YOUNG AIRMAN FOUND ALIVE IN WRECKAGE OF HIS AIRPLANE

HAD BEEN THERE FOR MANY HOURS

Is Seriously Hurt, It Is Reported from His Bedside

BENNINGTON, Vt., July 15. (P)—Frank Goldsborough, holder of the junior transcontinental flight record, was found alive in the wreckage of his airplane on a mountain-side near here today.

With Donald Mockler, passenger, he crashed into a tree while flying in the fog yesterday. Mockler was thrown clear of the wreckage, and was slightly hurt. He was unable to extricate Goldsborough, and wandered about for hours in a search for aid. Finally he reached town and a large searching party was formed.

Difficulty was encountered in finding the wreckage due to the wild countryside.

Goldsborough's skull was fractured and he is in a critical condition.

Was in Midland Goldsborough was through Midland last spring, on the flight that brought him the record. He took off late in afternoon for El Paso, but, darkness overtaking him, he had to land along the pipeline. He damaged a wing of his plane on a highline pole and had to spend the night on the barren prairie, but succeeded in flying his Fleet biplane to El Paso early the next morning.

Reports of a possible crack-up had been wired over the country during the period of his night watch on the prairie beside his ship, and Field-Manager Becherer of the Midland airport was ready to take off in El Paso in search of the airman. SAT was planning a search of the Carlsbad road route at the same time.

Good Pilot Goldsborough's plane Monday flew into a tree in the mountains, and fell, part of it remaining in the thick foliage.

The district was described as almost impenetrable. Fog conditions were held responsible.

Although the boy is young and had held his private pilot's license since only last year, he is said to be a good flyer and one who navigates his plane well.

Ptomaine Poison Is Fatal To Three

NEWTON, N. J., July 15. (P)—Three died today and three are seriously ill from ptomaine poison. The dead are Elizabeth, Fanny and Alice Stanton, children of Wilbur Stanton, farmer, who with his wife and foster son, William Courtwright, may die. Investigation showed that they had eaten ice cream and preserved meat.

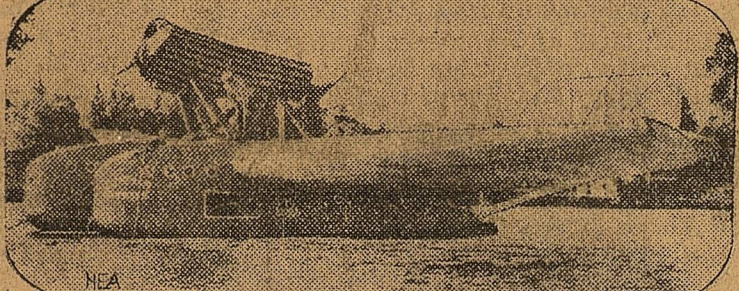

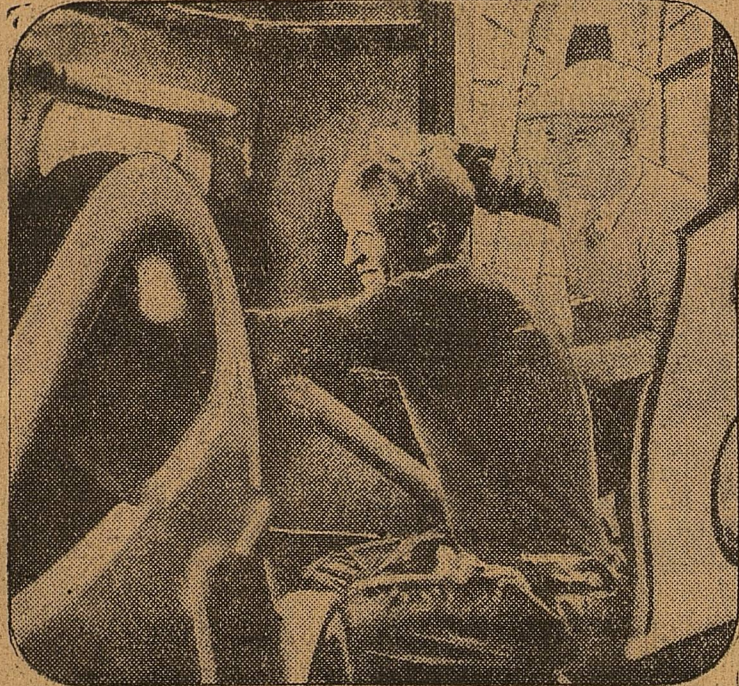

Cotton Consumption Less Than Year Ago

WASHINGTON, July 15. (P)—The census bureau today announced the June cotton consumption 405,181 bales of lint, and 58,501 of linters, compared with 569,414 bales of lint and 77,918 of linters last year for the same month. Cotton spindles active, exports, imports and cotton on hand in consuming establishments, public storage and compresses were all less than for last June.

SPEAKS TO ODESSA LIONS

Marcos Williamson, assistant scout executive of the western division of the Buffalo Trail council, spoke at a noon lunch of Odessa Lions today, explaining to them the duties and method of organization of scout troops.

Big Passenger Plane Battles Storm

Ships that sail the skies have their troubles with storms, just like those that sail the oceans. This giant $75,000 amphibian plane, carrying nine New York golfers to the National Open tournament at Minneapolis, was forced down on Lake Ontario near Rochester, N. Y., and nearly wrecked by a 55-mile gale that battered it against the docks. U. S. coast guards towed the airplane to safety two miles off shore where Chief Mechanic Art Simpson, one member of the crew of four, is shown pumping water out of the passenger cabin.

Miller Addresses A Good Crowd Here

Claude Miller spoke to a crowd estimated at 300 people Monday night, in the interests of Jim Young, aspirant for the governor's chair. He came to Midland from Waco, and will address a gathering in Big Spring tonight.

Vail Medal to Be Given at Banquet

A banquet given to employees of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company over the district Wednesday night, at the Scharbauer hotel, beginning at 7:30, will be attended by officials of the company from Fort Worth and will offer as a feature the presenting of the Vail medal by one of these officials to A. R. Johnson, Big Spring man who formerly lived in Midland. Johnson is accredited with having rendered first aid to eight victims of an automobile-bus crash between Midland and Stanton last December, possibly saving seven of them. One child died following being brought to the hospital.

Posse Comb Breaks For Murder Suspect

EDINBURG, July 15. (UP)—Thirty hours of searching the mesquite breaks near Raymondville today failed to rout a Mexican suspect in the murder of Bruno Villareal, 23. Twenty men with sawed off shotguns comprised a posse continuing the search. Villareal's body was found near Raymondville with an axe imbedded in the head. Robbery is believed to have been the motive.

$24,000 Taken By Alabama Bandits

BIRMINGHAM, July 15. (P)—Three unmasked bandits robbed the Woodlawn American National bank of $24,000 here today. One bandit covered the bank with a machine gun while his companions got the money and escaped.

BARGAINS OFFERED AT STORES

County Candidates to Speak; Political Holiday on

Mark McGee, former state commander of the Texas division of the American Legion, will be one of the principal speakers at Political Bargain day in Midland Thursday. He wired Hower W. Rowe, general chairman for the auto and retailers Political Bargain day committee of the chamber of commerce, he would be here to make an address in behalf of the gubernatorial candidacy of Earle B. Mayfield.

McGee's acceptance brings the total number of out-of-town speakers to four. Judge Jewel P. Lightfoot of Fort Worth will speak for R. S. Sterling. Henry Ansley will talk for Clint C. Small, and a man yet to be selected will speak for Jim Young.

Midland merchants are preparing for a big day. Business is expected to be good all day except at 5 p. m., when the first speaking program will be given.

Big Crowds are expected from Stanton, Odessa and Andrews to swell the local audiences.

Two Gatherings Candidates for state offices and local district candidates have been invited to come to Midland Thursday to make two speeches each. The first speaking program will be held at 5 p. m. for benefit of out-of-town people who may wish to arrive home before night.

The second speaking rally will be at 8 p. m., probably on the east side of the courthouse on Loraine street.

Business men of Midland will offer special bargains. Many dollar specials will be offered. Every merchant in Midland has been invited to participate. The whole air of the Midland chamber of commerce is to assist the business men by drawing the people to the city, thus stimulating business, and to assist the people of the county and surrounding territory by helping them to learn of the bargains Midland merchants will offer and of hearing candidates.

Seats will be provided for many at both speaking periods, Smith Umberson and R. J. Moore being in charge.

Real Stump Affair A feature of the speaking is that it will be a genuine stump affair. O. W. Baxley, advertising manager of the Midland Daily Reporter-Telegram, is having his father send a broad pine stump from the pine woods of Smith county near Tyler.

Homer W. Rowe is chairman of the speakers notification committee and has invited candidates. Every candidate for an office in Midland county will be expected to make a speech not to exceed 5 minutes.

Business houses will have special supplies of ice water for everybody. It will be a political holiday, a place to meet friends. The speaking is in the open and will be cool.

MIDLAND MAN IS HERO, BUT 2 MEN DIE AFTER RESCUE

D. H. Starling, with the Atlantic Pipe Line company and a resident of Midland until recently, made a dramatic rescue of two men in Hobbs oil field Monday, only to see his work go for naught.

H. E. Powers and Ray Seymour died after being overcome in a steel gas filled tank. Artificial respiration failed to revive them.

Seymour started to enter the tank (which) was on the Texas-Pacific Coal & Oil Co. lease. Powers called him to desist until it had been tested for gas, but he was fully 300 feet away at the moment and was not heard.

Afraid that Seymour would be overcome, Powers went down into the tank after his fellow workman. He was not able to withstand the gas filled atmosphere, however, and another workman, John Sharp, found both men unconscious.

Starling arrived at that moment and quickly removed the manhole plate at the bottom of the tank when he found that he could not stand the fumes in the tank. He dragged the men from the tank but doctor's believed they would die.

Steel Arriving for Tool Company Plant

Steel for the erection of the Hughes Tool company plant and the crew that will do the work of laying it will be in Midland Wednesday, it is expected.

Fittings for the plant have already arrived.

The first building to be erected will be 96x170 feet and the second about 80x190.

The city has about completed laying of water pipe to the plant site, adjoining Florida park.

Big Spring Has Its Pants Robbers, Too

It is thought possible by many here that the "pants" bandit or bandits who operated here recently has transferred activities to Big Spring, since cases reported by residents of that city to the police are almost identical with those made here.

The Big Spring Herald says four robberies, have been reported to the sheriff's department.

J. N. Wofford, 419 East Park, reported his trousers were removed from his room while he slept.

The screen was removed from a bedroom in the home of E. H. Jones, 1200 Gregg street and the trousers belonging to Monte Franks stolen. The trousers contained $5.

A 15-jewel Elgin watch and small change were taken by a robber when he stole the trousers of L. M. Garner, 1501 Johnson street.

A watch was stolen when the robber removed from the house the clothing of Leonard Stewart, 1404 Austin street. A small amount of money also was stolen. The clothing, including trousers, shirt and belt, was found in a vacant lot back of the Stewart home.

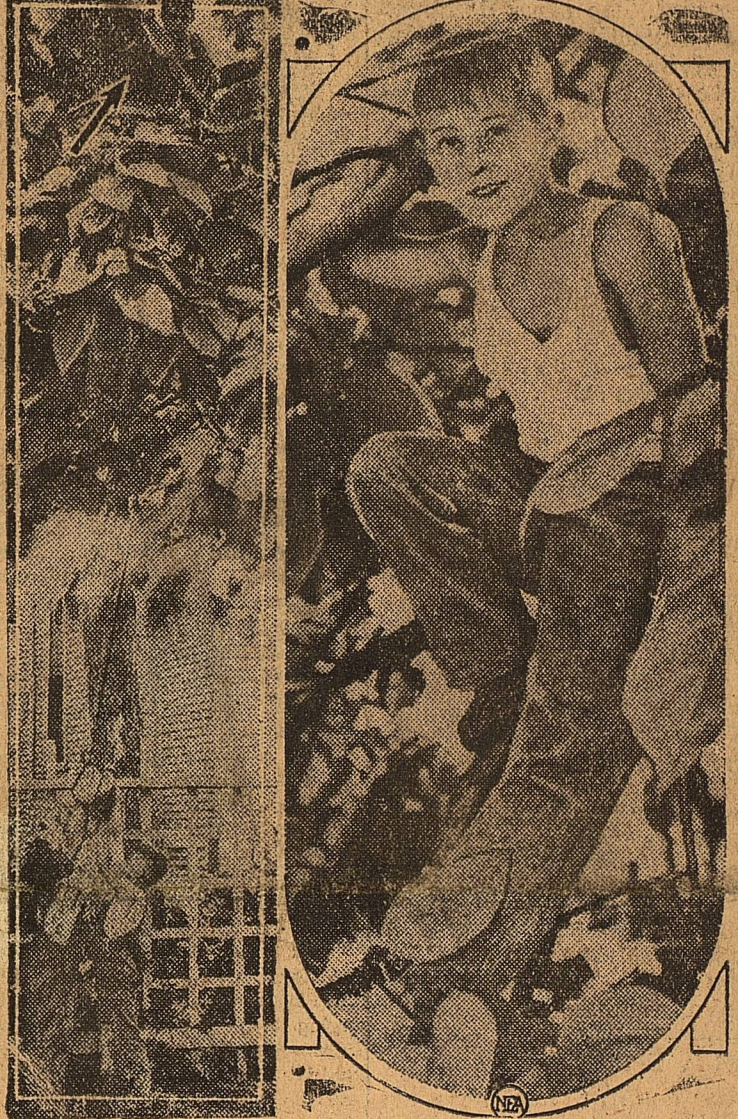

Sheriff Slaughter issued his second warning to Big Spring residents in regard to leaving clothing near windows and not having sufficient locks on screens.

He declared unless the department was notified immediately after the robbery it is almost impossible to find trace of the intruder.

In all of the cases reported recently, the same tactics have been employed. The screen has been unlocked or removed and the clothing, usually trousers, removed.

He asked residents to notify him or the members of his department at any hour of the night in case the prowler was seen.

A New Champion Is Crowned

Meet the former world's champion tree sitter. Ten-year-old Jimmie Clemons, above, won the title and also $13.67 prize money contributed by friends and neighbors in Racine, Wis., when he stuck it out for 34 hours and 13 minutes in his backyard. The Chicago endurance flyers gave him the idea. Above is Jimmie in his leafy perch and, left, Jimmie's "refueling crew" hoisting soda pop and sandwiches to him by means of the family clothesline which was borrowed for the purpose. His record has fallen since.

OLD TIMERS MAKE REUNION ANNUAL STANTON AFFAIR

One of the most successful old timers reunions ever held in Stanton was ended there Monday night. It was decided to vote to make the occasion an annual one.

A basket lunch was spread before the large attendance on the lawn of the H. H. Hamilton home.

The first child ever born in Martin county, a son of Mrs. J. J. Peters, was at the celebration. He is 49 years old and is a St. Louis business man.

Four representatives from Midland county were among those present, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Connell, Elmore Connell and Mrs. Frank Orson.

Chases Car Across State; Is Arrested

HOUSTON, July 15. (UP)—Leonard Nichols, manager of a Dallas rent car station, took one of his customers to police headquarters today. He had chased the man and auto from Dallas, finally catching him 16 miles from here.

Police were discussing the case when somebody noticed a pistol in Nichols' pocket. He was charged with carrying concealed weapons and released on $400 bond.

The rent car driver will be returned to Dallas where charges are expected to be filed, Nichols said.

FREE BULLETINS

Bulletins of interest to ranchmen and farmers and to wives of these are to be had free at the chamber of commerce office. These were prepared through the office of Congressman Claude B. Hudspeth in Washington. A variety of subject matter should make them helpful to the producer of meat and farm products, the chamber announced.

MEXICAN IS FREE FROM PECOS JAIL

Aguilar, Under Death Penalty, Only One To Get Away

Willie Hernandez, alias "The Hog," lies dead at Pecos and Pedro Aguilar, recently given the death penalty for the murder of three at Grand Falls April 6, is at large today as officers are guarding highways and trails and are combating the brush in the Pecos river country following a jail break at Pecos at 9:15 last night.

Hernandez, held for murder, was shot down by Mrs. J. W. Duncan, wife of the Pecos jailer, after three Mexicans and a white man had overpowered Duncan, beating him and skinning him up, effecting their escape from the county jail.

Mrs. Duncan believes she wounded Aguilar, the white man and the third Mexican were recaptured by officers soon after the jail break.

Hold Vigil Here Midland officers were up throughout the night, stopping cars along the highway, going through freight trains, and making every effort to prevent Aguilar's passage through this city. Sheriff A. C. Francis said that the Mexican has relatives at Colorado, and the possibility of his attempting to reach them caused a close vigil here.

Aguilar, 25 years old, was tried at Pecos recently and assessed the death penalty in connection with the fatal shooting of his wife's parents, Matilda Gonzales and wife, and the later fatal shooting of Cisar Dakan, oil well tool dresser of Grand Falls, who was a member of a posse combating the brush country along the Pecos river attempting to capture Aguilar. The Mexican surrendered only after being wounded by officers and by Dakan when they came up on him.

May Head South Due to the brushy nature of the country along the Pecos river, it is believed that if Aguilar "lays low" in the brush, he may make good his escape toward the Mexican border; but that if he attempts to escape over highways or railroads, he will be recaptured, although possibility only after "shooting it out" with officers. His behavior when the posse was forced to track him down and wound him before he was captured after the shooting at Grand Falls leads officers to prepare for a fight when he is discovered. When captured at that time, he was armed with a 30-30 rifle, a six-shooter, 100 rounds of ammunition for the rifle and 50 or 75 rounds for the six-shooter.

The last signature to the petition to pave was soon afterward in place, it is understood.

Hotel Block Will Be Repaved Soon

The last property holder has been signed for the paving of West Wall street on the hotel, or 100 block, it was announced at the city hall this morning.

Always hard to keep clean because of the grade of the street, there had been much interest toward paving it.

Attitude of a property holder in wanting to have the street paved rather than completely topped, however, delayed action.

Mayor Goodman is understood to have announced that the city did not feel justified in paying for manual labor required in cleaning the street at periodical intervals in the future and that owners of property fronting on the street would be forced to pave if they had a well drained, clean street.

The last signature to the petition to pave was soon afterward in place, it is understood.

Production of Petroleum Hiked

AUSTIN, Tex., July 15. (P)—Production of crude petroleum in Texas continued on an upward trend during June, making the third consecutive month in which a gain was recorded, according to a report of the bureau of business research of the University of Texas. The daily flow for the month reached the highest point since last October, thereby eliminating progress made in eight months by the curtailment program put into effect last August. The report noted.

The daily flow increased from 867,000 barrels in May to 878,000 barrels in June. The production for the first half of the year was 155,010,000 barrels, a new high record.

A total of 596 wells were drilled during the month, of which 320 were producers. During the first six months of 1930, a total of 3,273 wells were drilled, of which 1,743 struck oil. In the first half of 1929 there were 1,860 producers out of 3,492 wells drilled.

THAT PULLING POWER

Cooperation of Midland merchants in advertising election bargain prices, inviting people of the surrounding territory here for public speaking by candidates Thursday, is a demonstration of the pulling power of advertising, of good merchandising, and of cooperation on the part of business men.

It is cooperation of the sort that helps everyone. The visitors to Midland get the benefit of midsummer bargain prices. The merchants get a greater volume of business, needed at this time of the year. The visitors and all of the home people have the benefit of hearing candidates for office state their platforms, and the candidates have the benefit of crowds to speak to.

But, greater than all, it brings together the people of Midland county and adjacent territory, fostering better acquaintance and closer friendships, making future cooperation in territorial affairs easier.

AN EXCHANGE OF VISITORS

American motorists are expected to spend around $300,000,000 in Canada this summer. The great dominion north of the border has unrivaled attractions as a vacation land—and we're not speaking of its liquor laws, either. Citizens of the United States are discovering the fact in increasing numbers every year.

However, Canadians do a good deal of touring, too, and a lot of them cross the border to do it. In 1929, according to dominion government figures, Canadian tourists spent more than $111,000,000 in the United States, and more than 619,000 Canadian automobiles went south over the boundary. The figures probably will be higher this year.

Here is reciprocity of the finest sort. That famous unfortified frontier is in no danger as long as the two nations exchange friendly visits on such a scale.

THEY DO READ THE ADS

Do people read the advertisements in newspapers and magazines? Obviously they do, or there would be no advertising and, perhaps, no newspapers or magazines.

But one frequently hears the remark, "Oh, I never read the advertisements."

Newspaper advertising writers have long known that the public reads, and reads carefully, the advertisements published. Let an error creep into almost any advertisement, and the response is instant and vociferous.

An illustration as to how closely advertisements are read has been furnished in an advertisement of a tobacco manufacturer.

That company, in its advertisement of a certain date quoted a line from one of Poe's poems, "And o'er his heart a shadow fell."

Immediately there was a demand for information as to the particular poem in which the line appeared. Hundreds, if not thousands of people wrote to the company asking where the poem might be found. That proves people do read advertisements, and read them carefully.

TEN MURDERS A YEAR

England may be the mother country, but there are times when it appears that mother and daughter have very little in common.

London, for instance, has just reported a drop in its murder rate. During 1929, in all the London police district, there were only ten murders committed. Yet the British aren't satisfied—for four of the murderers have thus far escaped justice. This is rather shocking, and Britain is writing in the Times about, in staid indignation.

Ten murders in a whole year! New York, Chicago or Detroit would look on a record like that as being a near approach to the millennium. And any time the police of any American city can catch 60 per cent of their murderers they will be more than satisfied. The present ratio is a mere fraction of that.

Something Auto Be Dont About It!

Daily Washington Letter

By Rodney Dutcher
Maj.-Gen. Booth, Army's Assistant Chief of Staff, Not Only Is Not a West Pointer—He Got His Start Driving a Laundry Wagon

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Maj.-Gen. Ewing E. Booth, who has become assistant chief of staff in the U. S. army without ever graduating from West Point, used to be driving a laundry wagon around the streets of Pueblo, Colo.

He always knew his horses. At the age of 5 he rode horseback from Texas to Kansas with his father, who was in the horse and cattle business and frequently drove across to Kansas and Missouri.

"Nobody ever walked then," the general recalls. "The cattle never had seen anyone on foot and they'd take after you."

Now he umpires most of the army's polo games in Washington. He used to play polo himself, but once he saw an elderly general still trying to play and heard another officer yell: "Get out of the way and let the general hit it!" So Booth quit before his game began to suffer.

He was born in Kansas in 1880 and raised in Kansas and Texas.

At about 17 he took a west-bound train and got off at Pueblo for no particular reason. Not knowing anyone and being very nearly broke he was glad to take a job clerking in a shoe store and he kept that for two years. The confinement annoyed him, however, and when the foreman of the Pueblo Steam Laundry offered him the driving job he snapped it right up.

Wagon driving was very good pay, the general recalls. He made $20 a week plus certain commissions which tended to keep the horses galloping. Not only was it very fine, outdoor work, says General Booth, but he got to know nearly everyone in town who sent their laundry out, including most of the very best people. And it wasn't long before he had saved enough money to buy an interest in another laundry, which he owned and operated for years.

He became a member of the Colorado National Guard and the popular young man who had driven everybody's laundry around town was popular enough to be elected successively a lieutenant and the captain of his company. He served against striking miners at Cripple Creek and Leadville in "the middle nineties."

Along came the Spanish War and he went to the Philippines with the 1st Colorado Volunteer Infantry.

Booth today says he owes his elevation to such high rank to "just luck." Other officers attribute it to his capacity for hard, important work of an unspectacular nature.

But he has also had considerable initiative and it began to crop out in the Philippines.

In 1889 he was captain of the 36th U. S. Volunteer Infantry and the militiamen were about to be sent home. Booth thought he could create a new regular company out of the militia regiment and he wrote the suggestion to General Otis, commanding the Philippine department. The colonel of his regiment said in effect that Captain Booth was crazy and that everyone wanted to go home, but Booth was authorized to go ahead and organize after Otis had cabled Washington for the permission. Booth astonished everyone; by the time he had finished he had organized three new regiments.

Only his own audacity saved him from being sent back to the laundry business when he returned to this

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Under the title "Nota Bene," which to a writer who is not up on his Latin may mean "not a bean," or not a brain cell working, State Press, alias Joe Taylor, in the Dallas News unloads on The Reporter-Telegram for its comment on removing unsafe automobiles from the highways.

This paper quoted the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety as urging removal from the streets and highways all cars in dangerous mechanical condition, whether from defective steering gears, faulty brakes, or broken headlights. State supervision of automobiles was urged.

Joe Taylor hops on, and he hops on heavy, sending this sheet a marked copy, which was a good thing considering that the Dallas News didn't go through with its deal to send us the paper for a year after we ran an ad for them last December. But read what he says about state supervision of old wrecks and removing them from the highways:

It can't be done. There would be too many decrepit automobiles and too few inspectors. Besides, the Supreme Court might object to the policy of depriving a motorist of his property without due process of law. Due process of law would involve more than an order by the highway patrolman to "take the rattie-rattle off the road." Certainly State Press would stand a lawsuit before he would allow his horseless carriage to be consigned by the police to the limbo of the weed patch. Just because its steering post is bent, its coupling pole warped, its brake shoe in need of a half sole—just because S. P.'s jimikisha lacks the musical purr of a Panjandrum Eight or the superficial polish of a snooty limousine is no reason why it would consent to be ditched by a uniformed despot posing as an accident preventive. Not while S. P. was driving it. When this deponent backs his conveyer out of its tarpaulin garage and heads it the way he wants to go he goes that way in spite of all the passing comment and roadside ribaldry. He is not carry firearms, but in the sanctuary of his soul he carries what it takes to put him one up on any motor cop who might undertake to relegate him or his vehicle to that bourne from which no chassis is returned. This is not a threat. It is just a warning.

country in 1901. He had decided to stay in the army and they examined him with about 50 others at Fort Monroe. The physical examination was careless and he was declared physically deficient, although he had never been ill.

Other rejected officers were talking about wiring their senators and congressmen, but Booth wasn't sure he had any senator or congressmen and didn't know any of them. At least, he demanded that he be given a mental examination and then a physical re-examination, but couldn't interest anyone at Fort Monroe.

So Booth called up the adjutant-general in Washington on the telephone and reiterated his demand—a bold stroke which probably hasn't been duplicated by any other mere captain in army history.

The adjutant-general or whoever it was on the telephone insisted that he had never heard of such a thing and, incidentally, had never heard of Booth. An exception couldn't be made or everyone else would be asking for the same thing. Booth said he didn't care about anyone else and kept talking for nearly an hour. Finally the adjutant-general was so impressed, exhausted or otherwise affected that he told Booth to go back to the general at Fort Monroe, give him the compliments of the adjutant-general and tell him to give Captain Booth what he desired. So the general did that and Booth stayed in the army, with a first-lieutenancy in the cavalry. He got to be a captain again in 1904 and held that rank until the outbreak of the World War.

Between June, 1918, and June, 1919, he rose from the captaincy to be a brigadier-general. After serving at Governor's Island and Camp Upton he commanded the Eighth brigade of the Fourth division in France and participated in such major engagements as St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He commanded the right column of the American army which went into Germany. Later he was made chief of the Service of Supply in France and had the large job of getting the A. E. F. out of the country, and embarked for home.

He served as deputy high commissioner to Armenia for a few months in 1920 and then went back to a colonelcy as assistant commandant at Fort Leavenworth. Since that time he has been a War College instructor here, commander of the Fourth cavalry and the First cavalry brigade of the First cavalry division, commandant of the cavalry school at Fort Riley and chief of staff in charge of the supply service since April, 1927. They made him a brigadier-general in 1924 and a major-general last December.

Capone Is Spreading Underworld Net to Many Cities as Guns of Gangs Take Toll

By BRUCE CATTON, NEA Service Writer.

CHICAGO, July 15.—The gangland empire controlled by Al Capone is not a blight that falls on Chicago alone. It has tentacles that reach out into every city of consequence in the country. Its influence extends into distant states, and men have been killed by its emissaries in cities hundreds of miles away from this, its capital city.

This surprising statement comes from the famous Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office here, who was placed in full charge of the co-ordinated inquiry into the murder of Alvin J. Karpis, Tribune reporter.

"Sometime ago, when I was working with the special intelligence unit of the internal revenue bureau," says Roche, "I seized certain records at the Lexington hotel, where Capone was then living, showing the long distance telephone calls he had made from that place."

Phoned Many Cities
"Those records were voluminous—and instructive. They showed that Capone made frequent calls to practically every city of any size in America. He was in daily communication with some of the larger ones. He was talking to agents in these cities regularly."

Many of these phone calls, Roche explains, had to do with negotiations about booze shipments. While

ELEVEN GANG MURDERS IN DETROIT AND CLEVELAND WITHIN 2 WEEKS

Showing that Chicago has no monopoly on gang warfare, two other big middle-western cities have had outbreaks of underworld murder in the last few days, while Chicago continues its investigation into the Lingle killing.

In Detroit, six gang murders have taken place within a week. The most recent was the double killing of two brothers, who were shot down in a filling station when four men armed with sawed-off shotguns drove up in a closed car and started firing.

Cleveland has had five gang murders in a fortnight, the most spectacular being the killing of two "corn sugar barons" who were murdered as they sat in a speakeasy in broad daylight.

In each city the killings were blamed by the police on underworld rivalry in the bootleg and other rackets.

a great deal still comes in from the border—chiefly from Detroit and New York. Practically all the liquor that comes to Chicago goes through the Capone organization;

New Primary Election Plan to Prevent Multiplicity of Candidates Is Likely

"—Because He Knew Too Much"

It doesn't pay to "know too much" in Chicago—if your knowledge involves racketeers. Here you see what happened to James D. Phillips, newspaper vendor, who, police say, knew too much about the dope racket. He was shot down in front of his newsstand with three bullets in his back.

the bulk of it to be cut and re-cut and then peddled as "just off the boat," and a smaller quantity to be sold, uncut, to wealthy clients willing to stand the price.

Many calls, however, related not to booze but to something more sinister—murder.

Exchange Gunmen

"Capone has affiliations, or connections, with gangs in every other city," says Roche. "He works in harmony with all of these gangs whenever there is any shooting to be done. The gangs exchange expert gunmen back and forth between themselves."

"For instance, the average gang murder, in Chicago and other cities, is nowadays almost always committed by some gunmen from the outside."

"Suppose the Capone outfit here wants a man put out of the way. Instead of sending one of their own gunmen out, the chances are they'll call New York, or Detroit, or St. Louis, and have a couple of gunmen sent on from one of those cities. Often they'll have the killers here a week or more in advance of the murder."

Strangers Kill and Flee

"Then, when the stage is all set, the out of town gunmen kill whom-ever it is they're supposed to kill and take the first train for home. They may reach their own city again before the murder is even discovered. You can figure from that how much chance there is of catching them. In addition, of course, the fact that they're outsiders renders the chance of anyone recognizing them very small."

The arrangement works both ways. Local gangs in other cities often call on Chicago for murderers. Many a murder that has puzzled the police of such places as Cleveland, Louisville, Omaha, St. Louis or St. Paul has been the work of members of Al Capone's gang.

CATCHES EAGLETS

FT. STOCKTON, July 15.—O. E. Smith was exhibiting in the lobby of the First National bank of Ft. Stockton Thursday afternoon, two baby eagles, he captured in a nest in a mesquite tree in the Webb Courtney ranch pasture. During the process of capturing the eaglets the mother swooped down too close to be comfortable to Mr. Smith's head and he took a shot at the parent as she flew to a safe distance.

He is figuring on sending them to a zoo in Temple, where Mr. Smith made him home for 17 years.

dates scatters the vote so that this results.

With a preferential ballot, voters would name not only first choice but second choice. If none had a majority of first choice ballots, the one with the most first and second choice combined would be the party candidate.

In the Colorado system, a party convention first is held. Any candidate who receives ten per cent of the convention vote is entitled to a ballot place on the primary election which follows. Nine candidates are possible under this system—technically ten, if the convention vote should be split into ten equal parts. Practically, the result has been two or three candidates for each state office. Its theory is that if there are not a tenth of the party's members indicating a desire for the candidate, his race will only militate against a fair choice among the others.

In Texas the opposite now prevails. Anyone who can and will put up $100 and take a pledge gets his name on the ballot. A recent law providing that former political affiliation should be no bar, makes it possible for the Republican leader to run in the Democratic primary, or vice versa.

PRISON SURVEY ENDS

OSSINING, N. Y. (UP)—Seventy-five per cent of the inmates of Sing Sing prison have no more education than that of a sixth grade pupil, N. J. Henzel, head teacher of the bureau of special schools in the New York state department of education, finds. Illiteracy is, at least, a contributing factor in crime, he believes.

By GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Tex., July 15. (UP).—A remedy for the multiplicity of candidates for governor likely will be sought by the next session of the Texas legislature, which convenes in January.

Efforts have been made at former sessions to pass a preferential primary law, but its complications heretofore, have caused its defeat.

Governor Dan Moody, who was forced out of the governorship race this year because of the number of candidates, probably will make no recommendation to the legislature, he said. He has still a final message to go to the legislature, but he indicated that he is now minded to leave the recommendations to the next governor and content himself with a report on state affairs and finances.

Three proposals to prevent so many candidates have been made. One is a return to the convention system of nomination. Another is the preferential primary, and the other a combination convention and primary plan such as is employed in Colorado.

Few here believe that the legislators are ready to abandon the primary election and return to convention nominations for all state offices. There is a strong sentiment to return to the convention plan for selection of the judges.

Before taking up the other two plans, the objection to the present plan must be considered in order to see just how they seek to avoid the present difficulties. With eleven candidates for governor, as there are now, it is easily possible for the people to get a man they do not prefer.

A candidate against whom there is so much opposition that he has little chance of final election may yet force himself into the run-off election which is required between the two high candidates, if none has received a majority of all votes in the first primary. Such a candidate may have certain groups favoring him that give him enough votes to get into the runoff. It has frequently been said during this campaign that any candidate who can muster near 200,000 votes will be in the run-off. The multiplicity of candi-

New-Found Hours--- Where Did They Originate?

Where does the modern woman of today get the time that she spends with her family, her friends or in cultivating the finer side of life? Her mother, tied down by household duties, never had even a small part of the freedom that her modern daughter enjoys every day throughout the year.

Of the many things that have contributed to this modern freedom from household duties, the greatest is electric service. At every turn in the modern home are electric appliances which save time—precious minutes, which, rolled together make hours saved from drudgery to be used for the more pleasant things of life.

From the living room to the kitchen, electricity has changed arduous tasks to simple duties. It has eliminated most of the muscular effort from cleaning and has simplified many other household tasks. Above all, the electric range has given the modern woman many new hours of freedom from work in the kitchen.

The very simplicity of the electric range, the uniform results which are possible when cooking by electricity and the small amount of attention necessary to prepare foods electrically are a few reasons why the electric range is considered the most valuable time saver in the home.

Hoover's Boy Biographer Is Unspoiled by Rush of Fame

By JULIA BLANDSHARD, NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, July 15.—"If something more comes into my head, I guess I'll just write it down and print another book."

That is William J. Marsh, Jr.'s reaction to his success as 11-year-old biographer of Herbert Hoover. Bill is a fat-faced, eager-eyed, plump little fellow wearing size 46-suits, from Milford, Conn., who not only wrote "Our President Herbert Hoover," but with the help of his 9-year-old brother Charles ("Bub" for short) printed 60 copies of it on his own printing press and found them all snapped up, the first 10 at $1 a copy, the next 10 at $3 each and the remaining at $5 a copy, and a contract waiting for him with a New York publisher with advance royalties of $500.

Today his first editions are listed at $25.

Wants to Continue Writing

Before his present fame—news reel, money in the bank, displays in department stores, demonstrating how the boys work their old press, pictures in the papers and everything—Bill did say he'd like to be a doctor and "help folks keep well and happy." Now, it seems, a doctor lost is an author-publisher gained to the world!

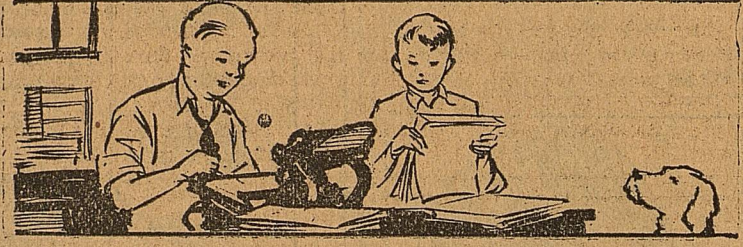

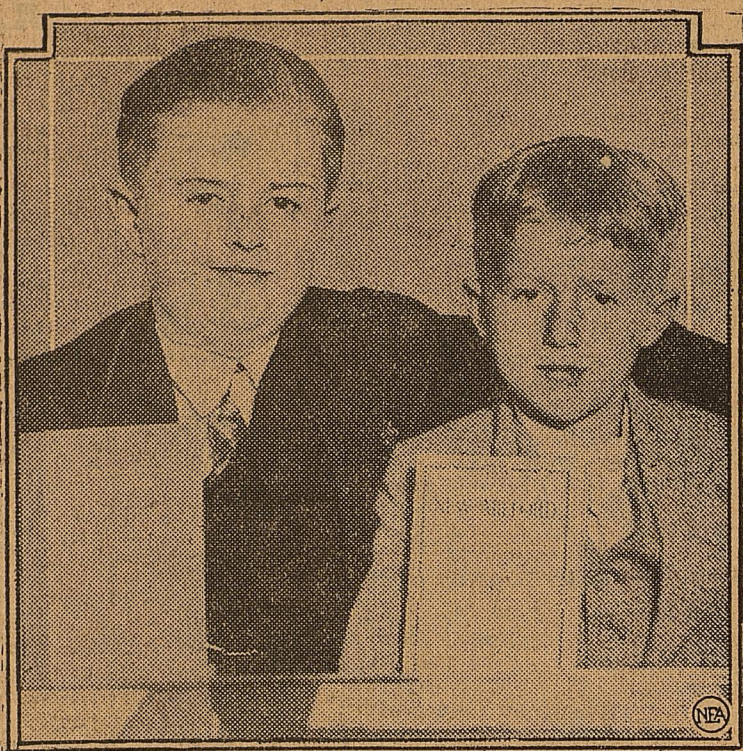

To date Bill is quite unspoiled. He and his 9-year-old printer's devil brother, Bub, a skinny little tow-head with a merry smile and dancing dark brown eyes, are visiting New York with their parents. Being received by President Hoover for a formal presentation of an autographed copy of the biography, a dinner and theater party just for the boys, and introductions to many celebrities have failed to make either a bit self-conscious.

"Until we see the Equarium and the Zoo we can't just say how we like New York," Bill said.

Milford is still good enough for them, of that they are certain. Up home Father Marsh runs an antique shop, lets the boys help him bid in on auctions, pays them for selling in the store, and, best of all, takes them and their 13-year-old English setter, Vale, on his big furniture truck trailing antiques all over New England.

Press Cost 50 Cents

It was among a load of old things that Bill and Bub found the printing press that has brought them fame. It cost 50 cents. Bill kept a cost account sheet of repairs—to date, $50.

Publisher and presidential biographer, 11-year-old William J. Marsh, Jr., here is shown, left, with his brother Charles, 9, before they were received at the White House. Bill carried a special copy of his book, "Our President, Herbert Hoover," and "Bub" took a gift of his own selection for Mrs. Hoover—a "Guide to New Milford (Conn.) and Its Environs," bought for 50 cents from his savings. First editions of Bill's book, which the boys printed on an old hand press, now are quoted at $25.

Bill has perhaps the most authentic alibi for authorship that the world has yet heard. Asked how he happened to think of writing, he answered, earnestly:

"Well, you see, I fell on the ice last winter and had water on my knee, and had to occupy my time in bed."

His choice of topic grew out of last autumn's campaign when Mr. Marsh ran the Hoover-Curtis publicity in Milford. The boys helped distribute literature, canvassed votes and listened to all of Hoover's radio speeches.

"President Hoover is a fine Boy Scout, too, you know," Bill added, with hero-worship in his tone. Though Bill won't be 12 until July 23rd, he was given his Boy Scout insignia in advance so he could greet Hoover as a regular scout.

Traps Are Empty

Bill and Bub live a merry outdoor life in their home town. They fish, tramp, plant their own vegetable garden and sell produce. Trapping, they agreed, was their favorite sport, with the aid of their three dogs, Vale, Jack and Sport. "We trap for fur-bearing animals, muskrat, skunk and minks," Bill said.

"That don't keep us from trying," Bill admonished him, severely. Of pets they've had 25 different kinds, by actual count. There was that goose that Bill wrote his first poem about. Then there were several kinds of mice, a muskrat their Dad caught, a goat that drew their wagon, a dozen different cats, their dogs, white rabbits, pigeons, baby chicks, and the little wren that has come back to build its nest and rear its young for three years in succession in the little house that Bill built for her.

Both love the movies, especially Westerns. Bill would love to travel "on horseback, perhaps out in Wyoming," he puts it. Both want to go to military school. "Not because we want another war, but because it's so healthy," Bill said. "And because we would wear uniforms," Bub contributed. Personally, Bill said, he would prefer to be in the "calvary."

Have 1000 Books

Bill is a voracious reader. Collects books of presidents, geography and history. Together they have 1000 volumes, in book cases their father built the length and breadth of the hall, just for them. Period is Bill's favorite character. But he likes all of Kipling's books, and is very fond of Stevenson, too.

In September, Bill will enter the seventh grade, Bub the fourth. They are going to finish school before they think of girls.

"But Bill already has a girl and she's got freckles like his," Bub said. "You needn't say anything. You've got one too," Bill shushed him.

"The right kind of girls don't keep you from your work," Bill defended the two of them. That settled, they discussed what their next work might be. Their choice would be a biography of Coolidge. But they aren't just sure. Authors have to wait until the inspiration and the right occasion happen together. Bill is sure of that. And Bub is sure of anything Bill is sure of.

Bloodhounds Brought To Odessa by Webb

Odessa has a new racket, according to Ralph Shuffler, writing in the Odessa News-Times:

A moonlight (or daylight) serenade is being broadcast at almost any hour now from the little pen located just behind the jail, with no admission charges. Sheriff Reeder Webb has sponsored this altruistic move by bringing in the musicians, two full blooded and full-throated English blood hounds.

The hounds arrived here Monday from St. Elmo, Illinois, and have for the past few days made the illest noise that anyone has heard around here. It was intimated that the hounds were being brought in to help in stopping petty thievery here, and it is quite plausible. Few sane persons would commit a petty crime when the penalty included ringside seat to such blood curdling serenades.

The hounds are still newcomers and strangers here, having not yet been named, but Bootlegger, Reeder's bulldog, eyes them as though he thinks they might be prohibition agents or something of the sort. Since they are on such poor terms with Bootlegger we suggest that they be named Carrie Nation and Atticus Webb.

Others who have heard their broadcasting suggest that for tone and volume they be called the Panatrophe twins.

IN BEAUTY REVUE

FT. STOCKTON, July 15.—The result of the campaign in the Bathing Girl revue sponsored by the Retail Merchants association, Lions club and the chamber of commerce, of Ft. Stockton, so far reveals considerable interest manifested on the part of local talent. Several young ladies have entered the contest to compete for the place of "Miss Fort Stockton," who will represent this city in the annual Bathing Girl revue to be held at Galveston, August 2 to 6 inclusive. Others are contemplating entering the contest the coming week, and they are instructed to hand in their names of Jack Wright, manager of the revue.

Otter Is Standard for Furs

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN Author of "The Shopping Book" Written for NEA Service

The wide variation in the durability of furs will be appreciated by comparing typical pelts with otter, which is recognized as being one of the strongest furs.

Taking otter as 100 per cent standard, rabbit rates at only 5 per cent, mole at 7, chinchilla at 15 and squirrel at 20 to 25.

In many instances, the dyeing of fur definitely impairs the durability of the pelt. Thus, natural Stone Marten rates at 45, but the dyed pelt at only 35; opossum is cut from 37 to 20 by dyeing; fox is 40 when natural but only 25 when dyed black.

At the same time there is a wide difference in pelts of the same type of animal, due to variations in the uniformity of thickness and in the skill with which the skins are tanned, dressed and dyed.

OLD TIME WOLF HUNT

FT. STOCKTON, July 15.—A fine crowd of rough riders and sharpshooters gathered Saturday night and Sunday morning at the chuck wagon of J. H. Locke and Sons on the west part of their range to take part in a wolf drive as scheduled for that day, says the Ft. Stockton Pioneer.

The crowd was mounted on good low ponies belonging to the ranch, with the exception of a few of the boys who preferred to riding their own "jitneys."

Mr. Locke, being a big hearted ranchman, was determined that the fine bunch of fellows that made up the hunting squad should not be disappointed if it were in his power to avoid it, he accompanied by Mr. Morris, foreman of the Murchison ranch, quickly planned a drive through the south pasture of the Murchison ranch, and it was not long until a wolf was jumped that gave the hunters a race for their money before it was captured.

It is thought most of the wolves took refuge in badger holes to escape the fusillade of bullets that were sent flying in their direction.

A fine dinner was waiting the return of the hungry bunch at the chuck wagon. All in all the occasion was greatly enjoyed by all who participated in the drive.

Most every member of the hunting party got in the race, except the sharpshooters who took stands in advance of the drive.

America Needs the Davis Cup for a Clean Sweep

By CLAIRE BURCKY,
NEA Service Sports Writer.

Are you one who believes that an American group will defeat France in tennis and return to these shores with that 30-year-old victory token, the Davis Cup?

If you are skeptical, perhaps you could be convinced a bit more easily if I pointed out that Bobby Jones recently brought home two trophies equally as famous as the Davis Cup—the British Amateur and Open golf crowns.

Not sold yet? Then look back a few days at the results of the Wimbledon tennis tournament in which Big Bill Tilden captured what really amounted to the world's singles championship and Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn tucked away for the second straight year the Wimbledon doubles title.

But let's forget all about Tilden; he says he won't play with the cup team. And in figuring this as America's year for sports supremacy, let's overlook the departure of the heavyweight boxing championship, too. Nearly everyone is convinced that no American fighter is good enough to wear the crown as well as Tunney, Dempsey and some others were it. The majority also believes Schmeling will lose his title just as soon as he meets a good opponent.

Opinions seem to be at variance with regard to what the young American quartet of Allison, Van Ryn, George Lott and Johnny Doeg will do against the French, providing they leap the barricade thrown up by the European zone winner, which may be either Japan, England, Australia or Italy.

I'm confident that Allison, the Texan, and Van Ryn, the Jersey youth, will defeat the best doubles combination France can offer, which is likely to be Jacques Brugnon and young Christian Boussus.

Copyright, NEA-London Times.

Athletes pictured in this layout are the French rulers of the tennis world, at least until late July when they defend the Davis Cup, emblematic of the world's championship. Before they champion the champions, America's group first must win the European zone finals.

The return of the cup to this country, then, depends on two more American victories which Lott or Allison or both must gain.

A few days ago, dopsters would have conceded Cochet two singles victories right off the real to offset the lone doubles victory by the Americans. Young Mr. Allison splattered that dope all over England, however, by whizzing Cochet in straight sets at Wimbledon. It is only logical to believe that his defeat of the French ace gave Allison added courage. It ought to raise his chances almost on an even base with Cochet's.

Even if Cochet downs both Allison and Lott, the American pair should be able to take their revenge on Borotra, whose bound is not as

IN THE WORLD OF AVIATION

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD,
United Press Aviation Editor.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP).—The average airplane now costs about $10,000, or just a few thousand more than the higher grades of domestic automobiles, the Aeronautical chamber of commerce has found by a recent survey.

Reports to the chamber from 78 major aircraft manufacturers show that during the first quarter of 1930 airplane body prices ranged around $6,362.40, while the average power plant cost $3,734.40, making the price of the complete plane $10,096.80.

Despite the numerous improvements in airplane construction and design during the last year, present prices are only slightly in excess of those prevailing in 1929. Last year's average plane salestags bore the figure $9,520.40, according to the chamber.

Thus it appears that the well-equipped airplane is being brought within the purchase range of those who can afford the most expensive makes of automobiles. The airplanes of a decade ago were relatively cheap, but they were crude affairs as compared to modern ships.

The chamber's statement reveals further that while some lines of business have been suffering from various degrees of depression, airplane sales have kept pace with production.

During the first three months of the year, 78 major manufacturers sold 534 planes whose value, with out motors, was $4,138,219.27.

While no statistics on production were compiled for the first quarter of 1929 to make possible a direct comparison with the quarterly report published today, the totals were considerably under half the semi-annual production report for 1929, the chamber's report said.

In the engine field, 22 manufacturers reported the sale of 916 military and 462 commercial motors with a value of $4,241,994.29 and $1,720,960.50, respectively.

Public favor seems to be turning back, to some extent, from the monoplane to the biplane, the chamber's figures show. Some 60.6 per cent of all planes produced during the first quarter of this year were biplanes as compared with 51 per cent in 1929.

Everyone remembers the old gag about the postman who went walking on his holiday. Now Alford J. Williams, former naval lieutenant and crack flier, who recently resigned his service connection, is spending many hours of his vacation in a plane above Roosevelt field. Incidentally, he is teaching his wife to fly. She hopes to receive her pilot's license before the summer va-high nor as far as it used to be. The Basque is 32; he has played as exhausting game in life as well as sport. He has been beaten half a dozen times within the last three months and it really looks as if he were through. Still—

Borotra went into action at the eleventh hour last year. When LaCoste became sick, he stepped into the gap, unconditioned and untrained, and gave France the necessary strength to retain the cup.

The defense of the trophy again rests upon him; never has he failed to give his best when demands of that sort have been made. But will his best be good enough against Allison and Lott?

I'm thinking this is an American year in sports.

ANOTHER VICTORY

FOR THIS REGULAR STOCK MOTOR OIL!

CLOSE ON THE HEELS OF ITS ACCOMPLISHMENT AT

INDIANAPOLIS MAY 30, CONOCO WINS 3RD, 4TH, AND 5TH PLACES
AT ALTOONA AT BETTER THAN ONE HUNDRED MILES PER HOUR

Frank Farmer, in a Miller Special, "placed" third with an average speed of 102.2 miles per hour. "Shorty" Cantlon, in a Miller-Schofield Special, was fourth with 101.5 miles per hour. "Speed" Gardner was fifth in a Miller Front Drive Special. All three used CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil in this convincing demonstration of the qualities of this regular "stock" motor oil. At Altoona, as at Indianapolis, this was the first time that a stock oil had placed so high in the finish of the race.

The story of the Altoona race cannot be told without reference to the accomplishment of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil at Indianapolis. For it was in that 500-mile classic that the stamina of this new oil was impressed on the racing fraternity. After observers had seen the oil at the close of the Indianapolis race; after they had observed its full body and good color as it came from Dave Evans' motor, the word went out that CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil had displayed the qualities necessary to solve the lubrication problems of racing motors. CONOCO had earned the respect of this most skeptical group—and earned it fairly.

In view of the Indianapolis results, it was only natural for a majority of the drivers at Altoona to choose CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil for America's fastest competitive race.

And as these cars whizzed around the boards at Altoona on June 14, CONOCO again proved its worth in a field previously dominated by castor blends—a field which other stock oils have repeatedly tried to enter without success!

So chalk up another victory for CONOCO

Germ-Processed Motor Oil, close on the heels of Indianapolis... a victory won with the same stock Germ-Processed oil that you can buy at any Red Triangle station.

These CONOCO victories have a definite meaning to every one who drives a car. They substantiate every claim that was made for it when the oil was introduced last November.

You can experience the safety and economy of this oil by stopping at the next Red Triangle Station and asking for:

"Roughneck" Found Working in Hobbs Area Is Prince of Persian Family; Is Good Man

Another unusual case in chalked up at Hobbs. The Hobbs Times-Herald speaks of it thus:

When one thinks of "roughnecks" in an oil field he scarcely calls to mind a prince of a royal line and yet discovery has just been made of one such person who is in the Hobbs territory.

One month ago an unassuming young man, polite and affable, donned work clothes and started working there. In the ever-changing personnel of the oil field, he did not create any unusual attention, so successful was he in concealing identity, until Monday when the card of Prince Darab Mirza of the House of Kadjar was found in one of the uniform rooms at the camp of the Humble oil company.

Under the card was the photograph and credentials of this member of the royalty who was sent by a European oil company to America to study methods of operation.

In 1925 the Persian dynasty was overthrown. The House of Kadjar scattered under pressure of a revolution, to widely separated points of the globe, thus ending a family succession of 150 years of Persian kings.

Shortly after the Kadjar reign ended, Prince Darab Mirza, whose own grandfather was king of the Asiatic country which is rich in history and romance, enrolled in the officers' training school at Saint Cyr, France. Here he received his promotion in 1927.

Saint Cyr is the alma mater of the Prince of Wales, whose photograph, accompanied by a cordial note, is in possession of "Don." It is the West Point of France where only 300 are allowed entrance each year.

The prince has the erect bearing of royalty. He is 27 years old, single, handsome and entertaining with stories of his country and of coun-

Hit Sulphur Water; May Plug New Test

After making one 20-minute flow, producing 45 barrels of oil, from 3,785 feet Sunday Oil Company and Llano Oil Company's No. 1 Jones, a half-mile north of production in the Penn pool of Ector County, encountered sulphur water from 3,821-23 feet Monday and prepared to plug back.

Whether a shot will be given the test where two showings of oil are believed to have been encountered was not announced. Sunray Oil Company has charge of operating the lease, but the general opinion is that nitro will be employed in an effort to develop commercial production from showings at 3,750-52 and 3,785 feet.

An increase of either oil or gas, or both, was reached at 3,785 feet over the weekend, after which the head of 45 barrels was produced. At the time the flow was registered drilling was progressing with considerable oil standing in the hole from the horizon at 3,750-52 feet and whether a gas increase cleaned the hole or whether there was an increase in oil could not be definitely determined. However, after the head, swabbing tests failed to indicate a substantial increase in oil and drilling was continued to the sulphur water horizon. The test is 440 feet from the east line and 2,200 feet from the north line of section 6, block 44, township 3 south, T. & P.
