Moscow Talks Collapse Brings Tension Higher

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—The complete collapse of secret talks with Russia over the Berlin crisis advanced the cold war to a new and highly explosive stage today.

Authorities are frankly uncertain what may happen next. Both President Truman and Republican Presidential Nominee Thomas E. Dewey are being kept closely posted while the United States, Britain and France take their case against the Soviet blockade of the German capital into the public arena of the United Nations Security Council.

The failure of the secret diplomacy which the Western Powers have been practicing in the hope of reaching a settlement with the Kremlin was revealed by the State Department last midnight.

At that hour the department made public a 3,000-word note accusing Russia of bad faith in the Berlin negotiation and of creating "a threat to international peace."

Final Berlin Crisis Move Will Fall To Dewey's Hand

WASHINGTON—Prediction has never been riskier than in these grim times. Yet it requires no supernatural powers to foresee the most likely course of events in the next six or eight weeks.

by Stalin himself in Moscow at the end of August. Yet this is no more than a hope, and a slim one into the bargain. The Soviet position in Berlin has been hardened by events and the bitter wrangling in Paris will harden it further.

Despite Vishinsky's thunders, the United Nations will in all probability support the right of the Western powers to remain in Berlin unmolested.

Although the French, who are on the firing line, are more hesitant, there is very little disposition either in Washington or London to yield to Soviet pressure.

This much seems predictable with reasonable certainty. But after that comes a great darkness. For what happens after the United Nations supports the West and Dewey is elected? Only one thing is clear.

This is a military view—held, it must be emphasized, only by a small minority of the military—and Berlin is essentially a political problem. And there is little doubt that Dewey and his advisers share the conviction of the Administration policy makers that a backdown in Berlin could lead in the end only to a backdown in Vienna and everywhere else, or to war.

It is conceivable, to be sure, that with the end of the American political campaign, the time of decision will at least be postponed.

This in turn suggests that very soon after the election, Dewey, in concert with the British and French leaders, will have to find some way to lance the Berlin boil.

It is conceivable, to be sure, that with the end of the American political campaign, the time of decision will at least be postponed. Last spring, before the Berlin blockade, an interesting assessment of future Soviet policy was made by the experts and submitted to the National Security Council. According to this assessment, Soviet foreign policy this summer and autumn would be based squarely on the assumption that the Presidential campaign in this country was certain largely to paralyze American leadership in world affairs.

Kasenkina Story

corner of Russia, want was unknown. Life was gay. There was toil, but there was also song. Thrifty peasants and skilled workers could afford to give their children not only a primary, but even a higher education.

My father sent me to Mazurenko's High School for Girls, a private school in which the tuition was 85 rubles (roughly 43 dollars) a year. Kamenskaya, then a prospering community, also had a public high school where the tuition was 20 rubles (10 dollars) less. But in the state school the girls wore brown uniforms, which I did not like. I preferred the green worn by Mazurenko's students.

I was a good scholar, and graduated in 1914 when I was under eighteen. I was proficient in German and poor in French. My special interest was botany. My father had a sister in the capital who was married to a Frenchman. His name was Arbeau, and he was a teacher of French. There were many such in Russia in those days. I remember the Arbeaus visiting us. Later they left Russia with their children and moved to France. For some time my father heard from his sister. Then we lost track of her.

I was the third girl. My elder sister, Maria, was married to a well-to-do engineer, a certain Loshakov, and lived in Batum, on the Black Sea in the Caucasus. Her husband had soda works there. After the Soviet revolution, they fled to Turkey where Loshakov established himself in business in Ankara. For several years we heard from Maria, until news reached us of her death.

My sister Eugenia, who is now in England, came after me. She was very pretty. At the age of sixteen she went to Batum to visit Maria. There she met a British officer, Eugene Robertson, attached to the British military forces stationed in the Caucasus during World War I. He fell in love with Eugenia, married her, and took her to England. She was very happy with him until his premature death from tuberculosis. But Eugenia became an Englishwoman. "I'll never leave England, for I love it," she wrote home. Although widowed and childless, she would not return to Russia except as a tourist, but the Soviet Embassy refused her a visitor's visa.

Some months after I graduated from high school, I obtained the post of a grade school teacher in a nearby village, not far from the flourishing city of Slavyansk which then had about 30,000 inhabitants. My salary ranged as high as 35 rubles (18 dollars) a month. It was in that village, during the first world war, that I met my future husband.

One of the respected members of the community was a peasant named Nikita Kasenkin. According to the classification later made by the Bolsheviks, Nikita was a serf-owning farmer of the middle class. He had a son, Demyan, who was attending the Commercial Institute in Kiev, studying mathematics and railroad engineering.

Demyan was two and a half years older than I. His studies were interrupted when he was already a senior by a call to military service. He was drafted into the Czar's army. While at the front fighting the Germans, he was commissioned an officer. He had never attended a military school and had no idea of following a regular army career.

Demyan fell in love with me, during one of his trips home on leave, and I with him. I was proud of the distinction he had won in defense of the country.

But because Demyan had answered the call to duty and attained the rank of lieutenant in the Czarist service, he was a marked man the rest of his days. This cast a long shadow of terror over our lives. It struck down my husband in his prime, my fledgling son in his bloom, and pursued me to American in blind vengeance.

(Tomorrow: The revolution and Demyan's arrest. Life under the Reds. The Kasenkina are advised to flee.)

Church Member Inactivity Is Hit By Speaker

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27 (AP)—An annual average loss of 65,000 church members who become "inactive" is a "scandal on the doorstep of our churches," more than 4,500 delegates to the 95th annual Assembly of the Disciples of Christ were told Saturday.

G. Gerald Sias of Indianapolis, Ind., general director of the church's three-year membership drive, addressed the representatives of 7,844 churches in the United States and Canada in the assembly's opening program. The church is more familiarly known as the Christian Church. The convention ends Thursday.

During the convention a report will be made by a joint committee on the possibility of uniting the church with that of the Northern Baptists.

The Rev. Travis A. White of the First Christian Church, Lubbock, said:

"The church is facing increased competition and opposition. Achievements measured in terms of the past are no match for powers of darkness that challenge."

"Evangelism has its place but our evangelism comes to less than nothing if those we bring into church become a burden rather than the power they might be."

Hasty Rearing Shocks British

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Britain's hasty rearing against the possibility of war has left its citizens in a state of shock.

Or, in the words of the Daily Mirror: Calmly bewildered and apprehensively steady.

Dr. Cyril Garbett, archbishop of York, summed it up in a speech in the House of Lords.

"This country has had a great shock in the last few days because for the first time it was realized there is a possibility of war."

Some veterans of the 1939-45 fighting, reminded by Defense Minister A. V. Alexander that they were still subject to instant recall to service, said they were getting their uniforms cleaned and pressed.

The Royal Air Force issued a call for 20,000 air defense volunteers for manning radar instruments and other devices for spotting planes and sighting anti-aircraft guns. The air ministry said eight more centers for RAF volunteer reserves will be opened by Oct. 1 to take in veteran ground crewmen.

In a statement issued through his office here, Hartley said the wage-hour administrator, and "several secretaries of labor have used the act to establish nationwide minimums."

DOG MAKES LONG JUMP

BRIDLETON, Eng., Sept. 27 (AP)—Eleven-month-old Sammy, a wire haired terrier, jumped out of a fourth floor window Sunday and ended up in the dog hospital, because he couldn't bear to be left alone.

His owners, Dr. and Mrs. Martin Linell, thought Sammy should stay at home and closed the door of their flat on him. As their car was about to start from the curb they heard a thud on the roof and Sammy rolled to the pavement. He had jumped from a window 40 feet above the street.

Dr. Linell set a broken leg and treated the dog for shock.

WANTS 'PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT'

Dewey Supports Allied Plan To Give U. N. Berlin Dispute

ENROUTE WITH DEWEY TO SEATTLE, Sept. 27 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey supported today the allied decision to take the Soviet Berlin blockade question to the United Nations Security Council.

As he swung his campaign into the Pacific Northwest, the Republican presidential nominee called for a "peaceful settlement" of the crisis.

He added: "This is too sober a moment in our history for threats or recrimination. It is a time instead for a real and solemn reassertion of what we believe, what we hope for and what we will endeavor, against whatever odds and difficulties, to achieve." An aide said the statement showed nominee's support for the Paris decision.

Dewey has said repeatedly that this country must not compromise any major principles in settlement of the Berlin crisis, but has suggested conciliation on "non-essentials." Dewey's statement was issued after communication with John Foster Dulles, his foreign affairs adviser, who has been sitting in on the Paris UN and foreign ministers' meetings.

It was handed to reporters before the announcement of the Paris decision of the United States, Britain and France to take the Berlin issue to the Security Council, indicating the candidate's advance knowledge of the decision.

Noting that the war had ended three years ago yesterday, Dewey said that the time since had been "a period of disappointment and frustration." He said millions of people in the world are joining in "a fervent prayer for peace."

World Finance Meet Slated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—High ranking finance men from 47 governments began gathering here Sunday for the third annual meeting of the world bank and world monetary fund.

The meetings begin tomorrow and are to continue through Friday, with inflation a key subject. The two organizations were created, in the broad sense, to prevent economic warfare between nations, thus supplementing efforts of the United Nations to prevent "shooting" wars.

Russia, a mighty factor in the UN, does not belong to either the bank or the fund, although the Soviet took part in the wartime movement to organize them. Some Russian satellite countries are members, however.

Governors representing each member country on the boards of the bank and fund are, in many instances, the finance ministers of their countries, as in the case of U. S. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder. Some head the central banks of their countries.

The AEC also said that Helium 3, a rare isotope of ordinary helium, is being made available to qualified scientists and research institutions.

Fat Calves Are In Abundance, Prices Lower

Fat calves are in greater abundance and at lower prices now than they will be in many months. This was the summation Saturday by those connected with the livestock industry and constituted a reminder to those who have storage facilities that now may be an opportune time to lay in winter beef supplies.

The calf crop has just about reached its peak and generally is in good flesh. These animals are reaching the market at about the same time, constituting a volume which has driven the market down around three to five cents in the past month.

One observer ventured that consumers should lay in a supply of meat at about 35 less cwt now than was possible six weeks ago.

Reason for this prediction was that ranges will not support much cattle population during the winter, due to prolonged drought this summer. The July rains produced enough forage for fattening, but then ranges turned brown and crisp.

Consequently, most producers are reducing stocking. With cattle population down, it will be well into next year before new supplies of fat calves come along. There undoubtedly will be more feed finishing to relieve the situation in the late spring, but this will probably be produced at a higher price than grass-fed steers.

Young Methodist Church Breaks Ground For New Physical Plant

The mission point, which became a church only a few months ago, Sunday moved toward a new church plant.

Bar Association Lauds Collings For His Service

The Howard County Bar association, meeting in regular session in the district court room at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, voted to have a committee prepare a resolution of "respect, appreciation and good will" toward District Judge Cecil C. Collings, Democratic nominee for the post of associate justice of the 11th district court of civil appeals.
 The resolution will serve to extend the congratulations of the bar association on Collings' successes in the recent Democratic elections and a commendation for his ten years of service to 70th district court.
 The association also recognized the fact that business within the court has tripled since Collings first took office but Collings' efficiency of presiding over the court was maintained at a high level.
 Consensus was that there is now a need for two courts within the 70th judicial district.

John Coffee, formerly vice-president of the association, was elevated to the post of president of the association, succeeding Rupert Ricker. George Thomas was elected vice-president and William E. Greenlees replaced Walton S. Morrison as secretary-treasurer.
