BIG CROWD AT ODESSA FOR RACES

Midlanders Show up Well in Fast Competition

Witnessing some of the fastest roping competition and horse racing ever brought to this section of the state, approximately 1,200 persons packed their cars around Odessa's new rodeo arena and race track Monday for the first of a two-day Memorial celebration. The event was staged by the Odessa American legion post.

Allen Holder of Midland stood out as the day's leading roper, taking first place in the calf roping and also being in the lead in the third winning teams in wild cow milking. Sheriff A. C. Francis and R. J.

TOO MUCH TOMCAT

The 200 yard roping horse race, to which only horses that were used in the roping events were eligible, was not filled Monday afternoon. Clarence Schaubauer's Tomcat, used by Flop Roberts in the calf roping, was the first to enter the race for which $25 and the entrance fees were to go to the winner. After Tomcat's entry, owners of other roping horses apparently lost interest in the event and failed to enter their ponies. Three entries were required to fill the race. It was not run.

Currie of Midland were among the four men who proved that jack rabbits can be roped, and "painlessly." The other successful rabbit ropers were Jake McClure, 1931 world champion cowboy, and Sheriff Arden Ross of Loving county.

Horse races included a matched quarter mile event, a quarter mile free for all, a three eighths free for all and a half mile. One bronc was ridden and several fat cows were bull dogged, rounding out a full afternoon's program.

In calf roping, Allen Holder, riding Will Nick's Cap, a six year old horse of the B. W. Floyd stock, made first money with time of 19.9. He was followed by Charley Jones with 21 seconds flat and Todd with 21.4.

Allen Holder and Curtis McElroy were first in the wild cow milking with time of 21.1. Jake McClure and Charley Jones were second with 23.5 and Allen Holder and Jake McClure were third with 24.6. Myrl Jewell and Dub Young of Charley Jones were fourth with 27 seconds.

The bull dogging was won by Jazbo Pulkerson, cowboy clown from Butte, Montana, who laid his cow in the low time of 40.2 seconds. Shorty Rutledge was second with 11.5 and Buck Brady third with 15.2.

The program was opened with a matched quarter mile race between two Midland mares, the Walker's Pathfinder and Claude Whately's Moonshine. The latter, a bay only thirteen hands high, won by the seat in the low time of 26 flat. It was Pathfinder's maiden race.

The quarter mile free for all had four entries. A poor start caused Mrs. Robertson's Pecos to hold up her handsome mare, Sugar, and only three got away. Pete Patterson's Scooter and Dick Davis' Ashire were in the lead on the get-away, but running neck and neck until the finish when Patterson's bay took a short lead. However, the two were badly beaten by Wondergirl, owned by the Ray states of Cisco. Starting well in the rear, she overcame the loss and was far ahead at the finish.

In the three eighths, Ma Ferguson's chestnut mare, owned by Redden of Colorado, won easily, Joe of the Cisco Ray stables being second and L. E. Cook's Midland horse, Blue B, a good third.

The half mile race, beautifully matched with only three entries, proved to be "no race" after a spectator started it by yelling "go," and the $90 purse was divided equally among the three entrants. Gernd Bloss entered his George Keith, ridden by Pete Patterson. The big horse was unruly at the post, attempting to break two or three times, one false start resulting in a broken bridle which necessitated a beautiful piece of riding by Patterson who brought the animal off the track and to stop outside the grounds with only a bridle rein about the horse's neck.

Locklear's Harry M, an admitted favorite as result of his winnings at Arlington Downs and in the San Saba section, was fiery at the starting post, also. However, Bob Norfleet of Hale Center had a handsome bay in the line up who stood quietly while the others pranced.

When the false start was given, the jockeys got away as best they could, badly and neck and neck until the starting post, but quickly fell into what appeared a dangerous formation, being bunched closely together for the first position. Out of the home stretch, George Keith fell in a pocket and was denied his usual long jumping sprint. Harry M failed to slip away from the trio and they were in a neck and neck race until the way. However, due to the bad start and the bad breaks during the race, the event is expected to be anybody's race when repeated today.

Large crowds were seen in Odessa throughout the day, attending the Memorial address of V. Earl Earp, state Legion commander, the down town parade and the dances Monday night. A repetition of entertainment is under way today and crowds were expected to equal those of yesterday.

Average Family Taxed $36 In Proposed Revenue Bill

By NEA Service

If congress passes the proposed excise and special taxes already approved for the general revenue bill, it's going to cost you, if you are anywhere near the average, somewhere between $10 and $100 in additional taxes next year.

Let's presume that you are married, own an automobile, have a pretty wife who likes to use all the powders and creams that other wives use, and that you earn $40 a week. Here are the new taxes you may pay.

Cosmetics	$4.25 A YEAR
Jewelry	4.25
Tires, tubes, oil, accessories	7.00
Soft drinks	2.50
Matches	.20
Telephone and telegraph	1.80
Wort, malt syrup and grape concentrates	8.00
Candy	2.50
Sporting goods	3.50

Total for year $36.00

You might think the cosmetics figure is high, but if your wife spends as much as the average $20-a-week stenographer for such purposes, she spends $42.50 a year on lipsticks, rouge, cleansing cream, tissue cream, skin food, astringents, and so forth.

The new tax is 10 per cent and that figures out annually at $4.25.

Average Figures Taken

The figure for jewelry is based on a survey made in New York, which showed that the average expenditure for women in moderate circumstances was just $42.50 a year. And if you are one of the millions of home-brewers, your tax, of course, will depend upon how much brew you make. Eight dollars per year is about the tax on the malt, wort and grape concentrates the average "wet" family buys.

If you give your wife a $2 box of candy once a month, with a little extra for the Christmas box, your tax will be $2.50 per year.

As for sporting goods, let's presume that you are a once-a-week golfer, who shoots just over 100. You buy two clubs during the year at $5 each, paying 50 cents tax each time. You lose on the average one 50-cent golf ball each round, paying five cents tax on each.

Also Phone Tax

The telephone tax is equally simple. Let's presume that your wife's mother lives in a distant town. She calls once a month, the regular charge being $1.25. Add 15 cents tax for each of the 12 calls. That's $1.80.

Of course, if you chance to buy an electric refrigerator for $200, $10 more will be added to your tax burden. And if you own small motor boat, another $10 or more must be paid.

You generally speaking, $36 will be your share of the $669,500,000 increase tentatively approved by congress.

This huge sum includes more than $200 million to be added by increases in income tax which will not affect you if you make $40 per week.

Question Mark Lands at Port

Army craft due at the airport Monday at noon arrived at 4:30 that afternoon. The planes were en route to Brooks field, San Antonio.

The old "Question Mark," the plane that set the first refueling endurance record in America, landed at Sloan field this morning. The ship narrowly escaped a crack-up as it taxied here on its return to the base after setting the record. The plane, now used by the army for transport purposes, was en route to Roswell, N. M., from Randolph field and was piloted by Lieutenant Douglas. Douglas will attend the polo games in Roswell.

Support of Haag Enlisted on Trip

Generous support of the candidacy of Judge B. Frank Haag for the office of state representative was promised by voters in the western end of the district, the Midland man said on his return this week from a campaign trip. Haag made a speech at a meeting in Fort Davis Sunday.

The Midland candidate visited in Maria, Fort Stockton, Monahans, and Pecos. He will visit later in the various other communities. One of the most influential planks in Haag's platform is strict economy in government. The candidate points out that having led a personally economical life and having practiced economy in his official connections, he is in a position to stand against government extravagance when he gets to Austin.

VISIT IN EL PASO

Miss Katherine Ratliff, Johnnie Ratliff, and C. W. Edwards spent the week end visiting friends in El Paso. They returned early Tuesday. Miss Ratliff is visiting here from Mississippi.

TO CALIFORNIA

Miss Eleanor Connell left today for Long Beach where she will spend the summer visiting her sister, Miss Lady Connell. During the vacation they will visit in San Francisco, Oregon, Washington and Canada.

Miss Connell's mother, Mrs. W. N. Connell, returned Saturday from Long Beach where she visited her daughter several weeks.

Free Wedding for Anyone Who Wants It Sunday Evening

Does anyone want a free church wedding?

In observance of "bridal month", the Rev. Winston F. Borum, pastor of the Baptist church, will marry a couple without charge Sunday night, the ceremony to fit in with his sermon. The church will be tastefully decorated and the bride and groom will be in touch with him. The names will be kept secret until the time for the ceremony.

Prizes will be given to the couple married for the greatest number of years, also to the most recently married couple.

The minister will speak on "The Picturing Pigeon" one of a series of sermons based on birds of the Bible.

BROMLEY SPENDS NIGHT IN TEXAS; BROWNE CRASHES

AMARILLO, May 31. (UP)—Harold Bromley took off here for Los Angeles this morning at 8:52, planning to follow the Transcontinental Western air route.

He is expected to continue to Seattle to make a third attempt to fly to Tokyo will probably depend on the success of his Seattle attorney's effort to reach Los Angeles with a $30,000 prize to extend the time limit from June 1.

Refueling and repair of a broken fuel line, which forced him down last night, delayed his departure this morning.

Bromley said he will make a definite statement concerning his flight when he reaches Los Angeles.

A tall wind and good weather were favoring him today.

Browne Crashes on His Second Attempt

SEATTLE, May 31.—A spectacular dive into Elliott Bay here Monday ended the trans-Pacific flight attempt of Nathan C. Browne, New York aviator, at his starting point.

Browne and his volunteer assistant in refueling operations, Frank Brooks, were fished out of the water by a party in a sea sled. Browne had been in the water for 15 minutes, unharmed, although he complained he "hadn't intended to take a bath until Saturday."

"We both left the plane at the same time," Brooks said. "We couldn't help it. When the wing tore off, we were left sitting almost in the open air."

"It rained and shined all around us as we rode in our parachutes to the water. We left the plane at an altitude of about 500 feet and the chutes opened about 100 feet before we were fished out."

Brooks said the wing was torn off in a steep dive caused when the weighted nozzle of the gasoline hose dangled from the refueling operation. The hose caught in the stabilizer of Browne's plane and lifted the tail and smashed the rudder assembly.

Brooks was clinging to wreckage when he was picked up some distance from where the fuselage of the plane dropped into the deep water.

"As Browne's second narrow escape in two days. Yesterday an oil leak in his motor developed after he had flown several hundred miles toward his goal."

Blinded by hot oil, Browne managed to maneuver to a higher altitude until he could recover his vision. When he saw how much oil he was losing he jumped most of his gasoline and returned here.

It was only upon his return here that he discovered that he had broken a stabilizer wire in grazing a flyer. He expressed the opinion the tail assembly would have been shaken off before Browne possibly had reached Tokyo, making his plane unmanageable.

The perilous takeoff decided Browne in favor of midair refueling and a cabin plane hurriedly was sealed up with extra tanks for the attempt Monday.

Due to Browne's failure to complete the flight, the $30,000 prize fund raised by Seattle aviation enthusiasts will be returned to its donors.

One condition of the prize fund stipulates the flight must be completed by midnight of June 1. Browne had only a few hours to spare in his quest for the goal. Unfavorable winds had held him on the ground here the past week.

As Mayor Faced Investigator

WALKER INVESTIGATION FOLLOWS MANY MONTHS' GATHERING OF ALL SORTS OF EVIDENCE IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 31. (UP)—Bank accounts of Sherwood, accountant of Mayor Walker, whose four-year deposits totaled nearly $1,000,000, were under scrutiny today as the Hofstadter committee resumed its investigation on the head of the city government.

By DEXTER TEED

NEW YORK, May 31.—The general inquiry into the government of the city of New York authorized by the state legislature March 23, 1931, has been in progress 14 months. Now, at its climax, it is centering on the head of the city government, Mayor James J. Walker.

With Judge Samuel Seabury as chief counsel, the legislative committee, which has been gradually gathering up evidence, has brought to light shocking disclosures in the magistrates' courts. Judge Seabury has gone forward step by step.

Tragedy at Start

So far, $750,000 has been appropriated for the inquiry. Judge Seabury has assembled and trained a staff of young lawyers to ferret out the department of docks grades (fully revealed) to the public through private and public hearings. At times as many as 25 men have been investigated.

Private hearings began on June 6, 1931, and since then the committee has investigated one city department after another. As the inquiry into the department of docks grades last June, Traugott F. Keller, chief engineer of that department, killed himself. Seabury showed that vast sums of money were paid by steamship companies to get favors.

Soon afterward, in investigating the board of estimate and apportionment, it was shown that William F. Doyle, a horse doctor, had split fees of more than a million in connection with appearances in matters that were pending before the board.

Doyle cited for contempt, went to jail but was released by a ruling by the court of appeals, John F. Curry, Tammany Hall leader, was summoned to appear in court on behalf of Doyle. The powers of the committee were then broadened by legislative action.

New Geologist Moves to Midland

Carl McAdams, geologist with the Sinclair-Prairie Oil company, has moved from Tulsa to Midland and will be associated with W. A. Yeager, land man of that company, in looking after interests of West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

He will move his family to Midland soon.

Robert Howe to Get Palm Rank

The highest honor ever accorded a Midland scout, or a scout of the Buffalo Trails council, will come to Robert Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Howe, Friday night, when the scout court of honor gives him first rank in palm scout. A palm scout is the highest rank given by that organization.

The same night will bring an eagle badge to Malcolm Brenneman, making the fourth such award to Midland scouts in the past two years.

This meeting will be held at the district court room, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The board of review meets this evening, 8 o'clock, at the regular scout meeting place, and the committee will inspect awards to be given Midland scouts at the court of honor. Boys will appear before the board.

A mock trial will be on the program Friday night, staged by members of Troop 52 under the direction of Wallace Wimberly, scoutmaster.

River Victims Not Recovered

SAN ANGELO.—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Haynes, who were drowned shortly before midnight Saturday at the Sixth street causeway on the North Concho river, had not been recovered early Monday afternoon. Policemen, members of the sheriff's department and firemen, joined by many volunteers, had dragged the still swollen stream unsuccessfully.

C. M. Cleveland, who lives near the Santa Fe railroad bridge on the main Concho river a short distance from Paint Rock, and members of his family, saw the man's body in midstream at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Cleveland reported to H. H. Ratchford, of Paint Rock, who telephoned The Standard.

John Parker, fire chief, just returned from a week-end fishing trip, was preparing to drag the North Concho river immediately below the Murphy bridge. He thought it likely that the bodies had sunk in a deep hole there instead of being carried farther downstream.

Mrs. Haynes, unable to swim, was drowned when she attempted to reach the bank from an automobile stalled on the causeway, and Haynes, a fair swimmer, lost his life when he went to her rescue. Five others in the car were rescued when the machine was towed from the river by firemen.

RETURN FROM TRIP

Mrs. W. B. Chapman will return from a trip to El Paso and Fort Worth Wednesday evening.

HOOVER IN FAVOR OF SALE TAX

Precedent Shattered By Garner Over Relief Bill

WASHINGTON, May 31. (UP)—The senate today adopted the Connally amendment to the revenue bill, putting more than a $70,000,000 additional burden on the shoulders of income tax payers.

The vote was 86 to 3. The action was taken after it was learned that it was needed to balance the budget.

Hoover Goes Before the Senate

WASHINGTON, May 31. (UP)—President Hoover, appearing personally before the senate, today gave a superlative gratifying warning against future tax bill delay.

He advocated a general manufacturers' tax, an excise tax, exempting food and clothing and women's apparel.

He gave a serious picture of national affairs. He said foreign activities had started an unjustifiable run on the dollar because an unbalanced budget is feared.

He declared that the administration had no theretofore sponsored a sales tax but would now.

Garner Urges Passage of Relief

WASHINGTON, May 31. (UP)—John N. Garner, appearing personally before the senate, today gave a fighting word, urging a speedy passage of his $2,309,000,000 relief bill.

In appearing before the committee, Garner shattered a precedent. No speaker heretofore has ever been before the committee as a witness on a controversial issue.

Speaking slowly and quietly, Garner declared that men and women are suffering from lack of food and from destitution.

"Can any of you gentlemen," he asked, "tell me how you are admitting there is no way to bring relief to suffering or that you didn't attempt passing such legislation?"

Red Cross Names Roll Call Heads

A steering committee for handling arrangements for the Red Cross roll call, beginning Armistice day, was appointed Monday night in a meeting of the society presided over by Mrs. C. V. Schuman, representative from St. Louis. Earl Horst and Elliott H. Barron were named.

It was suggested and approved that an effort be made to get people who have received free seed from the Red Cross can the surplus from their gardens. An arrangement was discussed whereby people who will not be able to pay their Red Cross subscription in cash this year do so with canned garden products or other surplus food.

Present were: Judge M. B. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott H. Barron, W. B. Simpson, H. M. Becherer, Mrs. A. S. Legg, Miss Lois Patterson, Mrs. John Haley and Miss Martha Brede-meier.

Lubbock Farmer Shot to Death

LUBBOCK, May 31.—Frank V. (Leather Hat) Brown, about 50, well to do retired farmer of Lubbock, was shot to death by one of three men who escaped in an automobile about a o'clock last night.

Brown, shot in the right hand and neck by a small calibre gun, died almost instantly at the home of T. B. Hilton, at Woodrow, about nine miles south of Lubbock. Sheriff Wades Hardy and the district attorney's office were investigating the slaying tonight and the body was brought to Lubbock.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN WILL BE INTERESTING

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—This campaign year of 1932 presents the greatest show on earth. It has everything. Everything, that is, except rhyme, reason and common sense.

The Twentieth century world, in the trough of the worst depression in history, again piles into the two-ring circus of American politics, with the assurance that the clowns will be somewhat funnier, the tight-rope walkers more numerous and the barkers more hysterical and the animals nearly all a little more mad-caten and bedraggled.

The Twentieth century party and the Tweedledum party are about to nominate candidates for the presidency for whom there is hardly any enthusiasm even within party ranks. At this date no one has been able to discover any essential difference between these parties except that, one party has all the government jobs and the other party is out to get them or die in the attempt.

Neither party will nominate its best man for the presidency. That would not be good politics. Both, however, will write platforms designed to please everybody, which will be promptly forgotten.

Fortunately, both parties are positive in their aims. They are going to prosper. The politicians have been bringing it back for nearly three years, and although it's a hard task and the results are not yet apparent, they have had more experience on the job than anyone else.

There is a quaint theory that the people of the country have something to do with nominating the two presidential candidates, and it is true in about the same sense that the people of New York City have something to do with each of Babe Ruth's home runs. They support the players, vocally and financially.

In November, after a campaign which will cost plenty of money—but not as much as usual—the voters will ballot only indirectly for a president; they must endorse sets of electors most of whom they have never heard of before.

Meanwhile, thousands of politicians will be running for various offices solely on such issues as the Massie case and the Lindbergh baby case, on which they will be found to hold firm, uncompromising opinions.

But don't think it isn't going to be a sweat show. It is. Everybody in politics is going to be fighting like the devil and a lot of tall feathers are going to be pulled out before it is over.

Large sections of the audience are more than a trifle sore, with rotten tomatoes and bad eggs stored up for good use. That's why the performers are going through their antics with much more than customary fervor. Never was so many jobs in danger—and you know how jobs are these days.

Landreth Says Oil Going up

The spread between the price of crude and refined products warrants an increase in the crude market now and a rise of at least 15c a barrel, which West Texas should share 100 per cent, is expected before July 1 by E. A. Landreth of Fort Worth, president of Landreth Production Corporation, who was in Midland Sunday night, said in an interview in San Angelo Monday.

Landreth believes Mid-Continent crude by the summer of 1933 will be bringing $1.50 a barrel. Oil imports into the United States last year amounted to 80,000,000 barrels while stocks were reduced 44,000,000 barrels. In the event congress levies an excise tax of one cent a gallon and 2-1-2 cents a gallon on gasoline, prospects for which are believed favorable, Mr. Landreth thinks imports will be cut in half and present stocks of both crude and refined products amounting to 200,000,000 barrels should be reduced at the rate of 50,000,000 barrels annually.

These developments are dependent to a considerable extent upon continued curtailment of production and the resulting oil fields brought in, in Mr. Landreth's opinion. He anticipates utilizing of the Hobbs field in Lea county, New Mexico, shortly.

Accompanied by their wives, E. A. Landreth and brother, W. H. Landreth, vice president of Landreth Production Corporation, visited the Hobbs field in Lea county, New Mexico, Sunday morning.

Loses Money in El Paso Hold-up

Forced into an alley by a man who threatened him if he made a sound, E. B. son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Estes, lost his wallet to an El Paso hijacker Monday, in broad daylight.

He was walking near a garage where he was to accept delivery of a new automobile, when the man walked up beside him and told him to go into the alley. The man had his hand in his pocket and warned Estes he was "beated."

He had $13 in his wallet.

RANCH OWNER HERE

J. M. Daugherty of Van Horn, owner of the Figure 2 ranch and formerly owner of the old Half Circle 84, is in Midland today visiting with Lum and Mrs. M. A. Daugherty. The three have returned from visiting in Arkansas with relatives.

ROPED JACKRABBIT

Hub Castleberry roped a jackrabbit on the Elve Weaks ranch and marked its ears about a year ago, according to Herbert Berry of Midland who, about five months later, shot it.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

One of the most interesting governmental and economic experiments that has come out of the depression is reported from Canada, where the local governments of six small towns that have gone bankrupt are being taken over by the province of Ontario, under a new law.

In effect, these six local governments are going into the hands of receivers appointed by the province. A board of control composed of two representatives of the municipality, two representatives of the banks, two representatives of the bondholders and creditors and one representative of the province will attempt to straighten out the tangled financial affairs of each municipality.

Each board will have full power to hire and fire municipal employes, treat with bondholders and creditors and sign all checks. The town councilmen must obey the orders of the board or face heavy fines; if councilmen dare spend money without the approval of the board they will be personally liable to suits for the recovery of such moneys.

By dint of close supervision and efficiency in administration, the boards are expected to pull the cities out of their financial plights.

Such a plan seems well worth while. Insolvent business firms go into the hands of receivers for the protection of their stockholders and there seems to be no good reason why insolvent cities should not go into the hands of receivers for the protection of their taxpayers, instead of letting the same gang of politicians continue to fritter away the public's money and increase the city's debt.

Consider, for example, what a board of receivers appointed by the state of Illinois might have been able to accomplish in Chicago.

CHAPTER VI Lil Baker had company that evening, but not a very social time, for the two tough-looking men, apparently gangsters, had little to say. The fat one read the newspaper and the tall, thin one, a smooth-shaven man of about 40 whom Lil and the fat man addressed as Ed, paced nervously back and forth. He looked at his watch, went close to the partition between Lil's apartment and that of the Thomases and leaned his ear against it.

"He's still there," he said in disgust, as he approached Lil. "I thought you said he'd be out here in time to catch the theatre crowd."

"Can I help it if he's late?" said Lil, snappishly. "I can't rush in and ask him please to hurry and—"

The fat man held up a warning finger as voices came from the Thomases' apartment. "I think he's getting ready to go," he said. Both he and Ed went closer to the partition, listening.

"I've got half a mind to take the evening off and go to the movies with you," they heard Mike say. And then Mary's voice replying: "I couldn't get anyone to stay with the baby."

"No, that's right. Well, I've got to get going. Then they could distinguish a light murmur of voices only, followed by a silence, and then by Mary's laughing command: "Be off, you big Irish you!"

Next they heard the Thomases' hall door open and shut, and footsteps going down the stairs. Without a word, Lil got up and went over to the window while Ed picked up his cap from the table. Lil watched until she saw Mike climb into his taxi and give three toots on the horn.

Then she picked up her purse, nodded to the two men and went out into the hallway and rang the bell of the Thomases' apartment.

"Excuse me," she said when Mary appeared in the door, "but is there a drug store anywhere near here?" "Yes, right on the corner—Haas' place."

"Thanks." Lil turned away as though to descend the stairs, then hesitated and walked back to Mary. "I'm going down to get some magazines and a soda. I wonder—"

"I'd be glad to go," said Lil, sympathetically. "Oh, I can't stay very long on account of the baby."

"That's awfully kind of you," said Lil warmly. "I suppose you think I'm silly to be frightened—"

"Indeed I don't. I'd be scared to death. I'll get my hat and be right out."

While Mary was tucking little Mike in more snugly and getting her hat and coat, Lil heard the door of her flat open quietly, exchanged a significant look with Ed and motioned him to shut the door. Lil hung back a bit as they walked down the flight to the second floor, and looked back to see Ed tiptoeing from her room to Mary Thomases' apartment.

At the drug store Lil took her time about selecting two or three movie magazines, then ordered two ice cream sodas for which she insisted upon paying. They were chatting like two old friends as they climbed back up the stairway of the apartment building. They stopped in front of Mary's rooms.

"Thank you again," she said. "It was awfully kind of you to ask me."

Mary was terribly frightened; she stared in horror at the man. "What are you doing in my room?" she said at length, almost in a whisper. "How did you get in here?"

For answer the man deliberately kicked over another chair, which hit the bureau with a crash. "Then there came a bounding at the outer door and with a little cry of joy Mary ran to open it. The janitor, a burly, unshaven man in his undershirt and trousers, was pounding on the door again as she opened it. Behind him were a number of women, some with men, the women with wrappers about them, the men half-dressed.

"What's this row about anyhow?" he demanded of Mary. Then he saw the half-dressed man in the bedroom door. "What are you doing here?" "She brought me here," said the man, nodding towards Mary. "She's yelling 'her head off because I wouldn't give her another twenty.'"

"She picked you up on the street?" "I didn't do anything of the kind!" cried Mary, indignation flaring all over her body. "I don't know how he got in here."

"At this point a middle-aged man thrust himself into the room and grabbed by the shoulders a fourteen or fifteen-year-old girl who had crowded in with the others and was listening with all her ears.

"You keep your nose out of this or I'll tan the hide off of you," the man said roughly and pushed the girl out of the room. He turned and took a step or two towards Mary and stopped his fist at her. "It's women like you who turn decent girls into whores. For two cents I'd—"

Mary shrank as he raised his fist as though to strike her in the face. "What's this row, anyhow?" said a burly policeman hustling through the crowd of people in the doorway.

"Oh, it ain't anything officer; just a row," said the janitor. "The policeman glanced at Mary and the half-dressed man.

"If you gotta fight with your husband," he said to Mary, "do it quiet, do it quiet."

"He's not my husband!" cried Mary indignantly. "What's he doing here, then?" "I don't know! I tell you I don't know!"

The policeman turned on the man and grabbed him by the shoulders. "Well, now what are you doing in this room?"

"What do you think?" he said with a leer. "She brought me here."

Mary was so astonished and outraged at the man's brazen lie that she could not find her tongue, and the policeman looked in perplexity from one to the other of them. At Mary's silence he looked at Ed—for the half-dressed man was none other than the one Lil had called in her apartment a short time before—with lifted eyebrows.

"Oh, one of them—" he said. "Sure," replied Ed.

"Well, what about it, young woman? What have you got to say for

SOCIETY

Lena Wimberly Circle Hostess At Meeting

The Women's Missionary society met Monday with Mrs. Ella Youngblood for a social and business meeting. The Lena Wimberly circle was hostess.

During the social hour games and a musical program were enjoyed. Ina Bess and Nelda Gem Hicks and Beulah Mae Coleman gave piano selections, and Jess H. Rhoden gave a reading.

Mrs. N. W. Bigham presided over the business meeting. About 35 members were present.

"I don't know anything about it," said Mary. "I don't know anything at all about it. I found him in here like that."

"She's lying, Policeman, she's lying," said an old crane, advancing from the doorway. "I seen her picking up a man on the street only this afternoon."

"I tell you I never saw the man before in my life," said Mary, growing more and more indignant, yet feeling peculiarly alone and helpless.

"Stranger to you, eh?" said the policeman, still with the lift to his eyebrows.

"Yes, Yes." "What's he doing without his clothes on, then? And where's yours?"

"I was just getting ready for bed," Mary tried to explain, so angry that she halted for words, "and suddenly I—"

"I looked up and there he was—just the way he is now."

The policeman went to the bedroom, saw the man's coat and vest lying neatly on a chair. He touched them with his nightstick, and then addressed Ed.

"What's your story?" "She spoke to me on the street and I came by here with her. Then she tried to hold me up for an extra twenty. I was willing to be reasonable, but twenty bucks! And when I wouldn't give her that she started to yell and said I was a burglar."

"Picked you up, did she?" "Sure." "Come on," said the policeman roughly to Mary. "Put on your clothes."

"But why? What is it? What's happening?" "You're arrested."

"But I didn't do anything! He's lying!" "Aw, tell it to the judge," said the policeman. "C'mon, get a move on you."

"Don't let him take me away!" cried Mary in sudden fright, addressing the crowd, anyone who would listen to her. "I haven't done anything."

"That's enough!" said the policeman, sharply. "Come along."

"I can't go. I can't leave my baby!" "That's all right," said a woman in Midland visiting his brother.

DO YOU INHALE?

Is this question too revealing for other cigarettes?

WE do not criticize others. We merely call your attention to the fact that the vital subject of inhaling has been generally avoided in cigarette advertising.

Why? What's there to be afraid of? Everybody inhales! Seven out of ten smokers inhale knowingly—the other three do so without realizing it. From your side—you want to be sure that the smoke you breathe in is pure and clean—free from certain impurities.

But from the manufacturer's side—he should be sure of giving you this protection. And if he is sure—he need not worry about the question: "Do you inhale?"

Lucky Strike has dared to raise this vital question . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Britain Loses Whisky Fight

BERLIN. (UP)—A peculiar case involving the so-called trade mark rights in use of the word "whiskey" by a German distillery, has been settled here against six British whiskey firms, which claimed infringement of their rights on the grounds that "whiskey" designated a product of purely English origin.

The British firms, James Buchanan, John Dewar, John Haig, John Walker, and the Distillate Agency Ltd. of Edinburgh—sued the Berlin distillery, Blackburn & Co., alleging that the latter's designation of its product, made in Germany, as "whiskey" was a violation of British rights in the term and constituted a false advertisement of the German product.

The Germans won, basing their defense on the grounds that "whiskey" did not designate the product of any particular town or community and its production is not limited to the British Isles. Therefore, it becomes only a generic term for a universal product, such as, for example, "Swiss cheese" or "tweeds", which are made in all parts of the world. The sale of German-made whiskey, thus, does not constitute a fraudulent act, such as would the sale of non-genuine Sheffield plate, for example, they argued. The defendants also cited the fact that whiskey was made in Canada, Australia, Africa and other countries, even as vodka is produced outside of Russia.

They also argued that if "whiskey" designated a purely British product, then many a German firm would have cause for suit for infringement against English brewers for the production of "lager beer", a product of recognized German origin.

Texas Electric Service company won the initial game of the Industrial Playground ball league Monday night in a 6-3 score with the Petroleum Drug store.

The Rotarians gave the Lions a 7-4 trouncing in the other game. Straghan of the Electricians had the Druggists groggy, setting down five at the plate. Newton on the mound for the opposition, whiffed two.

The Rotarians used "Bullet Joe" Pyron on the hill for six innings, during which he was practically invincible. He caused five batsmen to fold up their timbers without getting a blow. Py Pratt followed him and was able to account for one.

There was nothing for it but for Mary to obey. And sobbing heartily, she went into her bedroom, closed the door and began to dress. Chance had it that almost that moment that Mike Thomas swung his taxi down the street in which he lived, having taken a woman further uptown and returned back down the same street. He was so close to his apartment that he had the temptation to stop, dash up the stairs, surprise Mary with a kiss, dash out again and cruise down to the theatre district.

"Where to, lady?" he asked over his shoulder. "The Grand Central Station. Can you make it in half an hour?" "Sure. At least I can try."

Tree Sitting Champ Out for New Record

A boy who established a tree-sitting record here two years ago is now out to establish a hitch-hiking record.

Leonard Pratt, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Pratt, of Okmulgee, Okla., walked from his home to Midland in company with a friend, Lawrence Stevens, and are resting at the home of Buster Howard, before a hike to El Paso and Juarez. They will walk back.

A star of today and two potential stars of tomorrow come to the Grand screen Wednesday when "Young Bride," a romance of reckless youth opens an engagement for two days.

The star of today is blonde Helen Twelvetrees, heroine of "Her Man," "Mille" and other smashing screen hits. The stars of tomorrow are Eric Linden and Arline Judge who swept their way into the hearts of film audiences with their first picture, "Are These Our Children."

Because of favorable public reaction to Linden and Miss Judge in that picture, David O. Selznick, executive vice president in charge of RKO production, has decided to co-feature them as a romantic team. Their first picture follows "Young Bride" immediately.

The three leading performers are supported by a strong cast including Roscoe "Stuttering" Ates, Polly Walters, Cliff Edwards, Allen Fox and Blanche Friderici. William Seiter directed the picture which Garrett Fort adapted from the stage play by Hugh Stanislaus Stange.

50 Men Offered Work and Refuse More than 50 Midland loafers were interviewed Tuesday and offered a job. None of them would take the work.

It is true, the interviewer said, the jobs only offered room and good board, but the work was light. "The bums didn't say so in words," the interviewer declared, "but in effect they indicated idleness and empty bellies were preferable to any kind of work, particularly as long as they had any hope of sucking the public teat by getting charity."

Check was kept of those who refused to work and their efforts to get charity will be worthless, workers said. It is absolutely necessary in the summer to save the charity funds, officials said, for use in the winter when suffering increases.

Like so many skilled artists daubing on just the right amount of paint, the Republican politicians will try to go far enough without going too far. Then it ought to be a lot of fun watching the previously dry Mr. Hoover balancing himself on the plank.

The Democrats nearly always put on a more spectacular program. Line have not yet decided whether to nominate Governor Roosevelt on the convention floor or someone else in a smoke-filled room.

The tussling with that problem may provide as exciting a political spectacle as has been seen since 1924. Melodrama may reach its heights. Think of colorful, hard-hitting Al Smith being allied with his old bitter enemies Hearst and McAdoo against his former pal Roosevelt!

And of the probable desperate, canny maneuvering of the powerful eastern bosses as they clash with the more naive, but scrappy and more numerous Roosevelt supporters from the south and west. And dark horses prancing behind the scenes.

FREDDIE FRAME WINNER OF AUTO CLASSIC MONDAY

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—Freddie Frame, Los Angeles, roared to victory in the twentieth international 500-mile automobile race over the Indianapolis Speedway Monday, leaving a string of broken records in the wake of his tiny 8-cylinder racer.

Frame, a 37-year-old driver with 10 years of racing experience, smashed all existing records for the 500-mile race, when he bounced his little racer over the finishing line. He covered the 500 miles in 4:48:03.79 to average 104.144 miles an hour, breaking the former record of 101.13 established by Peter de Paolo in winning the 1925 classic.

Less than 44 seconds back of Frame came Howdy Wilcox, Indianapolis youngster, driving his first major race, to finish second. Cliff Bergere, Los Angeles, a former movie stunt man in flying and automobile crackups, finished third, about 2 1/2 miles back of Wilcox. Baby Carey, a Hoosier from Anderson, was fourth with Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia, fifth. Zeke Meyer, Philadelphia, was sixth and Ira Hall, Terre Haute, Ind., was seventh.

Only 14 of the original 40 starters survived the strenuous competition of nerve, mechanical stamina and daring speed. One by one the 26 others dropped out of the race because of motor trouble or exciting smashups.

Billy Arnold, 27, Chicago, one of Monday's favorites, escaped dashing to death, just as he did a year ago. When his car, speeding more than 100 miles an hour, crashed into the high retaining wall on the dangerous north turn, torpedoes to the top of the banked turn, and hung there, a twisted wreck.

Arnold miraculously escaped with a broken collar bone, while his mechanic, Spider Matlock, Chicago sustained a broken pelvis bone. It was just a year ago that Arnold crashed almost into the same spot in a smashup that sent him to the hospital for six months. Monday Arnold set out determined to triumph and he bounced into the lead, while the huge crowd of 140,000 to 150,000 gasped in excitement at his daring driving. At the time of the crash Arnold was tearing along on his one hundred-fiftieth mile with a comfortable lead to his credit.

Double Funeral For Man and Wife

ROSCOE, May 31.—A double funeral service was held here today at 2 p. m. for M. L. Wright, 52, prominent farmer of the Champion community, and his wife, in whose deaths verdicts of suicide and murder were returned Monday.

Wright, shooting through a bedroom window of the home of their daughter, Mrs. Joe Snider, killed his wife and then turned the gun on himself. Death of each occurred immediately. It was said the couple had recently been estranged.

The service will be held from the Roscoe Baptist church, with Rev. George Parks, minister, and Rev. Lawrence Trott of Champion officiating. The couple will be buried side by side in the Odd Fellows cemetery here.

Listening to Radio Mrs. Wright, 47, and her daughter, were listened to a radio program about 8:15 Sunday night, when the report of a shotgun rang out. The elder woman slumped in her chair, a charge in her right side. A second shot followed. Mr. Wright's body was found beneath the window, with a wound through the left shoulder.

Verdicts were returned here by Justice Joe McCarty. The Wrights had lived in the Champion community for more than 18 years, and until about three weeks ago, when the couple separated.
