MIDLAND MAN'S WIFE MURDERED

'Ma' 54,707 Votes Ahead of Sterling in 244 Counties

Love Only Candidate To Announce His New Support

DALLAS, July 28. (UP)—Of the defeated candidates, Tom Love alone definitely decided today to support Sterling against Mrs. Ferguson. Others refused to say whom they would support.

Governor Moody, supporting Sterling, said, "Texas won't stand for a repetition of four years ago. The state won't again be shamed and ridiculed by a spectacle of proxy government." Mrs. Ferguson refused to make a statement.

DALLAS, July 28. (AP)—Mounting returns of Saturday's primary election left relative standings unchanged. The Texas Election Bureau figures at 11 this morning from 244 counties, 70 complete, showed Ferguson 54,707 votes ahead of Sterling, second in the governor's democratic race.

Governor: Ferguson, 201,855; Sterling 147,146; Small, 107,432; Love 69,597; Young, 64,862; Mayfield, 45,792; Miller, 45,772; Moody, 3,950; Loven, 2,460; Putnam, 2,455; Walker, 2,009.

United States Senator Morris Sheppard with 412,354 votes had a majority over his opponents, Henry receiving 137,955, and Mitchner 32,225.

Lieutenant governor: Witt, 146,672; Strong, 132,274.

Attorney general: Alfred, 225,948 and Bobbitt, 208,948.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 28. (UP)—Rumors of the possibility of a Republican governor holding sway in traditionally Democratic Texas rumbled about the state house.

George C. Butte, assistant solicitor general of the United States and recently attorney general of Porto Rico, is touted as the G. O. P. candidate with a chance to win. Politicians venture the opinion he would show up well alongside either Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Thomas B. Love or Earle B. Mayfield, Democratic aspirants to the administrative helm.

In 1924 he polled 294,970 votes for governor, being defeated by Mrs. Ferguson, who received 422,558. Thousands of Democrats bolted to vote for Butte in that campaign.

Three Reasons It is figured here that Butte would stand a better chance this time for three reasons. The most important of these is that the state supreme court has ruled since that election that a bolter may not be excluded from future party participation. Another factor, almost as strong, is that the feeling against bolting which has been particularly strong in Texas was broken down when President Hoover carried Texas.

The third is that the Klan issue has died down. Mr. Butte in his former campaign was conceded generally to have the support of many of the Klansmen who were angered by Ma Ferguson's defeat of their candidate in the Democratic primary. This resulted in an anti-Klan rally to Mrs. Ferguson.

If Love is the Democratic nominee, many Democrats will vote for Dr. Butte to "give Love a dose of his own medicine."

Butte Nominee If Mayfield should be the Democratic nominee, Dr. Butte's chance seems less. Mayfield, however, has many bitter enemies. Among them is Governor Dan Moody, who has denounced Mayfield on several occasions, linking him with Ferguson on this respect.

That Butte will be the Republican nominee seems to be taken for granted here. John F. Grant of Houston and Henry Exum of Amarillo are also candidates for the Republican nomination, but it is generally believed here the Republican leaders will not overlook the race Butte made before unless they purposely desire to put the party back

Local Tree Sitters Still Going Strong

Midland's tree sitters are still going good, ending their 49th hour at 3:30 this afternoon.

The boys, Leonard Pratt and Lloyd Brown, are attempting to break the tree-sitting record in a tree located on the 600 block West Kansas street.

"We are going good but need a bath," reports from the lads this afternoon said. "We'll stay regardless of that necessity, till we break the record. Wouldn't be a bad idea to charge admission of a lunch to each of our visitors," the boys agreed this morning.

Crowds visited the boys at their post yesterday and last night.

CROWDS AT BOTH CREWS SERVICES HELD ON SUNDAY

Two of the largest crowds that ever gathered for any service at the Church of Christ in Midland, listened to Evangelist Thornton Crews yesterday. He showed how men should observe this day, and offered scriptural suggestions.

"The Opening of the Will of Christ" was the subject for the evening sermon. Mr. Crews called attention to legal phases that enter into the making and execution of wills. "A man must be of age and in his right mind before he can make a will, and he must have something to bequeath before it can be worth anything. He may make it with or without conditions, and may make a number of wills, but the last one only, can be valid. So long as he lives his property is his and can be used as he sees fit in spite of a will."

"Paul tells us that 'A Testament is in force after these hath been a death.'"

"After the will has been made, it should be recorded; executors should be duly appointed, then after the death of the testator, it should be probated, and the heirs may then prove their right to the property, and receive same. The things that the maker may have done while alive will have nothing to do with the execution of the document, and though it may have been made twenty years before the death of the maker, it is worthless until he dies. Christ fulfilled all of these legal requirements and sealed His will with His blood."

"He came into the presence of His apostles, or executors, and opened the blood stained and blood sealed document and read it to them. He charged them to remain in Jerusalem until the Holy Spirit come upon them. He wanted them to make no mistake in the execution of His will. They were ever faithful in the discharge of their duties. We should ever appreciate the privilege of being children and heirs of God, and should strive to enter heaven by the way of the blood stained will."

Services will continue at 12:30 p. m. and 8:15 p. m. each day until some day this week not yet announced.

Georgia Slayer Gets Pen Sentence

ATLANTA, Ga., July 28. (UP)—T. L. Martin, one of seven white men indicted for slaying Dennis Hubert, divinity school student, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by the Fulton county superior court jury here today with a recommendation of a sentence to the penitentiary for not less than 12 and not over 15 years.

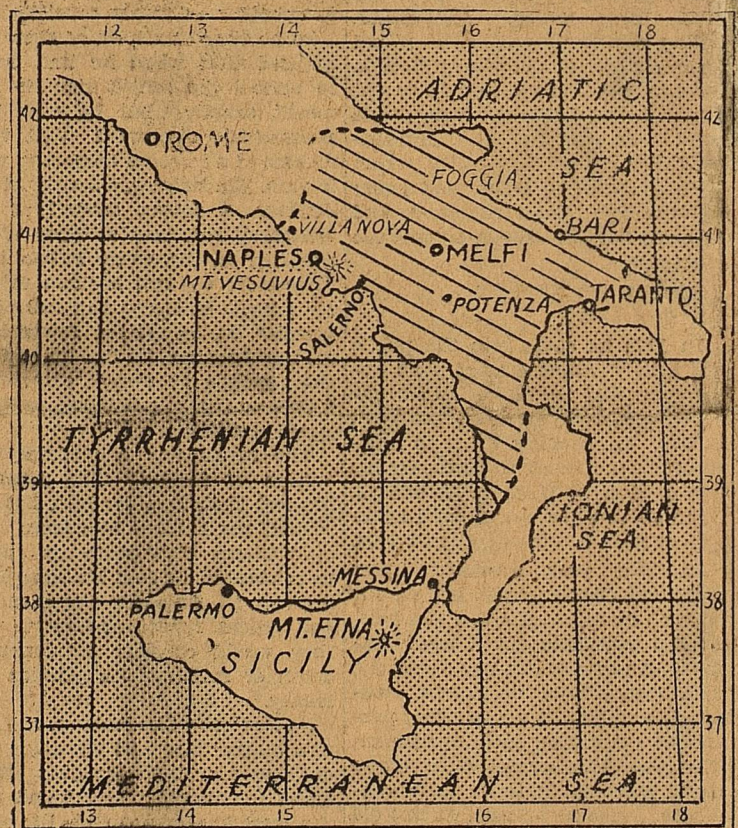

The judge later pronounced the sentence as recommended. The defense counsel immediately filed a motion for a new trial.

An alleged insult on a white woman here provoked the slaying of Hubert. The mgn accused him and said he threatened their lives when they sought to arrest him.

SCARBOROUGH THROUGH HERE

W. F. Scarborough, who, with his family, is spending the summer at the mountain resort Ruidoso, stopped in Midland Saturday night en route his camp from Ft. Worth where he has been on business. He will leave Midland tomorrow by plane for El Paso and thence to Ruidoso.

Where Earthquake In Italy Killed Thousands

ABOVE—The historic city of Montecalvo, pictured here, its buildings set like jewels in a hillside, was reported to be half destroyed in the earthquake which claimed more than 3000 lives in south-central Italy. In this city, visited every year by hundreds of American tourists, the death toll was placed at 300, with hundreds of persons injured and unable to obtain adequate medical assistance. RIGHT—The wide area in south-central Italy which was devastated by earthquakes is indicated on this map. The disaster apparently centered about Melfi, where 100 were known to be dead. Rescue work there was hampered by the destruction of roads and bridges leading to the city. Two-thirds of the population of Villanova—before the quakes a town of 3000—was wiped out. The metropolis of Naples, less seriously affected than some of its sister cities, was the headquarters for relief work in the stricken area, where upward of 3000 lives were reported to have been lost in the most serious earth shocks since the tragedy at Messina in 1908, when 75,842 persons were killed.

ST. LOUIS FLYERS MAY HAVE FAILURE STARING AT THEM

ST. LOUIS, July 28. (UP)—Lack of funds may end the attempt of Forest O'Brine and Dale Jackson to set a new record of sustained flight it was indicated here today as the flyers began their second week aloft.

The flight is being made on subscriptions taken here but will come to a quick ending unless an additional $9,500 are obtained, O'Brine said in a note dropped to the ground.

ARMY ENGINEER GROUP SURVEYS 13 U. S. RIVERS

WASHINGTON, July 28. (UP)—The Army Corps of Engineers announced today that it has completed surveys of the waterpower resources, navigation possibilities and best flood control methods on 13 American rivers. Meanwhile, extensive field work has been done on between 40 and 50 others.

Work completed thus far is only a fractional part of the gigantic assignment given the army engineers by Congress in the River and Harbor Act of 1925. In that legislation they were directed to survey the potentialities of 183 rivers, including all the major streams of the country except the Colorado. This river was exempted because the Bureau of Reclamation already had surveyed it in preparation for construction of Boulder Dam.

When this thoroughgoing inventory of the nation's water highways and hydro-electric power sources is finished, the Engineers Corps said, the Federal Government will have a complete chart by which to steer future developments. It is estimated that the national survey will be completed within three years.

Among the larger streams for which surveys now are being made are the Tennessee, St. Francis, Iowa and Wisconsin rivers.

Although the national survey was ordered in 1925, it was not begun until 1927 when Congress gave it impetus by appropriating $7,322,400 for it.

Soon national attention was focused on the need of comprehensive flood control plans by the disastrous Mississippi flood of May, 1927. This catastrophe moved Congress to provide $5,000,000 more for exclusive use in developing a plan to check rampages on the "Father of Waters."

Studies of the Mississippi problem indicated reservoirs might be a salient factor in flood control. Now some 50 army engineers are investigating the advantages of these artificial lakes, not only for restricting high water pre-dations but also for impounding irrigation water.

Pcsse in Search Of Negro Slayer

HOBART, Okla., July 28. (UP)—A posse of city and county officers searched today for the negro who shot and killed Nightwatchman Al Trentham in the negro district here near midnight.

The negro, Fred Wallace, shot when the officer attempted to arrest him on a charge of intoxication. Trentham died from loss of blood. Wallace escaped before other officers arrived.

Mrs. Jean Lloyd, wife of the Midland chiropractor who maintains an office at 315 West Texas, was murdered sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning on the Bankhead highway near Toyah, officers there and in Midland believe.

The body was found beside the road sometime between six and seven Sunday morning, the scalp torn off. An empty revolver shell was found and indications of a struggle. Somewhat apart from the scene was found the sleeve of a shirt torn from a man. It is expected that the net of police surveillance may center around Midland, though officers did not commit themselves.

The woman was en route to El Paso. She had ridden by automobile as far as Odessa, report says with Joseph A. Seymour, her attorney, who had led the woman ride that far as he was going there to attend to business.

A visit to the office of Dr. Lloyd revealed that husband and wife had been estranged since 1925. They were living in Los Angeles at the time. The doctor said he did not know why his wife had started to El Paso. He had visited the scene of the crime and had investigated the case with Peccos officers, but claimed to know none of the circumstances leading to the killing.

"My wife and I met in my office Saturday noon," he said. "She came to see me about an expected letter from our son who lives with his grandmother in Morgantown, West Virginia. She was coming back Sunday morning, she said, but instead we heard of her death."

The other person referred to was Mrs. Gladys Parks, lady assistant to the doctor as a sign in front of the doctor's office reads.

Asked whether he had had trouble with his wife, the doctor said he would prefer not to answer the question as anything said might tend to reflect upon his dead wife. He said his wife came here and worked in an office. She, like himself, was a chiropractor, he said. He said he came here in December and that his wife came later.

A complaint filed by Mrs. Lloyd in county court May 22 charged Dr. Lloyd as living intimately with Mrs. Parks.

Another complaint, described as The State of Texas vs. Mrs. Parks, was filed May 1, alleging that Mrs. Parks "with a rock did strike, wound and bruise and did inflict upon Mrs. Lloyd serious bodily injury." The charge was aggravated assault, and named a date of "on or about April 30."

The case was to be tried this afternoon in county court, and probably will be heard at that time.

GANDHI AIDES HAVE TROUBLE KEEPING RULES

BOMBAY, July 28. (UP)—A follower of Gandhi, imprisoned nationalist leader of India, has his troubles.

It involves more than wearing a scowl and shouting Gandhist loyalty pledges. Firstly, one must wear khaddar, hand-woven Indian cotton cloth, and spend an hour each day at the takli a miniature spinning wheel.

Although Gandhi's campaign of civil disobedience was inaugurated with attacks upon the salt laws which he feels are a monopoly, throughout news dispatches dealing with the riots that followed Mahatma's march to the sea, there appeared constantly references to a boycott of foreign cloth and spirits.

After reviving the hand-woven industry to aid people in impoverished villages, Gandhi adopted khaddar as an emblem of his home rule campaign.

There is this difficulty, however, reports indicating the demand for khaddar exceeds the supply and it is recalled before he was imprisoned Gandhi warned his women adherents that unless they hastened to weave a large quantity, they were faced with the necessity of appearing without clothing.

The cotton of which khaddar is made grows on vast plains and mountain and assist comprising entire villages assist in picking it.

The women in soft-colored, bright saris present an interesting contrast to the negro mammy and her pickaninny of America's cotton plantations of the south, where a red kerchief and an old mother Hubbard, a pig, ragged, mingle about the fluffy cotton bolls.

Here the thread is spun on a very primitive spindle and both men and women spin continuously while congregated near the village wells. Afterward, the thread is woven on looms and lodged often in thatched, mud-walled huts.

Many years ago, Marco Polo referred to the hand-woven cottons of the Indians as "the best and most delicate buckrams" adding "in sooth they look like spiders' webs. No king or queen in the world but might be glad to wear them."

Now, however, the materials are of a coarser texture and the cottons known to Marco Polo, even natives admit, are "a lost art now."

EVOLUTION WORK STILL GOING ON AT U. OF TEXAS

AUSTIN, Tex., (UP)—Maybe you have watched the swarms of tiny flies swiftly moving about or settling on the broken end of a banana. If so, you have been observing the busy little creatures that have helped solve in part at least, one of nature's long-sought secrets.

They are brown, and to the naked eye seem much like tiny reproductions of the ordinary winged house fly. Even without a microscope they show an easily distinguished red eye. Under the magnifying glass they reveal bristly backs, antennae and many features, not otherwise distinguishable. Their sex can be distinguished. The male is somewhat smaller and has darker markings than the female. A tiny comb made of black bristles on each foreleg of the male is another distinguishing sex mark.

Because they are so common, so easily observed though so small and because of the rapid rate at which they reproduce (a pair will produce 100 offspring in a few weeks), they were chosen by Dr. H. J. Muller of the Department of Zoology of the University of Texas here for a series of astonishing experiments.

So remarkable were the results that the report of the experiments brought him the $1,000 award which the American Society for the Advancement of Science makes annually to a single scientist for some outstanding contribution. The report, too, was hailed as the high spot of the International Genetics Congress at Berlin in 1927.

His discovery was that by the use of X-rays, the changes in living species which normally take place over a great span of years, can be speeded up at least 15,000 per cent. Scientists had for ages been trying to discover what makes changes—evolution, if you please. Then along came the University of Texas professor with his X-ray tests. Let him tell you what happened:

"To the tolling Pilgrim, after plodding through the lone and weary deserts of chancelness, here indeed was the Promised Land of mutations. All types of mutations, large and small, ugly and beautiful, burst upon the gaze. Flies with bulging eyes, or with flat or dented eyes; flies with white, purple, yellow or brown eyes (no tests have yet changed the naturally red eye of the fruit fly to blue or green); flies with curly hair, with ruffled

NANKING SURGES AHEAD DESPITE REBEL MENACE

Editors Note: Miles W. Vaughn, Far East manager for the United Press, has just completed a two months' trip in China which took him to Shanghai, Nanking, Shantung Province, Tientsin, Peiping, Dairen, Mukden and Harbin. Following is the first of a series of articles on his impressions of that war-torn country.

By MILES W. VAUGHN United Press Staff Correspondent

SHANGHAI, by mail, (UP)—The National Government of the Republic of China in Nanking is carrying on with its plans for unification of the country despite the fact it is threatened with the most serious military movement that has confronted it since Chiang Kai-shek's victorious armies swept northward and captured Peiping in the spring of 1928.

This fact stands out in any disinterested survey of the situation in the lower Yangtze Valley today. Confronted with a coalition of powerful militarists headed by Marshal Yen Shi-shan, long known as the "modest governor of the Province of Shansi," and Feng Yushiang, some time "Christian General," and once Nanking's minister of war, the Central Government, as the Kuomintang group is called, has kept vigorously to the program it announced when it was formed.

That the government faces a most serious situation, however, not even its most ardent supporters can deny. Nanking is threatened on many fronts. The armies of Yen Shi-shan and Feng Yushiang and the rabble of lesser generals who have flocked to their standards already have won vic-

Houston Oil Well Endangering Area

REFUGIO, July 28. (AP)—Shooting spectacular dangerous flames high, the Houston Oil company No. 1 Strauch gas well continued today to endanger the community nearby. It is unknown how the well was ignited Saturday night.

Three homes have already been destroyed. Fire fighters are digging a big pit nearby and water lines will be run into it when completed. The pit will be filled with water, then turned into the well crater in an attempt to extinguish the blaze.

Two Murdered in Detroit Robberies

DETROIT, July 28. (AP)—Two were killed and one seriously shot in robberies here today.

Evert Wuckia, 30, patrolman, was seriously wounded and a robber killed in a gun fight following the robbery of a grocery store of $25. The robber, tentatively identified as Martin Dekoven, opened fire when he cornered in an alley.

Owen Pauchman, oil station attendant, was beaten to death with a heavy chain by a robber who held him up today.

THE GLAMOUR OF A SHIP

The job of reconditioning the old frigate Constitution is almost complete. Photographs showing the ship's hull afloat, with the lower masts all stepped, have been printed in the newspapers; before long she will be ready to go to sea, and that triumphal tour of inland and coastal waters will probably get under way.

The Constitution will be worth looking at. No American naval vessel holds anything like her place in public esteem. But her tour will bring some of us, at least, up against a peculiar little problem in comparative values.

During the last few years most people have made a genuine effort to get away from the old attitude toward war. Dozens of books have been printed to prove that war is not glamorous and romantic, as we used to suppose, but filthy and cruel and senseless. We have told ourselves that only by adopting this attitude can we ensure the continuance of world peace.

But here we have the Constitution—glamorous and romantic, if any ship ever was. The mere sight of this old square-rigger, with her white gun ports, her distended sails and her long, graceful hull cutting through the blue water is enough to stir warlike emotions in the heart of the most confirmed war-hater on earth.

Furthermore, the Constitution has a past that is worth remembering. The men who sailed on her, upwards of a century ago, did some fine and gallant things. The ship was not unimportant in the development of this country. She deserves the homage we give her.

What is the answer then? On the one hand we have this new-born determination not to wrap her in a false glamour; on the other, we have war's glamour incarnate. The Constitution's cruise will bring the old attitude and the new face to face. Which way shall we jump?

Probably the answer is that we don't need to jump either way. The conditions that attended the building of the Constitution, for one thing, are gone forever. World civilization has changed. Actions that were necessary then are not necessary now.

In addition, we might remind ourselves that the Constitution is not a modern warship. She may be romantic and picturesque—but wars aren't fought that way now. The modern sailor, instead of standing by the breech of a carronade and cheering as the enemy comes alongside, is more apt to be crouched in the bowels of a submarine, working at a mechanic's trade to deal out death to a ship that he can never see. Whatever war may have been in 1812, it is something else again in 1930.

We can honor the Constitution as a relic, but that does not commit us to the belief that war is either as necessary or as colorful now as it used to be.

AN OLD LAW IS REPEALED

The town council of Lowestoft, England, discovered the other day that their town had a law forbidding any male at a public bathing beach from coming within 100 yards of any female bather.

This law had been passed in 1854, in response to some bit of early-Victorian prudery. After enjoying a good laugh, the city fathers repealed it, and co-educational bathing parties at Lowestoft are now just as legal as they are anywhere else.

All of this, of course, is very amusing; but suppose that law had been discovered on the statute books of some American town. Would the city dads have had the courage to repeal it? Or would they have decided that to do so might conceivably offend some organized minority of the easily-shocked? Isn't it quite possible that they would simply have let the law remain a law, tipping off everybody, meanwhile, that no one needed to pay any attention to it?

At any rate, that's the way we do with most of our out-moded laws.

Hindenburg, Germany's Hero in War and Peace

Editor's Note: When the war broke out von Hindenburg was on his estate in the classification of a supernumerary soldier. He had been so tactless as to "bottle" up the army of his emperor in military maneuvers just before the war, and lost favor as a result of exposing the military failure of the German high command.

The German army went on its famous "right wheel" movement through Belgium, seeking to roll the French back on Sedan as it had done in the Franco-Prussian war and leaving a thin screen of troops in East Prussia to ward off any invasion the Russians might launch. But the Russians moved faster than they had been expected to. By the middle of August they were overrunning East Prussia, and Cossack outriders were harrying villages and towns far over the border. To the mass of Germans, this was a much more important arena than France. Excitement ran high.

Then came Hindenburg's orders. He was sent to East Prussia to command the German armies there, and was given Eric Ludendorff as his chief of staff. Hindenburg went to the scene, studied the maps—and proceeded to prove that his studies as "Old Man of the Lakes" were justified. There followed the most striking campaign of the World War. Within a fortnight the Russians had been hurled back over the borders. One army, led by Samsonoff, was entirely destroyed, and Samsonoff committed suicide. The other, led by Rennenkampf, barely got back to Russia safely. Hindenburg's soldiers inflicted on the Russians losses in killed, wounded and prisoners greater than their own total numbers engaged.

Hindenburg became a popular idol overnight. From one end of Germany to the other he was hailed as the savior of East Prussia. When he followed this achievement, in the remainder of 1914 and all of 1915, by taking charge of the entire eastern front, sweeping the Russians out of Galicia and driving them far back into the interior, inflicting tremendous losses on them and at times utterly demoralizing them, popular adulation of him knew no bounds.

In August of 1916 the Kaiser removed Falkenhayn as chief of staff for the German army. All Germany demanded that Hindenburg, hero of the Masurian Lakes, be given the post, and the Kaiser complied. From that date to the armistice Hindenburg was in charge of the German army, with Ludendorff at his right-hand man.

CRITICS SAY HE FAILED IN CRISIS It was Hindenburg who planned the mighty "Hindenburg line" in France—officially known in the German army as the Siegfried line—which the Allies tried so long and so unsuccessfully to pierce. In the spring of 1923 he and Ludendorff made their final effort to break through and win the war before America's fresh troops could weight the scale—made their final effort, and failed. By mid-summer Hindenburg knew that the war was lost.

It was in this year, according to Hindenburg's critics, that his devotion to his Kaiser played him false. One influential element in Germany was calling for a peace that would include no territorial gains. Another, including the Junker class, and the Kaiser wanted to grab all the conquered territory they could. If Hindenburg had cast his lot with the former class, it is said, he could have carried the day—and Germany would have been able to make a much more advantageous peace. But Hindenburg could not go against his Kaiser. He sided with the Junkers, Germany was internally divided, dissent grew—and the seeds of the revolution were sown.

Just before the armistice the revolution came. Kaiser Wilhelm II fled over the border to Holland. Ludendorff lit out for Sweden. Only Hindenburg stuck to his post. It was he who helped get the defeated German army back home in an orderly fashion. Then he retired to Hanover again, believing his career finished.

But it was not. Germany had storm years ahead. Ludendorff, hating the new republic got mixed up in counter-revolutionary plots in Bavaria, saw his uprising fizzle out dismally, and lost what little public confidence was left him. Hindenburg stayed aloof. His Kaiser, whom he had sworn to serve, had gone; but the Fatherland remained, and he could not lift a finger against the government.

ELECTED PRESIDENT BY BIG VOTE In 1922 he came into the public eye briefly. Allied orators were demanding that the Kaiser be surrendered and tried for "international crimes." Hindenburg wrote to Marshall Foch, offering to surrender his own person in place of Wilhelm's. Then he dropped out of sight again—to remain in obscurity until 1925.

In that year President Ebert died, and Germany was left on the edge of chaos. An election was held, but no candidate got a clear majority. A new election was necessary, with monarchists, democrats, communists and half a dozen minor parties all submitting their candidates. The monarchist-conservative crowd urged Hindenburg to be their candidate. Twice he refused. At last old Admiral von Tirpitz prevailed on him. He entered the lists.

The monarchists were jubilant. Hindenburg's mighty name was still powerful. His election was very probable. And, they reasoned, once elected, Hindenburg would be just a stepping stone for the restoration of the monarchy. His election would mean the return of the Kaiser. The election was held, and Hindenburg won. When he went to Berlin, in May of 1926, to be inaugurated, the city was cold to him. Only the royalists flocked in the streets to cheer. When he entered the Reichstag to take the oath of office, the Communist members walked out in a body. Unperturbed, Hindenburg took the oath, swearing to uphold the German constitution. In no time at all, all of Germany realized that when he had sworn to uphold the constitution he had meant exactly what he said. The monarchists discovered that their dreams of a restored monarchy were in vain. Hindenburg, a Junker of the Junkers, a devout subject of the Hohenzollerns, was as good a republican as the whole nation contained. He did not hesitate to call for a Socialist leader and make him premier. He supported Stresemann in the Locarno treaty. He upheld the republic at every turn, and fought to regain peace and prosperity for Germany.

The result was a profound revision of feeling. The monarchists lost their love for him, but the republicans idolized him more than ever before. Two years ago, when he celebrated his 80th birthday, Berlin was all flags for the occasion, and ardent republicans swore that they would consider Hindenburg's death or retirement a genuine calamity.

So Paul von Hindenburg, a Prussian Junker who had discipline and duty as his twin guiding stars, saved the republic, and found that the greatest victory of his life came long after the war ended.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

We May Be a Smart People, but We Mail 25,000,000 Letters Every Year That Lack the Correct Address—and a Whole Lot of Them Contain Money, Too.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The American level of intelligence and efficiency has doubtless risen to a high point, but 200 employees of the postal service are still kept working all year around because the American public annually sends nearly 25,000,000 pieces of undeliverable mail.

At the Washington office where dead letters and parcel post are sent, one of five sectional receiving offices, they get about 200 envelopes a day which are absolutely blank, with no address and no identification of the sender. This is the most valuable class of dead mail and contains a high proportion of checks, drafts, money orders and other valuable paper. A few months ago one such envelope was found to contain a check for $165,000 which a Canadian railroad was trying to send to a lumber company in Mississippi. By the time the error had been straightened out a couple of thousand dollars in interest was involved.

Most of 'Em Get There More than 99 per cent of checks, drafts and money orders received by the dead letter division, however, are restored to the senders.

In a fiscal year now ending, nearly 25,000,000 pieces of dead mail will have been received. Last year it was more than 23,000,000 and 19,000,000 were destroyed because there was nothing inside or outside with which the postoffice could find who sent them or who was supposed to get them.

Envelopes are found to contain all sorts of things—legal papers of all kinds, photographs, kid gloves, silk stockings, bottled medicine, fountain pens, love powder, locks of hair with or without ribbon and things like that and unlike that.

A $10,000 bond was found recently in a misaddressed letter. It turned out to be part of the loot in a robbery. Once a series of envelopes came in containing lots of hundred-dollar bills totaling several thousand.

The total value of enclosures found in dead mail last year was $5,425,000. The government's revenue was only $250,000, however. It received $81,000 in auctioning dead parcel post, $48,000 in money actually taken from letters, $32,000 in postage stamps taken from letters and $80,000 in fees it gets for dead letter deliveries. Three cents is charged for return or delivery of dead letters which can be brought to life again after envelopes are opened.

Letters are fed into opening machines which can handle 50,000 a day and are then examined by selectors who try to find a "good address." Everything more valuable than postage stamps of five cents or less is kept for a year if it can't be delivered, according to Acting Superintendent Burton G. Cowles of the department's division of dead letters and dead parcel post.

Dead parcel post turns a large section of the Washington post office building into what appears to be a country store. Cowles remembers once when they had a lot of trouble with a live tarantula which someone was sending without a correct address. Last year some 432,000 parcels were collected because postoffices couldn't deliver them.

The collection now on hand here includes shoes, tires, musical instruments, books, lingerie, movie robbery. Once a series of envelopes came in containing lots of hundred-dollar bills totaling several thousand. The envelopes were addressed to a girl in a middle-western city who had left town after receiving three of them and the postal authorities have an idea her sweetie had staged a profitable holdup. The money will go into the treasury if some lawful owner isn't located.

In those days a full stomach was something to be cherished and it took no coercion on the part of our parents to put it there.

Usually there was a rebellion in the brewing when we failed to get at least one decent meal a day.

SMALL things don't look so big now after the election Saturday. Looks like some of us are going to have to take STERLING silver even if we can't afford it.

One thing I like about a campaign is a clean fight. That's why I'll vote for a dishwasher every time.

film, oil stoves, copper stills cheap jewelry, milk cans, stuffed birds and animals and ever so many other things which will be auctioned off eventually. Undeliverable parcel post becomes erratic dead after two months unless it has been sent insured or C. O. D.

Among the things taken out of dead parcels which won't be auctioned off are dozens of revolvers, numerous blackjacks, brass knuckles, moonshine whiskey in cans, burglar keys, books hollowed out to contain narcotics and a pretty wooden Christmas box containing a gun attached to the latch which, if it hadn't exploded in a post office, doubtless would have killed the recipient, as the sender intended.

SPANK 'EM, SAID A NOTED PHYSICIAN

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., JULY 23.—Some people believe that kind words will influence their children more than will the rod. But Dr. Garry Cleveland Myers, noted physician, believes that "spanking the baby will prevent a crime wave."

"One of the causes of increasing crime is the warped interpretation of modern psychology in relation to child guidance," the doctor avers. "The average person thinks a child psychologist is one who with some sort of magic wisdom believes in letting children do as they please. Many parents with intelligence above the average think it is not proper to restrain children; they believe in waiting until they are old enough to reason before trying to cultivate self-restraint."

The simplest and best way to enforce discipline in a child is the old-fashioned way of spanking, the doctor believes.

Base Metals With Trick Names Often Used for Mounting Novelty Silver

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN

Inexpensive materials, such as rhinestones, imitation pearls, semi-precious stones, enamel, and tortoise are used in novelty jewelry.

Rhinestones are a fine, hard glass mirrored on the back with a substance that looks like tinfoil to reflect the light. Good rhinestone jewelry is always set in sterling silver. The lower-priced settings are made of tin or zinc, with a little silver in them, and bear such misleading names as "platinoid" and "platinon."

Imitation pearl beads are roughly divided into the wax-filled and the so-called indestructible pearls. The latter will break, but not easily; for they are made of solid glass with a silver coating. Many of the fine-grade pearls of this kind may be washed, and can be used for years.

Semi-precious stones used for novelty jewelry are real gems, but the quantities in which they are found lessen their value. The most popular are jade, lapis lazuli, crystal, amber, onyx, garnet, amethyst, topaz, turquoise, carnelian, chrysoptase and marcasite.

Tortoise is used particularly in hair ornaments and cigaret cases. The test for distinguishing real from imitation tortoise shell is to rub the article with a piece of cloth until it becomes warm; if the warmth brings out an odor of camphor or celluloid it is imitation shell.

Last, but far from least, in the "Boots" paper doll cut-out wardrobe is this very formal evening dress. And it will look even finer, if you color every one of them with crayons. In the meantime, be sure and look at the dresses "Boots" will wear every day in the "Boots and Her Buddies" comic strip. PROVEN SAFETY and TROUBLE FREE MILEAGE for YOU

Prices Reduced Sensational reductions. New Firestone tires cost less now than ever before. Buy now and save money.

IF A MAN drove a car to victory at 100 miles per hour in an international 500-mile race, would you say he could drive safely at 50 miles per hour on the road?

And if a certain make of tire were used on 35 out of 38 cars in that race, including all the winners, and finished without a single tire failure, would you say it was safe at 50, 60, 70 or more miles per hour on the road?

That is the record of the new High-Speed Firestone Heavy Duty Balloons. The only difference between these tires in our stock and those used in the race is in the tread. Ours are made with a deep, tough non-skid tread while those in the race were made with a stiff, smooth tread to permit "drift" or skidding on the turns.

TRADE IN NOW

Put a set of Firestone High-Speed Heavy Duty Balloons on your car and stop wondering about tire safety and trouble-free mileage. We will make full allowance for the unused mileage in your present tires and apply it on the purchase price.

BUSHERS TAKE FIRST PLACE ON WIN; LENORAH BEATS OILERS

STANTON PUTS ODESSA DOWN; HOLDS TIGHT TO FIRST PLACE AS RESULT; BUSHERS AND OILERS PLAY SUNDAY

Oilers See Chances Fade When Boys Make Errors

Errors and several decisions of the umpire on balls that seemed to travel along the prescribed route around the platter played more than negligible part in the failure of the Oilers to beat Lenorah Sunday at Lenorah, Oilers fans here say.

The score was 8-7.

Through the loss the Oilers were catapulted out of a tie with the Bushers for second place and went into less favor in the speculation that they might beat the Bush club here Sunday, in the last game of the first half schedule.

Lenorah started things off with a couple of runs in the first and one in the second inning, but the Oilers demonstrated strength in scoring six in the second, Lenorah counted one in the sixth and two each in the eighth and ninth innings. The Oilers scored only one other time, in the fifth frame. The Oilers outdid their rivals 9-6, but erred considerably, allowing seven while Lenorah made only two bobbles.

Oiler runs were deserved, that much is certain. Six hits counted for six runs in the revival frame, among them doubles by Cooke and Pope. This made the going better for pitcher Russell for a time, but errors proved the club's undoing.

Pollock, terrible batsman for the Lenorah club, was given a look-see at some of Rowden's slants in the eighth, after the Lenorah boys had come within one tally of evening the count. He was whiffed by the Midland pitcher's corkscrew curves. This batter had hitherto delivered in eight out of 11 trips to the plate, one of which went for a homer with the bases loaded, as the saddened Bushers were able to realize a few days ago.

The ninth gave up the decision, a walk, two errors and a single putting the Lenorah club out front.

Cook collected a double and two singles in four trips to the plate. Robinson of the Oilers and Moffett of Lenorah each batted 500.

Rowden struck out 11 men, giving up five hits and six free passages. Russell struck out three, allowed four walks and nine hits.

Bushers Make a Big Inning Account For Enough

Going into the sixth inning on the trailing edge of a 10-7 verdict, the Bushers got their heavy artillery trained on the walls of Cowden park and pounded out nine hits that went for 13 runs. This, with a single score that came in the seventh, was enough to pad the Pleasant Valley nine and, the Oilers losing to Lenorah, gave the Bushknackers clear claim to second place in the Tri-County league.

As the dope read last week, it was destined that something be done at once if the Bushers and Oilers were to fight next Sunday for a break of the second place deadlock.

But the Oilers couldn't last the route, falling before the slants of Russell, 8-7.

The league leading Stantonites held tight to their percentage, walloping Odessa. The Valley View-Penwell game was not heard from, counting little in the percentages of the league.

By yesterday's showing, the Bushers look much stronger than the Oilers. The two Midland clubs meet here Sunday for the last game of the first half. With Stanton facing the hard hitting Lenorah line on that day, there is more than a big possibility that the Stanton and Bush club may tie for the first half, it being conceded that the chances for Lenorah beating Stanton are as good as those of the Bushers trimming the Oilers.

Midland is chock-full of the best people in the world. Every man and woman in Midland and Midland county who knew me must have voted for me as well as many of those who did not know me, despite the fact that I have held the office since I was 21 years old; and you know that I am no spring chicken. Talk about it, folks, I didn't know I had so many friends. Incidentally, Bucy tore down my "cob house"; but that place in the hearts of the people no war hero, by any sunning and strategy, could take. Remember this; my days of usefulness and service have just begun. My experience and knowledge of the work in which I have spent my life are yours and also recollect county lines do not stop me. My duties and field of action are co-extensive with the state, being one of the first to receive a state surveyor's license. Accept the assurance of my high esteem and affectionate attachment, of one who with much pleasure subscribes himself your obedient servant. 121-1p

ROBERT E. ESTES.

As it will take some time for me to see each friend personally, I am adopting this means to say that I am very grateful for the confidence you have placed in me by electing me to the office of county and district clerk. Had it not been for your loyal support, my race could not have been so successful. It shall be my desire to serve you when I am inducted into office in such a way that you shall not be disappointed. SUSIE GRAVES NOBLE. 121-1p

I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my sincere appreciation to my many friends for their favors during my recent race for county and district clerk, and ask your continued friendship. J. W. (Bill) ARNETT. 121-12

I sincerely appreciate the outcome of the election and the kind efforts of my many good friends who worked so effectively in behalf of my candidacy for district attorney. I shall strive at all times to increase the effectiveness of my office and shall continue to give it the best of my ability and attention. 121-12

W. R. SMITH, JR.

I wish to thank the many voters who expressed their desire to elect me sheriff. My race was clean from start to finish, having the utmost respect for my opponent who was elected. I am still eager to co-operate with authorities for strict enforcement of the law for a cleaner, bigger and better Midland. W. T. BLAKEWAY. 121-1p

BASEBALL PLAYERS NOW FOOTBALL FANS; GREAT PLAYERS ENLISTED IN BOTH SPORTS; SOME IN TEXAS LEAGUE

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.

DALLAS, July 28. (AP)—There was a time, some years ago, when the football fan and the baseball bug were considered as a race apart.

But now, look around at any sport gathering and you will see a co-mingling of ever branch of the genus fan.

Follows like Ziggy Sears, Hap Morse and Dusty Boggess have been more or less responsible for the change.

of the dribble and the drop kick. Morse, veteran Dallas infielder, is one of the most popular cage officials in the state, constantly in demand.

The presence of an unusual number of former college gridiron heroes in the Texas League also has done much to draw the pigskin fans to the parks.

When Bettencourt comes to bat, the peanut muncher in the next chair is far more likely to inform you that Larry was an All-American Center at St. Mary's a few years ago than that he is the present home run king of the Texas League.

And when the burly Eckhardt saunters to the plate, we hear this: "Gee, I'd like to see that guy run another end. There'll never be another like him. Did you see what he did to Vanderbilt that day?"

And of the Eckhardt admirer goes, explaining in great detail how the former Longhorn used to batter the hearts out of strong men on the gridiron, but attaching only small importance to the fact that Oscar has been clouting Texas League pitching at a 400 clip all season.

Joel Hunt, a baseball star in his own right, comes in for the same line of reminiscing.

He is the Texas League's greatest base thief and one of its ten leading hitters, but to the football fan he will always represent the last word in speed and dexterity on the gridiron.

Yeh, he's not the greatest baseball player in the world—but did you ever see that boy play football? In such a case the best course is to answer quickly that you have, unless you desire a detailed history of Joel's football career.

Yep, the grandstand is filled with football nuts these days, and next fall, when the biting breezes blow, you will find the same clamor-voiced rooters camped on a cold deck, so went to their shacks, returned with old Betsy, and challenged the others to combat.

Boy Acts As Human Well Fishing Tool

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex., July 28. (UP)—Nerve beyond the usual attribute to a 12-year-old lad was required for the hazardous feat of descending 235 feet into the earth to fish for an oil well bit—a task Johnny Dickson executed without aid.

His father, J. L. Dickson, driller of the McClain No. 1 in the Starr county wildcat field, lost the bit. The youngster volunteered to go down and hook a line on it. He put a foot in the loop of a cat line and was dropped out of sight in the 16-inch hole. The well had not been cased, and danger of a cave-in was imminent.

Johnny came up smiling, and drilling was resumed shortly thereafter.

Van Horn Has New And Modern Hotel

El Capitan, a beautiful, commodious and thoroughly modern hotel, has just been completed and opened to the public at Van Horn, gateway to Carlsbad cavern.

It is a fire-proof structure, built of concrete, and is a Pueblo type architecture.

It has a very attractive ladies lounge; an attractive lobby, a patio; observation balconies; a first-class restaurant, and numerous other features.

All rooms are outside; have electric fans, tub or shower bath, toilet—lavatories; elegant beds and furniture equal to that found in any city hotel, and patrons can now be as comfortable at Van Horn as at any point on the railroad.

Rates are very reasonable. The hotel is just two blocks southeast of the Van Horn depot.

PECOS HAS CANNONADE

The city editor of The Pecos Enterprise enjoys writing shooting "scrapes," as may be seen from the following:

The Brogado community enjoyed a little excitement last Sunday evening when some Mexicans with murderous intent opened up on others with a 30-some odd. When the smoke cleared Francisco Hernandez had a bullet hole in the calf of his leg.

From reports the trouble started near the Red Wing hall, induced by an over-indulgence in joy water. It started as a fist fight, in which several descendants of Montezuma battled for supremacy, some being un-sportsmanlike enough to use "knocks." Thomas and Juan Carrillo figured they were dead from a cold deck, so went to their shacks, returned with old Betsy, and challenged the others to combat.

Getting no results they opened fire on a car in which Hernandez and a companion were sitting, demonstrating their poor marksmanship by scoring but the one hit.

Surrendering, they were brought to the city jail.

How was it done? Dr. Muller's opinion is that the X-rays released electrons (a smaller division than an atom). These electrons "running at large" or "running wild" damaged or changed the genes, which are a component part of all reproductive life.

And now for the thunder of the fundamentalists. If the changes produced thus artificially coincide, as the tests indicate they do, with the changes wrought over a span of time naturally, have not all changes been accidental?

Meantime, Prof. Muller is continuing his experiments with new instruments and under differing conditions.

"If we have had a billion years of evolution behind us, and have advanced from something like an ameba to something like a man, then, in the many million years which are still in store for our world, why may we not be able to make a further great advance, perhaps far greater even than this, because under our own increasingly intelligent guidance?" asks Mr. Muller.

Murder--

The net of evidence is thought to be gathering closely. A Pecos man told of a man and woman who stopped at his place about 4:30 Sunday morning for something to eat. The man stayed in his car while the food was being prepared and the woman was the only one to talk with the proprietor. The two quickly bolted their food and left, the woman paying, according to Pecos officers.

The woman had two letters on her person when found. These were from a Big Spring man and evidently discussed a meeting to be in Midland, according to Dr. Lloyd. He said his wife had registered at a Midland hotel under the name of Mrs. Jean Lloyd when she came here.

Mrs. Parks declined to give any particulars about herself, saying in answer to a question about her former address and time in Midland: "I've been here quite a time."

Dr. Lloyd moved to Midland from St. Louis he said. He is a graduate of University school of chiro-practice, Pittsburg, class of '17.
