HOOPERS EGAD! IF YOU'RE SO SMART, MAYBE YOU CAN SOLVE THEM. Have you ever heard of a "HOOPLER," folks? Well—here's tellin' ya— A "HOOPLER" is a question concocted by Major Amos Hoople. "Boarding House" fame, that make you wonder, ponder, talk and laugh. The Major thinks them up himself. Har-r-umph! Egad and By Jove! If you doubt that—turn to the "Boarding House," on page 5 and read his self-made queries right now. And answer them—if you can. Then check your answers with Hoople's own answers, which will appear on page one tomorrow. He has prepared a series of questions that may baffle even some of the world's greatest scientists, mathematicians or miniature golf players. Additional "Hooplers" will appear in "Our Boarding House" tomorrow and Wednesday, with the answers to each set the following day. The Major admits this is a good stunt—and he adds, "The questions in Edison's annual questionnaire were good, TOO."

KEEPING THE SPORTS ALIVE

Midland has long been recognized as a typically western town. In former years, Midland was the seat of annual or seasonal frolics wherein western sports attracted the best of talent, and records as good as or better than the so-called world champion rodeos were often made.

Western sports, more or less, had their fling in some localities, and even in Midland they have not been as popular for years.

The old practice of breaking the legs of good cattle, busting up a few contestants and causing injuries to man and beast, coupled with the staging of shows not quite as good as formerly, wore down the enthusiasm.

However, an effort is being made now to keep alive sports here in which fine blooded horses are required, sports which will attract thousands of people here several times a year when the events become better recognized over the country.

Cowboy Park, operated by Midland cattlemen who know the horse business, polo and race affairs, has been converted into an amusement center which merits the support of all lovers of good sporting events.

Next Sunday and Monday will see polo on the park field, and on Monday, Labor Day, horse races are scheduled. Midland people are fortunate in having in the home town better amusements for the Labor Day holidays than will be found in many cities where excursions will be run and where it is custom for people to assemble in great crowds.

GIVING THE PUBLIC THE NEWS

In giving election news to the public Saturday night, it is believed that a record was again set. With a highly efficient crew of election clerks, and with only eight races to count votes on, it was a simple matter to report the total vote less than two hours after the polls had closed.

But the remarkable thing is that Midland people, before retiring Saturday night, were able to say who the Texas gubernatorial nominee was, whereas it formerly required from two to three days to arrive at such a conclusion, and then maybe a landslide of votes from the "back country" would come in and change the entire aspect of things.

The Texas Election Bureau, Saturday morning estimated that there would be 750,000 votes cast, and that by 1 o'clock Sunday morning, a half million would have been counted and reported.

Instead of reaching this mark, a half million votes had been counted and reported even in Midland by 10:30 Saturday night, and by midnight the results had been given on almost 800,000 votes.

The Texas Election Bureau is sponsored by Texas daily newspapers and has been functioning for 12 years. It has a representative in Midland who has been reporting elections for this county for those 12 years. In other counties the system is as good. At Dallas, a group of highly skilled clerks tabulate the election returns as they come in, incomplete or complete, and keep the totals for all candidate contests on the wires to newspapers using the service.

It was through such an organization that The Reporter-Telegram, Saturday night, was able to tell the public who would go into the general election as democratic nominee for governor.

Here's How to Conduct an Office on Blistering Days

West Virginia Magistrate Builds Own Jail and Makes Prohibition Pay Profit

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 25.—The prohibition law and a home-made jail have combined to bring a neat gross income of around $1000 a month to Justice of the Peace Harry Johnson, who presides over the populous Cabin Creek district 30 miles from Charleston.

Justice Johnson, elected a year ago for a four-year term, took the prohibition law as he found it, but the jail was his own idea. He operates it like a hotel, charging each guest a jail fee of one dollar and assessing his lodgers 35 cents apiece for each meal. This, added to the court costs that are his legal perquisite in all liquor cases, makes his job one that pays extremely well.

There are a good many liquor law violations in Justice Johnson's district, which is a coal mining section with some 25,000 inhabitants. On some days, he says, he is kept busy from dawn until dusk trying such cases. Until recently there was no jail available—and if the arresting officers shipped an offender off to Charleston to be locked up overnight, the offender would usually be tried the next morning by a Charleston judge, who would get the fees.

Built Own Jail
So the justice built his own jail. It is made of concrete, ribbed with small steel rails, and about 150 feet from the justice's home. It is a low, one-story affair with one railed window in each side.

The door is of steel and bears two padlocks, one of them a huge affair eight inches long. One enters into a small corridor which runs across the front of the building. There are two cells; one for women prisoners, has two bunks, while the other, for men, has four. Each cell contains a lavatory and a fresh-air vent in the roof. At one end of the corridor is a desk bearing the jail register.

There are eight state troopers in the district, one prohibition officer and one constable attached to the justice's office. When any of these officials brings in a prisoner he lodges him in the jail, writes his name, the charge and the hour of arrest in the book.

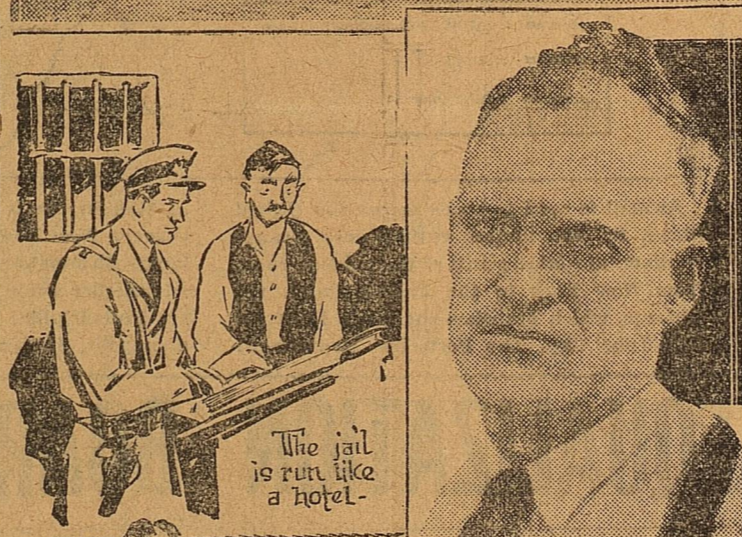

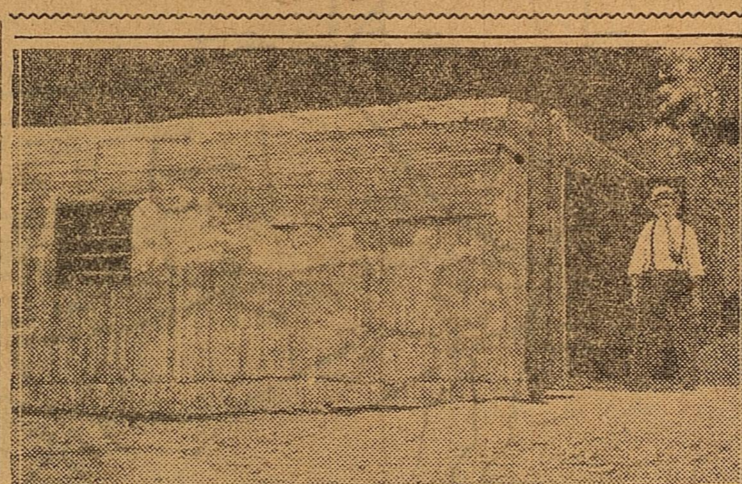

The next morning the justice inspects the book. When the officer brings his prisoner into court the justice—if he finds the prisoner guilty—adds the jail fee to the fine and court costs.

Fines Are Steep
Justice Johnson's court hears about 100 criminal cases a month of which 70 or more are for liquor law violations. In each of these cases the court costs are $7.50. A man arrested for drunkenness will be fined $42.50; possession of home brew costs $57.50, and possessing liquor costs $132.50. Included in each of these fines are a state enforcement fee of $25 and Justice Johnson's $7.50 court costs. Jail fees are in addition to these items.

Thus the regular collection of court costs is said to net Justice Johnson better than $525 a month, while his jail fees bring him $100 or more each month.

"We completed the jail July 10, says the justice. "We had more than 75 prisoners the first 25 days, and I expect I served 150 meals. The madam cooks the meals, and the prisoners eat the same food I do. It is good food."

So it is that this justice of the peace reaps a double-edged profit out of his liquor law convictions—one profit from the court costs and another from the jail fees. His hailback is in a state where Prohibition Commissioner W. G. Brown says he has encountered "justices who could neither read nor write", where the Charleston Bar Association is investigating the justice

Letters to the Editor

Editor Reporter-Telegram, Personally and on behalf of the Council I wish to thank you for the splendid cooperation you have given us in everything pertaining to Scouting. The excellent publicity given us in your paper relative to our Scout Water Carnival was a great factor in the success of the meet. You are rendering a distinct service to the boys of the Buffalo Trail Council and are opening the eyes of the public to the fact that Midland is rapidly becoming the best Scout town in the Council.

Again thanking you for your help in putting this meet over, I am Sincerely yours, Marcos J. Williamson, Field Executive.

courts for allegedly exorbitant fees; where the law department of West Virginia University is conducting a study of the justice of the peace system, with a view to bettering it.

Justice Johnson says that it cost him $1500 to build the jail, but that it will have paid for itself in a year and a half. "It's a convenience to the officers," he says. "They don't have to take their prisoners to Charleston, and this jail is as good as any you'll find."

Henry L. Bryan, Now Ill at the Age of 78, Twice Was Fired as Editor of Statutes at Large, But They Always Had to Hire Him Again Because No One Else Could Do the Work

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Henry L. Bryan, the editor of Statutes at Large, is ill at the age of 78. The State Department, repository of all federal laws, may have to get a new editor, and that will not be easy at all.

Bryan comes nearer to being indispensable in the government service than almost any more highly placed and widely known official. He survived the old spoils system days because every time he was fired out as editor of Statutes at Large he had to be brought back sooner or later because it was so hard to replace him.

He stepped into the editorship in 1886, after being confidential secretary to Secretary of State Thomas F. Bayard and, before that, a clerk on the Hayes-Tilden electoral commission. Statutes at Large is the set of books containing every law ever passed by Congress; it is, in effect, federal law itself—the official law of the land compiled for reference and consultation.

Bryan was a Democrat, however, so the Republicans fired him after Benjamin Harrison's election in 1888. But after Cleveland's second inauguration in 1893 he was brought back to the editorship again, and he came eagerly, because he had come to be very fond of that job.

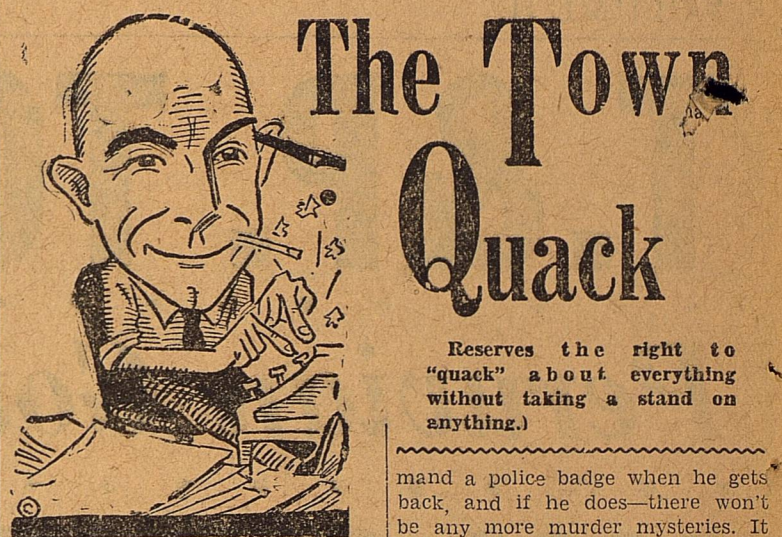

Fired Again
Then McKinley was elected in 1896 and Bryan went out in March, 1897. He had a non-political job for a while and then practiced law. Meanwhile, Secretary of State John Sherman had installed his son-in-law as editor of Statutes at Large. Before very long it became evident that the editorship didn't exactly stack up as a political plum. The whole business of preparing and publishing the new volumes of Statutes at Large at the close of each Congress got into a mess.

The classification, interpretation, summarization, annotation and cataloging of all the laws a single Congress passes requires a great deal of special knowledge and skill. Mistakes are likely to get judges, lawyers and any others concerned all mixed up.

And because nobody else knows how to edit Statutes at Large, Henry Bryan was called back by the Republicans in 1902 and has been the editor ever since. He was the "man who knew," and still is. Aged now and falling in health, he still supervises the work, is continually consulted by subordinates and even insists on doing a little work himself each day despite his infirmities.

Boss Praises Him
"Mr. Bryan is one of the old type of government servants who made government service honorable. He loves it. He would come to work if you took away every penny of his salary. The Statutes at Large are his product, and he takes a just pride in what he does for the government."

So spoke Tyler Dennett, historical adviser of the department and Bryan's boss, to a congressional committee a while ago as he opposed the old expert's retirement. "When Mr. Bryan does relinquish

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Something is always happening too late. I got a copy Sunday of Zim's West Texan, published at Tulla, Texas, giving the low down on the governor's race. Now that it's too late to give all of its startling news to the public, I won't even read it; but I notice such headlines as "can Sterling buy governor's office" all through it. Zim, the publisher, carries instructions that he reserves the right to reject and advertising. Evidently, he exercised his right, as there wasn't an ad in it.

Another piece of copy received—not too late, but still I'm not able to use it. It is entitled "Ma's political history reads like a story book," and carries the following instructions: "to be used only in the event Mrs. Ferguson is victorious in the primary Aug. 23." Nuff sed. You won't get to read the story.

Well, Hankins got off to take his post-graduate course. He will be "finished off" for three days on the Amarillo News and Globe, and then on the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, finding out just how the high-powered boys get the news and what they do with it. Better look out, Audie, Hankins will probably de-his control there will have to be a period in which we will just have to be patient," Dennett said. He pointed out that Bryan's salary was $4600, having been raised from $2800 a few years before.

Everyone in the department and many elsewhere speak with awe of Bryan's encyclopedic knowledge of the federal law. Such respect for a white-haired old gent of 78 isn't found in government service; neither, for that matter, are white-haired old gents of 78.

Loves His Work
He loved his work so well that he never went home when government departments closed for the afternoon on account of the heat. Remembering how the spoils system used to interrupt him for years, he likes to recall the time back in the eighties when the first four civil service employees came into the State Department. One of them was a clerk named John Bassett Moore. Bryan's main recreation is the annual banquet of the Fossils, a club composed of men who as boys mand a police badge when he gets back, and if he does—there won't be any more murder mysteries. It will all be clear as mud when the professor works on the case a few hours.

Just got a card from Ily Pratt who is in New York. "Just sent the editor a card from the big city, so thought you might feel a little chagrined if you were not remembered. Forget you? How could I? Answer me that?" I'll bite, how could he? If I ever find out that any of my friends are about to forget me, I'll get off a wisecrack in this column that will make them remember me with vengeance.

I've just found out how Sterling got elected. M. E. Foster, prominent south Texas columnist who goes by the name of Memo in the Houston Press, says that the weekly press of Texas was swayed to Sterling's side because of $30 worth of advertising he ran in all of the papers. More of the thirty pieces of silver temptation.

All of which reminds me of what Fred Wemple told the editor, "If Ma carries Midland county, I feel that The Reporter-Telegram deserves the credit for it," thanks, Fred, even if we lost, old boy.

printed their own little newspapers or magazines. It's an unusual organization, but besides Bryan it includes Senator George Moses of New Hampshire, Congressman James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, and Curtis Curtis, the publisher.

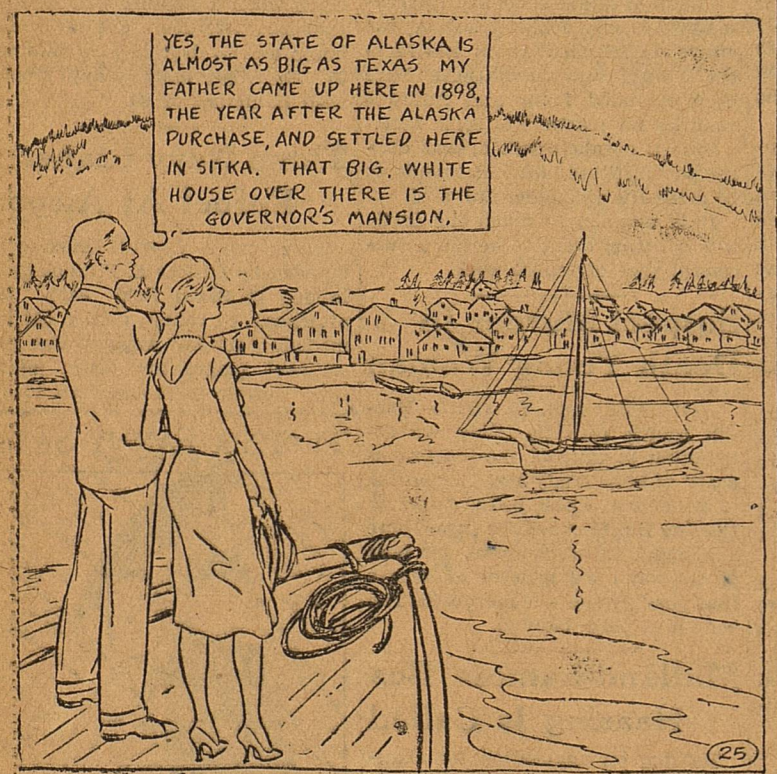

Bryan is also a vice president of the Oldest Inhabitant's Association of the District of Columbia.

What becomes of all the laws after they are passed by Congress, how they are preserved forever in Statutes at Large, seems to provide interesting material for a subsequent story.

"HONEYMOON RACKET" LEADS TO JAIL

TACOMA, Wash., (UP).—George Graham, arrested here, was charged with working a new "racket." Police said he learned names of eastern honey-mooners coming to the Northwest, wrote himself letters addressed to the grooms, wired the grooms' fathers for money and then identified himself as a newlywed with the letter.

Cloth May Be "Doctored"

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN Author of "The Shopping Book" Written for NEA Service

One thing for which the shopper should be watchful is the embossing of cloth to make it appear what it is not. Recently a shopper bought a coat at a smart shop. She was delighted with her purchase because she thought she had a moire coat of excellent cut at a "bargain" price.

In due course she had it pressed and it came back to her as a coat of no particular weave or texture. What she really had bought was a common cloth which had been run through a machine that so stamped it as to give it the appearance of a true moire weave. Instead of getting a distinguished looking coat at a bargain, she had a rather commonplace one for which she paid a stiff price, and which, furthermore, had been weakened by the attempt to "doctor" it into a moire finish.

Similarly cotton fabrics are sometimes calendered and sold as satin tablecloths.

TOMORROW: Men's underwear; materials.

Fall Gardens Being Planted Over Entire County; Should Be Started Now

Now is the time to plant fall gardens. This is what county agents are stressing at club meetings and as a result practically every farm and ranch home in the county has started cultivation of a fall patch.

Several gardening hints have been sent out from the A. & M. college extension bureau dealing with every phase of caring for the garden. If you have not planted your vacant spot yet do not waste these last few days, say the agents.

First, provide shade. It is most difficult to get vegetables to grow in the open garden during the heat and drought of August. Some sort of shade must be provided if they are to grow.

Second, Don't turn under the weeds. In the late summer the moisture supply in the soil is limited, and care must be exercised to conserve it in every way in order to get the vegetables up. To do this the ground should be free of all weeds and plants that are left from the summer garden.

The soil for the fall garden should be plowed shallow to a depth of four or five inches, or thoroughly disced. Third, Winter plants need fertilizer. Where fertilizer is necessary, well rotted manure may be used, but quickly available commercial fertilizers are to be preferred at this time. A mixture of 50 pounds of nitrate of soda and 100 pounds of high grade acid phosphate to one-tenth acre or a 6-8-4 fertilizer applied at the above mentioned rate will give good results.

Fourth, Good seed are cheapest. In purchasing seed for the fall garden it is advisable to secure one-fourth more seed for this planting than for the spring garden.

From the following list you may select the vegetables you like best and prepare to plant them this week. Cucumber, English peas, lady peas, pinto beans, Irish potatoes, squash, cabbage, radish, cauliflower, carrots, beans, bush; beets, Swiss chard, spinach, turnips, kale, lettuce, mustard, parsley and onions.

"Mrs. Jones had on a wonderful new dress..."

THE Mrs. Jones we're talking about is the sort of woman who, in spite of only moderate means, is always well dressed . . . whose home is furnished with exquisite, though not extravagant, taste . . . whose table is frequently graced with some appetizing new food product . . . whose housekeeping equipment, kitchen requisites, toilet accessories, all seem to have been chosen with rare good judgment.

Mrs. Jones is an observant woman. A well-informed woman. A keen judge of value. A careful buyer. . . . She reads the advertisements in her favorite newspaper.

Whatever is new or improved in the realm of merchandize, Mrs. Jones most likely knows all about it. . . . She reads the advertisements.

Whatever store is putting on an unusual sale, Mrs. Jones has probably heard about it. . . . She reads the advertisements.

Are you Mrs. Jones? Or a woman like her?

BUSHERS LOSE TO BIG SPRING REFINERY TEAM BY 11-4 SCORE

Spence Jowell's Mallet Work Wins for Whites in Practice Game Sunday

COSDEN PITCHER TOO MUCH FOR MIDLAND HITTERS

By C. F. JUSTI

The Bushers received a thorough trouncing yesterday afternoon; they were completely at the mercy of Dickenson, the pitcher for Big Spring.

He pitched almost perfect ball, allowing but one man a base on balls, and that was in the ninth inning, after he had the game in his pocket. He was hit for only six bases, and three of these hits came in the third inning, Mills and Girdley both hitting for two bases and Heath for a single.

After that inning the Bushers failed to make another hit, while on the other hand, when Girdley was not hitting some of the batsmen he was presenting them with a base on balls, whereas the rest of the team would drive them around the circuit with singles and doubles.

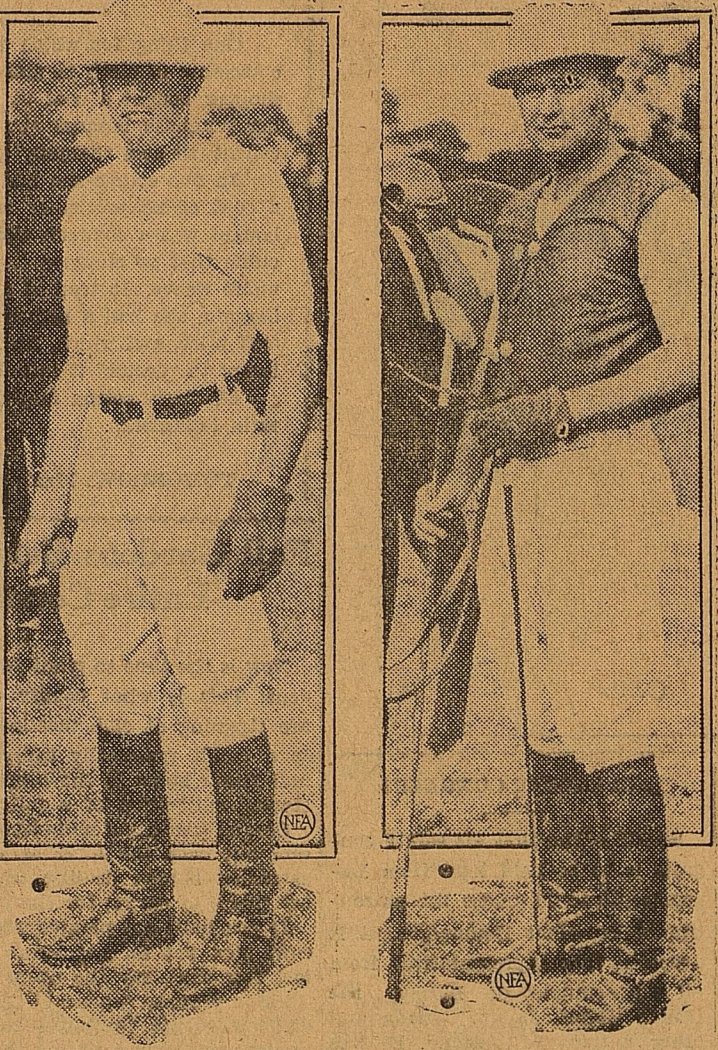

Unfortunately for Doc Ellis, Forey was not able to make the trip with the team, and just when there was no relief pitcher, Girdley gave a poor exhibition.

Take a plant at the reading of "Tom Thumb" Brown, weight 230. He is charged with twice at bat, he made five trips to the plate, Girdley gave him a base on ball on three occasions, and twice he struck out, yet he has credit for two runs and no hits. Now glance up at Cook's reading, four times at bat, three runs with but one hit, that in itself is the whole story.

The following is how the hits were distributed:

Seeking U. S. Polo Honors

They're a couple of hard riding Texans whose mallets are flashing in the test matches to pick a United States "varsity" polo team. Ranch born and bred, H. W. (Rube) Williams (left) rode No. 2 for the "Whites" when they won the fast galloping ninth match from the "Reds" by a score of 19 to 16 at Lecest Valley, Long Island. A strong rival for the No. 2 position on the varsity team is Cecil Smith (right), who rode No. 3 for the defeated "Reds."

REDS DEFEATED BY 7-3 SCORE IN HOME BOYS' POLO

Spence Jowell's old time goal shooting tactics proved too much for the opposition Sunday afternoon when the Whites beat the Reds 7 to 3 in a 6-chukker match at Cowboy park. Spence shot 5 of the Whites' 7 goals, and Clyde Cowden made 2 of the Reds' 3 goals.

The match was preliminary to a two-game series with Texon here next Sunday and Monday. Other games between the Whites and Reds will be played Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, admission being free.

Myrl Jowell and Jay Floyd, playing with the Whites, shot one goal each; and Bum Cowden shot one of the Reds' goals.

On the Whites, the line-up was Myrl Jowell No. 1, Henry Young and Bob Oates No. 2, Spence Jowell No. 3 and Jay Floyd No. 4. The Red team was composed of Bum Cowden No. 1, Cowboy Evans No. 2, Clyde Cowden No. 3, and Clay Floyd No. 4.

Bob Oates and Bill McCullough, entertained the crowd with bronc riding. Oates chose three horses, one refusing to pitch. Of the other two, he mastered one and was thrown by the other. McCullough drew one horse and rode him.

Ma Ferguson again was the winner in the terrapin race, seven being entered.

and chief of the masters who teaches the young idea how to dance down in Miami, Fla.

Kehl, Sr., though 68 years of age and for 50 years a follower of the most agile of trades has long since forsaken the waitzes and polkas in favor of the more popular dance.

"We have little choice in the matter," says his son, "since we are today pretty much at the mercy of the music that is being written. Time was when dances were invented and music was written to keep pace with them. Today the popular music sets the pace for the dance. We have to dance according to the moods and rhythms of the latest vogue in composition. We have been going through a period of Valleesque favoritism—the slow droony style of playing. This is now influenced by the tango—there is no doubt about that. The dance I am presenting at the convention contains considerable of the tango spirit. It is almost certain to affect the music and dancing of the season, in my opinion."

U.S. Dance Masters Decree Latin-America Revolution

By GILBERT SWAN, NEA Service-Writer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Before the winter is over, you'll be sorry you didn't study your Latin.

For the Latin influence is upon the dance.

And it's but one step toward the internationalizing of Terepsichore in America, so says the advance guard of the Dancing Masters of America now in session for the purpose of deciding next year's styles of stepping.

What with the invasion of the South American rumba; what with Pass ball: Robinson, 2; Blevins, 1.

Wild pitch: Girdley, 2. Hit by pitcher: Girdley, 2.

Stolen bases: Big Spring, 3; Bushers, 1.

Struck out by Girdley, 11; by Dickenson, 1.

Time of game: 1 hour, 54 minutes.

the sly intrusion of the tango and a dash of the jota mixed well with the well-known fox trot—and you have the dance that is likely to be seen well into 1931.

Prognosticating this change before the assembled teachers of the nation in their abbreviated suits were Ramon and Rosita whose "El Siboney" threatens to bring about a moderate revolution.

This innovation, though born of New York, via the Latin countries, is not completely metropolitan. The influence has been sensed in places such as Madison, Wis., and Dallas, Tex. For Leo Kehl, one of the members of the teachers' board, has brought from the middle west a "modernistic fox-trot," which is a tangoistic stride and Miss Elizabeth Wheeler has brought from Dallas a similar improvisation.

And when the Latin countries agree, to a modified extent, with Texas and Wisconsin, it's time to sit back and watch your "tep."

You can take it from Ramon, who has been dancing in ballrooms, theaters and his own club, that the influence of outside lands is here, with or without the tariff on outside goods.

"There have been a number of influences at work to bring about this change," says Ramon, in bowing to his dance number. "The dance is no longer strictly American. Take the jazz music—for instance. Everyone has said that it was definitely suggested by the southern negro."

"But if you've watched the tempo of the last couple of years, you will have noticed that the tango rhythm was creeping in—superimposing itself on the ordinary fox trots."

"The average dancer may have given little note to the change in the rhythm, but whether he did or not it has been growing up."

"What you call the crooning tempo slowed up the dance styles, and then came the clothes styles. The ladies could no longer be as free in their movements as they were with short skirts. There were fewer of the bending and loose movements and more depended on waist and foot movements."

"But the change is bigger than and many of the dances of other countries have been displayed upon the American stage and in the supper clubs. He has had to run the gauntlet of all the dances of a generation. He has had to dance the waltz and the two step and the three step and the rag and the fox trot—he's really a better dancer than he's given credit for. He may not have the form of the men of another country, for he dances more in spirit of play than do most folk."

"Today he is ready to accept the innovation of other lands. He is ready to graduate. In fact he wants change. The tango came, to a limited extent, last season. Some of the steps were a bit too intricate for him. Now he is ready to accept the modification—it's partly tango and partly fox trot."

Leo Kehl, who brings the "modernistic fox trot" to the Dance Masters conclave is the son of Frederick Kehl, father of ballroom dancing

IMPORTANT Change In Policy!

EFFECTIVE AUGUST 30th

GROCERY PRICES REDUCED

It is a well known fact that the present day wage scale is too low. On the contrary, merchandise is too high. We are going to place our entire stock of strictly high grade merchandise on a scale with present day earnings!

STRICTLY CASH BASIS

In order to place our stock on the market at such low prices, we must place our business on a strictly cash basis. We have had this in mind for some time, but would not attempt it until conditions got better. Now that we have been blessed with such wonderful rains, and our part of the country is in the best shape of any section, we have decided upon this date.

Serving Midland for 30 Years

We believe we know just as much about this kind of business as most of them, not that we are smarter than the other fellow, but we have had a little more experience. We have been in the market constantly for nearly 30 years, right here in Midland. It has been said that it takes practice to make perfect, so we have had the practice.

EXTRA SERVICE—FREE DELIVERY

We can't ask our friends and customers to lug their groceries around, so we are going to continue our delivery service at our new prices. Every order that amounts to $2 or more will be delivered promptly at your request. Remember we are as near as your telephone!

OUR PAST REPUTATION

We do not want to boast, but we have been serving the people of Midland in this capacity for more than a quarter of a century, and there has never been a single case of ptomaine poison from goods bought at this store. To avoid this, we have dumped thousands of dollars worth of goods. We are giving you the very best and this is your guarantee when you buy from us.

OUR FUTURE REPUTATION

We intend to keep our past reputation and to establish a new one along with our new policy of placing our high grade stock within reach of every customer. To all of our old customers, we extend our appreciation for past business and assure you that we intend to continue to be worthy of your patronage. We solicit your future business under our new policy. To all other people, we ask for a chance to prove that it is here you can buy the best merchandise at the best price, and get the best service.

COUPON BOOKS AT A CASH DISCOUNT!

For your convenience we have coupon books which we will sell at a cash discount. If for any reason you do not desire to use them up, we will cash them for you. We hope you will not ask us to make any tickets after August 30. This will be a cash store and we will make no tickets. We are going to strive to make your dollars talk for you, as we will not be undersold by anybody under any circumstances.

YOURS FOR MORE BUSINESS.

OIL MEN HOPE TO END PRORATION TROUBLE MONDAY

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 25. (AP)—For the third time within six weeks, oil men of Texas will meet here Monday in hopes of final agreement upon a statewide program of oil production curtailment.

The meeting was called by the state railroad commission when it issued the state wide proration order, to iron out any obstacles that might appear, before the proration order goes into effect Aug. 27.

The proration order called for a maximum production by all fields of 750,000 barrels daily, as compared to the approximately daily average of 863,000 barrels, the normal production.

Maximum productions were set for all fields and these maximums totalled 736,850 barrels. This allowed for increases, if found necessary, in those three fields opposing the proration order.

Monday's hearing was called primarily to dispose of the complaints of these fields—the Laredo field in Webb county, the Big Lake field of West Texas, and the coastal areas. The Laredo field has a compartively small production from a number of small wells and operators there contended that pinching them would be dangerous as well as rendering their operation profitless.

The Big Lake pool has a situation complicated by two factors not found in any other field—deep wells, and University of Texas ownership. Operators in the field disclaim any responsibility for results if the deep wells should be cut, and the University of Texas regents insist, that their interests be safeguarded. To meet this situation, David Donoghue, technical adviser for the proration committee of operators, was sent to West Texas to consider the safest and most feasible methods by which proration could be accomplished.

The coastal field, by virtue of their geographical position, have an advantage over all others in that they have a ready market for their oil. In addition to ready transportation facilities, coastal operators claim that oil is in greater demand because of a different quality than that produced in other sections of the state.

Another factor to be considered at Monday's hearing will be the proposal to exempt all marginal wells from any curtailment order, now or hereafter.

Productions fixed for various Texas fields, as compared to present production, follow:

Section	Present	Fixed
Panhandle	96,450	80,000
North Central	74,450	69,000
West Central	55,700	52,000
West Texas	293,950	276,350
East Texas	41,850	41,850
Southwest	72,400	67,150
Gulf Coast	183,500	150,500

YANKS LEAD LOOP ON LEADERSHIP; H. WILSON KILLS 'EM

CHICAGO, Aug. 25. (AP)—Only total collapse of the Athletics and Washington can give the New York Yankees the American League title, but Bob Shawkey's club has almost a corner on the various offensive leaderships.

Unofficial averages which include Wednesday's games today showed the Yankees still at the top in team batting with a mark of .311, the same as last week, while Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and Earl Combs between them had control of eight leaderships.

Gehrig cracked the pitching for a gain of eight points during the eighteenth week of the season, and had a comfortable lead over Al Simmons of the Athletics for the first time in three weeks. He had .392 to .382 for the Philadelphia siege gun. Gehrig also headed the list in batting in runs, with 144, an increase of six during the week, had total bases amounting to 344, and led with 177 safe hits.

Ruth batted out only one home run during the period, but his total of 44 was nine better than that of Gehrig, the runnerup, and his collection of 132 runs was eleven more than Simmons had compiled. Combs led the junior circuit in triples with 16.

Scouts Thank City For Aid At Rally

Representatives of the Buffalo Trail scout council passed resolutions following the rally held here Thursday, thanking Midland people for the cooperation given. The resolution is as follows:

Be it resolved by the Buffalo Trail Council in convention assembled at Midland on Aug. 21st, 1930 that the Midland Chamber of Commerce and citizens of the City of Midland be publicly commended and extended a vote of thanks for the splendid hospitality extended to the Council and Scouts while assembled in their City for the purpose of holding a competitive Swimming Meet and the promotion of good will toward Scouting in this Area.

Ice For Sick Is Growing In Favor

Over 200 towns throughout the South have adopted an idea on ice plant operation advanced by Kenneth E. Ambrose, district manager of the Southern Ice & Utilities Co.

The Midland man described the custom of the plant here of giving free ice to sick or people too poor to buy ice. The idea was published in "Refrigeration," a trade journal, and the current issue says that over 200 southern cities have adopted the Ambrose plan. The editor of the magazine says, "Mr. Ambrose has suggested a far-sighted policy." Midland received wide publicity.

The Midland plant carried its policy a step further during the recent Scout carnival here, providing free ice throughout the day for water and lemonade.

MOURNFUL DOVE RY ENDED BY NEW LAWS

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 25. (UP)—Conflicts between state and federal hunting regulation that perplexed mourning dove hunters last season and caused many objections, exist no longer.

All conflicts have been harmonized and the entire state now has but two zones. Open season in the north zone is in September and October. Open season in the south zone is October and November.

Troop Enthusiastic Over Swim Victory

Troop 51 met at the Methodist Church Friday night for the regular weekly meeting. After having won first place in the swimming meet Thursday the boys were in high spirits. There were 25 boys present and only one absent. Members of the Flying Eagle patrol met and elected a patrol leader to take the place of M. D. Johnson Jr. who was promoted to the rank of Junior Assistant Scout master. G. D. Hallman was elected patrol leader and Colbert Pope assistant patrol leader.

The troop hopes to have a full troop by the time school starts. There is now room for about three boys. They will also have a special meet Tuesday evening at the church on special business.

Thanks, Everybody

I want to thank every voter in Precinct One whether you voted for me or not. I appreciate every vote given me and to those who did not vote for me, will say that you should have no regrets, for you voted for a mighty fine man.

I became a candidate for Commissioner knowing full well that my opponent was a man of the highest type. Furthermore, I found him to be a straight shooter at all times.

I want to assure every person in Midland County that I am going to put forth my best efforts to serve you well while in office.

I again thank you.

CARD OF THANKS

From the depths of my heart I want to thank each voter who voted for me in the election of July 26th and to all who voted for me in Saturday's election. I appreciate more than I can tell you for the vote you gave me.

I shall ever be grateful to my loyal friends who worked so faithfully for me. I shall ever cherish your confidence and the help you rendered me.

The election is now over and I wish my opponent every good wish for his administration. He shall have my support during his tenure of office for any movement he advocates for the development of Midland County and of the City of Midland.

To you who voted against me, I trust that I might have your friendship during the years to come.

Again let me thank each of you who voted for me in the primary of July 26th and also in the primary of Saturday.
