NAVY PLANS TO SCRAP OBSOLETE U. S. DESTROYERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. (UP)—Plans were under consideration today at the Navy Department for the gradual disposal by scrapping or sale of 114 obsolete destroyers, most of which are now tied up at San Diego and at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. Early disposal of these destroyers, unless as fighting craft will be of material help in relieving unemployment in the two cities by furnishing work to hundreds of men in the opinion of Navy Department officials. Junking of the ships also will be in line with the General Board's policy of cutting down tonnage as soon as possible to London naval treaty limits besides conforming to President Hoover's economy policy. Under the treaty the United States is permitted 150,000 tons of destroyers, whereas 225,000 tons are now on hand.

Little Theatre Is Broadcasting SOS

The Midland little theatre is broadcasting a call for aid. Everyone who will play in productions to be given on this season's card are asked to call Mrs. George T. Abell, director, and anyone who knows a suitable type who might be induced to play is asked to let the director know the name of that person. Juvenile, romantic, grooved, character and other types are at premiums this year, as well as men and women who would attach themselves to the technical staff as scene manager, property men, designers, make-up staff, electricians, etc. All who would aid the organization in any of these respects would be welcomed, the director says. "The little theatre would like to convey to everyone the message that its organization is not for the limited few, but for the entire city. We want everyone to play with us and to otherwise further the work of the group," she said.

Drilling for Oil To Show More Value?

What was started for an oil well may not be an oil well, but may be even more valuable, so far as the best interests of the city of McCamey are concerned. When the Riser and White No. 1 Riser, section 244, block 12, H. & G. N. survey, Upton county, well reached a depth of 310 feet, water of extra fine quality rose 273 feet in the hole. The well is in the Pecos river valley in a big block of irrigable land and is said to substantiate a belief that a great agricultural area could be developed in the midst of the oil fields.

JEERS TO LAST

LEAVENWORTH, September 5. (UP)—Showing contempt to the end, Carl Panzran, self-styled most criminal man in the world, died on the gallows here today. The scaffold was constructed in a secluded corner of the prison yard. Hidden machine guns were trained on surrounding cell houses from turrets around the yard. A gray mist floated over the scene, obscuring the sunrise which was a signal to spring the trap. Panzran was hanged for the fatal clubbing of Robert Warnke, prison laundry foreman, when the latter reprimanded him for a prison rule infraction. At the trial, Panzran demanded the death penalty or freedom so he might "rid the world of humankind." He spurned religious solace at the last hours, instead he read magazine stories that he would never finish. He jeered the crowd as he approached the gallows and demanded removal of two prison chaplains. His last request was for a complete autopsy. A wave of discontent swept over the prison when the warden sent inmates to work as usual, despite the hanging. Panzran had declared himself to be the slayer of 22 persons. His execution was the first legal one in Kansas since capital punishment was abolished in 1870, but this was for a federal offense.

OFFICIALS COME TO WATCH A-1 COWDEN

Southern Crude Oil Purchasing company No. A-1 Cowden, northern Ector county wildcat, was drilling at 4175 feet this morning in line, with no change reported.

Two flows were made during the night, at midnight and at 2 o'clock, into the slush pit.

Four 500-barrel tanks with separator are being put up. Pay was encountered at 4130-35 feet, the hole filling up 3300 feet in oil in 24 hours. This morning's flow was the well's third.

Sheldon Hardin, president of the company, Vice-President W. R. Wheeler, A. L. Selig and Mr. Donahue, all of Fort Worth, are out of the headquarters office watching the well. They were registered this morning at Hotel Scharbauer.

The Southern Crude wildcat is 330 feet from the west line and 2,310 feet from the north line of section 236, block 43, township 1, north, T. & P. Ry. survey. It is 21 miles southeast of Andrews county production and 24 miles north and slightly east of the Penn field in Ector county.

Fuhrman Petroleum Corporation No. 1 W. T. Ford, Southern Andrews county wildcat approximately 18 miles north and slightly west of Southern Crude's test, was shut down this morning at 4,145 feet. A new drilling line was being installed. There have been no changes reported in Fuhrman No. 1 Ford since drilling was resumed below 26,000,000 cubic feet of gas encountered at 4,062-68 feet. Gas came back in undiminished volume when the hole was balled down early this week.

Fuhrman No. 1 Ford is 2,200 feet from the west line and 440 feet from the south line of section 16, block A-43, public school land, and the nearest production is from Deep Rock Oil company No. 1 Ogden and No. 1 King, which are both small wells.

POSSIBILITIES OF MIDLAND BOYS AT DALLAS

That Midland county farm club boys will have a chance to do more than bring a prize calf from the Dallas County fair, seems fairly certain, those who have seen sorghum demonstrations over the county say.

A prize calf is to be given a boy of each county that sends as many as five demonstrations to the fair. It now seems probable that at least 20 Midland boys will have exhibits there. Beyond this, there are the ordinary fair prizes given for individual displays.

Before going to Dallas the boys must be judged in early October here. They will have displays at the Midland County fair as well.

Farmers believe that the boys will carry grain hands to Dallas that will match anything grown in this section of the state, for sorghum in Midland county is better this year than in many of the more noted grain counties.

Displays consist of 10 heads each of maize and hegar. Each boy must have three acres of each in his demonstration.

TO OPEN CLASSES MONDAY

Visitors Return to Own Schools for Session Today

Sectional meetings of teachers of the city schools of Midland were being held this morning and early this afternoon, and teachers of Midland county schools were meeting this afternoon, marking the close of the teachers' institute which started Thursday morning. Inspiring addresses were made this morning by the Reverends George F. Brown and Thomas D. Murphy.

Mrs. Lee Cornelius gave a piano solo, and Mesdames A. J. Florey Jr. and Jack Hawkins gave vocal solos. Routine organization work, preparatory to opening of classes Monday, occupied the hours of study of the institute.

County school teachers this afternoon were discussing routine work of organizing classes and of inter-scholastic league activities. The Misses Catherine and Lillian Dunaway were to play a violin duet at the afternoon session today. The institute closes this afternoon.

Superintendent C. L. Sone of the Stanton schools presided at the afternoon sessions of the teachers' institute. Miss Jennie Elkin entertained with musical numbers from the harp. Mrs. Thomas D. Murphy, president of the 16th district of the W. C. T. U., spoke briefly on scientific temperance instruction in the public schools, asking cooperation of teachers in including such instruction.

Miss Stella Mae Lanham highly entertained the audience with readings. R. E. Shrader, new director of the local high school band, played a cornet solo. Dr. L. L. Click, of the University of Texas, read an interesting and instructive paper on the traditions, history and creeds of teaching literature.

Teachers attending the institute voted to hold the second day of the program in their respective towns, counties or school districts, making a study of specific problems in their own schools.

Angelo Girl Dead From 'Empty' Gun

When Daring Frenchmen Landed

When the two French flyers landed at New York, the scene was reminiscent of the night at Le Bourget field, Paris, when Colonel Charles Lindbergh completed his flight from New York. The crowd rushed on the field and it was necessary for New York policemen to carry Coste and Bellonte to the hangars on their shoulders. This picture shows Coste with his police escort and a huge bouquet of flowers. Soon after this the flyers took off for Dallas.

COSTE AND BELLONTE PRAISED BY EASTERWOOD IN CABLEGRAM GIVEN THEM IN DALLAS; PRIZE RECEIVED

DALLAS, Sept. 5. (P)—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French aviators, who yesterday completed the Paris-New York-Dallas flight for the $25,000 William Easterwood prize, were ready to take-off here today after a round of Texas feasting and hospitality. The flyers tuned and refueled the plane at Love field this morning. They received a cablegram of congratulations from Easterwood who is in Europe, saying, "Congratulations for the world's greatest flight. My God bless you both."

WORLD'S SILVER SLUMP LAID TO GREAT BRITAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5. (UP)—The world-wide slump in silver prices and business stagnation in silver-standard countries is linked with the British policy of dumping hoardings of Indian silver on the world in an attempt to adopt the gold standard, according to Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the congressional committee investigating the depressed China trade.

Calling attention to estimated Indian hoardings of from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, large amounts of which were unloaded during 1928 and 1929, Senator Pittman said in hearings just published here that there was no limit to which the price might go if such a policy continued.

Turner Suit One For Commission

Although listed on the court docket as E. L. Brown et al vs. Fred Turner, suit for debt, the Turner civil case to be tried before a jury during the week beginning Sept. 8 is an outgrowth of E. L. Brown and Reg Reid alleging Turner owes them a commission for the sale of a lease to the Cosden Oil company in Pecos county, Turner said Thursday when asked by The Reporter-Telegram concerning the suit. The suit is not one for debt, Turner says.

BOND ISSUES AND HARD TIMES

Although it is commonly said that during times of depression it is bad business for communities to vote bonds, figures just released in the current issue of the Semi-Weekly Bond Buyers' Bulletin, Austin, show that there was a notable increase in bond issues in Texas during the fiscal year just closed.

"During the fiscal year ending August 31, 1930, the Attorney General's Department of the State of Texas approved a total of $88,229,002.95 of bonds of various kinds," Miss Kuehne said. "This was an increase of $19,463,425.29 over the total amount approved during the preceding fiscal year. As applied to individual issues this increase does not necessarily reflect an improvement in general business conditions. On the contrary, the issuing of bonds for public improvements is often done in periods of business depression as a means of providing employment for idle men. This is especially true in cases of highway construction and county and municipal projects of various kinds.

"An improvement in the bond market was also a factor in the increased number of bond issues. During the period of extraordinary activity in the stock market, bond sales were at a low ebb. Now the demand for Texas bonds is on the up-grade.

"An analysis of the uses to which the more than eighty-eight million dollars of bonds that were created during the past fiscal year were put shows that there was little if any decrease in the activity of erecting new school buildings and in otherwise improving the public school facilities of the State. Road bond issues continued to hold prominent place in the list. Another feature of the year's bond transactions was the activity shown in municipal improvements. Many towns have provided for new water supplies and sewer systems for the extension of these utilities.

"All things considered the current fiscal year has prospects of equalling and perhaps exceeding last year's record in the matter of total amount of bonds issued. Several large irrigation projects are on foot and plans are also under way for many new municipal, county, and district improvements that will require bond issues."

UNREST IN SOUTH AMERICA

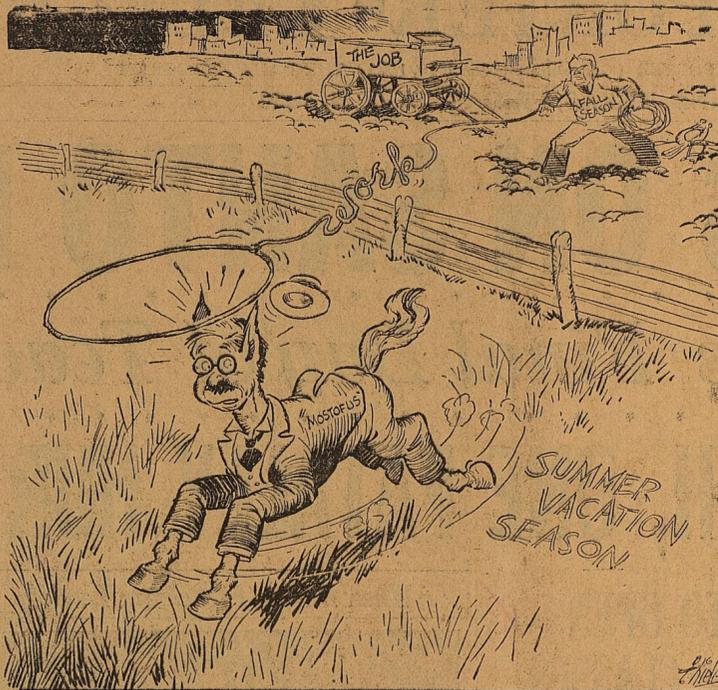

Political conditions in South America have been stable for a good many years; consequently it is more than ordinarily discouraging to read of revolts, threatened or actual, in two countries at the same time.

In Peru the revolt seems to be an established fact, and there is more than an even chance—judging from the cables—that the deposed president, Leguia, will suffer in the traditional Latin-American way.

Just at present it is not quite clear what is happening in Argentina, but it is quite evident that there is a very menacing situation for the government there. Argentina has generally been considered the foremost nation of South America, judged by our own standards; it is dismaying to see it lapsing into the habit of armed revolt.

Fortunately, there is no indication that our own government will be required to take any action in either of these cases. Peru and Argentina, after all, are not Nicaragua. Our marines can stay north of the equator.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Exiles from Venezuela Protest "Inhuman Dictatorship" of Gomez and Tell of Cruelties Inflicted on His Political Opponents—U. S. Asked to Investigate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Political activity against the administration is accepted as a matter of course in this country, but in Venezuela it results in permanent imprisonment, confiscation of property and sometimes death.

Almost incredible stories of cruelty and oppression under the dictator General Juan Vicente Gomez have been brought to Washington by representatives of an estimated 60,000 Venezuelan exiles scattered over the world. These exiles would like to get the State Department interested in the Gomez atrocities, but they don't see much hope.

Imprisoned for 14 Years Mr. Miguel Delgado Chalbaud is one of them. He is a leader in an organization called "The Liberation of Venezuela," which had headquarters in New York, where there are said to be 16,000 Venezuelan exiles. Miguel's brother, General Roman Delgado Chalbaud, was one of the most prominent and wealthiest citizens of Venezuela until he opposed Gomez. After that, he spent 14 years in prison, during which time his property was confiscated. Exiled finally to Europe, Ramon Delgado returned in 1929 to lead a revolt against Gomez and was killed in the fighting.

"When Gomez's presidential term came to an end in 1913," says Miguel Delgado, "my brother was chief of the electoral party and we tried to elect a new president. But in May we were assaulted on the street by the police and imprisoned along with about 500 others.

"We were stripped to our underwear and thrown into a dungeon where we were kept from standing or walking by leg irons weighing 75 pounds.

The Life Story of LON CHANEY by DAN THOMAS. Includes two portraits of Lon Chaney in different roles.

They Called Lon Chaney the Star Who Lived Like a Clerk Because He Shunned the Life of a Movie Idol—Hated Personal Publicity

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of six stories on the life of the late Lon Chaney, the screen's greatest character actor.

By DAN THOMAS NEA Service Writer HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—What sort of a human being hid behind the masks of fiends and phantoms that Lon Chaney wore in the motion pictures and which made him famous as the world's greatest character actor? Hollywood really knew little about Chaney when he was alive, and his death has not added very much to the sum total of available information about the personal side of this renowned star.

Chaney would talk about almost anything you wanted him to talk about, except himself. "It is silly for any man to talk about himself," Chaney told me during the course of an interview about two years ago. "In the first place, no man is going to say things that are detrimental to himself. And if he says favorable things about himself, people will say: 'Just another actor blowing off.'" to Hollywood parties. After work he went home and he and his family had a few close friends, not connected with the movies. He was stockholder in several businesses. He liked mathematical puzzles and undoubtedly read more than any Hollywood star. He was a skilled musician.

This is one of the few pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Lon Chaney. It was taken at one of the few "first nights" he attended.

indescribable torture. No doctor or medicine ever came to us. No one could see a political prisoner until that prisoner died and was pushed out through a little hole in the wall. Often two men were chained together until one of them died. Our hair and our beards grew very long.

"Everybody's money went to Gomez, who once had not a pair of shoes to his name and is now reported to be worth $300,000,000.

"I was released after nine years imprisonment among about 300 prisoners who were liberated after the incessant protest of a committee from the Latin-American republics. During the nine years I vainly demanded trial.

"Many others remained. Arevalo Gonzales, a distinguished publisher who supported Dr. Felix Montes for the presidency, is still in irons. Dr. Montes escaped to Porto Rico.

"Gomez, who has been in power more than 20 years, has violated the constitution in nearly every particular. He conscripts men from the army at will and keeps them there and conscripts laborers for his personal servants, keeping them in peonage. Gomez installed a puppet president from 1915 to 1922, retaining his dictatorship through command of the army. He sent ballots in envelopes to each member of Congress and the Congress cast these ballots without knowing whom it was electing.

"At that time the Paraguayan minister publicly protested the outrage and left the chamber. For the next term Gomez had himself elected and for the present term he caused the election of his follower, Dr. Juan Bautista Perez. Congress changed the constitution so that the president would be largely under control of the army's commander-in-chief—Gomez."

The present effort of the Venezuelan exiles and their American friends and advisers is to organize moral pressure against the Gomez regime and obtain political amnesty and a promise of a free election. Senator Ransdell of Louisiana has introduced a resolution aimed at determining what conditions operate to prevent an American citizen from getting his rights in Venezuela.

The resolution was based on the experience of James E. Welch of Shreveport, a driller of wells who was imprisoned for 40 days when he sought the custody of his daughter by a Venezuelan woman. Congressman Gasque of South Carolina has a resolution proposing to investigate what looks to him like "an unholy alliance between big business and a corrupt government"—the reference being to the huge concessions granted big American oil companies by Gomez. The exiles say Gomez pockets all the money from the concessions.

Night police courts, with their backwash of human wreckage, were his favorites. He became particularly friendly with Magistrate Brodsky, who invited him to share the bench as a "guest of honor," but Chaney declined. He preferred to sit, unnoticed in the crowd.

His New York friends never knew just where they could find him. Once, when his office wanted him in a hurry, the town was combed and all his hangouts visited. Later it was learned that he had been at Mr. Zer's "Tub," studying the various types of bums that wandered into the unique emporium of charity to beg a bowl of soup and a slice of dry bread.

The last time he was in New York he visited Mayor Walker. The latter was posing for a sculptor, and the clay model was in a crude state.

"My God, it looks like one of my studio executives when they wanted to hire a valet for him.

Among his closest friends were companions of his days as a vaudeville "hooper", notably Clinton Lyle, he and Lyle having married two girls playing in a "sister act" when all were in vaudeville in San Francisco years ago.

He hated the tinselled brilliance of gaudy "first night," but he attended them occasionally—probably because he felt he ought to.

He got a tremendous kick out of that familiar gag about the bug: "Don't step on it; it may be Lon Chaney in disguise."

He liked prize fights and would travel clear across the United States to see a big one.

"My home," Lon once said, "is my own. The public, I am sure, has no curiosity about my domestic life."

In line with this, he refused to permit the movie press agents to publicize his private affairs. Indeed, he was so reticent about his own life that it was not known until after his death that, as a youth, he had been married for a short time before his marriage to his present wife 23 years ago.

Even today, nobody in Hollywood knows anything about that romance.

The first wife was the mother of Lon's only child, Creighton Chaney, a successful young attorney.

The second Mrs. Chaney, however, proved an ideal wife and foster mother. Bravely, she stood by her husband in the lean days when he was a struggling "extra" in Hollywood, striving to get on, and success and riches neither turned the head nor marred their happiness.

When Chaney died his personal property was estimated at $150,000 and his salary was quoted as pinkies, crimson kings. I'm just passing out this information as I get it, and I still want to hear from some other women who love flowers. Seeds, shrubs, bulbs and plants set out now will bloom next spring. Clip this about the flowers and save it—there will be more coming.

A Midland man went home the other night and started to shave. Looking on the shelf for his razor, he got all of his shaving utensils together, worked up a fine lather and started to scraping. "What the deuce is the matter with this razor?" he yelled to his wife. "I can't make it out a whisker." His wife replied sweetly. "Surely you don't claim that your whiskers are tougher than the kitchen linoleum."

A housewife at Springer, N. M., has filed a petition in bankruptcy. She is said to be the first housewife in New Mexico to go into bankruptcy. There are many, however, both in New Mexico and Midland, who informally declare themselves in that condition quite regularly in advance of their husband's payday.

"Snuff Company Insures Employees for $1,000,000." Headline. Sneezes that off.

$6000 a week—quite a far cry from the day when he and his wife landed in Hollywood, broke, and he got his first job as an "extra" riding a horse at $5 a day.

That tough spot in his career was about 1913.

"Well," said a friend of whom he asked advice about getting on at some studio, "if you can ride a horse you can make $5 a day."

That was his beginning as a movie actor.

On his trips to New York, which averaged about once a year, the star spent most of his time on the East Side and in Bowery resorts, searching for types. He prowled around alone—and unknown.

Shrewdly said, perhaps, but the real reason—and the honest one—doubtless lay deeper. Chaney wanted to be able to walk down the street without being stared at; to go where he pleased without being pointed out by curious people and beset by hero-worshippers.

NEXT: Chaney and the talkies... you can't talk with a mouth full of false teeth, cotton in your jaws and rubber plugs in your nostrils.

A chicken jerks its head when running in order that it may see better, scientists of John Hopkins University declare.

The marriage of Miss Mozelle Downing, former Midland teacher, to Mr. J. O. Harper of La Porte, Texas, was solemnized at a pretty wedding service at the First Baptist church in San Angelo, Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Inspect Pockets and Waistband of Knickers

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN
Author of "The Shopping Book"
Written for NEA Service

In selecting men's knickers, it is advisable to look at the waistband and the pockets.

The waistband should be put on by hand. Note the stitches at the top of the band. Canvas is used in making the waistband. It should be soft, making the trouser pliable, not stiff. The material of which the knickers are made may be good, but sometimes, unfortunately, the waistband is quickly turned out by machine to save a few cents for the manufacturer.

The pockets of the better knickers are turned, showing a clean pocket, instead of being made with a lock stitch, in which case it is possible to see the edge of the pocket. Knickers should have large waist and seat outlets to permit widening.

TOMORROW: Castile soap.

ROBBED ON TROLLEY

CHICAGO, (UP).—An enterprising gunman, whose motto might well be "Don't inconvenience your victims," robbed Harry E. Bradley, an insurance broker while Bradley was riding on a street car. Seating himself next to the insurance man, the robber thrust a gun concealed in a newspaper against Bradley's side, and demanded his money. Bradley handed over $9. and the robber quietly left the street car at its next stop.

SADDLER SAYS HE GOT BETTER

Confining Work Didn't Agree With Him.—Black-Draught Brought Relief.

Somerset, Ky.—"I have used Theford's Black-Draught for twenty-five or thirty years," says Mr. W. S. Conant, of this city. "I have often been constive. I am a saddler and harness-maker, and am very closely confined. I find that I had to take something for constiveness, as I would get so tired, or have a dull feeling. After I heard of Black-Draught, I began taking it. I avoided this trouble, and am now in good condition."

"I take Black-Draught in small doses, and it is most satisfactory. I feel better after using it. I have recommended it to my friends."

Theford's Black-Draught is prepared from medicinal herbs and roots, of highest quality, finely powdered, carefully combined and packaged by automatic machinery.

This well-known medicine has been in use nearly 100 years, and its popularity is constantly increasing, as growing sales clearly prove.

At Work on the Payne Case

Editor's Note: This story will give a different slant to the Payne mystery. The staff writer who "covered" it was on the ground, close enough to feel the explosion that dismembered the criminal's body.

Did A. D. Payne really love his wife and children as he maintained in his 20,000 word confession? Or did he say so in order to show the lovable quality of the woman who could cause a criminal to "omit loving her—with the mere idea of making the enormity of his crime the greater for her martyrdom?"

he loved—and had to do. But what impressed the hardened jailbirds more than this was the fact that he thumbed his nose at death and met everything with a surprisingly fatalistic philosophy.

At the look on Conder's face, Payne hastened to say: "She's not only been here to see me; she has slept with me in my bunk. She has been here once, and at Stinnet twice, I felt her hands on my face and her arms around me. The perfume of her body lay heavily on the air—just as it did when she first slept in my arms."

cant lot. Payne went even whiter when this was said, and gulped hard several times. He never said a word during this last meeting, but when the children had been torn from him he refused to return to his cell. He watched them as long as they could be seen. When he was put back in his tank he broke down and told cell mates his children had forgiven him for "the tragedy."

SEE SUNSPOTS AS INDICATOR FOR WEATHER

VALLEJO, Calif., Sept. 5. (UP)—A visionary photograph of the good year 1940. A. D.

A small, bespectacled man peers through a smoked telescope, carefully jotting down his findings. When they are complete he makes a detailed report.

Acting upon his report, thousands of workers are dispatched along the thousands of miles of the Mississippi valley, to work feverishly at building new levees against the coming of a great flood. Or—

Workers are sent into the mountains in December to construct new dams and reservoirs to trap the melting snow the following spring, so that the lowlands, which are to suffer a terrible summer drought, may live in comfort on the hoarded water.

Captain T. J. See thus summarized his results:

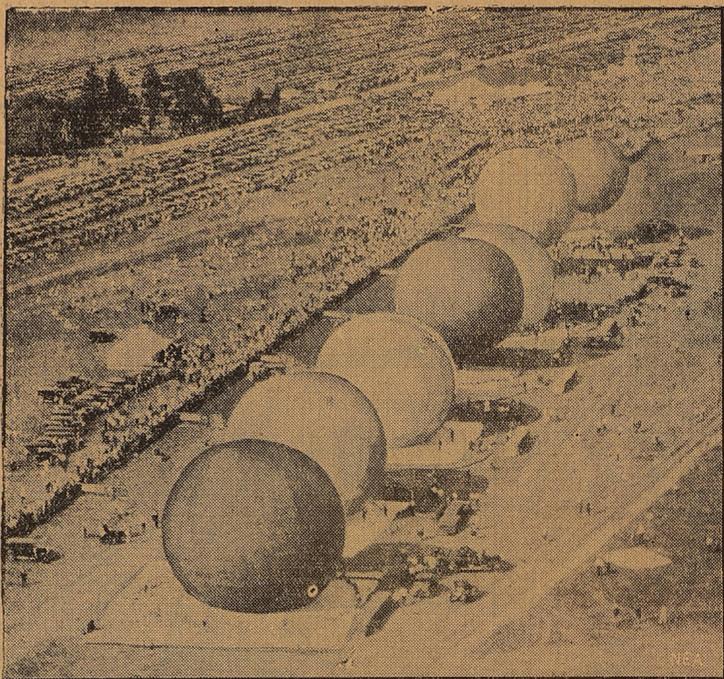

1. It is proved that when sunspots are most rapidly increasing, the earth is unduly chilled and the upper currents of our atmosphere descend so near the earth's surface that we have floods, storms and hurricanes, as in 1927.

2. The maximum of sunspots in 1928-29 was thus followed by the dreadfully cold winter of 1928-29, in which all countries suffered and Europe was hardest hit.

3. Now the Talance observatory in France reports that there was a sharp diminution of sunspots in June. The earth was given too much heat early in July and hence all countries are suffering now from drought.

"I am afraid," Captain See said, "that adequate relief from the drought cannot be expected before September, when the rapid motion of the sun southward will finally upset present atmospheric conditions and bring rain."

After hobbling about for five years on crutches, Doyle Miller, 12, is able to walk without the use of them.

Returning from an operation in Dallas, the boy, well known here, is limping about with his leg braced with a steel contrivance. He has been promised by Dallas physicians that within a couple of months he will be able to throw his away.

"This will be a great Christmas for me," he said. "Just to be able to get around like other boys is enough."

He is a son of Grady Miller, who is connected with an insurance company. Infantile paralysis maimed the leg. The boy has earned the regard of everyone for his fortitude in getting along on his crutches almost as well as other boys who have full use of their legs. He caddies at the country club and marches with boy scouts in parades. He could run almost as fast with his crutches as most boys his age could move.

His leg will be shorter, more stiff, than normal—but he has been assured of a real Christmas present.

London Bridge Is Not 'Falling Down'

LONDON, Sept. 5. (UP).—For ninety-nine years London bridge has been fooling the public. Whatever the origin of the doggerel which informs the fair lady of its tottering condition—and the lines have more currency outside London than elsewhere, for they are never heard here—it makes no impressions on the bulk of the population which moves daily to the tune of 125,000 foot-passengers back and forth over the granite span between their homes and their work through East Cheap to the "City." And the much heralded fall has not happened yet.

The stately arched traffic-way which next year will have been in service for a century, is still a fledgling, compared to its predecessors. The Old London bridge (the present one is called the 'new' London bridge) was begun in 1176 and completed in 1209. It was the only bridge over the Thames until 1750, when the first Westminster bridge was built, and when it (Old London bridge) was destroyed, many thousands of Roman coins and medallions with examples of Roman pottery were found under the piling. This was taken as proof that a Roman bridge had stood on the site, since this method of marking their work was common among the Romans. The date of the first bridge across the Thames has been established as A. D. 43. There is some controversy as to whether this was Roman or Briton. The Roman bridge was built perhaps a century and a half later.

The "Old" bridge looked much more like a common thoroughfare than the present one, due to the rows of shops which lined it from one end to the other. These were later removed, but its massive arches and fortified gate still gave it a rather sinister look. The gates frequently were to be seen decorated with heads of traitors, exposed on spikes. In the center of a chapel, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, Peter Colechurch who began construction of the bridge, was buried there.

The "New" bridge stands slightly west, or downstream from the site of the old structure. London's growth has been a bit too much for it, although it was widened to 63 feet from its original 54 in 1904. It is 928 feet long. Traffic stalls frequently in the rush hours. People find it more convenient to walk.

After Five Years He Drops Crutches

Found Andree and Party

This first radio-telephoto of Dr. Gunnar Horn, aboard the sealer "Bratvaag" enroute to Tromsø, Norway with the bodies of Salama August Andree and his two companions who perished in the arctic wastes thirty-three years ago, was rushed to The Reporter-Telegram, by NEA Service Inc. It establishes a new and unique record for speed in transmission of news pictures. A cameraman for NEA Service Inc. and the Stockholm Tidningen flew out from Tromsø in a seaplane and landed on the water beside the "Bratvaag." The cameraman boarded Dr. Horn's vessel, made the picture, and then flew back to Tromsø and on to Stockholm where the picture was telephoted to Berlin. From Berlin it was retelephoted to London and from London it was flashed across the Atlantic to New York by radiophoto. At New York it was placed upon the American telephoto circuit.

Rehearsal Tonight On Musical Comedy

A musical play, "Here Comes Arabella," which combines humor, romance, beauty pathos and music in pleasing combination, will be presented in the high school auditorium April 30, under auspices of the W. T. C. U., with an all-local cast. Selections for the leading characters and balance of the cast of forty have been made tentative to the approval of the director, who arrived this week to commence whipping the production into shape, and special care has been taken that each role be filled by those who have most capability in filling it.

The play "Here Comes Arabella," brings a novel combination of catchy music, new and beautiful choruses, and the plot, which is the thread of the production, is of sufficient strength to interest and enthuse the most critical.

Rehearsals are to begin tonight, Miss ZeDene Horne, director, said. The chorus has already been rehearsing. Miss Horne represents Wayne P. Sewell, famous dramatics publisher. She came here from Atlanta. Her study of drama has been spent in the University of Georgia, Carolyn Cobb School of Dramatical Art, and art and dramatic schools in New York City.

For the past year, Miss Horne has been director for little theaters in New York and Canada. She has played in a number of important productions and each year conducts a school for directors of the Sewell corps. She expects to establish a directors school in Dallas soon after leaving Midland.

The play will be presented two nights here, Friday and Saturday nights, Sept. 12 and 13. Further announcements as to cast and committees will be made Sunday, the director says.
