In Country, Man Reports Fire in The City Limits

Sometimes those in the country see more of the town than those who live in the limits. A reporter called N. H. Lassiter at the country club...

"Not much. Just a bunch of sand in the air from the clubs of a couple of divot diggers over on number seven." "Pretty dull, ain't it?" "Sure, but you're having a hot story break in town, I see."

The fire siren had not been heard in the office of the newspaper and few on the streets had heard it. But Lassiter had been sitting on a windmill watching the smoke, and had seen the fire truck go out.

The fire was merely a "fizzle." It was at the A. B. Anderson home, on the corner of San Angelo and Louisiana. An old suit case caught fire in some inexplicable manner.

Damage was so negligible as to warrant no report.

ANDREWS GASSER MAKING THIRTY MILLION FEET

Making 30-million cubic feet of gas, the Fuhrman Petroleum Corporation No. 1 W. T. Ford wildcat test in Andrews county occupied the limelight in West Texas oil activity late yesterday...

Structure Is Higher

The test is located 440 feet south and east in public school lands, section 16, block A-43, Andrews county.

Attention was first focused on the test early in July when it was credited with topping gray lime at 3,935 feet, 749 feet below sea level and 95 feet higher than the gray lime top in Deep Rock No. 1 A. R. King, the second oil producer in Andrews county...

First gas was found in Fuhrman No. 1 Ford at 3,978 feet with an increase of 3,994 feet. Another increase at 4,001-02 feet boosted the estimated output to 1,500,000 cubic feet daily.

A serious fishing job at 4,011 feet which necessitated pulling 6 5/8-inch casing from 3,962 feet prevented earlier completion of the test. When pipe was rerun and cemented it was set at 3,964 feet.

After recovering a bit from 4,011 feet and cementing, drilling was resumed Friday noon, Aug. 1.

Mathis Swabs Oil Although cleaning out work was not complete on Deep Rock Oil Company's No. 1 Mathis, the third indicated producer in Andrews county, production gauged at the rate of five barrels hourly during a swabbing test over the weekend...

The test was shot twice last week at 4,168 to 4,232 feet and from 4,257 to 4,465 feet. It is 900 feet from the south and west lines of section 4, block A-46, public school lands.

Penn Oil Company, Humble and Atlantic No. 1 Wilson, nine and a half miles northwest of Deep Rock's producers, was shut down at 4,650 feet in lime waiting on a new drilling line. The test had a showing of oil and gas at 3,085 feet.

HUGHES TOOL COMPANY RISING IN SKELETON FORM; ROOF BEING PUT IN PLACE; MACHINERY COMING IN

Out near Florida park a rigid steel skeleton attests to progress over the past three weeks of the Hughes Tool company.

Structural steel will be in place by Thursday afternoon, K. E. Becker, superintendent of construction for the Houston Structural Steel company said.

W. W. Hampton, Hughes Tool company superintendent, said completion of work on the building will be made within three weeks. Masons were ready to begin work on the tile and concrete walls this morning, and Lynn Butler was preparing to start concrete flooring.

An experiment will be worked out at the company plant; a house for housing a machine that will buck up tool joints on drilling pile is being built. This is the first Hughes Tool company plant to try this.

A crane was hoisting up sections of the roof this morning, and indications were for completion of the roofing in record time.

Ditches for water mains, staking off locations for pipe racks, large piles of material and freight cars loaded with equipment and standing on the recently completed spur—all attest to the activity that is pushing the building to completion.

Hampton said the first machinery for the plant will probably arrive Monday and that the rest will be coming at intervals. This must await completion of the concrete flooring before being installed.

WAID TAKES NEW DUTIES AUGUST 15

Prison Board Meets And Confirms Appointment

GREENVILLE, Aug. 5. (P)—Walter W. Waid, business man here, was appointed warden of the state penitentiary at Huntsville, to assume his duties August 15.

Waid is a former cattleman and sheriff of Hunt county, and was formerly city marshal at Wolf City.

His appointment was made by Lee Simmons, general manager of the prison system, and was confirmed last night at the conclusion of an all-day session of the state prison board at Houston. The appointment of Waid fills a vacancy created by the resignation of E. F. Harrell in June.

GOODMAN WELL IS CLOSELY WATCHED AT 4,239 FEET

Drilling at 4,329 feet late Monday, the Penn and Devonian No. 1 Leon Goodman test in northern Ector county was being closely watched. Hard lime was still being encountered, four oil showings having been struck at higher levels.

Elevation at the test is practically the same as Andrews county wells in which production has been found, and oil men predict that definite outcome of the test may be learned by the time 4,350 feet has been reached.

Two Others Drilling

The wildcat test is in section 27, block 44, township 1-north, Ector county.

Penn Oil company also resumed drilling on its No. 1 Kloh, Rumsey & Abrams, 2,310 feet from the east line and 930 feet from the north line of section 19, block 44, township 3-south, T. & P. Ry. survey, nearly two miles east of production in the Penn pool.

The test was shut down several days ago at 1,550 feet, but a thin salt section in Southern Crude's No. A-1 Cowden, another Northern Ector County wildcat, influenced operators to continue drilling in No. 1 Kloh et al. Southern Crude's No. A-1 Cowden and Penn's No. 1 Kloh et al. were both started on the strength of torsion balance "highs."

New Ector Producer

Production of 35 barrels during a one-hour open flow test, after a 150-quart shut from 3,502 to 3,605 feet, added Simms and Phillips No. 3 University to the list of producers in the Penn pool of Ector county. After taking a one-hour gauge, operators pinched the well through a 5-32-inch choke.

Simms and Phillips No. 3 University, 2,310 feet from the south line and 440 feet from the west line of section 1, block 35, University land, and an east offset to Texas and Cosden No. 7 Connell, the western extension discovery producer, topped first at 3,555 feet. The first head estimated at 65 barrels was produced at pay at 3,490 feet and had an increase 3,564 feet. The well was carried to 3,649 before operators shut pay from 3,502 to 3,605 feet with 150 quarts.

Production from Texas and Cosden No. 8 Connell, which extended the main body of the pool a mile north and a mile west late last week, gauged 415 barrels in 24 hours ending Sunday morning and then dropped to 335 barrels during 24 hours ending Monday morning.

Whether the decline was caused by operators choking the flow or through natural depletion was not announced. (See GOODMAN WELL page 6)

HOLD PRIMARIES FOR NOMINEES IN 3 STATES TODAY

KANSAS CITY, August 5. (P)—Missouri, Kansas and Virginia voted today on nominees for fall elections. In Kansas, the chief interest was in the republican gubernatorial contest where Governor C. M. Reed is seeking renomination. Reed opposes the federal farm board wheat acreage reduction plan. A tight Missouri vote is anticipated following listless campaigns. A wet and dry fight in the eighth congressional district, and party loyalty charges in the fifth district, are bringing out a large Virginia vote.

Albany, New York, reported that three dry weeks created a forest fire hazard. Washington predicted a continuance of the general drought from the Rocky mountains to the Appalachians.

Trucker Narrowly Escapes Injuries

A trucker who gave his name as Brown narrowly escaped serious injury to himself and heavy damage to his truck when he ran off the road into a deep ditch four miles east of Stanton Sunday.

Two joints of four-inch pipe out of the heavy load he was hauling on a trailer pierced the cab of the truck, one of the joints hurting Brown's hip.

Some of the spectators said Brown was asleep when the truck ran into the ditch, but Brown said the steering wheel locked.

Announce Hearing On Sale Rail Line

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (P)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today announced a hearing at Dallas October 1 on a petition of the Southern Pacific Railway company to acquire the Gulf and West Texas railroad. The company was organized to build a road from San Antonio to San Angelo.

WEST TEXAS RAINS ARE PREDICTED

Lower Temperatures Reported Over The Nation

With rain reports from some parts of Texas, extending as far west as Abilene, with predictions of thundershowers in extreme west Texas by Dallas weather bureaus, and with cloudy weather over the Midland area, the reports issued yesterday of continued drought are followed today by hopes of relief from the drought and heat waves which have recurred over the nation, similar to those of July.

Lightning Kills 2

DALLAS, Aug. 5. (P)—Spotted United States weather conditions today brought death, fire hazards, cool weather, hot weather, drought and rains.

Barto and Bud Snowden, brothers, were killed in an electrical rain-storm near Lufkin yesterday. Breckenridge reported sevenths of an inch of rain over Stephens county; Longview reported rains in parts of Panola, Smith, Gregg and Harrison counties, ending a drought which has continued since May 23, with crops benefited.

Helps West Texas

Sweetwater, Dallas and other Texas points reported lower temperatures during last night, cloudy today. Wichita Falls railroad dispatches indicated light rains from Abilene to Dublin, and 200 miles north to Wichita Falls and Oklahoma. At Wichita Falls yesterday, the temperature was 105, the seventeenth day to pass 100 degrees.

Albany, New York, reported that three dry weeks created a forest fire hazard. Washington predicted a continuance of the general drought from the Rocky mountains to the Appalachians.

Mercury Comes Down

In Oklahoma, the drought was partly broken with spotted rains, and crop prospects are good. Chicago reported grain belt farmers feeding wheat to hogs, also cutting it and using it for hay where pastures are burned out.

Missouri Valley temperatures today were generally reported slightly lower.

Ft. Worth Relieved

DALLAS, August 5. (UP)—Scattered rains over Texas broke the drought and heat wave in many sections. A hard steady rain fell for nearly an hour in the Fort Worth territory. Showers were reported by (See RAIN page 6)

THE REAL "RED" MENACE

A congressional committee has been spending several weeks investigating the activities in this country of Russian Communist plotters; and since some of the committee members seem to be badly alarmed about things, it might be just as well to look into this "Russian question" and see just what the outlook may be.

There is little question but that the Russian form of society is basically antagonistic to our own. Furthermore, it is quite possible, even probable, that during the next few years this antagonism will bear more fruit than it has done in the past.

But it is worth noting that whatever danger this situation may mean for us will probably come, not from Russian agitators in this country, but from the things that happen in Russia itself.

The Russians are just beginning to get started on a vast co-operative farming movement. Enormous wheat farms are being put into operation on a co-operative basis. These farms are owned by the government. They are designed to produce bumper crops; and the great point to be remembered is that the government has no desire to make a profit on these crops.

Now it happens that American experts are helping the Russians start this big experiment. Thomas D. Campbell, the famous Montana wheat grower, has been supervising the operation of the farms. Americans have financed and built a huge factory at Stalingrad to build 50,000 tractors a year. The result is that Russian wheat production can be expected to soar mightily in the next few years.

Bear in mind, now, what this implies. Russia will have a huge export surplus in wheat. She will be able to dump it on world markets at a price far below the price that other growers can afford to take. She can undersell every wheat grower on earth.

Our tariff can protect our home market. But what will become of the market for American export wheat? Campbell predicts flatly that American growers will have to produce only enough grain for American needs—which would mean a tremendous decrease in American wheat production.

It is going to be the same with other commodities. Russian coal is beginning to undersell American and English coal in world markets—and the Russians have hardly begun to develop their big coal deposits. Russia is now beginning to raise an Asiatic cotton substitute, and some trade experts believe that this eventually will drive American cotton off the world market.

That sort of thing represents genuine danger. It will have to be met by all the ingenuity and efficiency of which American producers and exporters are capable.

And, by the same token, this impending trade conflict makes the work of red agitators in this country look unimportant. They do not represent the real "red peril." What happens in Russia during the next five or ten years is the thing to watch.

FINE SPECTACLES, ANYWAY

Whether these giant new dirigibles will eventually prove commercially practical as trans-Atlantic passenger carriers or not, it must be admitted that they provide an enormous thrill for the spectator.

Merely to see such an enormous bulk floating lightly off into the air is in itself something of a miracle. Add to that the fact that these newest ships have promenade decks, staterooms, dining rooms, bars and other luxurious appointments and you have something irresistible in its appeal.

It may be that their cost will prevent them from becoming money-makers in commercial service. But at any rate they are just about the gaudiest things men have yet constructed.

"Weather Clear; Track Fast!"

Detroit's Police Chief Predicts City's Many Blind Pigs Will Remain Closed

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the concluding article in the series by Bruce Catton, special writer for this paper, on conditions in Detroit, following the murder of Jerry Buckley, radio announcer and foe of corruption there.

By BRUCE CATTON, NEA Service Writer.

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—Thomas C. Wilcox, Detroit's commissioner of police, declares the blight which has hit the city's blind pigs following the recall election and the murder of Radio Crusader Jerry Buckley is going to be a permanent affair.

Detroit is more nearly dry today than it has ever been before. Wilcox says it is going to stay that way. In fact, he says, it is going to be even drier.

"The town is closed now and it'll be closed up tighter," he declares emphatically.

"When I first took office, a couple of months ago, we adopted this policy with regard to blind pigs. We decided to close up the worst ones first. We started out with a centralized vice and liquor squad, working out of police headquarters, with the understanding that we'd try it and see if it worked.

"It didn't work. So now we've gone back to the old system. I have given orders to all precinct commanders to close all the blind pigs and gambling joints in their precincts. I have told them if they didn't make patrolmen out of all of them—and by God, if these men don't show results, I'll do it.

Smashed 1100 Blind Pigs "This cleanup isn't just for a day or two, or for a week or two. It's from now on as long as I'm commissioner of police. I don't know how long that will be, but as long as I am in this office I'll give them all I've got."

Commissioner Wilcox resents the current belief that Detroit's gangs have been getting out of hand lately.

"The records show," he says, "that homicides in Detroit for the first six months of 1930 are 12 under the mark for the same period last year. Of course, we've had a bunch of them all at once. An alky war broke out here not long ago, and a number of gangsters were killed. But we've got some of the men who did the killings, and we'll get some more of them."

Buckley Received Many Threats "The most regrettable murder of the series was the shooting of Jerry Buckley. Buckley was not one of the gangsters. Before that they had confined their killings to their own circle."

"Do you believe Buckley was killed because of his part in the mayoralty recall campaign?" I asked him.

"I don't see any connection between the murder and the recall," said Wilcox. "Jerry Buckley had been threatened many times because of his radio battle with gambling, the liquor trade and general crookedness. We're working as hard as we can on this case, and I believe we shall clear it up."

"Jerry Buckley had a great reputation because of his many good acts. He was loved and respected by a great many people."

Star Undercover Man Before becoming police commissioner here, Wilcox was one of the government's star undercover men, with a brilliant record in his credit. He was put in office this spring by Mayor Charles S. Bowles following the removal of former Commissioner H. H. Emmous, who during Bowles' absence from town, made a series of spectacular raids on downtown joints. Bowles, on his return, promptly fired him and gave Wilcox his job.

Wilcox

The expectation was that conditions would get better. But somehow they did not. Until the time of the recall election, the blind pigs and gambling dens were enjoying comparative immunity, despite Wilcox's 1100 raids. The wise lads in Detroit's underworld, incidentally, explain those raids by saying, "Oh, those joints—they didn't have soft

EASIER CREDITS POINT TO A TRADE REVIVAL

By ALLARD SMITH Vice President, The Union Trust Company, Cleveland

Although business continues at a retarded state, the forces making for recovery are slowly but surely accumulating. One of the most irresistible of these is the growing supply of credit, together with easy money rates. In the banks of America funds are piling up at an almost unprecedented rate.

Idle money does not pay for its keep. Sooner or later it must be put to work and eventually with returning confidence the easy condition of credit is most likely to constitute an important stimulus to trade.

Rapid accumulation of deposits in American banks during the first six months of 1930 sets a new high record. In addition it is a possible forerunner of a business upturn. For the period deposits of reporting member banks of the federal reserve system increased $1,494,000,000, or approximately 13 per cent.

In the first six months of 1924, also a period of slow trade, a heavy gain took place in deposits of these banks. Later it was found that this rise marked the beginning of a business revival. The gain in deposits in the first half of 1924 was $1,169,000,000. Business had declined in 1923 and 1924, but the revival carried it into a long period of activity.

On June 30, 1930 bank deposits had reached $21,317,000,000. If the gain continues as it did in 1924, by the close of December, 1930, depositors will have $23,000,000,000 in these banks.

This year the loans banks are making, which point the business trend, are for capital projects, for expansion and betterments. Industry is enlarging its capacity, preparing for greater and better production and lower costs, as witnessed by security and investment loans. Commercial loans have decreased.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Whoever Is Giving Mr. Hoover His Political Advice Doesn't Seem to Be Very Expert—Letter of Intervention in Tennessee Primary Viewed as a Mistake Politically

WASHINGTON, August 5.—The identity of President Hoover's closest political adviser at this time is a matter of speculation because it is so hard to keep track of them, but whoever suggested that the President jump into the Republican primary contests with his indorsement of Representative B. Carroll Reece of Tennessee is not getting credit here for any stroke of political genius.

The quality of the political advice Mr. Hoover seems to have had since his nomination has been a subject of continuous comment and the comment at the moment concerns its conspicuous failure to improve.

Taking a Firm Policy

Nevertheless, some of the newspaper boys who every few years predict the emergence of the "real Hoover" have been saying that his intervention on behalf of Reece is only one of various attempts which the President will make to reward his friends or punish his enemies by similar methods. That doesn't sound very convincing, even though it seems difficult to explain the indorsement of Reece and its implications as an isolated incident. Mr. Hoover is not notorious for his propensity to bite off large chunks of trouble wittingly.

One of the best things a president does in campaign years is to keep his fingers out of his own party's primaries. Ordinarily he won't even intervene in an attempt to save his best friend from defeat or to place an obstacle before his worst political enemy. If he does such a thing the voters more often than not seem to take delight in telling him to go chase himself while they vote for the other fellow.

On comparatively rare occasions when a candidate is directly indorsed by the president for an elective nomination the support sometimes seems to do him more harm than good.

And when a Republican is nominated and elected despite primary opposition from the White House he is sure to come here with a glint in his eye which bodes no good for anybody. The president has not only made an enemy among his own ranks in Congress, but he has also antagonized the winner's friends back home.

The strict neutrality of the Democratic party outside the states involved in contests for renomination by such Smith bolters as Senators Simmons of North Carolina and Heflin of Alabama indicates how completely this lesson has been learned by most politicians.

The President wrote Reece that he had heard Reece's opponents were charging him with opposing the interests of Tennessee in refusing to accept the Norris Muscle Shoals plan passed by the Senate and substituting a private operation plan for it. Mr. Hoover said Reece was quite right and thereby came out definitely for private operation for the first time. The implication was that Reece had been representing the White House all the way through and was now reaping his reward in the form of this unusual campaign few days that they would break over sure, but I never heard of it if they did.

I would like to hear from J. R. Harrison as to what he is going to do in the gubernatorial election. Lee Harrison and Jim Harrison have agreed to vote for Ma Ferguson in the democratic runoff primary, and then to vote for Henry Exum in the general election, thereby getting a West Texas cattleman for governor. If J. R. Harrison will agree to do this, and anybody else named Harrison, I will advocate it as the Harrison gubernatorial ticket and will almost see that it carries.

I've seen a lot from political writers about how the democratic party has been reunited in Texas. From what I hear on the streets, there is a possibility of the biggest crop of bolters ever registered in the state. One citizen, whose name I didn't get but who is reported to be a plumber, said "The last presidential election showed us that we could bolt and not get hung for it."

Kenneth Ambrose may not be advertising, but two of the staff came in this morning with the news that Kenneth's family had gone to California for a few weeks.

Do you remember the bunch that organized last summer when their wives and families were gone? John Howe, Ray Hyatt, Claude Crane and I forgot who else. I thought for a letter. Reece's opponent, Samuel W. Price, had been attacking him hotly on the Muscle Shoals issue.

This, in addition to the dubious expedient of entering a primary fight. Mr. Hoover smoked himself out on his exact stand in the perennial fight between the "power trust" and the liberals of the country who seek to curb it. Up to that time he had managed to avoid being smoked out. During his campaign for election he had said Muscle Shoals was an exception to his general theory of keeping the government from further entry into the business field.

Displeases the Liberals While Reece was busy choking the Senate measure in the last session he said nothing. But now he has laid himself open to attacks from all who believe that Muscle Shoals ought to be developed by the

This vacation without destination stuff the editor of this sheet started surely is growing. The Rev. George F. Brown and wife are starting on a vacation and announce that they don't know where they will go. Ralph Barron and family will go as far as Cloudford and don't know where they will go from there. The more I hear of the plan, the better I think of it. Who'll be next?

El Paso citizens can boast all they want to about nicker beer in Juarez, but it looks like 11 cents to me. Carfare is 6 cents. Anyway, since outside brewers are shipping beer into Juarez, the retailers have dropped the price to a nicker a glass.

Did you see in the El Paso Herald's Sapp column where a man said he left the state of Arizona because of his belief? "What belief was that?" he was asked. "Because I believed I would be hung if I stayed there," he replied.

Another wise-crack the Sapp pulled was about a country boy who went to a well known mountain resort, applied for the rates of a fashionable hotel, and was told that the rates were five dollars up to twelve. "And how much for all night?" the tick asked.

government—no small group, by any means.

It may be well that Reece will be licked. In that case the Hoover political prestige will be damaged there will be a new anti-Hoover Republican in the House and the liberals and progressives who supported Hoover in 1928 will be still further alienated. If Mr. Hoover hadn't felt Reece was in actual danger of defeat, one supposes, he would have kept silent. Perhaps the President's letter might be described as a heroic, self-sacrificing gesture, but it hardly seems like good politics any way you look at it.

Night Baseball Grows--- Giants to Give It a Trial

Above is a view of Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, where a regular scheduled Pacific Coast League contest was played at night before more than 25,000 spectators, said to be the largest attendance figure for a Los Angeles ball game. More than 40,000,000 candlepower supplied by 144 powerful floodlights made the field as light as day.

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER,
NEA Service Sports Editor.

A sweeping reform has been enacted in more than 40 cities, large and small, throughout the country. In these more than 40 cities the brutal spring and summer pastime of burying grandmothers, a hobby of office boys, has ceased. The reason is night baseball.

From California all the way up to Connecticut, cities are gradually turning to the idea of giving their afternoons to business or golf and their evenings to baseball. The Pacific Coast league has gone in for it in a big way, the plan being to have all the parks lighted by next season. Houston, Texas, lighted up the other night and drew more fans than for any day game previously played.

In the Majors
The idea is slowly catching on with the big league magnates, who have been watching with a fascinated eye the increases shown in the minors where night baseball has been successful. No less astute a baseball man than John McGraw is giving it a trial in an exhibition game at the Polo Grounds.

Sidney Well, the progressive president of the Cincinnati Reds, has been eager to give it a trial for several months. It is a coincidence that Cincinnati was one of the pioneers in night baseball several years ago. Lighting facilities, however, have improved vastly since the Cincinnati experiment, and the lights are much better now than when the Federal league tried the night game some years ago.

At Sacramento in the Coast league, 62,000 fans attended two night series between Sacramento and Oakland, and the Oakland management at once went shopping for bulbs. Wrigley Field at Los Angeles recently has been lighted and San Francisco, Portland and Seattle are said to have let contracts for lighting equipment.

The game is not greatly different under the floodlights, according to several baseball writers who no longer than three months ago opposed the night game vigorously. Spectacular fielding plays are just as possible by artificial light as under the sun's rays, the recent innovation of the night game at Jersey City indicated.

At Jersey City in the first few games at night, the infielders and outfielders made several miscues, but improved as they began to grow accustomed to the lights. Fred Walker, New Jersey center fielder, made several spectacular catches. There were a couple of double plays that would amaze you.

John McGraw, who suffered the portance in putting, disregarding the form used. One is to hit the ball hard enough to get it up to the cup and the other is to hit it straight enough so it will drop when it has gone far enough. Very simple.

Nothing can be worse than hitting the ball so lightly that it doesn't go far enough. It is a wasted stroke, practically.

But getting away from that "never up—never in" idea, I can offer a method that will help the player to hit the ball on the proper line, to make it go straight into the cup, in other words.

Simply place the putter on the ground in front of the ball and there fix the angle at which the ball must be struck with the club to make it go straight for the cup. After that, grasp the club with the customary grip, judge how hard it must be hit and then hit it that hard.

Long ago I found how useful that method is. If you've seen a big tournament like the National Open, for instance, you will have noticed that at least three-quarters of the participants do this same thing. For some reason it is easier, or most good players seem to think it is, to get the clubhead on the proper line by placing it in front of the ball than in placing it behind when addressing the ball.

TOMORROW: Study the green.
scheduling of night contests at the Polo Grounds early in August, still withholds his opinion on the night game as far as the major leagues are concerned though he admits it has proved a savior to several minor league clubs.

Owners and Players
Club owners in the cities where the night game has been adopted are almost unanimous in declaring that the quality of the game has not deteriorated, while the attendance has sharply increased. They point out that many people attend night games who cannot get away from their occupations in the daytime, and that it is more comfortable in the cool of the evening than during the heat of the day.

For a time many of the players themselves probably will be opposed to it, especially the old timers, but as Mel Ott of the Giants expresses it, "If the crowds justify it, we might as well get used to it." Bill Terry says: "It's nice and cool at night and the boys won't sweat so much."

Which is something, anyway.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR AUTUMN

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Service Writer
(Special Cable Dispatch to The Reporter-Telegram and NEA Service)

PARIS, August 5.—With the first gala opening of fall and winter fashions, Lucien Lelong confidently glorified the new era of long skirts for afternoon and evening wear with diversified effects and a bewildering luxuriousness of materials and accessories. The blossoming charm and dignity of women's dress, hesitatingly introduced yesteryear, burst into full flower. The crowded salons echoed with applause and upon the appearance of various striking models, experts raised champagne glasses in appreciation and approval. Lelong sensed a spirit of contentment and good humor in interpreting feminine wishes and achieved artistic triumphs with the accompanying soft music of an orchestra.

Silhouette Little Changed
The silhouette is destined to remain long and slender, with fullness placed particularly at the back of the gown, the hips continuing form-fitted with marked width beginning anywhere from above to just below the knees. Hems are voluminous and waistlines are all draped or belted.

Trimming effects are placed at the hips or the back, signalling a new departure consisting of pleats and flares. Informal clothes have pleated godets, ruchings apron and fishwife effects for afternoon, with box-pleated volants providing the most striking feature for evenings. Bolero and cape effects for afternoon and evening are replaced by a multitude of berthas, sometimes dropped, leaving the upper arm bare, or used diagonally or covering both arms to the elbow.

Sleeves Short for Afternoon
Short sleeves especially distinguish the afternoon frocks. Decolletes are extremely moderate with the backs remaining decidedly low, both generally pointed. Looped bows or jeweled ornaments are generally favored for the back. The spiral volant, starting from one shoulder and encircling the hips to form a basque, ending in a deep volant kneeward, shows a new development.

Evening cloaks are knee length, sumptuously trimmed with fur effects of ruchings and capellets reminiscent of the eighties. Only the most formal are longer.
Attractive color combinations are introduced for evening, with the wrap sharply contrasting with the gown, as in green lame over bordeaux chiffon or chestnut brown over ivory. Black still predominates, in sapphire blue, pale pinks, grays, but many charming ensembles are deep greens. Here Lelong is seen at his best contrasting these colors with the richest materials.

Lengths Remain Same
For morning and afternoon wear, greens, browns, navy blues and dark bordeaux are emphasized. Dull surface fabrics prevail, with many shortpile velvets all giving an impression of luxury and dignity. Most fancy materials are reserved for sports clothes. The lengths appear stabilized, with sports clothes amply covering the knees; afternoon dresses varying from mid-calf to ankle, depending on the degree of formality, and evening gowns just off the floor.

Flat furs are used for yokes, cuffs, and basques for afternoons. For evening, astrakhan, broadtail, fox, fox skunk are most used in collars large and intricately shaded.

These two costumes, sketched for The Reporter-Telegram and NEA Service from cabled descriptions of the gowns as they appeared in the recent fall openings in Paris, illustrate important points in the new mode. RIGHT: A black velvet evening dress from Lelong has a fitted waistline with a narrow belt of self-material fastened with a jeweled buckle. The form-fitting hipline flares into voluminous width just above the knee by means of a circular volant composed of encrusted godets. The hemline is straight, reaching the floor. The semi-fitted bodice has a moderate decollete with the back lower. A narrow dropped bertha follows the pointed neckline but leaves the shoulders bare. LEFT: This formal afternoon dress of beige crepe has a cowl-shaped neckline and a horizontally draped waistline. The sleeves are elbow length and finished with a short pleated godet. The form-fitting hip yoke flares into a skirt composed of five pleated godets reaching ankle length.

Panamas Graded by Fineness of Thin Weave

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN
Author of "The Shopping Book"
Written for NEA Service

The only straw hats that are really woven by hand are the Panamas and the Bangkoks. Guayaquil, Ecuador, is the great center of the so-called Panama hat industry, and Colombia and the Central American countries export a great many hats of this type. The best of them are made by native women. They are woven when wet so that the fine palm fibers can be plaited easily. Panamas are graded according to the fineness and uniformity of the weave and the softness and pliability of the fiber.
Peanut straws are the bleached imitations of the genuine article.

The lightest-weight straws are the Bangkoks, which are named for the city in Siam, and which are handwoven by the natives of that country. Besides its Leghorns and Milans, Italy produces the cheapest hats and exports great quantities of them; while some of the finest braids come from England.

TOMORROW: Beach robes.

LANCASTER, Pa. — Constable Bauer may have seen his best days as a ball player, but he's still able to catch with the best of them. On a liquor raid recently, the constable and three other officers cornered Harry Weit with three containers of liquor. Weit, in an effort to destroy the evidence, hurled the bottles into the air. The constable leaped and caught two of them in his hands, thus saving enough evidence to arrest Weit.

WEATHER FOR MONTHS
WASHINGTON.—H. H. Clayton has adopted the form.

WOULD YOU WEAR IT?
LONDON.—Dr. A. C. Jordan, of the Men's Dress Reform Party, has announced a new evening dress for men. It consists of: A sleeveless jacket of short waist length; stockings which come above the knee and leave that bare between the stocking tops and the bottoms of shorts, and silk shirt. The costumes are all in fawn and skyblue color combination. Cambridge University has adopted the form.

"It's the little things that tell"

THAT'S what big sister said to her boy friend as she pulled little brother out from under the sofa. But wait till big sister and the boy friend are man and wife, with a home of their own to run. Then how much more she'll realize the truth of her observation!

For then the age old problems will come pressing hard. So much in the pocketbook. So much on the shopping list. Will it fit? Then's when the little things make the big difference. The little savings—the small economies—the slightly better values of which a good housekeeper takes advantage.

Then's when big sister will read the advertisements as she never read them before. Comparing values; learning reliable brands; watching the bargain and reduction announcements. . . The advertisements will help her in a thousand ways to take care of the little things, acquire the little short-cuts in time and effort—in the big job of running a home.

Read the advertisements every day. Consistently advertised goods are worthy of your confidence . . . otherwise they couldn't be consistently advertised.

MISTAKES YOUTH FOR BURGLAR; IS SHOT BY PARENT

HOUSTON, Aug. 5. (UP)—Mistaking the son of a filling station owner for a thief proved costly for Hans Nagel, park keeper and special officer last midnight.

He was shot twice in the leg by A. B. Powell, owner of the filling station, when he trailed Ralph Powell home under the impression that he had looted the filling station. The elder Powell said he thought Nagel was a burglar.

Man's Body Found In Coleman Pasture

COLEMAN, August 5. (P)—Officers are endeavoring to trace the origin of a badly decomposed body which was found by Bob Mann in his pasture near Valera.

An empty army canteen lay near the remains. On it was the inscription, "Charley V. Herndon, Battery C, 15th Field Artillery, Second Division." Investigators planned to communicate with the War Department.

A watch and some money was not far away, indicating that if the person met with foul play, robbery was not the motive. A nickel dated 1910 proved that death was after that date.

MILITARY APPOINTMENTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (P)—President Hoover today appointed Brigadier General Ben H. Fuller marine corps commandant to succeed General Wendell Neville, deceased, and Major General Douglas MacArthur chief of staff of the army, succeeding General Charles P. Summerall retired.

In the TRI-COUNTY League

By R. C. Hankins

Nothing more heard on the play-off possibilities between the Midland Bushers and the Stanton club. There's apt to be a lot of foment and fanfare along towards the end of the week, what with clubs getting ready for Sunday games and ardent fans wondering about the absence of more concrete publicity.

It is this insatiable desire on the part of the fans (may they become more insatiable) that makes it desirable that managers get in touch with the league proxy and call for a play-off. Rabid fans should be given a chance to see such a series. They have sat there in the stands and beat out a throbbing tempo with bottles on the boards, urging their choice to make the warpath between bases hot, and they are now entitled to see a play-off. The Bushers manager should get with the one from Stanton and get not while there is sufficient interest among the fans to attend such a play-off.

This passive idea of waiting until after the second half to play off the first half winners carries an off-key note. The overtones might give a flat note to the symphony in case another club won the last half.

Speaking of the last half. There are eight teams in the league and each one may be counted a threat for unhorsing other teams. The Oilers are not yet satisfied that they cannot stage a comeback. Stanton is resting in a deadlock with the Bushers for first place and may pock mark the diamonds of the circuit with hard hit balls. As for Lenora, there's no telling what that club might do. The boys from the girlish sounding town wear he-man's pants, all of them, and swing mean bludgeons. This club may be figured in the final running and would be an ogre for any team to beat in a play-off.

In the meantime, while this matter of deciding the play-off, if any, and making of a schedule for the second half are being decided, there is little in the way of sports taking place. The future is spotted with prospects, however. A note comes along from Coach Barry, saying his football charges will glimmer in the Kleigs when they open against Austin high in El Paso in the fall. The gridiron is being conducted in nth style. Whether Burris can handle a punt in the glare of the lights remains to be seen.

Coach Barry is really getting the summer tan as he works at the University of Texas on ways and means. He had a temperature for a whole week following too much absorption of the ultra-violet. He is getting some information that will aid him in grooming the Midland boys for another district championship, he has given out in circular letters to his men.

One of these letters sounds like a lecture of the coach to his men. He warns them to be assiduous in training and to be prepared for some real workouts when he returns. The coach is only a fat shadow of his former self, it is said.

White and Red Johnson are going to join the coach within a few days. They will take a course of instruction and workouts, too. Johnson looks fit. For that matter, so does White. But "Tusco" requires a bit of the roughage before he rounds into conditions—or rather loses his roundness. The young man is not so much overweight this year as last, however, and looks as though he might do some hole-opening in the line during the coming season.

Burris is on a ranch and looks fairly good. He should be a whiz this season, blasting his way through a background of greenness as he did last year. With his additional experience he should be able to tote the pigskin a fur piece on his end sweeps.

While the matter of deciding whether a bus or a special train will carry Midland to the El Paso game is being considered, more tangible evidence of football is going on here. Over near the junior high school the storm fence is up and the new gridiron is getting its daily wetting down. With visions of vines clamoring with tentacles for places to hold there and with a giant stadium throwing back the concerted roar of the cheering mobs, Midland fans are watching the place daily. One may see numerous cars parked near it in the late afternoons.

W. W. Hampton was given a lesson at golf yesterday at Country club. Hampton, superintendent of the Hughes Tool company, came out about eight or ten strokes up on Aubrey Legg and D. McCormick who got lost somewhere in the tall grass. All three played good games however, though Aubrey insisted on describing his as the put-put-put motorboat variety.

Tiajuana Horses For Angelo Meet

SAN ANGELO, August 5.—Promise that the race horse owners who have contributed to the making of track history at the famous Tiajuana, B. C., Mexico, course will enter competition for liberal purses offered for the four days racing program at the West Texas exposition here Sept. 22 to 27 has been made by entries already booked by Jess Elrod, superintendent of the San Angelo race events.

Mr. Elrod is in Tiajuana on a summer vacation, and in a letter received here he announced that the entries he has booked there include the very fastest stables represented in the Tiajuana races. In addition to the four days horse racing program that will be a part of the six days exposition, a horse show will be held before the grandstand on Monday evening, Sept. 22. Race horses, polo ponies, jumpers and in fact all types will be exhibited at the horse show, according to John Burnside, superintendent.

Three rodeo performances also will be held during the exposition, officials of which are in the ranching business as the result of their recent purchase of a herd of broncos and wild steers. The animals are being kept on a ranch near the fairgrounds and no effort will be made to ride any of them until they are turned out of the chute before the grandstand with their riders during the exposition program.

Chemical Explosion Is Fatal To Three

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 5. (UP)—Three men were killed and one seriously injured here today in an explosion and fire at Richards and Company, manufacturers of leather goods. Static electricity igniting alcohol fumes in the dehydrating department is believed to have caused the explosion.

SAN ANTONIO, August 5. (P)—The life of an ice-man is a hard one in the opinion of Albert Canning, who had to go to a hospital here for treatment for cuts on his right hand.

Canning said he had to move some beer to place ice in a customer's refrigerator. One bottle exploded and drove bits of glass into his hand, he said.

BECHERERS ON VACATIONS

Field Manager and Mrs. H. M. Becherer left Sloan field this morning for Los Angeles for their vacation. They enplaned in a Western Air Express liner. Becherer owns property facing the Yosemite national park on the east, and has a cabin there. He and Mrs. Becherer will probably visit the place on the way back.

out nearly every afternoon, too. He is not finding the hot weather hard on his game. They tell it that Malcolm found a broken set of false teeth on a tee mat and entertained fear for a few minutes that it was his failure to yell "Fore" that caused the mishap. He had just shot a long brassie shot into the rough.

Art Yeager must be improving. He has broken only one club lately, but O. C. Harper still has the Indian sign tied on him. Harp hits a mean iron but he scoops the divots behind him at times. And the number of new shafts he uses would pay for a good steel torsion staff.

Billy Moran and Jack Johnson shot an interesting round the other day, going around the fairways with scarcely a stroke ever separating them. At the finish of the nine holes Billy had a 40, Johnson a 39.

H. S. Forgeron, who employs form for every shot, is not playing. Rheumatism in one foot is bothering him. As for tennis, the court "might have crepe on it for the little use they're having for it these days," Lassiter says.

Greens are harder than ever before at the course. Balls refuse to stick unless there is plenty of back spin. Rain is needed by both the fairways and greens. The caretaker is busily killing rabbits and ground squirrels that tore holes in the fairway.

M. M. Seymour is one of the fellows who goes out in the late afternoons as much as possible. And he has improved his game plenty. To take a par five on Number 1 green is a regular afternoon accomplishment. Then he calls it a day and goes in.
