Convention of West Texas Chamber Set for October

Dates for the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce were set yesterday for October 24, 25 and 26, when officials of the organization met in Vernon.

Midland's celebration, previously announced, for July 3 and 4 in connection with the opening of the 12-story Petroleum Building, would be affected by the convention on the same dates, and would also weaken the attendance at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting.

REFUELS FOR SEVENTH TIME

Has Passed Record Two Men; In Air 73 Hours

FT. WORTH, May 22.—(AP)—The half way mark in the flight toward its goal of a new world's record for sustained flight is being approached by Reg Robbins and James Kelly.

The seventh refueling of the monoplane was accomplished this morning. At 11:33 today, the "Fort Worth" had been in the air 72 hours. At 3:33 this afternoon, the monoplane will have been in the air 76 hours, or half of the time it will have to remain aloft to equal the record set by the army plane "Question Mark."

BASIN OIL ON GRAVITY BASIS

Announcement from Humble Means Money Here

Two big factors in the oil price changes announced on Monday will have an extremely beneficial effect on the Midland oil area, according to local representatives of major companies, independent oil operators, and royalty owners.

Increased Activity The benefits to accrue to Midland will lie not only in the increased amount of pipe line checks to companies and royalty owners; but, probably greater than that, will be the increase in drilling activity and sale of leases and royalties, all of which will bring direct financial benefit to residents of this territory and greater development of the city and adjacent oil fields.

Flying On the T. A. T. Route Fort Worth to Midland

PASSENGERS WHO JOIN SHIP AT ABILENE FIND LITTLE TIME FOR TALK

Gives Comprehensive Idea of Various Landing Fields

WHAT COULD BE GREATER?

How could conditions for Midland look better than at present without going out of the bounds of reason?

Soaking rains have covered the entire cattle country and Midland's farming territory; and the rain is still falling.

Oil prices have been announced this week which will bring a monthly increase in revenue of approximately $4,000,000 to West Texas, four fifths of the increase coming to the state.

Along with this big news, Midland received news yesterday over The Reporter-Telegram's wire service, advising that Midland has been placed on what will probably be the nation's greatest transcontinental air line; and Midland was named in the class of New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, Dallas, Fort Worth, Midland, El Paso, and San Diego, insofar as aerial importance is concerned.

Midland has developed more rapidly and more substantially than at any other time in its history, all while the oil price was down. With the upward trend now starting, and with practically all other resources in prosperous condition, did Midland ever have better opportunity for growth into the real city of West Texas?

IT HAPPENS EVERYWHERE

It is interesting to note how two men in the same line of business start out and turn out. Midland has afforded an opportunity for observation of such progress within the past two years.

Two men would move here and open small business places about the same time. A year or two later, one of them would be in larger quarters and would have several employees on his force, while the other would be still handling all of his own work, or would have gone to work for some one else. Perhaps the one who succeeded made a lesser appearance on the start. What is the reason?

One man went directly about getting such business as he could, giving careful attention to it, satisfying his customers even at an occasional financial loss, and constantly improving his equipment, his force of workmen and his service.

The other man took his share of the business, put on a big show of prosperity, spent his money as fast as he got it, and did not improve his equipment or his service. He did not take a loss occasionally to satisfy his customers, and paid little attention to the details of his service.

Time will tell, and very often it doesn't take much time.

RESERVED FOR THE POOR

Gov. Fred Green of Michigan, vetoing the law that was to have restored capital punishment in that state, denounced with striking bitterness as another of the laws which hang down more heavily on the poor than on the rich.

In most discussions of capital punishment, this is a point that is overlooked. Opponents of the electric chair call it barbaric, useless, cruel, and so on; Gov. Green's suggestion that capital punishment works an injustice on the poor and the friendless while failing to touch the rich is a new one.

Nevertheless, this country being what it is, one can hardly help feeling that Gov. Green is right.

In spite of our traditional democracy, we still give the rich man something considerably better than an even break.

Our whole social and economic organization is made up in such a way that the man with money or with "influence," which sometimes proceeds from money and sometimes does not—can start things moving much more easily than the man without it.

Half the battle, in any court action, lies in getting a capable lawyer.

But good lawyers are expensive. When a poor man goes to court against a rich man he works under a handicap from the very start. Our legal system, with its endless opportunities for cunning maneuvers and unexpected surprises, often makes the possession of a clever attorney far more important than the possession of a good cause.

If this is true in civil court processes, it is doubly true in criminal court—and most of all true in a murder trial.

The rich man, for instance, can afford the insanity defense. He can hire eminent psychiatrists to testify that he is not accountable for his acts. He can afford the long-drawn legal moves by which delays and obstructions are thrown in the path of the prosecution. Sometimes, even, if he and his council are that kind of men, words about cars a block long can be whispered in the ears of susceptible jurors.

The poor man can't do any of these things. He simply is unable to command the machinery that moves to free the rich man. He has to take his chances on the plain merits of the case—and sometimes, if his lawyer is inefficient, he doesn't even get that much of a break.

All of this proves that Gov. Green knew exactly what he was talking about.

Yet the matter goes beyond that. If the poor man is at a disadvantage in a murder trial, he is also at a disadvantage in every other kind of court action, civil or criminal.

Some sort of thoroughgoing reform all along the line is what is needed. Money talks too loudly in our courts. It is time we found some way of putting all contestants into the legal arena on an even footing.

A HEALER AND A KILLER

The most tragic thing about the terrible catastrophe at the Cleveland Clinic hospital is that it happened simply because the institution was conducted along the most modern and efficient lines.

No hospital in the country made such use of X-ray photographs in the diagnosis and treatment of disease. Hundreds of lives have been saved by the long rows of X-ray films in the basement of the building.

Yet it was there X-ray films that caused the tragedy. They caught fire from spontaneous combustion when a leaky steam pipe overheated the room; and, in the burning, they gave off the poisonous gases that brought death to 120 men and women.

It was an odd, ironic twist of fate that turned one of medical science's greatest allies into a death-dealing force of terror.

The old saying "No news is good news" doesn't work in a newspaper office.

At a neighboring city, a bathing beauty revue is going to be held soon. Advance advertising matter says contestants are not to be judged on swimming ability. It also says that costumes are not to be judged. We conclude that feminine pudor will not be judged more than 100 per cent.

Invitations are still out for some one who admits that his or her vocal ability is competent to come in and sing to the editor of this column "Texas, My Texas" the new state song.

Athletic coaches at State University have decided that "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You" sounds like a chant or a funeral dirge and has a demoralizing effect on the athletic teams when they are in action. Maybe the new state song is

COOKING SCHOOL STARTED HERE YESTERDAY BY TEXAS ELECTRIC

Opening of the cooking school sponsored by the Texas Electric Service Company was held yesterday afternoon with more than thirty Midland women in attendance. Mrs. Blanche Leary Cason, head of the Home Economists department of the Texas Electric Company is in charge of the demonstrations and lectures. She is also connected with the Edison Electric Appliance Company, Hot Point Stove Manufacturers and is one of the expert home demonstrators of the entire state. This is Mrs. Cason's second visit to Midland, having held a school here more than a year ago.

Yesterday's program for the school including broiling and quick rolls. She also discussed all features of the Hot Point stoves and showed the women electricity saving of this stove in the kitchen.

Today's menu will include a large variety of cakes and icings. These demonstrations will be made by Mrs. Cason.

Canning in the oven and shorter methods and economy with electricity will be on Thursday's program.

The final day of the school will be a demonstration and lecture on a full oven dinner. Recipes for several dinners will also be given and a brief survey of the week's work of the school.

Representatives assisting Mrs. Cason in her work here are Mr. A. F. Benfield of Dallas and director of all Hot Point Cooking Schools for the Texas Electric Company and Mr. K. M. Hamlett salesman for the Hot Point Stoves. Mr. J. E. Chipman is the local representative assisting with the school.

Mrs. Bigham Entertains Club With Bridge.

Guests of Mrs. N. W. Bigham yesterday afternoon were members of the La-A-Lot Bridge Club and several others.

In rooms colorfully decorated in many cut flowers guests played bridge games at six tables appointed in designs of pastel shades.

Trophies went to high scorer in both the member and guest groups.

Mrs. B. C. Girdley, member, received a boudoir pillow, and Mrs. C. C. Watson, guest, was given a pair of hose. Mrs. Addison Wadley held low score and was given a salt and pepper set. Table cuts went to Mesdames A. Wadley, J. W. Seal, F. C. Norwood, T. S. Patterson, Paul Roundtree, and E. P. Cowden.

At tea time salads were passed to Mesdames E. N. Snodgrass, Hayden Miles, B. C. Girdley, H. B. Dunagan, Alredge Estes, F. C. Norwood, A. C. Francis, W. A. Hyatt, A. Wadley, Bud Estes, A. J. Young Matrons Club Guests of Mrs. K. Flint

In compliment to members and guests of the Young Matrons Club Mrs. Kenneth Flint entertained yesterday with a bridge luncheon affair at her home.

Suggestions of spring motifs were reflected in centerpieces which were vases of sweet peas; in plate favors of sweet peas; and in place cards for the luncheon. For the bridge games tables were also marked with tallies and score books bearing paintings of sweet peas.

The three course luncheon was served the guests and followed by a number of bridge games during the afternoon hours.

Score prizes went to Mrs. Russell Lloyd for holding high member score and was given a set of madeira napkins and to Mrs. Foy Proctor for holding high guest score and received a madeira buffet scarf. High cut favor, a novel sewing bouquet went to Mrs. Fred Hogan.

Guests for the affair were Mesdames J. F. Hornbeck, Russell Lloyd, Locke Purnell, T. C. Bobo, Joe Crump, Dave Smith, W. C. Kinkle, Foy Proctor, Jno. Edwards, Fred Hogan and E. Paine.

Mrs. Whaley Honoree at Bridge Affair

In honor of Mrs. C. F. Whaley who left yesterday for her new home in Roswell, New Mexico, Mrs. D. E. Carter was hostess to several friends with bridge games Monday afternoon.

Favors were given to the honoree guests who attended the affair. A cut favor, a party handkerchief, was given to Mrs. E. I. Head, and high score trophy, dainty lingerie, was received by Mrs. A. E. Horst. Party plates giving emphasis to the colors pink and white, were passed at tea time to Mesdames A. P. Baker, Jno. P. Butler, H. B. Dickinson, E. I. Head, A. E. Horst, Lee Jones, Jr., D. E. Shoemaker, C. F. Wahley, Chas. Klapproth, Fred Turner, Jr., and Jim Schroeder.

Miss Pearl Dale Married In Clovis, N. Mex.

News was received here today of the marriage of Miss Pearl Dale to Mr. C. Morgan both of Clovis, New Mexico. The wedding was held there Saturday evening.

The bride is a former Midland girl, having lived here several years with her parents. She was a popular member of Midland High School student body and has many friends in Midland. She later completed her high school work in Clovis. During the past few months she has been doing secretarial work.

Mr. Morgan is a member of the staff of the Clovis newspaper. His home is in Denver, Colo.

The couple will make their home in Clovis.

FROG SPORTSWRITER GIVES A & M 3 PLACES ON ALL-SOUTHWEST

T. C. U. PLACES CARRELL AND WALLIN

ALL-SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE BASEBALL TEAM Picked by Wade Hawkins Sports Editor of the Skiff, TCU

- Catcher—Alnoch, Rice.
- Pitchers—Dougless, Baylor, and Railton, Texas.
- First Base—Wallin, T. C. U.
- Second Base—Carrell, T. C. U.
- Short Stop—Johns, A & M.
- Third Base—Higgins, Texas.
- Left Field—Bell, A & M.
- Center Field—Conover, A & M.
- Right Field—Koch, Baylor.

Even though baseball comes third to football and basketball in college, there are always certain outstanding players that must be given recognition in so far as an all-conference selection is concerned.

In considering an all-conference selection, a player's achievement figures in the selection more than any one thing. A player may have the ability to do a certain thing, but the doing of it is another thing. Therefore, in the final analysis, what a player does is what counts.

Several outstanding pitchers have performed on the mounds of Southwest Conference schools, and among them two men stand head and shoulders above the rest—Railton of Texas and Douglass of Baylor. However, and Buster Walker of T. C. U. been on a strong club he too would rank with the two mentioned. The Frog star won six of the eight games won by the Frogs.

In the receiving department there is a man at Rice Institute that gets the call over the other catchers of the group. His name is Alnoch. Both defense and offense the Owl star has no peer in the Southwest.

In considering a first baseman, several outstanding players appear. Some of the conference first sackers are strong in the defensive department, while others are strong on the offense, but no one man is especially outstanding in both. Walker of Texas hit a few points above .300, but his fielding was not to compare with that of Horace Wallin's of T. C. U., who is selected for the place. It is true that Wallin hit around the .250 mark, but his sensational field work puts him above the others. He did not miss a single ground ball all season, nor did he miff any throws from the other infielders, but he is credited with throwing two balls wild.

At second another T. C. U. man is selected. Howard Carrell, sensational swatsmith of the Frog team, and ever dependable fielder, has an edge over the other men in the race. Carrell is the leading Frog hitter and the main cog in the infield.

Gill Johns of A & M won for himself the honor of all-conference short-stop by his consistent field work, and his steady application of the willow to the horsehide. He is selected over the noted Hopkins of Texas, due to the fact that the Longhorn captain fell far below the mark set by himself during the 1928 campaign. He is capable of playing better ball than he did during the season just closed. Johns did not play sensational ball, but his consistent work won for him the honor.

At Texas University there is a third baseman that has played a type of game that is seldom seen in college circles. His uncanny ability at the plate is his strong point. However, he is not a weak man in the field. He was handicapped during part of the season by an injured hand, but he was out only part of the time.

A galaxy of stars adorn the outfield, but those men that have been consistently able to hit when hits were needed are the men that figure in the final analysis. In the main an outfielder is the hitting strength of the team. However, an outfielder's ability to range far and wide to bring down would-be hits, is a matter that must not be overlooked. Two A & M men and one Baylor man are outstanding. Bell of the Aggies, in left; Conover also left field for the Bears, but was shifted to right to make room for Bell, who is a bit better on the defense than is Koch. All in all this aggregation of diamond talent could hold its own anywhere, whether amateur or professional.

Youth, 16, Enters Gardner Air Race

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 22.—(UP)—The youngest entry in the Gardner commercial trophy airplane race, starting on its first leg today, is Ellsworth Rogers, 16, San Antonio high school boy.

Young Rogers, who has been flying more than a year, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Rogers of this city. Entered from San Antonio, he will compete with planes from Jacksonville, Buffalo, Denver, and Fargo, N. D. The planes will start from their respective towns in a race toward St. Louis. The first two who make the best average time will compete May 30 in the final flight from St. Louis to Indianapolis and return.

The St. Louis-Indianapolis race will take place May 30, the day of the Indianapolis automobile races. The planes will circle the race-track while the races are in progress.

Gardner Motor Company of St. Louis has offered $5,000 prize to the final winner as well as $750 and $250 to each of the five preliminary first and second place winners. The local chapter of the National Aeronautic Association is seeking to raise the San Antonio-St. Louis flight awards to $1,250 and $500 respectively.

Earl Rowland, transcontinental air race winner in Class C last year, is among the San Antonio-St. Louis leg entries.

Rogers is a daring aviator whose boldness has been tested by a number of parachute jumps. He will fly a Hiss E type Traveler biplane of 130-horsepower and capable of attaining 140 miles an hour. Although he is only a freshman in high school, he began the study of aviation two years ago. Due to his age he flies under a special department of commerce permit, but is entitled now to a limited commercial license.

Big Attendance At Game Here Being Urged

Midland people should decide now to support the baseball club when it returns May 27 from a long road trip on the road, directors of the team said this morning.

The directors pointed out that the standing of a team during the first half of a season can be materially changed by solid support of the home town crowds, and that this support devolves on the rooters from the standpoint of obligation.

BARTON'S DYANSHINE SHOE POLISH

TRADITION KEEPS JAVELIN RECORD AT TEXAS A & M

When J. G. "Bull" Floyd, Texas Aggie javelin hurler, hurled the tipped shaft 204 feet, 4 1-2 inches to set a new record at the conference meet in Dallas he maintained a tradition of long standing in the conference. The javelin record of the Southwest has never been out of the possession of A. & M. since the introduction of track as a conference sport fourteen years ago.

Jack Mahan, former Aggie track and grid star and team mate of "Little Hig" Higginbotham, now freshman coach at A. & M.; Carl Dietrich, another former Aggie grid and track star; "Ox" Dietrich, who broke his brother's record with the javelin; and Floyd are included in the list of Aggie spear throwers. In Floyd the Aggies have an athlete who will probably push the outstanding men of the country for the national collegiate title. He is a sophomore at A. & M. and it is not believed he has yet reached his peak since he showed improvement in virtually every meet of the past season.

DO WOMEN MAKE GOOD AS FLIERS?

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., May 22.—(UP)—Do women make good fliers?

Chief instructor Clyde E. Brayton of Parke Air College says "No." Lady Mary Heath, British aviatrix, says "Yes," and makes it clear she doesn't mean maybe.

When Lady Mary was here recently to address the student body of the air school, students looked forward to an argument—for Brayton had put himself publicly on record in a newspaper interview as believing that "women as a class" were incapable of learning to fly.

Brayton failed to show up. But Lady Mary stated her case as follows: "I quite disagree with him—naturally. We have found in England that the women who are athletic, who have trained the eye and hand with tennis, rowing and other sports are ideal flying material, and learn to handle a ship quite as well as man."

"On the other hand it's true as Mr. Brayton says, that women who haven't that background are poor material for flying pilots. But so would the men be if they had no training."

Father of Bill Erwin Pastor of McLean Church

MCLEAN, Texas, May 22.—(UP)—The Rev. W. A. Erwin, formerly of Pawhuska, Okla., has accepted the call to become head of the Presbyterian church here. Erwin's son, Captain W. P. Erwin, was one of the aviators lost in the Dole flight when he flew over the Pacific in the "Spirit of Dallas" seeking other missing aviators.

JIM THORPE MET AT ODESSA BY OLD SPONSOR

John Cusack, in charge of operations of the Skelly Oil company in New Mexico, met his former protegee, the great Jim Thorpe, in Odessa Monday night.

It was the first meeting of the two since Cusack left for the west after introducing Thorpe, Cherokee from Carlisle, into the ranks of professional football. Thorpe was placed on the Massillon squad, the greatest aggregation of grid stars ever gathered together in the opinion of sports writers. All the players were of All-American calibre.

METRO'S PICTURIZATION OF CELEBRATED NOVEL COMING

Don Alvarado, well-known leading man of the screen, famous for his work in "The Loves of Carmen," "Breakfast at Sunrise" and other film hits, plays the romantic "Manuel" opposite Lily Damita in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular filmization, with talking sequences, of the Thornton Wilder novel.

The picture, one of the biggest productions of the year, and which comes Sunday to the Grand Theatre, is a graphic romance of Peru. Charles Brabin directed, closely following the famous book, one of the literary sensations of the day. In the cast are Raquel Torres, Lily Damita, Ernest Torrence, Duncan Rinaldo, Henry B. Walthall, Tully Marshall, Mitchell Lewis, Jane Winton, Paul Ellis, Gordon Thorpe, Mikhail Vavitch, and many other notable players.

SHIP CATCHES FIRE; PILOT IS LANDING HERO

ELKO, Nevada, May 22.—One of the most spectacular landings in the face of danger ever recorded in commercial flying was made here today when a twelve-passenger trimotor burst into flames in mid-air and then landed safely.

The dramatic incident began when one motor of the westbound mail transport failed and set fire to a wing. Chief Pilot Hugh Baker pointed its nose downward in such a sweeping arc that the burning left wing did not set fire to other sections of the craft.

The ship landed on a level spot, and the passengers, seven of them, and the two pilots clambered to safety.

All mail and valuables in the plane burned.

Blood Transfusion Necessary To Save Big Spring Girl

A blood transfusion will be necessary in order to save the life of Miss Loretta Jenkins, age sixteen, high school student who was accidentally shot with a .41 coil pistol on Sunday afternoon. The gun was supposed to have been loaded with "blanks" and was discharged while in the hands of Doyle Cox, who had removed the weapon from his belt to lay it on a shelf. The gun was to have been used in practice for a play on the night following the accident. The shooting occurred at the W. C. Henley home in this city. The bullet passed through the body piercing the walls of the stomach in two places, where it entered and left the body.

AVIATION PLAYS BIG PART IN "THE LITTLE WILDCAT"

Commercial aviation plays an important part in the plot of "The Little Wildcat," the Warner Bros. production now showing at the Ritz Theatre.

The story is modern and has its locale in the South. Audrey Ferris and Doris Dawson, who portray leading roles in the production, appear as wilful sisters, while their grandfather, played by George Fawcett, appears as a crotchety Civil War veteran.

Aviation enters the story with the attempts of a manufacturer of airplanes to locate a factory and airport in the community over which Flywackett, as the irascible Judge Holt, tyrannically presides. The judge has a natural dislike for aviation, and when he finds that his granddaughters are being courted by a flier, his wrath knows no bounds.

The plot develops with Miss Ferris and Miss Dawson trying for the favor of the flier, and finally putting the judge to rout with a daring coup that forces him to sanction the commercial enterprise.

James Murray appears as the flier, Hallam Cooley as the local swain intent upon captivating one of the granddaughters, and Robert Edson plays the harassed but devoted war-time friend and servant of the judge.

"The Little Wildcat" is a picture you ought not to miss. Why? You'll know why when you see it.

WORLD PRAISE STILL POURED ON LINDBERGH

By SANDOR S. KLEIN
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Two years ago yesterday, a lanky kid, with tousled, blonde hair and an enigmatic yet pleasing smile, climbed into the cabin of a silver-nosed monoplane, waved farewell to a handful of reporters, aviators and others gathered on Roosevelt Field and sailed off into the east.

Some 36 hours later, the youth, Charles A. Lindbergh, an obscure mail pilot, landed on Le Bourget Field in Paris and on the front pages of the world's newspapers. Overnight he became an international hero.

His fame is still unparalleled. In the year following his romantic victory over the Atlantic wastes, he continued his amazing career and worked practical wonders in aviation. He toured the United States under the auspices of the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aviation. He made a non-stop flight from Washington to Mexico City, and then, in the role of "good-will ambassador," he continued on a flight which carried him to Central America, to Colombia and Venezuela and back to the United States, via Havana.

And now, on the second anniversary of his historic achievement, it is well to review his activities during the year just past.

Engagement Outstanding
 From the standpoint of "news value" the outstanding event was his engagement to Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, younger of two daughters of United States Ambassador to Mexico, Dwight W. Morrow.

Their marriage will take place in the middle of June and gives promise of being the most publicized social event of the year.

When Lindbergh flew to Mexico City on November 17, 1928, presumably on a hunting trip as the guest of Ambassador Morrow, few suspected Lindbergh was going a-courting. It seemed inconceivable to many that this shy youth of 27 who was so much in the public eye, could have an affair of the heart.

On February 12 of this year, the telegraph companies enjoyed a profitable day out of Mexico City when Mrs. Morrow announced in a brief statement, the betrothal of Anne to Colonel Lindbergh.

The world was thrilled.

Two weeks later the wires between Mexico City and the world again buzzed with the name of Lindbergh and his fiancée. While the couple were sky-larking in the vicinity of Valbuena Flying Field, Mexico City, Lindbergh's plane lost a wheel in mid-air.

Flying Skill Demonstrated
 Once again the flying skill of one of the coolest aviators who ever waggled a control stick, was demonstrated. He circled the field, meanwhile wrapping cushions around Miss Morrow. Then he settled to earth. The crash was inevitable, but Lindbergh made it as mild as possible. He received a dislocated shoulder. Miss Morrow suffered a slight shock but was otherwise unhurt.

Lindbergh left the scene of his courtship on March 9, long enough to perform a service for the government. He flew from Mexico City to Brownsville, Tex., to inaugurate the air mail service between the United States and Mexico. Then he returned to the Morrow's residence.

A few weeks later, Lindbergh's plans were interrupted when he received the news that United States Ambassador to France, Myron T. Herrick, had died. Once again he flew back to the United States—this time to pay tribute to his beloved friend and advisor during the days of Paris triumphs.

When Lindbergh rode on the train bearing the ambassador's body from New York to Cleveland, it was the first time since his epoch-making flight to Paris that the aviator had used this means of transportation.

At the present time, Colonel Lindbergh is especially concerned with the opening soon of the airmail system of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., to which he is technical adviser.

Col. Lindbergh's knowledge of aviation and his experience are much in demand and he should have no difficulty in maintaining a home and buying groceries for his bride and himself. He is also technical adviser to the Guggenheim Fund and to the aviation division of the United States Commerce Department.

Press Sometimes Critical
 While Lindbergh's aversion to publicity is well known, newspapers during the past year, have taken occasion to censure the aviator for his almost belligerent attitude toward the press. Colonel Lindbergh has almost invariably refused to reveal his destination when starting on a flight, with the result that newspapers frequently are besieged with an abundance of wild rumors.

Editor Gene Howe, of Amarillo, Tex., whose aim in life is to write what he thinks and to bring culture to the "cow country," characterized Lindbergh as "swellheaded."

More recently, an editorial in the Washington, D. C. News, brought the aviator to task for allegedly deliberately splashing mud on a group of spectators at Bolling Field, Washington, during a take-off. Lindbergh later denied the mud-splashing was deliberate.

But despite such occasional jibes, Lindbergh's name remains a synonym for youthful daring and courage. In the country's schoolrooms children clip pictures from rotogravure sections and keep "Lindy scrap-books." Teachers tell their pupils that if the latter behave themselves, they may "grow up to be like Lindbergh."

And yet, two years ago today, he was just a gangling kid with a lot of ambition—and also a lot of foolhardiness.

A few weeks later, Lindbergh's plans were interrupted when he received the news that United States Ambassador to France, Myron T. Herrick, had died. Once again he flew back to the United States—this time to pay tribute to his beloved friend and advisor during the days of Paris triumphs.

When Lindbergh rode on the train bearing the ambassador's body from New York to Cleveland, it was the first time since his epoch-making flight to Paris that the aviator had used this means of transportation.

More recently, an editorial in the Washington, D. C. News, brought the aviator to task for allegedly deliberately splashing mud on a group of spectators at Bolling Field, Washington, during a take-off. Lindbergh later denied the mud-splashing was deliberate.

But despite such occasional jibes, Lindbergh's name remains a synonym for youthful daring and courage. In the country's schoolrooms children clip pictures from rotogravure sections and keep "Lindy scrap-books." Teachers tell their pupils that if the latter behave themselves, they may "grow up to be like Lindbergh."

And yet, two years ago today, he was just a gangling kid with a lot of ambition—and also a lot of foolhardiness.

that this shy youth of 27 who was so much in the public eye, could have an affair of the heart.

On February 12 of this year, the telegraph companies enjoyed a profitable day out of Mexico City when Mrs. Morrow announced in a brief statement, the betrothal of Anne to Colonel Lindbergh.

The world was thrilled.

Two weeks later the wires between Mexico City and the world again buzzed with the name of Lindbergh and his fiancée. While the couple were sky-larking in the vicinity of Valbuena Flying Field, Mexico City, Lindbergh's plane lost a wheel in mid-air.

Flying Skill Demonstrated
 Once again the flying skill of one of the coolest aviators who ever waggled a control stick, was demonstrated. He circled the field, meanwhile wrapping cushions around Miss Morrow. Then he settled to earth. The crash was inevitable, but Lindbergh made it as mild as possible. He received a dislocated shoulder. Miss Morrow suffered a slight shock but was otherwise unhurt.

Lindbergh left the scene of his courtship on March 9, long enough to perform a service for the government. He flew from Mexico City to Brownsville, Tex., to inaugurate the air mail service between the United States and Mexico. Then he returned to the Morrow's residence.

Exide BATTERIES SERVICE STATION

This sign is on our place of business. We sell the Exide, made by The Electric Storage Battery Co., but we cheerfully service all makes.

To WIVES whose husbands always put things off

THIS advertisement is addressed to those long-suffering wives who know from experience that "the best way to get a thing done is to do it yourself."

Getting a husband to mail a letter is child's play compared to making him remember to have the battery in the car inspected regularly. But at this time of the year, when you're taking long trips and doing plenty of night driving, it's highly important to always keep your battery in A-1 condition.

So here's our suggestion: Why not put the Exide Service Station on your shopping list and drive in at least once every two weeks so that we can look your battery over?
