BATTLE IN FLOOD TIDE

Boys Marooned, Many Watch Helplessly During Rescue

KERRVILLE, July 2. (UP)-Rescuers battled the raging Guadalupe river today, attempting to rescue Hall Prior, 16, and Cooper Fletcher, 17. Prior was caught yesterday by a flood while he was rounding up horses in the river bottoms.

This morning a friend of Prior swam to the tree where the victim was clinging, carrying him a water proof bag of food. Search lights from a hotel were on Prior all night.
Hundreds watched, unable to help.

CHICAGO, July 2. Roosevelt of New York. The roll call of states was a repetition of seconds for Garner.

Representative John McDuffie, party whip in the house and an old rriend of Garner, made the nomi-nating address, describing Garner as "a red-blooded he-man and an outtanding democrat in the house." Cheers punctuated each sentence.

"The democratic party is now breaking precedent, while the republican leaders are breaking promises," Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, democratic nominee for president, said upon his arrival at the Chicago convention Saturday by plane.

He explained that he was shattering all democratic party precedent by becoming the first nominee to appear before the convention before being officially notified, which takes place days after the nomination. He said he chose to do so because "I know you have nominated me" and explained that his procedure would save the party thousands of dollars. One spokesman later said it was estimated this saving would be in excess of $100,000.

it was estimated this saving would be in excess of $100,000.

The Saturday convention was a masterpiece of drama, just as was the coup of California and Texas Friday night when William Gibbs McAdoo made his announcement relative to California shifting its support to Roosevelt, followed soon afterward by Texas making the same announcement during the roll call. Everything bore the masterful attempt to bring undivided party harmony, and all states, including New York, New Jersey and Virginia whipped into line behind the party standard, forgetting themselves. Precedent was again broken as Virginia, for the first time in her history, withdrew support of a native son and turned to the man the rest of the states with the exception of lowa were supporting.

Tammany Chieffain Curry was been nominated, he wired the governor; "Heartiest congratulations. Your nomination means your election."

SMITH STILL GIVES NO SUPPORT NOTICE

CHICAGO, July 2, (UP)—The convention buried hatchets today, preparatory to welcoming Roosevelt who was nominated on the fourth ballot with 945 of the 1148 1-2 possible votes. The convention was called together at one o'clock this afternoon.

Smith was the only candidate not withdrawn when the crucial ballot came. He refused to say whether he would support the ticket. It was assumed that he would.

Roosevelt made a remarkable speech before the convention. He declared he would answer any question the party directs relative to his stand, would state his positions clearly and concisely so that all may understand, and that he dedicated himself to economy and to lifting the democratic party into realization of a democratic administration.

No mention was made of McAdoo, either. It is believed by party leaders this was because of possibility.

Horse races, with admission free, start promptly at 2 o'clock Monday afaernoon at Cowboy park, and all owners of horses are asked to have them at the stables well in advance of that time, committeemen said Saturday.

Five races will be run, including a quarter mile free for all, a three eighths for two year olds, an eighth mile "kid pony" race, an eighth mile race.

The mule race assumed greater interest Saturday when Eary Ray announced that he would enter the same mule on which he won the race two years ago. The mule, known as "Rat" is fast enough to

ROOSEVELT ARRIVES IN TRIMOTOR PLANE

ALBANY, July 2, (UP)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt left by airplane at 8:21 this morning for Chicaggo to receive official notification of his nomination and to address the democratic convention. A crowd of 100 witnessed departure of the thirteen passenger trimotor plane which was scheduled to stop at Buffalo and Cleveland, due in Chicago at 2 o'clock this afternoon. "Hello, everybody," the governor said, grinning.

"Be there to meet Al Smith," a member of the crowd shouted. Roosevelt was scheduled to appear tition of seconds for Garner.

The only other candidate was General Mathew A. Tinley of Iowa, who withdrew at the end of the roll call, moving the nomination be made unanimous. The convention acquiesced enthusiastically.

Texas delegates could not restrain a demonstration for Garner, breaking loose with a whoop even before the roll call was completed, and all states and territories joined in the demonstration.

THE PRO AND CON OF INVENTIONS

Philadelphia has a custom of making annual awards to those inventors whose inventions "may add to the comfort, welfare and happiness of mankind"; and news that the 1932 awards were made the other day sets one wondering just how these verdicts are reached.

For an invention is usually a two-edged sword. It cuts both ways; and sometimes it would really take centuries before any man could say whether a given invention had really done the race more good than harm.

Usually, of course, the good outweighs the harm by a comfortable margin. But there is hardly ever an important invention which does not bring with it a certain amount of misery. When an inventor turns a brain-child loose on the world he starts something whose consequences neither he nor anyone else can foresee.

Perhaps the most famous of all inventions is the steam engine. It has done marvelous things for mankind, beyond question. But it has a lot to answer for, too; indeed, it will probably be another century or so before it will be possible to sum up the pros and cons fairly, for the revolution in human life which is caused is not nearly finished yet, and will not be for a long time.

It is much the same with the gasoline engine. The automobile and the airplane are extremely useful contrivances yet if you sat down to list the ways in which they have disrupted people's lives, the ways in which they have and will spread death and destruction, it would take a very long time, and your list would make unpleasant reading. An invention, in fact, is an incalculable thing. It can do things which the inventor never dreamed of, and it can have consequences extending infinitely beyond the biblical third and fourth generations.

Carlyle once remarked that a book can do more things to human society than its author ever plans. Much the same is true of an invention. Figure out some cunning little device and put it to work; in a century or two it may have changed the face of the world, and the job of balancing the credits and debts will be too great for any human jurist.

AIR TRAFFIC CASES

The growth of airplane traffic is going to bring the courts some difficult new problems during the next few decades. Indeed, the process has begun already, and precedents are now being made for what may ultimately become an entirely new body of law.

Right now the New York courts are trying to figure out the way to deal with a lawsuit arising out of a midair collision between two planes.

What makes the lawsuit difficult is the fact that there are few established rules to govern air traffic. The question of who has the right of way, and when, is not as clearly defined in the air as it is on land and sea. Probably it will be a good many years before aerial lawsuits cease to perplex judges and befuddle juries.

A BRAVE MARTYRDOM

It is impossible to remain unmoved by those stories about the 20 people who, fatally ill of Bright's disease, have volunteered to donate the remainder of their lives to medical science in the hope that future sufferers from the disease may be cured.

These 20, as you have probably read, will be subject to experiment by scientists at the University of Chicago, operating under the Lasker Foundation for Medical Research.

They will get the best of care, of course; vet they are doomed to die, and they know it, and there is scant hope that the experiments will be of much direct benefit to them. Eventually, it is believed, their sufferings will bring relief to the whole race. Meanwhile, they themselves must die. It is a brave and tragic martyrdom.

Home run leaders of the soft ball league for the season were listed Saturday by Herb A. Rountree, of-Joe E. Brown at Yucca Theatre

There is no doubt in the mind of Joe E. Brown that this latest First National picture, "The Tenderfoot," which comes to the Yucca theatre today and Monday will be a howl-ing success—because, says Joe, he the heaviest support of his whole SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UP)-Joe career.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UP)—Joe Baltrun, operator of a flying service at Springfield airport, has invented a practice "airplane" which he calls the "Orientator" It banks, loops and rolls behind a whirling propeller without leaving the ground. Built like a regulation airplane fuselage, the "Orientator" is hung on a sort of sling-shot framework.

Composed of nickel, steel and aluminum, Japanese scientists have to have twice the strength of the most popular form of magnetic steel.

Artificial ice is not new. It was industrially used as far back as 1880.

"Marguard Pitching—And He Won!

There was nary a squeak or a rattle in the ol' soupbone, once Rube Marquard had warmed up a bit. And the fans must have rubbed their eyes when this vision from the baseball past marched out to the mound and pitched Atlanta, Ga., to a 4-to-3 victory over the Little Rock, Ark., team. Now veteran southpaw had asked for a chance to show that there was still a lot of cunning in the wing that once set a world's record for 19 straight wins while he was with the New York Giants. This picture was taken on the day Marquard charged his cameback

But it is embarrassing to be waiting for the ball, before a crowd, with the catcher just standing there looking at you as if you were a worm. Sometimes it gets under the Walberg swin. He flares up:

"Give me that ball!"

Then the Mick knows he has his man properly worked up. And Walberg steps on the rubber and starts throwing dazzling strikes.

As a rule, however, the Rube doesn't get mad. Not nearly often enough.

The Awful Suspense

The Awful Suspense

A couple of years ago, when attention diverted to the pennant-chasing Athletias, the story was printed that Mack did not dare let Walberg know when he was going to pitch. Knowing a day in advance, it was said, the big southpaw would sit up all night eating his finger nails, after which he would appear at the park pale and drawn.

That tale was grossly exaggerated. The reason for Walberg's worries during the last few years was his ownership of several stocks that were subject to violent ups and downs.

Just now George isn't worrying about his stocks. That stage has bassed. His stocks have to get better from now on because they couldn't be worse.

A McGraw Mistake

A McGraw Mistake
Rube is one of the long list of stars John McGraw passed up. McGraw paid $10,000 for a look at the Rube, back in 1923. The arrangement with Portland was that if John should decide to keep Walberg, he was to pay $20,000 more.

John kept the $20,000 and sent curve?"

The Rube didn't have any. But Mack didn't quit. He sent the Rube to Milwaukee to get one. And when George got back he had more curves than Mayor Jimmy Walker.

That was seven years ago—and the Rube won 20 games last year.

lot of courage. The fact that he seems to bitch his best when the club is behind testifies to his fighting ability.

Of course, he makes everybody nervous. Connie Mack never knows what to expect from him. More than a few of the furrows in the vertical Mackian mien have been plowed there while Mr. Mack sat on the edge of the bench, his scorecard in treinbling fingers watching Walberg wobble.

Mayor's Daughter And Girl Friend Give Up Herding

Midland girls may not be the best riders in what remains of the Old riders in what remains of the Old West—but a couple of them outlasted their horses last week.

Leonore Goodman, daughter of the mayor, and Edith King, daughter of Buck King, who lives on the Goldsmith place, 15 miles north and west of Odessa, decided to assist in driving a herd of four loads of mixed cattle designed for shipment. They rode with the cowpunchers to Odessa, but on the way back their mounts tired.

Leonore was riding her small bay horse, Tom Thumb, and Tommy grew so tired he got tempermental and lay down. The girls, in order to rest the horses, started walking, leading the horses. This failing to help Tom Thumb and his friend,
