'CANDIDATES BARGAIN DAY' TO BE CELEBRATED THURSDAY

STATE MEN ASKED TO COME HERE

All Candidates Will Speak; Real Stump Is En Route

Political Bargain Day will be the main event in Midland next week. It will be Thursday.

The idea of a political jamboree in Midland with special sales events offered by Midland people, originated and worked out by Homer W. Rowe, was unanimously and enthusiastically adopted Wednesday morning by members of the auto retail committee of the Midland chamber of commerce, and various business men who met with the group.

Candidates for state offices and local and district candidates will be invited to come to Midland next Thursday to make two speeches each. The first speaking program will be held at 5 p. m. for benefit of out-of-town people who may wish to arrive home before night. The place has not been definitely set, but will likely be near the intersection of Main and Wall streets.

Two Gatherings The second speaking rally will be at 8 p. m., probably on the east side of the courthouse on Loraine street. Both are for town people, rural people and visitors.

Business men of Midland will offer special bargains Thursday. Many dollar specials will be offered. Every merchant in Midland is invited to participate in the events. The whole aim of the Midland chamber of commerce is to assist the business men by drawing the people to the city. Thus stimulating business, and to assist the people of the county and surrounding territory by helping them to learn of the bargains Midland merchants will offer.

Seats will be provided for many next Thursday night at 8 o'clock for the evening speaking. The Priedaux Lumber company will provide the seating, and manager R. J. Moore is chairman of the seating committee. This company will also arrange the platform for the speakers. Smith Umberson will provide a platform for the afternoon speakers at the 5 o'clock gathering.

A feature of the speaking is that it will be a genuine stump affair. O. W. Baxley, advertising manager of the Midland Daily Reporter-Telegram, is having his father send a broad pine stump from the pine woods of Smith county near Tyler.

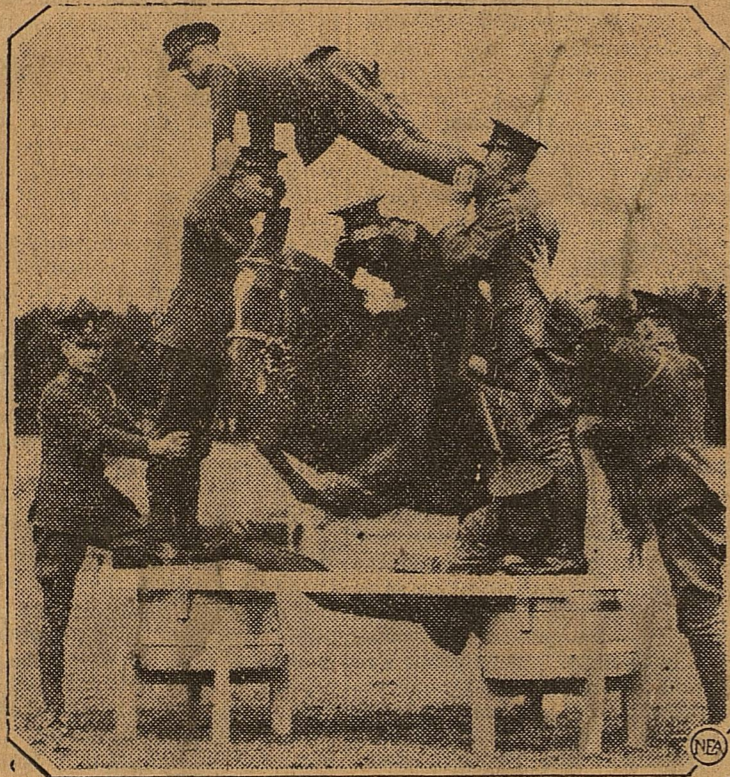

Homer W. Rowe is chairman of the speakers' notification committee and will invite candidates. Every candidate for an office in Midland county will be expected to make a speech not to exceed 5 minutes.

Business houses will have special supplies of ice water for everybody. It will be a political holiday, a place to meet friends. The speaking is in the open and will be cool. Everybody will be able to save money by purchasing special bargains offered, merchants say.

Every Store Invited Every store in town is invited to take advantage of the occasion. This means groceries, drug stores, ice shops, dry goods stores, hardware stores, jewelry stores, filling stations, cafes and others.

Representatives of various lines of business met Wednesday morning in the office of the Midland chamber and entered heartily into the spirit of the political bargain day. Rowe was chosen to serve as temporary chairman. No one will be asked to contribute money, as the chamber of commerce will handle the expenses of general advertising, invitations to state candidates and what few minor incidentals may come in connection.

Picture Has Human Frame

Allez-ooop! There was no room for error when this striking demonstration of horsemanship and human confidence was staged at the Aldershot Show in England. Four cavalrymen formed a human frame, with a couple of others for support, while one of their officers rode a hunter through the hurdle, with inches to spare on every side.

SWIMMING AND LIFE SAVING TO BE CONDUCTED FREE TO MIDLAND MEN, WOMEN AND SCOUTS OVER NEXT WEEK

Classes in swimming and Red Cross life saving methods will be given free to boy scouts, women and men in Midland by Marcus Williamson, boy scout executive. Classes will be conducted at Pagoda pool, beginning Monday. Instruction will be free.

A meeting is to be held at the city hall Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at which everyone interested is invited to be present. Those who cannot be there are asked to send in their names if they would like to join a class. Instruction periods will be arranged according to the convenience of those entering. It is planned to instruct scouts during the morning hours, business men and women in the afternoon.

SUPREME COURT TO NAME PLACE FOR DAMAGE SUIT

AUSTIN, July 9. (UP).—The third court of civil appeals here today certified to the state supreme court the question of where the damage suit of Roy Tennant, member of the state board of control, may properly be brought against the Houston Printing company, publisher of the Houston Post Dispatch.

Tennant filed suit for $100,000 in Bell county, claiming he was libeled by an article in the paper. The district court there overruled a motion of the defendant company for transfer to Harris county. The court here affirmed the decision refusing transfer, and today refused a rehearing but certified it to the supreme court.

Calhoun To Enter Law At Abilene ABILENE, July 9. (AP).—Clem Calhoun, appointed district attorney at Borger after the assassination of John Holmes there, announced today that he would resume private practice in Abilene when his term expires. He denied that he ever was a candidate for re-election, although friends in several counties petitioned county chairman to put his name on the ballots.

PLEAS TO SAVE HIM ARE VAIN

Refuses Mother When She Asks "Peace With God"

CANON CITY, Colo., July 9. (AP).—Witnesses were summoned to appear early this evening, and it appeared certain today that Ralph Fleagle, gray-haired bandit leader, would be hanged tonight at the state penitentiary.

The hangman is expected to spring the trap, dropping the West's most notorious outlaw to his death, shortly after 9 o'clock. While officials of the prison continued their last minute preparations, attorneys made frantic pleas to Governor W. H. Adams for a short reprieve.

Fleagle steeled himself against death today when all hope of life vanished, but refused his mother's plea that he "make peace with God."

Review of Case LAMAR, Colo., July 9. (AP).—A thumb-print sent Ralph Fleagle to the gallows for murder, a thumb-print on the window of a motor car found in an arroyo in the Western Kansas "bad lands." That thumb-print will send Fleagle's convicted fellow-murderers, Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshier, to the same fate next week.

And it will be used as incriminating evidence against the fourth member of the bandit band which robbed the First National Bank of Lamar, in May, 1928, if Jake Fleagle is ever captured and brought to trial.

The thumb-print was that of Jake Fleagle. Jake had difficulty in raising the window of the sedan of one of the gang's victims; and on that bit of evidence hangs the entire story of the capture and conviction of his brother, Ralph, and Royston and Abshier.

Fleagle's execution was the final chapter to a life of crime. In banks at Garden City, Scott City and Dodge City, Kans., the Fleagles had built up a fortune from the looting of banks. Their rendezvous was a ranch near Marienthal, Kans. No crops were grown, not stock was raised, and no work was done. The Fleagles discouraged friendship with neighbors.

For years—by Ralph Fleagle's own confession—they had in mind the robbery of the First National bank of Lamar. They reconnoitered, got the lay of the land, made their plans, and fixed the day. The job was too big for two or three men, so Royston and Abshier were let in on the deal—for 10 per cent of the "net."

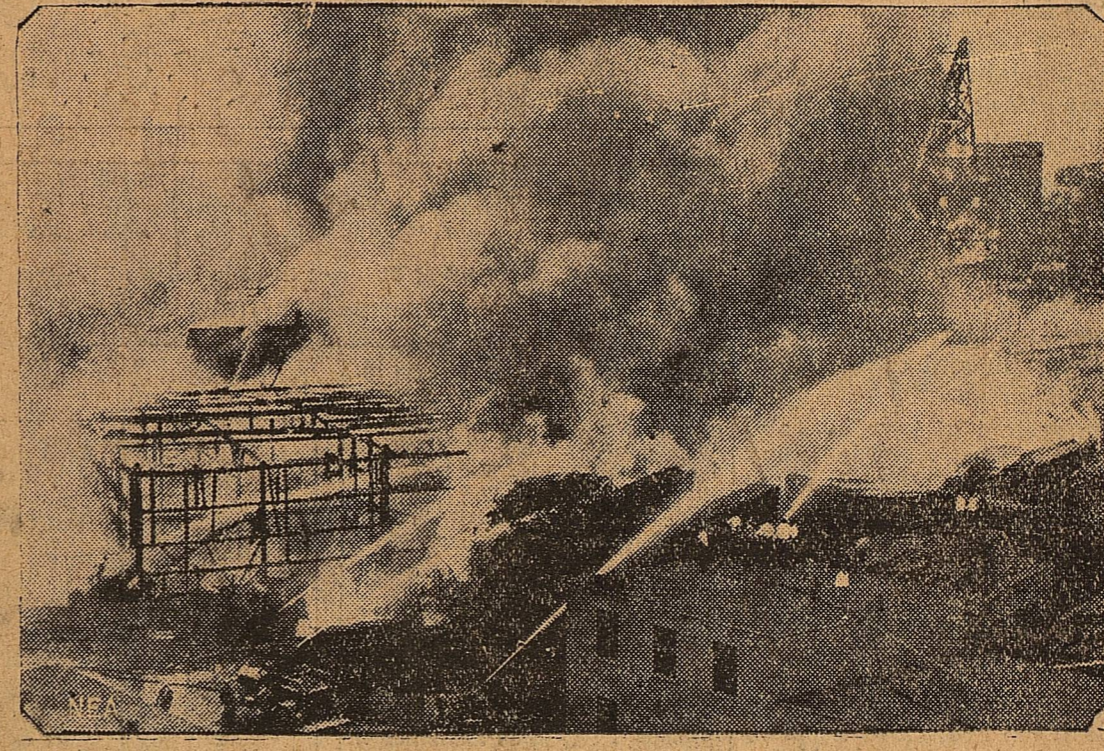

It was a business proposition with the Fleagles. Coidly, with minute calculation, the quartet went about its business of robbing the bank. Their blue sedan was parked by the bank for a quick getaway. They went in, pistols drawn.

A. N. Parrish, president of the institution, had boasted that no one would rob his bank without resistance. He fired. Royston spun on his feet, shot through the jaw. A curse was followed by a bullet which drilled the bank president through the head. His son, the vice-president, reached for a rifle. Another bullet dropped him. The bandits hurried, sweeping cash and securities into the pillow case they had brought along.

Two tellers were kidnapped—for protection. Peace officers would not fire on the hostages. The automobile roared away. Sheriff L. E. Alderman of Prowers county gave chase. A short distance from town one of the two tellers, E. A. Lundgren was dumped out by the fugitives. The

Blaze on Boston Waterfront

A large area of Boston's waterfront, when this spectacular photo was taken, was going up in smoke and flame which were visible for 25 miles. Lumber yards, coal bins, wharves and barges were destroyed before the fiercely spreading blaze could be controlled. Five alarms brought all available apparatus and hundreds of volunteers to combat the flames, which were not completely extinguished in lumber and coal yards for nearly 24 hours.

MINERAL WELLS POISON VICTIM OF THIS AREA?

A theory that a young woman who committed suicide in a Mineral Wells hotel, because it "didn't matter" and that she had no one who cared for her longer, lived in a city not far from the resort city has caused authorities and a newspaper of that place to ask newspapers of the surrounding area, among them The Reporter-Telegram, to give publicity to the story and to describe the dead woman. It is thought that this might aid authorities in identifying her.

Authorities in Mineral Wells have failed in their efforts to identify the woman or to locate relatives. It was on July Fourth that she died, after taking poison. She registered at the hotel there under the name of Mabel Brown, and gave as her home address St. Louis. At the sanitarium where she was rushed after it was discovered she had taken poison, she steadfastly refused to reveal her identity, saying it didn't matter and that she had lost the affection of those who had cared for her.

She was about twenty-one years old, had auburn hair that was slightly gray in a small spot on the left side, and her hair had been bobbed but was growing out. She was five feet, five inches high, weighed 125 pounds, had very long and naturally arched eyebrows, her face was full and slightly freckled, and her nose slightly upturned. One tooth, a central one had a gold enamel, and she wore an inexpensive white gilgrecie ring with an onyx setting.

The body is being held at the R. H. Betham undertaking establishment. It is not thought the girl traveled far before reaching Mineral Wells.

CAMPAIGN ENDS AS CANDIDATE IS KILLED IN AUTO

HUNTSVILLE, July 9. (UP).—Earl R. Swanger's campaign for the office of district attorney came to a tragic end here during the night when his small roadster fell 50 feet into Harmon Creek, across highway 19, killing him.

Swanger, 37, was driving alone to Huntsville after campaigning in Trinity county Tuesday, and officers believe he went to sleep at the wheel. He had been dead for several hours when his body was discovered today by passing motorists. Swanger formerly was Leon county attorney, but moved to Huntsville three years ago.

Children Burn As Parents Are Away CALGARY, Alberta, July 9. (AP).—Three children, left alone while their mother went to ask neighbors for milk and the father sold frankfurters at the unemployment booth at the fair grounds, were burned to death when fire destroyed the home. They were Birdie Gillard, 4, Eliene 2, and Allan, one.

Pee Wee Golf Grabs off an Old Timer

There is no way of saying now how far the miniature golf craze will go. One of the oldest residents of the town has been bitten. Uncle Walter Cochran told friends yesterday he has issued a challenge to Hiram Garrett, qualifying it by saying he would beat Garrett or leave town. Garrett, hearing about the challenge, is said to have remarked that Uncle Walter is due to be looking over train schedules as the venerable old timer is certain to be beaten at the game.

The challenge was delivered like other challenges have been in the days of the West, and just as characteristically taken. It is noticed that the sweep of public approval of courses is taking on a private aspect, several persons about town talking of building private courses just as they have their croquet grounds and tennis courts. Out at the Gulf tank farms people may be observed playing the game at night, under the perfect lighting system.

KANSAS GOVERNOR FLAYS HOOVER ON FARM ATTITUDE

HAYS, Kansas, July 9. (UP).—Governor Clyde M. Reed of Kansas, in a speech prepared for delivery later today, challenged the whole attitude of the Hoover administration toward agriculture. He charged the administration with attempting to subordinate agriculture to industry, and questioned the good faith of Alexander Legge, chairman of the farm board.

Lions Forego Lunch For a Real Picnic

The Lions club did not meet today, but made plans for a combination picnic and business session to be held at the Prairie Lee school house Thursday evening, beginning at 7:30. Lions, their ladies, children and guests will be at the school house for another purpose other than that involved in the get-together of Lions and their friends; they wish to aid the club women of the community in raising funds for sending delegates from that community to the short course to be conducted at College Station the latter part of the month and the early part of August.

Charles Yonge, in charge of the program, said this aiding of a community is one of the functions of a service club. District Judge Charles L. Klapproth will speak on "Lionism." Songs, readings and a musical program will follow. Plenty of chicken is promised.

Representatives Of Rotary Club Return

W. E. Upham and T. Paul Barron returned last night from Abilene where they attended the conference of Rotary club presidents and secretaries of the 41st district. Routine work of club committees organization was explained in detail by District Governor R. H. Nichols of Vernon. Malcolm Meek and wife, who attended the meeting, went on to Wichita Falls on business. Advance work toward securing the 1932 district conference was done by the Midland men while at Abilene.

IDENTITY REMAINS ENIGMA

Shifting of Cargo on Freight Car Blamed For the Death

An unidentified man, evidently about 21, found Tuesday afternoon buried under several tons of heavy water main pipe, was buried here early this morning.

Workmen were engaged in unloading the pipe, consigned to the City of Midland from Birmingham, when Everett Klebold, transfer man, and A. J. Gates, city manager, saw a hand protruding upward through the mains.

A call was immediately placed with the sheriff's office and he went to the scene, a spur track one block west of the depot, with deputies and an Ellis motary ambulance.

An inquest established the man as having been dead approximately 30 hours, of causes attributed to have been accidental.

Under Tons of Pipe The man was lying on the floor of the car, with many joints of the pipe over him. It is believed by the sheriff's office that he had boarded the car somewhere between Birmingham and Midland and had lain down to sleep in the space between the two tiers of pipe and that he had met his death when the cargo shifted when the car was jerked suddenly. Such deaths are well known.

The theory that the man had met foul play and had been buried under the pipe was not held, inasmuch as the body would have been more decomposed had it been in the car when it was pulled out of the yards in Birmingham.

Identification Sought Attempts at identifying the body, crushed beyond nice recognition of features, was going on this morning from belongings found on the dead man. An employee's card of the Sells-Floto circus, animal keeper's division, had the name of what appeared to be Stanley Rankowski on it. The card had a Chicago address and specified that it was a pass to the Coliseum. It was numbered 794.

A Catholic prayer book had inscribed in juvenile scribbling the name of "Joe Zabroski, April 18, 1927." The book was titled "Key of Heaven" and appeared to have been much used.

Papers Found A folder of the Christian Assembly, Pentecostal, of Cincinnati, evidently a mission, was in the man's pocket also. (See BODY FOUND page 6)

TEXAS IS BUILDING

DISCRIMINATIONS AGAINST INDUSTRY

Tax authorities in Brazoria county last week placed a valuation upon industrial properties which exceeded by $4,000,000 the valuation placed on similar properties in Wharton county by officials of the latter county.

Without any reference to the controversies which have been waged in each of the counties mentioned, and without regard to the merit or lack of merit in contentions of the interested parties, there is evidenced here a weakness in the state's system of taxation which is certain to militate against that industrial growth and development so necessary to the state's best interests.

Where there is no uniform system of taxation, and where no protection against spending orgies of local tax bodies is afforded industry, it is only reasonable to assume that industrialists will exercise utmost caution in entering the State of Texas.

In this connection the Fort Worth Star-Telegram recently said: "Until we have a great many more factories in Texas and a great many more businesses of all sorts, it is criminal folly to talk of increasing the taxes on industry. Such an increase would have the effect of retarding the development of the state by keeping out capital that is so badly needed, crippling the growth of industry and business now in the state and laying a penalty thereby upon all classes and all taxpayers. Texas, above all states, needs to encourage industry and development, not retard them."

Where county tax officials evidence a disposition to discriminate against industry, imposing upon them tax burdens which violate every principle of equity and uniformity, there should be some method by which the state might intervene.

If Texas desires to achieve the destiny promised by its industrial possibilities, some such supervisory powers should be given it through necessary legal channels.

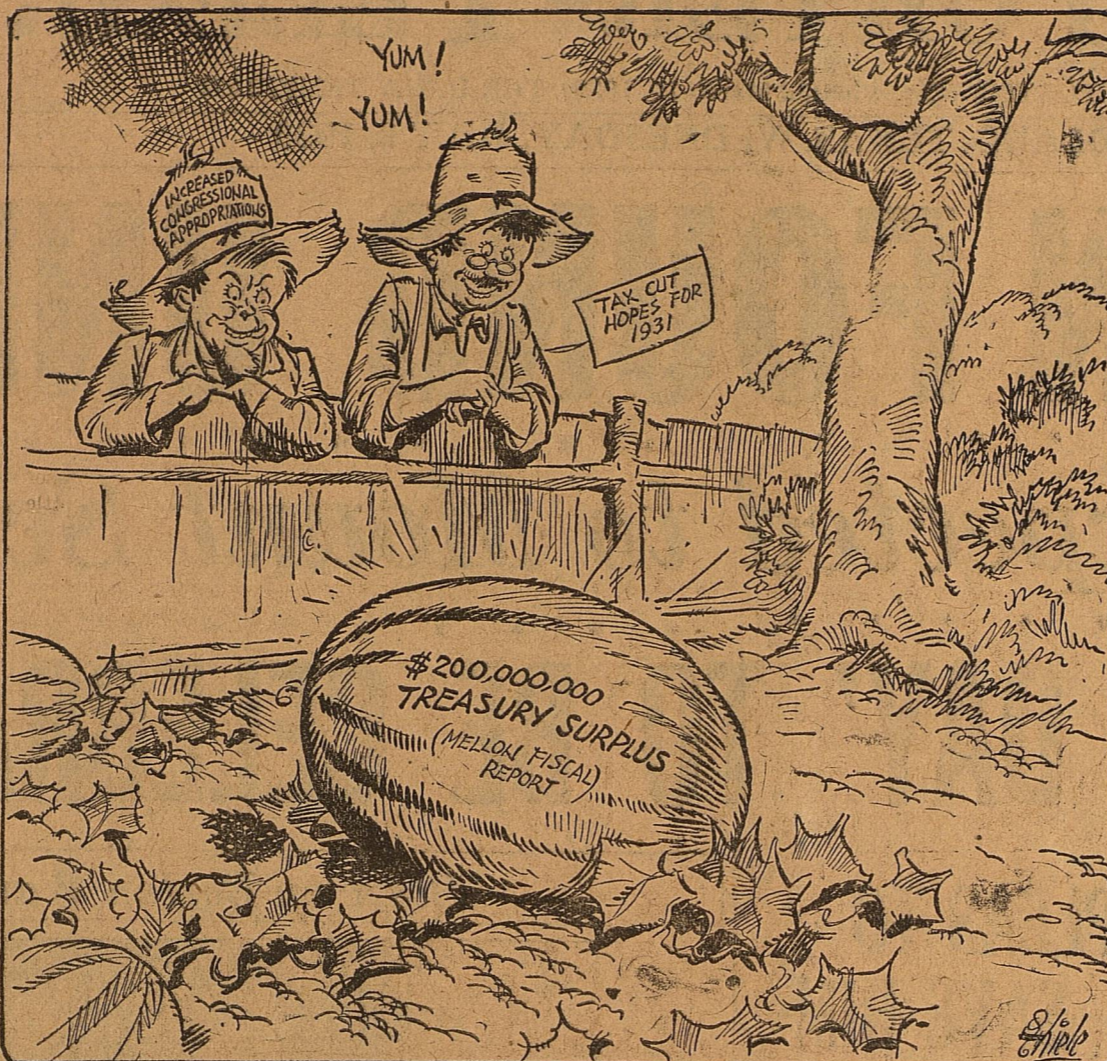

There is no question but that the eyes of industry are upon Texas. That being true, the attitude of county, as well as state, governments assumes proportion of the highest importance.—Editorial Digest.

THE UNCERTAINTY IS OVER

There is this to be said for the new tariff bill: It has ended the uncertainty which was a real factor in the business depression.

The arguing, log-rolling and vote-bartering are over and American business can go back to work knowing exactly what tariff duties are to be, and what degree they will affect production and competition in the domestic and foreign markets.

Two Minds With But a Single Thought!

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Mr. Hoover Is Still Fond of Fish and Fishing, but No Fish Can Hope to Get in Any More Photographs With Him—Heads That Are Sewed on Don't Suit Him

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Fish are still welcomed at the White House if they are not too dead, but no more fish need apply to have their pictures taken with the president of the United States.

Mr. Hoover is partial to fish. He likes to catch them and he likes to eat them. But he isn't fond of posing with them any more.

Some weeks ago a very fine salmon came down here from Maine for the Hoover table. Congressman Donald Snow of Maine made the presentation and other Maine congressmen stood by to assist him in case he dropped the fish or something as well as to be photographed during the proceedings.

A Headless Trophy At the last minute Congressman Snow made the appalling discovery that the salmon had been taken into the White House kitchen and decapitated in preparation for serving. That threatened to ruin the photograph and probably would have done just that except for Mr. Snow's stroke of genius. He dashed into the kitchen and sewed the head back on again so that it might be fit to pose with Mr. Hoover and the donors.

But the story got into print and it seems that the president thought it looked rather funny for him to be posing with a fish which had had its head cut off and then sewed back on again. Possibly he realized that the poor fish looked funnier than anyone else concerned, but at any rate that was the last fish picture at the White House. The saddest victim of the new fish policy was T. Joe Cahill of the Dude Ranch Association, who had fish flown here by plane for Mr. Hoover, only to find that the president wouldn't even pose with such obviously very special and extraordinary fish.

Washington has a soft spot in its heart for Amos W. W. Woodcock, the new prohibition director in the Department of Justice. Woodcock for years had charge of prohibition enforcement in Maryland as U. S. district attorney in Baltimore.

But the capital's favorite liquor has always been Maryland rye whiskey of all ages. And it still is. Despite efforts which were almost prodigious, Mr. Woodcock never made any apparent inroads on the production of Maryland's many stills, with the result that Washington has never had to go on a gin basis as so many cities have.

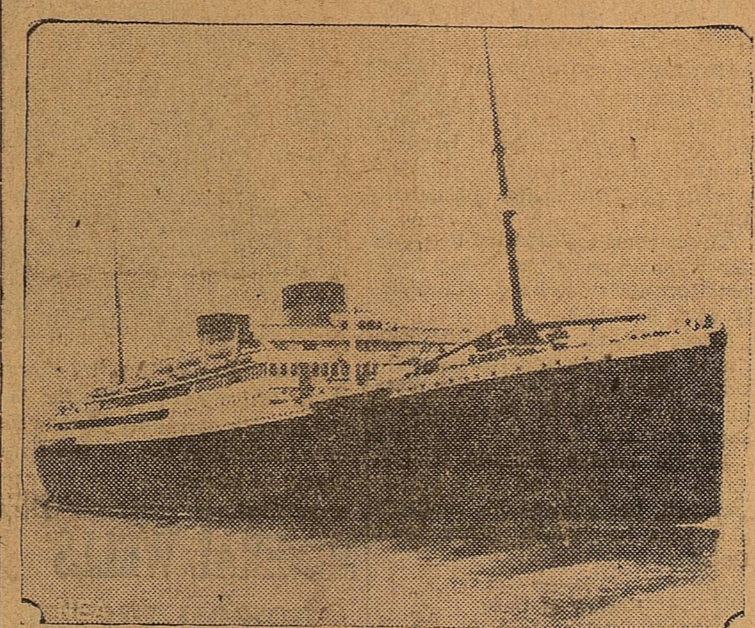

In Washington the Hon. Smith Wildman Brookhart, senator from Iowa, seems rather harmless. He does not rank as one of the big guns of the Senate and has been getting into the newspapers lately only when presenting evidence that someone served hooch at a party.

But in Chicago, where things are always nice and quiet and peaceful and folks are easily alarmed, he appears to be regarded with fear.

The Chicago Journal of Commerce editorially accuses him of being "a man who advocates revolution by violence"—a "revolutionary" as the term "might be applied to William Z. Foster, the late Big Bill Haywood, the late Lenin, the present Totzky and the present Stalin."

"In Senator Brookhart the state of Iowa has an outright red revolutionary in the United States Senate," insists the Journal.

She's World's Largest Cabin Ship

Here is Great Britain's latest entry in the international ship-building race for Atlantic supremacy. Shown on her maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York, the Britannic is the world's largest cabin ship, and England's greatest motor vessel. The White Star liner, of 27,000 tons, is 680 feet in length and accommodates 1550 passengers.

hasn't been on a single committee since his return. And that is rather tough because as a member of the District of Columbia Committee he used to be able to raise more hell about local affairs than the rest of Congress combined. Robbed of his former facilities for publicity, Blanton came out the other day as the only man in the House to speak against the Wagner unemployment bills. Tom has been fighting labor for 20 years and labor has been fighting Tom. The Texas congressman's idea was that the country would be wasting money in the attempt to do something about employment and that a lot of people were unemployed because they were too lazy to work.

France May Build a Giant Canal Linking Two Oceans

By MINOTT SAUNDERS.

PARIS, July 9.—Recent international conferences for security and economic expansion have been so discouraging for the French people that lively agitation has developed for the construction of the Two-Seas Canal, a waterway linking the Atlantic, from Bordeaux, with the Mediterranean.

Demands are being made to the government to do something about this great work, and the press, particularly in the southern provinces, is colorfully picturing the enormous advantage to France, in security and economic prosperity, if it could be achieved.

The latest discouragement to French enterprise came with the refusal of the British Labor Government to recommend the scheme of a channel tunnel linking France and England. France is practically undivided in favor of a channel tunnel, but can do nothing about it as long as England, for financial and strategical reasons, refuses to cooperate.

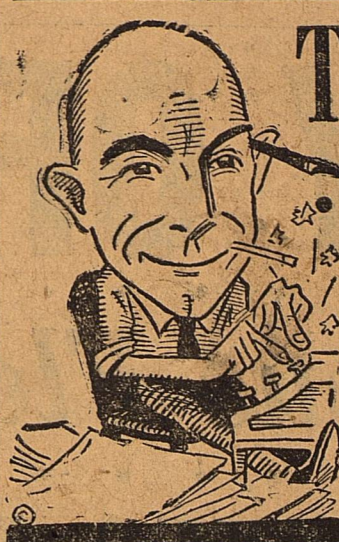

The London Naval Conference was another disappointment for France, leaving little ground for hope and security under the present disarmament scheme. France, like the United States—only on a much smaller scale—is ever mindful that it has two coasts to protect. Her Atlantic and Mediterranean ports can only be reached through Gibraltar, as once the American Atlantic and Pacific ports could only be reached by water round the Horn. The proposed Two-Seas Canal would be for France what the Panama Canal has become for the United States.

With such a passageway French naval units could cut off 1500 miles in moving from Bordeaux to Marseilles and not have to worry about the straits of Gibraltar being blocked, and thus isolating two naval sections in time of an international crisis. Communication with her colonies in North Africa and the East could be cut down by days; in fact, her entire position in the Mediterranean would be enormously strengthened. It is no secret that French fears rest chiefly in the Mediterranean, yet the Atlantic coastline cannot be left unguarded.

Dreams of the Two-Seas Canal seem almost fantastic. Aside from its military and naval value, the advantages in trade and economic development are almost incalculable. Robert Castex, an authority on the project, evinced them in an open letter to the Minister of Public Works, published by the Intran-sigent, as follows:

Means Prosperity to South Sound equilibrium within the country by arresting the increasing exodus from the south to the north of France and thereby counterbalancing foreign influence in the south.

Industrially it means employment for 50,000 workers over a period of several years. Economically it means the growth and prosperity of cities in the south, flourishing ports, new industrial centers and vast areas enriched

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Lizzie—"Don't be foolish—My boy friend is studying to be an efficiency expert."

Midland, Texas, July 7, 1930.

Dear Quack:

When I read that letter in Sunday's paper written by some grouch who pleased to sign himself O. L. D. Batch, I fairly boiled. I think he had his nerve to write such a thing about sweet little kiddies. And think how the poor mothers must have felt when they read the sarcastic thing. It just takes an old bachelor who isn't worth salt that goes in his bread to have such feelings towards babies. The State of Texas would do well to make all such creatures adopt about four children and then seeing to it that they supported them well. I do hope the poor mothers will not pay the least attention to his old letter, but will take the kiddies on just the same, and the next time he goes to the show, I hope that four crying babies sit on all four sides of him. I think he is disgusting, and I don't care if you tell him so.

In an argument about the worth of a bachelor as compared to a family man, I claim to be one-sided instead of showing my usual breadth of mind. Having a wife and a boy 16 years old, I am past the age where I have to worry about my kid talking at the show. So I agree with Fearsome that O. L. D. Batch is the nuisance.

Lizzie Callahan—"I had a date with a boy friend last night, at home, and he only stayed an hour." Hulda—"Gosh, bet that was a night wasted away."

Sincerely, Little Fearsome.

ports filed. In 1186 a private company considering the proposition, valuated the cost at $140,000,000, but today it would probably cost double that amount. Various governments and experts approved the scheme and in 1906 a new technical committee was appointed to make complete survey. The war ended agitation that had then aroused.

The Two-Seas Canal would cut across the wide isthmus of southern France that joins with Spanish territory. The Atlantic gateway would be Bordeaux, connected with the ocean by the estuary of the Gironde. The Mediterranean portal would be Narbonne, a direct line seawards from Carcasonne, with the waterway passing through Toulouse. The fertile lowlands would make construction comparatively easy, with natural waterways assisting.

This dream is not new. It can be traced back to the days of Louis IV and the idea was again revived in 1662 by the great engineer, Riquet, but it was considered fantastic. During the last 20 years of the 19th century several concrete schemes were submitted and voluminous re-

Washable Gloves' Wearing Quality Depends on Correct Laundering

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN Author of "The Shopping Book" Written for NEA Service

Washable gloves give extremely satisfactory wear if they are laundered correctly. Gloves should be washed on the hand in lukewarm water and soap and rinsed in lukewarm water with just a very little soap in the water.

Local Housewives' Choice Recipes

"Rhubarb pie is exceedingly healthy and so easy to prepare," said Mrs. A. M. Gannt when she selected the recipe for rhubarb pie as one of her favorites.

Mrs. C. E. Gann tells of her choice recipe in preparing sweet potatoes, which are delicious at any meal and this is a new way to serve them.

until tender. Put through a sieve and season with 1 cup of sugar, 1-2 cup of butter, 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon of nutmeg. (Canned potatoes may be used which will save boiling.) Put in serving dish, top with marshmallows, and place in a warm oven until the marshmallows are melted.

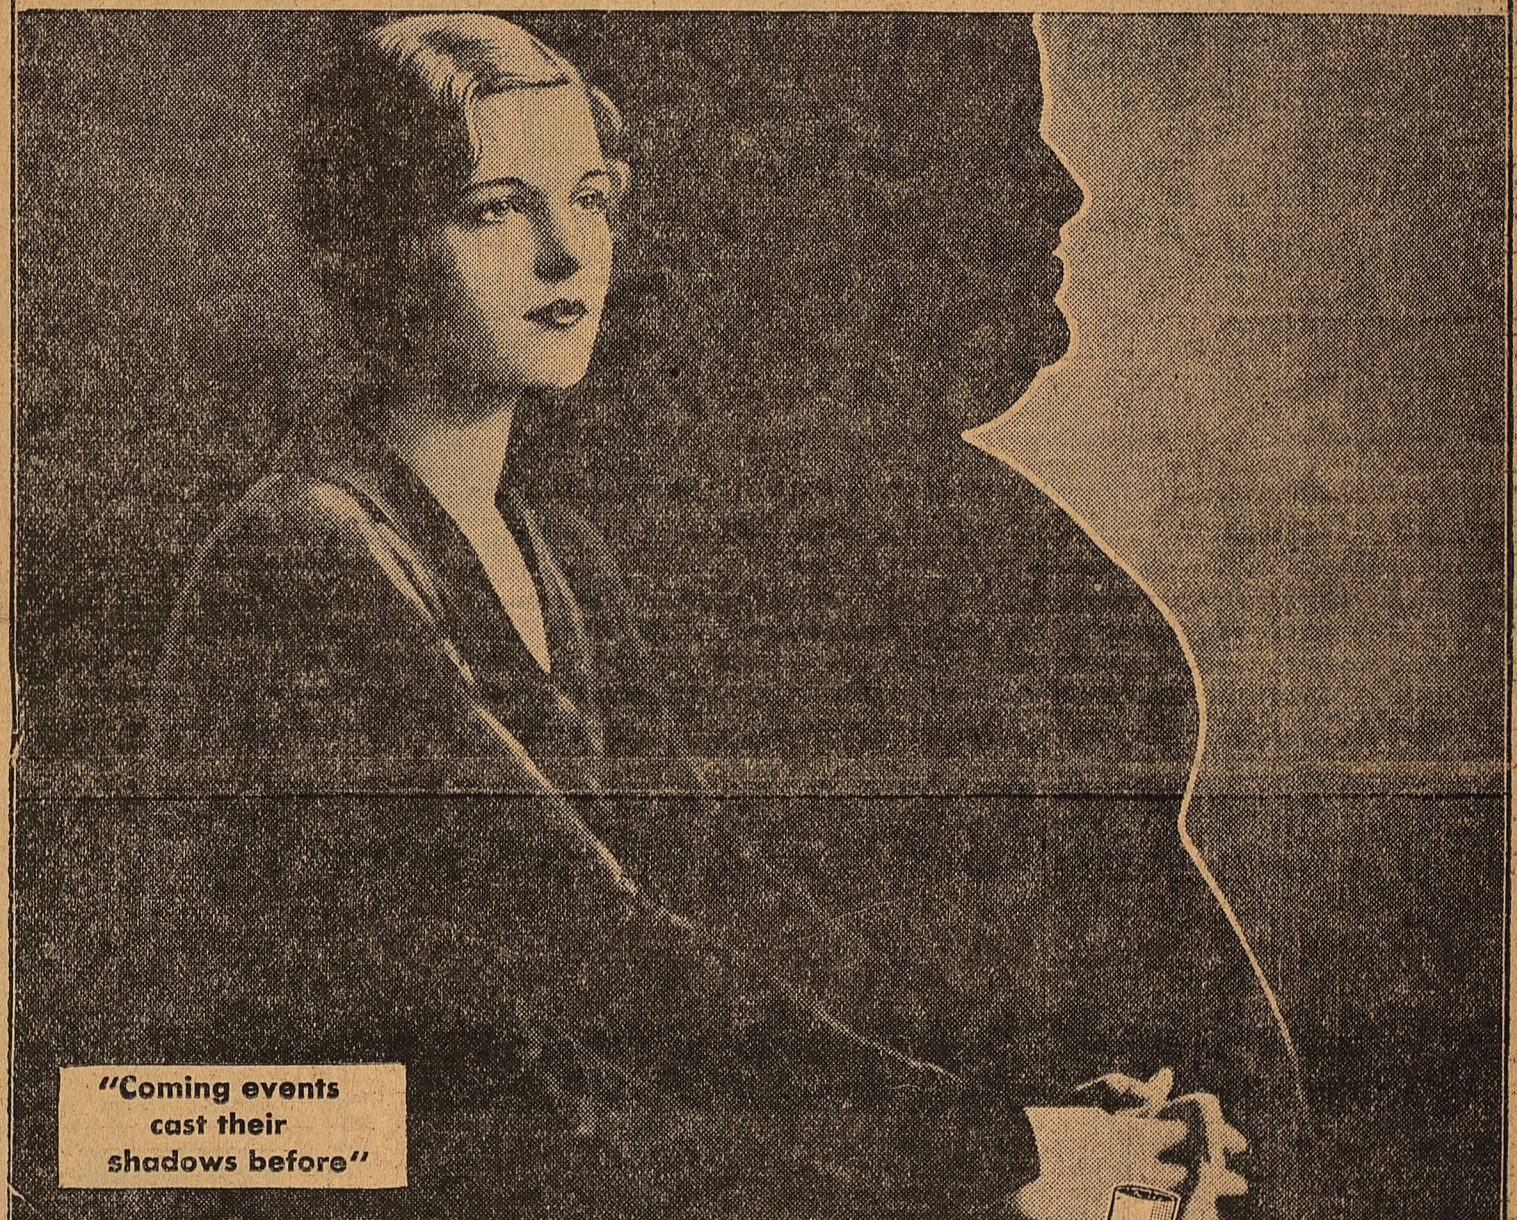

Bible Class Studies Charity

"Charity" was discussed by the women of the Church of Christ Bible class at its meeting yesterday afternoon at the church. Mrs. W. F. Hejl was leader and an instructive lesson was conducted.

Friday Mrs. D. E. Holster will entertain the Belmont Bible class at her home at 4 o'clock. City League Union meets at the Methodist church at 8 o'clock.

IT'S A PITY TO BE FAT!

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

When tempted to over-indulge "Reach for a Lucky instead"

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Everyone knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

"In his famous book entitled 'Foods for the Fat,' Dr. Yorke-Davies gives this advice: 'Any system for reducing fat will be of no avail if the patient persists in eating between meals.' We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will 'Reach for a Lucky instead,' you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Tawny Tones Achieve a Healthy and Natural Harmony for Sue Carol

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of twelve articles on "Your Beauty Colors" written exclusively for The Reporter-Telegram.

By NINON Written for NEA Service

Music charms the soul by its exquisite harmony. Its ability to strike chords that find echo in the human heart.

Real beauty attains the same ends. It gives one the same exhilaration as the sound of surf breaking on rocky beaches, clean winds whistling through forests. It is as gratifying and pleasing as a symphony.

This harmony, however, can be learned by the smart girl. You all can do much to tune in on the audition, the homage all lovely creations receive as their birth-right.

If you happen to be the type that harmonizes naturally with merry sunshine, the kind of girl who suggests fresh gardens, gorgeous vistas—a girl, wholesome brown-eyed Susan person—learn a few of Sue Carol's tricks.

Olive Complexion Sue has dancing brown eyes with no trace of sly coquetry in them, honest, trusting brown eyes—the kind every man would love to look into. Her hair is rich brown—the brown of polished chestnuts and her complexion is a clear, healthy olive.

If you are this type of girl, know that you harmonize best with natural things, wear your hair simply, do not touch up your eyes even the least little bit, use rachel powder, nasturtium rouge and a dark, orange lipstick that has much of the sun's yellow in it. These are Sue's efficacious rules for make-up. She emerges the most natural and winning little beauty, perfectly in harmony with Nature. You can do the same, you can be the healthy, normal type such a large proportion of American men adore.

Sue wears all the tawny tones, oranges, browns, yellows, reds, and she looks adorable in the greens of Nature itself. They use green lights to take her pictures for she seems like such an outdoor little five-foot-two person that she is best set off by woody backgrounds.

Favorite Flowers Her flower choices are staunch English primroses, native nasturtiums, California poppies, yellow daisies. And the only perfumes she cares for are the natural flower odors, nothing complicated or synthetic. Simple, natural harmony all through. Is that harmony yours, too? It can be. For it is only the result of scientific care and experiment. Why not capture it? It is yours for the taking!

LOCATES TREASURE

HOUSTON, Texas, July 9. (P)—R. D. Burchard's request for permission to dig for a "buried treasure" on city property near Buffalo bayou has been refused.

Burchard, in a letter to the city engineer, claimed that with his "radio gold detector" he has located three chests laden with gold which Spanish pirates, killed in an encounter with Indians, had buried. He offered the city a half interest in whatever he found.

NEW TRAINING SHIPS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 9. (P)—A vest pocket edition of the old PT-3 primary training ship, the YPT-6, will be used for training students at Brooks field for the first time when the new primary class starts flying.

Six of the small training planes have been received in addition to one that has been in use to determine the value of the type for military training purposes.

While the ship is much smaller than the type now in use, it has flying qualities that have gained the approval of officers who tested it.

The same type of plane, known as the "Fleet," has been used extensively by commercial schools.

DOUBLE HEADER SUNDAY TO HAVE TWO LOCAL TEAMS ARRAYED

If Hagen Gets Out of Bed There May Be Boisterous Battle at Interlachen

BUSHERS AND TWO OTHER CLUBS ON TOP

Two teams of the Tri-County league will be featured on one of the games of a double header scheduled for Sunday afternoon at Cowden park.

The Midland Bushers meet Stanton at 4 o'clock and the Midland Oilers and the Pleasant Valley teams cross bats earlier, at 2 o'clock.

The league race is now muddled, with three teams, the Bushers, Leborah and Stanton, tied for the top rung, and with the Oilers, Valley View and Penwell perched in a deadlock for second place.

The top teams have won three and lost one, while the second place clubs are holding tight to an even break in the win and lost column, each having lost and won two games.

Odessa, in seventh place, has won one and lost three. Pleasant Valley is nestling a goose egg so far, having lost four straight.

A big crowd is expected to come out and view their local favorites, and the visiting clubs has significant large representations from their towns and communities.

IDAHO RANGES FINE COMBED IN WILD HORSE WAR

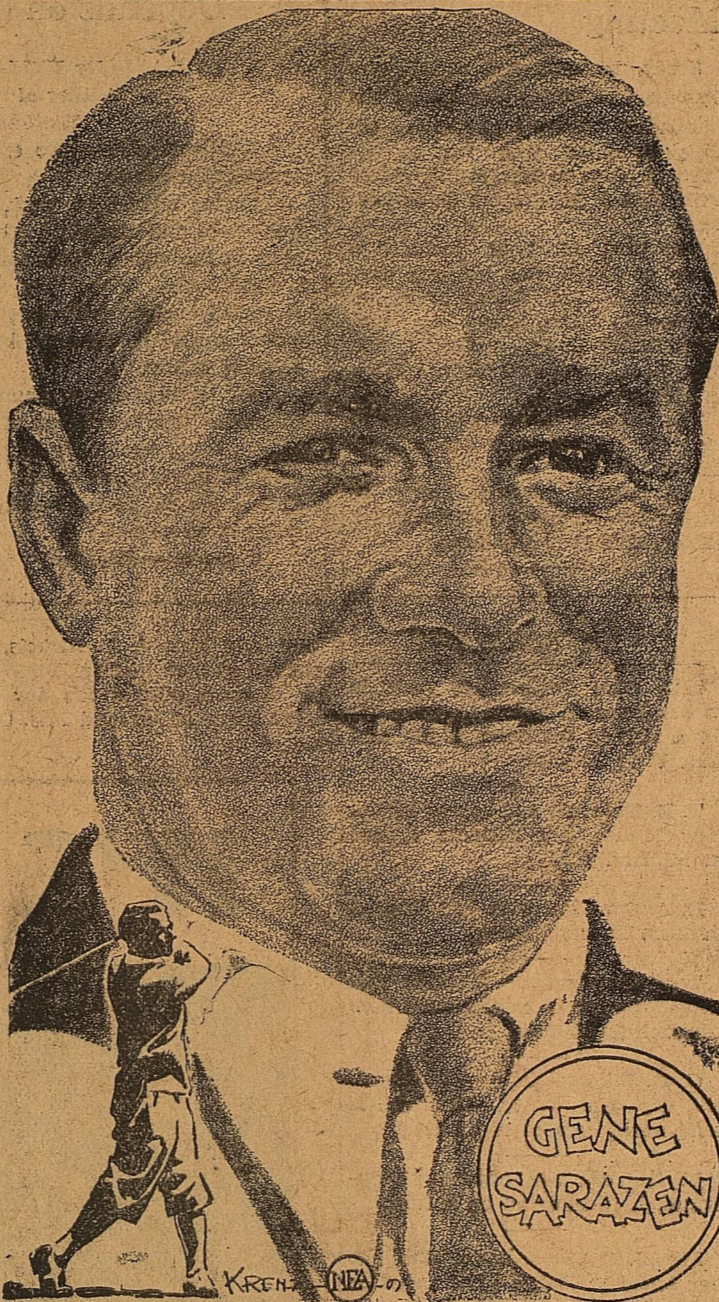

BOISE, Idaho, July 9. (UP).—Probability that the wild horse will follow the trail of the buffalo and be driven completely out of the rangeland, taking with it another reminder of the old pioneer West, was seen in the activities of range riders and organized roundup crews who have been busy for several mustangs, plowhorses and other types of animals into corrals.

The annual drive on wild horses threatened to clear the ranges of the last vestige of the fiery tribe of animals that used to range the open country of the West. Riders were covering the wide section lying in northern Nevada, southwestern Idaho and southeastern Oregon, rounding up all horses running loose on the range, sorting out those sporting brands, auctioning the better grade of unclaimed animals for individual use, and auctioning the culls to representatives of horsemeat canning factories.

Buffaloes were destroyed by widespread drives of hunters seeking their hides for robes, once so popular. Wild roses are being driven from the ranges and shipped to canning factories, if permitted to

GENE SARAZEN

SARAZEN MAY BE BETTER THAN JONES

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Editor

When the returns are added up next Saturday night at Interlachen, it may be discovered that the 1930 U. S. Open golf champion is Bobby Jones. Or, it may be either one of a couple of other fellows—Walter Hagen or Gene Sarazen.

It may sound like heresy, but you know Mr. Jones has been beaten before, and here are a couple of putter-pushers who are just cocky enough to think that such a miracle might be worked again.

Sir Walter has been holding secret practice in Australia with Joe Kirkwood. His putter started playing queer pranks on those old eyes during the winter in the west, resulting in his decision to forego the British Open which he won last year. Friends who have seen Walter since his return to America say he has restored to his brazen putter much of its ancient charm. Which means he isn't going to Minneapolis just to watch Bobby Jones play.

In naming the Haig as a contender, however, I am banking on Leo Diegel or some other friend being there to pull him out of bed in time to get started with Jimmy Thompson, the Colorado pro, at 1:30 p. m. Thursday, July 10. For there is always a chance that Hagen may be poured out of a taxicab, wearing a full-dress suit from the night before, just an hour and a half late for the ceremony of teeing off.

Hagen is unattached to any golf club. The years are beginning to sit upon his shoulders, not heavily as yet for Hagen still refuses to be bothered, but the years are peached there, just the same. This year he has no championship title of any kind, and he needs one in his business. He may be figuring it's time to get in a little golf. Watch the scores.

The other fellow, Gene Sarazen, curiously enough is one of the not-so-many golfers who love to do battle with Hagen. You have to be a competitor to like to play against

Englishman Plans Solo Ocean Hop

The first lone conqueror of the Atlantic since Colonel Lindbergh's flight may be Capt. C. S. Wynne-Eyton, pictured here. He is assembling his tiny De Havilland Moth plane at Lester's Field, Newfoundland, in preparation for an early take-off for Europe. Captain Wynne-Eyton was a squadron leader in the Royal Air Force and saw distinguished service as a flyer in the World War.

Hagen, the kiddier and goat-getter, but that's the kind of golfer Sarazen is. When he's hot he is irresistibly cocky.

And he was very warm in the spring down-south. He took down the $10,000 prize in the Agua Caliente Open without even getting serious. In the last round he came from behind and beat Horton Smith and Al Espinosa to the wire, 2 up. He may still be in the same mood.

Golf's spotlight first turned on Sarazen in 1923 when he won the National Open at Skokie. Hagen, Jones, Mehlhorn and George Black all went into the final round that year with a stroke ahead of Sarazen. He burned up that last round with a 68.

He sat on a rail fence near the 18th green, waiting for the others to come in. He had a 288, but in view of what the others were doing, it appeared the score might be beaten. An unofficial courier came to tell him that Hagen and Black were coming along great guns, shooting birdies and eagles all over the premises.

Sarazen, then a 21-year-old kid, just grinned.

"Yes?" he commented. "Well, I've got mine. They've still got to get theirs."

As it turned out, none of the four—Jones, Hagen, Mehlhorn and Black—could better that score. They didn't get theirs. And this may be just another year like that.

DARROW TO SPEAK

HOUSTON, Tex., (AP)—A request that free use of the city auditorium for a prohibition debate between Clarence Darrow of Chicago and "some local authority on prohibition," has been sent to the city council by J. J. Carroll, president of the Houston Open Forum. The debate would be held on Nov. 6.

"Such a debate never has been held in this part of the country and we think it would be of great interest," Carroll said.

The petition was taken under advisement.

continue running wild, they multiply and spread until they present a real menace to the livestock man by eating grass that must be used for more valuable animals, and by carrying disease that may be spread among ranchers' stock.

Some of the wild horses may be broken, and trained for domestic use. But most of them are useless. They are transplanted from the wide open spaces of the West to the cramped confines of tin cans. Most of the carcasses consigned to packing plants are used in the manufacture of meat feed products for sale to operators of poultry ranches, fox farms, dog kennels and fish hatcheries. The better grades of horse meat are canned for shipment to European markets, and equine steaks are said to be more or less popular in some of the larger city markets of this country.

MURDER SUSPECT TO TRIAL

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., (AP)—Homer Edwards, accused jointly with Ernest Young of slaying John Bradshaw, of San Antonio, will go on trial August 11 at Hondo, Medina county, as the result of a motion for a change of venue granted by Judge L. J. Brucke at Boerne.

Motion for a new trial for Young, convicted of murder and sentenced to 50 years in the penitentiary, was denied.

Young and Edwards were charged with murder following the finding of Bradshaw's body in the Guadalupe river in April. At the time of the slaying both men were escaped inmates of the San Antonio State hospital.

A little improvement on nature

MAYBE the finest grapes do hang the highest. Maybe the sweetest nuts are the hardest to crack. Maybe every rose does have its thorn.

But—the best merchandise, the best values, the best buying opportunities, are the ones that are the easiest to discover today.

This little improvement on nature can be credited to the advertisements that appear in your daily paper. Their function is to make the best pianos and the best cigarettes and the best automobiles widely known and easily obtainable.

The very nature of its job has helped advertising to succeed. Everybody likes good news. And advertisements tell all of us how and where we can get the very best of the things that we want.

When it comes to deciding on your purchases, the easiest way is also the best one. When you follow the advertisements, you get the soundest values, the most improved merchandise and the greatest satisfaction for the money you spend.

Advertisements are opportunities . . . study them to your own advantage

TOM MOONEY APPEARS SLATED AS A LIFER IN THE PENITENTIARY WHERE HIS MOTHER SAID HE WOULD VACATE

The mother of Tom Mooney must have been wrong when she told the press a few days ago that her son would never spend another year behind the bars of his California prison.

The governor of that state has refused to pardon her son, and all the stories that filled the front pages of the American press following the tragedy of that 1916 bombing of a Preparedness Day parade have come to the fore again.

A resume of the case, which has been an issue in California for 13 years follows:

Led by a blue-clad corps of G. A. R. veterans, a mass meeting of San Francisco manhood marched through Market street on the sultry afternoon of July 22, 1916, amid wild acclaim from the throngs on the sidewalks. It was the Preparedness Day parade.

Patriotism was at fever heat among spectators, many of whom had been won to the cause of American intervention overseas. Enthusiasm was fanned, this summer afternoon, by martial airs from a dozen bands, the sight of blue uniforms passing under waving flags and the stirring throb of marching feet. It was a scene of color and splendor, and spectators cheered enthusiastically.

A moment later, as the fife squealed a grimly prophetic marching song—"There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight"—a death burst upon the scene with a mighty roar that could be heard for miles. Ripping a chasm from the pavement beneath their feet, a home-made bomb raked the massed marchers and bystanders with a point-blank barrage of iron slugs and bolts. Six were killed outright, three died late and 40 were injured.

Goaded by a thoroughly aroused citizenry, police affected five arrests within four days.

The suspects: Tom Mooney, Socialist; I. W. W. editor of the radical paper, The Blast; enemy of the power company whose properties had been repeatedly bombed.

Warren Billings, also a known agitator, pal and admirer of Mooney. Both men were laborers, Mooney a molder, Billings a shoe-maker.

Edward D. Nolan, Mooney's disciple, an unimportant figure in the trials.

Israel Weinberg, taxicab driver, also unimportant.

Mrs. Rena Herrman Mooney, Mooney's wife.

All five were indicted on eight counts of murder. Billings, first to go to trial, was convicted on September 3, 1916. He was sent to life imprisonment, and three days later, the sentence was upheld by the state appellate court.

On February 9 of the following year, Mooney was found guilty of murder, and on February 24 he was sentenced to be hanged in San Quentin prison. The state supreme court upheld the verdict.

Mrs. Mooney was tried on June 11, and acquitted after 50 hours deliberation on June 26. Weinberg and Nolan were freed without ever coming to trial.

A few persons protested at the time that the jury was recruited from a public aroused to a high pitch of excitement by the holocaust. Mooney and Billings, they insisted, had been convicted of radicalism, not the crime with which they were charged.

While a few citizens were appealing to President Wilson to interfere, it became common talk that Joseph Brennan, the deputy district attorney who prosecuted Billings, had refused to take the case until he was assured he need not ask the death penalty. Brennan has since declared he would have acquitted Billings had he been a juror.

Mooney's execution was held in abeyance while a mediation board was appointed by President Wilson to investigate the trial. Through the admissions of perjury which were to come out later had not then been aired, the commission reported to the President that Mooney should either be re-tried or his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. In 1918, Governor Stephens chose the latter course.

As 13 years of imprisonment rolled by for Mooney and Billings, their cause gained converts. Organized labor took up the cry. One by one the state's witnesses admitted perjury. The trial judge, the detective chief who gathered the evidence and the attorney general of California appealed for pardons.

Supported by several San Francisco newspapers and the liberal press the world over, the pressure became heaviest during the current administration, that of Governor C. C. Young. Shortly after passage of a state law that the governor could not act upon a pardon application coming from a two-time felon—this applied to Billings—without a recommendation from the state supreme court, it was announced the court would review the Billings case.

All agreed in the interests of time that any decision reached in Billings case could be held applicable to Mooney.

CARDINAL IS DEAD
VATICAN CITY, July 9. (AP)—Cardinal Vannutelli, 93, dean of Sacred College, died of urenic poison today after several days of illness.

other one, E. A. Kosinger, was taken along. Alderman exchanged shots, as the bandits lay on their stomachs in the road and belched lead from their guns to discourage pursuit. They got away—to the Kansas ranch and their ruse became effective, but not until blood had been spilled on the soil of two states.

Dead men tell no tales. Kesting was killed. He knew too much. Dr. W. W. Wineinger of Dighton, Kan., a Samaritan called to minister to Royston wounds, was slain, too. He, too, knew too much. Royston was taken to St. Paul for further treatment. He recovered. The escape was made good. The booty was splitting after a fashion. Royston and Abshier thought they got a raw deal.

So far all was to the favor of the bandits. They were getting the breaks. Hundreds of men had hunted. Airplanes had scoured the countryside. But the bandits had disappeared as completely as though the earth had opened and swallowed them. But Alderman was not discouraged. He hunted his quarry, traveling thousands of miles to investigate bank robberies, ranging a territory that took him into Kansas, Old Mexico, New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Arkansas, Florida, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Nebraska.

The finger-print of the Wieninger car window had been seen to the bureau of identification in Washington. Then, one day, a fingerprint came through which matched it. Its mate had been made by a man arrested for vagrancy at Stockton, Cal., going under the name of William H. Holden. It checked with the fingerprint of Jake Fleagle, who had once served a term in the Oklahoma penitentiary.

Alderman scented success. He had the Fleagle post office box at Garden City—rented under an assumed name—watched. There came a letter to a brother, Fred, postmarked Kankakee, Ill. Ralph had written it. Alderman took an airplane east. Ralph was arrested. Jake escaped arrest by a margin of a few minutes.

Returned to Colorado, Ralph was grilled. Police, after their own fashion, told him of the capture of his confederates. Ralph weakened. At a famous conference of officers and prosecutors at Colorado Springs, a "deal" was made with Fleagle, the nature of which has been in controversy ever since. Fleagle insisted he was promised he would not be hanged if he confessed; the state insisted that it promised the death penalty would not be asked.

Fleagle, cold, taciturn, gray-haired member of the band, welched on his confederates. Royston was arrested in California. Abshier in Grand Junction, Kan. They, too, confessed. The trials were a formality, climaxed by the dramatic demand of the elder Parrish's widow before a hushed, crowded courtroom, that the slayers of her husband be "hanged higher than Hamen."

Body Found--

body was prepared for burial, a description was given of the dead man. He was five feet eleven, weighed from 155 to 170 pounds and had light red hair. There were no identifying marks on the body.

A pocketbook found in the car, at a distance from the body, was thought by the sheriff to hold no significance to the case. This had a card of identification bearing the name of R. G. Foster, an International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers directed the finder of the pocketbook to communicate with Ed Carlson, 2026 Pine street, Pueblo, Colo.

Routed Through Louisiana
A telegram from the Ralls Electric works at Abilene to Foster in Monroe, La., read: "Come at once. Can use you."

The car was routed from Birmingham to Midland through New Orleans and Monroe. It is probable, the sheriff's office believes, that the man boarded the train somewhere intermediate to the Louisiana metropolis and Midland.

Hawks' Words Are Understood at Last

Midland people who heard the prophecy of Captain Frank Hawks, noted airman, when he was here with his Eaglet glider on the much-written-of plane-towed glide across continent, now know what he meant when he refused to state his immediate plans but made the statement, "I am going to do something that I hope is successful. It will be nothing but a continuation of things already done, except, perhaps, in degree."

The captain has flown during the last few days a new craft, a tiny airplane that is capable of making more than 240 miles an hour. That he will try shattering all marks for the distance between the coasts seems fairly certain.

"Oh, yes, you will see me again," the captain told a reporter as he strapped himself into the glider as he was preparing to leave Midland for Sweetwater, a night stop.

Did he mean that the flight across continent is to bring him over this place? Airport officials are dubious, but admit that Captain Hawks is always thinking of the unusual.

The craft, which has been wrapped in mystery during its construction the Travel Air factory, was wheeled out for its initial tests Sunday and streaked down a measured mile at 240 miles an hour. Captain Hawks turned and brought the plane back into the course against the wind, making the mile in 17 seconds.

The captain will continue tests until Friday, when he expects to depart for New York, arriving there Sunday. He said he would take off from New York when the weather was favorable for a dash to Los Angeles and return.

The plane is just 20 feet long and has a wing sprad of only 20 feet. It contains three fuel tanks with a total capacity of 100 gallons, which gives it a flying range of about 700 miles. The motor is a special Wright creation. Captain Hawks has covered the dash board with devices he has designed to assist him in his assault on the transcontinental speed record.

Local Lions Help Neighboring Clubs

Midland Lions were engaged actively yesterday and last night in officiating at meetings of other clubs, Harry L. Haight, as a special delegate of the local club met with Odessa citizens at a luncheon yesterday, giving constructive suggestions on methods of organization and of perfecting the Lions club there.

Leslie A. Boone, president of the local club, accompanied by Marian F. Peters, M. C. Ulmer and B. G. Graf. Attended a meeting of the Pecos club last night, President Boone conducting installation ceremonies of the new Pecos club officers. Addresses were made by Ulmer, Peters and Graf.

Asks Midland Man To Aid Enterprise

M. H. Roberts, traveling passenger agent for the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railway, was in conference during the morning with the secretary of the chamber of commerce, a plan being evolved whereby an attempt will be made to get the Texas Commercial Executives association, of which the Midland secretary has just rounded out a year as secretary, to make up a special train to run over the Texas & Pacific lines to St. Louis, where it would go over the Chicago & Eastern Illinois to Chicago to the national met of the body.

Roberts asked the Midland man to issue letters over the secretary's name, urging that the idea be publicized.

WEST TEXAS SAILS

Miss Annie Armstrong, who is a niece of the picturesque old character, Pat McHugh, deceased, and who for the past 22 years has ranches on the Gaines and Yoakum county lines, left for a return visit to her native homeland in Clonacool, Ireland, where her parents reside. Miss Armstrong will sail from New York on the steamer Britannica, arriving in Juemstown, Ireland, July 21st. She expects to return to West Texas in October.

MAYFIELD CLAIMS HE HAS REACHED MOST OF STATE

SAN ANTONIO, July 9.—Speaking here Wednesday night to an audience of Bexar county voters that overflowed Beethoven Hall, Earle B. Mayfield, candidate for governor, expressed himself as being perfectly pleased with the receptions accorded his candidacy over the state.

At noon he spoke over radio station KTTA and telegrams of confidence and support from points in and out of the county were read at the night meeting.

During his speech, in which he outlined the salient points of his platform, Mayfield said, "During these nine weeks of extensive campaigning and speaking throughout the state, I have carried my candidacy from Lamesa in West Texas to San Augustine in East Texas and from San Antonio in South Texas to Demison in North Texas. Having delivered one hundred and ten speeches so far, exclusive of those over the radio, I have spoken to more voters than any other candidate and my audiences have been most enthusiastic. I have the best organization I have ever had in my political career."

Mail Plane Forced Down On Atlantic

DAKAR, Senegal, July 9. (P)—Jean Mermo, flying the first west to east transatlantic air mail between South America and Africa, was forced down on the sea today when more than half way across. He was reached, with his companions, Leopold Gimme and Jean D'Arby, with 600 pounds of mail which was taken aboard on leaving Natal, Brazil, yesterday.

Three hours before landing, they discovered an oil leak which grew worse, and they radioed a dispatch to the boat Phocce, nearby, which rescued the crew and the mail.

SIX DROWN IN ENGLAND

BLACKPOOL, England, July 9.—(P)—Six boys of 91 in bathing here drowned today. Several got in difficulty and two were rescued. When the others came out of the sea, the principal and teacher called the roll and found six missing. The bodies were recovered.

EAGLET IS NAMED

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., July 9. (P)—Born June 22, his name was announced last night as Charles Augustus Lindbergh Junior and he is therefore entitled to be known as the third, for his grandfather, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, long was United States congressman, and his father was known as junior until the congressman's death.

State WCTU Woman To Speak Thursday

Mrs. J. T. Bloodworth, Fort Worth president of District 12 of the state WCTU, will be in Midland Thursday for a 4 o'clock speech before the Midland organization at the First Baptist church.

She is engaged in an organization tour of this section of the state. Speaking to Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy, president of the Midland body, Mrs. Bloodworth said the WCTU is "starting a new crusade for law enforcement."

The speech here will be on "Give Prohibition Its Charge; Liquor Traffic Has Had Its Day."

Mrs. Bloodworth was the Texas delegate to the national WCTU convention in Indianapolis, as well as a democratic committeeman to the Houston convention. She is at present organizing new unions at San Angelo, Big Spring and Stanton. Candidates especially are invited to the address.

Homer Wade Quits Post at Dallas

DALLAS, July 9. (P)—Resignation of Homer D. Wade, vice president and general manager of the Dallas chamber of commerce, and the election of J. Ben Critz, mayor of Highland park, Dallas civic worker and cotton merchant, to succeed him, was announced last night. The resignation is effective August 1.

Wade, former manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, and prior to that, of the Fort Worth chamber of commerce, said after submitting his resignation to Arthur L. Kramer, president of the Dallas chamber, that he had no plans for the immediate future except that he expected to take a vacation, something he had not enjoyed for a number of years. He was not an applicant for the Dallas position but was the unanimous choice of the directors at the time of his election.

Drunk Man Waits, And Has a Visitor

The air was fetid with the smell of cheap spirits when the motorcycle officer drew abreast a car parked on the west highway. A man was lurching about, bleary-eyed and seemingly experimenting on his ability to start a sentence and complete it. Hiccoughs punctuated his sallies at lecturing the landscape, so Officer Middleton grew suspicious.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "S'nuthin' w-w-why?" the man assured him.

"What are you doing here?" "Shust waitin'!"

"Who are you waiting for?" "Oh-h-h—" Evidently the man was trying to remember, for he kept counting his fingers as though the name were associated with numbers.

"Waitin' for a man—anybody 'ish aw right," the man finally decided. "Well, he's here," the officer said, and took the man to town where he paid a drunk fine.

Just another of the cases that are coming to the attention of officers on a patrol of the highway to the east and west of Midland.

Middleton arrested a man for driving while intoxicated. The man readily admitted he had taken some of the inspired fluid, but said he drank for intestinal indigestion. After he had paid his fine he decided a cure in the mountains would be less expensive.

Six drunk men have been brought in from the highways recently, all of them drivers. The county and city are waging relentless warfare on the drunken, careless and speed driver, in an effort to cut down to a minimum the wave of accidents that have been so costly during the past two years.

No Movie Officers On Midland Payroll

What to peace officers talk about when they are together? The motion picture sheriff with his seven deputies carrying on a drive that brings in former captives, the ubiquitous "bad man" and the like is over stressed, Midland people will tell you.

Midland's officers have lived in Midland until they know most of the residents of the county. They have come to amass a number of traditional stories, and associate with most of the old timers tales that are especially entertaining to the new comer.

Bud Estes is one of these officers. He was standing on the streets, watching for anything that might happen, but characteristically telling an old timer what was told another old timer upon the occasion of a visit to Kentucky.

A woman asked her husband to go out in the wood shed and bring in a load of stove wood. Fifteen years later, at precisely the same hour, the man came into his wife's cabin with the wood.

"Here it is, old lady," he said, sitting down at the table with the utmost confidence of his being accepted.

Officers get together when there is need for it and lay their plans, but they indulge in little discussions of past arrests and brushes with questionable characters.

Hale Leaving For Buick Factory Trip

Clarence Hale, salesman for the Scruggs-Buick company, is leaving tonight for Flint and Detroit, Michigan, having won a trip to the Buick factory by reason of making the highest percentage of sales in proportion to quota of any salesman in the El Paso zone.

This is the second year for Hale to win the trip. His percentage this year was 740.

The Midland man won considerable publicity for his town and territory last year. Dressed in cowboy regalia, he was known to factory officials and representatives of other zones as "Tex" Hale.
