Senate Passes Beck Penitentiary Centralization Bill

BECK BILL SUBSTITUTE FOR GRAVES

Vote Expected Today On Regulation Of Pipe Lines

AUSTIN, March 6. (AP)—The senate today finally passed the administration penitentiary centralization bill. The Beck bill will be substituted for the Graves House bill and procedure will be for the house to refuse to concur in the amendment. Such action would put penitentiary legislation in conference where it died during the fourth called session. The Beck bill was somewhat broader than in the last session of the Austin site plan, since it would set up a locating board to pick a site for the new industrial plant. The Beck bill would appropriate $1,500,000 for rehabilitation work behind the walls and on the farms and for an industrial unit to be located by a board. The Graves bill would authorize the expenditure of $400,000 for improving, enlarging and renovating existing properties without making any provision for an industrial unit away from the present owned prison properties. Vote On Pipe Lines Action on the bill to regulate oil pipe lines was expected to be taken soon after disposal of the prison bill, in the senate, having been set yesterday along with action on prisons and on the sulphur tax.

Three Placed On Campus Committee

Dr. Jno. B. Thomas, R. V. Lawrence and W. A. Yeager, members of the board of education, have been named by President Hill of the board to carry out the orders of the school board in having the high school grounds beautified. The members of the committee have had one meeting, and at that meeting decided to employ a landscape gardener to map out the grounds in a scientific manner, and make recommendations as to the proper landscaping of the entire grounds. The terracing of the grounds immediately in front of the building, the building of walks, and the planting of grass and trees will doubtless be among the plans for beautifying the campus.

Much Land Leased

This history of preparation in Midland county for potash development became tangible to the public only after 10,000 acres of the Jones ranch were leased for a core test, which was made in 1928. This test was sunk 2,000 feet. Afterward, during that year, another core test was made on a 14,000-acre lease. This was made in Ector county. More leasing followed, until a total of 60 sections was held. Blue prints show a proposed 35-foot-in-diameter shaft, concreted from top to bottom, and with machinery capable of lifting many tons of the crude salts daily. It is also shown on the prints that a refining plant on the top of the ground and separating units are proposed for separating potassium sulphate from the crude polyhalite.

To Compete With Nation

After completion of capitalization it is planned by officials of the Texas Potash Co. to compete with the entire country on shipment and marketing of potassium, potassium salts and by-products. The great acreage leased by the company is found in almost a solid rock, ranging from territory in southwest Midland county to a point slightly over in the western edge of Ector county and the south edge of Upton county. The company has been careful to keep all leases in good shape, and it is known that the leases are long term. Jones receives $19,000 annually for his lease. Full mineral rights are owned on all 60 sections. Almost in Solid Rock Location of the land is found mainly in block 41, townships 3 and 4 south, and in blocks 4 and 42, same townships. Early mining of potassium salts in this county is expected here. Homer R. Mitchell is president of the company, M. Agress vice-president, Wirt Davis, treasurer, and Tom G. Leachman secretary, all of Dallas.

VIOLENCE IS SLIGHT IN CITIES

Communists, Jobless Protest Against Unemployment

March 6. (UP)—Thousands of communists and jobless people gathered at major cities of the world today in mass demonstrations against unemployment. Already, scenes of violence were attendant to this "red Thursday," marking one of the most widespread displays in history. Police all over the world were on the alert to prevent bloodshed and rioting. Most of the larger cities of the United States were set for demonstrations. Police promised protection as long as there was peaceful speech-making. Four communists were arrested at Waterbury, Connecticut, when Rose Ross, 18, girl communist, attempted to lead unemployed brass workers in an attack on the city hall. Minor disturbances occurred in other cities.

DISPERSE CROWD

WASHINGTON, March 6. (AP)—Police used tear gas today to disperse gathering of "unemployment day" demonstrations in front of the White House. Several were injured in a struggle with police when Bert Lawrence, leader, climbed to the top of an iron fence separating the white house grounds from Pennsylvania avenue, and tried to speak. Police construed this as a violation of President Hoover's orders that there be no interference.

MOB DISPERSED

HOUSTON, March 6. (AP)—Several hundred men, many of them negroes, and a handful of women gathered today in front of the city hall here to listen to John Shealey Morgan, sailor, call for relief from the unemployment situation. Trapper Catches Manometer Here

A trapper on the Nail ranch did not have such good luck with his pelts, but he found something which, though he didn't know what it was he realized was far more valuable than a coyote hide. Bringing the long, calibrated instrument to Midland, he found out from oil men that he had a manometer, instrument for measuring gas pressure. The instrument has not been claimed. It is at the chamber of commerce, and may be had upon identification and payment of reward which goes to the trapper.

Woman has Snake In Her Stomach

ANNEMASSE, France. (UP)—Doctors are studying the strange case of a French peasant woman, 55 years of age, who is supposed to have been living for several months with a live snake inside of her. The woman consulted a doctor about violent stomach pains. He ordered an X-ray photograph and was astonished when the print showed clearly outlined in the woman's stomach the form of a snake 20 inches long. It is thought probably that the woman swallowed a tiny viper while drinking water from a mountain spring, and that the reptile is steadily growing.

ROTARIANS HEAR OF PROGRESS IN PLANE TRAFFIC

In a concise address, Phillip Shumway of the Safeway airlines told the Midland Rotary club today of the tremendous advances made in commercial aviation during the past two years, and outlined some of the steps which may be taken in the southwest within the near future. Shumway stated that this section of the country affords the greatest opportunity for development of the industry than any part of the nation, on account of its natural advantages.

Wednesday Ships In Terrific Gales Here

During the last two days flyers along this east-west route can fly as fast as they like or as slowly as they don't, to put it in the words of two who landed late Wednesday afternoon. A S-A-F-E Lockheed came in behind schedule, making no more than 65 miles an hour, bucking a terrific head wind which had kept Chester R. Bailes busy clear out of Sweetwater. This morning Bailes, with the wind to his tail, flew out of Midland with his nose on the horizon, making more than 165.

ARMY MEN COMING

Army personnel to be domiciled in Midland will arrive on the fifteenth for installation of the necessary equipment. Arrangements between the army and airport officials have been going on for more than a year. It was originally planned to create in Midland an army lease on five acres, which would be utilized for far less expensive facilities than those later decided to be provided. The Midland port is to be lighted, if wishes of the army and probable airline companies are met. Midland is meeting this afternoon to discuss this aspect of port improvement. Three towns between Fort Worth and El Paso have their fields lighted, have done so during the past year.

Other Ports Lighted

There are Abilene, Sweetwater and Big Spring. Big Spring will have a radio station installed by S-A-T (See ARMY PORT page 6)

EQUIPMENT TO START HERE SOON

Meeting Today Seeks To Arrange For Lighting

A campaign which started this afternoon seeks to raise $20,000 which would supplement $30,000 invested by W. H. Sloan in a projected incorporation which will assure for Sloan field all the improvements necessary to making Midland the hub of proposed radiating air lines of the future. Following a speech at the meeting by Phillip Shumway, Safeway airline official, enough money was subscribed to insure lighting of the port at once. A citizens committee will attempt to raise the $20,000 this afternoon and Friday. Stock certificates will be sold. Incorporation will be effected soon.

IN TERMS OF A DEMAND OF THE GOVERNMENT, PRESENTED HERE WEDNESDAY BY LIEUT. FOSTER

San Antonio, Midland will turn over to the army March 15 the radio and meteorological station being finished for that branch of the service on Sloan field. Painters will barely finish with the building by that time, Field-manager H. M. Bercherer said today.

The government will begin shipping radio and meteorological equipment at once, the army officer told Sloan field officials. He said Midland will have the only low wave radio station in the army. Relative to the hangar, only a requisition is needed before it will be shipped here for assembly, the lieutenant told Bercherer.

FAILURE IN THE OFFING

The news from the London naval conference continues to be discouraging. It is gradually becoming apparent that there is small chance for any real reduction in naval strength; indeed, any agreement that is reached is apt to result in more naval building rather than less.

This is doubly hard to take because the country had such high hopes when the conference ended. Ramsay MacDonald's stirring remark of last fall—that people everywhere must be prepared to "take risks for peace"—seems to have been forgotten.

Failure of the naval conference would be a dismal ending to a great work that had a brilliant beginning. But unless something is done pretty promptly, failure is just what we will get.

THE HEROISM OF THE NURSE

There seem to be certain classes of workers in this country from whom heroism can be expected almost as a matter of course.

The telephone girls, for instance, make up such a class. Hardly any story of a flood or cyclone is complete without the account of how some gallant "hello girl" stuck to her post in the face of danger in order to warn others.

In the Cleveland Clinic disaster dozens of nurses proved their selfless bravery—and many paid with their lives. Now, in the fire at Providence, where St. Joseph's Hospital was destroyed, the rescue of 168 patients is ascribed to the heroism of student and graduate nurses, working with nuns and policemen.

OUR FAVORITE FLOWER

The national poll by which the American Nature Association sought to learn what flower should be chosen as the country's national bloom has just ended, with the wild rose far in the lead. The wild rose got upwards of 490,000 out of the 1,067,672 votes cast; and the columbine, 150,000 votes behind, came in second.

It is rather interesting to note that such popular favorites as the violet, dogwood, the mountain laurel and the gladiolus lagged far in the rear, receiving only a fractional percentage of the total.

Whether we really need a national flower, and whether one can be chosen out of hand by popular vote, are other questions. For the moment, at least, the wild rose seems to have first call. And if this national poll induce a few Americans, this spring, to go hiking through the meadows and woods instead of motoring along the high-speed roads, it will have justified itself amply.

GETTING RID OF DETAILS

Every school boy is familiar with the copybook maxim that one should do things oneself if one wants to make sure that they are done properly.

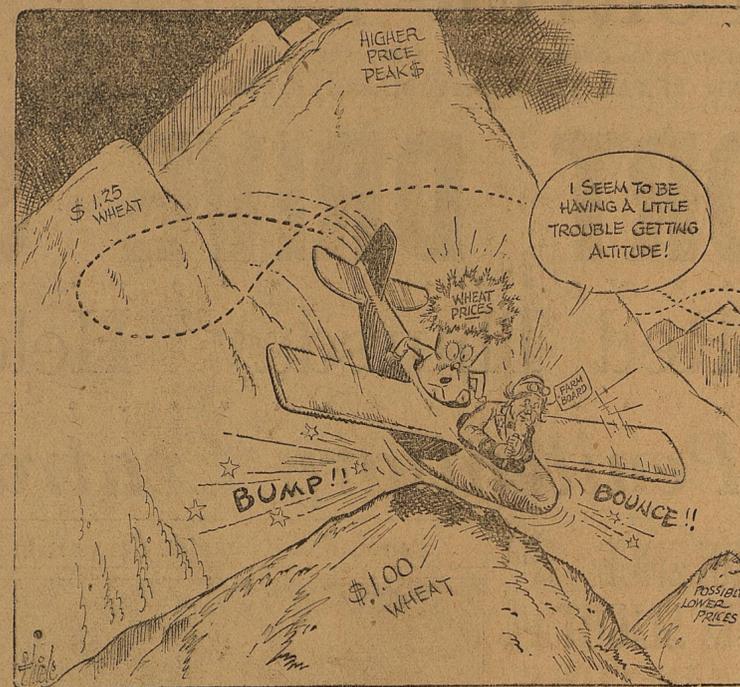

Modern business, however, steps on that maxim a little bit more firmly each year.

The current issue of The Golden Book quotes Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, as follows:

"I must confess that my system rests on the self-administration of 'Never do anything yourself that you can get someone else to do for you.'"

For the first young man holding his first job, of course, this is punk advice. But for the executive it is excellent. Many a good executive has been ruined because he did not know how to put the handling of details in the hands of his subordinates.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Hoover's Second Year as President Apt to Be Full of Problems—Prospective Failure of Naval Conference, Troubled Political Situation, May Mean Trouble.

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—President Herbert Hoover's first year in the White House having ended, it now becomes in order to look ahead and hazard a few guesses as to what his second year will be like.

Only the briefest survey is necessary to convince one that the president faces many grave problems in his second year.

Troublesome developments in politics, legislation, foreign affairs, business conditions and certain domestic issues seem certain to try the president's powers to the utmost during the next 12 months.

An outstanding example is furnished in the field of foreign relations by the London naval conference.

Reduction Not Likely

When this conference was announced, on the heels of President Hoover's call for international naval armament reduction, peace advocates cheered loudly. Now, however, reports from London indicate that chances for real naval armament reduction are remote. Persistent reports say that the American delegation has acted without advice from Hoover, making such suggestions as the one for a new $50,000,000 battleship. At any rate, if the conference fails to bring about reduction the administration will be robbed of its outstanding chance for prestige.

Then there is the political field. Congressional elections are coming, and if the election of a wet Democrat in Calvin Coolidge's strong Republican bailiwick in Massachusetts is any omen there is mighty little encouragement in it for President Hoover. Nor is there any other light on the horizon.

In addition, Chairman Claudius Huston of the Republican National Committee finds his resignation being predicted quite frequently by amateur critics. First he was made defendant in a mysterious $30,000 suit for repayment of a loan, and then he was disclosed as a former lobbyist for one of the big corporations in connection with Muscle Shoals. None of this, of course, makes Mr. Hoover's political outlook any rosier.

And, incidentally, you might notice that Mr. Coolidge's cross-country tour is arousing considerable political gossip of an unsettling nature. The legislative situation is also cloudy. The rambunctiousness of the Senate progressives, coming as it does in an election year, indicates that they believe their people back home support their views. The tariff bill is still pending, with Hoover's position still undisclosed. Old Guard Republicans, who never did love Hoover, were further riled when he failed to consult them on the Hughes appointment. Hoover, the Old Guard and the progressives, in fact, make a rather remarkable political triangle.

Aside from the tariff, the leading domestic issues would seem to be power, prohibition and farm relief. The power issue is apt to grow thornier. Senator Couzens, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, says the Federal Power Commission offers "one of the rottenest exhibitions of government I ever heard of," and Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, Hoover's close personal friend, seems headed for trouble through his apparent policy of delivering Boulder Dam power to private utilities instead of municipalities.

Prohibition is an equally troublesome issue. Three such prominent gays as Senator Borah, Senator Norris and Senator Wheeler are demanding an investigation of the prohibition enforcement organization from top to bottom. Congress is virtually ignoring Hoover's Crime Commission's enforcement recommendations, except for the old plan to transfer enforcement from the Treasury to the Justice Department. This commission, too, seems to be sinking back into obscurity.

Farm Issue Not so Bad Farm relief is a brighter issue than the others, even though the prices of wheat and cotton are still falling. That, of course, isn't Hoover's fault, although some farmers may blame him.

The business situation likewise is gradually improving, and though the slump of last fall damaged a special pride of Hoover prestige, the effects of this are not apt to cut much figure during the second presidential year. The prospective deficit in governmental finances, however, is not a cheering sign.

On top of all this, various of the president's appointments have met with opposition—including, for example, the appointment of an army man, Major General Herbert Crosby, as District of Columbia commissioner.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

new locations; but all who went through the Ranger boom will shake their heads when they go to Penwell, Badger or Hilton. There is still something lacking. The Ector county oil field needs a good old fashioned oil field rain on it, to produce old fashioned oil field mud. The dust that is prevalent may be okay for some, but the old timers of the oil field towns want to see mud around the Ector county pool.

Vaccinations are taking. Baxley's arm looks like somebody will be soliciting ads for Sunday's paper. All are requested to have their copy ready in case the editor sends me out after the ads for that day.

I offered a remedy yesterday, although as yet I have had no communication from the legislature or any state officials, to give all who desire sanity trials an opportunity to prove that they are insane, then be transferred to the asylum.

This would give the legislature an opportunity to turn from the prison building program to a similar one for state asylums, because I believe that the prison population would be decreased by 50 per cent if all who desire sanity trials won their cases.

By bringing up a topic of asylum building and expansion, with several bills to centralize near Austin, or to improve present plants wherever they are, a sixth extra session of the legislature could be called, thus making a legislators job a full time proposition, and making his per diem an every day item.

Murder Backstairs

By ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON" ETC. ©1930 by NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The crime: Doris Matthews, pretty English lady's maid, murdered Friday night in summerhouse by blow on head from heavy perfume flask; body dumped into lake on estate of millionaire Berkeleys.

Detectives Bonnie Dundee, guest of Dick Berkeley at time of crime, and discoverer of body at sunrise swimming party; Captain Strawn of the Hamilton Homicide Squad.

Members of household: Mrs. George Berkeley, social climber; George Berkeley, opposed to his daughter's marriage to Seymour Crosby; New York society widower, under a cloud in the eyes of police, but a close friend of Mrs. Letitia Lambert; social secretary to Mrs. Berkeley.

Clorinda Berkeley, engaged to Crosby, but not in love with him; observed stealing out of house Friday night by Dundee.

Gigi Berkeley, 15, who unaccountably sprinkled all guests Friday night from flask of perfume procured by Crosby to her mother.

Dick Berkeley, drunk Friday night; infatuated with Doris; had forced her to agree to meet him later Friday night, and known by Dundee to have been missing from his room.

Wickett, butler, formerly in employ of both Mrs. Lambert and Crosby.

Eugene Arnold, chauffeur, engaged to Doris.

Clorinda and Dick are first suspects. Strawn sends Dundee to find if Dick is in his room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

As Dundee let himself into the house by the front door, hoping to evade the hysterical questions of the servants, who must have noted the arrival of the police cars, the door leading into the backstairs quarters was torn open and a young man in chauffeur's uniform lunged toward him, pausing only long enough to slam the door viciously in the face of a maid who was pressing forward inquisitively.

"Excuse me, sir!" the chauffeur panted. "But will you tell me what's up? What are the police doing here? Della, the upstairs maid, told me Doris didn't sleep in her room last night. It's not true, is it? Nothing's happened to Doris! The police aren't here about her, are they, sir?"

He was almost sobbing, and one big, freckled hand kept running distractedly through his curly dark hair.

When Dundee hesitated to answer, the chauffeur so far forgot himself as to seize the guest's arm and shake it frenziedly. "For God's sake, sir, why won't you tell me? I'm Arnold—Eugene Arnold, the Berkeley chauffeur, and I'm engaged to be married to Doris. I have a right to ask if anything's happened to her—"

"I'm sorry, Arnold," Dundee said slowly, "but I can't speak for the police. Will you please wait as quietly as possible in the servant's sitting room until Captain Strawn calls for you? And I think it would be wise for you not to talk—"

"Then it is Doris!" Arnold interrupted, his voice going heavy and dull with despair. Then apparently realization swept over him. His freckled, pleasant young face flamed with anger. "Did she elope with Dick Berkeley, sir? Is that what the row's about? For God's sake, tell me!"

"Sorry, but I'm afraid I can't tell you anything, Arnold," Dundee said quietly, and started up the stairs.

"Gone! With that drunken rotter!" Arnold groaned, and lurched blindly toward the back-hall door. But before he disappeared Dundee heard him vow, with terrible intensity: "I'll find him and kill him if I have to hunt all over the world for him!"

"A violent young man," Dundee commented wearily to himself, as he plodded upstairs.

He hoped to gain the third floor without further interruption, but as he reached the second Clorinda Berkeley stepped forward. She had changed from bathing suit to a morning dress of dark-green jersey, a color which made her pallor quite ghastly.

"Why didn't you tell him that Doris had committed suicide?" she demanded coldly. "I imagine he would rather have had the news from you than from a policeman."

"Because I don't know that Doris committed suicide," Dundee answered watching the beautiful, somber face keenly.

"Don't quibble with me!" she retorted, in a low, arrogant voice. "Gigi confessed to me on the way to the house that she recognized the 'mermaid' in the lake, and I watched from my window as you dived for the body and took it into the summerhouse."

"Where is Gigi now? Why aren't you with her?" Dundee asked sharply.

"You don't like me, do you?" Clorinda asked, with amazing irrelevance. "So few people do! . . . Gigi preferred to be consoled by Mrs. Lambert, as I was busy being rather sick at my stomach. Doris was one of the few people who liked me, and—I was very fond of Doris. I can't imagine why she should commit suicide, unless—"

"Why didn't you tell me Doris had committed suicide?" she demanded coldly.

She broke off abruptly, and Dundee saw a flicker of quickly controlled fear in her magnificent black eyes.

"I'm rather anxious to get into my clothes," Dundee excused himself curtly. Not for him, in the character of house guest in Clorinda Berkeley home, to probe the meaning of that "unless."

"By the way, Miss Berkeley, do your father and mother know yet?"

"No, I didn't fancy the task," Clorinda retorted coolly. "There's nothing Mother enjoys so much as a good fit of hysterics, and Father and I are not on confidential terms just now," she added, with bitter humor.

"I see the police have arrived. They'll probably enjoy the sensation, I shouldn't say."

Dundee proceeded up the stairs, grateful to Mrs. Lambert and Gigi for not bursting out upon him with questions he could not answer. Odd that Gigi should prefer Mrs. Lambert to her mother, though Dundee could not but be glad that it was the social secretary's gentle understating which was now coping with the high-strung little girl's shocked nerves.

He went to his own room, thence by way of the bathroom, to Dick Berkeley's. As he had expected and feared, the missing man had not returned. For the first time he tried the door leading into the hall. It was locked. Doubtless Dick had pocketed the key, to prevent his absence being discovered by anyone but Dundee, who had heard him make the rendezvous with Doris and who he must have thought, could be depended upon now to give him away. But now, Dundee reflected grimly, it was no longer a question of shielding a friend engaged in an intrigue with a pretty servant. Doris Matthews had been murdered, and the hounds of the law would have to be set upon Dick Berkeley's trail.

Ten minutes later, decently clothed and sketchily shaved, Dundee sped down the backstairs and out of the house. A frightened cook and housemaid had peeped out at him, but he had given them no time to question him.

The machine of the law had been set in motion during his absence. Captain Strawn and the coroner, Dr. Price, whom he had met during the investigation into the Rhodes House murders, were bending over the body of the dead girl, still stretched upon the curved bench of the summerhouse. The finger-print expert, Caraway, was already busy with his black powder and camera. Wickett, the butler, still stood outside the little arbor, but Seymour Crosby was missing from the gruesome picture. A knot of uniformed policemen and plainclothes detectives stood on the lake's edge, awaiting instructions from the chief of the homicide squad.

"Well?" Strawn growled. "Shoot! We've got to get busy."

"You can give out that I am an amateur criminologist, engaged in research preparatory to writing books on the subject—which is strictly true, by the way; that I have studied Scotland Yard methods and that I was able to render you valuable aid in solving the Rhodes House murders. . . . Otherwise, Chief, I'll have to resign now—with deep regret."

An angry report trembled on Strawn's lips, but he bit it back, and considered scowlingly. At last he capitulated grumpily:

"All right, Dundee! You know I need you, but I'm warning you now that I'm in charge of this case, and I won't have you getting too big for your breeches. . . . Wickett!"

And the hunt was on.

secret of your official connection with the police?" Strawn suggested. "If this things isn't quickly cleared up by a confession from Dick Berkeley and develops into a first-class mystery, we'll need Wickett as an ally. No one knows as much about the family like this as its butler, and besides, he can keep the coast clear of other servants while you snoop around in the bedrooms and such—"

"Just a minute, chief!" Dundee interrupted. "I agree with you that I might be of infinitely more value as a trusted guest, rather than as a detective, but—hang it all, I am a guest here, and I simply can't do it—snoop around in the bedrooms as you suggest—"

"Resigning from the force, because a friend of yours is mixed up in this, Dundee?" Strawn asked, a sneer twisting his broad, thick mouth.

"I don't think you mean that, Captain Strawn," Dundee answered quietly. "I want to be on the case, but I'd rather be open and above-board about it."

"And jeopardize your future usefulness on the homicide squad? Your uncle, the police commissioner, and I agreed after the Rhodes House murders that you could serve us best by not getting yourself tagged as what the people call a 'common detective!' With the education and social advantages you've had you can move in circles not open to the rest of us—"

"I know the argument, and I've been willing to be of service in any way possible," Dundee interrupted, "but in this instance I can't bring myself to assist hospitality so flagrantly. There's another thing, too: as a guest, presumably under police surveillance as much as any other person in the house, I should have little chance to be of any real use to you. I couldn't be secreted behind screens while you were conducting your investigation, as I was at the Rhodes House, and not even Wickett's complicity could long cover my snooping from servants or members of the family. But if you want my official connection with the homicide squad to be kept dark, I have a suggestion to make."

"Well?" Strawn growled. "Shoot! We've got to get busy."

"You can give out that I am an amateur criminologist, engaged in research preparatory to writing books on the subject—which is strictly true, by the way; that I have studied Scotland Yard methods and that I was able to render you valuable aid in solving the Rhodes House murders. . . . ANOTHER FISH STORY

LESLIE, Ind. (UP)—Here's an addition to your fish story collection. Frank Cons and Ward Wilbur report the capture of a five pound pickerel in Pleasant Lake recently.

The fish was girded with a rubber ring of the type used on fruit jars, the ring being deeply imbedded in the flesh just back of the gills.

The longest river in the world is the Amazon, in South America, which is 4000 miles long.

'Good-Night'—Words of Magic By Fanny Darrell

GOOD NIGHT! Beneath starry skies, in stately mansion and humble cottage, in a tiny village and in a mighty metropolis, these words are being softly spoken in lingering, tender whispers that hold in them the sorrow of parting and the eternal hope of an even more marvelous tomorrow, a tomorrow that will not be marred by the fever of farewell.

Good Night! At the end of a day of toil, of ever increasing care and perplexity, there is a thought of peace and rest and surcease from the weary round when we speak those words to those about us. Good Night! The gateway to happy dreams and a glad tomorrow. The baby slumbering in its cradle smiles as mother gently kisses its rosebud mouth and whispers her treasure to rest.

To Beauty saying "Good Night" to her Beloved, there is no sweeter, sadder moment than that when he is about to leave her. Not for very long, of course, but somehow there is a poignancy in parting that seems for a moment to blot out her world of happiness. Perhaps Beauty has been capricious, has spoken words of discontent or bitterness. But at the first whispered words of farewell, she knows that there can be no other but her Beloved, no thrill like the sound of his voice whispering "Good Night" into the dusky forest of her hair, while all around the world is hushed. Love the alchemist has made those two words a magic talisman that changes heartache to happiness, that makes the night brighter than day.

G. A. Changes Meeting Day

The Girls Auxiliary met Wednesday afternoon at the Baptist church for a program and business discussion.

The meeting was opened with the song, "God will Take Care of You." A report was heard concerning new members and old, and two new members, Misses Bessie Flournoy and Margaret Scott, were taken into the organization.

Miss Lorena Gann played a piano solo, and Mrs. C. C. Hiett made an interesting talk and told a story.

In the business session, it was planned to have a social Monday night of next week.

Because a few of the members could not meet on Wednesday, the day of meeting was changed to Monday.

Present were Misses Bessie Flournoy, Margaret Scott, Theo Cosper, Helen Foster, Juanita Cox, Barbara Gann, Lorena Gann, Dorothy Dunagan, LeVerne Ashmore, Nola Fae Meadows, Luella Cobb, Laura Shelburne, Janie McMullan, and Mrs. Hiett.

WILL GIVE PLAY

"Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick" is the title of the play to be given Friday night at the Cotton Flat school.

The school gave an excellent play a few months ago, and this one promises to be an entertaining comedy, according to Mrs. Marshall Wheeler, director.

R. E. Witty of Pecos was in Midland Wednesday.

There's practically the allure of veiled eyes in the new brimmed hats of straw lace which are half-revealing, half-concealing.

This Florence Walton model is made of horsehair braid, in gleaming brown and the sheen of the wearer's hair adds its luster to the general effect. The rather high crown is trimmed with a novel little rouleau of beige feathers and the picture brim falls gracefully in deep all-around length.

Mmes. J. H. Jamison, B. C. Girdley and J. J. Kerby were hostesses to the members and guests of Mrs. George F. Brown's Bible class at a social Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jamison, West Wall street.

A devotional preceded the social hour.

The St. Patrick motif was carried out in detail, with decorations of shamrocks here and there and shamrock favors.

Several unique contests and games were played, some of which caused much merriment.

In one contest, dimes were passed to each one present. Ten questions were asked, the answers to be found on the dimes.

At another, the women practiced art, with one guest drawing a head, another a body, and another the limbs, no one knowing what the other had chosen to draw, whether animal or human. When the pictures were completed some presented the head of a man, an animal body and the feet of a fowl.

After the contests, Mrs. J. H. Jamison and Mrs. W. A. McCall sang "Daisies Won't Tell."

Party plates were passed to the guests and members of the class.

NEW SOVIET CREDIT PLAN DOES AWAY WITH MONEY SAYS A DISPATCH FROM UNITED PRESS WRITER IN FAR MOSCOW

By EUGENE LYONS
United Press Staff Correspondent

MOSCOW, March 6. (UP)—Book-keeping will replace billions of rubles' worth of cash transactions under a far-reaching business reform worked out by the Commissariat of Finance and just approved by the Council of People's Commissars.

Credit accounts between different State and co-operative institutions and business organizations, requiring periodical balancing through cash deliveries, have been abolished with one stroke of the official pen.

All such accounts will hereafter be made only through the State banks, where sales and purchases will be recorded and checked against each other. Their balancing will thus be a matter of book-keeping, the actual currency needed being limited to an absolute minimum.

The official decree introducing the new procedure declares that it is intended to decrease greatly the need for currency emissions. Since nearly 90 per cent of the total business in the Soviet Union, whether in manufacture or in wholesale and retail distribution, is handled by government and co-operative institutions, the amount of currency involved is stupendous.

Other schemes for limiting the amount of paper rubles in circulation are under discussion and likely to be adopted in the near future. One of these contemplates the elimination of all cash in the payment of wages to all grades of workers. Instead of receiving cash, they are to be credited with the wages in a savings bank and will draw against it as needed, through checks or in cash.

One proposal made here seriously and commented upon favorably by some economists would almost eliminate the necessity for money altogether. Workers would receive a card or booklet where their earnings would be credited. All their purchases anywhere in the Soviet Union would merely be debited on this card or booklet. Since the employers as well as the shops are really the same persons—namely, the government—the millionfold transactions again would be reduced to book-keeping, with practically no cash required.

The new credit system as well as the proposed wage readjustments is causing a day feverishly desired by Communists—a day when money would not be used at all.

TANLAC FREES JOHN BURKHARDT OF STOMACH TROUBLES

Flat on Back, Super Medicine Puts Him Back on Job

In a few days quicker than you ever thought possible—that super medicine Tanlac starts to prove its merit. And amazing though it may seem, the more stubborn and unyielding the case may be, the more remarkable is the work that Tanlac does in straightening out weak disordered stomachs. It's a real medicine formulated according to modern medical science—that's why—not just a "patent medicine" that makes a lot of ridiculous claims to cure everything. Tanlac was prepared for the specific purpose of strengthening the ailing organs of digestion and because every ingredient in it is designed for helping the good work along, it has won easy victories where everything else has failed. And remember this, when stomach troubles are ended you'll be absolutely amazed at the way bowel troubles, constipation, dizziness, headaches, and even rheumatism usually disappear completely. Tanlac has brought glorious new health to hundreds right here in this town. Among the recent cases is Mr. John Burkhardt who says: "I was flat on my back when I started taking Tanlac. A few doses began to improve my appetite, my digestion grew better and I was soon back on the job." Every mail brings enthusiastic letters of testimonial—52,000,000 bottles have been sold. Guaranteed by all the druggists so accept no substitute.

AT LIONS CLUB MEETING

Dr. Ryan who is a Rotarian showed wisdom in attending the Lions luncheon yesterday. He heard Judge Klapproth give a lecture on the independence of Texas, how it came about and what for. Klapproth was historically accurate and spoke in a manner that was dignified and convincing. Other doctors also showed wisdom in attending the meeting. There were Dr. J. B. Thomas, Dr. Tom C. Bone and Dr. A. M. Cant looking comfortable and interested. When this flock of doctors run out of tensils to slip off they can root for the Lone Star state, and pretty soon there will be more people here and more tensils. And by the same token business ought to improve. Hoporable Satterwhite sat at the speakers table but Lion President Ulmer shut him off before he had a chance to speak which was a pity as Lee always has something to say that is impressive. Ulmer however explained that the program was of such an unusual length that there would be no time that could be allotted to him. With that the Lions had to be satisfied.

Leslie Boone, who is a most remarkably clever speaker, took the English language in hand and made it do its tricks, that is, if you want to be facetious, made it do its stuff. Ray Hyatt conducted the singing and while this writer is not a judge it sounded good. Up to the present bulletin there is no dissenting vote except Chunky Cowden's. He remarked that he could sing only in the Indian language and Ray is no Indian, Chunky used to dance around a totem pole. That's where he learned to sing. Around April twenty-first there will be a historical lecture at the Lions luncheon that will further serve to consolidate the patriotic sentiment regarding the importance of Texas as the greatest addition to the United States since Uncle Sam first began to accumulate territory out of which he has made a country that is the most important that the sun of progress now shines upon, from every point of view, commercial, artistic, religious and pugilistic.

houses for business transactions, obviating the necessity for currency, is certainly not new. It is used to a large extent in the United States and other highly developed countries, usually by means of checks. In the foreign trade of most countries the idea is even more definitely used; the banks as intermediaries eliminate the necessity for shipments of specie except to cover balances for the country as a whole. But as applied here to the entire internal business of a large nation the scheme is rather startling. Moreover, in Russia bank checks are practically unknown to the general population. It is still a western fad which the masses do not quite understand or trust. The introduction of a check system on a large scale, perhaps displacing printed rubles to an enormous extent, will require considerable explanation and education of the public.

SIMPLE BUT EFFECTIVE

PARIS (UP)—The French Touring Club organized a national competition to find a way to end the noise of hotel corridors. The winner of the prize, a 500-mile railroad pass, Miss Madeleine Ladeull, suggested a simple, printed card for posting in all hotels: "Silence by each one assures the rest of all."

KONJOLA WINS TRIUMPHS EVERY DAY EVERYWHERE

New And Different Medicine Welcomes Any Test—Results Are What Count

MR. RAYMOND SCHMIDT

Results are what count; more words and promises mean nothing. Konjola has won fame and friends just by making good, and that is what the medicine sufferers want and should have. Imagine the joy of Mr. Raymond Schmidt, R. F. D. No. 1, Sedalia, Mo., when he was able to say:

"Though I know it to be true I find it hard to believe Konjola in just three months, ended my sufferings of nine years duration. For that long time I suffered from indigestion, constipation, kidney trouble and catarrh. No food agreed with me; every night I had to get up numerous times, and the catarrh certainly added to my misery. In those nine years I tried no end of medicine and treatments, and everyone was a miserable failure. But how different with Konjola! Week by week I grew better, and in three months I was my old self again. To me Konjola is the most wonderful medicine in the world, and I recommend it with all my heart."

Konjola is sold in Midland at Mayes Young drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Tex. Woman Elected To Jury of Award

AUSTIN, Texas, March 4.—(UP)—Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has received notice of her appointment as one of a committee of nine distinguished women on the "jury of award" of the National League of Woman Voters. Members of the jury have been selected because of outstanding contributions to the women's movement in suffrage campaigns, and since woman gained the ballot in 1920. They have been selected from the fields of politics, social welfare, literary and legislative service.

Their task will be to pass upon nominations for the national roll of honor, to honor the accomplishments and influences of outstanding women of the nation. The movement is a part of the memorial planned by the league on its tenth anniversary. They will report selections for the honor roll May 1, 1930, at the anniversary convention in Louisville.

Establishment of a permanent fund of $250,000, from the income of which the work of the league would be supported as the channel through which the work of the pioneers and those who came after them would be carried on, is a part of the memorial plan.

Leading workers in the National American Woman Suffrage Association and the League of Women Voters, would be eligible for the honor roll.

Other members of the jury include: Mrs. Emily Newell Eldar of Missouri; Mrs. Ella Stewart, chairman of Illinois; Mrs. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Elizabeth Claypool Earl of Indiana; Mrs. Frank Gibson of California; Dr. Alice Hamilton of Massachusetts; Mrs. James Paige of Minnesota, and Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher of Vermont.

Book Potentials Drop Says Umpire

BIG SPRING.—(AP)—The book potential of oil wells producing from two deep pay horizons in Howard and Glasscock counties dropped nearly 4,000 barrels from Feb. 1 to March 1, according to figures released by E. E. Andrews, proration umpire, who placed the allowable output from two deep pay levels at 25,330 barrels daily during March.

The total potential dropped from 59,869 barrels daily to 54,924 barrels daily. From the 3,000 feet pay along the decrease in potential was from 19,863 barrels daily to 17,140 barrels daily and the 2,200 feet pay potential dropped from 38,806 barrels to 37,784 barrels.

Pipe line companies serving the area have agreed to take a maximum of 27,000 barrels daily during the month of March. Faced with the necessity of holding all production, including that from 1,500 feet, 1,800 feet and 2,500 feet, within that limit, the allowable production of producers in the deep prorated pays was held to 25 per cent of their potential, the figures reveal.

BABY ALLIGATORS FOUND FAR FROM NATIVE HAUNT KINSTON, N. C., March 6. Shortest History of World Published By London Herald; Done By Poet Brit on

LONDON, March 6. (UP).—"A Very Short History of the World" has been written for the London labor newspaper "The Daily Herald" by Osbert Sitwell, the British poet. It is a really short history. It is in full as follows:

Civilization had run its course. Europe had civilized America, America Asia, Asia Africa. Wild animals had been everywhere exterminated and resources had been developed.

Samuel Butler's theory that poverty was a disease had long been accepted, and with no thought for the morrow, the rich had allowed the poor, as well as the unfit to be sterilized. Consequently the servant problem became so acute that the rich nearly died out, and in the next generation there were not even enough workers to make money for the rich.

Soon only doctors, scientists and newspaper proprietors were allowed to beget children. These children, too, had their human ambitions. They had often been told by their teachers that races which did not wipe one another out became degenerate, that the only true humor was to be found in war, and that the evils that ensued on a long era of peace were intolerable. So they grew up to invent new methods of long-distance killing—and as no suffering was inflicted on themselves—it ceased to be cruel.

Women now not only greatly outnumbered men, but were so well educated and clever that they were too busily engaged in writing novels and pursuing political careers to cook and bear children. Civilization spread, refinement increased, until there were only two male children left in the world.

They grew up, were men—the only men—and quarrelled. In this emergency the women were splendid. They said, "Very natural in a man," and delivered harangues of more than ordinary eloquence. Only one woman demurred, saying, "This is not war, but murder." The men did not falter, but proceeded to adjust their death-machines. One said: "If it is murder, it's a murder to end murder." And the other side: "This will be a fight to a finish." And it was.

airline, which will give that port an enviable position as regards enticing of other lines to build into that place as terminus for shuttle systems. Competition between Midland Big Spring and Sweetwater is not a secret, and visiting airmen say there is little besides physical difference to give either of these towns a margin over either of the other two.

Army men have said Midland is to get a connection with the Middle South Atlantic route across the continent from San Antonio, but it has been disclosed that lighting of the Midland airport will be necessary before such a junction would be made.

BRITISH BID FOR ALL SPEED RECORDS THIS YEAR

Chicago Will Invite Texas High Winner When Final Games Are Over

KAY DON ON WAY TO U. S. WITH NEW SUPER-AUTO; SEAGRAVE TO FOLLOW WITH NEW SPEED BOAT

By PAUL HARRISON

NEW YORK, March 7.—Britania already rules the speedways of air and land, but this year will mark her strongest bid for complete supremacy of fast travel by motor car, airplane and motor boat.

Kay Don, famed English racer, is on his way to Florida with his Silver Bullet to try to break the record made last year by Sir H. O. D. Seagrave. The latter speed king, who was knighted for his 231-mile-an-hour dash in the Golden Arrow, now has turned his attention to motor boating and by the end of this month will be ready to battle for Gar Wood's mark of 93 miles an hour. And the British Schneider Cup team already is experimenting with new seaplanes which should shatter their own record of 375 miles.

Vast fortunes have been spent by individual sportsmen, manufacturers, and the British government itself toward setting new records and then trying to break them. Kay Don's new car, for instance, cost about $100,000 and many months of careful designing, construction and adjustment.

Yet the most expensive automobile in the world will have a useful life of only a few minutes! A force which might spin the body around. This is the first of the giant racing cars to employ specially designed engines. The Golden Arrow, and even Malcolm Campbell's once-famous Blue Bird, were fitted with engines made for racing seaplanes. The Silver Bullet has two twelve-cylinder V-shaped engines developed 2,000 horsepower each, although weighing only 1000 pounds.

Stabilized by Aerial Rudders
Two huge radiators in the nose will be filled with ice, and water will circulate through them while the car is speeding. The designers are reluctant to promise any speed in excess of 250 miles an hour, but unofficially the car is rated as being capable of 275 miles.

Kay Don will not shift out of low gear until he reaches a speed of 125 miles an hour, and he will go into high gear only when he is tearing along at 200. By this time the car will be guided and stabilized as much by the aerial rudder at the rear as by the front wheels. And were it not for the downward, sloping nose of the Silver Bullet, the leading wheels would rise from the ground and throw it completely out of control. The same effect is obtained by the depressing plane at the tail, for if the rear wheels were not held securely to the ground they would spin ineffectually in the sand.

Seagrave, content with the performance of his Golden Arrow, now is building the world's most powerful racing boat and will bring it to the United States for the international contest at Detroit. If figures mean anything, he should easily better the record set by Gar Wood, for his present Miss England is four times as powerful as her predecessor, which proved only eleven miles slower than Wood's craft.

The English racer apparently is still satisfied with airplane motors, for Miss England will be fitted with two Rolls-Royce engines built for the Schneider Cup races. They will develop 4,000 horsepower, the same force and speed as those in Kay Don's racing car.

Streamline Construction
Particular attention is being paid this year to streamlining and strength of construction. Steel and duraluminum is being used for the hull of Miss England, and despite her larger motors she will be lighter in weight.

Meanwhile the Royal Aero Club, with the cooperation of the Air Ministry, is continuing its efforts to hold the air speed honors in England, where they have rested since 1927. The Schneider Cup trials, held at Cowes on September 7, 1929, were won by Flying Officer Waghorn at 328 miles an hour. But Major A. H. Orlebar of the British team later raised the record to 357.7 miles.

Designers now are confident that a 400-mile-an-hour seaplane will be evolved, and that the next trophy races will leave other nations a mark to shoot at for many years to come.

INTEREST IS CAUSE ATHENS' GREAT PLAY LAST YEAR

CHICAGO, March 7.—Finals of the Texas state high school basketball tournament are being awaited with great interest because of the victory of the great Athens team in the University of Chicago national basketball interscholastic last year. As soon as Manager H. O. Crisler of the Chicago tournament is notified as to the winner of the Texas tournament, Saturday, he will wire an invitation to compete.

The Athens "Hornets" gave one on the greatest exhibitions of basketball ever shown in the tournament when it went through to the title last year. Coach Kitts' team defeated several of the best combinations in the tournament and even in the final game was never in much danger though Classen high of Oklahoma City was a clever team. The victory of Athens was the first for the far south in the tournament, although that section has placed more teams in the semi-finals in recent years than any other.

The first teams invited to enter the tournament, Robert E. Lee of Jacksonville, Fla., champions of the "Big Ten," and Jena, Louisiana champions, have accepted. Forty teams will be selected for the competition.

PROFITABLE RABBIT WAR

WASHINGTON, March 7. (UP).—War against the jack rabbit last year in the West netted more than 8,000,000 skins and a profit for farmers and stockmen from the sale of pelts of about $2,000,000. Control operations against injurious rabbits are conducted by the Bureau of Biological Survey of the Agriculture Department. Jack rabbits are particularly destructive to alfalfa, range grasses and fruit trees. They also destroy cotton plants in the southwest and in the northwest ruin large quantities of stacked hay during the winter.

AGAIN KONJOLA GIVES PROOF OF AMAZING POWER

Ten Years Of Rheumatism Are Ended When New Medicine Is Given A Chance.

MRS. G. H. COLEMAN

What cheer and encouragement are to be found in the many victories of Konjola, the new and different medicine of 32 ingredients. Take, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mrs. G. H. Coleman, R. F. D. No. 3, Ft. Smith, Ark. Imagine her happiness when she was able to say:

"When I look back and think how I suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble for ten years I can hardly believe that I am well and happy as I am today. And all this glorious change is due to Konjola. For ten years I endured awful agonies. At times the pain in my limbs was so severe that I could not get around. Every night I was up many times, and the loss of sleep and rest told on my general health. A friend urged me to try Konjola, and what good advice that proved to be. In four weeks I was without a sign of rheumatism, and my kidneys were as good as ever. No wonder Konjola is the most talked of medicine in America. It should be in every home throughout the land."

SUP. LACKEY RETURNS FROM N. E. A. MEET

Superintendent W. W. Lackey returned from a meeting of the National Educational Association Tuesday morning. Approximately two thousand people attended this meeting from all parts of the United States. About forty addresses from the leading educators of the nation were heard. Among the speakers was Hon. Ruth Bryan Owens, daughter of late Jennings Bryan and congressman from Florida.

The Texas delegation was headed by Mr. Lackey and numbered about one hundred and seventy-five superintendents, principals and supervisors. One hundred of these went by special train through New Orleans, Birmingham, Cincinnati, and Philadelphia to Atlantic City. The return trip was through Washington, D. C. and Atlanta, Georgia.

Among the patriotic shrines visited by the delegation were the cemetery at New Orleans, Independence Hall and Valley Forge in Philadelphia, Mount Vernon, Arlington and Christ Church in Alexandria, the capitol and library of Congress, and Washington.

N. E. A.

I bet if the N. E. A. Convention had been anywhere else than Atlantic City Mr. Lackey would not have gone. You've read about Atlantic City, haven't you? No? Well, I'll tell you about it.

Atlantic City is famous for its beautiful bathing beauties (Of course, they don't know how to swim. How silly of you!) These so-called bathing beauties are always lingering around with life-guards convention delegates, or mere beach lizards. So much for that.

Now, I'll tell you about the N. E. A. Convention. Do you know what N. E. A. means? No? Well, I'll tell you. N—Not what it's cracked up to be. That's what Mr. Lackey thought of Atlantic City. E—Even that negro was tired of pushing Mr. Lackey around. A—Atlantic Ocean—"What a grand success," thought Mr. Lackey.

Only one thing is uncertain to me—and that is this—Did Mr. Lackey go in swimming?

MIDLAND-STANTON DEBATE

According to Mr. Cotner, our debating coach, the speech made by Ralph Hallman at Stanton on Tuesday night, may compare with the great speech put forward by Webster eighty years ago. Ralph's speech was fiery and full of steam in the debate against the Sterling Plan. Resolved, That the Sterling Plan for financing a state system of highways in Texas should not be adopted. Was the question debated by Ralph and his colleague, Herman Walker. Though our team lost by a vote of two to one, we do not think that the loss was a bad one but realize the bright prospects for future debating.

BENEFITS DERIVED FROM ATHLETIC SPORTS

By Leland Murphy.

There are innumerable benefits that are derived from athletic sports. The physical benefits are of course the most commonly recognized. The hard training that precedes any athletic event improves the development and condition of every organ used. It makes fatigue less common; it clears away the fog in your brain; and the dyspepsia in your stomach. The training taken in football especially, develops every muscle in the body and gives the boy an all around development.

There are mental benefits to be derived from athletic sports as well as physical benefits. The brain is developed in football by the signals. If you happen to be the quarterback, a quarterback has to keep his head about him and call the signals fast, with as great a variety of plays as possible to keep his opponents baffled.

The brain is developed in athletic sports when an unseasoned unexpected events occurs. The player is often called upon to think quickly and act quickly, for the whole game may depend upon the acts of that one person.

The will power is also developed in athletic sports. A player is often called upon to use his will power if he is to keep training.

ANNUAL NEWS

Work on the "Catoico" is progressing rapidly. By Saturday, the staff hopes to have all individual class pictures mounted and mailed to the engravers. Sophomore panels were completed on Thursday afternoon.

Group pictures of organizations were finished on Friday morning. The only ones that have not been sent to the engraver are those of the orchestra, the pep squad, and the debating club.

The actual pages of the book have been numbered and the plan of the book has been made.

Practically all typewritten copy is ready for the printer, and can be sent just as soon as proofs are received from the engraver.

THE TATTLE

Well, one more load off our minds, now that six weeks' tests are over. It seems we all resolve to study hard for next six weeks, but most of us fall back in our old way of doing things.

Everybody is busy this week trying to remember last year's declamations.

We hear that all that went enjoyed the trip to Stanton, even though our boys were beaten.

Does anyone know why K. V. and Ken left Odessa, in such a hurry the other night?

Looks like Nancy and C. W. have up quite a case.

Where did Vann get his gun and whom is he going to shoot?

Miss Solomon never misses her handkerchiefs.

How did C. W. make such high averages?

Harry's heart went flutter, flutter when Mary Pou looked at him.

How does Theresa keep so many beaux at once?

Do you know why Harry is so interested in Anna Belle?

Odessa boys and Midland boys are enemies. What is the cause?

Whose new Ford was Miss Burris driving Sunday?

Why did Pauline want a quarter Tuesday night. Where was she going? To Odessa?

They say that Bettie Ruth and Myrtle love to play hands out the window. We hope they don't intend to elope.

Do you know who is planning a happy home in high school?

It has been said someone is.

Four people were in the living room playing bridge.

When 10:30 came and the boy from the drug store hadn't arrived with the ice cream, Mrs. Barnard began to get nervous.

The Randalls, recent neighbors, both murmured something polite about "having to go".

"Don't rush off, please," said Mrs. Barnard. "I'll call and see what's the matter."

So she called Mr. Carter, the druggist, and the boy came over right away.

It was embarrassing though, to have to go into details from the telephone in the hall, when they could overhear every word she said.

10:30 and the Boy from the Drug Store hadn't arrived

Telephones around the house where you need them do help.

Had there been an "extension" in the back hall, say, Mrs. Barnard could have conversed in comparative privacy.

Few know that the extra cost of one or two "extensions" is somewhat less than that of the single telephone they now have.

By a wisely-placed "extension" or two, and perhaps a rearrangement of the equipment you already have, an expert telephone man can often double the convenience of the telephones in your home.

Aerial Coyote Hunting Latest Montana Sport

BUTTE, Montana, March 7. (UP)—The airplane age has introduced a new winter sport—a sport both thrilling and profitable.

It is aerial coyote hunting which, for concentrated excitement, excels any winter pastime extant.

Here and there throughout the Rocky Mountain region, there are nimrods who have forsaken the auto and horse and taken to the "little yellow wolves" of the sagebrush type. This new "modus operandi" proved a success from the start. It demonstrated the airplane as an agency of coyote extermination was extremely effective and that, in the bargain, hunting by plane was a sport that required skill, courage and daring second to none.

George W. Albrecht, 38 and William Fischer, 28, well known farmers and sportsmen of Garrison, N. D., are the aerial coyote hunting pioneers of this district. This team has proved the bane of coyotes' existence on the wind swept plains of North Dakota. In the two years they have hunted the cunning range killers, they have killed well over 100, thus preventing a potential livestock loss of many thousands of dollars.

Trade Day Letters Mailed Four Towns

By virtue of constant practice, Albrecht and Fischer have perfected the sport to the point where, once spotted, a coyote seldom escapes.

Albrecht is the pilot; Fischer armed with an automatic shotgun, sits in the front cockpit and does the shooting. Selecting a district where coyote depredations have been reported, the plane systematically covers the territory, flying at a height suitable for observation.

Suddenly a flash of grayish yellow is seen scurrying along between high sagebrush. It's a coyote! The plane dives towards the running animal and straightens out about 150 feet above the ground. Fischer snaps off the safety and prepares for action.

Frightened by this thundering bird of prey that swoops down from the skies, the coyote either runs hysterically or stands on his hind legs and snaps futilely in a vain attempt to defend himself. He never hides, the one thing that would save him; instead he loses his head and becomes an easy mark for the experienced marksman.

The plane circles, reconnoiters, dips to within fifty feet of the ground and swings back over the coyote. As the plane passes over the beast, Albrecht opens fire. The sharp series of explosions mingle with the drone of the motor as the coyote collapses, mortally wounded. The spot is carefully marked and the aerial nimrods continue their quest. Later in the day, they return to gather up the day's bag.

The first year Albrecht and Fischer indulged in the sport, they killed 50 coyotes. Bounties and the sale of prime pelts brought them a return of $900.

"But profit is secondary to us," Albrecht said. "We do it because hunting coyotes from an airplane is the greatest sport we have ever experienced. There's nothing to equal it anywhere."

Thomas Schultz, Wisdom, Montana, rancher, is another aerial hunting enthusiast. On his first expedition in a coyote-infested livestock district near his home, he managed to kill three coyotes. But his average was poor as the plane "flushed" 26.

"The greatest thrill of my life," the rancher exclaimed as he returned from his first hunting trip. "For real sport, it can't be beaten. That ship made a monkey out of old man coyote. He didn't know what to do so just stood on his hind legs and snapped."

"But there's a real trick to effective shooting from an airplane swooping down over a coyote at 70 or 80 miles an hour. It requires much more calculation and skill than shooting quail or ducks. I scared up 26 and, try as I might, I could only bag three."

LETTERS GIVING DETAILS OF MIDLAND'S GOOD WILL TRIP

Letters giving details of Midland's good will trip March 18 to Lovington, Hobbs, Andrews, and Seminole, as planned by the automobile and retail committee of the Midland chamber of commerce, have been mailed to the chambers of commerce and newspapers in those cities.

A copy of one of the letters sent to Lovington follows.

As you have perhaps noted in the press Midland will pay your city a friendly visit, on March 18, provided it is a nice day. If the weather is bad Midland will come March 25.

The Midland delegation will number about 75 or 100 people. We will bring with us the high school band or a Lions orchestra. Various business men will distribute souvenirs and the Midland chamber of commerce will distribute candy kisses and good will literature.

We do not know yet the exact hour of our arrival as on this same trip we shall visit Andrews, Seminole and Hobbs.

Our object in visiting your city is to foster greater friendliness between Midland and Lovington and to let you know that we appreciate the business relations of your town and Midland, let our business men know the great resources and wonderful possibilities of the well known area, and so that our business men and your people may become better acquainted with one another.

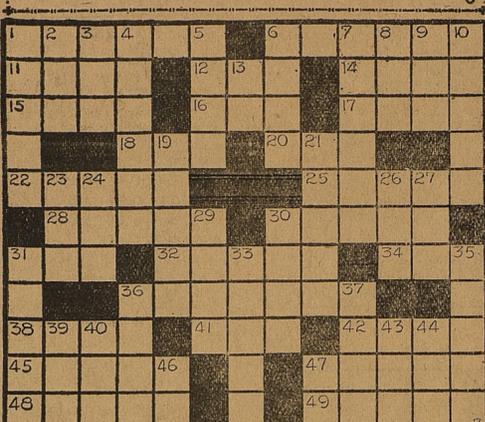

We shall come open and above board preaching the doctrine of trading in your town first, but in Midland second. It is our sincere belief that your citizens ought to buy everything in your town they can, because your merchants pay the taxes to build your schools and streets and other improvements. But we solicit them to make Midland their second choice if they should happen to need things your town might not happen to have, we cordially invite them to come to Midland.

Midland and your county have always been friends, we are tied up with your people by long established bonds of sentiment, by long established trade relations, by mail service and now by the Texas-New Mexico Railroad. We believe that a visit will be actually beneficial and we hope that you will enjoy it as much as we do.

It has been shown that in one of our great American cities 1800 tons of soot fall over one square mile in a year.

MAY FINDS SUITS COMING THICK IN BROWNSVILLE

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 7. (P)—May, it appears, will be a busy month for United States court here. The $1,000,000 libel suit of R. E. Creager against Colliers Weekly and the Crowell Publishing company, joint defendants, has been set for trial May 5 as it affects the Crowell company.

The bail bonds of Sheriff A. Y. Baker of Hidalgo county and seven others, indicated for alleged vote irregularities in the last general election, were made returnable to federal court here early in May. Federal Judge W. Lee Estes of Texarkana will hear the libel suit, Judge J. C. Hutcheson, Jr., having disqualified himself of friendship with Creager, republican national committeeman for Texas. Judge Hutcheson will sit in the laco box and Ed P. Williams, clerk at the box. The indictments were returned at Houston by a federal grand jury which investigated for four days the charges of republican independents that the Baker regime was perpetuated through illegal action in throwing out the Weslaco box. While the accused must be tried here, a jury, it was understood, could be selected from divisions of the southern Texas district exclusive of the Brownsville division.

Speaker of House Arrested For Class

AUSTIN, Tex.—(P)—W. S. Barron, speaker of the house, teaches Sunday school in his home town of Bryan. However, the frequent and long sessions of the legislature have interfered with his work in that respect.

His class became impatient and wondered how it could demand his presence. The idea struck after newspapers carried stories about the House of Representatives, unable to command a quorum, instructed the speaker to issue warrants for the arrest of absentees and deliver them to sheriffs for service.

The Bryan Sunday school class swore out a warrant for Speaker Barron and sent it to rangers' headquarters. It was served on Barron and he spent Sunday with his class.

LET GOOD THINGS GET TOGETHER

FIGS are delicious with Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

TRY some preserved figs with crisp Kellogg's Corn Flakes. It's a wonderful combination. Children love it—they'll drink plenty of wholesome milk that way! Ideal for their evening meal.

Nobody has ever been able to duplicate the flavor and crispness Kellogg puts into flakes of sun-ripe corn. That's why Kellogg's taste so deliciously different. You'll like them for breakfast, lunch or supper.

So look for the red-and-green Kellogg package at your grocer's. And serve your Kellogg's with milk or cream—with canned berries, with preserved fruits, with honey. The waxite inner-seal wrapper keeps the flakes oven-fresh.
