IS DEMOCRACY A FAILURE?

Gordon Selfridge, American-born owner of a London department store, told a British audience the other day that democracy in America has failed. Declaring that his recent visit to the United States had convinced him that "democracy as a system of government is an absolute failure," he added:

"In my judgment, control of a country by an inspiring spirit, without selfishness, managing the country as a great business is managed, with intelligence and care, is what must come eventually. I believe that in a hundred or two hundred years there will be no more democracies in existence."

Everyone, of course, is entitled to his own opinion, and it would be foolish to assert that the American democracy has met the present crisis in an absolutely perfect manner.

But it is doubtful if the ordinary American is quite ready to admit its complete failure; nor does this call for a government run on strict business principles seem the kind of trumpet note that would lead impassioned revolutionists to die on the barricades.

What we often overlook is the fact that democratic government can never, in an imperfect world, be as efficient or as intelligent as we might want it to be. To run anything with perfect efficiency, from a filling station on up to a great nation, you have to be absolutely cold-blooded, you have to shut your eyes, completely to the human equation; and it is the very essence of democracy that it refuses to do that.

Democracy is a philosophy which holds that the human rights of those at the bottom of the heap are worth consideration. It is a deliberate attempt to gain protection for those rights—at the price, if necessary, of efficiency in government. To complain that democracy is inefficient is beside the point. Its inefficiency is bargained for in the beginning.

The depression does not prove democracy's failure. Democracy did not cause it; democracy—in a land proud of its rugged individualism—is not responsible for the cure. Only if democracy permits starvation because of the depression will it have failed.

SIAM'S REVOLUTION

In an era where most revolutions seem to aim at gaining absolute power for one man or one class, it is comforting to come upon at least one that is headed the other way.

European revolutions since the war have headed away from democracy, and have had a dictatorship of one kind or another as their object. But the revolution in Siam has ended a dictatorship and given the Siamese a larger degree of freedom than they had before.

The kingdom of Siam was one of the last absolute monarchies on earth. If the blessings of a dictatorship were all that some people seem to think, the Siamese should have been satisfied. But they put on a very efficient and decisive revolt, and they now seem on the verge of getting a large degree of self-government. The demonstration is rather encouraging.

THE TRAGIC DROWNING TOLL

Although the summer is not far advanced, reports of accidental drownings are coming in from all parts of the country. At bathing beaches, at swimming pools and at rural "swimmin' holes" death lies in wait for unwary bathers, and a tragic toll of fatalities has already been recorded.

It behooves every parent to use especial care to keep his own children safe. Don't let youngsters swim where there is no life guard, unless some adult who is a good swimmer is going to be present. Don't tempt fate by letting them swim where there is a strong undertow, an unusually heavy surf or a tricky current. Don't let children enter the water when they are below par physically. Teach them how to swim, or have someone else do it, at the earliest possible moment.

By following a few such simple rules much can be done to cut down the number of drownings this summer. The responsibility rests on every parent.

FEASTING

It's queer, so it is,
By Jemmy whiz,
That folks just won't keep quiet.
They rear and they snort
And still they cavort
Over what is the proper diet.

They tell us what food
Will do the most good,
They know what will cause us
great woe;
They worry and fret
And still they forget
That story of long, long ago.

When Methuselah ate
What was cooked by his mate,
He never, like people do now,
Figured on the amount
Of the calorie count;
He just sat and ate his chow.

He didn't give a fig,
As he dined on roast pig,
Or was served a juicy pot pie,
Nor did he fear that
It was lacking in fat,
Or two or three vitamins shy.

He sat and he chewed
In an untroubled mood,
No doubts, no worries, no fears,
Lest his stomach he'd hurt
With a load of dessert—
AND HE LIVED OVER 900

—Will M. Mickiff.

20:23. "I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. Thus shalt have no other gods before me."

Included in the passages read from the Scriptures was the following from Deuteronomy 6:4: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord."

The service also embraced the following citation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 340):

"One infinite God, good, unifies men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfills the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' annihilates pagan and Christian idolatry—whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes; equalizes the sexes; annuals the curse on man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed."

Choice Cooks Corner

Berries lend themselves to many types of made desserts. There are numerous berry desserts that may appeal to you when you want a hearty last course to finish out a light meal. Those which are not too rich are suitable, when served with cream, for children over six years of age.

Blueberry Molasses Puffs

One cup of blueberries, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1 cup molasses, 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons melted shortening, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Look over berries, wash and drain. Sprinkle with 1 1/2 tablespoons flour and mix lightly but thoroughly. Mix boiling water and molasses. Mix and sift flour, salt, soda and spices. Add to liquid ingredients and mix well. Add melted shortening and beat hard. Stir in prepared berries. Turn into oiled and floured individual pans and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm with sugar and cream.

Berry dumplings and berry roly-poly make good, inexpensive desserts. They are usually eaten with sugar and cream. A rich baking powder biscuit dough is rolled in a thin sheet and spread with softened butter. Sugared berries are sprinkled evenly over the dough and the whole is rolled up jelly-roll fashion, and baked. Cut in slices to serve the roly-poly.

Do you inhale?

Luckies "make no bones" about this vital question

"KEEP that under your hat," said the cigarette trade when first we raised the question—"Do you inhale?"

But silence is golden only when it's unwise to speak. Let others explain their striking avoidance of this subject. Lucky Strike makes its position crystal clear... for certainly, inhaling is most important to every smoker.

For everybody inhales—whether they realize it or not...every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike "makes no bones" about this vital question because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

CHIEF LEE'S BOOT FEATURES HUMOROUS GAME OF CANDIDATES

Busher Batsmen Go on Scoring Rampage to Bottle Up Crane Leaguers

PLAY TO GO DOWN AS LOCAL EPIC; PITCHED WITH SIX GUNS BUCKLED ON HIP-ALL-STAR GAME KNOTTED

A burly peace officer who booted the ball to glory after pitching a game with two 45's on his hips—that is the epitome of a new yarn which is likely to take on the form of a local sports epic such as that which resulted that well remembered afternoon when the mighty Casey folded up before the countless fans.

Big Chief Lee, hurling for the Seymour element of the candidates' playground ball game, packed his six guns in full view during the night, discouraging by their very significance all ambition of the Epley faction to swat the ball when swats meant runs, and topped off his performance by making a dazzling play to first to cut off a run. He knocked down a hard hit ball, saw he could not bend over in time to scoop it up and toss out the runner. Epley said: "One negro, in the showdown, spread out a royal flush. 'That ain't nothin,' another negro said. 'I've got a couple of jacks and a razor.' You win, the holder of the royal flush said, pushing over his stack of chips."

In the other game, that played between two aggregations of all-stars in the Industrial Playground Bell league, there was another peculiar happening. While the game went seven innings, it had the distinction of not having been completed when it was stopped—although the players did not know this.

Joe Pylon's all-stars were in the field, Scotty Gemmill's relief pitcher, Straughn, was on third. Dr. David M. Ellis came to bat and beat out a hit to first, Straughn scoring to knot the score at 5 all. The base umpire called Davis safe at third, but Pylon's club, believing the decision was called the other way, quit the field and scattered before an explanation could be made. These clubs may meet again just to see which is the stronger. Each club made five runs, each collected seven hits, but Pylon's club made two more errors than Gemmill's.

While the candidates played, "Ironhead" Rogers, making his maiden attempt at announcing, stood before the Corner Electric company mike and broadcast wise cracks on anybody and everybody in the range of his cleary orbs. Corner handled the second game, and both received numerous compliments for the way they kept up with the play.

(NOTE: Mr. Herb A. Rountree, official scorer for the playground league, eased up and watched the candidates without keeping a complete box score. "It was the first game I've had a chance to see without having to score it," he said, "and I have nothing to turn in on it.") Rountree handled the other game, however, the box score following:

Beautiful Love in Yucca Bar-Room Film

In contrast to the stark realism of the intensely dramatic all talking picture, "Ten Nights in a Bar-Room," coming to the Yucca today and Wednesday, beautiful Phillis Barrington and lovely Sheila Manners enhance the elements of young love. Both are clever and appealing in their respective romances with Robert Frazer and John Darrow.

Blonde Phillis Barrington plays the part of Ann Slade, daughter of the saloonkeeper in this modernized screen version of the seventy year old stage success. Miss Barrington gives poignant sympathy to her interpretation of the girl who is heart-broken and humiliated by her heartless father's ruthless ruin of the man who has trusted him.

In her love scenes with the young physician, played by Robert Frazer, she is particularly beautiful and appealing.

Wistful Sheila Manners is adorable in her role of the little school-ma'am who is in love with Frank Slade. Her brave fight to save the man she loves from falling under the evil influences of his father's saloon is a sincere and heart-grIPPING performance. Handsome John Darrow, the juvenile lead of "Hell's Angels," is seen as her lover.

"How's this piece about giving a cup of coffee to a couple of girls who need it bad and in a hurry?" This question came from the carnal lips of a pretty girl that had just rolled off a fast freight here, red pajamas and all. More sections of the train passed and another girl, similarly dressed, swung off a "reefer." "Don't know," one of the hangers-on at the station said. "This town ain't so hot for taking in boys." "But we're beetes," the girl said. She was attractive. She had learned her way around. "Left Washington about the time the bonus army started in," she said. "Felt too crowded and figured my friend and I (we're Flo and Flossie Daniels—but no relation) could catch trains going west and wouldn't have to be dropped off every few miles because of bums going the same way. What will we do when we get somewhere? Oh, we'd give it little thought—just riding, you know. No, we haven't had any trouble and are not afraid to take our chances." They got their coffee and the train whistling, ran off to climb aboard for El Paso and points west.

The state of Pennsylvania is going democratic behind the pleasant prospect of having Roosevelt and Garner gathering up the administration reins, according to a Pennsylvania republican who stopped in Midland for lunch. BAER REPEATS VICTORY OVER FISH PEDDLER

DEMPSEY BOWL, RENO, Nev., July 5.—Rangy Max Baer of California established himself as one of the leading contenders for heavyweight honors last night, when he pounded out a 20-round decision over King Levinsky, ex-fish peddler of Chicago, in a furiously fought battle featuring Reno's annual Independence Day celebration.

A vicious and almost ceaseless attack to the body brought the six-foot three inch Californian a population decision over his rugged rival, Levinsky stood up under a beating that would have dropped many another opponent.

Thomason Elated By Garner Choice

Congressman R. E. Thomason of this district, writing The Reporter-Telegram from Washington, the following comment upon outcome of the national democratic convention:

"The ticket is a great one that will sweep the country. I am happy about the nomination of my friend John N. Garner and am confident that he will add tremendous strength to someone democratic appeal to the voters in November.

"The entire platform as adopted at Chicago will have my active support.

"I had planned to leave for the district but party leaders have asked democratic congressmen to stay on the job through Tuesday when important measures will be voted upon and so I will remain here.

election. With President Hoover turned song composer and his orchestra playing Just One More Chance, we're going to do so marching en masse to the polls in that state."

B. C. Girdley, peace justice, was walking around the streets early this afternoon, assertedly "looking for my family's soup bone. My wife loaned it to someone and can't remember to whom."

RUFUS DAY TIGHT AND STINGY IN THE PINCHES

Skipper Ellis and his surprising Bushers evidently don't think much of ex-National leaguers.

In a game played after the Mexican diamond Monday afternoon, one of the highlights in the Fourth of July program, Ellis and his men pounded every pitcher the Cranes could offer, scoring 23 runs on 14 hits and 10 errors. The Cranes only three lone runs on three hits.

Crane used three pitchers in an effort to stop the hit and run bombardment, and still the clicking bats of the Bushers continued to find the outer fringe of the playing field. The last hurler was Sammy Timmons, Stanton moundsman who has done more than his share towards winning ball games here in the past. But Sammy could do no more than exactly nothing against the Bush Tribe.

In the meantime, Rufus Day, Busher hurler, had everything on the ball except his sweat shirt, and breezed along at a rapid pace, moving down opposing batsmen at will. Busher support was good, only two bobbles being made and neither of them costly; the Cranes, to the contrary, made nine errors.

Recently, the Cranes beat the Bushers by a large score.

Six Deaths--

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Odell at Camp Eagle, was swept away by the flood in an effort to rescue Howell Priour who was stranded in a tree.

Charles L. Greenleaf, who also tried to rescue Priour, also lost his life when his boat capsized. His body was found near that of Odell's.

Two Drown in Car
Miss Ida Sticker of Comfort, and Wm. Bronson of Austin were drowned Saturday night when the flood caught the car in which they were driving on the highway between Comfort and Kerrville. Miss Elizabeth Bronson and J. L. Jenkins of Comfort, who were with the other two, were rescued after clinging to tree tops all night.

Flood waters of the Frio river near Uvalde claimed lives of two persons attempting to swim the swollen stream. Jesus Ozuna, 18, was swept down the river and drowned, and Torbio Alvarez, 32, lost his life trying to rescue his wife. Alvarez was to have been married Sunday.

Highway travel between San Antonio and Kerrville, which was halted Friday evening by water over a low waterbridge this side of Comfort, was resumed late Monday. State highway trucks began pulling cars across as soon as the water receded sufficiently.

Offer to Help
Kerrville received an offer of help from the midwest Red Cross headquarters at St. Louis, early today, by one of the first long distance calls that was put through. The offer was accepted, and from San Antonio aid was ordered by the St. Louis office. News was also received at Kerrville that four heavy state highway department trucks, loaded with tents and cots were on the way to the flood area.

New Squin, the Guadalupe at its crest had in some places spread to a width of five miles. At Lake McQueen water stood two feet in the cabins.

New Braunfels, the river reached 35 feet Sunday, but had fallen to 18 feet Monday morning. Tourist camps were damaged.

The San Antonio Boy Scout camp on the Comal near New Braunfels was reported safe. All girls and boys' camps in the area about Comfort and Kerrville also were reported safe.

No More Loss of Life
Kerrville reported no additional loss of life, except possibly upon persons whose bodies were as yet undiscovered. Girls at Camp Mystic, near Kerrville, were brought to that city Monday morning. Their belongings were lost when four or five cabins were swept away but other buildings at the camp were unharmed. A new story of their escape from the flood was told to the girls.

Dr. Linda Coleman Simpson, camp director, when apprised of the approaching flood waters, entered the mess hall at 1:20 p. m. Friday where the girls were eating a lunch and told them to quickly leave the building and go to a hill back of the mess hall. By the time they reached the top of the hill the flood crest had hit and water was a foot deep in the mess hall. Had any of the girls gone out on a slope leading down to the river they probably would have been swept away, it was said.

Other camps in the "camp district," did not suffer to a great extent.

Traffic Moving
Traffic was going through in all directions to Junction, Hunt, Fredericksburg, and towards Comfort and San Antonio.

Hunt found little to rehabilitate when it checked up. Of 17 buildings in the community, only a small rock building remained. All belongings and livestock were lost, but there was no loss of life.

No great damage was reported at Junction.

Miss Ethel Sorrell and Cynthia Sorrell of San Antonio and Mrs. C. B. Granbury of Houston and V. H. Ramsey, pilot, flew to Leakey Monday morning where their brother, John L. Sorrell, lives. They were unable to reach his house and had to land across the river. He swam his horse across and told them that he had been unable to get into town since his place was surrounded by water, but that he understood there had been no loss of life. There was a great loss of livestock, however.

At Comfort automobiles were beginning to cross the river for the first time since the rise in the river, with army trucks assisting in pulling them over. A little-used mountain road was the new route of travel to Kerrville with the regular road impassable.
