HEAT WAVE CLAIMS TWO SCORE LIVES IN CENTRAL STATES

DAMAGE TO CROPS IS REPORTED

Temperatures Reach 110 Mark Over Kentucky

CHICAGO, July 11. (AP)—The worst heat wave of the decade covered the central states today, claiming two score lives.

Temperatures ran generally over the 100-degree calibration.

Southern heat brought drought to Georgia, and crop damage to Kentucky.

Hickman, Ky., reported temperature of 110, Stuttgart, Ark., 108 1-2, Emporia, Kan., and Columbus, Miss., 108.

Hallstorms destroyed crops in Cumberland county, N. C.

Two children were killed and a girl blinded by lightning near Dushon, La.

Two negroes were killed and six injured as lightning struck dynamite at Lewisburg, Tenn.

"Whispering" Henry May Entertain Here

"Whispering" Henry Ansley will probably be one of the speakers here on Political Bargain day for Clint C. Small, candidate for governor.

Ansley is known to every cowboy and cattleman in Texas. He has a voice like a fog horn, is a humorist, cowboy philosopher and is popular with everybody who knows him.

He has been with the Amarillo Daily News for years, having started as a cub reporter under the Midland City Editor of the Daily News. Ansley is the son of a cattleman and was for years himself a cow buyer. He is now on the El Paso Times as a special writer.

People who hear "Whispering Henry" Thursday will be entertained.

Odessa Man Favored To Win Press Trophy

Ralph Shuffler of Odessa, newspaper publisher and editor, will be the favorite to win permanent possession of the Bill Parker cup for golfing at the West Texas Press association.

Shuffler has won during the past two years and has informed the rest of the scribes he is in shape for repeating this time.

The game comes up Saturday afternoon.

Paul T. Vickers and R. C. Hankins were at Abilene today from Midland. Vickers will speak.

Junior Flyer May Pass Over Midland

Ralph B. Ballman, 16, of Cincinnati will try to break the junior flying record held by Frank Goldsborough, and is expected to pass through Midland this week.

He has not definitely announced his course but young Goldsborough passed this way and, considering the better flying condition along the Middle-South Atlantic route he is thought to be headed this way.

The flyer will count his total elapsed time in the air, and will not try for a continuous dash across country.

Hoover Retains Secret Documents

WASHINGTON, July 11. (AP)—President Hoover today refused the senate's request for secret documents preceding the London naval treaty, holding that it is incompatible with public interest.

Mexican Prefers Death to Amputation of Leg; Is Dead

EL PASO, July 11. (AP)—Rather than consent to amputation of his leg, Ignacio Garcia, 23, Juarez, died today in a hospital here.

He is reported to have been shot when rum runners battled border patrolmen Tuesday. He was taken to a hospital where he steadfastly refused to submit to an operation when he was told this would save his life.

Hanging Is Too Good; Has Hope For Parole

CHICAGO, July 11. (UP)—Henry Morris, considered "too mean to hang" by the jury which convicted him for murder 19 years ago, may be paroled from Joliet prison soon, states officials indicated today.

"Hanging is too good for him," reported the jury which found him guilty of murdering Mrs. Stella Dumas, for whose love he had abandoned his wife.

The jury requested that Morris never be paroled. He was convicted of killing Stella after she told him she had fallen in love with another man.

International complications too, at first feared, were allayed today with the announcement that no complaint is contemplated.

Patrolmen claimed Juarez racketeers shot Garcia, who claimed that American officers fired while he was on Mexican soil.

Convicted on evidence produced by a thumb-print on the window of a sedan in which the robbers escaped, the case has been one of the most interesting in history. Jake Fleagle, fourth member of the robber gang, is still at large. Two fellow-murderers and robbers, Howard L. Royston and George J. Absher, are scheduled for execution soon.

BLACK SUCCUMBS TO ATTACK OF BLOOD POISON

J. R. Black, who has been suffering for several days from blood poisoning in his foot, passed away at 1:20 this afternoon, it was learned at press time.

Reports that the trouble started from a bite by a rat were corrected as being erroneous by the attending physician this morning.

Black has been engaged in the electrical business here for four years, coming to Midland from Denton. Funeral arrangements had not been announced at press time.

Carlsbad Highway Given Designation

(Special to Reporter-Telegram) LOVINGTON, N. M., July 11.—The delegation from Lovington to the quarterly meeting of the Carlsbad Highway association at Oklahoma City July 9 returned here Thursday.

The highway has just received federal designation from Maysville, Ky., to El Paso as No. 62. This highway passes through Lovington, the delegation from this city being the largest to attend the meeting and was cheered heartily for its enterprise.

Dr. Hofmeister will speak tonight on "The Second Coming of Christ."

Other Cities Protest Economic Spread

Midland cattlemen are finding present market prices a repercussion on demand. Texas cities are protesting this.

Elliott Cowden of this city, for instance, shipped a car of fat cows to Fort Worth and received $4.02 a hundred for them, on July 9 of this month. A year ago, on July 8, he received about three times this amount for the same class of stuff.

But beef prices in Midland and in other Texas cities remain the same, as do other commodities bought by the consumer. The producer is holding the proverbial "bag," it is being charged in appeals to the Federal Farm board.

The consumer is being paid lower wages. When he has to buy food at the same price paid for it during periods of higher wages, it is natural that he buys less food, or less expensive foodstuffs.

This, in turn, lowers demand, which brings even lower prices on the market to the producer.

The City of Midland has taken official action, along with other cities in this regard, not as regards meat solely, but as regards the economic spread in production and marketing of most commodities, and has appealed to the farm board for relief.

The following news release shows what El Paso has done relative to the marketing of meat:

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The Federal Farm board has received an appeal from El Paso to investigate why, in view of the drop in the wholesale price of meats, retail prices in El Paso remain at the high level. The farm board is not empowered to make such an investigation, but its members believe that the wholesale price reductions should be reflected in what the consumer pays for meats.

The appeal was made in a telegram addressed to C. B. Denman, member of the board for live stock, from W. A. Adams, president of the El Paso Cattlemen's association, which explained that retail meat prices remain approximately that of a year ago, while wholesale prices show a substantial decline. President Adams believes that a comparable reduction in retail prices would stimulate consumption sufficient to take up the surplus.

Mr. Denman pointed out that the reduction of over $3 per 100 in fat cattle, and from $4 to $7 per 100 in

LAMAR BANK BANDIT TO GALLOWS

Thumbprint Used To Establish Guilt After Murders

CANON CITY, July 11. (AP)—Ralph Fleagle, gray haired bandit leader, was executed last night at the state penitentiary after Governor William H. Adams late Thursday had denied Fleagle a stay of execution.

Fleagle's execution marks the end of his trial, conviction and death sentence for the robbery of the First National bank of Lamar, Colorado in May 1927.

Convicted on evidence produced by a thumb-print on the window of a sedan in which the robbers escaped, the case has been one of the most interesting in history. Jake Fleagle, fourth member of the robber gang, is still at large. Two fellow-murderers and robbers, Howard L. Royston and George J. Absher, are scheduled for execution soon.

The Fleagles had built up a fortune through looting banks, their rendezvous being a ranch near Marienthal, Kansas.

In the robbery of the Lamar bank, the president, A. N. Parrish, was shot dead; also his son. Two tellers were kidnapped. One was dropped from the car, the other taken along and later killed. A doctor who was called to dress wounds of the robber gang was also slain.

Sheriff L. E. Alderman of Lamar continued the chase of the bandits until finally the thumb-print on an abandoned automobile gave the desired clew and the bandits were run down.

Clark Is Hanged

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 11. (UP)—With a smile on his lips, and maintaining his innocence to the last, Preston Rae Clark mounted the scaffold today and paid with his life for poisoning A. L. Bidwell, with whose wife Clark was enamored over two years ago.

The evangelist spoke in high terms of J. Frank Norris, of Fort Worth. He said, "We need more men like Dr. J. Frank Norris, who will stand for a clean church. When the deacons don't deak, put them out," shouted the evangelist. "Let the officials live clean christian lives or resign and get out. We need a revival within the official family of the church."

Dr. Hofmeister will speak tonight on "The Second Coming of Christ."

Smith Would Cop Additional Records

LOS ANGELES, July 11. (UP)—Plans for a solo flight from England to Australia, in an attempt to break the present record of 14 days, was revealed today by Charles Kingsford-Smith, who flew the world-circling monoplane Southern Cross to Los Angeles.

Mr. Denman stated that reductions had been made in the price paid the producers of beef, and that the wholesale price had dropped from 20 to 37 per cent.

Mr. Denman expressed the belief that some of the reduction in cattle prices could have been prevented if the producers were better organized for orderly marketing and would prevent the market surpluses recently evident. However, the board member explained the present condition reflected a temporary surplus of beef rather than a national surplus of beef cattle, and with consumers getting the full benefit of the lower price level the temporary surplus would disappear quickly and more stable prices return.

The board has been informed that cuts in retail prices have resulted in many centers, notably Chicago, where prices dropped from 10 to 20 per cent. Reductions had been reported in Texas, and there was no reason why they should not have been made.

Mr. Denman pointed out that the reduction of over $3 per 100 in fat cattle, and from $4 to $7 per 100 in wholesale meat prices, compared with a year ago, indicates that the retail price should be materially lowered in El Paso.

Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., or III, if you like, in his first picture. The young man appears to be less certain of himself than his famous father, but a picture on another page of this issue may give assurance to the fans. He will be the most pampered baby in America if the public is allowed to have its say—but it won't. Col. Lindbergh has signified in the few times he has discussed his son with newspapermen.

'UNLOADED' GUN GOES OFF; KILLS BEAUMONT GIRL

BEAUMONT, July 11. (UP)—High school chums of Mary Katharine McMinn are preparing to act as pall bearers at her funeral today after she killed herself with an "unloaded" gun.

Laughingly imitating scenes she saw in the movies, Mary put an old automatic pistol, unused for years, to her head and pulled the trigger.

The pistol fired and she fell. She died in a hospital an hour later without regaining consciousness. She was the only child of Mrs. J. McMinn, nurse on special duty at the hospital where her daughter was taken.

ARREST EXPECTED IN CONNECTION SWANGER DEATH

HUNTSVILLE, July 11. (UP)—Despite a coroner's verdict of accidental death, State Ranger Homer T. Glover said today he expected to make an arrest today in the death of Earl Swanger, candidate for district attorney killed Wednesday.

There were three stab wounds in the body.

Glover went to Trinity today to question a woman with Swanger's name who was killed and his body found in the wreckage of his automobile.

LIONS MEET WITH PRAIRIE LEE FOR DINNER THURSDAY

By HARRY L. HAIGHT

The Prairie Lee Rural Women's Club at their school house prepared a dinner last night that was attended by about 120 people from Midland made up of Lion club members and their guests.

The purpose of the dinner was to raise sufficient funds with which to send one delegate to the A. & M. Short Course for Rural Women. It is an extension course, given each summer and is made up of one woman delegate from each community in the state. This delegate will leave here the night of July 26th in order to begin work at the college on Monday, July 28. The dinner was under the general direction of Miss Genevieve Derryberry who was ably assisted by the ladies of the Rural Club.

The Lions furnished the entertainment which was made up of the inimitable Lions orchestra, a ten-minute talk on Lionism by Judge Klapproth, two songs by the miniature Al Jolson, young Fred Gordon Middleton, a delightful negro lullaby by Mrs. Marian Peters with Mrs. Holt Jewell at the piano, (Mrs. Jewell was the former "Lions' sweetheart"), two splendidly rendered duets by the youthful daughters of Alvin Hicks, Nelba Jean and Inabeff, speeches by Mayor Goodman, Marvin Ullmer, Homer W. Rowe, R. J. Moore and Clarence Schreiber.

Allen Tolbert was unable to sing on account of his music being lost. This meeting served a double purpose—it accomplished the matter of insuring the presence of a woman.

PRODUCER GETS LOW RETURNS

High Consumer Price Decried in Wire To Government

Difference in prices of what the producer receives and what the consumer pays is vigorously attacked by the City of Midland in telegrams sent Thursday night to the United States department of justice, President Herbert Hoover, Senators Tom Connally and Morris Sheppard, Governor Dan Moody, Attorney General Lee Robbitt, Secretary Arthur R. Hyde of the United States department of agriculture and Secretary Robert P. Lamont of the United States department of commerce.

A copy of the telegram sent by the head of the city government follows:

"All reports attribute ruinous prices to all producers to over supply but retail prices to consumers show very little reduction (stop) Crude oil greatly reduced yet all retailers maintain uniformly exorbitant price for gasoline (stop) Despite great wheat reduction bread maintains its highest retail price (stop) Deplorable reduction in cattle, hogs, and sheep shows little decline in the retail prices of meats (stop) Midland, Texas, protests the failure to give the public benefit of the extreme declines and urges immediate action by the government to equalize prices or at least to enforce reasonable fair, livable spread between producer and consumer."

May Start Movement

It was explained that the city had no hope of changing the economic situation through these telegrams alone, but the hope is held that this movement initiated in Midland and given publicity through the newspapers may cause similar action elsewhere in the United States and may induce newspapers to throw the white light of publicity on what the city believes is an unjust, unfair and confiscatory spread between what the producer receives for his raw products and what the consumer must pay for his finished products.

The criticism brought by the city takes no cognizance of local conditions, but is against conditions which prevail in New York, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Tampa, St. Louis, Dallas, Midland, Salt Creek and every city and hamlet in America.

Augmenting the charges made in the telegram, city officials point out: (See HIGH PRICES page 6)

TIRED FROM A VACATION

Scores of Midland people, hundreds of West Texans, thousands of Texans and millions of Americans are now engaged in the annual sport of vacation taking. A look at the Broadway of America through this city will convince one that the highways and resort places will be literally over run with tourists.

Under such conditions, many will return home after a vacation more tired than at the start. Instead of being fitter for a better year's work, they will have to rest up after the return home before feeling like getting back to the job.

The automobile has given us a marvelous new field in the realm of vacations. The pity is that we do not yet seem to have found out the best way to take advantage of it.

There seems to be something about an automobile that compels a man to be energetic and restless. The average family sets forth on a vacation tour dedicated to the proposition that they must cover at least 300 miles a day, if for no other reason than to prove that they and their car can do it; and there is no surer way to waste a vacation than this.

The wise ones, on the other hand, refuse to look at mileage marks. Often they will not even carry maps. Their aim is not to cover as much ground as possible but to loaf along as restfully as possible. They are the ones whose vacations really do them some good.

For the automobile, while it will oblige the energetic with great bursts of speed, is also a fine thing for the loafer. Once you catch on to the trick of it you can make vacation touring the most restful recreation imaginable. If you are content to idle along, caring not in the least whether you make Jonesboro that night or whether you have to stop at Smithville, halfway to Jonesboro, willing to dawdle down the pike letting any other driver speed past you if he wants to—then the joys of motoring are really yours.

For then you can be, not a restless wanderer, but a contented wanderer. There is a difference. The restless one consumes his own energy. The contented one stores it up. The restless one passes up charming towns and beautiful lakes and valleys in order to get to wherever it is that he is bound; the contented one stops when he comes to a place he likes, turns down any road that appeals to him, never frets himself about the distance he has gone or the distance that still lies before him.

If you have never tried that kind of motoring, this summer would be a fine time to give it a whirl. Leave your map at home, and set out without any destination at all. Make only one resolution—that you will not, under any circumstances, hurry. Drive just for the fun of it and not to get somewhere. You will find motoring to be a lot more enjoyable than you ever dreamed it could be.

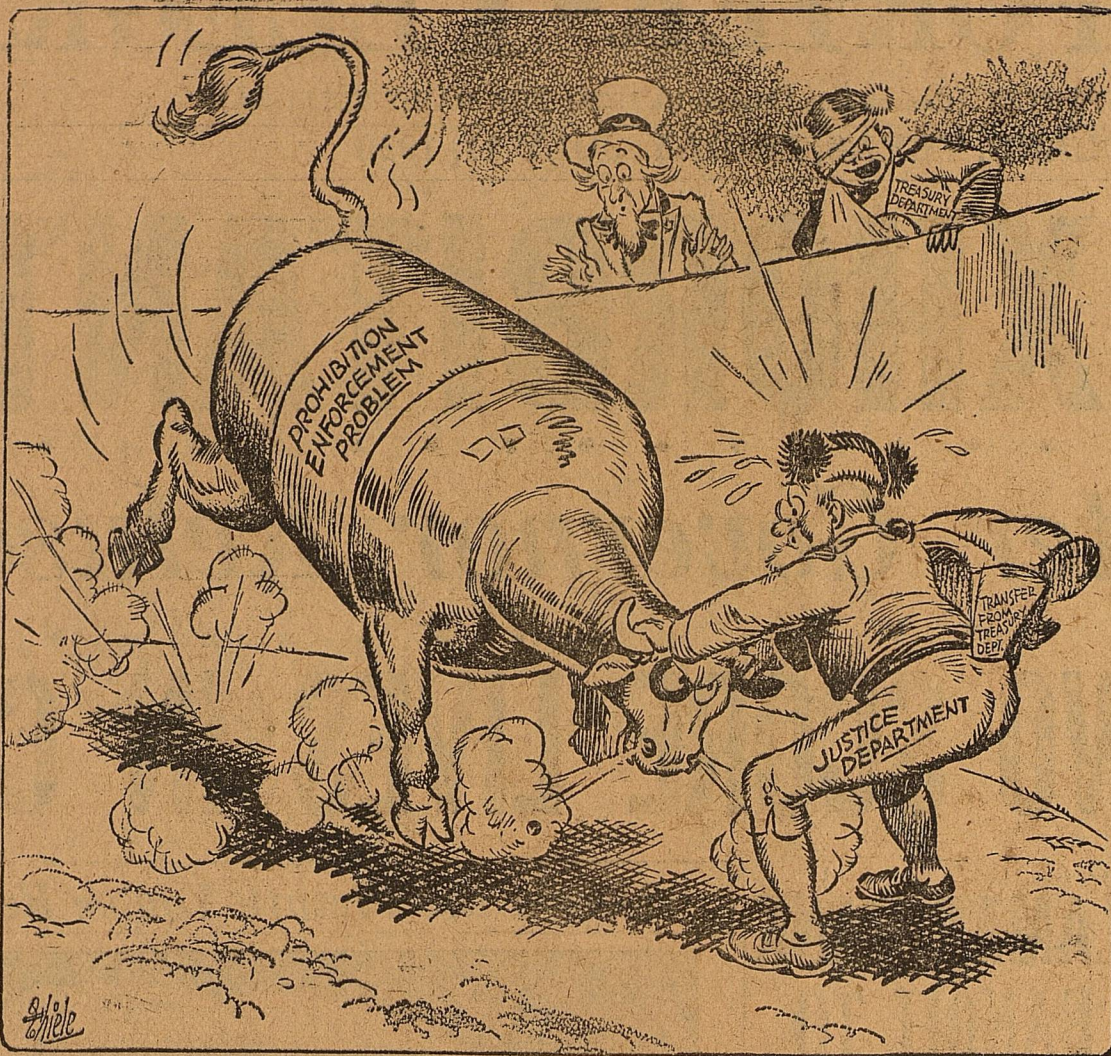

DAIRYING PAYS OFF

Records on shipments of dairy products from points in Hale county during the last year reveal the dairy owners are producing a revenue of a million dollars yearly according to a survey conducted by the Plainview Evening Herald.

From Plainview there were 613,000 pounds of butter shipped out. It is estimated that from the other points, there were 4,000,000 pounds gross shipped out. In Plainview the shipments of cream alone totaled 2,312,000 pounds gross.

These figures do not include the amount of cream and butter consumed for local use in the county. There was also a considerable amount used in the manufacture of cheese at Abernathy. This plant and the two creameries in Plainview are the only manufacturing plants in the county.

Vatican-British Dispute Rages in Island of Malta

By MILTON BRONNER, NEA Service Writer.

LONDON, July 11.—Although by comparison with the far-flung British Empire, Malta is less than a fly-speck on the map of the globe, its internal affairs have recently succeeded in embroiling Great Britain and the Vatican in one of the bitterest quarrels of modern times.

England has fired a sharp "Blue Book" at the Vatican. The Vatican has come back with an equally sharp "White Paper." The British government has suspended the constitution and the elections in Malta and made the Governor, Sir John P. Du Cane, the supreme boss. Furthermore, in the British House of Lords, an Orangeman, Lord Cuchendun, made a bitter speech attacking the "insolence" and "ignorance" of the church authorities; Viscount Fitzalan, a leading Catholic peer, made a slashing defense, incidentally attacking his brother Catholic, Lord Strickland, who is Premier of Malta; and the latter made an emotional speech defending his course.

Cause of the Trouble Malta, the cause of all this trouble, is so tiny that even the smallest state in American Union, Rhode Island, seems big by comparison. For after all, Rhody has 1248 square miles of territory whereas Malta has only 92, and is only 17 miles long by eight in width. But it happens to be of enormous importance to Great Britain, which is why that country nabbed it during the Napoleonic wars in 1814 and has kept it ever since. It lies due south of Sicily and commands the flow of the Mediterranean between Sicily and Tunis. Furthermore, it is just about at the center in the Mediterranean and is, therefore, one of the greatest strategic points in that historic sea. In ordinary times for its 225,000 inhabitants it has all the ordinary democratic machinery of government—an elected Legislature, with a Premier and a cabinet, Lord Strickland, a British peer and a Catholic, is the present Premier and head of the Constitutional party.

Trouble started when a Franciscan, Father Guide Micallef, a British subject, was ordered by his superior in the church to go to another land for service. The church authorities maintained they ordered him abroad for purely ecclesiastical reasons. Lord Strickland's partisans said he was being removed because he was a member of the Constitutional party. The priest stayed in Malta. The Bishops of Malta and Gozo upheld the order for his removal.

Refused to Receive Strickland The British Minister to the Vatican protested against this condemnation of a priest, who was a British subject, to leave British territory at the command of a foreigner. However, it was suggested the Vatican send an Apostolic Visitor to Malta to examine into all the circumstances of this case and of the various politic-religious troubles in the island. This was done. The Visitor, Monsignor Robinson, returned to Rome to make his report. In the meantime, Lord Strickland prepared to go to Rome, but Cardinal Gasparri, then Papal Secretary of State, informed the British government that Strickland was not persona grata to the Holy See; in other words, that he could not and would not be received or dealt with.

Accompanying Cardinal Gasparri's letter, was a memorandum, saying that under the present Maltese Ministry, Malta was subject to a regime of terror and despotism, threatened, the constitution endangered and the Church and religion openly insulted and opposed.

The British government sent to the Vatican a sharp note regarding its action in saying Strickland was not persona grata. The note said it seemed incompatible with the existence of friendly and diplomatic relations that the Holy See should thus treat a minister exercising executive functions in British territory. In the next place, the note went on, the Holy See had, without previous warning or consultation with Britain, sent instructions to the Maltese episcopate and clergy, constituting a direct incitement to discredit and even to resist the freely elected government of the colony.

British "Blue Book" Report Cardinal Gasparri replied that the religious situation in Malta was seriously disturbed after the return of Lord Strickland. The Holy See's declaration that Strickland was not persona grata was not meant as a slight to England, but as a statement in accord with the facts from a religious point of view. The Holy See had no intention of interfering in the domestic politics of a British colony. But its attitude was taken because of Strickland's interference in the purely religious sphere.

The British "Blue Book" says that Governor Du Cane afterwards reported the political activity of the Catholic clergy had been the "Blue Book" that in many cases the priests had acted penitents in the confessional whether they intended to vote for the Constitutional party and, if the answer was in the af-

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

The Two Major Parties Are Almost Exactly Alike, and the Record of Congress Proves It—Similarity of Attitudes on the Tariff Destroys the Last Vestige of Difference

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The close of every session of Congress demonstrates all over again and more clearly than ever the fact that there is no real difference between the two major political parties, that one is the party in power and the other the opposition and that when they actually line up against each other there is nothing discernible in the situation except a row between the "ins" and the "outs."

The Republican party has been normally in and the Democratic party normally out. So when an election year comes along and jobs are at stake and the two factions of the politicians' union start slaming away at each other the Republicans begin taking credit for all the good things that have happened to the country and forgetting all the bad things. And the Democrats, of course, forget all the good things and harp on all the bad things as they point accusingly at the Republicans.

Defenders and Attackers As far as national politics are concerned there isn't much more to it than that. The party in power boasts and defends itself; the party out of power sneers and condemns. The Republican party is attacked not because it stands for anything in particular, but for the way it does things when in power—the way it revamps the tariff, the way it enforces or doesn't enforce prohibition, the way it helps or doesn't help the farmers, the way it stimulates or doesn't stimulate business and employment.

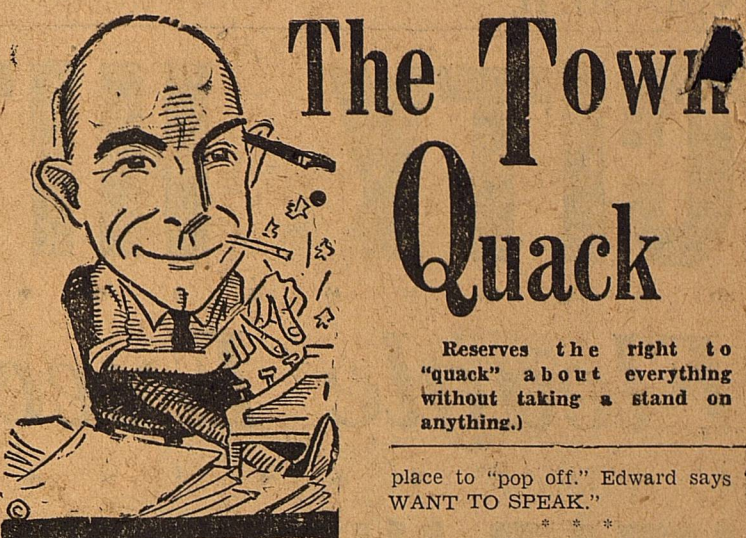

Each party claims certain fine, high-sounding principles for its own, but neither has an honest, clear-cut or fundamental issue.

Once there was a rather common popular impression that a real cleavage existed between the two parties on the question of the protective tariff. The Republicans were supposed to be high tariff and the Democrats low tariff. And it is true that the Democrats have seized on the Hawley-Smoot tariff act as the big issue in the congressional campaign of this year.

But where were the Democrats in 1923? Straddling the fence and assuring the country that they, too, believed in the protective tariff. Promising the country, in effect, that the Republican rates of duty as fixed in the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922 were good enough for them and that no one need fear a Democratic assault on the tariff walls in case the nation chose a Democratic administration.

Candidate Al Smith's position was that the tariff must be taken out of politics and that a scientific, non-partisan tariff commission could do just that. Well, today President Hoover and other Republicans are echoing the same thought and Mr. Hoover has said that the flexible provision in the new tariff law can be used to take the tariff out of politics.

The Republican spokesmen are forced to take credit or blame for the new tariff, but again and again they have been trying to make the Democrats share it. They are able to point out that all but one Demo-

The El Paso Post gets "hot" in covering gubernatorial addresses. How's this for a headline? "Cown-punching son of West Texas ranchman attempts to ride into office on land bill," having reference of course to Clint Small. They do say that the Post is sponsoring the candidacy of Jim Young, which for territorial reasons ought to help the Post a lot in West Texas.

Boy Howdy, but I wish the editor would turn me loose on politics. He's just as strong for certain candidates as I am, but he says the newspaper is representative of all of the people and seeks to foster the candidacy of no individual and the interests of no group.

I'm like Edward Lee. When I get interested in politics, I want some place to "pop off." Edward says "I WANT TO SPEAK."

Well, now folks, all 18 of you who went out to hear Ewing Thomson and all 40 or 50 of you who went out to hear Clint Small and Pat Murphy combined, an old pine stump has been ordered out from Smith county just for Midland county candidates to stand on, and if you want to hear them talk, you had better be on hand for the election bargain day events next week. Watch our Tuesday paper for the big bargains and watch the stump for the speakers.

A big auction will be held soon, giving you your choice of four candidates for county judge, three for sheriff, four or five for clerk and a nice assortment for other offices. Who will be the first bidder? We're going to put 'em up and let you look 'em over in a few days, ready for the big closing out sale July 26.

Prominent WCTU Worker Speaks to Local Chapter at Baptist Church

"A new crusade for law enforcement led by the Women's Christian Temperance Union of the United States" was the slogan adopted by Mrs. J. T. Bloodworth of Ft. Worth, when she spoke in Midland yesterday afternoon before the local W. C. T. U. club in a tour of West Texas cities in interest of organizing new clubs, and increasing interest in organized unions. The meeting was held at the Baptist church.

The speaker declared that the nation is approaching the most crucial period in its history and it has thrown a challenge to the women of the country to join "past, present and future forces and meet the fight."

History Told

The early history of the organization, which has now grown into one of the largest international groups, was related by Mrs. Bloodworth who paid highest tribute to its most notable promoter, Miss Francis Willard.

It was also told how the W. C. T. U. is attempting to reach the youth of the nation through educational and religious programs.

Mrs. Bloodworth holds an unusual record for work both in the Methodist church and W. C. T. U. Her activities are also linked with political groups as she was one of the committeemen to the recent democratic convention in Houston.

Announcements were made concerning the coming state and national conventions in Houston, opening November 12 and continuing until the 20.

Following the address, the members held a brief business session and decided to hold a meeting in Big Spring next Wednesday at the First Baptist church to organize the District 16 of the state W. C. T. U. Women who are interested in making this trip are asked to call the local president, Mrs. Thos. D. Murphy. It is planned that a group of twenty-five women will go to Big Spring.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Gen. 25:29-34; 28:18-22; 29:18-26; 33:1-4, 18.

And Jacob sod pottage; and Esau came from the field, and he was faint.

And Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, with that same red pottage; for I am faint: therefore was his name called Edom.

And Jacob said, Sell me this day thy birthright.

And Esau said, Behold, I am at the point to die; and what profit shall this birthright do to me?

And Jacob said, Swear to me this day; and he swore unto him: and he sold his birthright unto Jacob.

Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentiles; and he did eat and drink, and rose up, and went his way. Thus Esau despised his birthright.

And Jacob loved Rachel, and said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter.

And Laban said, It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man: abide with me.

And Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her.

And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

And he called the name of that place Bethel; but the name of that city was called Luz at the first.

And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If God will be with me and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me bread to eat, and raiment to put on.

So that I come again to my fathers' house in peace; then shall the Lord be my God.

And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be God's house: and of all that thou shalt give me I

CAPPING SUMMER STYLE

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN Author of "The Shopping Book" Written for NEA Service

Caps, always high in the favor of boys, are worn by men mainly on outings or participating in sports events. For some of these occasions a particular form or style of cap is preferred. Motorists may wear leather caps; hunters, caps of heavy canvas, corduroy or leather; fishermen, caps of duck or water-proof canvas, and golfers, caps of soft woolen, harsher tweeds, or silk or linen. Whatever the material, the cut or style and the durability of the sewing are essentials to satisfactory wear.

Cloth caps are made from several pieces of fabric sewed together, or are of one piece. Many textiles are suitable for this purpose, from coarse weaves or heavy tweeds, to the finer worsteds, linens and silks. The sewing on caps, whether overlaid, flat, cover seam or other stitching be used, should be strong and durable with the best quality thread; and the sweatband should be of leather. Visors or peaks are made of buckram or cardboard covered with the same material as the crown and should be stiff enough to withstand ordinary usage.

will surely give the tenth unto thee.

And Jacob lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold, Esau came, and with him four hundred men. And he divided the children unto Leah, and unto Rachel, and unto the two handmaids.

And he put the handmaids and their children foremost, and Leah and her children after, and Rachel and Joseph hindermost.

And he passed over before them, and bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept.

And Jacob came to Shalem, a city of Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Paddan-aram; and pitched his tent before the city.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 13. Learning from Experience. Gen. 25:29-34; 28:18-22; 29:18-20; 33:1-4, 18.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist.

It is an old saying that experience is the best teacher. But, unfortunately, it is true that much of its teaching comes too late for one to profit by it.

There is, however, an experience of individuals, an experience of the race from which the thoughtful person of today may profit. If our eyes are sufficiently alert, we are not likely to fall into the pitfalls into which others already have fallen. We are not likely to stake our interest upon some project in which we have seen someone else fail.

As a matter of fact we do profit considerably by such observations of experience in material things, but man shows too often a strange blindness in perceiving the moral and spiritual effects of conduct. There is always the hope that in some way in that realm cause and effect will not operate, and that one is going to be more fortunate than those who have found disaster in a particular course.

A Study in Contrasts

The lives of Jacob and Esau are still somewhat instructive for those who can profit by the story of varied experiences; and we are apt to profit all the more today inasmuch as our freer reading of the Bible does not induce us longer to feel that we must defend its heroes where their characters and actions cannot be defended.

Jacob was certainly not altogether either a lovely or a lovable character. All that can be said concerning him is that he had some excellent qualities and that upon these qualities there could be built something worth while, even if there were in the man elements of over-reaching and trickery.

Esau, while a much more likable character, had in him, however, no element of stability. He was like a great many other men who are pleasant enough, and whose lives are not characterized by any particular list of immortalities that one could charge against them, but whose whole attitude and life are immoral because there is no sense of duty or obligation, no linking up of will and character with things that are worthy and good.

The contrast between these two men is very marked, and on the whose it is true to life. So often the man of energy and devotion is not free from objectionable qualities. His ambition often becomes too zealous in making him over-reaching and crafty in dealing with his fellows. When we see these objectionable qualities in the steady and successful, we are apt to prefer the Esaus to the Jacobs. But the biblical story after all chooses for the child of promise and succession the stronger man.

The larger story of Jacob, as it is suggested in the whole text of our lesson, shows considerable of the progress that a man with grave faults and grave temptations made in conquering his besetting sins; but the final stage of the story in our lesson shows also how even in spite of a man's improvement the trickeries and treacheries of his early life tend to come back upon him, often to his undoing. In the days of his prosperity, with much dependent upon his security, Jacob is face to face with Esau once more under conditions where Esau might well have exacted vengeance and under which Jacob had much to fear.

On the whole it is Esau that comes out most nobly in this part of the story, and one wonders whether Esau in his carelessness and drifting did not likewise come to a finer and more substantial character than he had at first. No man is ever lost who has such capacity for affection. It was a chastened Jacob who met Esau, but was it not, also, a repentant and better spirited Esau who liked back upon the weakness of his own career, not with the disposition to blame Jacob but with the realization that the chief blame was upon himself?

Perhaps we have tended to learn the lessons of experience on its constructive side chiefly from the story of Jacob. It might be worth while to consider, also, all that we may learn from the experience of Esau.

HAVE YOU HEARD?--

Satisfying for a supper dish on a torrid evening is a jellied salad. Twice satisfying is it when its artistic appeal is heightened by having been chilled in a ring mold and served with its center filled with dressing.

If it is to be the main course, a ring mold of chicken in aspic or tomato jelly is excellent, surrounded by watercress, as shown above. Less expensive and quite as delectable is tomato jelly with thin slices of all kinds of fresh vegetables.

When serving your jellied salad as a dessert after a simple creamed hot dish, make a fruit salad in your ring mold and fill the center with whipped cream. The new hollow ring molds are inexpensive. You can, however, use your angel food cake pan for a mold, if it is aluminum. Be sure your jelly is set before turning out. Stand a second on a hot dish cloth before turning out. This loosens it, and makes it more apt to come out unbroken.

TWO SIGNIFICANT POSSIBILITIES IN SUNDAY'S BASEBALL GAME HERE

BUSHERS MAY LOSE GRIP ON LADDER AND START TOBOGGAN; OILERS STAND CHANCE OF GRABBING TIE WITH CLUB

Those who go out to Cowden park Sunday afternoon to see a double header stand a good chance to see two important happenings; the Bushers may drop a game to Stanton and the Oilers may climb into a tie with the other Midland entry.

Team	W	L	Pct
Bushers	3	1	.750
Lenorah	3	1	.750
Stanton	3	1	.750
Oilers	2	2	.500
Valley View	2	2	.500
Penwell	2	2	.500
Odessa	1	3	.250
Pleasant Valley	0	4	.000

This seems fairly feasible when it is considered that the Bushers have to play Stanton while the Oilers take Pleasant Valley. Stanton is tied with the Bushers and Lenorah for the top rung while Pleasant Valley has yet its first game to win during the season.

CHICAGO READY TO PLAY HOST FOR AIR MEET

CHICAGO, July 10. (UP).—Chicago, hub of the nation's railroad transportation becomes also the hub of aerial traffic this summer when the tenth anniversary Aeronautical Sweepstakes—the National Air Races—are held at the newly constructed Curtiss-Reynolds airport from August 23 to September 1.

The 10-day period of aerial competition brings to Chicago for the second time the "Olympiad of the Skies." In 1911, when aviation was in its infancy, Grant Park on the Lake front, was the scene of the National Air meet.

Then, a mere handful of planes were in the competition. A contestant seated himself on a narrow seat, with the pusher engine of his none too stable craft, and trusted to luck to carry him into the air. Once in the heavens, careening about at 45 and 50 miles an hour, he prayed for a safe and easy landing.

Thousands of planes will attend this year's meet—slim streamline craft, many of them capable of flying through the air at better than 200 miles an hour. Today's pilot does not trust to luck to make a safe take-off or landing, but rides with science in the cockpit.

Sponsored by the Chicago Air race corporation, and sanctioned by the National Aeronautic Association, the 1930 meet is expected to draw 1,500 planes—one-fourth of the total registration of the country. Facilities for handling up to 1,000,000 people during the 10-day contest are being worked out by officials. Hundreds of craft of all types will compete for prizes totaling more than $100,000, and which range from the $10,000 prize to the winner of the Thompson Trophy to individual trophies for amateur winners.

In addition to the 44 scheduled events, five derbies—two for women—will be held during the meet. These include flights to Atlantic and Pacific seaboard cities.

The meet is open in the sense that many of the events may be entered by all classes of flyers, although events for civilian flyers will dominate this year with 39 events either exclusively for, or open to them. Only five of the approved events are closed to all except the service—Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and National Guard. Five events have been arranged exclusively for women fliers.

By virtue of an unofficial win over the Bushers, the Oilers club is being watched with considerable interest. This team has improved greatly during the past few days and is being groomed by its management for a hard fight throughout the remainder of the season.

Schedules for Sunday complete: Odessa at Lenorah. Stanton vs. Bushers, here. Penwell at Valley View. Pleasant Valley vs. Oilers, here.

BIG SPRING, Texas, July 11.—Farmers in the Big Spring territory have their crops in excellent condition and are ready for a rain according to J. B. Crops are not suffering for lack of moisture but early feed will soon need rain if hot weather continues, is the opinion of Fred Keating, superintendent, federal experiment station located here. The cotton crop in the Big Spring area is about normal in acreage and condition of crop.

BATTLE MAY HELP RESTORE FANS' FALTERING FAITH

By WERNER LAUFER
NEA Service Sports Writer

Old man Sammie Ricardo Mandello was lightweight champion of the world before Al Singer, challenger, ever fought in a prize ring. Singer was still one year away from his first professional fight, when Sammie outstayed the veteran Rocky Kansas for the title in Chicago, July 3, 1926.

And there are more than a few of the fight-minded, who think that Sammie will still be champion after he gets through with Singer at Yankee Stadium July 17.

content with one of the greatest left hands in lightweight history and beat down a ring generalship unparalleled since the days of Benny Leonard.

But more than a question of Mandell's longevity is the effect this bout may have in restoring the faith of the long-suffering boxing customers.

A long succession of heavyweight bouts which ended with fouled fighters agonizing on the canvas has left the fans with all the symptoms of logoses on the bogoes. The prospect of seeing the best two little fellows in the lightweight class in a slashing duel, which by mutual agreement of the contestants cannot end in a foul, is causing the boys to perk up a bit.

Not only can Singer and Mandell bring the game back from the ditch, but by putting on a real honest-to-goodness fight, they can steal away the thunder from the heavyweight beezarks and revive interest in the little fellows.

engaged in over 140 contests. Only 26 years old, he is an aged veteran as fighters go. But with Mandell's adept boxing ability, he figures to go on for some time before old age lays him low.

Singer, a product of New York's Ghetto district, is more than a worthy contender. He is burning with youth and pep and has demonstrated his ability to mix it with the best in the business. He is extremely fast and can hit as hard as many a middleweight.

He met with a setback shortly after he had blazed his way to the top rank of his division, when Ignacio Fernandez, the Filipina blaster, knocked him out early in 1929.

But that fight made him. He learned a lesson of caution and returned to the wars to win 14 out of his next 15 fights. He was shadowed in a fight at the featherweight poundage by Kid Chocolate, but even by holding the Cuban to a close decision, he demonstrated a world of class.

Al Singer is a good and earnest little fighting man and the pride of New York's lower East Side—but to win the title, he'll have to

CATTLE RUSTLING, OLD TRADITION OF THE WEST, MAKES 20TH CENTURY NOLAN COUNTY DEBUT; LAW INVOKED

By GEORGE PARKS

SWEETWATER, Texas, July 11.—Cattle rustling, one of the oldest traditions of the pioneer west, had returned to this section today to an extent that may require drastic action in controlling it.

Within the past five months between 35 and 40 head, valued at around $1,500, are known to have been run off Nolan county ranches, Sheriff Jess Lambert revealed. Other losses may not yet have been discovered.

Two ranches, those of C. H. Alston and Tommy Wade, have been particularly hard hit. Other ranches have reported scattering losses, and a few head have been stolen from "one cow" families.

Each theft has been duly reported but officers and cattlemen have kept the thieves quiet in an attempt to capture the rustlers.

In each instance, officers believe, the animals have been butchered and sold as beef.

To suppress the stealing, county officials Saturday invoked an almost forgotten law, written back in the early days when "straight" irons were common enough equipment of every range hand.

Any person or company buying a beef, without securing its hide and ears, will be subject to a fine of not less than $100, the law states. The brand on the hide and ear notches will establish the true ownership.

A single gang is believed to have been responsible for the entire series of thefts. Most of the rustling has been southwest of Sweetwater, with only a few cases outside this territory, officer declared.

To old timers the sudden outbreak of rustling will bring back memories of the days when charred ashes in a lonely draw almost always meant that a hurried change in brands had been effected.

Rustling then, they will tell you, was nothing uncommon and hardly looked upon by many ranchers as dishonest.

"We didn't even dare in some cases to look for the rustler," one declared. "You never knew but what he was your best friend."

Then cattle were worth little. Northern markets were just beginning to open up. The railroad was just building into this section, and steers sold readily for $10 to $20, and in the earlier days, even less.

Few brands defied efforts of rustlers to change them. Tradition has it that ranchers often paid them large sums to leave the country because it was impossible to detect them in their work in spite of the almost daily losses.

And now, although the west that Zane Grey writes about, is gone, comes again evidence that West Texas has not yet lost all its early glamor of the cattle period, just as the east will always have its first family traditions, the west will always have its rustling.

MILLER SPEAKS OF FUTURE OF STATE OF TEXAS

Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller, candidate for governor, spoke at Springtown, Parker County, at 2:30 p. m. Thursday. After discussing the Highway Bond issue, which he contends is the principal issue of the campaign, Miller took up the matter of Texans using Texas products.

"I have been listening recently to a radio announcer who intersperses most of his announcements with the slogan 'What Texas Makes. Makes Texan,'" he said. "I have been thinking that that is very true, but will only be true to the extent that Texas will profit by it when Texans buy what Texas makes."

"As Governor of Texas I would use all the influence I could without undue interference with the other Departments to see that the State, when buying for its various purposes, price and quality being anywhere near equal, buys Texas raised products and Texas manufactured articles," Barry Miller declared.

Bargain Literature To Surrounding Area

Next to Dare Atlantic

Six more aerial adventurers who expect to dare the Atlantic this season are pictured here. Four nationalities are represented among these pilots; and their plans include ocean crossings in both directions, employing ships ranging from a tiny single-seater to the giant DO-X, which here is shown in flight. A former U. S. Navy officer, Lt. C. H. Schildhauer, upper left, will pilot the twelve-motored Dornier seaplane from Germany to America. Below, left to right are: Lewis A. Yancey, who expects to fly a Stinson from New York to Moscow; Capt. C. S. Wynne-Eyton, now waiting in Newfoundland to take off on a solo flight to his native Britain; Roger Q. Williams, who expects to take the Bellanca Pathfinder to Europe; Roberto Fierro, of Mexico, planning a New York-Paris hop in a special Lockheed Sirius; Dieudonne Costes, who is expected to take off from Paris soon in his famous Breguet "Question Mark."

Hale to Be Met by "High Hat" Official

When Clarence Hale climbs off the train at Flint, Mich., there had better be a high Buick official there to meet him, he said before leaving Midland on a trip that was given him for the highest sales percentage according to quota of any car salesman in the El Paso zone.

Hale sent a high official of the General Motor company a regular ten-gallon hat and he specified that official was to wear it in conversation.

A letter came back saying it would not only be a pleasure to wear the hat, but that the official would be at the train to meet the Midland delegate, wearing the hat and surrounded by plenty of noise-making equipment.

been reflected in El Paso, Mr. Denman said.

"The consumers have a right to receive comparable reductions which would, as President Adams' telegram says, stimulate greater buying of the product," said Mr. Denman.

Members of the farm board are interested in seeing that the cuts in the price of agricultural commodities are carried to the consumer so that all the loss will not be sustained by the producers. It was with this view that Mr. Denman issued his recent statement focusing public attention upon the reductions to the producers and in the wholesale prices so that the housewives could bring pressure to bear for lower consuming costs.

GALVESTON, July 11. (UP)—Joe W. Embry, oil lease man, died in the hospital here today from injuries received Wednesday when he was beaten, shot, stabbed, robbed and thrown from a car by two bandits.

out that gasoline a few years ago was selling at around 20 cents when crude oil was selling at $2 to $3 per barrel. Now gasoline sells at 20 cents when crude oil is 60 cents to $1 a barrel. Beef sells at 30 cents to 40 cents a pound, to the consumer now, and on this week, a Midland cattleman received but a fraction over 4 cents a pound. Steak sells as high now with cattle prices down when more than 20 per cent as it did when cattle prices were much higher. The consumer pays the spread, it is argued.

It is also pointed out that wages are showing a downward trend. Some great corporations have not only discharged hundreds of men, but have cut the wages of their other employees.

But these lower paid employees can't live any cheaper than when they received higher pay. They must go on paying the exorbitant spread between producer and consumer, the city charges.

Young Supporters Asked to Form Here

Followers of Jim Young, gubernatorial candidate have been asked to mass when Hon. Claude Miller of Waco speaks for that candidate here on the evening of July 14.

J. C. Thompson, campaign manager for the Young campaign has written The Reporter - Telegram, saying that Miller is well known to this section and that a large crowd is expected to hear him.

The letter says, in part: "Mr. Miller is a very prominent lawyer, and for many years has been actively identified in Texas politics. He has spoken many times in your section of the state, and should be well known there. He is a very able speaker and well informed on all state issues. He is also thoroughly familiar with Young's stand on all important state issues, and on July 14th he will explain Young's position on these issues to the people of your city and county."

Hangar Loaded; To Be Erected Soon

The Fort Bliss hangar to be erected at Sloan field has been loaded on freight cars at El Paso and will be in Midland soon, according to Harvey Sloan, airport manager.

The addition of the hangar to the field gives a total improvement value there of approximately $30,000. The administration building will soon be completely furnished. Field manager Becherer having received new furniture for the dining room of the modern structure this week.

Hauling of loam for leveling off of terrain around the buildings against sodding for next spring is taking up time of workmen at the port this week, and Sloan says a definite beautification campaign will be inaugurated when it is time to plant trees. Sloan plans to make of Sloan field the most ideal airport for a town the size of Midland between the oceans.

ROCK FROM HERE

Rock for construction of the new school at Andrews is being transported by truck from the large stone quarry between Stanton and Midland. The overland haul of the heavy stone is nearly 60 miles.

Stone much closer to Andrews was available, but lacked the flinty quality of the rock mined between Midland and Stanton.

STANTON MEN AND WOMEN PLAYING ON NEW COUNTRY CLUB AT THAT PLACE

The members of the Stanton golf club can usually be found late in the afternoon on the course, about six miles west of Stanton, according to the Stanton Reporter.

This golf course, which is nearing completion, has many natural hazards. There is a draw, which runs across the course, and this is crossed four times in the nine holes with one of the remaining holes a "dog-leg."

Following is a "paper" description of the course:

No. 1, across the draw, east, 255 yards, 4 par.

No. 2, hole, 205 yards, back across the draw west, and parallel to No. 1, 3 par.

No. 3, across the draw, north-east, 400 yards, 4 par, and a hard 4 par.

No. 4, the "dog-leg," which is 527 yards, and a good 5 par.

No. 5 is headed just a little west of south and is 364 yards, 4 par. This fairway is also across a small valley.

No. 6 is across the draw again and the drive is started towards a point just a little south of west, with the green nestled against the west side of the draw. Distance, 130 yards, 3 par.

No. 7 is 370 yards north west and across a small draw, and is 4 par.

No. 8 is a 5 par, 505 yards, and another thing, it is headed towards a point just a little west of south—the direction from which the wind is usually blowing.

No. 9 is heading the golfer directly east and over excellent, level, hard ground, with 359 yards to go, which is 4 par.

The total yardage for this course is 3115 yards.

Numbers 1 and 9 have the high-way upon the players' right, which forms an ideal mental hazard. Numbers 4 and 7 have a field to contend with, and Number 7 is near another fence.

The fairways were dragged this week and the greens are being put in better shape.

Quite a number of the ladies of Stanton are getting interested in this, the most popular sport in America, at this time and they are beginning to be seen upon the course every day, while another group is taking lessons and practicing at home with the "yarn" ball, and these intend to show friend hubby up when they make their appearance on the greens.

Several business men, and others, from Midland and Big Spring have visited the course and all have expressed a desire to help keep the grass from growing on the fairways—by playing on them.

Water Dampens Sportsmanship

Two negroes were carried to the jail by Officer Middleton when it was found that their playful tactics had resulted in one "goosing" the other with a knife.

The row started when the two women started throwing water on each other.

In the jail they appeared to have patched up their quarrel and asked to be left together.

Just as soon as the officer was out of sight, however, he rushed back into the jail upon hearing a sort of splintering noise.

One of the negroes had just bounced a broom off the other's ebon head.

Runs Temperature Rather Than Waves

In these days when most Midland people are taking vacations or, at least, are indulging thoughts of cool, shaded streams where the game fish leap, or long hours in the solitude of a secluded spot many miles away, a Midland woman reflects upon a mean trick played on her by nature.

Miss Derryberry, home demonstration agent, is allowed four weeks during the year for a vacation and two weeks for sick leave.

Recently she was taken ill, and spent the entire six weeks in a hospital, running temperature rather than getting well quickly enough to take a period at "running butterflies," as she expressed it, during a vacation.

GIRLS FIGHT HERE

Something of the unusual was staged on the streets one night this week when two girls waged lively warfare for several minutes over "a boy friend."

Neither was scratched in the engagement, but the "boy friend" would probably have recognized neither combatant, due to their hair having been pulled down over their faces in approved mob scene style.

WHEN the long road dips sweetly down a hill and ends up in a blank and puzzled amazement at a jumble of cross-roads, unless you know your way, you'll push down hard on the brakes! And then look around to see where you're going.

Five roads jutting off in various directions of the compass. One road is yours. But a brief glance—and you're off! On the right road. For a sign was over each road to direct your way!

Just as the directions point out the way in a maze of roads; so does modern advertising guide you in the right direction through the multitude of products in present-day markets.
