Midland Invited to Lovington Railroad Celebration

STEEL IS LAID INTO N. M. CITY

June 28 Is Date For Celebrating Rail Connection

Special to The Reporter-Telegram

LOVINGTON, N. M., June 23. — Prolonged blasts from the No. 33 work engine at ten o'clock Sunday morning announced to late sleepers as well as those on their way to Sunday services that the track of the Texas & New Mexico railroad has been laid into the city limits.

Amid cheers and the chanting of plantation songs by the sweating negro laborers, the officials in charge of the work took off their hats and joined in the jubilation as they realized the big task was finished. The most momentous period in the life of this city had come, and the hundreds of spectators who gathered around the scene plainly showed on their faces the emotions surging within them.

Lovington will formally celebrate the arrival of the first passenger train on Saturday June 28, when Governor Dillon will drive the gold spike, an epochal event in this region.

High state officials of New Mexico as well as Texas will be present. Leading officials of the railroad company and the Texas and Pacific will also be on hand to join in the general enthusiasm.

The coming of the Texas and New Mexico railroad into Lea county will open up hundreds of thousands of irrigable lands under which abundant water may be had from depths of 25 to 80 feet. The soil being exceedingly rich, the prediction is freely made that Lea county will within next few years be known as the richest county in Sunshine State.

Discovery of oil in gusher quantities is rapidly adding to the wealth of ranchers and land owners. With coming of agricultural development, Lea county expects to become a leader in farm produce as well.

The Lovington chamber of commerce expects about 5,000 persons to be present to witness ceremonies and partake of the amusements and games prepared for the occasion.

Midland Invited

Midland people are invited to attend the big event at Lovington June 28, when the completion of the Texas and New Mexico railroad into the city will be celebrated, according to a letter from Seth Alston, president of the chamber of commerce, to the chamber here. Excerpts from his letter follow:

"The gold spike will be driven by Governor Dillon, and there will be other features commemorating this notable event.

"Lovington will be the terminus of the Texas and New Mexico Railroad for some time to come and will be the shipping point for a vast back country area that will be opened up for cultivation now that the transportation problem is solved.

"We are prepared to furnish food for 5,000 people but, of course, could not undertake to furnish sleeping accommodations. If you are determined to stay over night bring along your bed-roll. The climate is delightful and we have oodles of broad acres covered with nice, green grass. No snakes, tarantulas, or poisonous bugs to disturb your slumber.

"You are particularly invited to meet with us on that date, and we feel that your trip will be repaid, as you will see the richest undeveloped country under the western skies.

"You will be received with true Western Hospitality, so come on over and visit with us."

July Fourth Data Is Sent To Alpine

Harland K. Allen, manager of the Alpine swimming pool, has written the local chamber of commerce for literature on the July 4th celebration here, and will distribute the advertising in his city.

Moves Here; Costs Odessa Price Of Election

When J. B. Simpson bought an interest in the M System grocery stores here and moved to Midland, he cost the city of Odessa the price of a special election.

Simpson, who was on the city council at Odessa, created a vacancy by moving here, and a special election was held in the city of Odessa Thursday to name his successor.

Cal Smith, well known young cowman and grocer, and member of a pioneer family of the Odessa area, was the unanimous choice for the new alderman.

MORE THAN 60 NATIONS ARE AT ROTARY JUBILEE

(Special to The Reporter-Telegram)

CHICAGO, June 23.—Rotarians from Alaska, Yugoslavia and sixty other nations in the list between them, were streaming into Chicago today to celebrate in the birthplace of Rotary, the 25th anniversary of the founding of the first Rotary club. To greet them there were seventeen of the original club and the founder, Paul P. Harris, Chicago lawyer, who conceived the idea of a fellowship club composed of members of different occupations.

A five day program featuring international relations and world fellowship, along lines suggested by speakers of international prominence, from many different parts of the world, began today. An indicated registration of twenty thousand Rotarians and members of their families was under way in the ground floor offices of the Peoples Gas company, one of Michigan Boulevard's most imposing skyscrapers.

The principal business on Monday's program, other than distribution of the visitors to their hotels, was a meeting of the voting delegates to consider legislation proposed for enactment at this convention, and also suggested legislation for the possible consideration of future conventions. One of the resolutions under consideration would provide a "Past Service Membership," for those Rotarians who retire from active business. Under present rules, this retirement automatically terminates membership which is now restricted to one active principal (and one associate from the same company) in each line of business or profession.

The informal opening of the convention will be at Panther Draw, in September.

Greenwood, the First Baptist church of Big Spring, East Fourth Street Baptist church of Big Spring, Coahoma, Panther Draw, Courtney and the Midland church were those represented.

BERLIN, June 23. (AP) — Russian monarchists here today claimed that American communists with Moscow agents at Danzig last week planned an intensifying communist movement in America in September. Monarchists said the next step will be a secret communist convention in Chicago, July 3.

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP) — Representative Bachman, republican, West Virginia, today said he believed the house communist committee would look into the Berlin reports that American communists plan an extensive American propaganda movement in September.

The first committee hearing would be held on July 15, he said he believed.

Will Mark Roads To New Mexico Towns

Signs at every turn and angle in the road between Midland and Lovington and between Hobbs and Midland will be installed by the Midland chamber of commerce secretary and Walter Gill when the two go to Lovington June 28 to attend the celebration over completion of the rail line.

Twenty-three signs are now being painted and will be put up at strategic points so that motorists between those towns and Midland will not get off of the road.

The roads between Midland and Seminole and between Andrews and Midland will be marked in this system of road signs.

New Manager For United Dry Goods

George H. Philippus, formerly of Ranger, located in Midland and will succeed L. L. Caver as manager of the United Dry Goods company here. Philippus has had considerable experience in operating dry goods and department stores and will fit in excellently with the organization established by Caver.

Caver announces that he will go to Texarkana where he has accepted a more attractive business proposition. He expressed his regret at leaving Midland, having enjoyed the acquaintances made and the patronage accorded him here. He will be here for several days.

Famous "We" Combination Added to

First it was Lindy and his famous "Spirit of St. Louis"; next Anne of the House of Morrow came along, and the plane that carried the Lone Eagle all the way to Le Bourget was suspended from the ceiling of the Smithsonian institute; now the well known and much publicized "We" combination becomes "We-6," a little Lindy having been born at the Englewood home of Lindy's father-in-law, to his wife Anne.

BETTER ROAD TO SEMINOLE PLAN OF JUDGE THERE

Construction of a better road between Midland and Seminole within the borders of Gaines county is assured, following correspondence between the Midland chamber of commerce and County Judge R. W. Pittman of Gaines county.

Judge Pittman advises that as soon as a road north of Seminole is completed, county machinery will be moved to the Midland road, and that a new road will be constructed along the old Midland and Northwestern right of way. Cattle guards will be installed, insuring a fast route. The road from Midland to the Andrews county line is kept in first class condition at all times.

OIL SHOWING IN HUTT WILDCAT IS CURRENT REPORT

Cores from the Pure Oil company's No. 1 Hutt wildcat in southeastern Midland county are reported to have been sent to the office in Fort Worth late Saturday with a showing of oil prevalent. Definite information from the test, and samples from the core, were not available to local offices when scouts last visited the test.

After going into the lime at a reported depth of 4,095 feet, the showing is said to have been encountered at below 4,100, and the test was shut down at 4,129 to set 8 1-4 inch casing.

The crew was reaming Sunday afternoon, preparatory to running the 4,100 or more feet of pipe, and it is expected that as many as three days delay may be encountered while the casing is being set.

The test is located 2,310 feet from the north and 330 feet from the east lines of section 14, block 38, township 4-south, Midland county.

Big Crowd Goes to Marcus Gist Ranch

More than 60 ex-students of Texas A. & M. college attended the meeting of the West Texas Ex-Students association at the Marcus Gist ranch in Odessa Sunday afternoon, listening to a speech made by Coach Matty Bell of the farmers and mechanics institution while they ate a chuck wagon lunch.

Bert Hull and E. E. McQuillen, president and secretary respectively of the ex-students association, spoke also. Hull talked of the student loan fund that has helped 900 students through the school; he said there was a gift of $5,000 made to the fund Friday, and that $50,000 is now on deposit for such aid. He stated that it is hoped to swell this sum to $150,000.

"Only one-tenth of one per cent of the money let out to students for such aid has failed to return to the fund," Hull said.

McQuillen told of progress made on the campus of A. & M., of the gridiron and track, with reference made to other athletics.

The next meeting of the West Texas body will be at Big Spring, July 19. Heretofore, Midland has had three of the meetings, Odessa two.

Seven Midland men and their families were present at the meeting Sunday.

SPECIAL SESSION MAY O. K.

Ratification Impetus Seen in Action Of Today

WASHINGTON, June 23. (AP) — The senate foreign relations committee today approved the London naval treaty, 16 to 4, overwhelmingly defeating the bloc arrayed against it.

It is believed that this action will insure ratification when the senate considers the pact problem at the special session.

It came as a more or less well defined surprise today to many political leaders that the approved vote of the affairs committee should be hailed as "action calculated to insure ratification" of the London naval pact in the extraordinary session of the senate.

It had been said editorially for several weeks that the investigation being conducted by the affairs committee was less than significant, other than acquainting the public with the nature of the investigation.

Behind the whole proceedings, the question of naval parity of the U. S. and Great Britain is the motivating influence, it being contended by naval leaders that America has not been allowed by plenipotentiaries at the conference the maritime strength it should have had in comparison with the British Isles.

The matter assumed such debated proportion that President Hoover would not consider waiting for the next session of congress to decide what should be done; he insisted upon calling the special session, tired though congressmen were with repeated debate for day after day.

A GREAT CHAMPION

The number of inhabitants of this glorious country who do not play golf must run into the millions, and the number who are not interested in golf must be almost as impressive, but practically every citizen of the United States admires a winner.

Bobby Jones is a winner, one of the greatest in the history of golf. Friday he added a new crown to his choice collection, by capturing the British open championship against a brilliant field of the world's best golfers. Not long ago he won the British amateur crown, one of the most coveted in golf; already he held possession of the American open championship.

Bobby Jones started playing golf as a puny boy, taking up the sport on the advice of physicians. Not a great many years ago his temper was terrible. He broke his clubs and kicked at caddies when luck went against him. But Jones conquered his temper as well as his opponents, and today there is not a sorer golfer in all Christendom. First he conquered himself; then he made a clean sweep of all the golfing honors there are.

As modest as Lindbergh, Jones holds the ungrudging admiration of the golfing world.—Abilene Reporter-News.

PROTECTING ROAD MATTERS

Highway matters discussed by Midland men in a conference with State Highway Commissioner W. R. Ely Saturday may be of vast importance in the very near future.

Surely, a direct route from Midland to the Carlsbad cavern, connecting with the Andrews and Hobbs oil areas, would be one of the most important roads in Texas, and would mean much more than first thought would indicate.

And besides that, the suggestion by County Commissioner Donald Hutt that the present Broadway of America be resurfaced, with concrete shoulders constructed along the road, comes as a possible remedy of accidents which have made highway driving dangerous through this section. Commissioner Ely's apparent interest in the plan gives to Midland citizens a tip that now is the time for an organized effort to secure highway improvement.

A SPORT OR A RACKET?

Now that the most recent heavyweight "championship" fight has ended in the usual unsatisfactory manner, it is to be hoped that the country can get back to normal and recognize the fact that boxing, in this country, is much more like a racket than a sport.

All sports in this country are commercialized, of course. College football suffers from this blight, and professional baseball is quite frankly a business proposition. But the element of play has never been eliminated in either of these. Each can still be called a sport.

But boxing! It is getting to be the regular thing for the customer to be left holding the bag. Indeed, it is getting so common that the customer hardly deserves any sympathy.

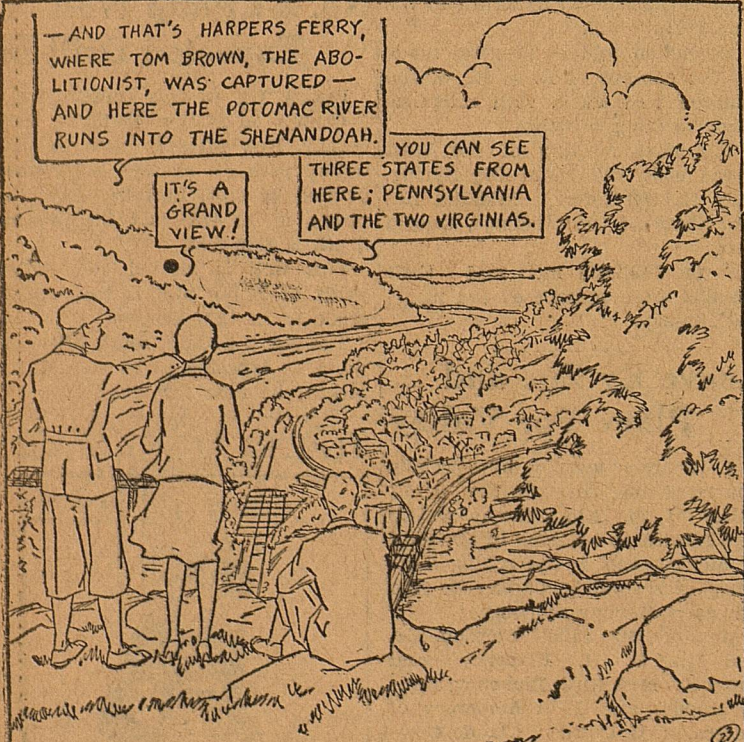

DEFENDING MEXICO'S GOOD NAME

It is not hard to understand why the Republic of Mexico is preparing to censor all imported American films and books to see to it that nothing "degrading to Mexico" is allowed to pass.

National pride has come to life strongly below the Rio Grande during the last few years. The government is trying to foster it; and however little you may like the idea of censorship, you must admit that this supervision of American books and movies is not without reason.

The Mexican almost invariably plays the role of villain in an American story or film. Indeed, whenever a Mexican character comes on the scene the seasoned reader, or playgoer, knows at once that he is up to no good; and if a group of Mexicans comes on one can be prepared for skullduggery on a large scale.

A Hint to the June Bride

Cameraman Gives Closeup Of Record Attempt in Air

EDITOR'S NOTE: J. A. Nesensohn, chief of the photographic staff for The Reporter-Telegram and NEA Service at Chicago, is a flying cameraman who has had many thrilling experiences. Last winter Nesensohn was the first cameraman to fly over the flood-stricken districts of southern Indiana, enlisting as a Red Cross worker and dropped food and clothing to marooned farmers as he snapped pictures of the icy flood.

By J. A. NESENSOHN, NEA Service Cameraman

CHICAGO, June 23.—Four brothers from a little Illinois town have given up their jobs, invested in two airplanes and gone out to bid for fame and fortune by seeking to wrest the non-stop airplane endurance record away from Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine.

Two of the brothers — John and Kenneth Hunter — spending their time circling over the flat country around Sky Harbor airport, 35 miles north of here, vowing that they will not come down until the Fourth of July.

The other two, Walter and Albert Hunter, are their ground crew. Twice daily, at morning and evening, they go aloft to refuel the non-stop plane and to provide its crew with food and drink.

As the first newspaperman to accompany them I went aloft with the two brothers in the refueling plane to get some pictures. I found myself involved, before I came down, in an aerial game of hide-and-seek that was more thrilling than I had expected.

Ascend on Cloudy Day We went up about 11 o'clock on a cloudy, hazy morning. The sky was a dull gray and a moderate wind was blowing. The boys had at that time been up about 150 hours.

Walter and Albert Hunter got in the plane, took aboard the 100 gallons of gasoline and signaled for me to hop in the cockpit. I piled in with my camera.

No sooner were we fairly in the air than we discovered that the job was going to be difficult. The higher we went the hazier it got. Presently we discovered that the City of Chicago, the endurance plane, had disappeared.

We set out to locate it. The mist got thicker, like a deep fog. We would get a glimpse of the City of Chicago now and then, but it would vanish in the mist before we could get to position over it.

For fully an hour this game of hide-and-seek went on. Finally, after process had begun to get pretty nerve-wearing, we managed to get and keep a suitable position. Then the work began.

Gasoline Is Transferred

Down from our plane dropped a 40-foot hose. We slipped down a little lower, and the City of Chicago came up to meet us. It was just a little bit weird; the fog was thick and yellow, so that we could neither see the ground or the sun, yet the sunlight burned through it and made everything within a near radius bright.

It took a little jockeying around before Kenneth Hunter, who was in the cockpit of the plane below, managed to grab the hose line. He connected it, and Walter, who was handling it from one end, turned on the gas.

The operation took only three minutes, but it called for some skillful work. John Hunter, flying the City of Chicago, and Albert at the controls of the refueling ship, had to maintain identical speeds and had to keep the distance separating the planes unchanged. The motors were running slowly, almost idling; we could talk to each other.

"How long are you fellows going to stay up?" I yelled down to Kenneth. He grinned: "Fourth of July or bust!" He yelled back: "We're getting along fine."

That was about all the conversation there was. Her tanks refilled, the City of Chicago cast off and swooped down through the mist, until at last we could see the earth again. We landed immediately.

The four Hunter brothers live in Sparta, Ill. All are veteran pilots, but they gave up their regular jobs to gamble that they can set a new endurance flight record. They are flying Stinson-Detroit monoplanes, powered by Wright Whirlwind motors.

A NEW BOW

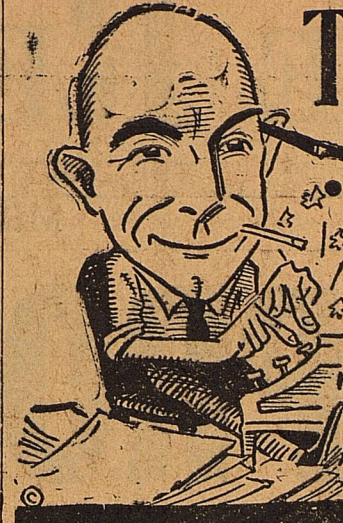

The new Clara Bow, who caused such a furore of excitement in the brief glimpse possible in "Paramount on Parade," is back with an eye-full of charms in her latest, "It's a Hit," "True to the Navy," opening at the Ritz theatre today.

She is slim, lithe, peppy, and has all the famous vitality and vivaciousness which have made her the most popular female star in motion picture.

"True to the Navy" is all Clara Bow. A soda-fountain girl with a great personality, she has all the sailors from the fleet wild about her. Every boat that comes into port brings a special boy-friend for the "Redhead." She has only about half-a-dozen steady beaux. Each thinks himself the only one. Clara is whole-hearted, a good sport, none of the gods means more than a good friend to her. Then the whole fleet drops anchor at once, and Clara's clamoring boy-friends try to settle their rights by force. When this doesn't work, they all declare war against her.

Then Clara meets a new boy-friend, Fredric March, and loses her heart. Just as March is about to pop the question, to which Clara is eager to answer yes, her discarded sailors warn March that Clara is a heartless flirt. March veers off. But Clara goes after her man, proves she loves him and adds a wedding ring to her collection of souvenirs.

BAN STUNT FLYING BERLIN. (UP)—Stunt flying has been banned by the Prussian government following two accidents in a week in which aerial acrobats were killed.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

What with Marvin Ulmer and Bert Ross building a new pee-wee golf course, George Payne running full tilt at the West Texas course, and Fred Ellis buying the Little course up on West Wall, it looks like a fair chance for me to get a season pass if they don't start a big newspaper advertising campaign. Of course, if they run a lot of ads in the paper, all I have to do is to pat them on the back and say "go to it."

Well, the hay fever season has started. I might mention here that I don't want any season pass to this racket. Elliott Barron, Fannie Bess Taylor and Charley Goldsmith had let out for the season, and all of them are considering leaving the country.

There never was a better excuse though than the hay fever. You can't mow the lawn or cut weeds, because being so close to nature irritates the ailment. You can't wash dishes, because you don't have time. It gives you an excuse to take a vacation, because any hay fever sufferer will tell you that a change in altitude or climate is the best yet.

All the same, I don't want it. Timberline Floyd was sick a while back, about the first time in his life, and when he got in shape, the doctor told him to lay off of stimulants. Instead of drinking coffee, he drinks buttermilk. But what I can't understand is the way he gets in on these horse races. If a horse race won't stimulate you, you just can't be stimulated.

All of which reminds me that it won't be long now till the July 4th polo, races, fire works, swimming, ducking, and other contests.

SHOT, MAY DIE

"Jonesey" Jones the rig builder, well known character of the oil fields of the southwest who was shot in Hobbs recently by "Little Sheriff" Walter Turner, may die.

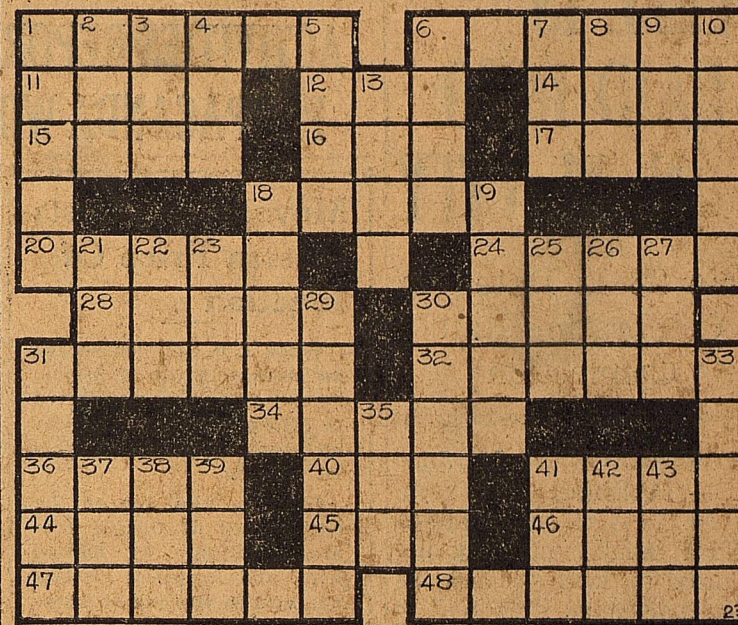

according to reports of authorities. Jones is in the McKee & Conner hospital in New Hobbs where he was taken for an operation after a bullet had penetrated his left shoulder, dangerously near the heart.

Turner admitted the shooting to Deputy Sheriff Leo W. de Cordova and Judge George T. Harris and pled self-defense. He said he either had to shoot or be chopped up. He said "Jonesey" had been drinking and that he could not induce him to drop the hatchet with which he was threatening to take his (Turner's) life, according to the Hobbs News.

Pending the outcome of Jones' condition Turner was lodged in the county jail at Lovington.

Reports from the hospital today were such that Judge Harris refused to set bail for Turner. Although not in apparent danger of immediate death it is understood that the wounded man is not making the progress expected when the wound was first examined and the bullet removed.

"All ready—let 'er go!" yelled Kenneth Hunter, at the lower end of the gasoline supply hose, just as Nesensohn leaned over the side of the refueling plane above and snapped this picture. In a few moments, 100 gallons of gasoline had gone down to the endurance plane and then the two ships swerved apart. At the time this photograph was made the two ships were 1000 feet over a Chicago suburb and only 35 feet apart. John Hunter was at the controls. Observe the narrow catwalk on which Kenneth often climbs out to make minor repairs on the motor.

HOW TO SHOP

Porch Cushions All Should Be Waterproofed

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN, Author of "The Shopping Book"

Cushions and pillows used with porch furniture should be covered with fabric which has been thoroughly rubberized or otherwise waterproofed. Even so, the stuffing should be of kapok because there is always danger that moisture will penetrate; and the outstanding characteristic of kapok is that it dries readily. The use of small coil springs stuffing suffers from the disadvantage that these springs may rust.

In selecting the materials for porch coverings, remember that "sunfast" is a relative term. The best materials should remain presentable for several seasons, if properly cared for; but there will be a certain amount of fading from season to season, if these coverings are regularly exposed to the summer sun. Hence, one cannot reasonably expect that material bought and used this year will match in vividness of color the same material and design next season.

Local Housewives' Choice Recipes

Miss Edith Cox who has often visited Midland as a representative of the Home Service Department of the Southern Ice and Utilities company, has offered several good recipes for summer time cooking. Today will be found two of her most select recipes.

Jellied Chicken and Vegetable Loaf

- 1 cup boiling chicken stock or chicken soup, or Tuna fish. 1-2 teaspoons gelatine 1-4 cup cold water. 1 cup cooked peas or diced asparagus. 1 cup chopped left-over chicken. 1 teaspoon salt. 1-2 cup radishes or carrots. 1-2 cup shredded cabbage or cucumber. Cayenne pepper.

Soak the gelatine in cold water. Stir it with the salt into the boiling stock. Add the prepared vegetables and pour into a mold of any desired shape. Set in the coldest part of the refrigerator and let stand until firm. Serve on lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise.

Pinwheel Cookies

Cream together 1-2 cup of sugar and 1-2 cup butter. Add one unbeaten egg. Add alternately 3 table-spoons sweet milk and 1-1-2 cup of flour in which 1-2 teaspoons baking powder has been sifted. Add a teaspoon vanilla. Divide mixture into two equal parts. Add to one part one square bitter chocolate, melted. Roll each part out into about half inch thick rectangle of waxed paper. (Extra flour is necessary.) Turn chocolate part over the vanilla, then roll into a tight roll. Roll in waxed paper and place in refrigerator over night, or until chilled thoroughly. Slice about 1-4 inch thick. Place about 1 inch apart on greased tins. Bake 12 minutes at 325 degrees. Will make 55 good cookies.

HEART QUEEN OF FILMS, DECLARES SHE HAS NEVER MET MAN SHE COULD REALLY LOVE

"When I sees a man he stays keesed," insists Lupe Velez, the Mexican girl who stars in "Hell Harbor," the red-blooded tropical romance which started at the Yucca theatre yesterday. "But," adds the impetuous creature dubbed the "Hollywood Firebrand," "it is only actress who is keesing him. It is not the girl, Lupe Velez. Down in my soul I have not yet felt what you call it, love. I do all my keesing before the camera."

"If you never felt love, how do you do it so well before the camera?" grinned the reporter. But Lupe Velez cannot be trapped into admitting anything she doesn't want to admit.

"It is because I am a born actress," confided Lupe. "Do not forget that I was on the legitimate stage in Mexico when I was fifteen years old. Even since I could ready and study I've studied the theatre. I have read more plays than anything else. And if one is a born actress, the sense of emotional values comes as natural as the use of colors to an artist. You don't have to be blue to paint blue or red to paint red. Nor do you have to be in love to portray love."

And on the strength of this theory the screenite hurled an unconscious challenge to some fifty million American males with the impact of a of T. N. T. by declaring that, "No man has touch more than the surface of Lupe Velez. No man has touched my soul."

All this time the star was waiting to be called upon by Director Henry King for the filming of her love scene with John Holland which had been in rehearsal for a good part of the afternoon. Other members of the cast, including Jean Hersholt, Gibson Gowland, At St. John, Harry Allen, Paul E. Burns and George Book-Asta, were also present. They were enjoying the shade of the tall palm trees that flanked the street of the primitive village in which most of the action in Hell Harbor takes place. Carpenters were putting the finishing touches on the thatched cottages, the honky-tonk, the low, eerie docks, the quaint stores and traders' castles where the action of this story of elemental cunning and lawlessness takes place.

Lupe gazed at the scene abstractedly and spoke half to herself and half to her interviewer. "No, I have never really been in love. I love only my work and the people who like it." It didn't sound like the conventional "my public" bunk Lupe Velez said it. She went on with a swift pat of words. "I tell you, it is a good thing for a girl to have work like mine. It gives her an outlet. It keeps her from making a fool of herself."

"All the doctors who specialize on girls and women will tell you girls have to have an emotional outlet. It is true. The little girl finds it in her dolls. When she gets a little bigger she tries to find it in boys and men. You can't bottle it up any more than you can bottle up a railroad train running full speed. If you do, you wreck the train. There is no cork big enough to stop up the greatest force in the world. That is why so many girls, with no other emotional outlet, make such fools of themselves in their first love affairs. They see some very ordinary or very bad man all surrounded by a rose-colored haze. Don't blame them. Blame life."

"But, thank God, I have had my work for an emotional outlet, I have had a million people to love—the people who see my pictures and tell me they love them. So far that has kept me from making a fool of myself. I hope it continue to keep me. There is so much mock-modesty in the world it makes me tired. Praise? I love it. Anybody who tells the truth will tell you they love it. When I step out of a railroad train and when I walk along the street or go into a restaurant and her people say: 'There she is. That's Lupe Velez!' and when they nudge other people and they all look at me and smile and some of the come over and tell me how they liked me in 'The Goucho' and 'The Lady of the Pavements' and the 'Wolf Song'—I get warm all over. It makes me tingle and feel fine. Then I know that the day when people don't look at me on the street and aren't interested in the work I am trying to do for them—that day I'll die."

"A girl has got to love something, or she dries up and withers away, if she doesn't explode first. So when I say I love my work, it isn't just bunk. I do love it. It gives me all the outlet in the world. It keeps me from making a fool of myself over some men. It's hard to make a fool of yourself over your work."

The interview had come to an end. Lupe, in response to Director King's call, lost herself in the character of the fiery young thing descended from the notorious pirate, Sir Henry Morgan, who had inherited all the love of adventure and daring that had sent her fearless ancestor on so many adventurous quests. Lupe was no longer the Lupe who had been speaking. Her actions had been speaking. Her actions seemed to befit what she had spoken. She was another person, a wild, elusive being, defying desperado and trickster in an attempt to give expression to a primitive soul reaching out for a finer, a fuller life.

"Hell Harbor" was filmed for Inspiration Pictures, Inc. in the natural settings afforded by the tropical groves and landscapes of the Florida everglades. The story of this United Artists Picture was suggested by Rida Johnson Young's "Out of the Night."

BUSHERS LOSE TOP RUNG; OILERS CROWD UP TO EVEN PLACE

VALLEY VIEW IS LOSER TO OIL CONTINGENT

By HERB ROUNTREE, (Staff Sports Writer)

The Oilers won and the Bushers lost, to give each of the Midland teams in the Tri-County league an even break as regards percentages for the season. The games were played Sunday afternoon, the Oilers engaging Valley View at Cowden park, the Bushers getting their measurement taken in Odessa.

Sunday's activities marked the second games for each of the eight clubs in the newly formed circuit. Results of other games had not been turned in early this morning.

The Oiler-Valley View game ended after a slugfest netted a total of 20 runs and 31 hits, the Oilers edging out a better total in each classification, getting 12 runs and 17 hits to Valley View's eight runs and 12 hits. The game was featured by Allagood's inside-the-park homer. The sprinting boy who formerly was with SMU had to extend himself to make the circuit.

Batteries for Valley View were Huff, C. Rotan, and T. Long, pitchers, and C. Rotan and G. Brunson, catchers. The Oilers used Rowden on the mound and Robinson behind the mask.

Fritz Estill called this game, which lasted two hours and a quarter.

Midland made four errors, Valley View three.

The Odessa game was tight, and an umpire's decision was taken a bit slowly at one stage of the game. The scoring came in this fashion:

Odessa in the first inning, Myrick, struck out; McGlassam, base on balls, steals second; McCown, out; Myrick to Johnson; Witzel, two base hit, scoring McGlassam; Rousseau hits a single, Witzel to 3rd; Stoneking out, Carroll Hill to Johnson, one run.

Bushers in third inning, Carroll Hill reaches 1st on an error; Meeks hits a home run scoring Carroll Hill ahead of him; K. Johnson reaches first on an error, Red Hill hits a line drive to pitcher, who catches Johnson off first, double play, Girdley, struck out, two runs.

Bushers in the fourth inning, Cook hits a single; Myrick, flies out to center field; Forney makes a hit, Cook takes 3rd, Mills; a hit, scoring Cook; Carroll makes a hit scoring both Forney and Mills; Meeks reaches 1st on an error, C. Hill taking second, C. Hill steals 3rd; Johnson hits a slow grounder to 3rd, catches C. Hill out at home; Red Hill, out, pitcher to 1st base, three runs.

Odessa in the 5th inning, F. Johnson, struck out; Tucker, struck out; McGlassam, base on balls; Meeks, 3rd; Myrick to K. Johnson; Tucker gets a base on balls; McGlassam hits a home run, scoring Tucker; McCown, struck out; Stoneking, struck out, three runs.

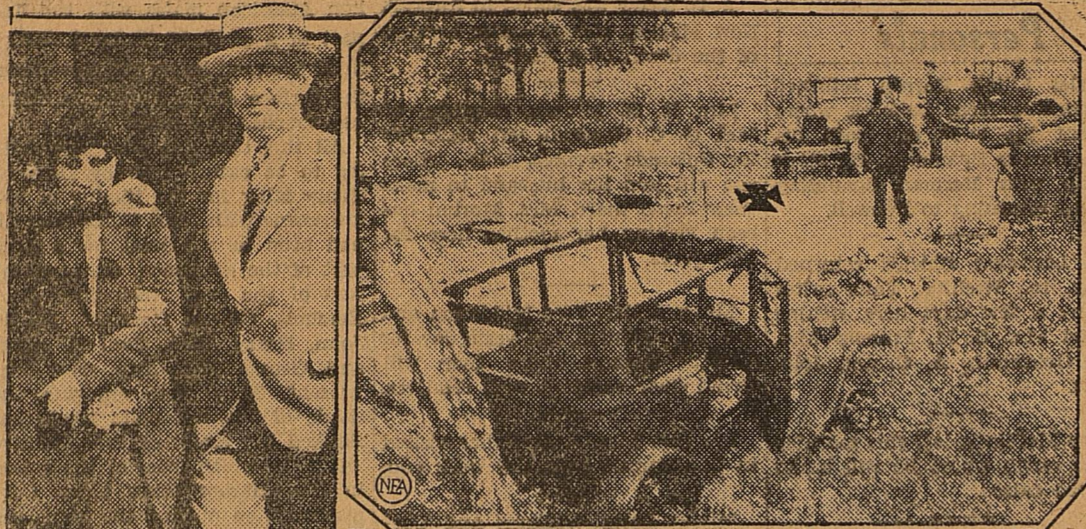

Bushers in the 8th inning, Myrick, struck out; Forney gets a base on ball; Johnson is running for Forney; Mills hits for two bases scoring Johnson; Forney gets credit for run; Ellis, struck out; Meeks reaches 1st on an error, Mills scores on the misplay; Johnson, struck out, two runs.

Odessa in the 9th inning, Tucker, struck out; McGlassam a hit; McCown two base hit, scoring McGlassam. One run, only 1 out.

As New York Police Hunted Killer "3X"

The greatest man-hunt in New York police history was in progress as a thousand detectives and uniformed officers searched isolated sections of the Borough of Queens for a maniac believed responsible for the killing of two persons and for threats to murder fourteen others. Pictured above is the lonely spot (indicated by the cross) where Noel Stowley, a radio expert, sitting in a parked automobile with a girl, was mysteriously shot and killed by "a tall, hollow-cheeked man with glittering eyes." Catherine May, who was in a car with Joseph Mazynsky, a grocer, when he was murdered under almost identical circumstances in the same vicinity, is shown at the left, accompanied by a detective, after visiting an insane hospital in the hope of finding the murderer. Descriptions of the killers of both men were similar. Letters, signed "3X" and written to New York newspapers, taunted the police and boasted that thirteen other men and one woman were listed for death.

LONDON Letter

By ARCH RODGERS, United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON. (UP).—London society is expected to turn out en masse Monday night, June 23, at the Midsummer Eve's Ball, one of the most brilliant functions of the season, under the special patronage of the Prince of Wales.

The ball, which is in aid of the Greater London Fund for the Blind, will take place at the Ambassador Club. It coincides with the Prince's birthday which is Monday. In addition to the Prince, Ambassador Dawes, the Argentine and Belgian Ambassadors, and their wives have agreed to be patrons. All of them in company with a number of other Ambassadors and Ministers are expected to be present in person.

A feature of the affair is that it will be conducted on the lines of a private party, tickets being strictly limited. Another feature is the number of this year's debutantes who are to be found listed on the ticket selling committee. They include some of the most beautiful girls in England.

Besides the ball a "Midnight Pageant" is to be presented. It will represent episodes from Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream." A number of well-known society women have promised to participate.

Among those taking an active part in the organization of the function are Lady Diana Cooper, Princess Asa Yima, Margaret Bannerman, the actress, and Miss Elaine Macey, who was one of the principal organizers of the "Perfect Dinner and Perfect Music" in honor of the Queen of Spain, last year.

Patrons include: Ambassador and Mrs. Dawes, Argentine Ambassador and Mesdames Uruburu, the Belgian, Polish and Portuguese ambassadors, Constance Duchess of Westminster.

"HELL'S ANGELS," $4,000,000 EPIC OF THE AIR, SURPASSES "WINGS"

By DAN THOMAS, NEA Service Writer.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 23.—"Hell's Angels."

For nearly three years we have been reading and writing about this gigantic motion picture of the air. And now we know what we have been writing about. The film had its world premiere at Grauman's Chinese Theater here a few nights ago. And it is by far the best air picture yet made. In fact, it is doubtful if it ever will be equalled.

Howard Hughes, young millionaire producer, spent three years and $4,000,000 in making this picture. Every scene was made over and over again until it was just right, regardless of cost. Money meant nothing to Hughes. He wanted a picture—and he got it. But no other producer in the business could afford to spend that much time or money on a single production.

It Couldn't Be Ordinary

Before the picture ever was seen, everyone knew that it would be either very good or very bad. No film on which that amount of time and money had been spent could be just ordinary. Fortunately, it turned out to be exceptionally good. Whether Hughes ever will get his money back, however, is another question. Never before has so much been spent on one picture. Even "Ben Hur," which for years held the record as the most expensive picture, cost only $3,600,000.

The story behind "Hell's Angels" is nothing to get excited about. But its shortcomings are more than made up for by the tremendous air sequences. One sequence in particular, centering around a German Zeppelin, is marvelous. The Zeppelin makes a raid on London and is attacked by four English planes. Every possible bit of ballast is thrown overboard so that the huge ship can ascend out of the reach of the planes. When this is found to be insufficient, some of the men are made to jump overboard without parachutes.

The climax of the sequence comes when an English pilot sends his plane headlong into the bag of the Zeppelin, which immediately bursts into flames. Words cannot adequately describe this scene. You have to see it to appreciate it.

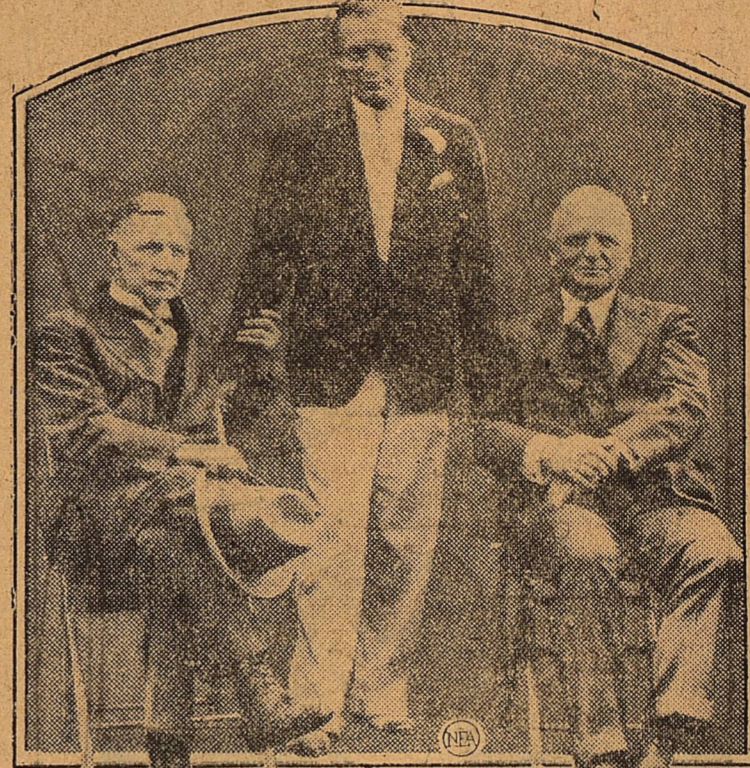

The story is a rather ordinary one of two brothers, Ben Lyon and Jimmy Hall, who join the Royal Flying Corps at the beginning of the World War. Jimmy is in love with a girl, Jean Harlow. Ben learns that Jean is far from the girl his brother considers her and tries to convince Jimmy of this fact but the latter retains his illusions until he learns differently when they meet in France.

Both boys are captured by the Germans after a spectacular air battle and are promised many privileges in the prison camp if they will reveal some information regarding their own troops. If they refuse they are to be shot as spies.

To keep Ben from telling, Jimmy shoots him and is then led before the firing squad himself. That part of the story is unusual. At least they didn't come through unharmed and live happily ever afterwards.

Dawes, in U. S., Sees Son Graduated

Credit for Everyone

It is impossible to lay the credit for this film at any one person's feet. Hughes naturally comes in for the lion's share. He directed the picture and it was his willingness to spend unlimited money that made it possible. Lyon, Hall and Miss Harlow were very good in their roles, although Jean established herself as a "heavy" more than a leading lady.

The 70 aviators and innumerable cameramen who made the air shots deserve plenty of praise. And so does the cutter, Frank Lawrence, who cut 3,000,000 feet of film down to 12,000 feet, which is as long as any film can run.

A shifting of the Gulf stream toward New York conjures up visions of balmy all-the-year-round weather for easterners. California may eventually have to find something else to boast about besides its climate.

LAMESA MURDER TRIAL MARKED BY A DEFINITE, INTRIGUING BIT OF DRAMA

By VIC LAMB,
Special Staff Correspondent.

LAMESA, June 23.—Possibility of the jury retiring to deliberate on a verdict in the case of Ira McKee, on trial for his life for the murder of W. R. Billingsley, a Sparenberg resident, on May 1, was the opinion expressed by attorneys in the case. The defense has rested its case and the state's rebuttal testimony was to begin this morning, it was stated by District Attorney T. L. Price. Although questions to prospective jurors during the first day of the case put by Harvey B. Shead, attorney for the defense, related to prejudice of an insanity plea and a self-defense plea, it is thought that only insanity will be used in the attorney's arguments to the jury. No witnesses were used in testifying on the possibility of McKee shooting in self defense.

Friends and relatives of McKee were questioned Saturday concerning his mentality. "What is your opinion now as to whether McKee is sane or insane?" was the question Shead asked each of his witnesses.

In most cases they answered that they believed that he was insane, or "out of his mind," at times. Price cross examined each of them as to what their opinion was of whether McKee knew right from wrong. The answers were different in each instance.

Although a number of spectators had anticipated seeing the red haired District Attorney open fire in cross examining some of the defense witnesses he did not gruel but one of them.

He pounced on Ray Estes, a friend of McKee, when he made the statement that he had not seen the defendant on Sunday or Monday following the shooting.

"Do you mean to tell me you did not see the defendant on Sunday or Monday, May 4 or 5?" he repeated.

"No, sir."

"Didn't you tell Sheriff Gib Abemathy on Monday that you had seen him?"

Estes paused for two minutes and did not give an answer until District Judge Gordon B. McGuire told him to answer the question.

"Yes, sir," he said in a low voice. "Then, why did you tell me a few minutes ago that you didn't see him?"

"I don't know."

"Why?"

"Well, I told Gib that I didn't know McKee had been in trouble."

Shed, who with J. P. Willis of Hobbs, New Mexico, are representing McKee, did not gruel any of the nineteen state witnesses on the stand. He spoke to each one casually and was very friendly.

During the first few hours of testimony Shead repeatedly objected to questions put to the state witnesses by Price and in most cases he was sustained. On Saturday most of his objections were overruled and exceptions were made. Price withdrew some of the questions he had asked when the defense lawyer objected before Judge McGuire ruled on them.

McKee and his lawyers all appeared sullen and sulky Saturday. McKee took little interest in the proceedings. He held his sister's little daughter on his lap several times during the trial.

Of the 650 spectators present, it is believed that a number of them will not be present Monday since McKee will not be placed on the stand in his own defense. McKee was probably the drawing card for the unusually large gathering Saturday afternoon.

The two witnesses that created most interest in the case to date were Ida Mayhall, nine-year old daughter of Mrs. Emma Mayhall, also indicted for Billingsley's murder as an accomplice, and Mrs. Mayhall herself.

The child's answers to the defense attorney were very frank and short. "Who told you that McKee parked his car a block and a half from where the homicide occurred?" he asked her one time.

"Didn't anyone tell me and besides I know a block from an inch!"

"What happens to little girls that don't tell the truth, Ida?" was the first question Price asked the little girl.

"They go to the boogey man and they go to jail."

"You are going to tell nothing but the truth in this case, Ida?"

"I'm going to tell the very truth."

Outfielders Claim Shots Fired In Sunday Game

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(UP)—Heinie Manush, Sam West and Dave Harris, outfielders on the Washington, American league, team, maintain that shots were fired at them during the Sunday game.

They deny reports that the shots were fire-crackers, and said that they heard bullets whine and saw dirt fly nearby. They found holes in the right field wall.

Police doubt the story.

Rotary--

vention tonight at the Chicago Stadium will consist of a musical entertainment by the Symphony orchestra, Imperial Welsh Singers, Swedish Choral Club and a special chorus of 400 voices. This will be followed by a pageant portraying the growth of Rotary from a little group of four men, to an organization of 153,000 members, in 25 years; from one club to 3,330 clubs, in sixty-two countries.

In the name of the 625 Rotarians of Chicago, whose ranks include 17 "quarter century" members, President Floyd L. Bateman of the Rotary Club of Chicago will extend to the thousands of visitors tomorrow, at the formal opening session, a welcome from the No. 1 Rotary Club to all its successors. In the name of the visiting Rotarians, especially those from overseas, Dr. Otto Bohler of Vienna, Austria, will respond and the convention will then be formally under way, according to the program developed by Chairman Crawford C. McCullough, of Fort William, Ontario, and his convention committee.

Morning sessions for the remainder of the week through Friday will be devoted to a general program covering all the activities of Rotary community betterment programs, development of international friendships, and study of better business practices. Broadly speaking, Tuesday is business day, Wednesday is community day, and Thursday and Friday are international days.

Afternoon events are made up of informal assemblies. On Tuesday the Rotarians meet in occupational groups. On Wednesday they will discuss community problems, in groups of a few hundred each, divided according to the size of the clubs represented. Thursday afternoon, the ways and means of extending international goodwill form the topic for the assemblies.

Each afternoon also has special entertainment for the visiting "Rotary Anns." There is a style show for Monday in the new Merchandise Mart, the "world's largest building." Tuesday the ladies tour the city boulevards. Wednesday there is a boat ride on Lake Michigan and Thursday a concert by the Women's Symphony Orchestra.

The event which this convention commemorates occurred in 1905, on February 23, when Paul Harris, then starting the practice of law in Chicago, invited three of his friends to discuss the formation of a new kind of club which would primarily encourage fellowship and the extension of acquaintance. Membership would be restricted to one man of each distinct line of business. At subsequent meetings each brought along other friends and within a few weeks the club was definitely organized with officers and a membership of about 20. A first meeting rotated each fortnight among the places of business and this led the founder to propose the name "Rotary" club.

These fundamental principles still remain in all Rotary clubs. From time to time the Chicago Rotary Club added other characteristics which also have become familiar in every club—singing, the use of first names, active participation in community welfare work, formation of student loan funds and luncheon meetings. In these footsteps there are now following other service clubs with several hundred thousand members, emulating the example of cordial fellowship set by the quarter of Rotarians a quarter of a century ago.

WYNNE, Ark., (UP)—Negro hoehands do their chopping with anxious glances in all directions as these days. The workers were thrown into a turmoil when a black bear was seen swimming the river in their direction.

How Broadway Hailed Heroes

Above: Resembling the Antarctic snows from which they had returned was this white storm of ticker-tape and confetti which greeted Rear Admiral Byrd and his party of explorers as they paraded up Broadway to receive New York's tumultuous welcome. Admiral Byrd and Grover Whalen, chairman of the mayor's welcoming committee, are in the first car. Note the paper-littered pavement and the dense crowds that packed the sidewalks and the balconies of buildings. It was Broadway's third and biggest welcome to Byrd, the trans-Atlantic flyer and conqueror of both poles. To left: "Hello, Broadway!" Here's an unusual close-up view of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, showing him acknowledging with a wave of his cap the cheers of the thousands who filled the sidewalks and skyscraper windows to hail him upon his arrival in New York. With the hero explorer is Grover Whalen, chairman of the mayor's welcoming committee.

Poultry "Jakeleg" Remedy Found Here

While the press of the state was having its laugh privately about the "jakeleg" disease found among poultry in Midland county, County Agent Frank Wendt went on with experiments calculated to discover to him the truth of the cause of the malady.

Going to Big Spring, Wendt asked Dr. Wolfe to aid him in his study professing to the belief that lack of mineral matter in rations fed chickens in the county was responsible for the occurrence of the malady.

Wolfe and Wendt conducted experiments together, and it was found that absence of phosphates and calcium conduced the disease. Feeding of oyster shells and bone black, or of bone meal will, when added to the grain ration fed by several poultrymen, correct the trouble the two men say.

Commercial rations fed here are rich in mineral matter, Wendt says. The trouble with poultry being fed rations not properly balanced showed itself a few days ago in the feet of fowls, these cracking open and otherwise losing power necessary to proper support of the body of the fowl.

Vickers To Speak Big Spring Tonight

"Why a chamber of commerce?" will be the subject of an address by Paul T. Vickers, secretary of the Midland chamber of commerce, at the quarterly meeting of the Big Spring chamber tonight. The occasion will be a picnic at the Big city park.

Young men of the Big Spring organization are staging the program, and an enthusiastic meeting is anticipated. Mrs. Vickers will accompany the Midland secretary there.

'LOW DOWN' ON MIDLAND GIVEN STATE WRITER BY MALCOLM MEEK RECENTLY

"When it comes to a city of actual home owners, I think Midland is the banner city in Texas," M. M. Meek of this city said Saturday at The Texas. He is president of the Midland Rotary club, and accompanied by Mrs. Meek was en route to the Rotary International Silver Jubilee at Chicago when interviewed by State Editor Van Blarcomb of The Star-Telegram.

"I am not exaggerating a bit when I say that between 85 and 90 per cent of the homes in Midland are owned by the people living in them," Meek continued, "I don't think there is another city in the state that can equal that showing. The reason for it is largely due to the fact that when an oil company sends a man to Midland it is with the understanding that he will remain not less than five years. The result is that he buys a home. Other corporations are doing the same thing, with similar results as regards their employees.

"In a few years Midland is going to be one of the prettiest cities in West Texas. For years it did not have an adequate water supply. The result was that little attention was paid to civic beautification. But now it has a supply sufficient for a city of not less than 50,000 persons. The last year there have been thousands of trees planted throughout the residential sections, lawns laid out and shrubs planted. There is hardly a home in the city today but what has its trees, lawn, flower beds and shrubs. The result is most striking. Now when a new residence is built trees are transplanted before even the side walks have been put up or the roof laid.

"I am predicting a rapid growth for Midland the next few years, because its trade territory is to be extended by the cutting up of the so-called Andy Faskin ranch. Heretofore the farming territory close to the city has been limited by that ranch, which consists of about 200,000 acres, some of them lying almost next to the city limits. The ranch was owned by a Scotchman named Andrew Faskin. He died about a year ago. He would never give his consent to the acreage being subdivided. We have been advised that the heirs have voted to cut the pasture into small farms. That will mean an influx of new settlers, and proportionately increasing the size of Midland's trade territory."

A little improvement on nature

MAYBE the finest grapes do hang the highest. Maybe the sweetest nuts are the hardest to crack. Maybe every rose does have its thorn.

But—the best merchandise, the best values, the best buying opportunities, are the ones that are the easiest to discover today.

This little improvement on nature can be credited to the advertisements that appear in your daily paper. Their function is to make the best pianos and the best cigarettes and the best automobiles widely known and easily obtainable.

The very nature of its job has helped advertising to succeed. Everybody likes good news. And advertisements tell all of us how and where we can get the very best of the things that we want.

When it comes to deciding on your purchases, the easiest way is also the best one. When you follow the advertisements, you get the soundest values, the most improved merchandise and the greatest satisfaction for the money you spend.

Advertisements are opportunities . . . study them to your own advantage
