GOODWILL TRAIN DATE IS SET

Date for the Midland goodwill special train trip to Hobbs is definitely set for May 13. This date comes on Tuesday, which was selected to suit business men who wish to make the trip.

The date was originally set for April 19, but due to the fact that nearly half the high school band is in interscholastic contests at San Angelo on that date, the Midland special was postponed.

The round trip fare is only $3.50. The round trip distance is about 300 miles.

Stops will be made at Odessa, Monahans, Wink, Kermit, Jal, Eunice, and Hobbs.

It is believed that nearly 300 Midland people will go. The special train, chartered by the Midland chamber of commerce through its automobile and retail committee, will carry Midland people only.

The trip appeals to many because it is cheap. The rate is about one cent a mile, which is much less than traveling by automobile.

The trip will have the advantage over an auto trip in that no punctures, no bad roads, no dust, no hot motors, no pulling and pushing will be necessary.

Following is the schedule: Leave Midland at 7 a. m., arrive Monahans 8:20 a. m., stop 30 minutes leaving Monahans at 8:50; arrive Wink 9:30; leave Wink at 10:30; stop of one hour at Wink; arrive Kermit at 10:50; leave Kermit at 11:05; a stop of 15 minutes; arrive Hobbs at 2 p. m., leave Hobbs at 3:30 p. m., a stop of one and a half hours; arrive Eunice 4:25; leave Eunice 4:40; a stop of 15 minutes; arrive Jal 5:50 p. m.; leave Jal 6:10 p. m.; a stop of 20 minutes; arrive Monahans 7:35; leave Monahans 7:40 p. m.; arrive Odessa 8:30 p. m.; leave Odessa 9:30 p. m.; stop 1 hour; arrive back home at Midland 10 p. m.

Women and children as well as men will make the trip. Many Midland who have never seen the Winkler, Ector, Jal and Hobbs oil fields, and will go just to see these four oil fields.

Carelessness in operation of an airplane was charged in a suit filed at Carlsbad, N. MURDER By Anne Austin BACKSTAIRS

CHAPTER XLV

At nine o'clock that Sunday evening Dundee descended to the library, put in a call to the laboratory of Dr. Abel Jennings, city chemist and toxicologist, and received the report that wood alcohol impurities had been found in the specimen of perfumed earth from the summer-house flooring.

bridge game," he began. "but there is a question I must ask you."

"I thought the district attorney had taken over the case," George Berkeley retorted stiffly. "It is Mr. Sherwood's privilege to investigate any case for his own office, but he cannot ask the police to abandon their own lines of inquiry," Dundee explained courteously. He paused, groping for words with which to frame a question, so that it would indicate the possession of knowledge which he did not possess at all.

The multimillionaire fell into the trap. "I saw no one on my way to my daughter's room, but when I was leaving I saw Wickett emerging from my wife's sitting room." Dundee concealed his exultation. Not by the flicker of an eyelid must he betray to George Berkeley that not until this moment had he known of the visit to Gigi's room. The trap had been laid upon the flimsiest of foundations—merely a long-delayed recollection of the fact that when he—Dundee—had returned to the drawing-room Friday night after his telephone call to Police Headquarters, Berkeley was not in the room and did not return until just before Clorinda Berkeley announced her intention of going to bed.

"That was when Wickett took the perfume flask to Mrs. Berkeley's room," he said casually.

"I believe so," Mr. Berkeley answered coldly. "Though I did not know at the time what his errand was."

Dundee tried another shot in the dark. "When you went into your wife's rooms yourself, did you notice the perfume flask?"

"I went no further than the sitting-room," Berkeley answered. Again the trap had sprung. "I was there only five or six minutes, possibly less time."

"What was your errand to your wife's sitting-room, Mr. Berkeley?" Dundee asked sternly.

His host's stern, handsome face flushed darkly, but he answered: "I was using my wife's telephone. I wanted to make a call and her telephone was the nearest. I tried to reach my lawyers, but there was no answer."

For the third time, but very confidently now, Bonnie Dundee pretended knowledge he did not possess. "That call to your lawyer was a direct result of your few minutes' talk with Gigi, was it not, Mr. Berkeley?"

The millionaire shrugged and this flush on his face deepened. "I am not surprised that Gigi has tattled. She has a very loose tongue. But I can assure you that I was not following her hysterical suggestion. I was not about to consult my lawyer in his professional capacity, but as a friend. He has a daughter of Gigi's age, whom he has enrolled in a junior college in the east. After my talk with Gigi, I suddenly made up my mind to send her to this college, instead of permitting her to remain at home this winter as her mother had planned. Mrs. Berkeley's idea was that Gigi should be groomed for society by Mrs. Lambert. I wished to ask my lawyer's opinion of the college, for a girl of Gigi's

When the two maids, looking very tired and frightened, entered the butler's pantry, the detective hastened to reassure them. "I'll keep you only a minute, girls, and I'm not going to accuse either of you of murdering Doris Matthews. But I want to ask you a question and I want you both to think hard before answering it: While cleaning bathrooms and hand-basins yesterday and today, either downstairs or upstairs, has either of you noticed the odor of perfume about a drain pipe?"

The girls looked at each other blankly, then shook their heads decidedly in the negative.

"Would you have noticed such an odor if perfume had been poured down a drain pipe?" Dundee persisted.

"I'm sure I would, sir, since there's been so much talk about perfume, on account of poor Doris being hit over the head with a bottle of it," Della answered. "But I didn't smell any perfume at all yesterday or today. That is, in the bathrooms. All of the clothes closets smell of perfume because Miss Gigi sprinkled it on everybody before Doris was hit with the bottle. But I haven't smelled any at all anywhere else. Mrs. Berkeley uses violet bath salts, but she hasn't even used any of them since Doris was killed."

"I don't clean upstairs—just this floor, but I didn't smell any perfume in the lavatory down here," Peggy assured him.

"Then will you take particular notice tomorrow morning—both of you—and report to me if there is such an odor from a drain pipe?" Dundee asked, with his friendliest smile, reinforced by a five-dollar bill for each of the girls. "And don't mention to anyone—not even District Attorney Sherwood or Captain Strawn—that we've had this little talk."

"A slim chance, but one that I couldn't afford to overlook," he said to himself as he left the butler's pantry and turned toward the drawing-room.

Five minutes later he accompanied George Berkeley to the library and closed the door.

"Please forgive me, Mr. Berkeley, for calling you away from your

The papers were late yesterday, all by accident. An obstruction on the press bed tore the press blanket, snagged the quilt, ripped the sheet, busted the mattress and almost bent the springs before the press could be stopped. It just had to be fixed, that's all.

Evelts Haley says The Reporter-Telegram is always up to date, if not ahead of time. It carried a story a short time ago about a speech he delivered, giving the speech almost verbatim, but the story appeared before Evelts made the speech.

A Rotarian yesterday thought he had a good joke on the Lions club for giving a Scotch program, having the entertainers appear at a quarter of one, just after the meal was completed; but he was reminded of the day the Midget dancers and their mothers visited the Rotary club at 12:30 and were asked to stand at one end of the room until the Rotarians finished eating.

"So am I... If you'll pardon me, I'll go back to my bridge game," Berkeley answered stiffly.

Half an hour later Wickett was admitted to the lower room. He came bearing a tray of sandwiches and coffee, as well as information which seemed to puzzle him exceedingly.

"I have checked the contents of the fountains, sir," he said, depositing his tray as far from the parrot's cage as the length of the table allowed. "Here are the figures, sir. And I can't understand them at all. Mr. Berkeley's fountain was full and less than one ounce of wood alcohol had been removed from any of the others, except Mrs. Berkeley's. I can swear I filled it full on Friday, sir, but I found less than two ounces in it and it holds five."

"That's our secret, Wickett," Dundee warned him.

When the butler had left, the detective locked the door at the foot of the stairs, returned to the tower room and locked its door, then addressed his parrot:

"I'm afraid you're in for a long session, my dear Watson!"

SHALL TEXAS MANUFACTURE ITS COTTON?

It is quite natural that attention should be directed to the Texas region as offering such advantages that an ultimate movement of the cotton manufacturing industry to this region might be conceived as possible. A very recent survey of the situation has been made to study the conditions which would encourage or discourage an expansion of the Texas cotton mill industry.

This survey shows that the labor in Texas is overwhelmingly native-born, and of a stock similar to the mountaineer native in the Appalachians. In addition, there is native and imported labor of Mexican type. Experience in the existing cotton mills has shown both of these classes to be quite efficient.

Restrictive legislation limiting the conditions under which operatives may work in cotton mills is not so severe in its provisions as in the Northern States. Night work for women is allowed; and while the standard time is 55 hours per week, operatives may work 5 hours longer provided they are paid for overtime. The legal age for the employment of children is 15 years.

Texas has an abundant source of power in its vast fields of oils and natural gas. The whole State is covered with a network of distribution lines for electric current, the plants being either steam or explosive engine driven. The existing mills have electric drive. Power stations are well distributed over the State.

Freight rates on finished cotton goods are higher from Texas to Atlantic Coast points than from New England or the Southeastern States, but the rates to the Middle West and the Pacific Coast are favorable.

It is freely predicted that the utilization of the semi-arid plains of Texas and Oklahoma will in a comparatively short time give this region a monopoly of the cotton-growing industry in the United States, for this section can grow cotton cheaper, using mass production methods. Whether the manufacturers of cotton good will follow is for the future to decide. Certainly it is not likely to expand under present conditions of overproduction.—Texas Opportunities.

THE LOTTERY WINNERS

It is interesting to read that two Massachusetts girls who went to New York and got jobs as coffee shop waitresses are $12,000 richer because they bought tickets in the English Grand National Steeplechase lotteries. Interesting—but it's not news that is going to do anyone any particular good.

Indeed, that news item probably will do a great deal of harm, in one way and another, during the next year. Hundreds of people, reading it, will be inspired to go and do likewise, and will spend money they cannot afford to lose on lottery tickets that will bring them nothing whatever.

If the news excites you, you might remember that for every story like that that gets printed there are several thousand that do not get printed—the stories of those who bought lottery tickets and got nothing.

Buying lottery tickets is foolish business, even if one person in 10,000 does get rich out of it.

IN THE WORLD OF AVIATION

By KEITH JONES, United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 15, (UP)—There are now 24 light airplane clubs in Great Britain with a membership of over 4,000, the great majority of whom have already learned or are at present learning to fly.

The newest of these clubs is the Stock Exchange Club open to members of the Stock Exchange and their friends.

At the present time only 13 of the 24 clubs are operating under a government subsidy, but an extension of the subsidy as provided for in the 1930 Air Service appropriations will enable all 24 clubs to share the benefits of the subsidy and probably encourage the rapid formation of still other clubs. Under the new subsidy arrangement the government makes to any recognized club a grant of fifty dollars for each member who trains as a pilot and obtains his flying license.

With a view to its use especially in aircraft, British metallurgists are making extensive research for a cheap method of producing a new metal known as Beryllium which is fully a third lighter than aluminum and many times stronger. Furthermore Beryllium is said to be practically non-corrosive, is four times as elastic as aluminum and 25 times as elastic as steel. Its melting point is 960 degrees Centigrade, compared with a melting point of 632 degrees Centigrade for magnesium.

In color the new metal is white, and it can be rolled into thin sheets or forged.

Beryllium has many of the properties of magnesium. It occurs chiefly in the form of the mineral beryl, of which the precious stones, the emerald and the aquamarine are two examples. This mineral is found in many parts of the world, usually in conjunction with more commercial minerals, and it is often regarded as waste. Nevertheless attempts to produce it in commercial quantities so far have proved very expensive, production costs running as high as $200 a pound.

It should be particularly valuable it is said for pistons and other parts of aircraft engines, and that the structural weight of an airplane's wings and fuselage could be materially reduced by its judicious use.

That the Rolls-Royce "R" engine used in the Supermarine-Rolls-Royce seaplane which holds the world's record of 357.7 miles per hour, weighs less than 13 ounces per horse-power, has been revealed by A. J. Rowledge, designer of the engine. In his first statement made after the lifting of the official veil of secrecy that has enshrouded the world's fastest engine, Rowledge told a joint meeting of the Institution of Royal Engineers and the Royal Aeronautical Society that this new engineering marvel develops 1900 horse-power with a weight of only 1,530 pounds, or 305 pounds per horse-power.

The Rolls-Royce "R" engine which is supercharged is V-shaped with two banks of six cylinders each. The diameter and stroke of each cylinder are 6 and 6 1/2 inches respectively. Great ingenuity has been displayed in decreasing the frontal and over-all area of the engine with the result that an almost perfect job of stream-lining was possible in fitting the engines into the noses of the record-breaking Supermarine S5 which not only broke the world's speed record over the three kilometer course, and retained the Schneider Trophy for England, but also holds all speed records from three to three hundred kilometers. Yet despite its 1900 horse-power the Rolls-Royce "R" engine could be comfortably tucked under the bonnet of almost any American 100 horse-power automobile.

JULIAN ALMOST CRASHES AFTER LEAVING MIDLAND FOR THE WEST COAST- TO TELL "ALL I KNOW" CONCERNING SWINDLE

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This, the second of two stories, tells what has happened since the $118,000,000 collapse of the Julian Petroleum Corp., sometimes called the Pacific coast's biggest oil swindle. C. C. Julian, the man who perhaps is most mixed in the controversy, landed in Midland Sunday afternoon en route to the west coast to tell "all I know" concerning the activities of Governor Young of California relative to the oil company. Julian was forced down in the plane near Yuma Tuesday, narrowly escaping a crash against a mountain, when the oil line of the plane, a six-place Buhl, became plugged.

C. C. Julian

By DON ROBERTS, NEA Service Writer.
LOS ANGELES, April 17.—When the crazy financial structure of the $118,000,000 Julian Petroleum Corporation collapsed in May, 1927, and 40,000 stockholders suddenly found the certificates they held were practically worthless, things began to happen.

The State Corporation Commission revoked the permit to sell stock. Federal court appointed receivers to recover what they could from the financial wreckage.

Prosecutors began making plans to send the looters to jail. Three years have elapsed since that time. Scores of men have been indicted, many of them have been tried. The state has spent a fortune on investigations and prosecutions.

But until this good day not one official or former official of the company has been convicted as a result of the wrecking. Nor has any trace been found of the $30,000,000 in cash that somebody got from the sale of overissued stock.

Two Prosecutors Convicted
Four men, two of them public prosecutors, have been convicted on bribery charges. District Attorney Asa Keyes is now serving 14 years in San Quentin prison and his young assistant Harold L. Davis, faces a similar term but awaits an appeal.

Ed H. Rosenberg, Los Angeles broker who figured in the complex financing and is alleged to have participated in bribing Keyes, is also in San Quentin. Ben Getzoff—a tailor and alleged "go-between" in the bribery—was convicted. But he got probation because of ill health and returned the state's favor by imploring Davis in the bribery scandal.

Sheridan C. Lewis, president of the company, has faced a number of indictments. So has Jake Berman, alias Jack Bennett, who was Lewis' right-hand man and high-presiding money getter. Neither, however has yet been convicted, although they face trial now for alleged jury bribery in a previous trial.

When Julian "Pete" crashed, H. L. Carnahan and Joseph Scott, receivers started hunting for assets. They found about $35,000,000, which included a tank farm, service stations, refining equipment, etc. Balanced against this amount were liabilities of nearly $200,000,000.

C. C. Julian, who founded the company and retired long before the crash came, flashed briefly into the picture via the radio at this time. He broadcast attacks on bankers and others whom he accused of contributing to the collapse by the weird financing. Julian is now out of the state. Investigation of the collapse never involved him.

From some of the pool operators whom they threatened with civil action, the receivers recovered about $50,000. Suit for $10,000,000 was filed against the remaining money lenders but the courts voided it. This $500,000 is all that has been returned to the company which, in its reorganization, absorbed all of the huge over-issue of stock.

The first indictment—in June, 1927—was returned against Jack Bennett, charging forgery and embezzlement. A few days later Bennett was also indicted on charges of general conspiracy, ordering alteration of corporation records, knowingly selling over-issued stock and other offenses.

On June 24, the grand jury indicted 55 men, most of them charged with conspiracy to commit usury in the frenzied loan-pool operations engineered by Bennett. Practically all were bankers, brokers and big business executives.

Alleged Wreckers Indicted
Indictments charging conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses were returned against 10 men who were either connected with the company or had participated in its complex dealings.

These were: S. C. Lewis, president; H. F. Campbell, vice president; T. P. Conroy, secretary-treasurer; Jack Bennett, the money-raiser; Louis Berman, Jack's brother; Ed Rosenberg, R. M. Reese, Charles E. Reese, William J. Kottmann, I. L. Rouse, Alex Swanson.

Trial of the men began January 5, 1928. Keyes, as district attorney, was in charge of prosecution, assisted by young Harold L. Davis. The trial dragged on. On February 11, Judge Doran rebuked Keyes from the bench for his obvious "stalling." April came and the trial has cost the county $165,000 with a total cost of $225,000 probable.

On April 25 Judge Doran, for lack of evidence, dropped the charges against Louis Berman, Campbell and Reese.

Jury Returns Acquittal
On May 23, the remaining seven defendants were acquitted by the jury.

In freeing them, Judge Doran roundly criticized Keyes. Six days later Judge Doran dismissed the remaining usury indictments against the bankers and brokers. He explained from the bench that the usurious loans were incidental to the wrecking of the corporation which he laid at the door of the seven men freed by the jury on a technicality.

Then came the surprise indictment of District Attorney Keyes as a bribe taker. Indicted with him were Bennett, Rosenberg, Ben Getzoff and three others, later freed.

In February, 1928, Keyes, Rosenberg and Getzoff were convicted. Bennett was not convicted, as he hadn't been tried. Byron Fitts, then special prosecutor and now district attorney, used him as a state's witness. Nor has Bennett ever been tried on the original embezzlement charge.

A little later, Assistant District

Attorney Davis was tried and convicted. His appeal now pends, but Keyes and Rosenberg went to prison. Getzoff won a suspended sentence.

New Trial Now Looms
Just recently came the newest sensation. Carl Vianelli, once butler for Louis Berman, charged that the jury in the 1928 trial of the seven accused of wrecking the company had been bribed.

The grand jury indicted Bennett, Lewis, Berman, Louis Krause and J. H. Weaver, alleged "pay-off men," and John C. Groves and Frank Grider, jurors.

Very soon the costly trials will start all over again. And Los Angeles is wondering if anyone will be convicted this time.

The term "surname" is supposed to come from the French "sur-nom," meaning "overname," because a person's family name was formerly written above instead of after the baptismal name.

The origin of the word "Yankee" is said to have resulted from the first attempts of the Indians of the United States to pronounce the word "English."

WOP CARNERA IS PANCAKED; BLACK LOSES, HOWEVER

OAKLAND, Cal., April 17. (UP).—Primo Carnera, the giant Italian, hit the floor last night for the first time since his American invasion but got up to win by a technical knockout over "Bombo" Chevalier, a comparatively unknown negro heavyweight, in the sixth of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Chevalier, weighing 216 pounds as compared with Carnera's 276, sent the Italian to the floor during a skirmish in the first round. The Italian bounced up immediately.

After being hit in the first round, Carnera fought cautiously until the fifth with the negro landing the cleaner blows. Carnera opened up with his heavy artillery in the fifth, however, and battered the negro over the ring.

But Chevalier refused to go down, fighting back. Late in the round "Bombo" went down for a nine count and got up. Thirty seconds later Referee Toby Irwin stepped between the two and raised the Italian's hand.

Threatening weather kept the expected attendance far down, but Carnera's manager estimated it at 15,000.

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR BUSINESS PROSPEROUS

DAYTON, O., April 17.—Prosperity being experienced by the electric refrigeration industry as preparations go forward for the heavy summer buying season is being reflected in other lines. As an example, Frigidaire Corporation has just received a shipment of German hygrometers, comprising the entire American supply of these humidity recording instruments.

Confidence that all records of his company will be broken during the present year was expressed by E. G. Blechler, president and gen. manager.

Frigidaire corporation has launched a million dollar newspaper advertising campaign which will be conducted until early summer to point outstanding features of its products. Features to be stressed include surplus power, with ability to freeze ice cubes quickly, and maintain temperatures below 50 degrees, even during the hottest weather.

"Ability to perform satisfactorily in extreme heat is the real test of an electric refrigerator," Mr. Blechler said.

"Such advantages as those afforded by the cold control, the hydrator and the convenient flat top will be brought to public attention. All porcelain-on-steel, inside and out, a life time finish as easily cleaned as a china dish, is another point. Elevated food shelves and quiet operation are other refinements upon which we are counting to help make the year another record breaker.

Midland Women Complete Organization of First City Federation Wednesday

Organization Follows After a Year of Studying Plans

Following a lecture by Dr. Manuel of Texas University, and a social hour in which members of the Mothers Culture club were hostesses to the other Midland federated clubs and other guests in the ballroom of Hotel Scharbauer, Mrs. Paul T. Vickers, president of the fine Arts club, as chairman, called a meeting of the four federated clubs present, the Fine Arts club, the Woman's Wednesday club, the Mothers Culture club, and the Delphian society, to compete organization of a city federation. Mrs. Vickers first made an announcement of the appearance of Miss Rosalinda Morini, noted singer, on Saturday night at the high school auditorium. Miss Morini's visit to Midland is sponsored by the Fine Arts club.

Plans for a city federation have been under discussion for the past year, out-of-town women have been called in to give the women ideas on organization and duties, and the Wednesday meeting of the federated clubs culminated in complete organization, with the election of officers, and naming of the board of directors.

Mrs. J. A. Haley was selected as president, Mrs. J. L. Crump as vice-president, Mrs. Harry Tolbert, treasurer, Mrs. R. M. Barron, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. M. White, parliamentarian.

The president of the four federated clubs together with these named officers make up the board of directors. Mrs. T. D. Kimbrough is president of the Mothers Culture club, Mrs. Paul T. Vickers, president of the Fine Arts club, Mrs. Frank Elkin, president of the Woman's Wednesday club, and Mrs. R. M. Barron, president of the Delphian society.

Mrs. Haley, in a few days, will call a meeting of the directors to appoint heads of different departments, so that work may be well organized and the federation ready for the first meeting in September.

The city federation is a city-wide organization, each member of a federated club becoming a member automatically, and every Midland woman who is interested in such a movement will have an opportunity to become a member, and work with the clubs.

The organization was fortunate in choice of president as Mrs. Haley comes from one of Midland's oldest families, is a member of the board of directors at Texas Technological school at Lubbock, and has done a great deal of state work, making her well qualified to head the organization.

Mrs. Fasken Honors Mother At Party

Mrs. Andrew Fasken entertained Tuesday evening for four tables of players at bridge, and other guests who came in after the games, honoring her mother, Mrs. Margaret Murray, who will return to her home in Canada the first part of next week. Tulips were floral decorations. Through the games candies were served, and delicious party luncheon plates were passed later.

Mrs. J. A. Finlayson held high score, and Mrs. Fred Turner cut high. Mrs. Murray was given a guest favor. Each table cut for cases of tulips.

Love Birds

By Fanny Darrell

A HANDFUL of twigs, some leaves, a few wisps of straw, transformed by the alchemy of Nature into a nest. A nest that holds within its tiny confines all the beauty, all the tenderness and glory of Spring. Nesting time! Building time! Admiration is built into affection, affection into love, and love into terms of home. Home—man's sanctuary, his castle of love that shields all that his life holds dear, whether that home be a cottage or a splendid mansion.

Beauty and her Beloved hear, deep within their hearts, the voice of Spring. Life stretches before them like a golden ribbon shining in the noonday sun. Into their visions, into their reveries, comes the picture that Love alone can trace. A little white mouse set in a garden gay with flowers, a home, their home, their nest built by love and labor into a dream castle in the midst of the world, yet so far away from the hurly burly of our workaday planet. Such pictures are part of the magic of Spring, and such pictures it is that spur ambition and make you realize that the best dreams are those that are inspired by love, devotion and duty.

Noted Lecturer Speaks to Midland Club Women on Child Psychology

Having as guests the Delphian society, the Fine Arts club, the Women's Wednesday club, Midland pastors and their wives, scoutmasters, and the superintendent of schools, the Mother's Self-Culture club was hostess Wednesday afternoon at a lecture delivered by Dr. Manuel, professor of educational psychology at Texas University, held in the ballroom of Hotel Scharbauer.

At one o'clock, there was a luncheon in the private dining room for members of the Mother's Culture club, and several guests, each member having the privilege of inviting one guest.

The tables carried the club colors, pink and green, in decorations. Sweet peas in green bowls were placed along the table, and petals from the flowers were scattered with fern over the cloth. Pink candles in green candlesticks further carried out the color scheme. A little table at one side was filled with blue-bonnets, and there were tall floor baskets filled with snapdragons.

Place cards carried the Easter motif in designs of rabbits and chickens. Seated at the table were Mrs. J. V. Stokes, Roy Parks, Foy Proctor, W. P. Knight, Elliott Cowden, C. M. Goldsmith, Ellis Cowden, J. D. Young, J. O. Nobles, J. E. Hill, Fred Turner, Thomas D. Murphy, M. M. Seymour, E. I. Head, T. D. Kimbrough, W. Edward Lee, T. Paul Barron, Allen Tolbert, J. M. Speed, Frank Wolcott, Myrl Jowell, John Dublin, Charles McClintic, A. Harry Anderson, and the honor guest, Dr. Manuel.

Mrs. J. D. Young acted as toast-mistress. Seated at her right was Dr. Manuel, and Mrs. Fred Turner, president of the club, was at her left. Between each course of the four course luncheon, Mrs. Young gave toasts. She called on Mrs. T. Paul Barron to give a toast to the incoming president, Mrs. T. D. Kimbrough, who responded.

Mrs. Young then gave a toast to Mrs. Turner, the outgoing president, and Mrs. E. I. Head presented Mrs. Turner a bluebonnet picture, painted by Mrs. J. A. Rippeteau, a Midland artist. Mrs. Turner thanked the club.

At close of the luncheon, Dr. Manuel spoke informally to the women on "Parental Training," bringing out the main fact that parents must every day learn something in the training of children. The talk had its points of humor, and the club was pleased with the way it was presented.

At 3 o'clock the guests assembled in the ballroom which was decorated with blue bonnets, Easter lilies, and snapdragons.

Mrs. Turner spoke a few words of welcome, and Mrs. Roy Parks sang "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," the official song of the state Mother's Congress and Teachers association. The song was written and published by Mrs. F. L. Paccard of Fort Worth, and was dedicated to Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, the national president of the Parent-Teachers association.

After the song, Mrs. Turner introduced the speaker, who lectured on the topic "Our Common Task." Throughout the talk, the speaker held the interest of his audience. The principal thought of his address was that the common task of all women was to help in the correct up-bringing of the younger generation, and that the task was

Midland Typists Win Another Contest; Local Girls Take Individual Honors

Reports received from the Midland high school concerning a typewriting contest in Odessa, stated that Midland won first place, having an average of 55 and 21-30 words per minute.

Of the several towns represented, Odessa was second in the race with 41 and 7-15 words a minute and Wink was third, making an average of 14 and 1-3 words.

Individual honors went to Evelyn Garlington and Adellee Haag, the Midland team, who won first and second places respectively, with 65 and 6-15 words, and 45 words per minute. Frankie Fernandes of Odessa won third place in individual averages.

The Midland typists have hopes of winning in the district meet at San Angelo Friday and Saturday, as they have maintained a high average during the year.

Local People Attend Conference

Ten Midland people attended the El Paso Presbytery at Coahoma Wednesday night, and heard Dr. Egbert W. Smith, executive secretary of foreign missions, the principal speaker.

A feature of the program was a duet between the pastors of the Coahoma and Clovis church, one playing the piano and one the saw.

An interesting fact was that only one dissenting vote for the church to enter into organic union with other Presbyterian churches, was cast when the issue was put before those present.

Midland people attending were Mrs. Florence A. Richardson, T. C. Heard, and Thomas D. Murphy, and Messrs. J. P. H. McMullan, H. L. McClintic, James and Parks Morris, Leland and Thomas D. Murphy Jr., and Rev. Thomas D. Murphy.

Harry McClintic was the official delegate to represent Midland at the Presbytery meeting and is also a commissioner, with Rev. Murphy, to the general assembly in Charlottesville, Virginia which meets in May. They will represent the El Paso Presbytery at the assembly.

MIDLAND GETS TWO PICTURES OF YEAR

Midland is famous for fine theatres and fine entertainment, therefore it isn't such a surprise that this city should find itself confronted with two of the year's most outstanding talking screen successes at the same time. According to announcements Midland theatre fans will have to work "over time" or miss out on what is claimed to be the last word in talking picture entertainment. The Yucca, conceded the finest theatre between Fort Worth and Los Angeles, announces the opening on Sunday, for a three day showing, one of Zane Grey's most famous stories—probably his greatest film success, "The Light of Western Stars", which Paramount has provided on a lavish scale as an all talking outdoor film spectacle. Reviewers rate it as the greatest success of all outdoor talking pictures. Richard Arlen and Mary Brian heightened the romance of the all talker. Fred Kohler as the heavy makes famous the character created by Noah Beery in the silent version of a few years back. Harry Green furnishes the comedy relief and he is said to be a "riot on horseback." It is claimed to be the most thrilling talkie ever produced.

Opening on Saturday for a three day run at the Ritz, "Son of the Gods" is claimed to be the greatest Vitaphone production in which Richard Barthelmess has ever appeared. Barthelmess again finds himself as strangely set into the scheme of human evolution as an "The Noose," one of his silent picture successes. As a talkie it is said to be far outrank "Weary River," and is conceded his greatest special production since the "Patent Leather Kid." Romance woven through mystery, plus thrills and adventure in conquering the obstacles and barriers to love and happiness furnish the most dramatic and most powerful human document ever assayed by the popular star in his entire career. Doubtless few, if any cities the size of Midland can boast of such unusual entertainment at one and the same time.

It is estimated that half the farmers in America have no telephones.

A most important one. A forceful point brought out was that every occasion where there are children present is a "teaching situation" on the part of adults, and that no idle or careless words should be spoken.

Members of the Mothers Culture club served party plates featuring the club colors, at conclusion of the lecture.

YACHTSMEN WILL DEFEND AMERICA'S CUP, HELD FOR 78 YEARS

DUEL IS RESUMED FOR TROPHY WON BY U. S.

EDITOR'S NOTE: For more than three-quarters of a century, American and British yachtsmen have fought a thrilling duel for possession of the America's Cup, and preparations now are being made for another match, to be sailed off Newport, R. I., this year. In the following article is told the romantic story of the origin of the famous challenge trophy, which has been successfully defended ever since its capture by a Yankee schooner in 1851.

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, April 17.—It has been a full decade since English yachtsmen have sought to win from this country the most highly-prized trophy in the sporting world—the America's Cup. But the stage is being set now for another thrilling contest. While Sir Thomas Lipton, five times a challenger and four times a gallant loser, is finishing another Shamrock to contend against the swiftest of four new defending yachts, modern vikings are thrilling to the thought that this summer may add another victory to the amazing succession that have graced American sails.

Seventy-eight years have proven too short a time for Britain to recover the trophy first snatched from her yachtsmen. The cleverest designers have built craft in which the pluckiest mariners have come overseas, one after another, to regain it. But all have gone back empty-handed.

First Cup Race
When a schooner from the United States lifted that trophy from the Royal Yacht squadron on August 22, 1851, in a race around the Isle of Wight, the sport was in its infancy here. Few men were rich enough to make it a pastime.

The organization's first challenge came from abroad.

The Yankees were leading the world with their clipper ships and coastwise vessels, and the New York harbor pilot fleet, of clean-cut little schooners with round bows and full, sweeping bodies, had attracted wide attention with their speed.

The result was the America, a name ever since dearest to the hearts of yachtsmen. A slim, graceful schooner she was, with lines reminiscent of the pilot boats, but with ends well-turned for speed. Her over-all length was 109 feet, 9 inches, with a 23-foot beam. They launched her with a hope and a prayer, put on her sea rig, and

Here are pictured the America's Cup and the trim little Yankee schooner which captured it from the British Royal Yacht Squadron in the first sensational race in 1851. The "cup," as you see, is really a somewhat inartistic silver pitcher, but it has become the most highly-prized trophy in the sporting world. the proud boast that she had flung down the gauntlet to England, Ireland and Scotland, but that no one had dared to take it up.

The American Commodore decided to enter a contest for the "All Nations 100 Guinea Cup."

Started From Anchor
This was to be a race of about 55 nautical miles around the Isle of Wight, open to vessels of any class, and without any time handicaps, for a trophy offered by the Royal Yacht Squadron. Seventeen British cutters and schooners, ranging in tonnage from 47 to 392, were entered against the America.

Bowled Along at 13 Knots
Off Sandown Bay, the wind had freshened and carried away the America's jib-boom. But old Captain Dick Brown, who never had believed in carrying a flying jib to windward, only shouted that he was "dammed glad it was gone." From St. Catherine's to the Needles, he had a leading wind, and bowled along at thirteen or fourteen knots.

The royal yacht Victoria and Albert was lying off the Needles, and the Queen and her company were anxiously awaiting the passing of the racers. It was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and lowering clouds were beginning to gather. Finally Queen Victoria called impatiently:

"Signal Master, are the yachts in sight?"

"Yes, may it please Your Majesty," he replied.

"Which is first?"

"The America."

"And which is second?"

"Alas, Your Majesty, there is no second!"

It was quite dark when the America crossed the finish line with a comfortable lead over the Aurora.

George Washington, when in his prime, was 6 feet 2 inches tall. Lincoln, 6 feet 4 inches tall, was the tallest of the United States presidents.

She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat In 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing Nature's six life-giving salts is carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from Mayes Young drug store or any live druggist anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back. —Adv.

MARTIN COUNTY SHORT COURSE IS SUCCESSFUL

By CLAUDE HOLLEY.

STANTON, April 17.—The first dairy school to ever be staged in Martin county was to close this evening with the largest attendance of the two days. Registrations show that 500 people took advantage of the course sponsored by the Martin county chamber of commerce and directed by C. M. Evans, Texas and Pacific railway agriculture agent, who was assisted by John N. Simpson, assistant agricultural agent.

Jeff McCombs, Universal mills representative, W. W. Evans, Dawson county agent, Mr. Debnam of Lamesa, C. T. Watson, secretary of the Big Spring chamber of commerce and Mrs. Delbridge of Big Spring who is with the Southern Ice and Utilities Co. in home service work were invaluable as other assistants.

The school was held in the Crystal theatre, and motion pictures were run on dairying. Merchants offered more than 40 prizes that were given away at four drawings and the chamber of commerce gave a registered Jersey heifer as the grand prize.

A question box, held at each session, proved interesting and helpful to dairymen and farmers in solving their feeding and various other problems.

The last part of the program was the show and judging demonstration which was under the direction of Jeff McCombs and C. T. Watson. Several cattle sales were made which brought to Martin county some of the best Jerseys on the plains. Sam Stamps, local dairyman bought from A. G. Loper of Lamesa one of the highest producing cows ever brought to this section, for consideration of $500. M. E. Parker of Stanton also bought a fine heifer from Loper.

Citizens of the Courtney community organized a bull circle and purchased a fine registered Jersey bull. The addition of this fine stock along with herds already owned gives Martin county some of the best dairy cattle to be found.

Bank Robbery--

caused the investigation to be begun at the district attorney's office a few hours after the two negroes who entered the bank had been slain.

Alsop was one of the first to appear before the investigators and he denied there had been any frame-up on his part for the negroes to be slain so a $5,000 "dead bank bandit" reward might be collected.

Alsop was before Stuart several times but was not arrested or taken into custody until late Wednesday afternoon.

Five negroes yesterday identified Boyt as a white man they had been. One of the negroes said he saw Boyt, Elsop and another white man in an automobile 45 minutes before the robbery.

For several years the Texas State Bankers' Association has had a standing offer to pay $5,000 for each dead bank robber, the reward not applying to those captured alive.

The "dead bank bandit" reward was offered to put a stop to a wave of bank robbery and with publication of the reward offer the number of bank robberies dwindled to almost nothing.

PRETTIEST AMONG OPERA SINGERS IS ROSALINDA MORINI

Rosalinda Morini, beautiful girl soprano who has been said by no less a person than Otto Cohen of the Metropolitan Grand Opera company to have the most beautiful voice of present singers, is still captivating her packed audiences by the charm of her magic voice, according to press notices reaching Midland.

Miss Morini, a coloratura soprano, comes to Midland for a concert Saturday night, beginning at 8 o'clock. She has a remarkable range, purity of tone that is outstanding from the great list of other singers, all the nuance one has read of but somehow fails to find in those he listens to, and interpretative ability which reflects itself in the acceptance of her audience to folk songs and classical singing in several languages.

COWBOY BAND HERE

Assurance of intention to give Midland music lovers the best concert the Cowboy band of Simmons university ever appeared in here was found in a letter from G. B. Sander, business manager of the aggregation, to Supt. W. W. Lackey of the city public schools.

The band is to leave for a concert tour of Europe soon after its concert in Midland, which will be held at the high school on the evening of May 5.

WILL OF WOMAN, WHO GAVE LAST STORY OUT HERE BEFORE CRASH, IS PECULIAR; PROVIDES $20,000 FOR FAVORITE MARE

LOS ANGELES, April 17. (AP)—Because the state of California has compiled no life expectancy tables for horses, no tax will be levied against a bequest of nearly $20,000 to Miss Noria, favorite mare of Josephine Callaghan, armless woman who died in an airplane accident near Abilene, Texas, last September.

Announcement to the effect was made Wednesday by David Tannebaum, state inheritance tax attorney, who said the state levies its tax on bequests after consulting life expectancy tables and classifying legacies by the number of years they have to use the money. In the absence of such tables for horses, no method is provided to ascertain what tax Miss Noria should pay.

Miss Callaghan's will, bequeathing nearly $20,000 to Miss Noria, specified that the animal should never be worked, ridden or sold as long as she lived.

Determined to prove to U. S. department of commerce aeronautical officials that she could fly and should be given at least a private pilot's license, Miss Callaghan was en route to Washington when the accident which cost her life occurred. She was instantly killed when her Lincoln Page plane nose-dived from 2,500 feet and buried its motor in Frank Antille's cotton field seven miles east of Abilene. The tragedy occurred at 9:30 a. m., September 27. Reason for the crash remains a mystery. The mangled body of the daring, armless woman flier was returned to California for burial.

Miss Callaghan had flown from Van Nuys, Calif., across Arizona and New Mexico to El Paso, where she had stopped overnight. On September 26 she spent the night in Hotel Scharbauer here. Witnesses who saw the accident said the ship was sailing along, apparently without trouble, when the motor began "missing" and the ship started its last dive.

The woman flier was a wealthy Californian and had a string of thoroughbred horses on her ranch. The last interview ever given by the woman was to a staff member of The Reporter-Telegram.
