ADMITS MURDER; SAYS HE KILLED EIGHTEEN HUNS

HOUSTON, September 22. (UP)—"I didn't give them a chance," said Jess Maple, paper hanger, at police headquarters today after he was arrested for the slaying of E. D. Fitzgerald, motorcycle officer, and the critical wounding of W. B. Phares.

"I started shooting as soon as I saw their uniforms. I was full of whisky but my aim was good. While 'sharpshooter' in the army, I killed 18 Germans," Maple said.

The officers were shot Saturday night while approaching a car in which Maple sat after holding up a furniture store. He was charged with murder, assault to murder, and three robbery-with-firearms charges.

Plans Perfected for Big Meeting of Independents

Complete plans for the meeting Tuesday night in the crystal room of Hotel Scharbauer of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas educational meeting were consummated upon arrival this morning of C. R. Hansen, field representative of the organization.

Hansen said that not only are land and royalty owners and independent oil producers invited to the meeting, but everyone who derives profit from the oil industry, and everyone else who is interested.

Th field representative comes to Midland from Pecos, where he organized a unit of the organization, which works throughout the state. Thirty counties have been campaigned educationally within the past few weeks.

Claude C. Wild, executive vice-president, will be in Midland early Tuesday morning, it is expected. The meeting will begin promptly at 8 o'clock that evening.

On February 22, 1930, a meeting of independents from throughout

Texas was held at the call of the Fort Worth operators, who already had formed an organization to assist the Independent Petroleum Association of America in sponsoring the tariff on oil in congress.

They told the meeting that there were many Texas problems in addition which required a statewide organization and offered to turn the Fort Worth organization over to such state organization as might be formed.

The Independent Petroleum Association of Texas was thereupon formed with Tom Cranfill of Dallas, president; Charles L. Morgan, Fort Worth, secretary and treasurer; Roy Westbrook, Fort Worth, vice president; L. D. Ladd, Fort Worth, vice president and Roy Jones, Wichita Falls, vice president, and various directors scattered throughout Texas.

At this meeting the association just formed arranged to go to Austin and ask for a common purchaser law. The Governor submitted it, and it passed the legislature, becoming a law, and goes into effect June 20, 1930.

Following the national convention in April the board of directors, looking towards a permanent organization, decided to create the office of executive vice president, to be in charge of general operations. On May 1, 1930, Claude C. Wild was elected to this office and took charge. On May 17th the Board of Directors met in Fort Worth and adopted a set of By-Laws and approved a "Statement of Purposes."

The present activities of the organization consists of: Securing proper regulations under the new pipeline law; building a permanent program of activities for all branches of the industry that effect the independents, whether he be a producer, royalty owner, refiner or distributor; building a statewide organization which can function for all parts of Texas by being able to represent all sections of the state; the carrying on an educational campaign not only to the oil men but to the general public.

In the meantime the president's son takes a leave of absence from his duties as vice president of the West Air Express. The sick man will stay at the president's Virginia mountain camp until frost comes and then he will return to Washington for further examinations.

Famous Pilot and Antique Plane Will Spend Night in Midland, Wire Says

Al Wilson, noted screen actor and stunt flyer, was flying to Midland for a night stop in his much publicized "antique crate," an old pusher type biplane, a telegram from Abilene said today this afternoon.

The plane is a 1910 Curtiss capable of reaching a top speed of nearly 40 miles an hour, as Wilson humorously said recently when climbing off his seat after a stunt exhibition at the National Air Races and Exposition.

TICKETS STILL TO BE SOLD

Texas Pacific Agrees To Run Train at Last Minute

The Midland grid special will be run.

Positive assurance of this was found in a statement issued just before noon by the chamber of commerce, which has been working "all hours" on the arrangements for the trip from Midland to El Paso for the football game to be played after supper Saturday.

Enough tickets were sold early this morning to warrant the train being run, conditioned only by the possibility of more sales.

Forty tickets must be sold yet, but it is believed that Midland will react to the call and take these. Sale of tickets will continue until the minimum sale set by the railway company for running the train is made. Supt. W. W. Lackey is concentrating on the sale of these at the high school.

"Ticket sales must continue unabatedly," an official said. "The very finest equipment will be given Midland people, including specified steel coaches, and the city must not fall down. Already there has been much comment about the civic pride of Midland for attempting to make the intersectional game one of such wide publicity."

Arrangements were made through Frank Jensen, general passenger agent of the T. & P. railroad. Negotiations were carried on through Station Agent J. J. Hamlett. It is hoped that more than 200 will ride the train.

B. F. Taylor and S. J. Vickers, Texas Electric Service employees, were among Midland people selling tickets to put over the grid special this morning.

OIL IMPORTERS RESPONSIBLE FOR STORAGE INCREASE

By CHARLES E. BOWLES Based on the output of the last 8 months and on the prorotation schedules now in force in the flush fields of Texas, Oklahoma and California, the total output of crude oil in the United States for the year of 1930 will be about 920,000,000 barrels according to estimates released today by the Independent Petroleum association of which Wirt Franklin is president.

This would be 85,000,000 barrels less oil than was produced in 1929—or an average decrease, in the oil fields of the United States, of 233,000 barrels a day.

In order to bring about such a tremendous decrease in daily production the operators in the major fields of the United States, and especially in the flush fields, have been producing crude oil, for months, under voluntary prorotation schedules. These rigid prorotation schedules will mean fewer barrels of crude oil produced by these companies in 1930, fewer dollars of gross income to each company and smaller dividends to their stockholders.

Throngs Acclaim New Ruler of Argentina

A glimpse of General Uriburu (in uniform, facing camera) during a tumultuous demonstration that followed his elevation to the presidency of Argentina, is shown above in the first picture of its kind to reach the United States. It was flown by airplane from Buenos Aires to New York and transmitted thence to Cleveland by NEA Service, which serves this newspaper. The general's rise to provisional president followed a successful revolution that ousted President Irigoyen.

CONSTRUCTION FOR PANTHERS HAVE A CHANCE TO WIN SERIES TODAY

FORT WORTH, Sept. 22. (P).—Following the announcement here yesterday by Lil Stoner, Fort Worth star pitcher, that his arm was useless as a result of injuries received in the Texas play-off with Wichita Falls, Memphis of the Southern association staged a comeback, defeating Fort Worth Panthers in the fourth game of the series, 4-1.

The Panthers won the first three, and if they win here today the series ends, as the winner must take four games. If Memphis wins today, tomorrow will be idle and the series resumed at Memphis Wednesday.

Work was started this morning toward putting booths and preparing displays in the John Scharbauer garage building on East Wall street, where the two day fair will be held. Two booths for mercantile or business establishments were still available today, a report from the chamber of commerce showed, and it was announced that the first to ask for the spaces would receive them. No charge is attached.

The building is now open so that merchants or farmers may install exhibits and booths at any time.

DR. THOMAS WILL ERECT BUILDING

Lease Contract Made For Structure on Loraine Street

Definite award of the lease contract for Midland's new post office was received this morning by Dr. John B. Thomas who will begin at once on construction of a new building on south Loraine street, adjoining the 6-story John B. Thomas building on the south.

The award follows negotiations which have been under way for several months wherein several Midland property owners have filed bids with the post office department to erect a new building to be leased to the government for this purpose.

Modern New Features The new structure will be built along lines prescribed by the post office department to house the increased business here, will be 39 by 130 feet in size, steam heated, well lighted and ventilated, and will have new and complete post office fixtures of the most modern type, allowing for maximum efficiency in handling mail in and out of Midland.

Entrance to the lobby will be at the northeast corner of the structure, adjoining the south wall of the office building. The lobby will extend down the greater part of the north side, with post office boxes arranged in similar manner to those of the present post office here. Approximately 200 additional boxes will be provided, with other units to provide space for sections of boxes as they are needed. There are 1,000 boxes in the present building, and more than 1,200 will be installed at the start in the new building.

Ample Work Rooms Officers and working quarters of the post office force will take in the greater part of the building, being situated on the south and extending to the east wall, specially constructed windows being planned on the east to provide privacy and at the same time beauty of architecture.

The building will be of fire proof construction and of architecture and color similar to the 6-story office building. Heat will be provided from the office building plant. Front of the new structure will be ornamental in keeping with government building style, having the flag pole usual to post office buildings.

It is expected that the building will be completed and ready for occupancy by December 1, a long term lease having been made with Dr. Thomas. He expects to let the general contract within the next few days.

1,000 PERSONS ATTEND CHURCH SERVICES HERE

Almost a thousand Midland people attended the various churches at their evening services last night. The Methodist attendance alone was approximately 600.

Sunday evening 130 attended the Baptist preaching service, 75 at the Presbyterian, 100 at the Christian and 60 at the Church of Christ.

EXPLOSION KILLS 4

TOLEDO, Sept. 22. (UP).—Four men were burned to death in a fire which swept the Carl J. Weber Manufacturing company plant here today. The fire was caused by explosion of a liquor still, the district fire chief said.

The only mystery about some detective stories is why the author is never shot.

ARE THEY USING POISON NOW?

It is more than usually startling to learn that poison caused the death of State Senator John T. Joyce in Chicago—who died, you may remember, two days before he was to have testified concerning gangland activities at the polls in the spring primaries.
Just at present the man in the street cannot quite tell whether this poison was self-administered or not; in other words, whether Senator Joyce committed suicide or was murdered.

THE END OF THE DEPRESSION

A definite pickup in American business this fall is predicted by Roger Babson, famous statistician, with the remark that "the tremendous drop registered by the Babson chart since last September must soon strike bottom if it has not already done so."
Thus Mr. Babson adds his authoritative voice to the growing chorus of optimism. Colonel Leonard P. Ayres is another authority who sees in the near future a return to normal conditions, and others are following suit. The whole nation will devoutly hope that these eminent prophets are not mistaken.

WORK, NOT CHARITY

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor seems to have hit the nail squarely on the head when he remarked that his organization would prefer steady jobs to unemployment insurance.
"It is only a step from compulsory unemployment insurance to the dole," he told an interviewer recently. "The best, the real remedy for unemployment is employment. We want jobs, not charity."
Mr. Green believes that this goal can be reached through the establishment of shorter working days and shorter working weeks and through a systematic balancing of production with demand, which would eliminate what is called cyclical unemployment.

DANGEROUS, BUT PICTURESQUE

The death in Dannemora prison of Oliver Curtis Perry, one-time train robber, recalls a career that was both violent and dangerous, but that at least had the merit of being picturesque.
Perry's last exploit took place in 1892, when he boarded the baggage car of a train at Lyons, N. Y., overpowered the train crew and took command of the engine. He put on speed and tried to escape, but the police got another engine, chased him and finally overtook him.
Then, taken to court, he was sentenced to prison for as long as he could see. This unusual sentence apparently stuck in his mind; five years after being imprisoned he tried to pick his eyes out with a needle, hoping to gain freedom. The only result, however, was that he was adjudged insane and put in solitary confinement.
Now it's all over. Perry was never a useful citizen, but he had, at any rate, a picturesque history.

ERRORGRAMS

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scramble by switching the letters around and word below—and unscramble you bat.

A Winner Anyway!

English Poet, Once Famous, Pays Price Of Oblivion for Verse Belittling Women

By MILTON BRONNER, NEA Service Writer.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Because of one short poem he wrote more than 20 years ago, Sir William Watson, who was once hailed as one of England's greatest poets, is living today as an ostracized, forgotten old man, buried in obscurity such as has seldom overtaken any recognized man of letters.

Sir William recently celebrated his 72nd birthday, and literary England was startled at the news. Nearly everyone supposed that he had been dead for years.

Sir William's remarkable plunge from fame to obscurity came as a result of a poem he published in 1909. That poem, entitled "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," began as follows:

She is not old, she is not young,
The woman with the serpent's tongue.
The haggard cheek, the hungering eye,
The poisoned words that wildly fly.
The famished face, the fevered hand,
Who lights the worthiest in the land.
Sneers at the just, condemns the brave,
And blackens Goodness in its grave.

Then the poem went on in that vein; and all London society agreed that it gave a perfectly recognizable, if exceedingly bitter, picture of a certain woman who was very high up in the social and political life of the country. The physical description of her, it was agreed, was too incisive and exact for there to be any mistake about it.

Storm Follows Publication
Naturally, the poem's publication brought on a storm. It was widely printed, finding space on the first pages of many American newspapers. Richard Le Gallienne, the English poet who had been living in New York for some time, printed an equally savage reply, which began:

He's growing old, he is not young,
The poet with the coward's tongue.

Shortly thereafter, Sir William and his bride—he had been on his honeymoon when the poem was printed, having married a beautiful Irish girl named Adeline Maureen Pring—sailed for New York. The London press jokers had a great deal of fun over his journey. It was suggested that he and Le Gallienne were to fight, and suggested that they put their bout in a ring, with heavy-weight pugilists as officials. When Sir William landed in New York reporters besieged him, and he was widely quoted.

According to one version, he said that the poem was not a picture of anybody in particular, but was a slam at women gossips in general. According to another version, he said that it was a composite picture of a prominent Englishwoman and her step-daughter. At all events, upper class London was convinced that its first guess was right, and Sir William was ostracized.

When he returned to England he found the social world silently boycotting him. His name and his works were never even mentioned. The sales of his books fell off. He was knighted in 1917, it is true, but the uproar caused by his poem killed all chance of his being named poet laureate.

Some years ago the government, learning that he was living in poverty, gave him a pension of $500 a

KIPLING ALSO PAID PRICE FOR POEM

The way in which Sir William Watson cut off his own popularity with his poem, "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue" in 1909 he was one of England's most prominent literary figures.

Now, however, he lives in poverty and obscurity, forgotten by the London where once his name was almost a household word.

HAS OWN RECORD

MARSHALL, Texas, September 21.—N. F. Adams, special officer of the Texas and Pacific railroad here, believes he has a record all his own for one month's work.

He is credited with removing 425 "Knights of the Road" from trains passing through Marshall during August.

The officer is a firm believer in the time-honored expression that "Birds of a feather flock together," by reason of the fact that sometimes finds as many as thirty persons in a single freight car. On one occasion 25 men were chased off a flat car, while on another, fifteen were on an improvised "Pullman," and seven on planks thrown across the rods under the cars.

Again he discovered twenty hiding in sewer pipes on a flat car.

HIT BY BOTTLE

SALZBURG, Austria (UP).—While standing beside the railway track waiting for an express to pass so that he might resume work Johann Brod member of a section gang which was at work on the track bed, had his nose broken and five teeth knocked out by a bottle thrown from a window of the train by a passenger. Hospital treatment was necessary.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Importance of Prohibition Issue, Business Depression and Hoover's Whoes, Wet Stand of Governor Roosevelt and Morrow's Political Rise Influence Presidential Election Speculation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Four things, more or less inter-related, have been contributing lately to an unusual amount of long-range speculation about the presidential election of 1932:

- 1. The vastly increased importance of prohibition as a political issue.
2. The business depression and Mr. Hoover's continued failure to become a popular president with his party.
3. The strong declaration of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York in favor of turning prohibition back to the states.
4. The rise of Dwight Morrow and the increasing assurance that he will be elected to the Senate from New Jersey.

Such speculation becomes actually exciting to many persons as they attempt to forecast the 1932 campaign on the basis of what already has been happening in the nomination and election campaigns of 1930. The two parties in the various states have been fixing up platforms and nominating candidates for this year's elections, with all kinds of interesting results. In 1932 they will meet in national convention each to select a presidential candidate and to devise a campaign platform. Right now it appears as if there might be heavy fighting at both conventions.

Both Factions Strong
Unless the agitation over prohibition suddenly subsides it seems inconceivable that both candidates and both platforms will straddle the issue. And still more inconceivable that the whole set-up will be dry. A convention is never above doing whatever seems to give it the best chance to win and there are strong wet and dry factions in both parties to be considered.

To consider candidates first, nothing has happened to dispel the general belief that Governor Roosevelt is well out in front for the Democratic nomination. It's baldly simple: There isn't any strong man to oppose him any more than there was to block Smith in 1928. And if the Democrats were willing to nominate a wet and a Catholic in 1928 it is extremely unlikely that they will be unwilling to nominate a wet of Roosevelt's strength in 1932, especially when militant wet sentiment seems to be growing both in the party and among the voters.

As to the Republican candidate, of course Hoover will have the inside track, unless discontent within the party should reach a critical stage. Morrow certainly is now the outstanding personality when one thinks of an alternative to Hoover. Hoover is Versatile.

But if the Republicans decide that it's best to set up as a dry party or if they feel they need a candidate who can straddle the issue more or less gracefully, they can't very well nominate Morrow. If they gather in convention with the assurance that their man must oppose Roosevelt, they will have to decide whether it is safest to nominate a dry, a wet or a straddler to oppose him.

Hoover, of course, might run as any of these things. He has never committed himself on the prohibition theory to the extent that he

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

I guess you read about the minister who, after being married five times and having 24 children in his various families, was charged with murder in east Texas. Maybe he was like the 230 pound truck driver who was hailed into court on an assault charge after he had beaten up two ice men, a prize fighter and two bystanders. He pleaded guilty and told the judge, "I did it in a moment of weakness."

Wasn't that a crack I read yesterday, something like this, "See no evil, hear no evil, think no evil; and you'll never grow up to be a newspaper man"? I don't know whether that is intended for reporters, editorial or column writers, but if a newspaper man tried to close his eyes and ears to the evil in this world, he wouldn't hold his circulation long.

Couldn't say four years of experience had convinced him that the "noble experiment" wouldn't work. But if you eliminate Hoover and then decide that Morrow is too wet for a Republican nomination you're likely to find yourself thinking of Calvin Coolidge.

Sometimes a notaipee is permitted to hold and express personal views which the party is unwilling to express in its platform, so you can do your own guessing about platforms. They might follow the prevailing style of 1930, which finds frightened dry office-holders favoring state referenda and promising to act accordingly to the result. Politicians dislike to surrender power to the people, but they hate to handle hot potatoes. So there's something of a chance that by 1932 both parties will be hollering for some sort of a referendum scheme in order to save themselves from all kinds of dissension and trouble.

SENTENCE THEMSELVES

DOVER, O. (UP).—When two Dover youths were brought before Mayor W. R. Stucky on a charge of raising too much "whoopie" in a local theater, he told them to set their own sentence. They condemned themselves to confinement in the immediate vicinity of their homes after 6 o'clock in the evening.

RUDE AWAKENING

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (UP).—It cost Mrs. Margaret Mansfield $249.60 and took her 10 years to find out that she was not the beneficiary of her late husband's insurance policy. Mrs. Mansfield had been paying the premium on her husband's policy for 10 years, only to discover recently upon his death that his first wife, her predecessor in Mansfield's affections, was benefitted by the insurance.

RECORD EAR OF CORN

The ear, grown on his 300 acre farm, is 12 inches in length, measures nine inches in circumference, has 19 rows of corn and counts 55 grains to the row. His corn, he reports, promises to produce a bumper crop.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 24
at the Douglas Hotel from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M.

Dr. C. F. Redlich says: "The 'Perfect Retention Shields' hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief and contract the opening in a remarkably short time.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expertly adjusted device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically everlasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptures which heretofore were considered uncontrollable.

Prairie Lee Woman Goes to Short Course

Mrs. J. E. Wallace

For years I had hoped to attend the short course, but it seemed my dreams would never come true until July 10 when the Prairie Lee club prepared a luncheon for the Lions club for the purpose of making money to send a delegate to the school. To my surprise and joy I was selected as the one to represent the class.

My thoughts were of how could I go as there were so many things to be done. So at last I made up my mind to just drop all the farm duties and take the trip.

On Saturday night, July 26 a happy bunch of us boarded the train. Miss Derryberry did everything possible to make the trip pleasant for us. Sunday afternoon we arrived at our destination a tired but happy party. We were met by college cars and directed to the hall where we received room reservations and it was fortunate that we all received assignments to the same hall.

The first morning of the school we attended the formal opening by Dr. T. O. Walton, president of A. & M. Following his lecture, Dr. Russell spoke on the necessity of more attention to the family than the crops.

Cooperation of all the states was said by Miss Lucille Reynolds, who spoke Monday evening, to be the only successful way to advance home demonstration work.

Tuesday morning we heard E. N. Holmgren speak on cutting the poultry cost and Wednesday morning Miss Kate Lee Daugherty told of home work in New England states. Wednesday evening Mrs. E. E. Davis lectured on what to do with spare time.

Among the other features of our visit were a trip to the animal husbandry building, another address on poultry, visits to the poultry and dairy farms, to the horse barn and the creamery.

"Texas Magnificent" was the production given by various counties of the state Thursday evening, revealing the stages of Texas development. Club accomplishments told by women from many Texas counties were very interesting reports of how work is carried on in other sections and the splendid results.

The party at Dr. Walton's resident Friday afternoon was the last social entertainment of our visit. That evening we left for Ft. Worth where we had a short stop before leaving for home. We took a trip around Lake Worth and window shopped before catching the train.

When I think of all the valuable things I learned and heard about club work it makes me more determined to do everything I can for our home and assist our demonstration agent in any work she needs assistance. Too, I hope to do my part in helping others take the trip next summer that I enjoyed so much this year.

Misses Evelyn and Alma Heard were called to Lubbock yesterday because of the illness of their mother, Mrs. T. C. Heard, who is receiving treatment in the West Texas hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Duff and Miss Inez Walker of Seminole visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Lord Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Easterling, who have been guests of her sister, Mrs. A. W. Thomas, for the past two weeks, leave tomorrow morning for California where they will make their home, going there from Florida. The Thomases and the Easterlings visited relatives in Big Spring Sunday.

Miss Daisy Lindsey left last week for St. Louis where she will spend her vacation.

Mrs. Alfred Tom came in from the Tom ranch yesterday for a several weeks' visit with her mother, Mrs. Frank Orson.

It's the Sporting Thing for Early Autumn

The suede jacket adds feminine touches and takes a delectable color scheme, two tones of green, for fall's first cold days. This little leather jacket has trimmings of the lighter green suede and belts itself and it cuffs trickily. A yoke is piped in lighter green and a turn-over collar is the same tone. A light green suede beret and tweed frock in the two greens make this a jaunty outfit for autumn sports.

Local Housewives' Choice Recipes

New dishes for fall are certainly welcomed by the housewife. Probably the two recipes today for stuffed baked potatoes and salmon wiggle are different from others you have tried. Use them.

Stuffed Baked Potatoes
6 medium sized potatoes
2 tsp. butter
1 1/2 tsp. salt
Dash pepper
1-3 cup evaporated milk
1-3 cup boiling water

Select smooth skinned potatoes preferably Russets. Wash and score a cap on top of potato. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) until tender. Remove cap and scoop out inside into a potato ricer. Press through ricer into hot mixing bowl. Add butter, salt, pepper and the evaporated milk diluted with boiling water. Beat until white and fluffy. Pile lightly into potato shells and sprinkle each with 1 tsp. grated cheese and dash of paprika. Brown in a hot oven (425 degrees F.). Chopped parsley may be added to mashed potato mixture.

Salmon Wiggle
1 1/2 tsp. butter
2 tsp. flour
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup liquid from salmon
2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. lemon juice
Dash of red pepper
1 can salmon
1 can peas

Make white sauce of first four ingredients. Add seasonings, stir until creamy, then add the salmon and peas and cook 1 minute. Serve hot on butter toast or crackers.

Printed Fabrics Are Popular for Over Curtains

By WILLIAM H. BALDWIN
Author of "The Shopping Book"
Written for NEA Service

Over curtains—those which cover the curtains nearest the window—are made in every kind of fabric. At the moment, there is a vogue for printed materials which promises to last for some time.

Reasonable fastness to light is the most important factor in selecting these curtains because they are bought mainly for their appearance. Very few printed materials are really sunfast, but this need not deter the shopper from buying them. Those of good quality will give a reasonable length of satisfaction.

Nor is sunfastness directly related to price. It would be extremely difficult to obtain real sunfastness in a curtain with many colors because sunfast dyes are difficult to handle.

All over curtains should be lined; they thus hang better, give longer wear and keep their colors longer.

MIDLAND COACH SAYS PASO SQUAD BETTER THAN ADVERTISED

FINDS ALTITUDE AND LONG RIDE AS FEATURES DIRECTLY AGAINST DOGS; DOES NOT CREDIT PAPER REPORTS

No matter what the Midland football fans believe about the relative strength of the Midland and El Paso football elevens, Head Coach Barry of the Bulldog invaders of the border city next Saturday thinks somebody has missed a guess or two.

He goes further than that; the coach believes that someone has been too credulous in accepting El Paso publicity as a standard of weight and measure.

Speaking of the Midland Bulldogs and their chances of winning the El Paso game, Coach Barry said Sunday:

"We hope to win but it would be putting it entirely too strong to say that we expect to win. Anything that I may say about the strength of the El Paso outfit or the handicaps that we will work under will naturally be looked on as a premature alibi or as an attempt to comba over-confidence. But we are not over-confident, nor will we need an alibi if we lose.

"Whatever the handicap, let no Midland fan stay at home for fear we may be slaughtered. I am confident that the Bulldogs will put up a fight that will be a source of pride to every Midland fan who accompanies the team.

"Having read in Sunday Reporter-Telegram that the Austin High School of El Paso averaged only 140 pounds, that we had them badly outweighed, and that Midland fans were expecting an overwhelming victory, I feel that in justice to the boys, I must call attention to a few important things.

Mentions Changes
"Anybody that thinks that out of a student body of over a thousand and a football squad of 60, that the starting team will average but 140 pounds is certainly gullible. Football coaches are notorious for under-rating the weights of their men.

"We are going to be seriously handicapped in the second half, if not before, by the change in altitude. Don't let anybody tell you anything different. A former coach and several former players from the Texas School of Mines at El Paso are close friends of mine. They have told me that if we are not much stronger than the El Paso team, we are sure to get beaten on account of the change in altitude.

"The long ride will certainly not enhance our chances of winning nor help our physical condition. However, I am positively convinced that we will do better to go on the special train we would try to get into El Paso a day ahead of time and rest. The affects of the trip would be felt more keenly the following day than on the day of arrival and the boys would not sleep well nor rest much in the strange surroundings.

Lights Disadvantageous
"The lights will put us at a disadvantage, too. I have no idea just how badly this will affect us. The El Paso team will be playing its first game at night, too. I'm told, and the same folks that believe that 140-pound-average story can believe that the Austin high bunch will be at the same disadvantage, but I won't. I think they will have practiced and scrimmaged enough under those lights to feel at home.

"The team Austin high had last year was weak in comparison to the Bulldogs aggregation. Marfa plastered a 38 to 6 and a 21 to 6 defeat on one of the strongest El Paso teams last year. Marfa has a stronger team this year than last but the El Paso outfit has already beaten Marfa 18 to 6 this year. The point is that the El Paso schools are really going in for football this year and knowledge of the situation in El Paso last season gives no index whatever to the strength of the teams this year.

"The Austin high school of this year is as different from that of last year as Midland today is from Midland ten years ago. Nothing remains the same but the name. They have entered a new building, increased the school district, added the eleventh grade, increased the coaching staff, and improved the facilities for putting out a football team to where Austin high school is ready to take rank with such big city high schools as Oak Cliff and Forest of Dallas, Main and Breckenridge of San Antonio.

To Fight Hard
"The Austin high outfit has outgrown its former self to the extent that it contemplates changing the school colors, too. It is going to forget the past and strike out to establish some new traditions and has picked Midland for the first slaughter.

"We hope to win and we mean to fight—we positively will not disappoint the fair minded.

"Under the circumstances we can expect them to fight with all they have from beginning to end, and I am convinced that the El Paso team will have blood in its eye."

IF BOBBY JONES WINS AT MERION THIS WEEK HE WILL HAVE TO FACE PROPOSITION OF NOTHING TO WIN

While Bobby Jones has known many great moments during his golfing career, it is not impossible that this week will prove the climactic one for the Atlantan.

If he can win through and regain the amateur championship, he will have conquered all the golfing worlds there are, and all in the same year. Not anywhere will there remain a bunker or a trap which can boast of having frustrated Bobby. No course anywhere will be remembered as the place where his hopes were blasted.

After winning this amateur championship—and who is there to say that he will not do so?—Jones can retire. He has indicated that he will play considerably less golf in the future if he is successful at Merion this week.

No Worlds to Conquer
Jones, of course, will not retire in the accepted sense of the word. He will continue to play golf, since he loves the game, and it is quite possible that he will enter many more championships and go on winning them year after year. Bobby merely will be in the position, in which Alexander is reported to have found himself, with no more worlds to conquer. It is history that Alexander got into trouble when he found himself in that predicament. Nothing of the sort is likely to happen to the level-headed Mr. Jones.

The point is that the strain will be removed, the urge to conquest no longer will drive Bobby away from business every few months.

Old Memories
As Jones goes around the Merion course today, he will find some old familiar landmarks. The fifteenth green, where he missed a long putt and lost to Bob Gardner in his first amateur championship after reaching the third round back in 1916.

The 18th, where he first tied Bobby Cruickshank for his first open championship in 1923 and then went on to beat the wee Scot in the play-off.

Merion has meant a lot to Bobby, and it may mean more before the week is over. Should he win, all will be well. But if he loses, he will have it all to do over again.

PARACHUTE JUMPER WHO MADE LEAP HERE HELD IN JUAREZ AS HOP HEAD

EDITOR'S NOTE: Percy Miller, the one-legged parachute jumper described below, is well-known in Midland, having made a jump here, and having made several jumps at the opening of the Big Spring port.

EL PASO, Sept. 21.—Percy Miller, former wartime flyer and sensational one-legged parachute jumper, believes he has won his fight against narcotic drugs. Freedom from the Juarez jail has been promised him by Mexican authorities as soon as physicians certify that he is cured of his addiction.

Charged with possessing a small packet of morphine, Miller was arrested by Juarez detectives July 20. He was immediately bound over to the Mexican federal court. Judge Nerbeto de la Rosa, hopeful of reclaiming Miller from the vice that was destroying him, ordered him to the (txicomania ward in Liberty hospital).

The suffering and hardships undergone while freeing himself from the addiction left their pitiable marks upon Miller. No gradual "reduction" treatment was his—simply an abrupt separation from narcotic drugs. It was up to him to conquer his craving or "go under." But the courage that made it possible for him to jump with a homemade parachute in dozens of exhibitions, landing on his one sound leg, pulled him through the ordeal.

In the bare, unfurnished wardroom at Liberty hospital, he is confined with seven other men who are taking the cure. The cement floor is their bed. They are fed the usual prison food.

A few days ago Miller's lawyer, W. L. Clary, received a letter from his mother, Mrs. M. M. Miller, of country. His parachute, which he built from cotton cloth and cords, was recently condemned by a federal inspector who saw it at the airport. Instead of being packed in a regulation cover, it was folded in a shallow canvas bag.

In making a jump Miller would tie this bag to the plane by a 10-foot rope. Then, with the parachute sling strapped to his body, he would jump overboard with the bag in his hand. The ensuing jerk released the parachute. In using standard parachutes, the jumper drops until clear of the plane, then pull a rip cord which releases his parachute.

Miller hopes to be free in time to make jumps during the October rodeo in Juarez. He is planning on this event as a means of earning money to pay for his transportation to Abilene.

"I received your letter today telling me about my boy. It was the first I had heard about him being in trouble," she wrote. "I'm sure you will find $20. It is all I have on hand at present. If you will take care of the case, you will be relieving the mother of a crippled boy. I ask God's help and yours for my boy. This has been a sad day for me."

Miller's younger brother, Horace, added a note. "I hope you will do your best to get my buddy out of that place. I am here in Abilene going to school and trying to learn to be a good citizen. If you and old Uncle Sam will do your best in the fight to save Percy, he'll soon be freed."

Encouraged by the promising trend his affairs have taken, Miller today said, "I know I've won my fight against drugs. I want to go to my mother and start life anew. Perhaps I can get a job with some aviation company in Abilene."

In 1920, three months after returning from France and being discharged from the air service, Miller lost his left leg when a plane he was cranking backfired. The propeller severed his left just below the hip. He claims that his addiction for drugs came while being treated for his injury and gassed lungs.

While loading a bombing plane, Miller was gassed in an accidental explosion of one of the bombs, he said.

He made two exhibition parachute jumps at the municipal airport prior to being arrested in Juarez. Airport officials considered him the best jumper that has ever performed in El Paso. He was the only one, they said, who could land in the airport field and not in the adjoining

Exclusive Pictures of Greatest Treasure Hunt

Working 400 feet below the surface of the Bay of Biscay, where lies the hull of the Atlantic liner Egypt, sunk after a collision in May, 1922. Italian divers here are shown in exclusive Reporter-Telegram-NEA Service photographs during the most daring and costly salvage operations ever attempted. Though many more months of work remain, and the great depth and treacherous currents are a constant menace to the under-sea adventurers, the prize they expect to capture would be the richest in maritime history. Forty-eight tons of gold and silver, to the value of $5,000,000, await them in the bullion room under the third deck of the Egypt. The key to the exact location of the treasure was contained in the captain's safe, and at the left is shown a tense moment in the recovery of the strong box. Delicately balanced between the jaws of grapple tongs, it was lifted aboard the salvage ship Artiglio while workers held their breath lest it might slip and be lost forever. The center photos show how the divers work in heavy observation shells with glass portholes. Below is a shell being hauled aboard, and above you see Chief Diver Alberto Gianni emerging to tell his mates excitedly of a new discovery in the Egypt's interior. In an effort to salvage all of the bullion, which now is believed to have burst the water-soaked boxes in which it was packed, the salvage operators have decided to tear away the upper part of the sunken vessel and remove intact, the entire room containing the treasure. The remarkable photo at the right shows the Artiglio heeled over at a 25-degree angle as her derricks, with cables fastened to a part of the Egypt's superstructure far below, strained to remove sections which previously had been loosened with dynamite bombs. The attempt was successful, but there were some anxious moments aboard the salvage ship when, as you see here, it listed until the sea poured over the deck.

They Couldn't Know

BACK IN 1818 the greatest newspaper of the day declared that the world had reached the limit of human expansion. It even went further, saying that there weren't enough supplies in the world to support further growth of population.

The mind of 1818 couldn't conceive of the miracles that human ingenuity would perform during the twentieth century. It couldn't imagine the wonders that would be wrought by new agricultural methods and modern manufacturing genius. It was ignorant of transportation as we know it, or the progressive sales methods of today. It could not see the vital part that would be played by advertising.

Even today there are some who fail to realize what an important factor advertising has become. Advertising is as much a part of today's life as electricity, antiseptic surgery or automobiles. It keeps us up to date on the many things we need in order to live profitable, happy and useful lives. It presents for our approval articles of all kinds and for all purposes. The requirements of each member of the family are met by advertised offers of good merchandise of proved value.

The advertisements save time, money and effort for those who read them and follow their guidance. They are practical guarantees of satisfaction.

ORDINARY DESERT CACTUS HAILED AS ENSILAGE FEED FOR CATTLE IN NEW DISCOVERY OF AMERICAN MAN

A process by which the ordinary desert cactus of the great Southwest may be turned into valuable cattle feed has been perfected by W. D. Corbin, an American rancher in Chihuahua, Mexico, and agricultural experts are hailing it as the greatest forward step in modern agriculture for that great area of North America extending from Texas to California and far south into Old Mexico.

By Mr. Corbin's process the leaves from the cactus plants are converted into succulent ensilage by adding an inexpensive chemical called St. Martha's sulphate salts to the shredded cactus leaves as they are tramped into the silo which causes the thorns on the leaves to become as soft as tender tufts of grass. The feeding value of the resulting ensilage is said to be equal to grass or corn fodder and provides ample nourishment for stock cattle without other feed.

The discovery of a means of utilizing this ever prolific desert growth that formerly was worse than useless opens new possibilities for the cattle industry in the great semi-arid southwest, a department of agriculture official said recently when visited by a representative of the Chihuahua ranchman.

It is of particular interest just at this time to thousands of ranchers who are faced with the necessity of disposing of their cattle this winter on account of absence of range grass due to the unprecedented drought of the summer and fall. Mr. Corbin, by a series of feeding experiments, has shown that these ranchers can keep their stock cattle through handily by feeding cactus ensilage exclusively.

"For the average ranchman I would recommend at least two large silos," Mr. Corbin said. "Then he will always have one from which to feed while the other is being filled. Unlike other ensilage material, the cactus may be placed in the silo any month in the year, winter or summer, and for six months it bears a fruit, the prickly pear, which gives it added feed value."

Harvesting the cactus leaves is done very rapidly, he said, by men with special forks and long knives who go over the ground with wagons, in many cases securing 25 tons of the leaves to the acre. The silos are filled with regular ensilage cutters and blowers and the ensilage is tramped into the silos thoroughly by men wearing wooden sandals. No water need be added.

The sulphate salt is added at the rate of one pound for every ton of the ensilage. The chemical, working in conjunction with the natural fermentation of the chopped cactus leaves, quickly reduces the woody thorns to a semi-liquid state, making them altogether harmless to livestock.

"Cactus ensilage will cost probably one-fourth as much as corn ensilage," Mr. Corbin said, "since it grows wild, and by adding cotton seed cake or grain to ensilage ration, cattlemen in the cactus country will be able to fatten their cattle ready for the meat markets at much lower cost than cattle in the corn belt of the United States."

There also is the possibility of shipping this low cost ensilage in thousands of stockholders. Many oil companies will not be able to earn dividends in 1930 because of their greatly reduced production of crude oil.

Franklin estimates that total imports of crude and refined oils for the year 1930 will be approximately 103,000,000 barrels, or about 282,000 barrels a day. In other words, while producers here in the United States were pinching back their own wells to the extent of 233,000 barrels a day, a few big companies operating principally in Venezuela, Colombia and Mexico were shipping 282,000 barrels a day of duty-free, low-cost foreign oil into this country.

Franklin called special attention to the fact that on January 1, 1918 total stocks of crude oil in storage in the United States were 171,000,000 barrels and December 31, 1929 they were 541,000,000 barrels, or an increase of 370,000,000 barrels.

During this same period, January 1, 1918 to December 31, 1929, the total demand for crude oil was 600,000,000 barrels more than was actually produced here in the United States. However, during this period, 950,000,000 barrels of foreign oil were imported. These imports obviously wiped out the 600,000,000 barrel shortage and left a surplus of 350,000,000 barrels, added to the crude oil in storage on January 1, 1918, or 171,000,000 barrels, accounts for the 541,000,000 barrels of crude oil in storage December 31, 1929.

As the excess imports of crude oil are directly responsible for the 350,000,000 barrel increase in storage, Franklin contends that imports of crude oil should bear the brunt of any proration program inaugurated in the United States. For months oil organizations in the Mid-Continent and in California have had proration committees at work trying to reduce the current daily production of crude oil below the current daily demand and thereby reduce this staggering stock of crude oil in storage. This action was taken by the operators of the United States regardless of the fact that imports of crude oil were directly responsible for the 350,000,000 barrel increase in crude stocks as set forth above.

Entirely regardless of the legal status of proration, all agreements between operators in the United States to pinch in their wells and cut down their drilling programs have been purely voluntary. In striking contrast with this "gentlemen's agreement" is the fact that, during the last dozen years, foreign oil has been shipped into the United States in total disregard of the needs of our domestic industry and with full knowledge on the part of the importers that the price of practically every barrel of oil in the United States would be affected because of increasingly heavy stocks resulting from their excessive imports.

The 350,000,000 barrel increase of crude oil in storage, and directly traceable to excessive imports, taken in connection with the fact that while domestic producers are pinching back 233,000 barrels a day of high-cost oil these importers are shipping in 282,000 barrels a day of cheap foreign oils, should be sufficient "proof" that nothing short of a tariff on oil will ever protect our 325,000 oil wells, some 2,000,000 people and $12,000,000,000 of invested capital from unfair, unequal competition with cheap oil produced by cheap labor, in a foreign country.

INDUSTRIES BUY RAW MATERIALS WHILE PRICE LOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (AP).—Secretary Lamont today said that an important trend is noticeable in American business by which industrial leaders are buying raw materials far ahead of current consumption rates. He said it was the natural reaction to the present low level of commodity prices.

Fire Eaters Also Eat Chicken, Melon

Midland's fire boys may be easy to control at blazes but they're positively unmanageable at times, Chief Luther Tidwell says. The chief refers one to the barbecue and melon picnic at Cleveland last week. "Contrary to the designation of the boys by the press as 'smoke eaters,' they like their chicken and melon," he said. More than 30 of the boys and their wives and children "made the run" on any number of barbecued chickens and sliced sections of Mr. Parker's best product.

Market Report

Trading in cotton market first half of session held within narrow range slightly lower prices, from close Saturday, and while there was considerable hedging over week end demand for contracts was good with market taking selling very well. Private ginning forecast had tendency to encourage selling and check buying from trade sources. Market opened steady unchanged to 5 lower due to accumulation hedge sales while locals in New York were bearish expecting further liquidation in near months in advance of first notice day in October. Considerable pressure from hedges and selling but volume of trade buying was sufficient to hold decline within minimum. October New York 10.71, December 10.90, January 11.00, or 6 to 7 net lower. Noon calls steady 3 to 8 net lower.

Liverpool quiet 2 to 3 higher as against 1 to 3 lower as due. Close quiet 1 to 2 lower. Spots barely steady 1 higher.

PLENTY OF FAITH

HARTFORD, Ind., (UP).—Mrs. Albert Boston, Jr., had faith in her husband's ability, so she redoubled his bid of five clubs in a bridge game. She did not have a single trump in her hand and her opponent, Marie Knecht and George Ravant, had doubled the bid. Her faith was repaid, however, when Boston laid down 13 clubs, the perfect hand, on the table.

To Aid Investment

Dr. Thomas, in commenting on the lease award today, said that he made a close bid for the building because he believed that location of the postoffice there would be advantageous to his large office building investment.

Sale of the drug store in the building is expected, as well as lease of the adjoining ground floor location. Rentals on offices in the building are 25 per cent less than when the building was erected, Dr. Thomas said, he having made the rates as low as possible for what he offers in return.
