Haynie Case to Jury This Afternoon; the State Opens

ZIMMERMAN IN OPENING STATE ROLE

Witnesses Examined In Second Night Session

The H. W. Haynie case will go to a district court jury this afternoon.

Dennis Zimmerman of Tulsa opened argument for the state and Rutledge Isaacs of Pecos was expected to open for the defense.

W. R. Smith, district attorney, was to close for the state and L. A. Dale, Pecos, for the defense.

Spirited examination of witnesses occupied sessions Tuesday afternoon and night, when a special session, the second night session of the present term, was called.

Special play hinged about alleged choking of the defendant and beating with a hammer handle the dead man, John Linn, with whose death Haynie stands charged.

The death of Linn followed a fight in Haynie's cafe in Stanton, in 1926. The case was tried in 1928, the defendant sentenced to the penitentiary, but the sentence was reversed and the case remanded. It came to Midland on a change of venue.

Lions To Observe Independence Day

The Lions Club continues to bring to the fore things that interest their members as well as their visitors. At today's luncheon in the Scharbauer Lion Klapproth presided in place of Lion President Ulmer and he made a good job of it.

Ulmer was there, as he always is, but his speaking voice has a load of sand in it and he had to relinquish the chair in order that the work of the club might go on in its usual smoothness. He however made a suggestion, which was adopted by the club, that next Wednesday be observed in true Texas style and that a serious observance of Texas Independence Day be a part of the program. To that end Leslie Boone and Charles Klapproth will go into the history of Texas and paint an oratorical picture of the great strides this state has made since it became a part of the United States. Everything they say will be of historical authenticity.

The program today was a hodge-podge of entertainment ingredients but appeared to be highly enjoyed. A most pleasing feature of the meeting today was the announcement that several Lions from other towns had made application for affiliation with the Midland club.

The chair also announced that several new members had their applications ready to be acted upon.

The Lions Orchestra under the direction of Ned Watson will officiate next Wednesday.

Collector Coming; Aids Income Returns

For the convenience of those who are required by law to file federal income tax returns, a deputy collector of internal revenue will be at Midland March 3 and 4 to assist taxpayers in preparing their returns. No charge will be made for this service. The matter of filing income tax returns should be given immediate attention, in order to avoid penalty and interest, says a letter from George C. Hopkins, collector of internal revenue, to The Reporter-Telegram.

Amarillo Realtor On Trial For Murder

AMARILLO, Feb. 26.—(UP)—John Dees, pioneer Panhandle real estate dealer, went to trial in district court today on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Finis Brown, mechanic, in October. His attorneys said he will plead self defense. Brown's divorced wife was a tenant of Dees.

City Garbageman Draws a Hot One

It's only a block from the home of Mayor Leon Goodman to that of M. M. Seymour, but the city garbage man almost had his truck destroyed by fire between the two homes Tuesday.

He picked up some fire, or five coals, when hauling away cinders at the Mayor's home, and by the time he reached Seymour's residence his truck was ablaze. Quick work with Seymour's garden hose saved the vehicle for a longer period of usefulness, and saved the cargo for a trip to the junk pile.

LIFE SENTENCE OF WARD COUNTY GETS AFFIRMED

AUSTIN, Feb. 26.—(P)—Two death cases and a life imprisonment sentence were affirmed by the court of criminal appeals today.

The extreme penalty verdicts were against Jordan Scott of McClellan county and Lee Davis, negro, of Brazoria county.

The life imprisonment conviction was against Guertelmo Hernandez who was tried in Ward county on a murder indictment from Reeves county.

The death of Linn followed a fight in Haynie's cafe in Stanton, in 1926. The case was tried in 1928, the defendant sentenced to the penitentiary, but the sentence was reversed and the case remanded. It came to Midland on a change of venue.

Connally Is Urged Support Oil Tariff

Telegrams from the First National bank, the Midland National bank, the Midland chamber of commerce and The Reporter-Telegram were sent to Hon. Tom Connally, United States senator from Texas, urging his support of the bill to create a tariff on oil.

Other institutions and individuals of Midland are urged to send similar messages, and those who desire to do so may call at the chamber of commerce and see the entire content of the messages already sent.

Scout School Holds JACKASSES BRAY AGAIN

Another week has passed, with it the second meeting of the scout leaders instruction school and the accompanying indication of no surcease of braying from the Jackass contingent, patrol which has demonstrated definite yen towards strapping on their bestial shoulders the honors of the competition instituted by executives of the school to make time pass fast while in assembly.

The animals of the recognized voices loped off with a true and false test Tuesday night. While sleepy eyes might give illusions, "Coke" Williamson said, "believe it or not, the test was on 'mental alertness'."

Each patrol of the men was reinforced by new members. The Tom Cats enlisted C. A. McClintic, G. A. Sundquist and F. W. Stonehocker. Billy of the house of goats claimed an attorney, T. D. Kimbrough. The Lions read out the name of H. L. Haight and the inevitable Jackasses slipped by a fast one and got the city manager, A. J. Gates, claiming no argument could be advanced as to his inherently belonging elsewhere.

The standing of the patrols followed:

SAN DOMINGO IN HANDS REBELS

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Feb. 26.—(UP)—Revolutionary forces entered Santo Domingo at dawn today and occupied the city. Heavy rifle firing signaled an attack, but casualties were believed to be few. The insurrectionist force was estimated at 2000 men, armed with rifles.

Three gunners of the government forces in the northern district, where the revolt originated, were reported killed. The revolutionists took the public works department and the police station. Vice-president Jose Alfonseca said he resigned his office.

Here's Real Case, Believe Or Don't

A woman from a near-by town is the D. H. Perry Midman, selection for "Believe It Or Not."

The woman has been married five times, three times to the same man, has not taken a drop of water for more than eleven years, during which she worked seven days a week without ever missing a minute, either from tardiness or absence.

Letters are being written the woman in an effort to induce her to submit her photograph to this newspaper. It would be mailed Ripley for use in his famous syndicated cartoon feature.

Where Avalanche of Coal Killed Five

This jumbled mass of wreckage was believed to be a tomb for six to ten men who may have been buried alive—in addition to five killed outright—when 900 tons of coal spilled from two collapsed steel pockets in a New York coal company's shed. Here you see workmen digging for men who were missing after the avalanche, while doctors stand by with first aid kits. Two men were removed seriously injured from the wreckage soon after the accident.

BECHERER POINTS STEP IN THE AIR AS SIGNIFICANT

"Noted flyers are to form a 'clearing-house' to place aviation experts where the industry needs them best," H. M. Becherer, field-manager at the Midland airport says.

"There was an article written by Paul Harrison for a group of related newspapers that best explains this trend," he said.

"For the first time in the history of aviation its highly disorganized supply of manpower is being surveyed to meet the increasingly specialized demands of the industry."

"A group of celebrated aviators whose exploits contributed much to the early romanticism of flying now are directing their efforts toward strictly business methods in the organization of its personnel."

Senators Threatens To Close Exchanges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The senate adopted a resolution today calling on Secretary Hyde of the agricultural department to make "such recommendations as he sees fit" to the senate relative to the price of cotton and wheat "even to the extent of temporarily closing said exchanges."

HAIR-TRIMMERS INSTITUTIONAL, SAYS

Conductor of Barber School In a Lecture DEPICTING NEW SCIENCE NOW EMPLOYED

Barbers 2,300 years before Christ were among the most respected men of the community; they not only shaved men's faces but gave the women their various assortments of wind blows and feather edges. Women were just as vain, and men every bit as conceited.

And Egyptians did not say "just a barber" as one of the hirsute-contenders walked along the Nile in the cool of evening.

That is what Ed A. Rainey, authorized teacher of barber science told a group of Midland barbers Tuesday night as he opened a 10-weeks school in the latest approved methods of that art.

What muscle is attached to the hair follicles? What affects the erector-pilli muscle and causes its contraction? If you don't know go to your barber—not a physician. The shear and razor man can tell you.

"Barbering is not what it once was, or should not be," Rainey said. "The familiar query, 'What kind of tonic do you want?' should be heard less and less. Trained barbers who are dermatologists and skilled technicians should, without abusing the proverbial loquaciousness attributed to the barber, suggest that an alkali wash is not needed by a particular customer, that an albuminous shampoo is better. BILL REDUCING PRISON BOARD PASSES HOUSE

AUSTIN, Feb. 26.—(P)—The house today passed a bill which would reduce the Texas prison board from nine to three members by abolishing the present board, with the governor appointing three new members.

Both houses adopted a resolution ordering Moore Lynn, state auditor, to start an audit of the penitentiary system as soon as others he had been ordered to make are completed. The resolution was the same as was passed by the fourth called session excepting that instead of ordering an audit immediately it gave preference to other departmental audits now under way.

TWO SHIPS TO MIDLAND EVERY DAY

Extension to El Paso And Coast Is The Plan

Extension of Southwest Air Fast Express, airline headed by Earle P. Haliburton, from Sweetwater to Midland as a segment in a future connection with El Paso and a possible direct line to the west coast, was announced by Bob Cantwell, Haliburton's aide upon landing his plane at Sloan field at noon today.

Service will be initiated Monday, the first plane landing here at 6:15 p. m.

Two planes will make the run daily, one leaving Midland at 7 a. m., the other landing at 7 o'clock in the other landing at 6:15 o'clock night. Chester R. Balles, formerly with Braniff airline, will be domiciled at Midland. He will move to the port Saturday.

Two Planes Daily To begin with, two Lockheed-Vega, four-place cabin monoplanes, powered with single 410 h.p. Wasp motors, will fly the route. Cantwell said that 14-passenger Ford tri-motored monoplanes will be placed on the line as soon as the ships can be delivered, and business justified. He said six of the new planes have been ordered, three of which will be delivered to Tulsa this week.

S-A-F-E now maintains ten Ford planes and six Lockheeds. The planes fly a daily distance of 3800 miles, and, with the extension, will fly 3700 miles. Since April last, Sawayne planes have flown more than 800,000 miles, without an accident, making ten forced landings because of bad weather, one because of mechanical trouble and discontinued service three days because of frost exudation making landing fields unsafe.

May Extend to Paso The company has headquarters at Tulsa, where offices are in the city and shops and a $160,000 hangar are located at the Tulsa municipal airport.

Cantwell said the line is here to stay, that Haliburton is one of the few men who has found aviation a profitable plunge. He says the line to the coast has been in abeyance for several months but that surveys must be completed before extension farther than Midland. He believes extension to El Paso is only a matter of weeks.

Full schedules were given Field-Manager H. M. Becherer. These will be published in this newspaper Tuesday.

Connections with all planes to the east will be made by the Midland-Sweetwater morning plane, Cantwell said. The customary low fare rates will be charged.

DAWSON PARTLY VIRGIN

LAMESA, Feb. 26.—In answer to a number of inquiries received by the chamber of commerce during the last few weeks, Wm. A. Wilson, manager, today stated that although there is $400,000 worth of construction work underway here at present, there is little demand for outside help. There is ample labor on hand in Lamesa to take care of the building activity.

"There is very little unemployment in Lamesa," Wilson stated, "while there is no need for outside labor here."

"This county does need more farmers to till virgin soil," he added. "A good percentage of land in Dawson county has never felt a plow."

THE TARIFF ON OIL

Every commodity produced in the United States in any quantity is protected by a tariff except oil. Now the independent oil producer is threatened with ruination unless congress passes the oil tariff bill which is being fostered in Washington.

West Texas in particular is threatened unless the tariff is passed. With oil prices now at a dangerously low ebb, without proportionate price cuts in refined products, the operations of the independent oil men are at stake.

Wirt Franklin, president of the Independent Petroleum association of America, makes the following comment on the status of the oil man:

"In asking for a tariff on oil we are asking no more than the other industries and producers have asked. We are asking no new or untried experiment. Every item we use in our industry is protected. The tools and appliances that we use are protected. We pay the most uniformly high wages of any American industry; our employees are contented, although their work is hard and living conditions often unsettled, owing to much of our activities being in the open, yet they are loyal to the American ideal and to their work."

"We carry the greatest burden of taxation of any industry. (in some cases paying the entire cost of the current state expense) and do not complain. We were loyal to our government during the war; our commodities increased less in price than any other in proportion to their value. In deflation the industry has borne its burden and has not tried to pass it on. The gasoline that was worth $1.00 in 1913 now costs $1.18, while at the same time building material of $1.00 valuation in 1913 costs $1.73 now, house furnishings $1.61, farm products $1.42. The average of all commodities is $1.51."

"We are a part of one of the greatest of American industries. This industry has been classed as probably the most characteristically American of all our great industries."

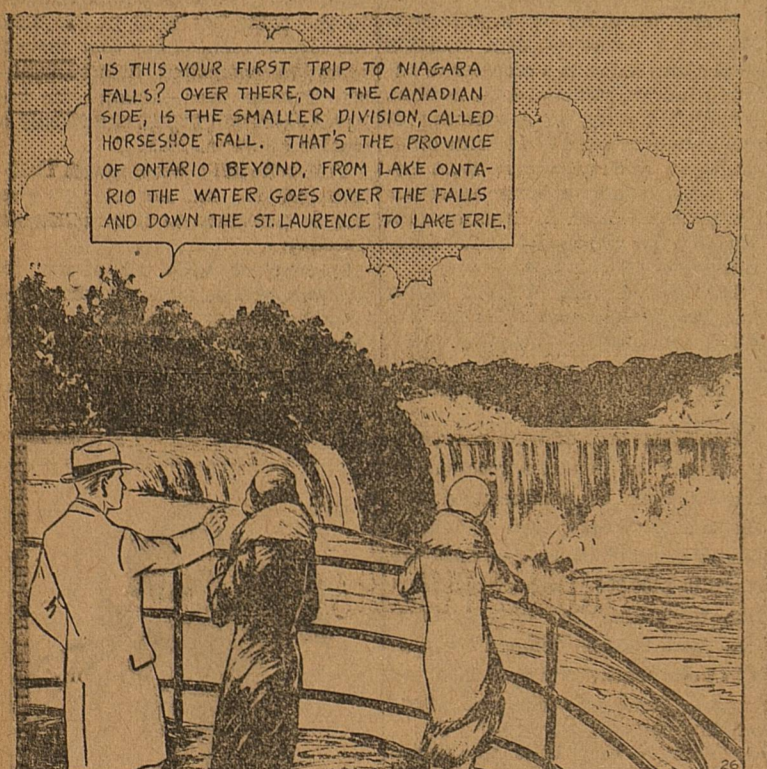

DRAWING ON SAVINGS

As the October stock market crash passes farther back into history, it grows more and more apparent that the frenzy of speculation that preceded it was not at all a good thing for the country.

A clip sheet from the American Bankers' Association reveals that last year, for the first time in 20 years, the amount of money deposited in the nation's savings banks diminished. The shrinkage amounted to more than $195,000,000 during the 12 months—an amazing situation, in view of the fact that savings in the year previous increased by more than $2,300,000,000.

The Bankers' Association blames the recession largely on the lure of the stock market, which led people to withdraw their savings in order to speculate in stocks; and it believes that deposits this year will increase again, now that the market boom has collapsed.

Norris Declares Coalition Proud Tariff Onslaught

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three interviews with leaders of the Senate's political factions on the record of the Seventy-first Congress to date. These dispatches are especially timely because of recent White House discussions about speeding up the Senate.

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The Republican progressive group in the Senate, whose alliance with the Democrats has upset the program of general tariff revision upward as contained in the bills passed by the House and submitted by the Senate Finance committee, is proud rather than ashamed of itself.

It looks upon the general achievement of this Congress so far with great satisfaction, contending that the House tariff bill was so ineffectual that it necessarily is taking a long time to rid it of its more obnoxious features and write some new improvements into tariff law.

"The Senate has taken a great deal of time with the tariff and perhaps more than it should have taken," admits Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, leader of the western progressive Republicans. "But this is the only place in the world where any bill, especially one like a tariff bill, gets any consideration."

"Everybody knows that the House passes a tariff bill as a matter of form—that it must pass it as a whole or not at all, without giving members any opportunity to offer amendments."

"A tariff bill contains thousands of items and affects every portion of the country, so it is not remarkable that its consideration should take a long time here where we have free debate and every member has the right to offer amendments. That is true of every important piece of legislation which contains more than one controversial item."

"It has been worse in this Congress because the Senate Finance committee majority, which wrote the bill we had before us, is packed with senators from a very few manufacturing states. Only one member of the majority side, Senator Cowens of Michigan, was not one of the outfit which packed the bill with outrageous duties. They made the work all the more burdensome and tedious to those of us who wanted a fair measure. The only alternative to this long, drawn-out tedious process is to do like the House and take our tariff laws from the industrial members who take them straight from industry."

"The tariff bill as passed by the Senate won't be satisfactory, but we have some amendments in this bill which will go farther than ever before to provide machinery for fluence crops out same as usual. Ever since Charles King sang a flock of songs in Broadway Melody, there have been a lot of throaty tobacco baritones singing out loud, completely eliminating the old-fashioned whiskey tenor. And ever since Evelyn Brent appeared in the talkies, there has been a girl up at the telephone office who says "Thank you" with a voice that makes you want to get better acquainted with her. Every little newsboy says "Oh-hey" with accent on the "oh" and long drawn out on the "hey", just like they hear the college clowns in the talking pictures. You have to be on the lookout to keep the movies from having an influence on your hearing.

The Town Quack

But what I am driving at is the fact that even with the change-over from silent movies to talkies, the making scientific tariff legislation in the future. "Some unsatisfactory rates will remain, such as that on rayon, which has been kept exorbitantly high. But if we can put in the statute the provision requiring the tariff commission to make separate reports on the facts regarding foreign and domestic production and costs, so that items will be handled separately by Congress, we will eliminate the log-rolling which has been long the curse of tariff legislation."

"We also provide that in the future the tariff commission shall act judicially, disregard politics and act as a court, which ought to give us a real tribunal unbiased and uncontrolled."

Entire Bill May Die "We have also written in the bill a plan for the benefit of agriculture. "None of these things is through the conference, of course. That's when the fight will come. But in my judgment if most of these improvements don't stay in the bill, no bill will ever be passed."

Norris remarked that the Senate had passed his "lame duck" amendment to the Constitution, "as usual" and that the House leaders threatening to recess for lack of work might well take that up. He regards the recent opposition to the appointment of Chief Justice Hughes as of great importance in his long fight against monopolies and extortionate public utilities and expects it to have a healthy effect on the court's conservative majority, "including Hughes."

PRISONER SUES CITY ROUEN. (UP).—Prison sentences totaling 75 years have not made Alphonse Bruneau, of Rouen, lose his good humor. Bruneau, who is serving one of his many sentences, has filed suit against the municipality of Rouen for 100 francs a day damages for two years of alleged false imprisonment. Bruneau does not contest that his other sentences are legal, but he does insist he was imprisoned for two years for a crime he did not commit. He claims he was falsely imprisoned for the theft of 12 bicycles which he really didn't steal. If Bruneau wins his suit he will have 75,000 francs to spend but no place to spend it because he is still in prison.

Murder Backstairs by ANNE AUSTIN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DETECTIVE BONNIE DUNDEE, secretly a member of the Hamilton Homicide Squad, accepts an urgent invitation from a former Yale classmate, DICK BERKELEY, to spend the week-end at Hillcrest, the millionaire Berkeley's estate. His landlady, MRS. RHODES, tells him that Mrs. Berkeley, formerly a nobody, is trying to crash society, and that she has fortified herself with a social secretary, MRS. LETITIA LAMBERT, formerly a society leader in New York and Newport. It is also rumored that CLORINDA BERKELEY is engaged to be married to SEYMOUR CROSBY, New York guest in the Berkeley home. For reasons of his own Dundee has a strong professional curiosity to see and study Seymour Crosby. At the Berkeley home he meets Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley, Clorinda, 15-year-old GIGI, who annoys her mother with her frank criticisms and unbridled comments, and gracious, well-bred Mrs. Lambert, the social secretary. But it is Seymour Crosby in whom the detective incognito is vitally interested.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

Yes, it was a strange and rather terrible dinner party, Dundee decided, before the fish course was removed. In the first place, the dining room was too stuffily grand for words. And the dinner service was overpowering. If this magnificence was trotted out for what Mrs. Berkeley called "a dull little family party," what in heaven's name would tomorrow night bring forth? Dundee wondered gloomily.

And what a queerly assorted group they were! The Benjamin Smiths overawed into silence, or brief little spurts of glibly gayer; Mrs. Berkeley had made it quite clear that her full duty to the undesirable Smiths was being discharged tonight; they would not have a chance to commit their faux pas on Saturday night when "a very interesting announcement may be expected."

Mr. George Berkeley, darkly somber, but a perfect host except for the odd fact that he never addressed a single remark to the honored guest of the evening. Indeed, when his black eyes flashed a covert, measuring glance toward Seymour Crosby, the nature of his thoughts might easily be guessed by the tightening of his lips and the flare of his nostrils.

Clorinda Berkeley, aloof, arrogant, apparently almost as determined to ignore her reputed fiancé as was her father. Mrs. Berkeley, voluble, effusive, ridiculous. "No, I don't like Mrs. Berkeley!" Dundee told himself fiercely, after she had subjected him to another barrage of question, compliments and comments upon "bourgeois" Hamilton.

"Considering that the jolly old town made us so lousy rich, I think you might lay off of it, Abbie," Gigi suggested in her strident young voice. "Gigi, I must insist that you show me more respect!" Mrs. Berkeley burst into, in one of the fishwife rages which Gigi engendered in her mother almost every time she opened her frank mouth.

"I've heard that every day of my life, when I wasn't away at camp or school," Gigi reminded her mother cheerfully. "For a change, suppose you show me some respect, Abbie! I honestly think parents should respect their children, and then take awfully good care that they themselves are worthy of their children's respect before they demand it."

"Gigi!" Mr. Berkeley commanded sternly, and the girl slumped into her chair beside Dundee's. But she was not crushed long. In low, eager voice she challenged her dinner partner: "And I'll bet you agree with me, Mr. Dundee. You're the only thrillingly handsome man besides Dad that I ever saw who looked as if he had sense."

"Thank you, Gigi," Dundee said gravely, using the nickname as she had commanded. "You're Scotch-Irish, aren't you? We're English way back on Dad's side, and 'pore white trash' on Mother's. That wouldn't be bad at all—might be lots of fun, in fact—if Abbie weren't trying so hard to be 'society' . . . Of course Dad's a born gentleman. Isn't he precious? I'm nuts on Dad, you know, and it makes Abbie simply wild because I can wind him around my little finger."

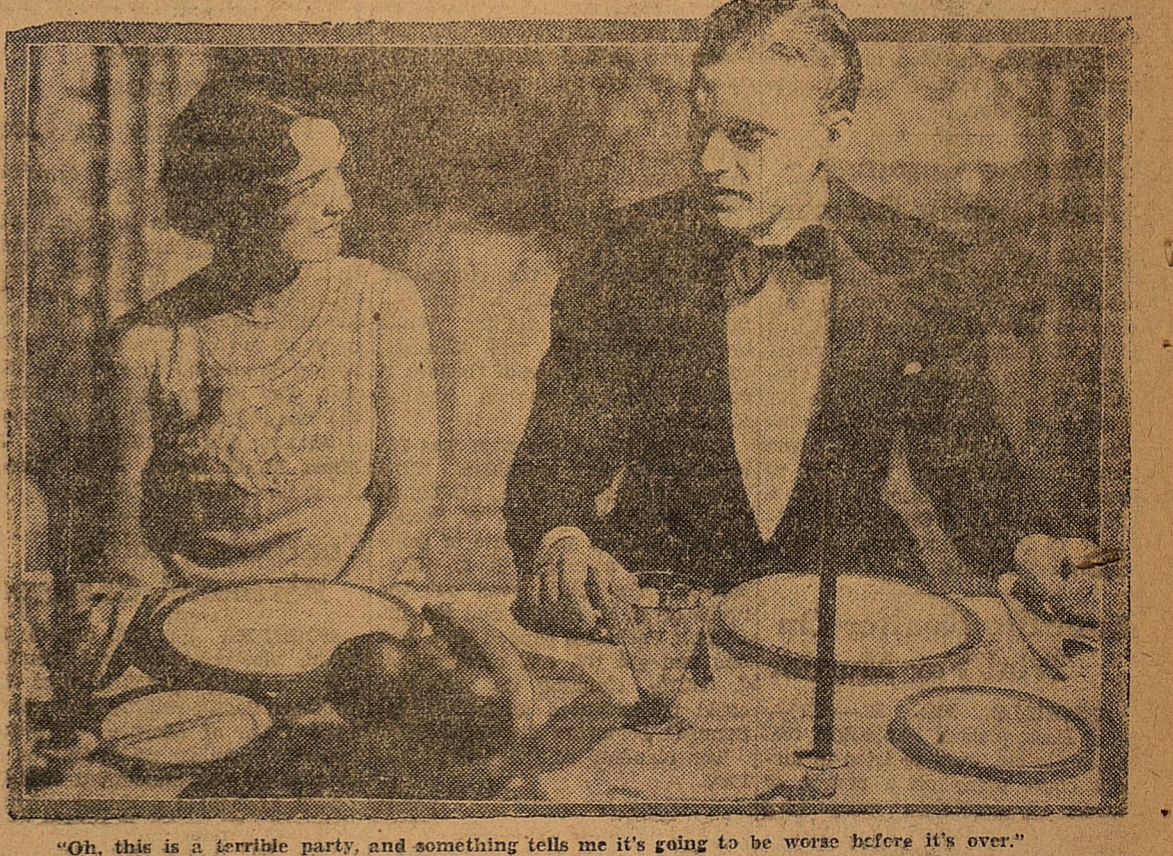

"I should think you'd be rather expert at winding any male around your most adorable little finger," Dundee assured her gallantly. "Do you really think so?" Gigi was almost pathetically earnest. "It's terrible to be only 15, and not to know whether you have sex appeal. But I do think I'm going to have quite a lot, don't you? I've only tried it out on Arnold—that's the chauffeur, and he's disgustingly in love with Doris, the lady's maid."

Dundee did not laugh. "I'm completely bowled over—if that helps!" "Oh, it does, for I've been trying to sex-appeal you all evening," she assured him shamelessly. "You see, it's rather hard with Clorinda around. She's so simply gorgeous, and I'm just a sun-burn, leggy kid. . . . What do you think of Mr. Seymour Crosby?" she added suddenly, her wide, childish eyes of clear topaz blazing up at Dundee.

He had been dodging that very question, every time the detective part of his brain had presented it to him. Now he raised his blue eyes and studied Seymour Crosby for the third or fourth time, Clorinda's fiancé being at the moment engaged in conversation with Mrs. Lambert. And suddenly it came to him, with a little shock, that Crosby and his fiancée were enough alike to be too closely related for their marriage to be legal. Both were tall and slender and very dark as to hair and eyes. Both looked like thoroughbreds, the product of centuries of blue-blooded ancestors. But where Clorinda Berkeley was arrogant, Seymour Crosby merely had that indefinable air of pride in birth and position.

"If he were not so young, I believe I should characterize Mr. Crosby as a gentleman of the old school—and I mean that in the best sense," Dundee answered Gigi, in all sincerity. Looking at Seymour Crosby, those dark speculations upon the mystery with which he was connected seemed impertinent and absurd. "So young!" Gigi echoed. "He's 34! Dad's simply wild!" They were interrupted by Mrs. Berkeley, who was calling: "Clorinda! . . . What is the child brooding over, to make her deaf? . . . Clorinda!" Gigi giggled and leaned close to Dundee. "Listen to Abbie! Doesn't she sound exactly like one of the bugle horns on a car? Ta-ta-ta-ta!" "You little fiend!" Dundee chided her, but she laughed as hard as she dared. And then she looked curiously at Clorinda Berkeley. "Tam sorry, Mother," she was saying stiffly. "What is it?" "Your Aunt Lily has been trying for ages to attract your attention, darling," her mother soothed her. "Oh, it's really nothing, Clorinda," Mrs. Benjamin Smith twittered apologetically. "Ben and I were just wondering if you knew John Maxwell is in town. You remember John Maxwell? . . . But how silly I am! If anyone in Hamilton remembers John Maxwell, it must be you, Clorinda. Everyone was sure you were going to marry him—" Mrs. Berkeley interrupted sharply, with a venomous glance at her sister-in-law. "Clorinda was never engaged to John Maxwell. It was simply one of those boy-and-girl crushes, wasn't it, Clorinda darling?" "It was not!" Clorinda said clearly, curly, her nostrils quivering and her black eyes blazing briefly upon her mother. It was Mrs. Lambert's exquisite tact which lifted the dinner party out of its nightmarish quality. "Isn't she precious?" Gigi whispered softly to Dundee. "I simply adore her. When she first came I tried to be exactly like her, but of course I'm really not a lady and never can be one, so it was no go, and Tish herself told me to go right on being myself. She says that in real society you can be as frank and eccentric as you want to be, especially if you're a member of the younger generation, and it's just considered a swell line."

"Do you want to go into 'society'?" Dundee led her on. "I suppose I'll have to," Gigi replied gloomily. "For years they've been shooting the works at me—in ritzy schools and camps. I can ride and shoot and swim and hunt, play tennis and golf, but—I can't spit a curve in the wind!" she added with mock grief. "Say, would you dope it out that Clorinda and Mr. Crosby are in love with each other? They don't look it, though Mr. Crosby is the most chivalrous-acting thing I ever saw—and if there's one of those electric currents vibrating between them, like you read about in novels, I can't feel it!" To himself Dundee admitted: "Neither can I," but Mrs. Benjamin Smith's tactless remark explained at least half of the situation. And, undoubtedly, the Berkeley millions explained Seymour Crosby's conduct quite fully. And Dundee was sorry, for he could not help liking that tall, slim, exquisite with the sad, gentle, brown eyes, Gentie? That might be a strange word to apply to Seymour Crosby, if certain whispered things were true. . . . The butler, at an imperious signal from his mistress, was advancing from the sideboard, with the napkin-wrapped champagne bottle in his hands, when Dundee, to his surprise, saw George Berkeley countermand his wife's order by a stern and unmistakable gesture. Wicket hesitated and involuntarily looked toward Mrs. Lambert for guidance. Dundee switched puzzled blue eyes to the social secretary and saw her move her silver-crowned head slightly in the negative. Perhaps Mrs. Berkeley had failed to see her husband's gesture; at any rate, it was upon poor Mrs. Lambert that she opened the vials of her easy wrath. "Obey me instantly, Wicket! Fill the champagne glasses all around. And kindly remember in future that I, and not Mrs. Lambert, am mistress in this house! . . . Of course I realize, dear Mrs. Lambert, that it may be natural for Wicket to forget that we are no longer his employer, but I really must ask you not to forget again!" "Fill mine to the brim, Wicket!" young Dick Berkeley cried, his voice reckless with disgust. "Oh, I hate us all!" Gigi whispered fiercely to Dundee. "How Mother dares speak like that to Mrs. Lambert! I know the poor darling would leave in a minute if she weren't so poverty-poor—And Wicket would walk right out, too, if it weren't that he adores Tish. He was her butler for years and years before she lost all her money, you know. . . . Oh, this is a terrible party, and something tells me it's going to be worse before it's over!" And Bonnie Dundee silently agreed with her. (To Be Continued)

The Syncopated Three-Step--Slow Music

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Syncopated Three Step, described below, is one of Arthur Murray's favorite dances. This is the eighth of twelve dances in a series on "Stepping in Style" which the noted instructor is writing for The Reporter-Telegram and NEA Service. By ARTHUR MURRAY Written for NEA Service. The Syncopated Three Step is perhaps the most popular of all steps which good dancers do to the new slow music that Rudy Vallee and Guy Lombardo have helped to popularize. First learn the steps and then remember to hold the first and fourth beats twice as long as any of the other beats. The first step and the fourth are given a double syncopated action. Here is the count for the Syncopated Three Step: 1. Step forward on the left foot. 2. Step diagonally forward to the right. 3. Draw the left foot up to the right, with your weight on the left. 4. Step directly forward with the right foot. 5. Draw the right foot up to the left, with your weight on the right foot. Practice this step for 30 minutes, going in the line of direction. If you haven't a phonograph or radio, go to a music store or to a friend and ask to have the "Vagabond Lover" (fox trot) or "If I'm Dreaming" (waltz) played slowly. Hum or whistle with the music and then hold your weight on the first step twice as long as on the second and third beats. Also, give double time to the fourth beat.

Study the diagram in learning the Syncopated Three-Step, illustrated above by Arthur Murray and a dancing partner.

Old Timer Wants To See Midland Papers

Old timers will remember the Gazette back in the city, probably 40 years ago.

Deplores Throwing Away of Old Relics

PAINT ROCK, Tex., Feb. 26 (AP)—Burial sites of a race that has bowed to the progress of man are being despoiled by the inept hand of the amateur, says O. L. Sims, county judge here and an authority on history and culture of the Southwest. Amateurs are digging out Indian graves and throwing away priceless relics, he said. They are stumbling into remains of villages from the Concho country to the Rio Grande. "People who are mildly interested and don't know the process required to save the articles they may recover go into the caves of the Big Bend country, find pottery, baskets and other relics and toss aside the fabrics that are covered with the dust of ages. An expert sifts the dust from these caves and gets fine beads. The earth is removed with a trowel from the fabrics, and they are painted with shellac for preservation. Then these can be removed to a museum," Mr. Sims said. Harold J. Clark of Dallas was in Midland Tuesday and today on business with local firms.

DALLAS HANGS HOPE IN "SOX", HOPING FOR CHICAGO SANTA

STEER SHOULD BE BOGY MAN THIS SEASON IN LEAGUE

By JERE R. HAYES, Dallas Times-Herald Sports Editor. Written For The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Feb. 26. (P) — "Hope!"

A mighty powerful word in baseball parlance, without which many a financial flop would be reported instead of a neat profit.

And "hope" is the watchword with Dallas fandom. There's no secret in the fact that the Dallas Steers are closely aligned with the Chicago White Sox.

Should "Big Jim" Moore, George Blackerby, Vic Frazier, George Connolly, Ernie Smith, or some other members of the Paige Hose roster tabbed for minor league service find their way to Dallas, the Mavericks would be strictly in the way of the argument for the flag opened. And the fate of the Dallas club hinges on the number of Classen — such as named — that the Sox turn over to the Steers.

At the current writing, the best one could rate the Maverick entry would be third — with Houston and Fort Worth going down on the winter books as favorites in the order named.

Goose Is High
The Cardinals of St. Louis, it seems, are determined to plant another pennant in the Bayou City. And when the Redbird officials make such a decision, it's powerful hard for the other club to match the talent forwarded to the Bison City.

Fort Worth, under the guidance of Ted Robison, new owner, seems to have a young gold mine to swap for ball players. The Panthers, after several lean years which followed a reign of prosperity appear due to get back in the running strong.

The situation in Dallas is rather odd. The Dallas officials, while perfectly willing to spend cash coin for ball players they think will help the Herd in the pennant scramble, don't care to purchase talent which might be excess baggage when the White Sox send the "Dallas delegation" along.

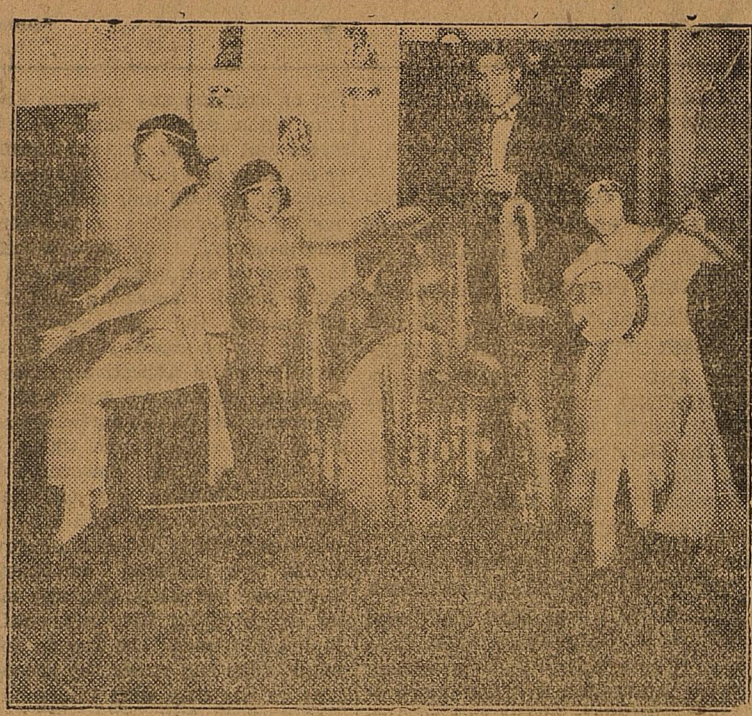

The roster of the Herd, as it now stands, isn't anything to bring tears to the eyes of the Mav supporters. Nor should they stay up at night celebrating. It is to be frank, around the average.

The catching staff seems set with Robertson and Tillman on hand. The infield isn't half bad with Radcliff at first, Swanson or Morse at second, Willingham or Borelli at third and Windle at short. But the inner works could stand another tried and tested performer, two of the men being counted on being rookies.

Rebenthal, Harvel, and Johnson furnish an outfield that is just so-so, on paper. It might pan out to be a wonderful trio — and it might be a flop.

Pitchers Promising
The pitching staff, as it is made up at present, lacks experience/d chunkers. Plenty of promising young talent is under tow — but few flippers who can be depended on before the race gets under way.

Potash Playing Big Part In Development of County

Research by Dr. J. A. Udden, director of the bureau of economic geology at the University of Texas, was responsible for the discovery of potash minerals in West Texas. This was nearly twenty years ago and while there was much interest in the discovery, because of the German monopoly of potash, yet little could be done to ascertain the value of the minerals since samples from wells that had been drilled at that time were not suitable for analysis.

The first published bulletin on the stratigraphy of the Texas Permian territory was Dr. Udden's "Deep Boiling at Spur" based on the findings of a well sunk in Dickens county by the S. M. Swenson interests in search of water. It was issued in 1914. The next year the ship, who says his arm is O. K. again, and possibly George Connolly, who is expected to return from the White Sox, are the men the Steers may get back from the last year's staff. Then Vic Frazier is expected to return from a fling at the Chicago Sox staff.

Add to this Dave Dansforth, a veteran southpaw from the Southern League, Chester Falk, a southpaw from the International, Bert Grimm, who was with Beaumont last season, and the youngsters. There's no secret in the fact that the Steer officials are not completely satisfied with their pitching. The staff has possibilities—but Atz is in search of a bit of help.

At this writing the best bet seem to be Connolly, Frazier, Danforth, Gene Moore, Tauscher, Bert Grimm and a lad from the rookie ranks, Claude Robertson, the veteran maskman, was imported from Beaumont because he's reputed to be a wonder at developing hurlers. He'll certainly get a chance to try his skill with the Mav moundsmen. And there you have it. A couple of pitchers, and infielder and two outfielders of class would "make" the Herd, and assure them a place in the sun.

But will the Steers receive the necessary help from their major league friends? Ask the Chicago Sox! They know and the fate of Steer entry is held in the palm of the Hosiery hand, so to speak.

Gets Complete Relief From Terrible Gas Pains That Cut Like a Knife

Are Your Symptoms Like Hers?
HERE is the story of a woman that every sufferer of stomach troubles ought to make it a point to read. A victim of terrible agony for 10 years, she tells about the simple treatment that ended all her troubles in just a short time.

Like many local women, Mrs. Mary Oglo is so grateful for her release from a life of pain she wants everyone to be helped and so tells her story: "I have always said and always will say that Tanlac saved my life. Few people have suffered as I have with stomach troubles in the last 10 years. The gas nearly kills me. I would be deathly sick and in bed sometimes for weeks at a time. My stomach was sore all the time, the gas would form and collect right in the side and cut like a knife, I had to call in doctors. They said gall stones and gall bladder. Sour stomach and gases almost choked me to death and bothered my heart. Meat and potatoes were forbidden. I spent lots of money but my suffering increased instead of getting better. Certainly a harder task could not have been found for Tanlac, yet this medicine has succeeded and as I said, saved my life. My stomach troubles have yielded. I have a good digestion and best of all is relief from gases. I eat everything and gained so much in strength that I look like a different person. In best health in 10 years, that expresses it and tells the story of what Tanlac has done for me." Just the first dose or two of Tanlac will bring relief that will amaze you. Tanlac is a real medicine based on modern medical science. Like everything good it has its weak and ineffective imitations. So do not accept a substitute. Tanlac must help you or money back. fairly different in composition from the European potash deposits. The latter are mainly composed of minerals which were formed from prior deposits of polyhalite and recrystallization; these secondarily formed minerals containing chlorides in preponderating amounts, and they are quite soluble in water.

"Polyhalite, however, is only slightly soluble in water, and this fact naturally appears as a hindrance to the refining of this mineral because the process of refining requires the dissolution of the minerals to be refined.

Little German Polyhalite

"Many maps of German mines show zones marked polyhalite, but these are merely salt deposits sprinkled with polyhalite to a maximum extent of 8 per cent of the latter, and this is too little to make the extraction of potash from it profitable.

"The potash obtained here is almost entirely in the form of potassium sulphate free from chlorides. In order to ascertain the exact cost of this procedure, a complete design of a refinery was made and the cost of production calculated. The figures that arrived at were then submitted to the technical staff of a large concern which makes equipment for such work, and also to an alkali specialist in New York—both of whom confirmed Dr. Schoch's figures.

"In this connection, it should be noted that for most purposes potassium sulphate is preferable to potassium chloride," says Dr. Schoch. "It does not attract moisture, and hence is more easily stored and handled than the chloride, and it can be used for all crops as a fertilizer, while the chloride can not be used for all crops. European potash maps primarily produce potassium chloride and naturally sell this product as much as possible. They make potassium sulphate secondarily from the chloride, and hence, for the same potash content, the cost of producing the sulphate is about one-third more than that of producing the chloride—the present prices, per ton, at New York, being $35.30 for the chloride and $46.15 for the sulphate. But even with the higher price, the amount of potassium sulphate imported into the United States in 1928 is 150,000 tons, and the amount is steadily increasing.

"Hence the possibility of the production of the sulphate direct from the West Texas deposits is particularly significant, and more so when it is realized that this ore makes it possible to produce potassium sulphate at a figure far below that at which European manufacturers can produce it. No one else will be able to compete with West Texas in the production of potassium sulphate.

"This announcement of the perfection of the process to refine the West Texas potash ore's indicate that there is a secure basis for a Texas potash industry. This announcement was not made prior to this time in order to allow ample time for checking all cost figures.

"It is interesting to note that the foundation for an extensive Texas potash industry was laid entirely by Texas people: First, the discovery of potash mineral particles in West Texas as by Dr. J. A. Udden, director of the bureau of economic geology at the university; second, the locating and revealing of economically mineable deposits by means of core drills by M. Agrest of Dallas, and finally the working out of a refining process best suited to these ores by Dr. Schoch."

THREE IMPORTANT FACTORS

ENTER INTO THE COST OF

YOUR AUTOMOBILE

1. How much it costs to make the car
2. How much extra you pay the dealer
3. How much it costs for operation and up-keep

THE PURCHASE of an automobile involves a considerable amount of money and it should be carefully considered from all angles before a final decision is made.

The value of the car to you depends on the value built into it at the factory, how much extra you pay the dealer for distribution, selling, financing and accessories and what it will cost to operate and maintain the car after purchase. Each of these factors, as it relates to the Ford car, is frankly explained below.

Economy in production

THE FORD CAR is made economically because of the efficiency of Ford production methods. The money saved through this efficiency is put back into the car in improved quality of material and in greater care and accuracy in manufacturing. The constant effort is to eliminate waste and find ways to make each part better and better without increasing cost—frequently at lowered cost.

Because of Ford economies in large production and because the Ford organization operates on a low-profit margin, the price you pay for the car is much less than it would be under any other conditions. Yet it brings you many unusual features of construction and performance.

At least $75 extra value is represented alone by the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, the Rustless Steel, the four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, and the five steel-spoke wheels. The unusually large number of ball and roller bearings and the extensive use of fine steel forgings instead of castings or stampings are additional features that reflect the high quality built into every part of the car. Throughout, it is a value far above the price you pay.

Low dealer charges

THE SAME PRINCIPLES of efficiency and economy that characterize the manufacture of the Ford car are applied also to distribution. Obviously it would do the public little good to save in production if these savings were sacrificed later in excessive costs of selling, financing and accessories.

The Ford dealer, therefore, operates on the same low-profit margin as the Ford Motor Company, his discount or commission being the lowest of any automobile dealer. He does a good business because he makes a small profit on many sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales.

Low charges for time payments through the Universal Credit Company

The lower cost of selling, combined with the low charges for financing and accessories, means a direct saving of at least $50 to $75 to every purchaser of a Ford, in addition to the savings made possible by economies in manufacturing. The money you pay for a Ford goes into value in the car. It is not wasted in high dealer charges.

Low up-keep costs

IT IS IMPORTANT to remember that the cost of your automobile is not the first cost only, but the total cost after months and years of service. Here again there is a decided saving when you buy a Ford.

The cost of operation and up-keep is lower because of simplicity of design, the high quality of material, and the reduction of friction and wear through unusual accuracy in manufacturing and assembling. The reliability and longer life of the car contribute to its low depreciation per year of use.

The intelligent, painstaking service rendered by Ford dealers is under close factory supervision and is a factor in the low up-keep cost of the Ford. All labor is billed at a flat rate and replacement parts are always available at low prices through Ford dealers in every section of the United States.

In two, three or five years, depending on how much you drive, the saving in operating and maintaining a new Ford will amount to even more than the saving on the first cost of the car.

BAD LITTLE PLAYBOY JUAREZ TIRED OF BEING GOOD; WANTS RE-INSTATEMENT OF GAMBLING DEVICES THERE

By TOM MAHONEY (Written for United Press) CIUDAD JUAREZ, Chih., Feb. 26. (UP)—With a new figure in the presidential palace at Mexico City and changes in the Chihuahua state government, this picturesque border city nurses hopes of regaining its ancient prestige as a Mecca for the nabobs of sport.

Juarez is tired of being good. It has been four years since thoroughbreds trod the great race track here. It has been 12 months since a roulette wheel turned in the Tivoli, once regarded as the greatest gambling hall in America. Delegations of Juarez officials and business men are now in Mexico City urging that President Ortiz Rubio remedy the situation by granting new concessions.

Many things have combined to force wicked Juarez into paths of rectitude. Because profits of the Tivoli served as a war chest for the Escobar revolutionists in the spring of 1929, the federal government has refused to allow the games to reopen. Many Juarez cafe and saloon men urged the ban for selfish reasons. They contended that the less money left at the gaming table, the more for eating and drinking. The El Paso Ministerial Alliance and the El Paso chamber of commerce, just across the Rio Grande, also made many gestures of disapproval regarding the games.

Demands of state and national authorities have kept the race track idle. Government officials seized the entire game receipts the last day of Wm. P. Kyme's meet in December, 1928, and no promoter has dared a program here since. The 600 stables are falling into ruin and the great hole in the grandstand roof, made by a U. S. army shell fired at Pancho Villa in 1929, never has been repaired.

Even the habits in the cabaret district south of the city have felt ill winds. In January of this year the Juarez city government passed an ordinance requiring that all of the entertainers be Mexican citizens. This eliminated several scores of French and American entertainers.

Fate has left Juarez its liquor, however, and since May, 1929, the U. S. Treasury department has provided a midnight international bridge. Sixteenth of September Street in Juarez boasts more saloons than any other street in the world. All of the saloons cused from El Paso by prohibition moved to Juarez and there is a bar every 20 feet for six blocks. Some of the more notable Juarez bars are: Central, Mint, Big Kid's, Lobby, Tivoli, Toltec, Rio Grande, O'Brien's, St. Louis, Turf, Owl, Emporium, Kenos, Annex, and Oasis. There is even a "Lindbergh" bar. It was established and christened at the time of the flyer's visit to El Paso.

Prices are reasonable, the liquor is of good quality and most of the bartenders are Americans. Hundreds of tourists juggle beer glasses with one hand while they write postcards to the folks in the United States, a quarter of a mile distant, with the other. Food at the Juarez cafes is excellent and unusual. Venison and duck are on the menu nearly the whole year due to the generous Mexican game laws. Some of the cafe owners, Harry Mitchell for example, have become famous throughout the country for their manner of entertaining.

Juarez also is a port of call for prominent Americans desiring rapid marriage or quick and secret divorce. Since the Texas gin wedding law requiring three days notice of intentions to marry went into effect last year, Juarez weddings have tripled. No residence at all is required for a divorce in Juarez. The plaintiff simply supplies a Juarez lawyer with a certificate of his marriage and the grounds upon which he hopes to obtain a decree. The lawyer files suit and the charges are printed in the state journal, a Chihuahua City Spanish language paper of little circulation. Unless the party of the second part sees the notice and objects, the decree is granted forthwith.

CONSIDERATION FOR VETS COMES UP, SAYS LOVE

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 6. (P)—All of the opportunities of parliamentary procedure are to be brought into play in an effort to give committee consideration to a bill providing for an increase in the pensions of Confederate veterans and their widows, according to Sen. Thomas B. Love of Dallas, sponsor of the measure.

Consideration of the bill was presented at the opening of the fifth called session of the forty-first legislature when Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller held that the senate would not take up any bills that did not come under call of the governor. At previous sessions Miller had held that any bill might be presented for deliberation. He reversed himself on the ground that it was futile for the senate to pass legislation only to have it killed in the house where the speaker refused to allow debate on measures not submitted by the governor.

The Love pension bill was ruled out in the House at the last session on the ground that it was unconstitutional.

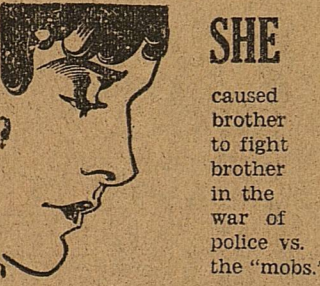

Love stated he had twice obtained the opinion of the attorney general on the bill and its constitutionality was upheld in both instances. He stated he would make an effort to induce Lieut. Gov. Miller to reconsider his decision barring all legislation not submitted by the governor and falling in this would attempt to have the governor submit the matter to the legislature. He indicated the governor might be agreeable to such procedure.

The bill would provide for an increase of $5 a month in the pay of married Confederate veterans and would leave the pensions of single veterans and widows at $25. The payments, however, would be made monthly and not by quarters as at present.

"It is confidence in the public that we ought to inspire, not a reputation for having a row of multi-colored bottles, especially. The public knows that spectrum is sometimes as efficacious as the fountain of youth. Our tonics and remedies are good, no doubt of it; but some of them are not what a particular customer needs. The barber is the best judge of that. He should have his magnifying glass and study minutely the needs of the scalp about to be treated."

Rainey gave a brief review of barbering from the days of the Persians, Egyptians, Assyrians and other ancients. He showed that barbers equated to ply their trade in the Sahara, shaved the entire bodies of some of their clients—"thank modern times for a change in such laws or customs"—and so on to the days of the Reds, "who showed supreme disregard for a razor at all."

"There are fine points to be found in barbering, as well as other arts, he showed. Cleanliness and sanitation and courtesy are basic in this postulate, he said. "The Midland barber shop cannot expect to stand still, fixed in its methods, while the rest of the arts industries leap forward under impetus of new motivation. New instruments, medicinal remedies, practical use of physical and chemical laws and other necessary usage are now being introduced. The old days passeth."

A large group was present in the Llano barber shop to see a "customer" receive scalp treatment. That the one in the chair was a reporter attributed to his "getting the works." in all forms to dermatologist.

An effort will be made by Barry to schedule for his heavy hitting team two games a week. He does not specify who plans the club, league team or otherwise, just so play is conducted under interscholastic league rules.

Teams desiring games with the Midland school are invited to address Coach Barry or the sports desk of The Reporter-Telegram.

gical massage and the ultra-violet and infra-red rays.

A new machine, the Blut-Rub, was demonstrated. It works as an artificial stimulator of the cranial blood vessels in their most sparse areas, on the top of the head. It does the work of a barber in a small fraction of the time generally required for manual treatment. It is scientific, working under rubber pads which are sterilized after each operation, and has electrical connections.

Correct and incorrect methods were demonstrated throughout, especially in the use of the ray machines. "Sparting" of the current, creating of an arc from the points of the machine to the customer's body, causes most customers to leave off that treatment, Rainey said.

The "customer" in the chair held an electrode and the power of the ultra violet rays showed as students gathered in a circle, joining hands to form a circuit. Fingers pointed at the "victim's" neck caused a series of snapping sparks to leap the gap to his body.

Represented at the meeting were several men from a great distance, among them J. H. Webster, Tacoma, Washington, and formerly in the Spanish-American war and the Philippine campaign. He acted as an aid to General Wright and as a member of President Taft's body-guard. He was one of those who bartered while chasing Aguilnaldo over the islands and to Luzon. Two, Carroll Jackson and John Horn, were from Peecos, while several Stanton men were present.

John W. Graham found the lecture course interesting as a continuation of work studied in Virginia during the war.

TAXIING AROUND THE AIRPORT

Lieutenants C. C. Jerome and A. D. Cooley, and Captain E. F. The marine ships had been to Florida and were on their return trip.

J. G. Watts and wife in an American Eagle, en route from Dallas to Los Angeles, landed for refueling yesterday afternoon, and a Murray Tool and Supply company ship brought a man from Wink to Midland to catch the S. A. T. liner to El Paso.

Local Boy To Tour With Cowboy Band

The distinction of being among 37 members of the Cowboy band of Simmons university who will make a 2,000-mile tour of central and South Texas has been conferred on Walter Elkin, a Midland boy.

The band played before 1,500 people in the university auditorium Tuesday night. They left this morning for Fort Worth by bus as a beginning of their tour, which will carry them into ten towns for eleven engagements.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon the Cowboys will play for 30 minutes over WBAP, Fort Worth. They will give a concert at the Central high school auditorium tonight. Other engagements are scheduled in Itasca, Temple, Belton, San Antonio, Beville, Harlingen, Corpus Christi, Laredo, Kerrville, and Ballinger.

Using essentially the same program which they will give in towns along the tour, 37 members of the band scored a decided success last evening. The results of weeks of preparation for the Valley tour, and incidentally the European trip this summer, were seen in the precision and tone quality of the picked stage band.

Selections from Victor Herbert, Sousa, and other contemporary composers, combined with popular and novelty numbers kept the audience thoroughly entertained. "Wild Bill" Kelly, 11-year-old snare drummer of Post, honorary member of the band, brought the house down with his solo work in two marches. The trumpet quartet, composed of Reeves, Covington, Walker, and McNelly, also scored a hit with their rendition of popular numbers.

None of the special numbers, however, overshadowed the ensemble work of the entire band, which was said by many to surpass any performance ever given before by the Cowboys.

Leaders Conduct Tour

Prof. D. O. Willey, conductor, Y. P. Kuhn, drum major, and G. B. Sandefer, manager, will lead the band on the tour. Boys making the trip are Ralph Anderson, Dewitt Black, Percy Brooks, Troy Dale, James Dinwiddie, St. Clair Edwards, Walter Elkin, Marion Ethridge, Joe Gilbert, Stewart Jernigan, Elmo Low, Kenneth McCullough, Charles Murray, E. T. Simmons, Ray Sims, Merle Tucker, Claude Rowe, Fred Etzelstein, Estell Patterson, William Covington, Weldon Covington, Cecil Wommack, Wix Curry, Colby DeLaney, Gordon Fitzhugh, Horace Gustaves, Jewell Humphries, Knox Kelly, Holmes McNelly, Joe Mewshaw, Furman Moore, Fred Rattan, Roy Reeves, Millard Shaw, Richard Walker, Emmet Howard and David Kuhn.

RETURNS FROM WEST

J. A. Haley returned last night from an extended trip to California and Arizona points. He spent some time at El Centro and at Phoenix, and reports his health much improved.

Dallas Cotton Market

The cotton market during the first half session was comparatively quiet and featureless. Held Range 10 points during morning. Noon calls were unchanged from previous close.

The market opened steady 5 to 12 points higher. March in New York 15.10, May 15.40, July 15.60, October 15.85, or 10 to 12 points not higher. Later morning active months were 3 to 4 points under previous close. Early advance in Liverpool covering by shorts and continental buying with contracts scarce in Liverpool. Early pries were 6 to 7 higher, against 2 to 5 higher. After selling 8 to 10 points net higher, market reacted. Close barely steady, 2 to 3 net higher on day. Spots steady 13 higher with fair demand, sales 4,000 bales and imports 5,000 bales.

Since You Read this CHALLENGE on November 14th, 1929 An Army of American Motorists has Changed to CONOCO

Germ-Processed Motor Oil

The Seven Claims in Conoco's Challenge that Brought this Amazing Public Acceptance of Conoco's Germ-Processed Motor Oil

- 1 Combines with metal surfaces and never leaves bearings and other working parts.
- 2 Refined from carefully selected paraffin base crudes by patented processes. That means stability.
- 3 Positively increases gasoline mileage by reducing friction. That means economy.
- 4 Will not break down under cylinder wall heat. That means less oil consumption.
- 5 Substantially reduces motor wear in starting because this oil penetrates metal surfaces and stays there. Other oils require 15 to 20 minutes to lubricate all moving parts.
- 6 Crankcase dilution does not seriously impair its "oiliness" value. That means greater motor protection.
- 7 Will lubricate efficiently at sub-zero temperatures. That means thoroughly de-waxed oil.

Have you noticed that Conoco stations have been busier in the past few months? The reason is, of course, that amazing new oil, Conoco Germ-Processed.

Introduced only last November, this revolutionary motor lubricant has startled even its makers by its instant public acceptance.

There's a moral for you in this wholesale change of oil-buying habits by the motoring public. Everyone realizes now that something happened in the motor oil business when this new oil was announced. When you start using this oil you'll realize it too.

By providing more economical car operation, by guaranteeing a radical reduction in motor wear, and particularly, by penetrating metal surfaces and providing constant lubrication under every conceivable operating condition... Conoco Germ-Processed oil sets up a new gauge of motor oil merit.

We firmly believe that you will buy no other oil except Conoco Germ-Processed oil after using it for a fair period of time. Won't you make that trial to-day, at any station bearing the Red Triangle?
