WASHINGTON, May 21. -(UP)-Organization of an aeronautical company known as the Southern Skylines, Incorporated, to operate a Southern transcontinental airplane route, with former secretary of the treasury William Gibbs McAdoo as chairman of the board, was announced today.

Operating from New York to Los Angeles on a 46 hour schedule, the service will cover Philadelphia, Wash-ington, Atlanta, Dallas, Ft. Worth, MIDLAND, El Paso, and San Diego.

The operating organization is to be headed by James Edgerton, vicepresident and general manager, and former air mail pilot and operations manager.

Long Expected Here

News of the organization of, a transcontinental air line through this point occasioned no surprise to H. M. Becherer, field manager at the Midland Municipal Airport, when informed of the U. P. telegram to this paper.

Becherer has been in conference with air officials of other lines during the past few months and has been assured by them of the eminence of Midland's position on the southern transcontinental air path.

Frank H. Simonds, well-known expert on international 15. affairs, points this out in an article in the current Review 16. of Reviews.

Both Canada and South America, says Mr. Simonds, are 18. planning on reprisals if American tariffs are measurably faised. Canada now buys from the United States nearly a billion dollars worth of goods; if the tariff on imports from Canada goes up, a great share of these goods will be 30. bought from Britain.

The same is true in South America, where the United 34. States is just emerging into the first rank of exporters. 35. England and Germany, Mr. Simonds warns, will get back 36. much of the business Uncle Sam took away from them if 37. South American exports to this country are taxed.

CAPONE FINDS WORTHY FOE IN PHILADELPHIA MAGISTRATE AVIATION CORPORATION, THROUGH RECENT MERGERS HOLDS DOMINATING POSITION IN AERONAUTICS SCOPE.

Edward Carney, Who Held Racketeer in Philadelphia, Has Shown Many Others That He Can't Be Bluffed

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.-(NEA) -"I'm not afraid of you and I hold you and your companion each in $35,000 bail.

Thus did magistrate Edward Patrick Carney speak right up to Scarface Al Capone in Philadelphia when the nationally notorious gang leader and a body guard were brought before him on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

No other jurist ever had the courage to do that. In a dozen years of Chicago gangland activities, Capone had often been arrested-and a few times in other cities. But always before he has gone free, on thin, obviously artificial technicalities.

He's a Fighting Judge A mere Chicago racketeer king means little in the life of Carney He speaks right up to everybody, He has battled with police, denounced a mayor outside his office, raided the Ritz-Carlton hotel and defied no less distinguished an officer than Brig. Gen. Smedley Butler of the U.S. Marine Corps.

Besides these things, Carney has run for office without the support of the dominant Vare machineusually regarded as an act of political suicide-and come out victorious. Thus Capone, now at the beginning of his first prison sentence, has reason to believe he has met a worthy adversary.

To be held under such heavy bail on the mere charge of "toting a rod" a common practice even in Philadelphia-is a serious reflection on one's honesty of intention to return to face trial.

Unafraid of Gangsters Carney made no bones about his feeling toward gunmen. When Detective James Malone, one of Al's captors in the motion picture theatre lobby here, began explaining the charge against Capone, and touched uopn the latter's reputation, Carney interrupted him thundering: "Yes, yes, I know him. Undoubtedly he is responsible for a great many murders. Authorities in some cities, including district attorneys, are afraid of him. But Philadelphia is not afraid of you, Al Capone, and I'm not afraid of you.'

It is rumored that Capone was willing and even desirous of incarceration, because his enemies were on his trail, and because a proposed peace pact with "Bugs" Moran failed to materialize and he feared to return to Chicago.

Even so. Carney's courage was genuine. At one time he was on

For a dozen years 'Scarface' Al Capone seemed to be beyond the reach of the law. He went where he pleased, did what he pleased, and was known to be a walking arsenal. In fact, an arrest of Capone with any serious intention of convicting him was an occasion for great hilarity, as the cartoon below, reproduced from an old number of "Judge" shows. But the gang leader, upper left, couldn't bluif Magistrate Edward Patrick Carney, right, when he "toted a rod" in Philadelphia the other day.
