Suspect in Chicago Reporter Killing Is Surrendered

FEELING OF CHICAGOANS IS INTENSE

Machine Gun Barks In Brooklyn Today; One Slain

CHICAGO, June 11. (UP).—Sam Hunt, dapper henchman of Scarface Al Capone and hunted by all law enforcement agencies as a suspect in the assassination of Albert Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, was surrendered to police today by his attorney.

Hunt, said by two secret witnesses to resemble the lone gangster

NEW YORK, June 11. (UP).—A burst of machine gun bullets roared out of a speeding car in Brooklyn today and five men fell, one dead and the other four wounded. Officers laid the killing to slot machine racketeers. George de Feo was killed.

who murdered the newspaperman Monday in a pedestrian subway, was brought in by officials.

Feling Is Intense

CHICAGO, June 11. (P)—The lash of vilifying editorials, threat of expose, and shakeup of the police department spurred agencies of the law to a feverish man-hunt for the slayer of Jake Lingle, Tribune crime reporter.

Public opinion is fused at a white heat, demanding the end of a reign of gang organization and its hired murderers.

Aldermen demanded police investigation. The press, wounded by the bullets which slew Lingle, asked lawful retribution of the knell of the "day of blood."

In response, picked men were sent out to uncover and track down the assassin.

Plane Thief Takes Ship Back To Owner

LELAND, Miss., June 11. (UP).—A young aviator who stole an airplane at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, and flew here, escaped jail today and hopped off in the plane, reported to be en route to return the ship to its owner.

Little Theatre Man Gets a Title Role

C. F. McCracken, well known little theatre player, will play the part of Corporal Egan in the amateur show of that name to be produced under auspices of the American legion.

It has been decided to give the play at the high school auditorium, June 19 and 20.

Sam K. Wasaff, Amil T. Wasaff, Lotta Williams, Elma Graves, R. C. Hankins, and John Bonner are other little theatre characters who will be in the production.

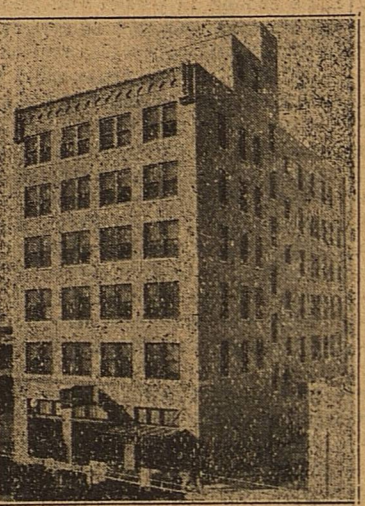

Sam Wasaff plays the part of Izzy Goldstein, Egan's Jewish buddy. These two men have been in the army only 30 days and are typical rookies. Their antics, hard luck, good fortune and other characteristic casts of fate make up the background of the play.

Izzy's Jewish "poppa" and Corporal Red Egan's Irish "dad" fall in love with two pretty nurses when they visit camp and this gives a sun of humorous conversation. The plot is thickened by hurried trips to the guard house, pranks, peeling of spuds, the advent of a spy, the antics of a negro soldier, and other humorous situations.

Jim Finlayson is a hard-boiled top sergeant and orders the rookies around in a positive manner that leaves the rookies gasping. Earl Moran is Michael Egan, the father of Red, and Albert Oreck is Able Goldstein, "poppa" of the young Hebrew.

Midland Hospital

After being changed to more liberal usage by being opened to practice of all legitimate doctors in Midland, the John B. Thomas Hospital, located in the Thomas building, has been changed in name by the owner to the Midland Hospital.

Hospital Name Is Changed As Usage Becomes Broader

Following an announcement last week by Dr. John B. Thomas that the Thomas Hospital is now open to all Midland physicians and surgeons, it was made public today that the name of the institution has been changed to the Midland Hospital.

The new name conforms to the more liberal usage of the hospital, and makes it of more of a community or district institution.

The hospital occupies all of the sixth floor of the John B. Thomas office building, and will be expanded as its growth may demand, taking in additional floors of parts of the building, the owner states.

Equipped with up to date hospital fixtures and instruments three years ago, the institution has served a large territory and is expected to be of greater service now that all local doctors have access to its facilities.

MIDLAND WONDERS AT PLANS OF AIR LINE COOPERATION

Whether the period of waiting before re-establishing the Sweetwater to Midland extension of Southwest Air Fast Express has been due to pending arrangements for a great extension of route and equipment has not definitely been confirmed from reports, but several Texas cities believe that E. P. Halliburton, head of the airline, plans to buy a fleet of 1,000 tri-motored Ford planes and try for building the greatest airline across continent.

Information regarding this move has been received in Sweetwater, and it is known here that officials of the company have written aviation authorities of Sloan field, informing that the airline extension that was discontinued a few months ago because of the crackup of a Lockheed ship would be resumed when a trimotor could be delivered for the run.

E. P. Halliburton, president of the Safeway company, with headquarters in Tulsa, is now in Washington looking after obtaining mail contracts in the south and southwest, says the Sweetwater Reporter. Several airmail contracts are to be let soon, it is understood, under the Waters bill passed by congress.

On Big Scale

Halliburton has revealed it was learned here, that he has a determination to go into the aviation business on an unprecedented scale and make the air transport business he has built up in the southwest the nucleus of a nation-wide network.

It is said that Henry Ford has not

TANKER IS STRUCK BY BIG LINER

Passengers Leap Into Sea; Burned By Oil Flames

BOSTON, June 11. (AP)—Flaming oil, spurting from the depths of a stricken oil tanker, today is thought to have claimed the lives of more than 40 persons aboard the ship and the passenger liner "Fairfax," when they collided in Massachusetts Bay last night.

So suddenly did the tragedy occur that no person on the tanker is believed to have escaped. At least a score of the Fairfax's passengers and crew are unaccounted for. The tanker, the Shell Eastern Petroleum Products Corporation's "Pintias," carried a crew of 19.

Passengers on the Fairfax, belonging to the Merchants and Miners Transportation company, threw themselves into the sea, believing the ship doomed. Only to perish amidst the oil from the tanker. Others were burned in their berths by the white heat of the fire.

Flames melted the radios of both ships, ending temporarily the possibility of summoning aid.

The tanker sank 20 minutes after the crash. The Fairfax managed to ride out of the difficulties and steamed into port today under her own power, with a gaping hole in her prow.

CHINA WARFARE SEEN STRUGGLE OF KUOMINTANG

PEIPING, June 11. (UP)—The world is being deceived into thinking that the present civil war in China is a struggle between progressive nationalists and rigidly conservative militarists, in the opinion of Quo Tai-chi, former commissioner of foreign affairs at Shanghai and vice-minister of foreign affairs in Nanking, who has come north to support the coalition opposed to General Chiang Kaishek.

"This is not even a struggle between various factions of the Kuomintang," said Quo. "It is a struggle of the Kuomintang, including all factions excepting Chiang Kaishek's clique of personal supporters, against the military dictatorship represented by Nanking."

Quo, who is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, has been active in the Kuomintang since the 1912 revolution, at which time he became secretary to the vice-president of the republic, Li Yuan-hung. He was a leading member in the Canton government, established by the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, and went to the United States in 1918-19 to attempt getting recognition for that government.

After Chiang Kai-shek captured Shanghai in 1927, Quo was appointed commissioner of foreign affairs, an important post, and also vice-minister of foreign affairs at Nanking. Last year, however, he resigned. He is supporter of Wang Chiang-wet.

Quo was sent to Mukden to discover whether Chang Hsueh-liang was likely to share in the present struggle. "From my personal observation and conversations I am convinced that Manchuria will remain neutral," he declared. Owing to her geographical position, Manchuria finds it both convenient and desirable to keep out of the maelstrom of civil war, especially at present, Marshal Chang's attitude toward Wang

"I have broke four jails," the prisoner boasted to Sheriff Francis when confronted with the telegram. He readily admitted his name.

Bricks No Good As Settlement For Hotel Bill

DALLAS, June 11. (P)—An Arkansas University student, passing through Dallas en route to a South Texas summer camp, learned today that a collection of bricks is not considered legal tender for a hotel bill.

L. C. Greer left his suitcase at a hotel in lieu of settlement, and it was found to contain bricks. He was arrested.

"Your hotel bill is only $2, but it's going to cost you $10 for trying to beat your bill," City Judge Cavin Muse told the youth.

"I just wanted my sister, an English girl, to see some of the products of this country," Crake explained to a reporter. It just happened the last shipment was perfumery instead of fabrics or sport shoes.

CONTRACT LET FOR A R.R. SPUR

Biggest Thing During 1930 for Midland, It Is Said

Grading work started Wednesday morning on a spur railway track for the Hughes Tool Co.

The railway siding is two blocks west of Florida park on the south side of the railway. The Texas & Pacific Railway Co. has ordered the track laying rushed. J. J. Hamlett, station agent, said Wednesday morning a crew of 30 men from Morita had been ordered to rush the track laying.

The Hughes Tool Co. of Houston is the biggest manufacturer of oil field specialty tools in the world. The Midland branch will employ 50 to 75 men to start, according to officials. The company will have an investment of approximately $150,000 in Midland, $25,000 of which will be in a building and $125,000 in machinery.

The Midland plant will supply West Texas and Eastern New Mexico with products of the company. Pipe and pipe knuckles will be assembled at Midland. Part of the time as high as six or seven carloads of pipe and materials per day will be unloaded at Midland, it is said. The Midland plant will be operated by electric current and gas furnaces will be employed.

One of Three Branches

Midland is the location of one of three branches, the others being at Los Angeles and Oklahoma City. The Oklahoma City plant now employs 300 men, and increased operations in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico could mean expansion of the Midland plant, Hughes officials say.

Part of the machinery for the Midland plant has already been bought and will be shipped to Midland as soon as the railway siding is completed. Part of the personnel has already been transferred to Midland. Mr. Kimsey will move here Friday to a house procured for him by J. M. White. He is a district sales representative of Hughes.

The plant will be rushed to early completion as Hughes is anxious to begin its operations in this area.

Negotiations to bring the Hughes Tool Co. to Midland was started several months ago by the Midland chamber of commerce on suggestion of Charles W. Alcorn, a director of the chamber and manager of Shell's offices at Midland. Alcorn is a friend of S. P. Brown, sales manager, who carried on negotiations for the Midland location with the Midland chamber, with the city and through J. M. White with Frank Elkin from whom the site was procured.

INDUSTRIAL TEXAS

More and more, Texas editors provide proof that the state is becoming industrial minded. It is the logical and natural result of facts which are reported in and emphasized by the 1930 census. Especially significant, however, are the industrial surveys, whether or not they be called by that name, which are featured in practically every Texas newspaper. Texas editors are uncovering industrial opportunities and exposing them to the world. They are painting attractive pictures of prosperous Texas industries. In one way or another, they are all insisting that the state begin to realize upon the superior industrial advantages within the Lone Star Empire.

Bearing in mind the fact that editors faithfully reflect the state of public mind, no man need be a prophet to read the handwriting on the wall. The new Texas will be an industrial Texas, with flourishing industries located in a thousand thriving villages and cities. Payrolls will contribute to prosperity, and prosperity will contribute to happiness and contentment. Towns and cities which desire to play a part in the future picture of prosperity and contentment, must begin now to look to their industrial opportunities. For the price of progress is eternal watchfulness.

INCREASE IN AUTO DEATHS

Automobile accidents last year broke all records and sent the total number of deaths by accident in the United States to a new high total, 97,000, while there were decreases in all other walks of life. Carelessness and criminal negligence, due to a large extent to the speed mania, which in turn, is affected in part by drunkenness, is the underlying cause. This is all brought out in the official report of the National Safety Council. Instead of depriving killers of the right to drive, we go on ignoring their recklessness to a very large extent. There are states and cities where rigid tests are applied to those seeking licenses to drive cars. In these communities, the survey shows, accidents are fewer in number. In other communities practically no tests are applied! Here the casualties are mounting. The theory is that anyone who can get his hands on the wheel of an automobile is a driver. Then as if this were not enough, in some of the larger cities local politicians hand out, as one form of graft, stars to be tacked onto cars entitling the owner to immunity under the law, to run past signals and do anything else he chooses to do, even though that imperil the life or limb of his fellowman. We do not know the percentage of accidents chargeable to the holders of these immunity stars—these "I got a pull" boys, but it stands to reason that this kind of practice is not cutting down the number of automobile deaths. It is an outrage that should be stopped. With the multiplicity of cars our laws and regulations will have to be rigid and more generally observed. The auto is too dangerous a weapon to be put in the hands of a careless or willful person.—Public Service Magazine.

RIDING THE RAPIDS

The young man who went through Niagara's whirlpool rapids in a barrel had a good deal of nerve, certainly; but when you have said that you have said just about all there is to say on the matter. Since the human race is what it is, the notoriety that a stunt of that kind brings can always be cashed, and the barrel-rider doubtless will be collecting the money in short order. Nevertheless, the thing is just a trifle tiresome to a land which has had a surplus of freak champions such as flag-pole sitters, marathon dancers and the like. However, this chap does rise above that level. He did have nerve. He did risk his neck. So, probably, the only thing to do is wish him well—and hope that he doesn't have any imitators.

The Ringmaster!

Dissension Brings New Crisis to English Church

By MILTON BRONNER, NEA Service Writer.

LONDON, June 11.—Any time Dr. W. H. Frere, Bishop of Truro in the Church of England, says the word, it is quite possible that a burly British cop will come along and take Dr. E. W. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, to the hoosegow for contempt of court. And thereby hangs an ecclesiastical quarrel which affects the whole future of the Established Church of England, of which the American Episcopal Church is an off-shoot. It is also of interest to all other Christian churches, because matters of tremendous and vital religious importance are being found out in the Church of England. Perhaps no other denomination in the world has problems so sharply accentuated and in no other have such wide differences in faith been tolerated. There is a High Church party which desires reservation of the Sacrament and other practices which are closely akin to those of the Roman Catholic Church. There is the great central body of believers who want to stick pretty close to the old Protestant doctrine of their church. There is a considerable body of left-wingers, so to speak, who would give American Fundamentalists the cold shivers. They deny the truth of the story of Adam and the Fall. They fully accept the doctrine of man's evolution from the lower animals. Some of them deny or cast doubt upon the Virgin Birth. Parliament Backed Low Church. Things came to something of a head when the inner parliament of the Church of England devised and adopted a revised Prayer Book. This made some considerable concessions to High Churchmen. The Low Churchmen were defeated, but they still had one last refuge. As the Church is the established church of England, its Prayer Book has to be approved by an act of Parliament. On two separate occasions Parliament, by a big vote, refused to accept the new Prayer Book. One of the leaders in the fight on High Church practices has been Dr. E. W. Barnes, who has been Master of the Temple and Canon of Westminster, before Premier Ramsay MacDonald, in his first government, six years ago, named him Bishop of Birmingham. Dr. Barnes is a great preacher and Biblical scholar, a profound mathematician, a Doctor of Science and a Fellow of the Royal Society. His outspoken sermons often have given deep offense to the Fundamentalists within his church. He himself has laughingly described himself as "a bold, bad Bishop," and has advised young preachers that if they want peace and happiness they should not emulate him and talk about "magic and monkeys." Dr. Barnes is one of those who fully believe in the doctrine of evolution. But he is equally strenuous in asserting that this in no way affects the profound truths of the Christian religion. Ever since he became Bishop of Birmingham, Dr. Barnes has had trouble because he is an outspoken and bitter opponent of High Church practices. In November, 1925, he demanded that public reservation of the consecrated elements of Holy Communion should cease, and that some other practices be brought to an end. Some fifteen churches in his diocese refused to obey him and formed a rebel group. Dr. Barnes could have gone to law to enforce his authority and might have sent the rebel clergymen to prison for contempt of court. Instead, he resolved to give no countenance to the rebel churches and, when vacancies occurred, to institute new vicars who would undertake to drop High Church practices. The crisis, long brewing, came to a head recently when there was a vacancy at St. Aidan's, Birmingham. The patrons of this parish, chief of whom was Dr. Frere, Bishop of Truro and the only monk among the Anglican Bishops, recommended the Rev. G. D. Simmonds. Dr. Barnes refused to institute Simmonds unless he undertook to forego High Church practices. Simmonds refused to agree.

Defined Court Order. The patrons then took the matter to the chancery division of the civil courts. Dr. Barnes refused to put in an appearance and thereby rendered himself technically guilty of contempt of court. The judge ordered that Dr. Barnes must institute the vicar suggested by the patrons of the parish. Dr. Barnes, defiant, said it would force him to alter practices at St. Aidan's which Parliament had refused to legalize both in 1927 and 1928. He said the patrons, headed by Dr. Frere, could go to court again. "If their appeal caused me to be sent to prison I should without complaint thus serve the cause of reformed religion. In refusing to permit reservation at St. Aidan's I am not only respecting the decision of Parliament, but I am also protesting against the error that a spiritual presence can be attached to or inhere in inert matter. The Church of England repudiated all ideas of this kind at the Reformation." Dr. Barnes has thus put Dr. Frere in a dilemma: Either he must cause his brother Bishop to be sent to prison and thus make a martyr of him, or else he must back down and recommend somebody for the post at St. Aidan's who will do what Dr. Barnes wants. So far he has taken no step in either direction.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the church, and other dignitaries are trying to arrange a compromise. The Lambeth conference of the Church of England meets in July and they do not want its deliberations marred by open dissension.

Daily Washington Letter

By Rodney Dutcher
Congressman Garner Hasn't Said the Last Word About His Plan for Making Five States Out of Texas—He Believes Texans Eventually Will Come Over to His Side

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The country hasn't heard the last of House Minority Leader Jack Garner's proposal to divide up Texas into five states.

Considerable argument—pro, con and derisive—has been raging down in Texas. Next winter someone probably will arise in the state legislature and introduce a measure looking to the division. So Garner hopes. The idea was no passing fancy with him.

After that, he believes, there will be a well defined movement in favor of division growing up in the Lone Star State. At the same time the northern states will begin to get excited about the idea of giving 10 senators to what is now Texas—with only two senators—and Texas state pride is likely to breed more and more enthusiastic sentiment for the plan at home.

It's Up to Texas
The rest of the country is confronted with the fact that Congress, in a joint resolution in 1845, provided that: "New states of convenient size, not exceeding four in number, in addition to the said state of Texas, and having sufficient population, may hereafter, by consent of said state, be formed out of the territory thereof, which shall be entitled to admission under the provisions of the federal constitution." That appears to leave decision as to the division up to the state legislature. Obviously, if the legislature ever decides to take advantage of the privilege there is bound to be a swell row over it.

Garner is ready to combat such objections as have been raised by Texans. One comes from state-prod citizens who were born Texans and want to die Texans, without being called anything else.

"We can name our five states South Texas, West Texas, North Texas, East Texas and Central Texas," he says. "We know the sections of our state by those names now and their various interests are more or less conflicting."

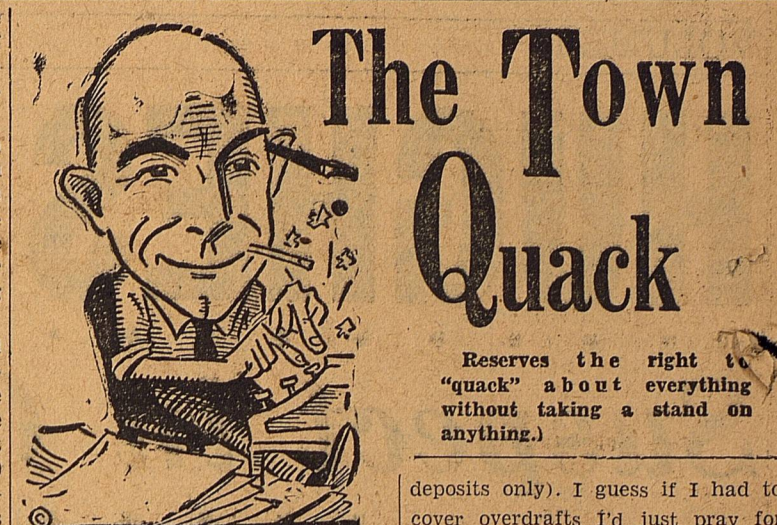

Some Texans have demanded to know whether the sacred bones of old Sam Houston are going to be dug up and scattered around among the proposed five new states. Garner replies that Sam Houston was one of the original proponents of the division and was largely responsible for seeing to it that Texas entered the union with the right of dividing if so desired.

The idea of having 10 senators from Texas looks especially good to Garner.

"The United States Senate is the strongest body in this country," says he. "Presidential campaign platforms are made by parties and parties nominate candidates on those platforms. Who writes the platforms? Senators have more to do with writing them than anyone else. Senators are usually party leaders in their various states."

"Therefore the importance of having as many senators from a given section as possible is obvious. The south hasn't ever had a fair break. New England states have had the balance of power. If Texas is going to continue to be one state we ought to combine the New England states into one. Five of the New England states have less than the population of Texas and less than one-third the area; yet they have 10 senators to our two. The 1930 census is likely to show that Texas has a population of 6,000,000."

Says South is Victimized
"For 50 years the policy of the northeast has been to live on the rest of the country. Now the northeast has reached its peak and as the south becomes industrialized our resources are almost unlimited. The northeast has used its power to give itself every advantage. es-

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Just received my second letter in the past few days from Little Fearsome. You know a short time ago, I named whom I thought were the authors of letters signed A. N. Onymous, Ima Hottun and Little Fearsome. Well, Clyde Barron hasn't denied being A. N. Onymous, although he hasn't affirmed it. L. P. Boone, on being called Ima Hottun, came around in person and hunted up the Town Quack, and whether he found him or not, he wanted to see a sample of the manuscript upon which Ima Hottun's letters were written, but was informed that none were kept in the permanent files, Little Fearsome, on being selected as Mrs. Mary S. Ray, wrote in at once to give me the horse laugh. Never had he or she, as the case might be, had such a kick as when he, or she or they read where I thought they were Mrs. Ray. Where did I get such an idea anyway?

And now comes this second letter from Little Fearsome, addressing me as Dear Madam. Can you beat that for sarcasm? As her name would indicate, Little Fearsome feels some timidity about crossing the street, on account of the traffic. Read his letter:

"I was so happy to read what you had to say on enforcing the traffic laws here! I feel that you have expressed my feeling exactly in giving yours as you cross the street. (Of course, we go to the banks for entirely different purposes—I make deposits only). I guess if I had to cover overdrafts I'd just pray for a car not to stop as I tripped blithely over the pavement. As it is, I obey the Railroad Crossing's injunction viz., STOP, LOOK, LISTEN. When I intended to say in the beginning is this: Please add my name as one who is backing up Mr. Goodman, Mr. Haight, Mr. Blake-ney, Mr. Ambrose and THE TOWN QUACK. Little Fearsome."

George Payne, who operates the peeewee golf course over by the library, did a peculiar thing. With crowds standing in line to get at his course, there seems little reason for him to be downcast, but I heard yesterday that he had his face lifted.

Miss Herb, our circulation manager, is thinking of attending the national convention for circulation managers. "How to reduce subscriber turnover" is one of the subjects to be discussed. I could tell him how to reduce it without his going to the convention. Just keep the route boys from bumping into the subscribers with bicycles.

Bride-Elect Given Breakfast Affair; Mayfair Club Members Complimented

Tuesday's Midland society included several varied functions, interesting club members, church workers and members of the Whitmire-Blackburn bridal party.

The most outstanding among these affairs were a breakfast in honor of Miss Lenora Whitmire given by one of her bridesmaids, Miss Theesa Klapproth, and an afternoon party given by Mrs. S. M. Warren for members and guests of the Mayfair club.

Bridal Appointments

Rooms of the Klapproth home were pretty with floral decorations of gladiolus and larkspur. Tallies, featuring brides carrying flowers, marked places for the guests with the bride's card marked with the word "bride-to-be" written backwards.

Following the three-course breakfast, the guests enjoyed bridge games, for which the honoree received high score favor and also guest favor. High cut trophy went to Mrs. J. Alfred Tom, who presented it to Miss Whitmire.

Guests were Misses Lydie G. Watson, Myrtle Whitmire, Olive Allen, Lois Brunson, Annie Mae Klapproth; Mesdames Fred Middleton, J. Alfred Tom, Carl W. Covington, W. M. Whitmire, J. B. Zant, A. Klapproth, O. H. Jones and the honoree.

Wild Flowers Used

At the home of Mrs. Warren wild flowers of green and lavender added a delightful touch of summer. Other appointments used these same colors combined with other pastel shades.

During the bridge games Mrs. Earl Horst held high score among the club members and Mrs. D. B. Brown for the guests.

Guests calling were Mesdames H. H. Meeks, Chambers Peak, Earl Horst, Jno. P. Butler, D. B. Brown, Avery Alcorn, W. P. Knight, D. E. Carter, E. I. Head, C. F. Whaley, Jim Schroder and Miss Ruby Tindall of Eastland.

Bridge Club Party At Snodgrass Home Tuesday Afternoon

Mrs. E. N. Snodgrass was hostess to members and guests of the Lafa-Lot Bridge club at her home Tuesday afternoon.

Bridge games furnished pleasure during the afternoon, after which Mrs. A. J. Gates received high score favor and Mrs. Bud Estes high cut trophy.

At tea time a two course service was passed to Mesdames B. C. Girdley, F. C. Norwood, Bud Estes, Paul Roundtree, T. S. Patterson, Wilbur Wadley, A. C. Francis, W. M. Schroek, A. J. Gates, N. W. Bigam, H. B. Dunagan, and J. W. Etzel.

HOW TO SHOP Some Hints on Chinaware

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN, Author of "The Shopping Book"

HERE are a few definitions and hints in chinaware, which the shopper should know.

Faience is earthenware with a white enamel coat and is used mostly for decorative tiles. Majolica, like faience, has a white finish and is further decorated with colored lusters. It is much in demand for vases. Crackleware is the result of purposely inducing crazing—or cracks all over the surface of the china—because of its decorative effect for vases and porcelain ornaments.

In selecting china, examine the care with which the decorations have been applied, and the evenness of the glaze. The presence of black specks is evidence that the clay is impure. Pimples or blisters are blemishes. Ground marks are the result of trying to eliminate ridges or pimples by grinding them off, but these marks are apparent when the piece is held to the light.

Tomorrow—Paint.

Local Housewives' Choice Recipes

Two local women have selected for their favorite recipes for today almond soup and salad dressing. These come from the cook books of Mrs. Elliott Barron and Mrs. C. W. Alcorn.

Almond Soup

- 1 veal shank, 2 carrots, 1 onion, 2 pieces of celery.

Put together and cook the day before for three hours. Let stand until next morning and skim off fat. Blend two tablespoons of butter with three tablespoons of flour. Add soup stock and cook until moderately thick. Toast a cup of almonds in butter. When ready to serve six almonds to each helping of soup. This will serve six people.—Mrs. Alcorn.

Salad Dressing

Into mixing bowl put two egg yolks, 1 heaping teaspoon of salt, 1 level teaspoon of dry mustard, red pepper to taste, paprika to taste, juice of one lemon. Pour on top of this one cup of oil. Set aside while you put into a sauce pan 1 tablespoon of butter, 1-3 cup of flour. Melt butter, mix in flour and then water. Cook until thick.

Four this while hot into mixing bowl on oil etc. Beat briskly with dover eggbeater.—Mrs. Barron.

YOUR CHILDREN by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

There is always the problem that confronts the mother who has a family of boys—with one girl, or the mother of several girls—and one boy.

A certain psychology enters into a situation, especially if the unique member is the youngest. It's as natural as the wind that a conspiracy enters into the family group to spoil the child who immediately finds himself the center of adoration.

We all know such families and as a rule where the spoiling has reached a stage where outsiders begin to comment, it is usually to pity the other children who have to give in to the young autocrat, and to denounce the hapless youngster himself as a selfish little beast who too often proves to be worthy of the censure.

How many of us ever stop to think that the one really to be pitied under the circumstances is the child himself? Not many, I'm sure of that. Yet it is to him our sympathy should go. For of all the children on earth, the spoiled, pampered only son or daughter with a group of sisters or brothers of the opposite sex has less chance of rounding out as an unobessed individual in later life than almost anyone I know.

Now it just happens that thousands of such children do mature naturally and normally and make fine upstanding citizens. The reasons are multiple and obvious. Either the family life is so normal and even that the very atmosphere of thoughtfulness and justice that surrounds him tends to balance all spoiling on their part. It happens sometimes that the child himself possesses qualities that step in to save him from any selfishness that has developed from over-humoring. Again, too, before he is too hopelessly set in the wrong pattern, the parents themselves may realize that a wrong start has been made, re-vamp their own and the family attitude toward him, and save the day before it is too late.

But He'll Grow Up

It is not, by the way, always the "odd" child who is selected for spoiling. The baby of almost any family shares honors with him when it comes to that. But there is one thing that usually rescues the baby. He doesn't stay a baby and soon after he can talk, walk and get about, he loses his halo, takes his place in the mixed group, as any other ordinary individual and shares fortune and misfortune alike with his brothers and sisters.

Why do we allow our affection and emotions toward the "different child" to warp our judgment? Why do we let him have his own way, permit rage tantrums, give him first choice, the largest servings, the best room, the finest toys? Why doesn't he ever have to do his share of family jobs? Why don't we get after him when he's lazy in school or if he is unfair with his playmates? Why do we tolerate his teasing and even laugh about it?

Because when it comes to the divine boy whom heaven sent in answer to our prayers, and who was preceded by three or four sisters, we haven't the moral courage to do it. We feel that he is something apart, and to subject him to the discipline of more lowly mortals would be sacrilege.

And it is the cruellest blow fate can deal him.

SLICK THIEF
YPSILANTI, Mich.—Jacob Blum recently bought a pair of fat geese for what he thought a bargain—$1.25. But he noticed when he got home that the geese he had in his pen had been stolen; also that when he released the pair he had purchased the female went straight to the nest in the pen. Further examination revealed that he had bought his own geese from the thief who had stolen them.

HAPPY MOTHER HIGHLY PRAISES MODERN KONJOLA

Relates How New And Different Medicine Banished Ills Of Her Daughter.

MISS DOROTHY RHYNE
"My ten year old daughter, Dorothy, has been troubled with chronic constipation ever since a small child," said Dorothy's mother, Mrs. J. D. Rhyne, 616 East Eleventh street, Amarillo. "This condition caused her to become nervous, and she frequently suffered with bilious attacks and dizzy spells. Often she had severe headaches and I had to keep her home from school for two or three days at a time. She was very flighty, had no pep or vitality, and tired very easily."
"After Konjola so thoroughly relieved me of my ailments, I decided to give it to Dorothy. It is amazing how quickly this medicine went to work. Now she is like a different child. She has only taken Konjola two weeks, and I am going to have her continue the treatment until she is again in perfect health. I highly recommend Konjola to mothers of all children."
"No wonder Konjola is a beautiful household word in tens of thousands of American homes. Here is a medicine for old and young; for all the family. A complete treatment of from six to eight bottles is recommended."
Konjola is sold in Midland at Mays-Yeung drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

The Blow-Out Proof Tire Will Keep You Safe—End Every Tire Hazard

EVERY MILE on doubtful tires invites disaster. Your own tires may be ready to blow out at the next bump in the road. You can't tell by looking at them.

Blowouts hide inside your tires, hidden from inspection. They breed on summer heat from glaring pavements—grow nearer with every turn of a tire wearing and weakening through internal friction. They catch you in a crisis—when safety rests on your tires' ability to stand a sudden swerve—quick pick-up—a pounding break in the pavement.

When the blowout comes, you're helpless. Wrecked without a chance to save yourself. For modern road speeds leave less than one-tenth of a second before you crash, and no human can act in that brief time.

No motorist need face such dangers. MIDLAND LIBRARY GROWING THROUGH GIFTS OF BOOKS AND OTHER MATTER

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following is a continuation of the report made by Librarian Miss Emily B. Smith to the commissioners court, the first part having been published Tuesday.

We had for eight months of the year a weekly story hour for the younger children. This was held Saturday mornings, and we depended on volunteers from our local women to tell the stories. Some of these women are very fine indeed. There is much real talent along this line in Midland. But just before Christmas many of the women were unable to come. One by one they failed us, some of them at the last minute. Too, the attendance of the children fell off greatly after school opened. After all the children who came go to Sunday school as well as to day school. Six mornings of the week they are busy. I could not feel it worth while or even right to urge them to come here the next year.

Just before Christmas we dropped the story hour. I plan to start it again soon, though possibly not until later. I think now we may come to make of it a vacation play only.

While utterly opposed in theory to offering rewards for reading or making it in any way like a task, I am going to try out something that favors a little of that this summer. Each Junior high school pupil who wants to do it and who voluntarily applies will be registered as a club member. There being one club for each grade, and will be given a little book in which he will keep a record of the books he reads during vacation, with dates, and with a brief review of each book. Just before school reopens in the fall the children will turn in their books, and after a careful examination of them, prizes will be awarded to those who have the nicest, best-kept, most interesting books. This will be open to those who in September will be junior high school pupils and to those only.

I have never done this before, for I am suspicious of the principle of it, but I want to try it out once and see how it works. As I have repeatedly asked women who tell stories to not teach the children, but to entertain them, so I want them all ways to think of reading as a part of their play (except, of course, where it assists them in their school work) and never to think of it as a task. I would have them become readers through the love of reading. In fact, they will become readers in that way or they won't become readers.

We have made no attempt to keep account of the number of people who have used the reading room. This is a difficult matter to do with any accuracy, but I am going to try to do it this next year for a month or two at different seasons just to give you some idea. There are times when only one is in; there are others when there are as many as thirty-five or forty in at one time. I have seen several times every adult chair occupied at one time, and at some of the story hours we were unable to seat the children. Some sat in the windows, and some stood.

I do not believe there is anywhere a finer field for library work than right here. I don't believe there are anywhere people more eager for books or more appreciative of them. The people are wide-awake, alert, progressive, intelligent.

I am constantly hearing the most touching testimonials of appreciation. Several small boys who have visited in other towns have bragged to me about how much better library Midland had than those other towns had. Women have told me often how much easier they found it to get the "new books" here than elsewhere. Men have spoken splendidly of the library many times.

It would be a very easy matter to make here in Midland a library that would not only reflect great credit on Midland, but would accomplish far, far more important things. With the assistance of the women who for twenty-five years, or something like that, kept some sort of a little library going, we could make a library that would contribute enormously to the cultural growth of the people.

The library has received many gifts and courtesies. On our opening evening Miss Lydia and Mr. Ned Watson and a number of their pupils gave us a musical program which added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion and started us off right. Mrs. Ambrose largely took over the responsibility of the entertainment otherwise. She brought fruit, made the punch we served, brought in all the required china and glassware, ice, and so on, and also found several high school girls to assist her in serving.

Throughout the year our friends have brought us flowers for the desk. Judge Hill gave us two plants, Mrs. Denton, one. Mrs. J. R. Petty contributed four goldfish.

The Midland Library association installed two ceiling fans, and has given us some valuable books. Especially worthy of mention is the latest edition of Webster's International dictionary. They gave us also a stand for this. The Christian Science society gives us the Christian Science Monitor, an excellent newspaper, and they have also placed in the Library all of Mrs. Eddy's writings and the authorized story of her life. The Christian Science society uses the library's building for their services Sunday mornings, for which use they pay us five dollars a month.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union (local branch) gives us their national organ, The Union Signal, and also the state organ, The Texas White Ribbon. The woman's missionary society of the Christian church gives us their missionary paper, The World Call.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram gives us two copies daily, one for table use and one to be put away immediately for safe-keeping and a permanent file.

As reported elsewhere, 58 books have been given. Mrs. Ola D. Haynes gave perhaps a larger number than any other one person, but there have been some valuable gifts among those which have come in one at a time. Some excellent old magazines have been brought in also, and these always help fill a real need. We hope there will be more and more of them, though to be sure we scarcely have room for them.

The Encyclopedia Britannica gave us one of our finest gifts. When they brought out their fourteenth edition last fall, instead of destroying the old sets they had on hand they offered to give them to public libraries wherever they were wanted or needed. The state library asked that one be given us, and so it was. We didn't even pay the freight.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has unfailingly and most courteously printed all the stories and announcements we have given them, and have also on their own initiative given us much favorable publicity. The value of this cannot be overestimated.

For all gifts, for all courtesies, we are sincerely thankful. We greatly appreciate even the least of them.

Respectfully submitted,

Emily B. Smith, Librarian.

TWO MORE GOVERNORS EXPRESS THEIR APPRECIATION TO MAN IN MIDLAND

M. F. Peters, who has received letters from princes, prime ministers, noted athletes, flyers and others, is now getting a bunch of letters from governors of various states.
He collects letters as some men do stamps. He holds letters from such men as Lindbergh, Rear Admiral Byrd, David Lloyd George, Sir Harry Lauder, Sir Thomas Lipton and President Hoover.
Harry G. Leslie, governor of Indiana, and Clyde M. Reed, governor of Kansas, are the two latest to write Peters. Copies of their letters are here produced.
Governor Leslie said:
"Your information that Midland has one of its main streets named Indiana is very interesting. To me there is no place like Indiana, and I am glad to know that in Texas you remember her by naming your streets for her.
"Those of you who contemplate touring trips can well afford to include Indiana. Her park system is second to none, including such beauty spots of the Midwest as Clifty Falls, Turkey Run, the dunes on Lake Michigan and Pokagon—all of which have camping sites and hotel accommodations of the best.
