid making useless errors in change.

The one-dollar notes bear the portrait of Washington, the two that of Jefferson, the five Washington, and the ten Hamilton. Bankers said this morning that there would probably be no other denomination bills received in the first shipment, it will be somewhat limited, it is thought.

Old money will not be called in for a time, the banks seemed to believe.

GIST BACK FROM MEETING; FIELD MAN EMPLOYED

John Gist, president of the Texas association, has returned from Amarillo, where he called a committee together and employed a field representative, Albert Mitchell of Albert, N. M., who will make his headquarters at Sweetwater and serve all the state in matters pertaining to the cattle organization.

Discrimination against the western cattlemen had been felt to exist. Gist is devoting his time to an obsession which has occupied him for the past several weeks. He is attempting to enlist as members of the State Hereford Breeders' association 600 out of a possible 621 persons who breed pure Hereford stock in the state.

TIME DRAWS NEAR FOR REVIVAL OF CITY-WIDE PLAN

It is just sixty days today until Midland Churches enter into an annual Revival campaign under the direction of James Rayburn. The meeting begins September 8th and continues for four weeks including five Sundays. The laymen and pastors of the churches have arranged to throw their entire forces into this meeting and a strong lay-men's committee is preparing for the funds and the work necessary for this great undertaking.

A large tabernacle is to be built seating fifteen hundred or two thousand persons and to be placed on a central corner of the city.

Rayburn Evangelist Rayburn has held gratifying meetings in Sweetwater and Colorado, Texas, and in many places in Oklahoma. He was chosen after delegations of laymen were sent for through investigation of his work and the unanimous report has been favorable. He is considered the very best evangelist to be obtained.

Rev. Rayburn was in Midland at the call of the laymen and agreement has been entered into to make this meeting a mighty city-wide campaign. Ily Pratt, one of the outstanding laymen and civic workers of Midland has been made chairman of the Laymen's committee and the plans are going forward with full cooperation of all the churches.

Kills Rabbits, And Dead Rabbits Kill Ravens in County

After reading how other farmers killed rabbits with poisoned salt distributed through the office of County Farm Agent Frank Wendt, R. L. Porter, farmer who lives near Valley View, began using the poison. Since putting out the first of the salt he has been amazed at the number of rabbits which have died.

An interesting thing, too, was the large number of ravens which died as a result of eating the bodies of dead rabbits.

Wendt said this morning that he has received a fresh shipment of the strychnine poisoned salt and that farmers may have it at cost. He had been out of the poison last week.

DESTINY IN OUR HANDS

By Bruce Catton

The three men who plunged to their death in California recently when their airplane went out of control got, at the very least, a highly spectacular departure from this life.

With an inexperienced pilot, unlicensed to fly, at the controls of the plane, the trio sailed along through the air in high spirits. Even when their craft had nosed down and was beginning the dizzy spin that was to end in fatality, the passengers were undisturbed. Indeed, they made a lark of it—they waved their hands, laughed, and indulged in a wild, inexplicable glee.

Then, a moment afterward, the plane hit the earth and the three carefree flyers, who tried to go adventuring in a machine they could not handle, were dead. But an echo of the laughter of that last plunge lingers, weird and puzzling, after them.

The airplane is a magnificent instrument for conquering space and gaining release from the old bonds that tie men to the ground. There is this about it, however; you have to know how to handle it. If you don't, it becomes a magnificent instrument for suicide.

Thus, in a way, the mad disaster that befell the three Californians is symbolic of the whole scheme of things in modern America.

We have here a civilization which science and industry have made unlike anything that has gone before.

It has enormous possibilities for good. The old barriers to human progress are tumbling down, one after another. Into our hands is being put control of a marvelous machine, by which we can abolish our old limitations and go forward to a grander, happier and more splendid era than we have dared to dream.

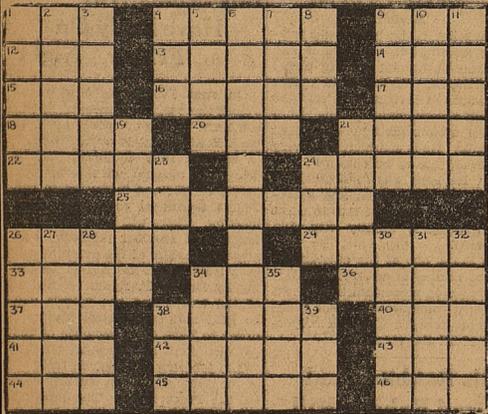

But in order to do that we have to know how to handle this new machinery.

Otherwise, like the hapless flyers in the west, we shall presently come down with a terrific crash.

If we haven't sense enough to avoid war, which science has made so much horrible than it ever was before; if we haven't sense enough to govern ourselves honestly and efficiently, now that changed conditions have made good government so imperative; if we haven't sense enough to make sure that our great new inventions and discoveries shall be used for the good of all and not set aside for the enjoyment and profit of a few—

Then we're coming to earth in a more spectacular fashion than any nation in history.

It's up to us. A skillful pilot can make the airplane an instrument of service; a dud can make it a means of committing suicide. We're in precisely the same situation.

Presbyterian Auxiliary Meets At the Church

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church held the regular monthly inspirational meeting Monday afternoon in the church parlors. Mrs. Fred Turner, Jr. presided during a short business meeting.

Mrs. E. J. Kay requested the members of the auxiliary to donate to the food sale which the Senior Christian Endeavor will hold Saturday of this week at M. System No. 2 starting at nine o'clock. Articles for this sale may be brought to the kitchen of the church or to the place of the sale, said Mrs. Kay.

Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy conducted the devotional on the subject of "Go Teaching," the scripture being found in Matthew 28:16-20.

"Schools in Foreign Lands" was the cause presented most ably by the three young ladies of the church who recently attended the Young Peoples conference in Kerrville.

Miss Ruth Wolcott told a story entitled "We Learn to Read." This presented in an appealing way the needs of an African school boy and how satisfactorily his needs were met in the mission school.

Miss Edith Sundquist told the story of a Japanese girl and the wonderful work she did after her conversion to Christianity.

The needs of China were presented by Miss Georgia McMullan, who told a pretty story of "A Ten Year Old Soul Winner."

Mrs. Murphy reviewed the story of Kim Yeabe, a Korean girl trained in the mission school at Mokpo, Korea. She was educated by one of the missionaries who was attracted to her because she seemed unusually bright.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be on Monday July 22. This will be in the form of a social meeting when the four circles will enjoy a picnic on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Jno. G. Gossett.

Mrs. Fred Turner as hostess served refreshments to the following guests: Mesdames E. J. Kay, Harvey Sloan, Frank Wolcott, J. L. Green, T. C. Heard, J. M. DeArmond, Thomas D. Murphy, W. G. Whitehouse, R. C. Crabb, W. E. Tanner, and Misses Sundquist, Wolcott, and McMullan.

Three Groups Of the Christian Society Meet

Each circle of the Christian Women's Missionary Society met in homes of members yesterday afternoon. Business sessions took most of the time at each gathering.

Circle 1

Mrs. J. S. Cordill was hostess to the members of Circle 1 at her home on North Main. A quilt was completed by the members who attended the meeting. At the business hour it was decided to disband work for the summer months.

Circle 2

Mrs. Hillary Bedford entertained the members of Circle 2. Reports were made on work to be carried on by the women this summer. Plans were made for a candy sale, a pure food sale, and a rummage sale. The candy sale will be held this Saturday.

A study of the pupil which is a unit of standard teachers training course was also started at this meeting.

A short social hour was held following the business and study periods.

Circle 3

Circle 3 met at the home of Mrs. L. A. Arrington for a meeting yesterday. Reports on the booth sales from the Fourth of July were made and other plans of work were discussed. Group hostesses for the next few months were selected.

GRACEFUL WALKING VITAL TO HEALTH, SAYS BEAUTY

By MABEL DUKE For NEA Service

In this day of rush and hurry, beautiful posture and graceful carriage are becoming all too rare.

Sedentary occupations with accompanying desk work and stooping of shoulders have encouraged slumping until the art of graceful standing and walking is almost lost.

"Not only is correct walking beautiful but it is vital to health," believes Ruth Chatterton. "When we walk along with our toes out and shoulders forward, the weight of the body is thrown on the ball of the foot, where it belongs, to the arches, weakening them and in time causing the painful fallen arches. To stand swayback is ugly, uncomfortable and dangerous, as the vital organs are thrown out of position.

"Before we can learn to walk correctly, however, we must see that our feet are comfortably shod. Few women are deluded in this modern age into buying shoes too small but often women do not buy the correct size stockings. Hose too small will cause ingrowing toe nails as quickly as too small shoes. Be sure the stockings are loose enough and not wrinkled.

Walk With Head High "Powdered salicylic acid sifted into the shoes is comforting to tender feet caused by excessive perspiration. If one is troubled with corns or bunions, do not delay seeing a chiropodist."

Florenz Ziegfeld and other theatrical producers teach their show girls to walk gracefully across the stage by having them practice walking with books balanced on their heads, Miss Chatterton pointed out. The same principles are employed for correct walking anywhere. Always stand with the weight on the balls of the feet. Walk with head high and try to be as tall as you can. The shoulder will go back naturally. Move modestly from the hips instead of the knees, though do not try to be stiff-kneed. Keep the body above the waist still and keep the feet in a straight line ahead.

"Walking is splendid exercise when done correctly," Miss Chatterton advises. "If you are employed and can do so, walk part of the way to and from work."

Y. W. A. Has Study and Theatre Party

Young Women's Auxiliary of the Baptist church met in regular session at the church last evening.

Vickers assisted the leader by discussing recreational work for the women this summer and telling interesting facts about summer camps for girls. She also cleverly told some reasons why the Y. W. A. should not continue work during the summer season.

As a feature Miss Elma Collins, who has just returned for a summer session in the Dallas Academy of Speech, read "Crosses and Kisses."

Following the meeting a theatre party was given for those present at the Ritz Theatre.

"SIMBA" UNUSUAL FILM CLOSURE RUN TODAY

"Simba," regarded as an unusual film spectacle, was witnessed on this its second day run at the Grand, with rather an unusual representative clientele including business executives, officials, ministers, lawyers and a goodly number of laymen. And those accustomed to officiating in public capacities seemed interested to know why the management had not fully appraised the public of the genuineness of the film. It has often been said that it was next to impossible to force education on the public in connection with entertainment, and such a stand seemed the only channel of defense for the theatre management. Yet with all its educational advantages, "Simba," made in the jungles of Africa's fastness, possesses and unusual degree of entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson spent four years filming the wild life of jungle and veldt.

Its native populace, and the result of their experiences brings to the civilized world a strange and wonderful conception of the things we've read about—the things that early adventures recorded for the pages of history; things told in cold type, which Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have brought to life before a waiting world, thanks be to the motion picture camera which knows no fear and records no mis-apprehensions. The picture will be shown again today, which closes its engagement in Midland. The Grand management is enthusiastic over the success so far and anticipates a liberal patronage for the third day's run of the picture.

put into shape for the reception of the first shipment of chicks expected at the Lasseter poultry ranch, west of town, the latter part of this month.

The early part of the week was spent in unloading several cars of sand, gravel and cement for the concrete work and in building the necessary forms. Piping of the various houses and points on the place was also being completed.

The three large pumps, with a capacity of 100 gallons per minute each have arrived and are on the ground, ready for installation. The three wells have been completed and tested and it is certain that there will be plenty of water for the chicks and for the irrigated fields, garden and orchard.

Wednesday morning work was started on pouring the concrete for the walls and floor of the basement of the incubator building. The basement will be floored and walled with concrete one foot in thickness.

MIDLAND DEMORALIZES ACES, 14-6, TO STRENGTHEN LEAD

EQUINES CONNECT FOR 18 HITS AND OTHERWISE GIVE PITCHERS OF ACES PLENTY TROUBLE

Midland not only won yesterday's game with Abilene, but strengthened hold on first place position. Prexy Anderson, writing in the Abilene News, gives a graphic account of the game:

The Colts of Midland galloped into Gardner Park yesterday to take the opener of a three-day series of games from the Aces. The count was 14 to 6, the Colts slamming out a series of fence-reaching doubles, mixed with spicy singles, to net 18 hits. The Aces pounded out 17 hits off Midland's two pitching entries, Hulser and Blake.

The game opened tamely. Boyd, Colt shortstop, singled, but with two down, was thrown out at the plate by Burrows. Abilene's contribution to the first inning was not so peaceful, the Aces scoring three runs in the first.

Here's a Good One In the sixth Nebel slammed a high one over the right field fence, and in the following inning, the Midland line said it with Flowers, who let one fly from the end of his bat over the far right bill boards.

Midland contributed seven doubles, of which Boyd and Cheeves each took two. Abilene was content with its double offerings of Bradbury and Gordon. They were nice long ones to the sign boards.

In its half of the second inning, Midland started the fireworks to popping. Moose doubled, King followed with a first base hit, but the next two, Cheeves and Stagner, were out. They popped long ones to left and right fields, respectively. Van Landingham hit and was safe. Then, Hulser singled, scoring Moose, and was followed by Boyd's double. King and Van Landingham crossed the plate. Lewis, third baseman, took a single-base hit, but Flowers, center fielder, went out, Christensen to Burrows.

Our "Rally" After Nebel's fence-flier in the sixth, Abilene staged a rally. Bradbury doubled to left and Shelton sacrificed. The catcher advanced to third. Bradbury scored on a Christensen went to third on a single of Burrows. Anderson struck out and Gordon hit a high one to Cheeves in left field, drawing the curtain on the inning.

Abilene's last three-inning effort was a blank and Midland employed a home run and a few fence-hitting doubles to sack the contest. The visitors took three in the eighth and got a zero in their last scene.

Abilene remains below the half-way mark in the league standing, and the Colts take a stronger grasp on their first place rating. The teams will stage another party this afternoon in Gardner Park. The game is called for 4 o'clock.

Odessa Now Has More Credit In Public Schools

Recognized by the State Department as being one of the few outstanding schools in Texas in the development of Home Economics, the Odessa High School last week was designated Special Vocational school. This information was received by the News-Times yesterday morning from Superintendent Murry H. Fly, who is attending Texas University.

Mr. Fly also stated that the four additional credits sought by the school this year had been granted, giving Odessa High 23 affiliated units—a high rank among schools in towns of that size.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Doss of Seminole were shoppers in Midland yesterday.

Whipkey Writes Story On Editor Odessa Weekly

An interesting account of the new editor of the Odessa News-Times has been written by Bob Whipkey, former editor of that paper. The story follows:

Final deal was closed Monday of last week, whereby Ralph Shuffler and son, R. H. Shuffler, purchased the plant and business of the Odessa News-Times from T. R. Moody and R. W. Whipkey. The Shufflers took over the business July 1st.

Mr. Shuffler and family come to Odessa from Olney, Young county, where he has published the Olney Enterprise continuously since 1910. He sold the business there in April to George F. Spears of Breckenridge, after having built up during his 19 years in Olney, one of the strongest and best known weekly newspapers in Northwest Texas.

Mr. Shuffler is one of the "old school" of Texas newspaper men, having been connected with printing shops practically all his life. He founded, when a boy of seventeen, the Plainview News. He went from Plainview to Abilene, and after a period of service on the Abilene News moved to Baird, where he established the Callahan County News. From Baird he moved to Olney.

Proof of the statement that Mr. Shuffler knows the newspaper business is shown in the awards that he has achieved with his Olney paper, he having won during a period of years, every journalistic prize offered by the Texas Press Association. In 1925 the Olney Enterprise won the A. H. Belo loving cup (given by the Dallas News and Journal) as the best weekly newspaper published in the State of Texas; in 1927, Shuffler was winner of the Olmstead Cup for having the best exhibit of job printing of any member of the T. P. A.; for four consecutive years he was winner of the Beard Gold Award for displaying the best set advertisement of any paper in the association.

As if winning all the printing prizes in the T. P. A. wasn't enough, Shuffler set out to win all or none, and in 1926 capped the golf championship of the Texas Press Association.

Mr. Shuffler is a member of the following press organizations: Texas Press Association, Northwest Texas Press; West Texas Press; Ben Franklin Clubs of America. Under his management the News-Times will be connected with these bodies.

Mr. Shuffler will serve as editor-manager of the News-Times. Associated with him as news editor will be his son, R. H. Shuffler, who graduated from Texas A. & M. College this year. During his last year in the school he served as managing editor of the college newspaper, "The Battalion." Having been raised in a country print shop, he is well acquainted with the running of a weekly newspaper.

The Shufflers will make their permanent home in Odessa, and the senior Shuffler will move his family here as soon as possible. Besides his wife, Mr. Shuffler will have his mother here with him, and two other sons, age 8 and 4 years.

T. R. Moody, past manager of the News-Times, will move with his family to Alpine, where he owns half interest in the Alpine Publishing Co. R. W. Whipkey, former editor, plans to enter journalistic school this fall. Both Whipkey and Moody will remain in Odessa for a short time.

FROM COAST TO COAST WITH GOVERNMENT BOMBERS IS EXPERIENCE TO REMEMBER, STAFF WRITER SAYS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third article written by Staff Writer Smallsread of the Columbus Dispatch for The Reporter-Telegram. The writer was here with the fleet of bombers and pursuits of the Western Bombing Squadron. The officers and men were feted by Midland, given a ranch dinner and dance.

We were in the air at 5:40 a. m., sky clear, but still filled with a very bothersome cross wind. At 10:20 we set down on Hatbox field, Muskogee, flying four hours and 40 minutes.

The field was lined with empty automobiles at our disposal. Frank Walters and I picked out a nice flashy roadster and started for a much-needed lunch counter uptown. At 12 noon, on the dot, we were again in the air, headed for the Lone Star state, Midland being the next port of call 450 miles away.

In about a half-hour I became drowsy. What I needed was an afternoon "siesta." There was plenty of room to lie down on the floor of the ship under the pilots' cockpit, so I scrambled down and stretched out.

Getting nicely settled, I peered out of a window to my left. There, not two feet away from my head, at 1650 revolutions per minute, whirled the propeller of one motor. I turned my head away only to look at the same thing at the same distance to my right.

"What if one of them should break or come off?" I thought. The "meat can" wasn't such a bad place, after all. But why worry here and now? The need for a little "shut-eye," as they call it in the army, was too urgent, so I rolled over on my favorite sleeping side.

The roar of the motors was terrific. Soon they became a soothing drone and together with the lazy roll of the ship, I dropped into the sweet oblivion of a good old-fashioned snooze.

A Rude Awakening I must have been asleep for about 45 minutes when all of a sudden I was aware of the fact that the floor under me was gone. And just that quick it came back up and met me going in the opposite direction. We had hit an air pocket, in which a plane invariably drops like a plummet.

Sitting up, I rubbed my eyes. Black was smiling down at me as if to say "You lucky dog." He was sitting there twiddling his thumbs while Kenny did the piloting.

I didn't know where we were so I hit upon the idea of setting up a little correspondence with Captain Black and scribbled him my first note.

"Are we in Texas, skipper?" I queried.

"In about 15 minutes," he replied. Taking a good look at the landscape, I noticed that the woods, so thick in Missouri and northern Oklahoma, had almost disappeared entirely. They were dwindling down and sage brush began to make its appearance. The verdant green of the fields began to pale out. Soil took on a reddish hue. Signs of aridity became evident.

Large herds of Hereford cattle grazing on the wide open plains told me we were over Texas.

"The Land of Beefsteak." "Look at the beefsteak," I wrote to Black. "This surely is God's country. Is that the Red river ahead?"

The name of the river is all it implies. The water is the color of chili con carne soup, reddened by the coral colored sand.

semi-arid, the vast expanse of this state is awesome. Like little islands, we occasionally passed a town, but they were far apart.

The further south we flew the hotter it became. Trees were a rarity. Farmers were busy fitting their ground for cotton and grain. Cotton seemed to be the main crop.

"Are we flying over the famous Texas 'flats'?" I queried Black.

"Better known as the Panhandle," he replied. "They raise everything around here but rice."

Flying over this level country became an endless monotony. Late in the afternoon farmlands became fewer. Here and there was a small house and a barn and a waterhole—the dwelling of a homesteader.

Nothing but cattle country and skyline forever unbroken.

Finally, far ahead I spied a tall building sticking straight up from the prairie like a sore thumb. It was Midland, Tex., and what a relief.

Midland Is Reached Our ship settled down on Sloan field at 5:20 p. m. after having been in the air that day exactly 10 hours. I decided right then and there that I never would participate in an endurance flight. Ten hours was plenty.

Midland claims to have one of the six best landing fields in Texas. The whole state is air-minded. The slogan down there is: "Get a landing field and then build a town around it." In other words, an air line today carries the same importance as a railroad did 50 or more years ago.

Southern hospitality was poured upon us by a wide-awake chamber of commerce. Oil is Midland's main industry, and that 12-story building is the headquarters for 42 oil companies.

Two and a half years ago the population was 2600. Today it is more than 7000 and growing by leaps and bounds. It is also known as a cattle capital, being in the center of the largest Hereford breeding area in the world.

A ball was on the evening schedule for the visitors from the 23 planes. The whole town turned out to greet us and once again bid us farewell at 11:45 a. m. the next day. El Paso was the next stop.

El Paso Plenty Hot We made Beggs field at Fort Bliss, just outside of El Paso, a hop of 280 miles, in two hours and 35 minutes, aided by a good tail wind. The only landmark to follow on more than 200 miles of this hop was as a die from Midland to El Paso.

Flyers generally use railroads or main highways. Sometimes telephone lines are utilized. But there were none of these running across the barren desert. On this leg we saw our first mountains. The Delaware and Guadalupe ranges rose abruptly out of the flat country, the highest peak, El Capitan, reaching 9800 feet into the sky. The lower slopes were dotted with some of the largest and most prosperous cattle ranches in Texas.

In traversing the pass between these two mountain ranges the air was extremely bumpy, caused by the rising hot air currents and the resulting drop of the cool air from above.

last Mexican rebellion, on the other side of the river, are nestled in the space between two mountain ranges.

That night we visited Juarez. From the standpoint of temperance it's wide open, being in Mexico, of course. Its quaint adobe huts, narrow streets lined with natives selling their wares, beggars pleading for the aims of visiting Americans, quaint and fantastic costumes, all presented a new picture which changed suddenly when crossing back to the American side of the international bridge.

Off at Daybreak We were in bed at 9:30 p. m. preparatory to breakfast at 3:30 a. m. the next day. Orders were to hop off at daybreak on the most hazardous portion of the long journey—to Tucson, over the Arizona desert, the lower California Rockies and to San Diego, our destination.

The early start was to escape the heat of the desert and the resulting "bumps" from the hot air currents. We were in the air at 4:40 a. m. and headed for Apache Pass.

This pass had me worried for a bit. Lieutenant Odas Moon told me at Fort Bliss that on his way east during the heat of the day his ship was caught in one of the rising air currents and lifted up suddenly 1000 feet despite the fact that he had the nose of his ship poked down at an angle.

A moment later it flew into a downdraft and dropped like a hunk of lead for the same distance, all efforts to zoom up being useless.

We were flying over country alternating between desert and mountain ranges, that is 4000 and 5000 feet above sea level. Everything is barren, dry and hot. Our course took us along the Mexican border, passing over Columbus, N. M. It looked nothing like the old home town, than heaven.
