OPINIONS OF TEXAS MURDERS

Residents of other states, visiting Texas, have been known to express opinions of Texas murders which are not altogether flattering.

"You can get away with anything in Texas and be cleared in the courts," has been heard. Newspapers of other states have criticised the Texas courts for setting free men who have committed murder, and a New Mexico paper, just last week, "wondered at" the acquittal of R. H. Hamilton who was charged with the murder of his son-in-law.

Another prominent Texas jurist is now held in connection with the fatal stabbing of a young woman at Austin. Such publicity as has been given the case thus far gives the murder the ear marks of a cold blooded crime.

Just how successful a defendant Judge Brady will be, in comparison to Judge Hamilton's recent success, is of course a matter of conjecture, but juries should have some thought for the reputation Texas has, or is gaining, in other states when one is acquitted on a charge of murder.

MORE FEDERAL HIGHWAY AID

The request of the American Association of State Highway Officials, in session last week at San Antonio, for an increase in the federal aid highway appropriation to $125,000,000 for each of the years 1932 and 1933 is a worthy cause.

Many of the more sparsely settled states, like the western part of Texas, all of New Mexico and Arizona, are hard pressed for road money because of the proportionate burden of taxation; and they need more federal aid than the more thickly settled and more highly developed sections.

Good transcontinental highways are needed through the sparsely settled states just as they are through the older and more developed states, and it should be through federal aid or federal expenditure that such roads are built.

OIL IN PEACE AND WAR

"President Coolidge five years ago asserted that the supremacy of nations might be determined by the possession of available petroleum, and petroleum products," says Henry L. Doherty. "Oil is the most important munition of war. It is being wasted today in a most shocking manner."

"The laws under which oil is produced necessitate this colossal waste. Our laws automatically bring about depletion of our domestic resources. . . . Our laws invite foreign companies to produce their oils here to supply their markets abroad and hold their ground resources unimpaired in foreign countries. We do not know how much oil we have left. All the evidence that can be produced and that is entitled to rank as true evidence would indicate that a shortage is imminent."

In peace or in war, oil determines, to a large extent, the supremacy of a nation. Petroleum and its products have become social and industrial necessities, on which almost every human occupation relies. An oil shortage would be felt by every industry and worker. America today has no more serious problem on its hands than that of waste and over-production of our invaluable petroleum resources.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Section 16 is any legislation enacted which results in cheaper prices for consumers, so no one ever has much hope for a measure such as the Norris tariff bill amendment designed to limit profits on imports to 25 per cent.

With equal infrequency does the consumer have set before him in black and white an analysis of the prices he pays, showing the percentage of cost and the percentage of profit. But it happened the other day when the Senate was shown that profits 10 times as large as Norris proposes seemed to be the rule rather than the exception on imported goods sold in American stores.

Norris Showed 'Em

The evidence was toted into the Senate in the form of 103 exhibits of articles purchased at retail in New York, including everything from a clarinet to a dog muzzle. It was this exhibit which caused Senator Barkley of Kentucky to arise and demand of Vice President Curtis as a parliamentary inquiry:

"By what authority have Kresge and Woolworth moved into the Senate chamber?"

Ashurst of Arizona had the floor at the time and purely for the benefit of readers of the Congressional Record, who might have thought Barkley was calling him a five and ten cent senator, pointed out that there was an exhibit piled up on the tables in the rear. Republican members of the Finance Committee had arranged it to show the percentage of difference between the landed valuation of imported merchandise and its retail sale price.

In one case appeared a difference of 325 per cent between the landed selling price—that is, the value in country of origin plus duty, transportation and other costs of importation—and the price in a shop off Fifth Avenue. This was Exhibit No. 21, a pair of alleged antique metal vases, which cost 98 cents in France and 48 cents for duty and transportation, but which were being retailed for $50.

A human hair-net showed a profit of 995 per cent. These imported nets from China only retail for 10 cents each, but they cost less than a cent to buy and bring to New York. A wig whose landed cost was $7.74 sold in a big New York department store for $35.

A dozen glass buttons which cost seven cents in Czechoslovakia sold for 79 cents at another department store. A French briar-wood pipe selling in American chain stores for 50 cents cost but 7 1-2 cents in France. Here are some other examples, the figures in order being the landed cost, the retail price in New York and the percentage of difference:

German bird cage $4.89, $16.50, 237 per cent. Danish pewter bowl, $8. $29, 262 per cent. German thumb tacks 7 1-2 mills, 5 cents, 671 per cent. Swedish vacuum cleaner $20.51, $77, 275 per cent. Alencon lace $2.50, $9.50, 280 per cent. French incense burner 29 cents, $1, 247 per cent. English military buttons 29 cents, $2.50, 771 per cent. French cut-glass bottle $4.29, $15, 250 per cent. Austrian painting $8.99, $70, 697 per cent. German box of stationary 65 cents, $2, 208 per cent. German violin resin 5.7 cents, 25 cents, 339 per cent. French clarinet $16.90, $55, 225 per cent. Czechoslovakia dress clasp $1.02, $5, 388 per cent. Japanese tooth brush 8 1-2 cents, 35 cents, 300 per cent. Vienna caramels, 23 cents, 70 cents, 202 per cent. Swiss self-winding watch $8.75, $55, 529 per cent. German spark plug 13 cents, $1, 455 per cent. German toy paint set 9.41 cents, 45 cents, 378 per cent. German razor $1.30, $5, 285 per cent. Dutch spinach seed 11.32 cents 75 cents, 543 per cent. French curling iron 33.44 cents, $1.75, 423 per cent.

High tariff senators pointed to these exhibits as showing that importers were making enormous profits despite duties on the articles. Norris, introducing his amendment, said such profits were being made apparently by means of a "gentlemen's agreement" between importers and makers of similar goods in this country.

Midland Men Are Burial Pallbearers

J. G. Gossett and George Streeter of Midland were among active pallbearers to serve at the burial of Rex M. Wineberg, 22, Odessa youth who died in Waco and was buried in Corsicana Sunday.

The Odessa boy had resided in Odessa for the past several years; death resulted from pneumonia, contracted as a result of having been gassed in the Crane oil fields.

Stanton Wants New Road To The South

A road from Stanton through the Lomax and Cross communities is to be considered by the Stanton Lions Club, chamber of commerce and the Martin county commissioners.

A meeting has been arranged conjointly with commissioners of Glasscock county, at Sterling City on Nov. 26, for discussion of the need.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Governor Moody is in Kerr county on a hunt, ushering in the deer season. In spite of the fact that he has been on five hunts within a month, he has found time to address gatherings at El Paso, San Antonio, Kingsville, Mineral Wells and elsewhere, according to newspaper reports. This is commendable. A lot of men would let their hunting interfere with their speaking dates, and vice versa.

Now that I have run this column into politics, the candidacy of C. C. Belcher for congressman might be mentioned. El Paso papers say that he made the statement that he intended running on the Democratic ticket even if he had moved to the valley to run against Garner. He probably "figured with" Republican leaders down there just to put them on notice that a good Democrat was going to run, thereby eliminating the necessity of their selecting a Republican candidate.

A Midland young woman asked a Reporter-Telegram employe, "Who writes that town quack column anyway?" and when he said, "There isn't any name on it," she said "I don't blame him for not signing his name to that rot." For which I feel complimented. Somebody is reading this bunk.

People have begun kidding the editor about the 16 cents he sent State Press for that Loraine church fund. He said Saturday that he wished he had never let Hankins put anything about it in the paper. Just another example of a fellow wanting publicity for his gifts to charity, and look where he got on it. Wall Street was paved by suckers.

VAUDEVILLE AT GRAND TODAY

The Kays Kids Komedians, opening at the Grand today for a six day engagement, are regarded as one of the most unique organizations on the road. Six in the cast ranging from four to sixteen years of age, complete the performing personnel. Little Suzanne, age four, is said to captivate her audiences everywhere with her rendition of latest song hits. Arnold, age five, is a singing marvel as well as a comedian furnishing many of the high lights of the varied bill. His song number, "Mamma's Getting Hot and Papa's Getting Cold," is said to bring down the house every time. John Jr. and Peggy featured in "Kansas City Kiddy," offer a routine of popular song hits. Gertrude, Martha Allen and Peggy top the bill with a beautiful Step Time

Dance and an exquisite Adagio, "Highland Fling." During the engagement the entire cast appears in a miniature minstrel, claimed to outclass anything ever offered on a stage by juvenile performers. Manager Bonner said to a member of the Reporter-Telegram staff that he expected the show to be one of the best ever seen on a local stage.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Acts 10:9-15, 30-35; Gal. 3: 28, 29

On the morning, as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the housetop to pray about the sixth hour:

And he became very hungry, and would have eaten; but while they made ready, he fell into a trance

And saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel descending unto him, as it had been a great sheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:

Wherein were all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

And there came a voice to him, Rise, Peter; kill, and eat.

But Peter said, Not so, Lord; for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.

And the voice spake unto him again the second time, What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common.

And Cornelius said, Four days ago I was fasting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my house, and, behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing.

Send therefore to Joppa, and call thither Simon, whose surname is Peter; he is lodged in the house of one Simon a tanner by the sea side; who, when he cometh, shall speak unto thee.

Immediately therefore I sent to thee; and thou hast well done that thou art come. Now therefore are we all things before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons:

But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.

There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.

And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 17, The Contribution of Various Racial Groups to a Common National Life. Acts 10:9-15, 30-35; Gal. 3:28, 29.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist

Race prejudice is ancient and deep seated.

It goes far beyond the day when the woman of Samaria remarked to Jesus that "the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans." It goes even beyond the much earlier time when differences in speech were made a means of revealing differences in race, and in the slaughter following conflict the one group put to death all who had trouble with their sibilants and said "Sibboleth," when they were asked to say "Shibboleth."

The story of that ancient test is very striking, for it reveals the interesting confession that the men of these warring groups were so essentially alike that when the vanquished claimed to be friends rather than foes this artificial test had to be devised to make clear the racial difference.

Differences are slight. It would help mightily in our interracial conflicts of today if we could come to realize the elements of common life. Our capacities for joys and pleasures, for pains and sorrows, are very much the same. Our very differences, are often differences in the stage of development and evolution, or differences that are easily traceable to different environments.

Here in America we are in the midst of an experiment of a nature, and on a scale, to which nothing can be compared. There have, of course, been other cosmopolitan lands and cosmopolitan cities have been many. The homeland of the Bible was a great meeting place of nations and races. The very list of those who were spoken the experiment of bringing varied races together and the basis upon which these races are being welded, if the welding is to be actually achieved, into a nation. The ancient world was largely a slave world. Caste distinctions were basal. Here in America democracy has sought to establish a new world order, the theory of which is that the individual counts as a human being and for what he is regardless of race, creed or color.

This ideal has, perhaps, never been fully, or even nearly, upheld in practice. While theoretically distinctions of class do not exist in the American democracy, it would be difficult to deny that wealth and privilege have not in some measure established caste lines. Pride of birth, position and possession, and even creed, have been made occasions of distinction and of prejudice.

But the most striking challenge to the elemental theory of democracy has been in the drawing of the color line—a matter which was at least a factor in the plunging of the country in civil war, and which continues both north and south to supply one of America's most difficult problems.

While great progress in the conquest of prejudice has been made in the south, the most acute manifestations of the problem have been transferred to the north where prejudices are apt to be raw and brutal, entirely unrelieved by a kindly tolerance that was present in the hearts of the better type of southern white people even though they most determinedly drew the color line in social life and politics.

No Christian can survey these problems of prejudice in American life today, whatever their source, nature, or cause, without realizing that the Christian spirit has some relation to them. Nor does it seem to many of us that the problems of democracy can be ultimately viewed or held apart from the great principles enunciated in Christianity and manifested in the example of Jesus himself.

How hard these prejudices died in the ancient world is manifest in our lesson. Peter, even after his years of contact with the Master, was obsessed with the ideal of ritual purity and with the pride of the Pharisees in his own superiority. He could not get over the feeling that certain things were common and unclean and that certain people were on a very inferior plane, and it required a very striking revelation to save him from his foolish prejudices.

New Attitude Is Needed The social aspects of these differences of race and the problems that they create cannot, of course, be dealt with in the limited space of these comments. It is probably no help toward the solution of these problems to ignore the real factors of difficulty that are confronted in all adjustments. It is doubtful whether there is much value in raving about social injustice and interracial prejudice.

What is necessary is to build up new attitudes of kindness and love, of unity and harmony, of recognition and real worth no matter what its racial or colorful aspect. The principles of democracy and the principles of Christianity are as one regarding these things.

He who would be a true citizen and he who would be a thoroughgoing Christian, meet on very much the same plane, when it comes to a matter of their thought of their fellow men and their treatment of those who differ from them racially and otherwise.

The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill places chestnuts on the free list. There are too many old chestnuts in this country for the foreign market to compete with.

Scientist Invents Vacuum Milkmaid

WASHINGTON, D. C.—R. R. Graves of the United States Department of Agriculture has originated a new system of milking cows which cuts the cost and labor of milk production and takes the product all the way from cow to consumer without exposing it to air or other contaminating agency.

The new system is in successful operation at the experiment farm of the Bureau of Dairy Industry at Beltsville, Md., and Graves contemplates installing it at several other federal dairy experiment farms of which he has charge throughout the country.

The milk is drawn from the cow by an ordinary vacuum mechanical milker. Instead of being collected in the usual portable bucket beside the cow, however, the milk is drawn into a glass container located above the cow and suspended from a weighing mechanism.

Disappointment To Flies
When all the milk from one cow has been drawn into this transparent receptacle, the operator records the weight registered on the scale, takes a sample for testing if desired, and opens a valve which permits the milk to flow by vacuum through a sanitary pipe line into a large vacuum tank in the dairy house.

The new system has many advantages, says Graves. No milk is spilled in the barn to attract flies; no dust can get into the system, and the milk reaches the dairy house without having come in contact with air, human hands or any other means of contamination. There it may be bottled under vacuum in much the same manner as fruits and vegetables are now canned. It is exposed to air for the first time when the consumer opens the bottle on his table.

Tests of the bacterial content of the milk produced under this system have shown it to be remarkably free from bacteria, the average being about 3780 per cubic centimeter realized only when it is remembered that the best grades of certified milk are permitted to contain as many as 20,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter.

Exclusive Barn for Milking
Under the new system at Beltsville the milking is done in a special barn, all feeding being done elsewhere. Consequently the atmosphere is unusually free from dust and other foreign matter. Labor is reduced to a minimum because there are no buckets or other milking utensils to handle, and the whole system is easily and quickly sterilized by running cold water back through the pipe line from the vacuum tank in the dairy house. This is followed by hot water, then steam.

Another labor-saving feature is the arrangement of stalls in the milking barn. The cows from the feeding barn enter the stalls from the rear, stop long enough to be milked, and when finished pass forward and out of the stall to return to their places in the feed barn. No time is wasted in tying them. A movable gate in front of each stall detains the cow until the operator pulls a string to raise it so

SUPERINTENDENT FLY THANKS MIDLAND LITTLE THEATRE FOR ITS PRODUCTION

"We are indeed appreciative of the courtesies shown us by the Little Theatre group of Midland in bringing one of their productions to Odessa as a benefit performance for our high school athletic fund. It would be a pleasure to have these people from our neighboring city present any of their plays here under any circumstances, and their generosity in offering a liberal portion of the proceeds to our athletic fund should be noted. Intercity relationships of this type are always valuable."

she can step forward and out. Another cow immediately steps into the vacated stall for milking. Three units are used in the Beltsville system, and one man does all the milking. He has milked as many as 29 cows three times a day and 25 cows twice a day in a total period of 5 1-2 hours.
