STERLING STRONGER ON PAPER

Mahoney Gives Late Summary of the State Races

BY TOM MAHONEY United Press Staff Correspondent DALLAS, Tex., July 21.—Governor Ross Sterling will be renominated, perhaps without a runoff, if Texas voters cast their ballots as Texas newspaper editors advise them.

Many papers like the Dallas News and Austin American, which took editorial stands only in the governor race, chose Sterling. Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, however, is not without editorial support.

Tom Hunter has several advocates, some as far from his home as the Del Rio News, M. E. Foster, Houston Press editor, advocated no candidate in his paper but wrote that he preferred Hunter as a personal choice.

The race of James V. Allred and Clem Calhoun for attorney general will be the closest on the ballot according to the poll.

Those backing Allred include: Tyler Courier-Times, Houston Post, El Paso Herald-Post, Childress Index, Kaufman Herald, Cleburne Times-Review, Mart Herald, Lufkin News, Brownwood Bulletin, Center News, Lubbock Post, Amarillo Journal-Breckenridge American, Denton Record-Chronicle, Kilgore News, Lampasas Leader, Palestine Press, Yoakum Herald, Edinburg Review, The Arkansas Press, Texarkana Gazette-News and others.

Charles N. Shaw was favored by a majority for state superintendent of public instruction over L. A. Woods, but the latter has support.

A runoff between C. V. Terrell and Lee Satterwhite was indicated in the long term railroad commission contest.

William Pierson received the most choices in the associate supreme court justice race but not more than those of J. E. Hickman, next, and Ocie Speer added.

Pink Parrish, Joe W. Bailey Jr. and Julien C. Hyer received the most choices for places 1, 2 and 3, congressional-at-large but none had a majority over their numerous opponents.

Lawrence Westbrook ranked next to Parrish in place 1 and Chelsey Jurney, Ernest C. Ozro Cox and W. E. McKinne Williams had the support of many.

Oscar Holcomb was second in place 2 but considerably behind Bailey. Mrs. Phebe K. Warner and W. H. Hays were not far behind Holcomb.

A close race was indicated in place 3. Hyer was only a few votes ahead of J. E. Boos-Scott and Ben F. Hariger, Douglas McGregor and W. E. Bill Lee were close behind.

The three Texas Scripps-Howard papers supported wet candidates for congress-at-large but none had a majority upon all of them.

The El Paso Herald-Post selected Jurney, Bailey and McGregor while the Houston Press chose Westbrook, Warner and McGregor.

The prohibition question, however, had apparently no bearing on most of the choices. A great many editors supported two wets and a dry or vice versa in the congress-at-large contests.

Electrocuted as He Strings Wire FT. WORTH, July 21. (UP)—I. L. Van Zandt, jr., 48, Fort Worth city secretary and treasurer, was electrocuted last night while attempting to string a wire from his garage to a rabbit pen.

His wife and his mother-in-law discovered the body when they were aroused about midnight from a political gathering.

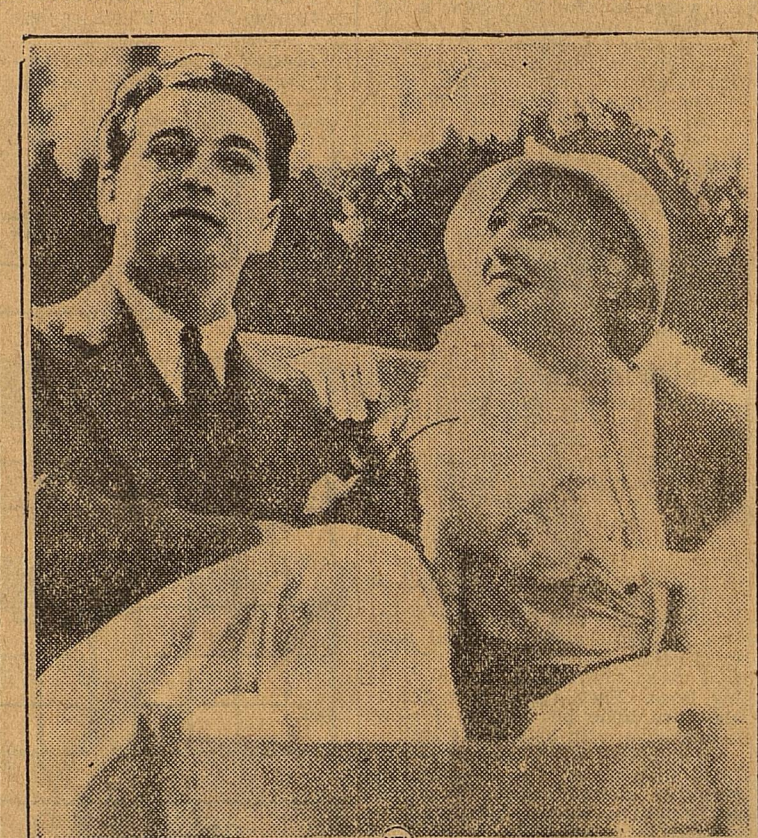

Van Zandt was a grandson of Isaac Van Zandt, Texas republican ambassador to Washington, and a nephew of Major K. M. Van Zandt, famous pioneer Texan.

DRILLER ROBBED HOUSTON, July 21. (UP)—H. C. Hines, Longview drilling contractor, was robbed this morning three miles from here by two youthful hitchhikers who were picked up at Lufkin a short time later.

The pair awakened L. Humphries, Dallas truck driver, while he was sleeping in the back end of a truck, robbed him and tied him to a tree.

OFFICER AND OIL MAN MOVES BACK FROM EAST TEXAS

"Making proration effective in East Texas was the biggest thing in the country," said Major Harry Johnston, upon his return to Midland after spending almost a year at the head of the national guard unit there.

He pointed out the beneficial effect upon the oil business in West Texas from having the Etex pool adequately controlled.

Johnston said that he was proud of the fact that the national guard was able to assist in taking care of a delicate situation without the firing of a shot.

Major Johnston left here almost a year ago, having received a call suddenly when the governor decided to send troops to the oil fields which were suffering from lack of organization.

Working with A. B. Capers, former prorationing officer here, he was active in inaugurating and maintaining systematic production.

He and his family returned this week to make Midland their home, he taking up his duties with the Gulf Production company.

CANCELLATION BREAST-BEATERS TO MAKE WAR DEBTS ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON—War debts will creep in as an issue of the 1932 campaign unless there is some legislation which can be profitably capitalized.

The general attitude of the politicians will be to assert that the nations of Europe must pay to the last cent despite the rather general belief that some considerable reductions are going to be made after the elections.

Although the allies have agreed virtually to wipe out German reparations if they can make satisfactory debt readjustments with the United States, all progress on this important international issue, with its enormous economic implications, will be held up until we get that election over with.

The European countries, recognizing the difficulties of the Hoover administration, apparently will be discreet enough to make us no propositions for readjustment negotiations until the voters have done their stuff at the polls.

The Administration's Stand The republicans avoided any mention of the debts in their platform as devised at Chicago with the aid of the Hoover-Laval conference here.

Stimson, but they are in a position to reiterate the administration's expressed opposition to cancellation in case the democrats press them on the issue.

And if the European debtors hold off with their inevitable requests for reconsideration they will be able to say that the question hasn't even arisen and that the situation, as far as this government is concerned, consequently remains the same.

The same thing goes for the future of the Hoover moratorium, which has already expired but which will in all probability be extended before the first 1932-33 payments come due on December 15.

There will be plenty of time to

Editor's Note: The following article was prepared through request of The Reporter-Telegram by Homer W. Rowe, democratic county chairman. It is intended to assist those who are uncertain of election requirements and or marking their ballots properly.

It is the duty of every citizen to exercise his right of franchise and vote in every election in which he may be interested.

It is also the duty of every citizen to acquaint himself with the provisions of the law to ascertain whether or not he is a qualified voter and also to intelligently mark his ballot so that same will be properly counted.

Every person who shall have obtained to the age of 21 years, and who are 21 years of age the day before your twenty-first birthday, and who are a citizen of the United States and who has resided in this state one year next preceding this election and the last six months within the county or district in which he or she offers to vote, is deemed a qualified voter.

You are not entitled to vote in this primary if you are not 21 years old, notwithstanding you may become 21 years of age before the general election.

The constitution limits the rights of suffrage to citizens of the United States only. You must either be natural born or have your naturalization papers.

The residence of a single person is where he usually sleeps at night, and that of a married man is where his wife resides. The question of residence has been held to be a question of fact.

If a voter lives with his family in a certain town, and that though he owned a ranch which he considered his home, he had not lived on it since moving to town his residence is in such town.

Residence is lost by leaving a place and moving to some other place without a present intention of returning and is counted by remaining in such new place. The test is did the party remove from his home with the intention of abandoning it and with the further intention of residing in a new location.

Residents are required to pay a poll tax in the state of Texas as one of the qualifications for voting. The poll tax must be paid in the county where the voter resides on January 1, 1931 in order to vote in this election in July, 1932.

For instance, a person living in Ector county on January 1, 1931, and sometime during the year he has moved to Midland county, should therefore be assessed a poll tax in Ector county and although on January 1, 1932 he has moved to Midland county, he is not to be assessed a poll tax there.

It is possible for a person to be 22 years of age and be qualified to vote without paying a poll tax. A person not being 21 years of age on January 1, 1931, would not therefore be assessed a poll tax payable not later than January 31, 1932.

Persons entitled to vote in this election are those who have obtained the age of 22 years.

A person moving to Texas from another state who is otherwise qualified to vote and has resided in this state and in this county for 12 months and six months respectively, is entitled to vote without the payment of poll tax.

Those exempt from poll tax are persons more than 60 years of age, or those blind or deaf or dumb, or permanently disabled, or those who have lost one hand or one foot.

The voter should mark out the names of those candidates he does not wish to vote for by drawing a line through those names with a pencil or ink. Care should be taken to see that the lines you draw clearly mark out the ones you do not wish to vote for, leaving unmarked the names you do wish to vote for.

Your particular attention is called to a number of names of certain officers in this election and you should exercise due care to mark out all those you do not wish to vote for and not touch the name with your pen or pencil that you wish to vote for.

These clerks can readily ascertain and count your ballot as you desire same. To mark a ballot with an "X" by the side of a name is not sufficient and where there are only two candidates for an office the counting board cannot say whether you have "X"ed" or not, or whether you wanted to vote against him. By marking a ballot with an "X" by the side of a name your ballot will not be counted.

If you have made an error in scratching a name you do not wish to vote for, you should mark it out with a pencil.

Payments due us in 1932-33 amount to $270,000,000, of which $195,000,000 is chargeable to interest. Most of the debt agreements provide that the debtors, on giving 90 days' notice, may postpone the payments on account of principal for from two to three years.

The interest payments amount to so much more than the principal payments that there is some doubt how extensively this provision will be utilized this year.

Congress' Hostile Attitude Europe has been advised that this government would be emphatically opposed to any "united front" debt settlement, although during the Hoover-Laval conference here she was assured of revisions if she could get straightened out on reparations.

The extreme hostility of congress and its refusal to revive the debt funding commission have made the situation tougher for the administration and it is certain that the debtors will be able to get their debts scaled down and not to apply one by one and not in a group.

The only apparent chance of a general debt agreement would occur from Hoover's well known position that there should be substantial debt reduction whenever debt reductions are made.

BONUSERS MAY MAKE CAMPAIGN

Plan Barnstorming Of U. S. to Get More Support

WASHINGTON, July 21. (UP)—Roy W. Robertson, leader of the "death watch" capitol picket last week, said he may start his 500 bonusers on a trip, barnstorming the United States in a campaign for bonus legislation, within 48 hours.

"To hell with sitting around doing nothing but 'manhandling' a living," he said. "We need action."

Trial of John Pace, Walter Ecker and Beckwith E. Johnson, arrested yesterday in the clash between bonusers and police, was continued until Tuesday at request of Pace. The three, failing to make bond, were remanded to jail.

TO EVACUATE CITY, IF PLANS GO OVER WASHINGTON, July 21. (UP)—Police Chief Glassford began today an attempt to effect evacuation of bonusers from Washington. He ordered Camp Glassford, a series of barracks hastily occupied by 1,500 bonusers, evacuated within three days.

He then directed precinct captains to arrest many veterans now making their living as unlicensed peddlers.

TROOPS DUE TO RELIEVE FEVER IN MINE CLASH

DUGGER, Ind., July 20. (UP)—Twenty-two Hoosier miners were huddled in the Hoosier mine near here, waiting for three companies of national guardsmen to life a siege of 1,000 unemployed union miners around Sweetwater Monday and Tuesday.

Officers visited the mine for a conference. Governor Harry G. Leslie of Indiana originally intended to accompany the troops but remained behind. The union men, unemployed since expiration of wage contracts March 31, hoped for arrest in order to secure food.

Rotarians Report On S. W. Conference Reports of the conference of Rotary club presidents and secretaries, held at Sweetwater Monday and Tuesday, were given at the Rotary luncheon today by Percy J. Mims, Clyde V. Barron, Dr. W. E. Ryan, W. I. Pratt and Fred Womple.

Dr. W. E. Ryan gave a report on the sanitary conditions maintained at Pagoda pool, which is under Rotary club supervision, telling of the favorable report following an examination by state health authorities.

COME TO ELECTION PARTY

How would you like a free ringside seat to The Reporter-Telegram's election party Saturday night? Mike Connor and Frank Smith have courteously agreed to rig up a radio amplifying system to be placed on the porch roof of the newspaper office.

Texas Election Bureau telegraph results will be amplified by the Connor broadcast unit. Two amplifying horns will be turned at an angle so that people parked in their automobiles a block away should be able to hear clearly, provided there is not too much static.

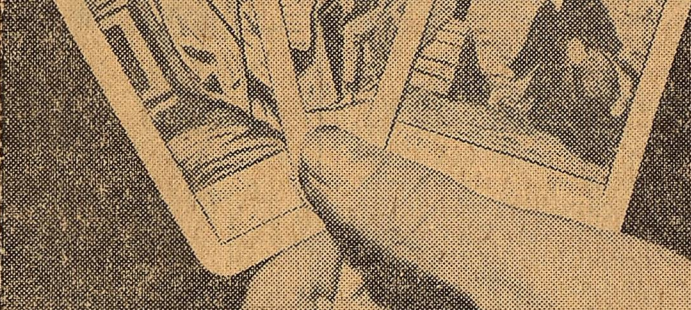

Phonograph records will be played between announcements. The broadcast should begin at 7:30, and West Missouri street in the 100 block will be blocked off from traffic so that all will have plenty of room. Cars may park across the street south on vacant blocks.

Invite your friends and let's make it the biggest election party ever held in Midland.

Pistol shots punctuated the village quiet last night and this morning as Midland residents undertook to protect their property.

W. C. Tatum, 1700 W. College, and a party of men engaged in trying to steal his car exchanged pistol shots about 3:30 this morning, and S. M. Francis emptied his gun in the general direction taken by chicken thieves.

PISTOL SHOTS SHATTER THE NIGHT AS THIEVES AND PROPERTY OWNERS STAGE BATTLE OVER POSSESSIONS

After Tatum had fired into the front of an automobile, the persistent thief roared away in another car, and a few minutes later, took a 1930 Ford coupe, license number 938693 from J. M. Caldwell, 222 South H. Boot tracks were left at both the Caldwell and Tatum home.

Tatum was aroused from sleep by continual circling of his block by two cars, which appeared to be an old Buick sedan and a small coupe. The coupe had two men in it and Tatum believes there were three men in the sedan. He took his pistol and went out on the porch after becoming suspicious. The cars continued to circle the block, finally parking further up the street. Tatum went back into the house to get his field glasses, hoping to watch the action of the thieves better. He did not bring his gun back. A man got out of the coupe and walked down the street to the Tatum car and climbed in. The coupe came by and began pushing it. Tatum started in to the house to get his gun, and was handed it by his wife, who had come to the front door. Tatum started out on the porch after being handed such a chatter that the man in the Tatum car leaped out and made his escape. The driver of the coupe whipped around and started to drive off. Tatum fired and drew a shot in reply. Because Mrs. Tatum was standing behind him, a bullet whizzed around and started to circle the block. The car drove away.

CHARLES MORRIS, OPPONENT OF J. FERGUSON, DIES

WINNSBORO, July 21. (UP)—Charles H. Morris, 71, unsuccessful gubernatorial opponent of James E. Ferguson in 1916, prominent East Texas banker, died this morning after a short illness. Morris came here from Pittsburgh. He established a private bank, served as president for thirty years and continued afterward as chairman of the board of directors. He was a director of the Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas railways.

Scottish Officer Visiting Midland; Owns 200 Sections

"We Scotchmen teach you Americans one of our oldest games, and you come over each year and knock me out of our best exploits of it."

That was Lieut. Charles William Brabazon Urmsion, officer of a Scottish kiltie regiment, who is taking advantage of a leave of absence to look over holdings in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico. He is visiting Midland a few days this week as a guest of Leon Goodman.

He was referring to golf. Urmsion owns more than 200 sections in Mexico. He has leased this, and confines his activity to the traditional life of a British officer. Three years in Eton, a period in Cambridge and then a military life—that sort of thing.

He can't quite get the American slant on prohibition. "You don't have any such thing here," he said. He can't understand the value of trying to enforce prohibition.

"The boys and girls of this country are much different from those of the British Isles as a result of this abnormal condition," he said. "We never see girls and boys under the influence of liquor, and in all my life I never saw more than forty women drunk—any place, any time. One can drink when he likes or virtually wherever he likes, but the spectacle of a drunken person is seldom met."

Urmsion is the only scion of his family, and the only man in Europe who bears his name. He is 23 and says he will disregard parental admonition to "For the sake of all that is holy, get married and carry on."

IDENTITY OF VICTIM UNKNOWN

Decapitated Body Is Found Here Early This Morning

The mangled and dismembered body of an unidentified youth was found on the Texas & Pacific right of way inside the east city limits shortly after 1 o'clock this morning by two hoboes who had been with the youth a few hours before his death.

The three had gone to sleep near the negro hotel crossing, lying within about 10 feet of the tracks. They intended catching a freight later in the morning, according to Andrew Owens and I. L. Murdock.

A freight, pulled by engine number 650 running east went by about 1:30. The engine had already passed when Owens and Murdock awakened. They missed the third member of the group and began looking about. They found the decapitated torso and ran for town to inform officers. A searching party headed by Peace Justice E. C. Girdley, Police Chief Andy Norwood, and Newmie Ellis, undertaker, found the scattered remains, the head lying more than 100 yards from where the body was struck. One foot was found about 8 o'clock this morning, but the other has not been found.

Evidently, the engine crew was not aware of the tragedy. The train continued and the information was relayed to railroad officials later.

According to the report by Owens, 620 Southeast Fifth street, Oklahoma City, and Murdock, Route 3, Joplin, Mo., the boys had been asleep several hours. The victim, whose body was not found, no identification of himself, not even his first name, had been reading ghost stories earlier in the day. The other two presume he was frightened by the train coming directly in front of it as it bore down through the darkness. He had said he was bound for Montana, though he said nothing about living there. Owens was head for Los Angeles, Murdock to Alpine, where his uncle, Jim Miles, lives.

Peace Justice Girdley held an inquest and sent a letter of desecration to the broadcast from WBAF, Fort Worth radio station. He described the victim as weighing from 150 to 158 pounds, having reddish-brown hair, small ears, light complexion, small feet, probably 7 or 7-2 size, strong teeth and no dental work. He said the boy must have been from 17 to 21 years old and from 5 feet 8 to 9-1.2 inches.

A staff photographer, Duard Scott, of The Reporter-Telegram took several pictures at the morgue for identification purposes.

The body was buried this afternoon after brief services at the Ellis mortuary.

A VACATION BET WE ARE OVERLOOKING

Governor Roosevelt's attempt to find rest and solitude at sea on a 40-foot yawl may have been slightly frustrated by the presence of that yachtful of politicians and reporters who followed him from the moment his cruise began; but the trip is at least, for the rest of us, a reminder of the extreme amount of pleasure which a man can get out of a boat in the summertime.

The United States ought to be one of the greatest nations of boating enthusiasts in the world. It has vast ocean coastlines, a surpassingly charming stretch of shoreline on the Great Lakes, rivers in abundance and thousands upon thousands of small lakes.

But the automobile has turned most of our attention to dry land. When we plan a vacation, we usually plan to spend it on wheels instead of on the water. Most of us are utterly ignorant of the fun that can be got out of a small boat.

At the dawn of this country we were a little bit more aware of the possibilities. Nearly every lake of any size had its fleet of gay motor-launches and sailboats. Such lakes as Lake Minnetonka, for instance, in Minnesota, were criss-crossed by fleets of little steamships which carried the summer cottagers to and from town. The family that lived on or near a lake or river either had its own boats or paid to go riding on someone else's. There were elaborate regattas in tiny towns that boasted neither rich inhabitants nor ornate yacht clubs.

Today the picture is different. Most of the little steamers that once plied the little lakes are gone. The vacationers use the water to swim in—but when they go on a picnic they load themselves and their baskets into an automobile instead of a boat.

One of these days we'll wake up. We'll discover once more the pleasure that a boat can provide, whether the boat be a canoe, an ancient catboat, a snappy speedboat or an ornate cruiser. When we do the boat-building fraternity will cash in—and we ourselves will wonder why we ever neglected one of the finest kinds of recreation available.

MODERN PRISONS AND ARCHAIC LAWS

It isn't always enough for an enlightened state to build one of those new modern prisons. Occasionally a state discovers that such a prison can't be used unless the state's penal code is revised too.

California's model prison must remain empty. A year ago the state appropriated half a million dollars to build a new prison for women. The prison is a model affair. It has no surrounding walls. It looks more like a comfortable ranch than a corrective institution. It was designed to give its inmates a chance to rebuild their lives without the usual handicap of prison surroundings.

But now, with the prison finished, the state finds it can't transfer any prisoners to it—because an old provision of the penal code provides that prisoners must be lodged behind walls and bars. Until that archaic law is amended, California's model prison must remain empty.

PARENTS' LIABILITY

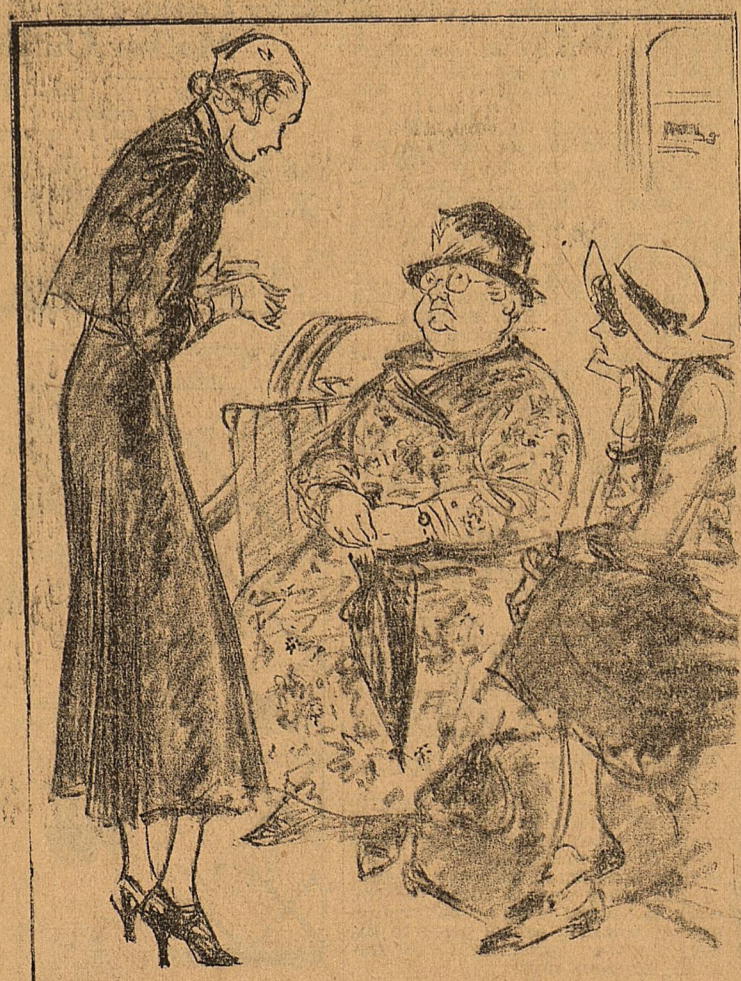

The grand jurors of Kings county, New York, presented a novel and interesting suggestion the other day in a report on juvenile delinquency problems handed to Judge Alonzo G. McLaughlin.

Declaring that present laws governing juvenile delinquency need drastic revision, the jurors remarked:

"We recommend a law to enforce compulsory morality in the home, to the effect that parents and guardians may be held responsible for the delinquent acts of children under their care, not only in the children's court but in the magistrate's court as well, where they may be prosecuted and fined."

There is a certain amount of good, sound common sense in that. Making a parent legally liable for the misbehavior of his children ought to make some empty-headed fathers and mothers think more seriously than they have ever done before about the responsibilities of parenthood.

What Do Movie Stars Do With Money, Asks Assessor

BY DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—What do the movie stars do with their money?

A great many people have wondered about that for a long time. But right now it's the Los Angeles county tax assessor who is the most perplexed of all.

According to the personal property assessments for the current year, a great many of our reputedly wealthy screen stars really have very few possessions. Just what they do with those four-figure weekly pay checks is hard to say.

Charlie Chaplin has more wealth in ready cash and negotiable securities than any other person in this county according to the records. His stocks and bonds at the present market prices are valued at $7,687,570. Added to this is $295,600 in cash and solvent credits and a $700 automobile.

He denies that he is worth so much, however, placing his wealth at approximately one-fourth the recorded figure.

That doesn't sound like much of a car for a man in Chaplin's position, does it? But wait! Greta Garbo's car has a value of only $220, according to the assessor. Aside from that auto, all she has is $122,010 in stocks and bonds.

And as for poor Gloria Swanson—we're just about ready to shoot tears for her. After all the millions she has earned, the only thing she has in the world as far as the tax assessor could determine is a golden harp valued at $350. Wonder who really owns her automobile and all that beautiful furniture in her Beverly Hills mansion?

It happens that the worst. There's nothing to do but to break right out crying for poverty-stricken Constance Bennett. This charming actress who has earned as high as $10,000 a week has no personal wealth at all outside of furniture assessed at $200.

What a contrast between Connie and the simpering Joan Crawford, who never has been within reach of Connie in regard to salary. Yet she has one of the classic cars in Hollywood, judging from its value of $1100. Besides that, she has a piano valued at $2000.

I don't know just what Connie does for transportation because I happen to know what she owns: neither roller skates nor a bicycle. Douglas Fairbanks owns stocks and bonds listed at $998,000, but the bulk of his property is in real estate, as is that of Mary Pickford.

Apparently the best furnished home in the film colony is Harold Lloyd's. His furniture is valued at $102,940. In addition to that he has stocks and bonds worth $174,450 and two automobiles assessed at $700 each.

The records also show that personal property of the film stars compares favorably with that of California's industrial magnates. E. L. Doheny, reputed to be the wealthiest man in Southern California, owns furniture worth only $26,500—only about one-fourth the value of Lloyd's. However, Doheny also owns pictures worth 20,000 and a yacht valued at $100,000.

Great Musicians Signed by Simmons

ABILENE—West Texas music lovers will hear two of the world's greatest artists next season as a result of engagements made by the Simmons university artist agent, Serge Rachmaninoff, pianist, second only to Paderewski in world renown, and Fritz Kreisler, world's most famous violinist, will appear at the Simmons auditorium during the winter season.

Rachmaninoff is scheduled for January 27 and Kreisler for February 1.

This will be the only West Texas appearance of either of these artists next year. Attempts have been made for four years to get the famous Kreisler to this section of the state, but this is the first time it has been done.

"In engaging these world famed musicians," the artist course committee said, "we are continuing our policy of trying to bring to West Texas the very highest type of entertainment possible. Efforts are being made to get two other top-notchers—John McCormack and Harry Lauder. If signed up, they will probably appear in spring and fall respectively."

French Propose Wings for Man

Wings for Man

PARIS, (UP)—Dr. Magnan, of the College de France, and Dr. Saint-Lague, of the Conservatory of Crafts and Trades, have undertaken to establish some direct relation between the flying powers of birds and winged insects and the possibilities of their imitation by man.

The work of these two scientific research men has revealed that there may yet be some truth that fiction in the legend of Icarus, son of Daedalus, who, after attaching the wings to himself which his father made him to fly across the Aegean Sea, flew too close to the sun so that the wax with which they were fastened on, melted off, and he went down in history as the first unsuccessful trans-oceanic flyer, while his father landed safely on the other side and went on about his business. A modern study of the flying powers of birds and bugs has convinced these two scientists that the day will yet dawn when man will be able to fly on wings of his own manufacture and by his own arm-power.

According to their calculations, wings could be constructed for the flight of a human being which would make his flight possible if the proper distribution of weight and movement could be obtained. Their findings include the fact that a sort of lunging motion which alternately drops and lifts their bodies between the wings, supplies the proper action for flight of birds, combined with adjusted wing movements. The scientists theorize that a man weighing 100 kilograms, in order to equal the wings, and flapping 13 to 20 times every second would be able to maintain himself in mid-air with a power of one-eighth horsepower.

The complete report of the two Frenchmen, as outlined above, has been presented to the French Academy of Sciences, and is being studied by other scientists of that body of savants with the view to adopting and perfecting any practical features the proposed new type of aviation may contain.

Historic Fort To Be Rebuilt

VERDUN, France. (UP)—Historic Fort Douaumont, one of the ring of 28 forts which made Verdun the turning point of the French defenses during the World war and prevented the capture of the city despite four years of pounding, is being rebuilt.

Douaumont and Vaux were the two fortresses which suffered most from the German artillery, for they were pointed at the advancing lines. Each today is a shambles, with little but a pile of stone to mark the site of a great fort. The underground workings are a reef filled with water, but the sites remain of dominating military value. For that reason, laborers have started to rebuild the great steel and reinforced concrete casemates inside of which will be placed new guns.

Just behind Fort Douaumont is the ossuary of Douaumont, in which are the bones of 40,000 French war dead, of whom only 80,000 have been identified. This ossuary is now nearing completion, and will be inaugurated by President Albert Lebrun on Aug. 7.

Likes Sierras 'Cause of Air

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)—California's youngest girl flyer would rather pilot her plane over the Sierra Nevada than any other region, for the air's bumper and it's more fun.

Esther McCollum, 17, of Lovatton, received her student permit to fly when she was 16, in Reno, Nev., where she learned the piloting job with the aid of Howard Firebaugh. She has eight hours solo time to her credit and plans to get her license this month.

Investigation, which followed the discovery of the theft, revealed that an insurance policy, which partly covered the theft, was also missing. The following day, however, the policy was found in the post office with the words "Good Luck" scrawled on it.

Adding another characterization to the variety he has already brought to the screen, James Cagney comes to the Yucca theatre today in the role of pugilist with Park Avenue aspirations in his latest Warner Bros. picture, "Winner Take All."

Cagney is seen as an up and coming prize fighter whose health suffers as the result of dissipation. Going to a rest home in New Mexico to recuperate he meets a former night club entertainer with whom he falls in love.

"Winner Take All" moves at the speed of a championship bout from opening scene to finale.

The supporting cast includes Marian Nixon as the first love of the pug who later becomes infatuated with the society girl portrayed by Virginia Bruce.

Roy Del Ruth, who directed Cagney's past successes, "Blonde Crazy" and "Taxi," directed "Winner Take All."

English Train Breaks Record

LONDON. (UP)—A new record for the fastest train journey in the world was made recently by the "Cheltenham Flyer" of the Great Western road.

This beat last year's record, made over the same route, of 80.7 miles per hour.

For 70 miles of the trip the train actually averaged 87.5 miles per hour. So much ahead of its usual speedy schedule was the "Cheltenham Flyer" that it reached some of the towns at the time when it was supposed just to have passed the last one.

Acceleration was so great that 80 miles per hour speed was attained five minutes after a standing start.

SIX OF NEARBY COUNTIES AIDED THROUGH ROADS

ODESSA—The six counties of Ector, Andrews, Gaines, Terry, Hookley and Lubbock are reaping the benefits of much activity and a marked increase in employment due to the construction now under way all through this area on the State Highway No. 137, which runs north from Odessa to the city of Lubbock.

The appropriation has already been made for the placing of the seal coat of asphalt, the finishing touch on the Ector county portion of the highway north from Odessa to the Ector-Andrews line. This final coating will make the road much smoother than it has been for the past few months, with the rough coat already applied.

is to make up the plans for Highway 137 across Terry county and the strip across the corner of Hookley county.

Lubbock Near Completion. From the Hookley county line to the city of Lubbock, highway 137 is nearly completed. The caliche base is now nearly down and it should be ready for the hot topping in a short time.

Finished by June, 1933. Highway 137, from Lubbock on the north to McCamey on the south, should be completed by June of 1933, according to a conservative estimate.

The first step ever taken toward developing what is now becoming State Highway 137, according to Judge Henry E. Webb, now county judge of Ector county, was taken some seven years ago. Judge Webb who was then a member of the state legislature, borrowed a state grader and tractor, and starting on the south end of the present highway, at McCamey, started grading the route between McCamey and Odessa. The counties and chamber of commerce along the route pitched in and furnished sufficient money for the completion of the first graded road along the route of the now hard-surfaced highway.

In 1927 the first hard-surfaced stretch of 137 was built, from Odessa south to the Crane county line, to facilitate the heavy oil field traffic between Odessa and the Crane fields.

In December of 1930 Ector county voted $200,000 worth of bonds for the building of the north half of Ector county's portion of the highway, from Odessa to the Ector-Andrews line. This portion has been completed, with use of only $140,000 worth of the bonds and the remaining $60,000 worth have been destroyed.

Andrews, Gaines and other counties along the line from Odessa to Lubbock have since fallen into line. The route was tentatively designated in late 1930, as State Highway 137, and has since been positively designated.

Hooks and Slides By William Braucher

The old alignments are breaking down. Uncle Robbie is out as manager of the Robins. McGraw, who picked up the Giants in last place in 1903, leaves them in last place in 1932. A sick ball team. And McGraw a sick man.

Now only Mack is left of the old line of baseball. When will he relinquish his Athletics to the guidance of Eddie Collins? Pretty soon. Not now, though, with his team trying to get to the top. Tomorrow, maybe.

My picture of McGraw always will be of him enthroned on that rickety bench in San Antonio. The White Sox were training there, too, and the teams played each other almost daily. McGraw had just arrived from Havana and was trying to whip his club into shape. The word whip is a good word here. McGraw's tongue was a stinging lash.

Training Camp Crisis. It was the sixth inning and the score was tied. There were none down and a Giant was on first base. McGraw sat on the edge of the bench as if it were a hot stove. Sternly, and with as much concentration as he might bring to bear upon the deciding game of a world series, McGraw glared at the men about him.

It was at such a time that I approached him to "have a little talk" about the Giants. He was having some pitching trouble and I wondered what he was going to do about it. I came around the corner of the dugout and looked the old master mind right in the eye.

McGraw minced no words. His greeting was unmistakable. "Get out!" he roared. "I got out. A short time later I met dear old Bozeman Bulger, whose recent death shocked the baseball world. Boze was McGraw's ghost writer. I asked Boze if John was peevish about something, and told him of the rousing reception he had given this inquiring reporter."

He's Serious About It. "I could have told you that," said Boze. "I wouldn't go up to him on the bench and I have known him more years than I am willing to admit. He sits on the bench to run that ball club. You couldn't sell him Babe Ruth for a dime when he's out there thinking up things for his club to do. But we'll go over to the hotel and see him tonight."

That night McGraw, smiling, told me he thought I was an insurance agent of a catcher from Toledo. He talked for hours about his team, and his old teams.

McGraw realized in the last few weeks that a mistake he was making in trying to direct the Giants by remote control. Every day he would send carefully detailed instructions to the park, so and so was to start, and if the need came for relief, so and so was to go into the box.

Blind Direction. He ordered these movements without knowing the condition of his men. He had no knowledge of the circumstances, and was making some of the choices seem silly. The Giants did not function under this absentee master-minding. They slipped into the cellar, even though they were the best hitting club in the league.

McGraw hated to give up, but it was the only thing to do. He would have loved to have gone on fighting, but it was physically impossible. He yielded as gracefully as he could, after running the team for 30 years. It was expected the manager's job would go to Bancroft. When McGraw announced Terry would have the job, there was some surprise.

But McGraw always loved to surprise. He was a surprising sport. PRETTY MEAN TRICK. DENVER—Nick Arellano, 44, was notified that his sister had died. Nick wanted to attend the funeral in Walsenburg, but he was without funds. He hopped a freight and, before it pulled out, was arrested by Patrolmen V. I. Boham and Lawrence Stone, and given a 30-day sentence in jail. Friends succeeded in getting Nick out, but he was too late for his sister's funeral.

ATLANTA—Cops answered a riot call on Peachtree street and found it raining a shower of building bricks. The cause of the rain was an inebriated gentleman who, according to Officers F. L. Tippen and W. C. Nix, was tearing apart a chimney on the roof of a three-story building and hurling them at anyone who chanced to pass on the street below.

9-Year-Old Child One of Campaign Leaders of Jack

UVALDE, July 21. (UP)—A pretty nine-year-old Texas miss who is directing the campaign of John N. Garner among the younger set of Uvalde delivered him cheerful news about political conditions when he arrived here this week.

Miss Genevieve Garner, the speaker's granddaughter and the only child of the speaker and Mrs. Garner's son, Tully Garner, has been campaigning for "Paw Paw," her nickname for the democratic vice presidential nominee, since the close of the democratic convention in Chicago.

Small, black-haired with brown eyes, Miss Garner has organized her campaign along the lines of the major parties. Her two lieutenants are Emily Ann Alvey and Betty Belle Smyth, the daughter of the mayor of Uvalde. She believes in personal contact with her public and has made her daily pony rides, missions of vote-getting for "Paw Paw."

"Paw Paw" has some good ideas to help all the people in the country so that the depression will end," she seriously told her lieutenants when the campaign was begun. "Paw Paw" is good to me, I like him, and I think he would make us a good vice-president.

And her two little friends nodded their heads in assent. The daily pony rides were no innovation for Miss Genevieve. She has been riding for four years and personally cares for "Dixie," her sure-footed little mount.

A lover of the out-of-doors she is happiest when she accompanies the speaker on his horse-back rides or goes fishing with him. The speaker has said he likes to have her with him on fishing trips, that she baits her own hook and lands her own catch.

Next to being out-of-doors she enjoys working with her mother about the house. Genevieve is in the fifth grade at school. Her classmates have been reminded that they must tell their parents to vote for her grandfather and to make certain her campaign is effective she has called on the parents of many.

Genevieve has a picture of Speaker and Mrs. Garner on the mantel-piece in her room. And in Washington, the speaker has her photograph on his desk.

"Paw Paw" Garner has been generous in sending Miss Genevieve presents from Washington. Arrival of the postman at the Garner home with a package for Miss Genevieve is a signal for a gathering of her friends to ascertain what has been sent. Before congress adjourned this year the speaker sent her a collection of goods. She had them arranged in her room for exhibition to show "Paw Paw" when he and Mrs. Garner got home.

Occasional visits to Washington and to the home have thrilled Miss Genevieve, but she said she likes Uvalde best where she has her pony and her terrier, "Tags."

One of her most prized possessions is in her "bag." A greetings from the late Nicholas Longworth, who was speaker of the house until his death. It reads:

"Jan 9, 1929

"For Genevieve: With the warm and affectionate regards of her grandmother's sincere admirer and her grandfather's sincere critic.

(Signed) "Nicholas Longworth, 'Speaker H. of R.'"

Aviation Helps Kansas Rancher

KANSAS CITY (UP)—Thomas Wolfe lives in Kansas City and runs a 60,000-acre ranch in Wyoming.

He owns 40,000 acres near Medicine Bow and has 20,000 acres more under lease. Meanwhile he occupies the position here of district traffic manager for United Airline, and also directs traffic activities for the Kansas City, Oklahoma City and Tulsa offices of the company.

The remote control ranching, he says, is made possible by organization, a comprehensive system of reports, rapidity of air transport and an efficient manager on the ranch.

He points out that it is possible to send the reports back and forth in ten hours by air mail, and if necessary he can make a week-end personal call at the ranch.

Wolfe started ranching on a comparatively small scale before he became interested in aviation eight years ago. A native of Wyoming, he was running a sheep ranch when he went to Chicago and became an aviation enthusiast.

Wolfe was secretary of the commission in Chicago that required and constructed the municipal airport there; secretary of the aeronautics commission of the Chicago Association of Commerce; and active in the formation of the National Air Transport, Inc.

He found it easy to acquire more land and expand his ranching until it reached the present size. The ranch has nearly 12,000 head of sheep, 100 head of cattle and 75 horses. Thirty men are employed.

Tear Gas Bombs Rout Red Rioters at St. Louis

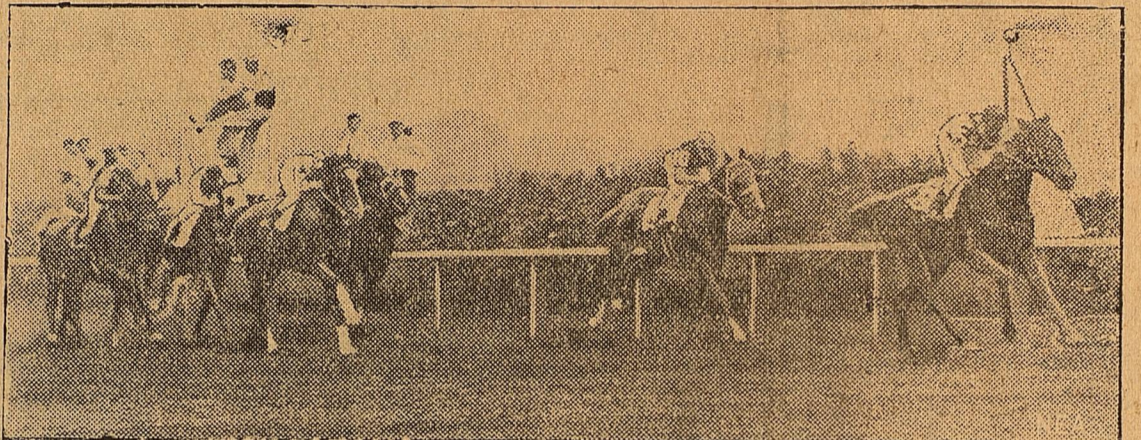

Four men were shot and more than a score injured in a hand-to-hand battle between police and a crowd of Communists who stormed the city hall at St. Louis, Mo., to demand relief from aldermen and the mayor. In the above picture, two policemen are seen hurling tear gas bombs at the retreating demonstrators. One of the bombs is indicated by the arrow. Eight detectives and a patrolman were injured before the crowd estimated at 1000, was dispersed. Forty alleged rioters were arrested. An order prohibiting public Communist meetings was issued by police following the riot.

Setting of Lost Battalion Found

VAARENS, France (UP)—A searching party in the Apremont woods of the Argonne forest has uncovered the whole setting of one of the most dramatic incidents of the World War, the fight against circling Germans, thirst and hunger of the famed American "Lost Battalion."

Under the leaves of 13 autumn, the searchers found remains of at least one of the American heroes.

As searchers brushed away the leaves and cut through the young saplings that have choked the forest, they found on the north side of the gully between Einarville and Apremont historic evidence of the great struggle.

The side of the hill is honey-combed with "foxholes," cut into the shale and just large enough to hide a man. There 600 men took cover when they found that they had lost contact with their own troops. Only 194 came out alive.

Even after 13 years it is possible to picture the heroic struggle of the besieged men. In the "kitchen" hole is a great rusted can, punched full of holes, which shows that the cooks sought to build a fire and heat water for coffee and tea.

All around are pieces of equipment, rusted bayonets, rifles, gas-masks. After hostilities, the bodies were taken to Romagne cemetery, but it was 13 years later before the setting of this dramatic action was found again and it will now be thoroughly hunted.

Monocles Rule German Cabinet

BERLIN. (UP)—The appointment of Franz von Papen's "monocle cabinet," mainly composed of members of the nobility, has called the public's attention to the influence of the old privileged classes.

There are certain branches of the administration in Germany where the preponderance of the nobility never has been seriously challenged, despite the revolution in 1918, which abolished all dynastic and feudal privileges.

Outstanding among such traditional domains of the nobility are the army and the foreign office.

Although most of the republic's foreign ministers were simple citizens, their staff remained resplendent with aristocratic names. Thus, of Germany's nine ambassadors, one is a count, two are barons (the third, Baron von Neurath, has just left his London post to assume the ministry), four are noblemen, and only one has no "von" to his name.

It may also be recalled that many of the lesser envoys belong to the nobility, especially those serving in countries where diplomatic service is most coveted among the career men.

wished to vote for, take the ballot back to the presiding judge, make such a statement and you will be given a new ballot on the surrender of the mutilated ballot.

You are entitled to three such mutilated ballots and after you have used three you are not entitled to any more and will be denied the right to vote. A torn ballot will be counted if it can be placed together and show beyond a doubt its number and for whom it was voted. A ballot will not be counted if you have with you at the time of voting, any paper, memorandum or list of names by which you are consulting in marking your ballot.

You are not to sign your name on the ballot either on the front or back. The election judge must sign his name on the back of every ticket and when you are presented with a ticket see that his name is on there, otherwise it will not be counted.

Talking to other voters in the election booths at the time of voting is against the law and persistence in this practice will cause you to be ejected from the voting place and refused the privilege of voting.

Election officers conducting the elections are under oath to conduct the election fairly and honestly and to uphold the purity of the ballot box. They are charged with the duty of allowing each citizen to express his choice so long as that citizen does not violate the law. They will not express to you either by word or sign or in writing their preference for any candidate or candidates and in order to save embarrassment each voter is requested not to consult and judge or clerk with reference to any candidate or candidates, nor any proposition which is being voted upon.

If you need assistance as to the marking of your ballot you may obtain same by applying to the presiding judge, but they can not and will not give you any assistance in the selection of the candidates.

The following are the election officers in Precinct 1: Earl J. Moran, Presiding Judge; Joe Youngblood, Assistant Presiding Judge.

Mrs. Harry Tolbert, Miss Cordelia Taylor, Mrs. Sam Ashley, Clerk.

Clifford Hill, A. L. Stevens, Don Davis, J. T. Baker and Dunn Reiger, Counting Board.

tion would be one way to make the latter more palatable.

Any movement toward repudiation will come from a "united front" position such as the allies appear to have reached at Lausanne, since no nation would dare repudiate alone because of the danger to its credit.

But there is thus far little talk of repudiation and this country remains on record, as announced by Chamber secretary of the Treasury, Mellon, to the effect that "capacity to pay" is still our basic debt policy and that whereas it would be an

NO PLACE FOR BUGGY

DENVER—That buggy rides are a thing of the past has been driven home to five persons who went for one of those old-fashioned trips on Denver's crowded streets recently. Mr. and Mrs. E. W. All passengers were hurled out and on to the pavement.
