BIG STORE TO HOLD OPENING ON THURSDAY, 19TH

Preparations for the opening of the Grissom-Robertson store are keeping the employees of the store unusually busy today. The formal opening is to be held Thursday, September 19, as will be announced in this paper.

C. Y. Barron, manager of the store, says that all of the "big bosses" will be on hand for the opening, and every effort is being made to have all departments of the store ready, following improvements, remodeling and installation of fixtures which have kept the store somewhat "torn up" for the past few weeks.

Officials of the store believe that Midland will be proud of the new store, with its up-to-date equipment, when it is completed.

Woman's Story To Begin On Tuesday

Maud Raines, held in the county jail awaiting trial in connection with an alleged diamond robbery of Inman's, has completed her life story, which will begin Tuesday in The Reporter-Telegram, and run serially until completed.

It was formerly announced through this daily that the story would probably be finished by Sunday, for publication in that issue; but the woman grew ill and was not able to complete it.

The story shows a colorful experience with lawyers, officers, robbers, whiskey raids, and other activities.

MIDLAND'S PROPOSED NEW COURT HOUSE

Midland's proposed new $295,000 court house, bonds for which are to be voted on Saturday, September 21, is shown in the above drawing by Voelcker and Dixon, architects. The building, as designed, has four stories above the basement. For the convenience of tax paying voters of Midland County, drawings of the floor plans of the entire building will be shown in subsequent issues of The Reporter-Telegram this week, showing how the building is to be divided into the various departments for public offices.

RAYBURN PROGRAM FOR WEEK TO BE LARGER-GOOD DAY SUNDAY

No services are being held today or tonight at the Rayburn revival tabernacle, giving the Midland people an opportunity to rest or to have other meetings which may have been postponed on account of the revival, but a greater week than the revival is planned to begin Tuesday.

Services Sunday were attended by large crowds, with much interest shown in the splendid logical sermons.

The Sunday morning sermon on "What God Requires of Me," gave decisive argument on faithfulness to God. He showed how the average man is faithful in his business relations, faithful to his family, but falls down on being faithful to God.

In the afternoon, Dr. Rayburn preached to the men on "Big Business." He cited men commanding important positions in the business world, showing how they have time to give to God's work and how they prosper. The evangelist announced a greater men's meeting for next Sunday afternoon.

At 3 o'clock, at the Baptist Church, Mr. Ottosen talked to women on their part in Christian work. A good crowd attended this meeting.

At 6:30, at the Presbyterian Church, a very successful meeting of young people, representing the various young peoples' organizations, was held. Dr. Rayburn made an inspiring talk.

The evening sermon on "The Most Deadly Sin in Texas," delivered to a large crowd, broadened a subject taken from the scripture. "Who can escape, if they neglect so great salvation?" The sin of neglect, he showed in logical argument, is the easiest sin to fall into and is the most deadly.

Announcements for meetings during the remainder of the week bore out the statement that Wednesday night's sermon is one every citizen of Midland should hear. While urging attendance to all meetings, he emphasized its importance.

Young German Round-The-World Flier Tells Reporter Of His Flight Pets

VIRGINIA WALTHALL WARREN Broadly smiling, exceptionally small, urbanely courteous, and with a pronounced Teutonic accent—that was Baron Konig Warthausen, German round-the-world flier, as he talked to a press-reporter from this paper in Big Spring Sunday preparatory to his take-off sometime today.

The baron bore several scars, most prominent on his forehead, and nose from his recent accident in El Paso, when he was going to the flying field in a taxicab and was struck by another car, causing him to be confined in a hospital in that city for two months. He left there Sunday morning, and landed in Big Spring to make a few minor repairs and to refuel.

His plane is a peculiar one, at least to the eyes of the laity. The wings are underneath the fuselage of the craft, a low-wing monoplane, and have a spread of 38 feet. Baron Warthausen said the plane was developed from the glider. It weighs only 560 pounds, has a capacity of 40 gallons of gas, gets 50 miles per gallon, has a maximum landing speed of 20 miles, a cruising speed of 70 miles, a gliding angle of from 1 to 14, and a 20-horse-power motor.

The plane has been christened the "Huenefeld," by the baron, in honor of a dear friend, who was one of the three to make the first East to West flight over the Atlantic in the Junkers monoplane "Bremen."

Noticing a cat tied to the tail of the plane, the reporter asked if this was his mascot. With his contagious grin, the baron replied, "Yes, she is a very good flier. She like it. Someone in Siam give her to me. I do not know who he is. She is real Siamese cat." The cat in question was very peculiar in color, being real light cream, with almost lavender tints running through the fur.

"What kind of a mascot did you start with," the baron was asked. "Oh, it was a—oh, a—oh, you know, eats nuts."

"A squirrel?" "With a most entrancing smile and a look of relief, the baron said, "Yes, that was it."

He then exhibited three horned frogs, which someone gave him before he took off from El Paso. He did not know who gave them to him but said it was one of the men who entered a horned frog in the races which were held in El Paso, and told us that he was taking the frog back to Berlin with him, as they had no such specimens there.

Baron Warthausen is an important person in his own country. He started from Berlin on a flight round the world. On his plane he has the names of the most important places he has landed, a few being Moscow, Bangkok, Hong Kong and Tokyo. He stated that flying conditions in Asia were exceptionally dangerous, owing to the long distance between landing fields. If he had been forced to make a landing, it would have been almost impossible to avoid crashing up, he said as he turned back to his plane after a courteous expression of pleasure at having had a pleasant interview.

"But these auto—auto—what you say cars—they are the most dangerous," he said by way of remembrance of his real trouble on the journey.

REPRESENTATIVE WEBB ESPOUSES FARMERS' CAUSE

Representative H. E. Webb, genial "Gentleman from Odessa," was in Midland today conferring with business men and farmers through the chamber of commerce relative to plans by which he expects to sue for temporary injunction for restraining "confiscation of property" incident to gins and compresses charging farmers sterilization and fumigation costs on cotton of the formerly known "Pink Bollworm Belt."

"We, Carl Rountree and I, plan to get towns of this area to send attorneys to a place to be designated later on in the week, after Rountree is finished with the commission appointed to investigate conditions attaching to rumors of exorbitant fees draining into several county and district offices. The chambers of commerce of these towns are proposed as being the elective bodies of these attorneys."

"When the meeting is called, the attorneys will prepare a suit for temporary injunction against enforcement of the bollworm commission's decision to have collected the fumigation and sterilization fees provided for when cotton is ginned in this area of the state."

"We will ask that the case be called in the Southwest before a district judge, which would necessitate the presence of the Governor and his commission here. Suing for permanent injunction would result."

TRAIN CUT HERE ALLOWED BY TEX. R. R. COMMISSION

The railroad commission Saturday granted the unopposed application of the Texas & Pacific railway to discontinue trains 9 and 10 daily between Pecos and Big Spring. This was done, it was stated, on letters from chambers of commerce of all towns along the route that the action was unopposed. Hereafter the Fort Worth train will stop at Big Spring instead of continuing over the additional route.

The Midland Chamber of Commerce was one of those between Pecos and Big Spring which waived rights of protest when the application of the railroad was made.

It is claimed here that the trains were put in service for carrying express rather than passengers, and that express can be received over motor transportation lines as quickly as by rail.

United Dry Goods To Open Here Soon

As the remodeling of the Brown building, to be occupied by the United Dry Goods Store, nears completion, date for opening of the store is expected to be announced soon, according to L. L. Caver, manager, who has been living here for some time making preparations for opening the business.

The building, on North Main Street, formerly occupied by the Hokus-Pokus grocery, has been completely refurnished on the interior, and a new front, with combination tile and brick, has been put on. New plate glass show windows, arranged especially to meet the requirements of the United Dry Goods Stores, Inc., are being installed.

Henry Nahm, president of the company, came here first to make arrangements for opening the business, and has been in Midland a number of times conferring with Mr. Caver, the manager.

United Dry Goods Stores, Inc., formed in 1928 by Henry Nahm and his brother, then operating a store at Clarksdale, Arizona, now has 17 establishments in operation, and plans call for bringing the total to 50 within the next few years.

Stores have been put in at Jerome, Winslow, Williams and Flagstaff, Arizona; Roswell, Carlsbad, and Portales, N. M.; and Pecos, Tahoka, and Dalhart, Texas.

MURDER IS CHARGED IN CONNECTION

Three Other Charges To Come Up In The Trial

D. W. Freeman, Midland wrecking yard proprietor, was to be arraigned in 42nd district court, at Abilene, this morning, on one of four charges, according to news announced in an Abilene newspaper Sunday.

Freeman is charged with murder in connection with the death of Warren Hudson, who is said to have been struck by Freeman's truck as he and his young bride were riding a motorcycle on the Broadway of America west of Abilene, May 27.

Other Charges Three other charges have been preferred against Freeman: driving a car while intoxicated, transporting intoxicating liquor, and failure to stop and render assistance.

Freeman, who is operator of an auto wrecking yard at Midland, was arrested after a thorough search over West Texas had been made for the driver of a truck which knocked young Hudson from his motorcycle, as Hudson was riding from Abilene toward Sweetwater with his wife. He was taken to a hospital, but died within a few hours.

Midland officers arrested Freeman after they heard the story of a young man who said he was riding with Freeman when, about the time and place Hudson was struck, Freeman's truck figured in a crash.

Rain Last Week Made Total Of 4.10 Inches

Rainfall in Midland last week, as registered by the government gauge kept by S. H. Basham, made a total of 4.10 inches. Last Monday's rainfall was 1.85, Saturday afternoon's was 1.75, and enough additional rain fell Saturday night to bring the week's total to 4.10.

Heavier rains are said to have fallen in various parts of the county, especially southeast.

Borger Truck Driver Is Stabbed To Death

BORGER, Sept. 16.—(UP)—Melvin Hotchkiss, truck driver, was stabbed to death in a fight during a party at his home Sunday night. He was said to have been separating a quarreling couple. Several have been placed under arrest during investigation.

ALASKA'S FOREST RESERVE

Mention the wealth of Alaska and the average man thinks at once of gold mines. Yet in the years to come it is probable that Alaska's other natural resources will provide quite as much wealth as her fabled gold mines ever did.

A bulletin from the Department of Agriculture reports that the Tongass and Chugach National Forests in Alaska are capable of maintaining a permanent, large-scale pulp and paper industry—an item of some importance, since the price of paper has shown a tendency to rise for years.

Cut under Forest Service supervision, the bulletin says, these two forests could supply such an industry indefinitely, with the annual cut held down to a point exactly equal to the annual growth.

Alaska's forests undoubtedly will come in very handy in the near future, considering the way we are cutting our timber south of the Canadian line.

MAKING PROGRESS

It is not a good thing to be too optimistic; and the obstacles that lie in the pathway that leads toward complete, friendly agreement between the United States and England on naval matters are, admittedly, many. Yet friends of peace have a right to feel encouraged by the most recent developments.

When Ramsay MacDonald announced that the two governments had already reached agreement on 17 of the 20 points at issue, he did not clarify his statement by explaining what the three points are that are still the basis of disagreement. Nevertheless, the mere fact that negotiations are continuing, and are reaching some sort of goal, is a cause for optimism.

It is only within the last few years that an attempt of the kind MacDonald and Hoover are now making would even have been dreamed of. The mental attitude, in an affair of this kind, is all important; and the present attitude, on each side, is one that must be vastly depressing to the jingoes.

Will Flappers Starve Their Husbands Of Future? Woman Says "Emphatically Not!"

will the next generation of husbands be fed in home or delicatessen style?

The answer is reassuring for the husbands, says Miss Genavieve Derryberry, home demonstration agent. For the flapper generation does not feel strange in a kitchen apron, preserving pickles, canning cherries and performing other rites of the household gods. This is proved by more than 4,000 quart jars of home prepared delicacies, which already have been entered by cooks, young as well as mature, in the National Canning Contest, now under way in Chicago.

These 4,000 arrivals in preserved foods are but the vanguard of an army of filled jars, from over 25,000 house wives in every state, which have been entered in the contest to compete for prizes totaling $5,825.

"Where the flapper preserving artist has scored over her more experienced rival, lies in having the benefit of home economics courses and girls' club work, which have taught her modern methods of preparing foods for the winter's hoard," said Miss Derryberry.

"The most notable advance in preserving methods has been the pressure cooking system," she continued. "The young house wife has accepted its efficiency and economy for family use from the very beginning. However, from the superior flavor, appearance and keeping qualities of most of the food sent to us, it seems obvious that the pressure cooker has come to reign in preserving operations for the American wife."

The nation's pantry shelf is mirrored in the rows of preserved meats, fruits and vegetables which are accumulating, to await the deliberations and decisions of judges, when the contest closes on October first.

The appreciative husband will have ample opportunities to praise his wife's preserving achievements with the peach crop when winter comes. Of all entries in the National Canning contest, peaches are the most numerous and lavish in display.

What he will particularly see on the dinner table, according to his section of the United States, are preserved beans, corn, carrots, and cherries, in the middle west; rhubarb and peas, in the south; cucumbers, cauliflower, cranberries, and pears in the east; apples and grapes, in the west; and tomatoes, sweet potatoes, and chicken in the south.

YOUR CHILDREN by Olive Roberts Barton © 1929 by NEA Service Inc.

What wouldn't we give, 90 per cent of us, to be quick thinkers? "I'd never drive a car," says one woman, "because I can't think quickly enough." "I'd never make an aviator," says a male member of the 90 per cent, "because I should not be able to figure out what to do at the right minute." "John Smith got rich and I didn't," says Jim Brown, "because he was mentally able to beat it around the block before I got started."

Sharpening Young Wits There are many little mental exercises parents can give the children at home that will not only strengthen brain power and lubricate wits that will be a lot of fun as well. Moreover it will give the slow ones an equal chance with the bright ones, something they may not get in school. Sometimes children who are apparently dull in "book learning" are as sharp as tacks about other things.

I'm afraid I'll have to choose the dinner table as the scene of action, a little hard on department, but necessary, for the simple reason that it seems to be about the only time nowadays that families get together.

Father can be master of ceremonies and call the meeting to order. Then he must choose a word, anything at all from pickle-fork to Popocatpetl and call upon one of the children to get up and talk about that subject for two minutes by the clock. Everyone called on has to get up and talk. He may say that a pickle-fork is used to pitch hay in a harvest field, or to drag down bedding for the horses, or he may insist that Popocatpetl is a flower the kitten likes to roll in, and explain what it looks like and smells like, but no matter. Talk he must and talk quickly. Let him make mistakes. That's all right. His wits will be working furiously just the same.

I know of no wit sharpener any better than the whetstone of having to speak and speak quickly, before others. Dad may give a prize if he wishes for the best speech, or allow the best "orator" for the moment to be the next "master" and select the words for the following day—to be a secret, of course. His method may be his own. I leave it up to him.

Those Unfinished Poems Short poems with lines to be supplied are excellent brain gymnastics and a lot of fun. Let them be as silly as you like.

Quick descriptions of familiar objects to be guessed is another suggestion. Children love that.

Addition, subtraction, multiplication of easy figures is suggestion number four. See who gets the right answer first.

Selecting a letter and having all the children think of as many words as possible that begin with that letter, is another idea.

Relate a story that gets the hero in a jam and ask for suggestions of quick behavior on his part that will get him out of his dilemma, will put ingenuity to work.

DOWLING'S FIRST SCREEN VENTURE BRINGS ACCLAIM

Eddie Dowling, "Broadway's Favorite Son," who is credited by his friends with never having been associated with a "flop" production on the stage, seems to have carried this personal tradition to the silver-sheet, for his first all-talking venture, at the Ritz Theatre last night was received with more than ordinary enthusiasm.

"The Rainbow Man," his initial attempt in the movies, is the kind of audible-screen material that the public likes. It has romance, pathos, comedy, action; and sparkling, catchy melodies which are intelligently played and sung as part of the plot.

Dowling wrote the story which forms the basis for the plot, wrote the lyrics for James Hanley's melody and performed the leading role. To film therefore, is not only all-talking, but it is nearly all-Dowling.

The plot has to do with a small-time minstrel man who meets a little girl in a Southern town and falls in love with her. He loses his job through a misunderstanding, and goes to New York, penniless, to hunt for work. After many heart-breaks he finds a job, returns to the Southern town with his minstrel troupe again, and one day sees the girl he had deserted in the audience. He stops in the middle of the song and pleads for the girl's love while the audience thinks it is part of the act. The ending is a happy one.

Marian Nixon as the girl and Frankie Darro as the little orphan whom he adopts, are Dowling's main supports in the film. Sam Hardy and Lloyd Ingraham contribute some intelligent acting in their minor roles.

Families Pluck Pies Designed For Future

BIG HARBOR, Wash., Sept. 16.—(UP)—Residents of this little community are preparing to reap the annual harvest of huckleberries that will net them approximately $72,000.

Men, women and children will work their way through a strip 60 miles long and from 10 to 30 miles wide along the picturesque Olympic peninsula, clubbing the bushes and knocking down the berries, which will be caught in wash tubs, boilers, kettles and all manner of containers.

Shippers pay 5 cents a pound for the berries, including the pine needles and other debris that is picked up. Local merchants buy the berries, blow them clean and market them for pies and canning.

The huckleberries, of a black variety, will be shipped to packers in Seattle, Puyallup, Tacoma and Olympia.

The season continues from September to December and some pickers make between $500 and $600.

The body of a full-grown sea elephant contains about 70 gallons of pure oil.

The WOMAN'S DAY

In these days of many-ciphered movie contracts, and of de luxe commuting between Broadway and Hollywood, it is an interesting contrast to read in an old theatrical magazine that Sarah Bernhardt, the Divine Sarah, leading tragedienne of the world, commanded — and received—the fabulous sum of $600 a performance on one of her Americans tours and living expenses of $20 a day. That was top notch 50 years ago, when she was in the height of her power, and it was front page news.

MODISH CO-EDS

Those earnest ink-stained college girls of half a century ago, too, who took their educations so seriously, dressed so sensibly, and wore such practical clothes—and under clothes—would probably have been scandalized to receive a circular smart shops devoted to chic under things for smart college women, including: A dance pantie of chiffon milanese with side inserts of ruffled net—shell, nude or black—

A dainty evening slenderette that is entirely backless, made of milanese trimmed with lace and net footing—

Sleeping or lounging pajamas, made especially for school, in blue, green, peach or egg-shell with contrasting applique—

Low-backed vest and shorts in striped silk for athletic or campus wear—and little breeches for sport or campus wear—

Popular petal-peticoat bloomer for the dance—very short, in shell, blue or nude—and numerous other pieces of engaging lingerie.

The modern college girl does not yield all the honors in appearance to the debutante and the actress, while she trims the inside of her head. College girls today are smart looking as well as smart. Many a girl finds it much easier to keep up in her studies, than in her clothes. And many a girl who can get an A plus in College A or Biology IV, would get ten times more actual satisfaction out of wearing one of the new, silky, long skirted, slender-waisted Patou frocks than a Paris mannequin can.

ABOUT SMOKING

Women who have taken to smoking because they believed that reaching for a cigarette with one hand and waving away chocolates with the other would produce the flapper figure, might read with interest the article by Dr. Wingate M. Johnson in the current issue of the Journal of The American Medical Association.

According to him there is no foundation for the popular belief that smoking decreases the weight of an individual. Nor does he find scientific backing for the theory that tobacco plays such a major part in the history of heart disease as has been ascribed to it. Being a smoker himself, Dr. Johnson approached the matter with an unbiased mind. He conducted his experiments and made observations on smokers and non-smokers alike. His conclusion was that the ill effects of smoking were chiefly local, exerted principally on the larynx. He concluded that the average highly nervous individual smokes to excess because he is nervous rather than that he is nervous because he smokes to excess. In the average individual, the effect of a smoke was soothing rather than stimulating, he found.

So don't be too hopeful when you reach for and shun the cigarette and the chocolate respectively. It won't excuse you from the eighteen day diet or from counting your calories. It isn't that simple.

Money Transfer Made Without Coup

HOUSTON, Sept. 16.—(P)—Daring bandits passed up an opportunity here recently when the National Bank of Commerce moved across the street to its new home on the first floor of the mammoth Gulf building.

Three hundred and sixteen thousand dollars in gold, silver and greenbacks went across the street in little hand-pushed trucks. One truck carrying $100,000 in cash, was carted across with few if any of the spectators suspecting there was a thin dime in it. Bonds and securities aggregating $7,200,000 were moved. Would-be bandits, if any were in town, evidently were wise to lay off, however, as ten heavily armed police officers headed by Capt. J. J. Kuykendall supervised operations and the move across Main street was made with the usual Saturday crowd on the principal thoroughfare.

GRID TEAMS OF TEXAS SNAPPING INTO FORM AT ALL CAMPS

TEXAS U. CHAMPS MAY FIND WHAT IT MEANS TO BE RUSHED OFF FEET BY OTHER COLLEGES

BY BOB CANTRELL

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 16.—Three years ago Clyde Littlefield started his first year as head football coach at the University of Texas amid the conjectures of fans and scribes. Last Tuesday, he started his third year with the fans and scribes again making wild speculation as to the success which the former Texas ace will have. Facing a hard year with a shattered forward wall and an array of backfield talent, he finds that he is far from being favored to repeat his accomplishment of last season when he brought to Texas her first grid title since 1920 when Berry M. Whitaker nailed the conference flag to the Texas posts.

At the end of the first week of practice, the mentors are not ready to say that they'll whip the ears off of every club they meet, but all are of the opinion that somebody will have a tough task to give their proteges a licking. No one would dare make a guess as to who will compose the first string for the coming season, but it is safe to say that the veterans will have to put up a nice scrap to keep the rookies from shoving them to one side.

When Littlefield called his squad together for their first workout last Tuesday morning approximately 50 men answered his call, and this number has been augmented by the reporting of men from day to day. Included in this squad are some of the outstanding backs and linemen in the conference, while the rest have yet to show their wares before a conference audience.

Twelve lettermen are numbered among the squad, but as yet only eleven of these have reported and hopes for the twelfth are waning. "Pinky" Higgins of Dallas is too good a baseball man to run the chance of injury in football. The failure of Higgins to report leaves a place in the backfield open.

Finding himself counted out of the conference race, Littlefield can go about the task of building a powerful eleven without having to always be on the watch for those who want to raze a coach for his shortcomings. If he wins, the fans will say how the dope was upset; if he loses, they were right from the start. Regardless of how the fans and scribes rate his chances in the 1929 race, Littlefield will put a strong club on the field.

Matty's Aggies Good

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 16.—The close of the first week of training of Coach Matty Bell's Texas Aggies showed a rapid development in the squad of more than fifty players from whom the 1929 Aggie grid team will be built. Despite the mid-summer weather that greeted the opening of training September 10 and continued with little abatement during the week, the new Aggie mentor put his charges through an intensive round of field work in loosening up and developing the necessary coordination of muscles. Most of the men reported for training in good physical shape, a number of them having engaged during the summer in muscle making tasks, and the first week's work-out has left the squad as a whole in rather trim shape.

Only twelve of the fourteen lettermen expected back this year will be available, it developed shortly after training began. Field Scovell, husky guard, of Dallas, did not report for training and advice was received from Dallas that he would not return to A. & M. this year. H. B.

TO SCHOOL IN DALLAS

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hix and daughter, Miss Annie Laurie, left for Dallas during the week-end, and Miss Hix will enter school in Southern Methodist University. She graduated from Midland high school last spring.

Captains 1929

Louis Weller, full-blooded Caddo Indian, is captain at Haskell this year, as well as quarterback. Weller's athletic ability is not limited to football alone. He is a flash around second base in baseball and has been called one of the greatest masters of the art of dribbling that the game of basketball has ever known. Weller's home is at Anadarko, Okla.

John Parks, captain and quarterback of the University of Wisconsin eleven, is the tallest Big Ten conference captain this fall. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 178. Parks' home is at Muskogee, Okla.

Daily Market Report DALLAS COTTON

The cotton market opened higher and advances were further during the initial trading on trade buying and some covering on early indication of showers over practically the entire belt. The demand included some of Saturday's sellers and increased demand from trade sources, under which October in New York sold at 18.64, December 19.27, January 18.84 and March 19.25, or 16 to 19 points over Saturday's close, within the first half-hour. However, despite the official forecast of show, for the entire belt, the advance encountered realizing, and hedge pressure under which prices gradually sloped lower, with very slight rallies during the remainder of the morning, with the list at about Saturday's close on noon calls. In the domestic textile circles, the weekly review shows a good demand for fall and spring delivery in cotton goods.

Former P. O. Clerk Under $1,500 Bond

Fred Parnell, former postoffice employe here but now an employe of the Mineral Wells postoffice, according to a story in the Mineral Wells Index, was found in an investigation to have a shortage in his accounts of $1,072.00, the alleged discrepancy having been revealed on or about Saturday, September 7.

The news item stated that Parnell did not deny the shortage, but gave information and circumstances bringing out the discrepancy. Bond of $1,500 was made for him in Fort Worth last Monday, pending further developments of the case, before Commissioner Flynn of the Federal Court.

Imaginative Boy Is Story Contributor

"I've got something I want to put in the paper an' I don't want to pay for it." The attention of the office was focused on a small boy, insistently demanding that his "news" get published and not cost anything. "It's about my dog," he explained to the interested reporter, "He climbed a tree to get a cat."

"And who are you?" "My name's Joseph Seymour," he answered, somewhat irritated to be questioned about anything but his dog.

Pled with questions, he added to his story the details of the splendid performance of "Mick," the half Collie-half shepherd dog, who managed to jump to a limb six feet above the ground and walk several feet along it before he fell—all because he wanted the neighbor's Persian cat.

Lewis is the new principal of schools.
