Bulgarian King Aboard Train Attacked by Insurgents

TRAIN IS SHOWERED WITH LEAD

Religion May Be the Cause Behind Shooting

SOFIA, Bulgaria, October 31. (P)—King Boris III and his bride were wildly acclaimed by the capital today after their escape from a volley of bullets said to have been fired at the royal train near the ancient Macedonian city of Philippopolis.

Possibly Religionists There is a feeling in Bulgaria today that the attack of an unknown group upon the train carrying King Boris, his bride and party back to his capital may have been made, or at least incited, by religionists, who were not in sympathy with the marriage of their king to a princess of Catholic faith.

Notwithstanding the fact the Roman Catholic princess was allowed to marry the ruler, who is a Greek Catholic, by a special dispensation of the pope, much dissatisfaction is reported to be felt in Rumania, where the Greek Catholic faith is the state religion.

Dispatches say aversion to the marriage is felt by a relatively small per cent of the population, however, and that no other manifestations like the attack on the train are expected.

The ruler is popular and, since Italy is a power to be propitiated in times of internal disturbances and state coalitions, a marriage between the two countries is deemed a magnificent coup d'etat.

Many Rabbits and Ravens Poisoned

Death to 334 jack rabbits and 83 ravens was the accomplishment of Will Midkiff in a 90-day poisoning campaign recently. The poison was placed on a 15-acre truck patch situated in a 60-acre field, and the dead rabbits and ravens were found within the field itself.

MIDLAND, THE SPORTSMHIP TOWN

Midland boasts this season the best high school football team ever to represent the community. Along with this strong aggregation is a school spirit second to none in Texas, colleges included.

South Bend, Indiana, is referred to over the nation as the "football town", due to Notre Dame's wonderful success in that sport under Knute Rockne's coaching.

Midland aspires to even a greater title, in this section of Texas, and that is to be called "the sportsmanship town." The title is already earned. The students have themselves well in hand and will never be found out of line unless led in the wrong direction by people outside the schools.

The entire citizenship of Midland has a great responsibility in helping to instill into all West Texas the fact that Midland is the "sportsmanship town."

Tomorrow, Wink school students, athletes and citizens will be guests of the local schools and citizens in what may be a crucial football game. Never before was there a better opportunity for full display of Midland's sportsmanship and hospitality. Join the Midland high school students in extending to Wink every courtesy, every evidence of good sportsmanship, and then get out there and stand behind the team in their fight to win the game.

Package of Sticks Used By Wife to Free Banker

KEWANEE, Illinois, October 31. (UP)—A blonde young bandit whose smile belied his reputation as a desperado today told officials how he and three companions kidnaped Earl Yocum, millionaire banker of Galva, and held him for ransom and were outwitted by the banker's wife into releasing him without collecting a cent.

With two of the men under arrest, more than 200 policemen continued to hunt for the two other members of the gang. Vern Algren, under arrest, was bitter over the manner in which he and his companions had been outwitted into releasing Yocum in exchange for a package filled only with sticks. KEWANEE, October 31. (P)—Authorities here today credited the courage of Mrs. Earl Yocum with bringing failure and worthless wooden blocks to the band of kidnapers who thought the package containing wood was ransom money demanded for the release of Yocum. Strategy, pretending to comply with the extortionists' demands for silence while actually working closely with bankers' association detectives, also was revealed.

SIXTEEN SEATS MEAN LITTLE TO TEMPERANCE SOCY.

Are You Going to Keep a Full Force? Then Tell It

Are you going to fire your employees? Are you going to cut their wages? If you are going to keep them on the payroll and do not intend cutting their wages—tell them so. That is the suggestion made by Lions International, and it is a suggestion on which Midland business men are already acting. It is said by some Midland merchants that if everyone in Midland who hires help will assure his help he is going to keep them and not cut their pay, that employees will immediately begin buying normally and business will immediately improve.

JAPANESE REPORT CAPTURING MANY TAIYAL HEADSMEN

TOKYO, Oct. 31. (P)—The Japanese government today reported the capture in Formosa of many of the head hunting Taiyal tribesmen and headsmen who recently rebelled, killing and decapitating 34 Japanese at Musha. The Japanese punitive expedition today captured several Taiyal villages and some tribesmen. Most Taiyal warriors, however, had fled to the wilderness.

JOINT SERVICE TO BID FAREWELL TO REV. BOONE

Joint services of four Protestant churches of Midland will be held Sunday night at the First Christian church, extending a farewell to the Rev. Leslie A. Boone, pastor of the First Methodist church, who is leaving Monday for Harlingen.

The Rev. Boone has been asked to speak at this service.

Those joining in the meeting will be the Christian, Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist; and pastors of these churches, the Reverends Howard Peters, Murphy and Brown will assist.

The Reverend Peters has been away from the church for three services but extends a welcome to the public to meet there Sunday night.

The Rev. Leslie A. Boone, pastor of the First Methodist church, will preach his last sermon of the church year at his church Sunday morning he said this morning.

The minister goes to Harlingen for the new church year.

Big Crowd Sees "Aren't We All?"

The second largest crowd to ever see a little theatre production in Midland was afraid to laugh aloud during the two hours and a half of Lonsdale's "Aren't We All?" last night, afraid of missing some of the subtle humor of the play.

Because of space limitation, the review of the little theatre play of Thursday night was held over until Sunday. Watch for it and get the habit of keeping up with the play group.

chuckled continually with enjoyment at a clever cast's interpretation of the Broadway hit, used as the seal, son's premiere. Visitors and special guests from throughout the Permian basin of West Texas had been invited to see the production, and all pronounced it excellent.

Elements in the success of the season opener were numerous. The cast was, first of all, well balanced; the large crowd was appreciative, as Midland little theatre audiences have been from the first play given; the little theatre orchestra, under the direction of Wallace Wimberly, was an outstanding hit; the $300,000 Babylonian auditorium, resplendent in its beauty of classical lines, was a perfect setting.

Numerous factors might be listed to prove the fact that the play was one of the most thoroughly enjoyed of all those presented in the past seasons. The play itself was different from anything ever attempted by the organization. Risking the possibility of having an English play "flash in the pan," Mrs. George T. Abell, whose name is inalienably associated with dramatic art in Midland, cast and slashed and re-wrote until she was certain her well-picked cast would "get over" the droolery to the audience.

Others are shown waiting their turn on the block as an employment campaign for hungry men was opened in Mr. Zero's Lame Duck club.

Gratitude Does Not Always Pay One

SAN ANGELO, Oct. 31. (AP)—Malcolm Mitchell of San Angelo is going to have fifteen months in which to think over his case of misplaced gratitude. The strike order became effective 30 minutes later. A meeting will be held today in an effort to settle differences amicably.

Chicago Mayor Has Attack of Illness

Several months ago Malcolm was driving into San Angelo on Highway 9 when he ran out of gasoline. He hailed a stranger and the obliging motorist drove Malcolm several miles to a filling station, waited until he scoured the needed gasoline and took Malcolm back to his stalled car.

"Much obliged," said Malcolm. "Oh, that's all right," said the benefactor. "Here, just take this half gallon of whisky to pay you for your trouble," Mitchell said.

"I'll take all you have and you along with it," said the stranger, who was a federal undercover man. Mitchell was sentenced to serve 15 months in jail, for transporting liquor, by Federal Judge William Atwell.

ARGUMENT IS BEING COMPLETED

Jury to Get Case of Former Officer Here Today

Judge Fritz R. Smith was reading the charge shortly after noon today in the trial of King Reed, former Midland police chief, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of J. C. Holcombe, night patrolman here, in July, 1929. Argument was expected to begin immediately, the case being scheduled to go to the jury early this afternoon.

Court attaches, in a telephone conversation, expressed the opinion that the case would be completed today. Taking of testimony was completed before noon today.

A defense motion for an instructed verdict of acquittal, on grounds that the state had failed to make out a substantial case against King Reed, former Midland police chief charged with murder in the slaying of J. C. Holcombe, nightwatchman, was overruled late Thursday by District Judge Fritz R. Smith.

The state rested its case and the defense had already called several character witnesses when court recessed until today.

Reed was alleged to have shot and killed Holcombe in a pistol duel on a Midland street in July, 1929. The state called ten witnesses, among them Mrs. E. W. Cowden, sister of Holcombe, Sheriff A. C. Francis of Midland county; R. D. Lee, constable, and W. R. Smith, district attorney at Midland.

Deaths from Quake Thursday Were 13

ROME, Oct. 31. (UP)—Thirteen persons were killed in the earthquake which occurred along the northern Adriatic coast yesterday, according to officials reports received here today. It is believed that the injured would total several hundred. There was considerable property damage.

Midland Asked to Support Amendment

Midland people who are neighbors of counties having university lands have been urged to vote favorably for the amendment taxing university lands. It means more money for those counties, and means greater ability in those counties to work with Midland in road building. A vote for the university tax amendment does not increase any taxpayer's taxes a penny. It merely means the University of Texas must pay its just share of taxes, friends of the amendment declare. The Midland chamber of commerce has endorsed the amendment.

WHEN ADVICE CONFLICTS

It is difficult, now and then, for the ordinary citizen to know just what he ought to do to help the nation escape from the business depression. There is an abundance of good advice from high places, but a good deal of it is more or less contradictory.

Thus, on the one hand we are urged to spend more and more, taking no thought of the morrow and pouring our dollars out in a steady stream, so that the wheels of industry can begin to revolve with their old-time speed; and on the other we are advised that nothing but a return to old-fashioned frugality and an abandonment of our present high living standards can possibly do us any good.

Obviously, we can't accept both kinds of advice. Each kind, however, is worth thinking about. The free-spending school realizes that the national income is lower this year than last. It won't go back to its old level until employment picks up. Employment won't pick up until factory production is back where it used to be. Factory production won't pick up until demand rises to the old level. And demand won't rise unless people buy things.

So far the proposition proves itself. But just how far can it be applied? Is the wage earner who has suffered a cut in his pay or who has been put on half-time employment to spend as much as he did last year? Is the white-collar man who works on commission, and whose earnings are two-thirds of last year's? Is the salaried man who is trying to build up a cash reserve against a possible loss of his job?

One suspects that this "spend more and we'll all have prosperity" argument has a flaw in it somewhere. It sounds a little too easy. You don't have to look far to see holes in the reasoning.

But is the other advice any better? If our standard of living has been too high, and if installment selling has led us into extravagance, so that it must be abandoned, what is mass production going to do? If wage earners must go back to the old standard, and do without such conveniences and luxuries as automobiles, radios, iceless refrigerators and so on, how are the producers of those commodities, who depend on expanding home markets, going to avoid accumulating more disastrous surpluses? If installment selling is a curse, what is going to happen to such an industry as the automobile trade?

It is a lot easier, of course, to find faults in these two kinds of advice than to suggest a fool-proof way out of the depression. But it is perfectly in order to suggest that the leading bankers and industrialists might be expected to be devoting themselves wholeheartedly to the problem, instead of issuing contradictory and easily-refuted advice to the consuming public.

A TEST FOR FOOTBALL

College football seems to be having sporadic bits of trouble again this fall. An eastern football star, confessing that he is sick of the game, is ordered to hand in his uniform. Six players at another eastern university ask for higher wages and are dropped. A western university is dropped by an athletic conference because it has subsidized and recruited prominent stars.

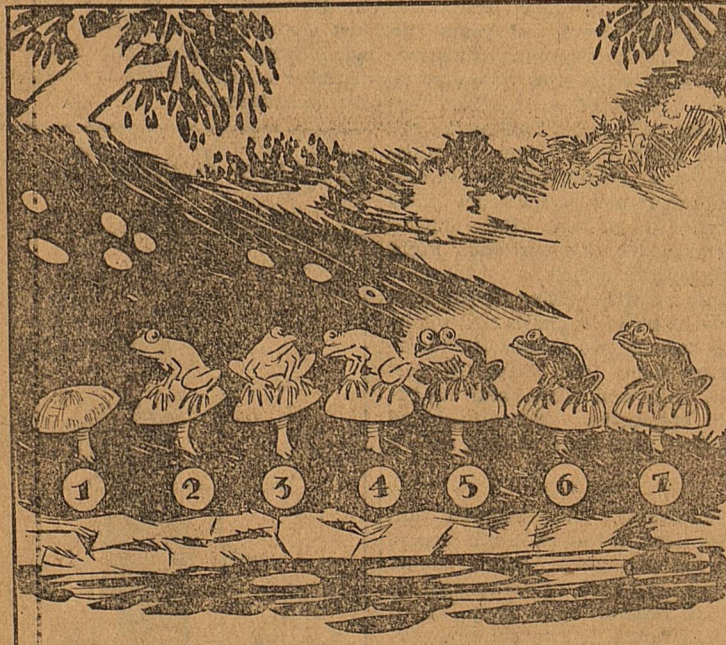

It would not do, of course, to pounce on these incidents and declare, because of them, that college football is all wrong. It is a fine game, and it provides enjoyment for many thousands of people. But there is one fair test you can apply in any given situation.

If football at any college exists primarily to provide the players with wholesome and enjoyable athletic recreation, then it is on a sound basis, no matter how much money comes in at the gate. If it exists for any other primary reason it is on an unsound basis and needs doctoring very badly.

PREPARING FOR CHRISTMAS

Christmas is still quite a distance ahead of us, but it is not exactly too early to begin to take care of that Christmas shopping job. It's a fine feeling to come up to the last week before the holiday knowing that you have bought and mailed all the gifts you are going to buy. The last-week rush doesn't affect you at all.

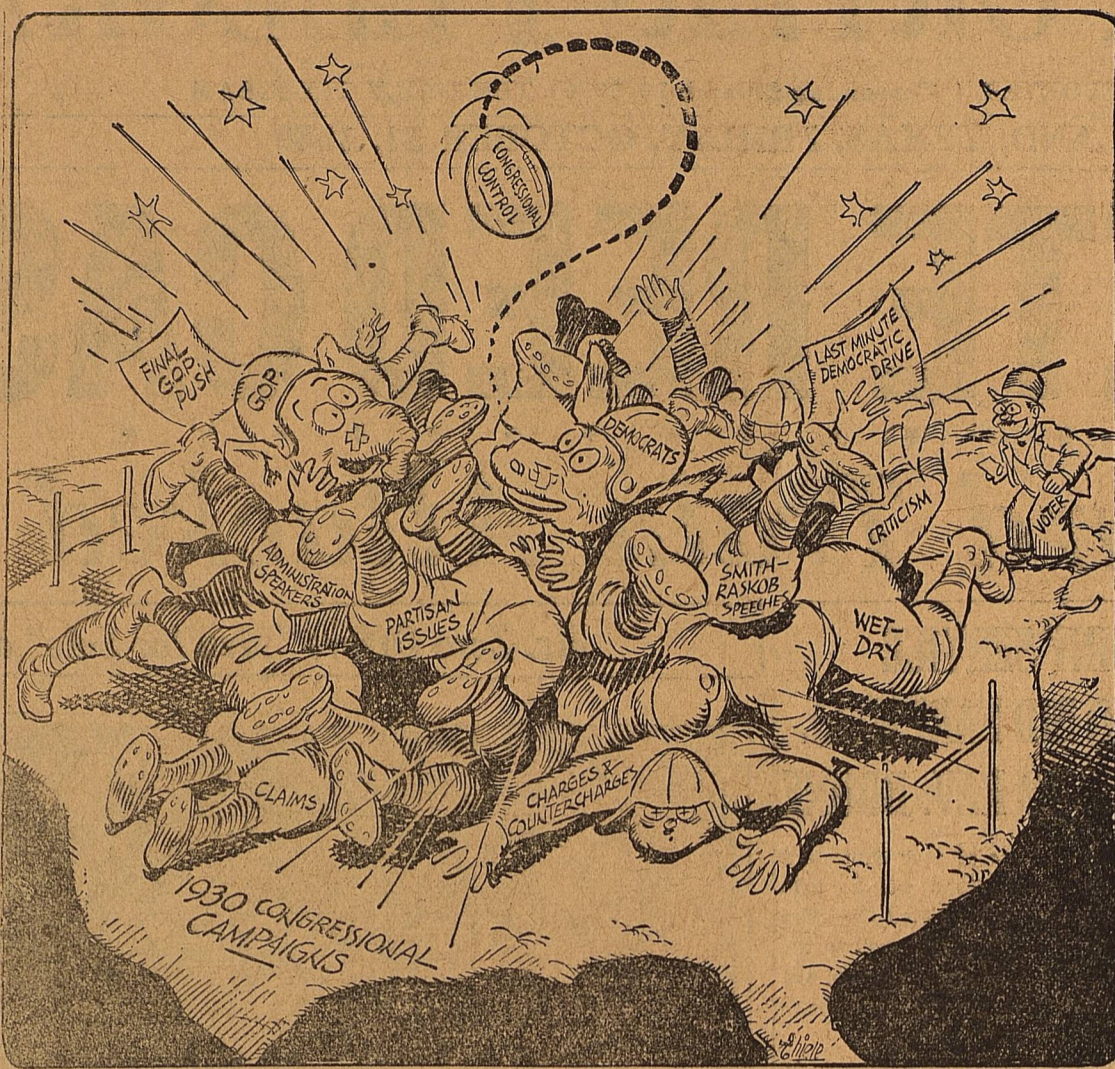

STICKLERS

THE above six frogs want to change positions so that the three black ones are on stools 1, 2 and 3, and the white ones on stools 4, 5 and 6, leaving 7 unoccupied. They can jump to the next stool, if unoccupied, or over one or two frogs to an unoccupied stool. The jumps can be made in either direction and a frog can jump over his own or opposite color, or both colors. How can they do it in ten jumps?

Solution of this problem will be found on the comic page today.

1930 Elections Packed with Many Odd Political Angles

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Probably no other American election has ever produced so many unusual situations and unusual candidates as that of 1930.

Old-time political bosses such as Boies Penrose and Murray Crane probably are turning over in their graves, not only at wholesale desertions from one party to another but also at unique political phenomena which can only lead the older generation to wonder what the nation is coming to.

In Illinois a woman actually received a major party senatorial nomination this year and her opponent was a man with pink whiskers. As if that wasn't enough to leave anyone gasping, along came another woman, the bitter political enemy of the first woman, and announced her own candidacy with the admitted intention of revenge for previous political slights.

Broadway celebrities are active in campaign of Heywood Brown, columnist and humorist.

Political slights. And it is quite likely that the first woman, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, will be defeated through the efforts of the second woman, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, while the gent with the pink whiskers, J. Ham Lewis, runs off with the prize.

The La Follettes of Wisconsin are about to put on the most successful "brother act" ever seen on the political stage. Robert M. LaFollette succeeded his father in the Senate and is likely to stay there the rest of his life. Philip LaFollette won the Republican nomination for governor, which was equivalent to election, and probably will be governor for many years unless he desires to join Bob in the Senate.

DISTINGUISH THEMSELVES AS WISE-CRACKERS Two blind men who may sit in the Senate next year have distinguished themselves at wise-cracking. Senator Thomas D. Schall, Republican candidate in Minnesota, is reported to have told what some persons considered a risqué story from a Minneapolis stage, losing himself many votes, though probably not enough to defeat him. Former Senator Thomas P. Gore has been chasing Senator W. B. Pine, Republican, around Oklahoma with such cracks as "The Hoover slogan: 'He kept us out of work'" and "Hoover has carried out every campaign promise he ever made—carried them out on a stretcher!" Pine's worst political handicap is said to be the fact that a huge oil gusher came in on his property this year and suddenly made him very rich.

Incidentally, there probably are more millionaires running for election this year than ever before. HE WANTS TO LIVE IN A GARDEN In Oklahoma also there is 'Alfalfa Bill" Murray, Democratic candidate for governor. Murray boasts that he drinks coffee from a saucer, seldom bathes and if elected will rent the executive mansion and live in a garage.

Louisiana offers Governor Huey P. Long, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination and now will be elected. Governor Long who received a German admiral while wearing pajamas and General McCoy while wearing underwear and who recently made his pretty confidential secretary Louisiana's Secretary of State, will not take his seat in the Senate until his term as governor expires. The lieutenant governor who would succeed him would fire all Long's friends and break up his political machine. For various reasons, including those outlined, Long probably is the most extraordinary contribution any state has made this year to national politics.

J. Ham Lewis is watching the efforts of his two women opponents, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill.

Broadway itself, which never cared who was elected to anything until Al Smith attracted it, is displaying considerable interest this year in the candidacy for Congress of Heywood Brown, newspaper columnist and humorist. Brown, running on the Socialist ticket against Congresswoman Ruth Pratt and a Democrat, has had some of the most famous authors, playwrights, actors and actresses working actively in his campaign.

MRS. GERRY CAMPAIGNED FOR HER HUSBAND Senator William H. McMaster of South Dakota has been bothered by the Democratic candidacy of Governor W. J. Bulow, whom Will Rogers said was "funnier than I

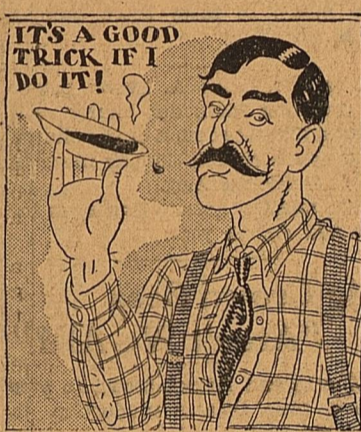

CHEWING OF TOOTHPICKS IS A DANGEROUS CUSTOM

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine The toothpick is almost wholly an American institution. It is freely available in restaurants, dining cars, and in many homes.

Just as a horse will suck a stump or a cow will chew a cud, an adult human being may form the habit of walking about with a toothpick in his mouth, or stuck between his teeth, or will manipulate the device on the slightest provocation either in public or in private.

A toothpick is also a handy utensil for manicuring, poking obstructions out of keyholes, and for holding together deviled eggs or lady's sized sandwiches at bridge, luncheon or tea.

As a result of these varied uses of this device, there appear regu-am." Bulow says: "I guess there ain't any great issues, Mac's got a job and I want it."

Mrs. Peter G. Gerry, the former Mrs. George K. Vanderbilt, has been making speeches in French to French voters of Rhode Island, in aid of her Democratic husband's campaign against Senator Metcalf. Sour Republicans said it wasn't effective because Mrs. Gerry didn't have the required French Canadian patois.

Georgia is going to have one of the youngest governors on record. Richard B. Russell, Jr., 32, won the Democratic nomination in a runoff primary early last month.

Political freaks have been popping into the news almost ever since politics began to warm up last spring: There was the grocer named George W. Norris who filed against Senator George W. Norris in Nebraska's Republican senatorial primary and almost forced the senator to run as an independent. Upton Sinclair, Socialist nominee for governor of California, received through error a formal certificate from the Secretary of State assuring him that he was the Republican nominee. And when certain wicked Cornell youths invited distinguished Republican leads to a banquet in honor of a mythical pioneer Republican named "Hugo N. Frye" they reaped eulogistic letters from such personages as Vice-President Curtis and Secretary of Labor Jim Davis.

About the only thing that could have happened and didn't happen was the nomination of a candidate in Texas who promised a cow for every farmer in the state in case of his election.

larly in medical literature the records of cases in which toothpicks or portions of toothpicks have been swallowed and have penetrated various parts of the stomach or intestines with results that are dangerous and in some instances fatal.

The most recently reported case concerned a man in Florida who suddenly developed severe pain in his right side. He described the pain as being like a knife penetrating his side. The physician who examined him found all of the symptoms of acute inflammation of the appendix and diagnosed the case as acute appendicitis which demanded immediate operation.

The case was complicated by the fact that the patient had been carried 78 miles in an automobile to the hospital, and on arrival at the hospital there was little time not

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Noted British Writer Finds U. S. Bewildered by New Ideas of Younger Generation — Says Hoover Has Spark of Idealism—Refutes Charge We are Nation of Selfish People

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The recent flood of campaign oratory has proved again that politicians regard most of us as dumbbells, but those who are a bit tired of hearing about things from the partisan slant can listen to Sir Philip Gibbs, who at least is no Republican or Democrat, and has been talking about us with supposed impartiality rather than with a hot desire for election to Congress.

Gibbs is a celebrated British journalist who travels around the world and meets important people and writes about things. In his book just out, which is called "Since Then" or "The Disturbing Story of a World at Peace," and tells what a heck of a world this has been since the war, he devotes a long chapter to post-war America and sums us up in this manner:

"The people of the United States stand at the open gate of a new era, uncertain of their future destiny, bewildered by this turmoil of new ideas among the younger crowd, conscious of many stresses and strains within their own social state. Their enormous power is a little frightening because of great responsibilities.

Finds "Superiority" on Wane "They have lost, or are losing, their old confidence in a moral superiority to the rest of the human family. They are watching themselves not without anxiety, because of increasing lawlessness in certain classes. But, in the vast majority, they have an energy, a joyous vitality, an alertness of mind, a shrewd humor, a balanced common sense, a good nature and a gift of laughter which can hardly fail them whatever the dangers and difficulties ahead in this uncertain world."

Gibbs gives us a good break in most instances. He says it wasn't our greed for gold that caused us to insist on war debt payment, but our "utter conviction that all business morality would vanish, and all international relations would be made impossible, if loans made to a nation in time of need should not be paid back honorably and without evasion."

He says the charge that we are selfish "breaks down in view of the boundless generosity of individual Americans in every part of the country, in every little town, in thousands of little homes." He means our post-war European relief contributions.

Harding, according to Gibbs, was a "good-natured, well-meaning man, but not a man of first-class intelligence or first-class character." As for Coolidge, the American people knew "he would just do nothing, and that was just what they needed." And about Hoover:

"... though he was no sentimentalist, he had a little flame of idealism hidden behind his puggy face, as I happen to know by private conversation with him.

"Intolerance Still Lurks" The author describes, as a matter of significance, the rise and decline of the Ku Klux Klan, saying that the American sense of humor came to the rescue and ridiculed the Klan to death. But: "Its absurdity was an extreme symptom of intolerances and bigotries still lurking here and there in the 'backwoods' of American thought. Even when diluted by more modern views and checked by intelligence they are still a powerful influence in political affairs."

The Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., he says, "revealed in a dramatic way the tremendous gulf that existed between the simplicity, the deep religious convictions, the abiding Protestantism, of many millions of people in the United States and the tolerance, the scepticism, the unbelief, the new paganism of many other millions who had abandoned dogmatic forms of religion or had modified their faith according to modern theories."

Reviewing the familiar benefits and evils of prohibition, Sir Philip says, on the basis of his own observation: "When the abdomen was opened, the cecum, which is the part of the large intestines to which the appendix is fastened, was found to be surrounded with adhesions and with inflammation. There was also a hard mass loose in the abdomen. When this was taken out it was found to be a whole toothpick covered with material from the intestines. The patient recovered uneventfully after the operation."

When questioned, he denied that he had ever swallowed toothpicks, but he stated that he frequently used a toothpick following his meal and sometimes dropped off to sleep with on in his mouth. He also stated that he regularly ate sandwiches held together by toothpicks, so that it was not certain just which of his bad habit was responsible for his trouble.

Incidentally, he remarked that when he fell asleep with a toothpick in his mouth, his wife would usually come and remove it, so that it is quite possible that the fault lay entirely with his wife for failing to remove the toothpick while he was asleep.

The physician who reports this case suggests that all toothpick users make certain that the wife is faithful in her duties, or that a string be tied to the toothpick when at the hospital there was little time not

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

Unless you are up to some mischief yourself, you'd better stay off the streets tonight. The only way to beat a spook is to be one. Look through your spare tire locks, loose car tools and anything that might be removable. A long time ago everybody had to worry about the front gate on Halloween night, but now only Dr. Thomas and H. A. Jesse have this to worry about.

Again I say, call out the fire department. The Wink game is tomorrow. No, I'll take that back. The game with Wink is going to be clean, fair and square, just as the other games that have been played on Lackey field. Midland is going to see that the Wink boys get a fair chance, but if the Bulldogs fight like I think they are going to, we will beat Wink by two or three touchdowns. The incident at Pecos last Saturday, regardless of how it started, was regrettable. It just calls for that much more sportsmanship and courtesy on our part when the Wink boys come here. Let's show 'em a nice time and then beat the socks off of them.

It is reported that Midland inventors are at work on scientific studies of the boll worm and that at a later date they will begin working out wider uses of cotton seed and cotton seed hulls. Forty Women Attend Monthly Party Of W. C. T. U. at Claude Cowden Home; Fine Arts Numbers Are Program Features

A combined social and program meeting was held by the Women's Christian Temperance Union at the home of Mrs. Claude Cowden Thursday afternoon.

Assisting hostesses were Meses. H. R. Rehders, E. W. Hough, and A. M. Gantt.

Mrs. T. S. Nettleton introduced the speakers of the afternoon, the first of which was Mrs. W. A. Black, who read the devotional.

Miss Lydia Watson at the piano and Mr. Ned Watson playing the violin, played "The Meditation" from Thal's. As an encore they presented an original arrangement of "Home Sweet Home."

"Mobilizing the Church Vote" was the topic discussed by Mrs. George F. Brown. She called attention to the fact that the Protestant churches of America through their highest presiding officers have called upon the past and people to observe Sunday, November 2, as "Christian Citizenship," in order to impress upon America the necessity of making use of the ballot on November 4.

Mrs. Paul T. Vickers gave an original reading, which portrayed the workings of the brain of an intoxicated man. Her encore was an interpretation of a school boy's knowledge of history.

Mrs. Nettleton spoke of "The W. C. T. U., the Pioneer of Women's Clubs." She sketched the history of almost 60 years of the W. C. T. U. in its efforts to magnify "other hood" as opposed to "selfhood."

The union presented Miss Pearl Wimberly, bride-elect, with a lovely gift of appreciation.

The hostesses served a party plate to approximately 40 guests. Mrs. Gantt and Miss Alberta Gantt poured tea and coffee.

Those present were Meses. J. L. Tidwell, W. T. Beauchamp, W. A. Black, M. L. Sholte, George F. Brown, Jno. G. Gossett, Thomas D. Murphy, Alberta M. Gantt, Claude Cowden, L. O. Smith, Noel Oates, E. Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31. (UP).—There are plenty of tricks used in attempts to break into the movies.

Most of them don't work—and Claire Du Brey used one to get work in "Sin Takes a Holiday."

It wasn't much of a job, at that, but she didn't ask for much. Paul L. Stein was casting for "Sin Takes a Holiday" and happened to be glancing through a casting magazine. He found an advertisement inserted by Miss Du Brey. She said that despite the fact she had considerable experience in silent films and on the stage with Pauline Frederick, Robert Ames and others, she was willing to play "bits."

Advertisement for Vicks VapoRub. Text: Millions More avoid dosing children's colds VICKS VAPORUB. OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY.

She explained in the advertisement that by "bits" she even meant dead bodies, off stage voices, or what have you. She added, frankly, that she wanted to break into the talkies.

The humor of the ad appealed to Stein and he engaged her to do a telephone conversation off stage with Constance Bennett, the star.

Horace Liveright, who attained success as a book publisher, has arrived in Hollywood to take up a new career.

It was announced recently that he had joined the staff of the Paramount studio, chiefly as an expert on story selection. Now he is here.

"Certainly the motion picture business is much like the book publishing business," Liveright responded quickly to a question. "Books, plays and motion pictures are selected for an audience, or should be, if they are to succeed. The more the audience is pleased the more successful is the book or play. The qualities shared by these art forms are not superficial but basic. The successful publisher must be a successful showman. By the same reasoning the successful showman must be shrewd in his selection of material. The story is the foundation for all."

The signing of Liveright was Hollywood's first instance of a book publisher abandoning his chosen field for film work.

WINK EXPECTS TO WIN; AND MIDLAND RETURNS THE COMPLIMENT

Sports Tempo Lets Down in the Nation's Football Games Saturday

MIDLAND HEAVIER THAN RIVALS CAN BOAST

A 144-pound Wildcat team that dug its claws into the powerful Marfa eleven, 20-7, plays a heavier Midland machine here Saturday afternoon, but brings along an aggregation that matches the Bulldogs in speed and experience.

Though outweighed about seven pounds to the man, the Wink team has weight where weight is at a premium. The ends of the Winkler county team are fast and shifty on defense and offense, and can snatch passes from any position. Tackles are heavy and aggressive—all that can be asked of them. Guards are fast and play low. The center is a master at figuring plays and all season has been breaking up offensive plays before they got started. The backs are flashes, and are led by the flashiest of district men, Joe Meagher, 138-pound man who has lettered twice. Meagher, who is a synonym for everything desirable in a football player, is likely to break loose for long gallops at any old time. And his running mates can run interference of a variety that is scintillating.

The biggest crowd to watch a football game in Midland this season is expected to be in the stands at Lackey field when the first whistle blows at 2:30. Wink will be over with a big pep squad and band, and a parade has been scheduled.

Midland is ready for the game, and the Bulldog charges of Barry look better than at any time during the season. Most of the strength will be seen, supplemented by the wide shoulders of Dave Allen, restored to eligibility through the workings of the 10-semester rule. This man is a power in the line, and one of the best interference runners in the district. Midland expects to beat Wink by two touchdowns despite the fact the Winkler team is touted elsewhere to win.

THEY SAY THAT

Two little "fight" girls are rivals for the affections of a Bullpup, who happens to be a junior.

Maurice courted Annie Fay Friday night. Rather like old times.

Cy is taking Harry's place with Doris Black.

One of Jean's old flames paid her his debt Friday night, but did it call for Saturday night, too? Ed had better have a bucket of water handy for these flames sometimes cause fires. How about it, Ed?

Olen's new nickname is "Hand-some."

Odessa surely has an attraction for Bill.

Some girls are becoming worried about the football banquet. Maybe they haven't landed their "date" yet.

The "faculty take-off" was a howling success.

Ida Beth was rather "undecided" last Friday.

Dorris didn't court Odessa after all or either he didn't show up.

David Allen is member of the football team. The high school students applaud the addition.

The "fish" should be careful Friday night, because the spooks might get them.

Ted is a good poet. Who knows but that he will be among the famous poets of tomorrow?

REVEREND BROWN SPEAKS

By Norine West
The Rev. George F. Brown addressed the students and faculty of the high school Monday morning. He told the story of two men whom he met recently. One of these knocked at his door and told him he had been robbed of 60 dollars. He asked Mr. Brown to give him money enough to take him to El Paso, where he had a job. The other was picked up near Big Spring. Reverend Brown asked him where he was going, and the man said he was on his way to California. He said he had not worked in eight years and had no desire to work as long as he could get money by asking for it.

"The world has no place for such people; yet they think the world owes them a living. You must have a goal to work toward. What if the team cared only enough about a game to keep the other side from scoring too much on them, and had no ambition to win the game themselves? Our team would not last long."

Mr. Brown expressed the importance of having a definite goal and working toward it. "We are too easily satisfied," he said. "If we set a goal and attain it, push the goal up higher. Some of us do not have enough ambition."

BULLPUPS PLAY STANTON

Mr. Cotner's famous Bullpups were to go to Stanton Thursday afternoon to play Stanton's third team. The junior pep squad planned to go also. Mr. Cotner says the Bulldogs have not lost a game and neither have the Bullpups.

The following made the proposed line-up:
Fullback—Paul Burris
Left Half—Joe Roberts
Quarter—Billy Walters
Right Half—Johnny Sherrod
Center—A. B. Cole
Right Guard—Melvin Wimberly
Right Tackle—Allen Herd
Right End—Billy Pratt

Substitutes are Roy Skipper, Raymond Acker, Jack Ambrose, Jack Prothro, Stephen Parr, Joe Bean, and Murry Faskin.

FOOTBALL NEWS

The Bulldogs have been working hard this week on the passing attack, in preparation for the Wink game.

They have several backs, who can toss the ball far and hard, but they are not accurate. The ball might go north or south. Burris, Parrott, and Straughn are the men who toss the ball.

The coach believes that the threat of a strong passing attack will be absolutely essential to carry the team through to a district championship.

The Drillers have a very good and tricky team. It was hoped to beat the Bulldogs by two touchdowns, but now the game is to be played in the Bulldogs' back yard, and Midland is favored to win.

FORMER STAR IS BACK

David Allen, manager of the Midland Bulldogs and formerly a player on the team, was allowed to return to the line-up due to the changing of one of the rules which was declared unconstitutional. The rule was that if any student enrolled in high school six years ago he was ineligible even if he did not go to school all this time. David enrolled six years ago but dropped out in order to help his father. He held the position of tackle last year and was one of the star players.

Mr. Barry says that David will help to strengthen the Bulldogs and weaken the opponents' team.

Stanton's football captain has also been able to return to his team since this rule has been abolished.

FACULTY TAKE-OFF

Well, folks, how did you like the "faculty take-off"?

The characters and the students who played the parts were as follows: Mr. Lackey, M. D. Johnson; Mr. Shifflett, C. C. Foster; Miss Rippey, Kathryn Cosper; Mr. Barry, John Smith; Mrs. Barry, Jean Wolcott; Miss Miley, Mary Caroline Sims; Mr. Cotner, Lloyd McKinney; Miss Hefner, Jean Verdier; Mrs. Dunagan, Nancy Rankin; Miss Klapproth, Dorris Harrison; Miss Burris, Doris Black; Miss Lanham, Lucille McMullan; Mr. Shrader, Barney Grafa; Miss Solomon, Mollie B. Bagley; Miss Cartwright, Janelle Edwards; Mrs. Myrick, Billie Manning; Miss Pawelek, Martha Louise Nobles, and Miss Kolaja, Ruby Hodges.

The setting for the first scene was the chapel exercises. Mr. Shifflett led the students in a hymn. Miss Lanham led a reading. Mr. Shifflett led them in a song. Last week's important game with Warfield in which the Bulldogs were victorious was discussed. Comments on next Friday's game with Germania which will be the most important game of the season were given. Miss Solomon led the students in a pep song. Other announcements were given.

The second scene was in the classroom. Each student impersonated the typical characteristic of the teacher in actions and in words.

The third scene was at a faculty meeting. While the teachers were gathering, Mr. Shifflett made three dates for Thursday night. Realizing his mistake, he decided that he would have to ask Mr. Cotner to advise him. The purpose of the meeting was to get a report of the amount of tickets each room sold for the last game. Mr. Lackey announced that we cleared $1.98 which was very good. Mr. Cotner and Miss Hefner were so interested in each other that they were the last ones to leave the room.

The real Mr. Shifflett said that this was the best "faculty take-off" that had ever been presented in the Midland high school. We feel sure that those who saw the program received their money's worth and will neither forget nor regret that they came.

ANNUAL STAFF PROFITS

By Billie Manning
The "Catoico" staff, under the direction of Marie Hill and Helen Margaret Ulmer, sold programs at the Midland-Odessa game on Friday, Oct. 24. The staff was divided into two teams, the purple and gold, for the sale.

The girls, under the direction of Helen Margaret Ulmer, won by a slight margin. The results were as follows:
Gold—$22.10
Purple—$20.40

This week the staff made a drive for a late sale of programs. They made $9.70 on this sale. Complete sales amounted to $52.20 which will be used in the publication of the "Catoico."

WE WONDER WHY—

Irene is so thrilled because David is on the team. Probably a new sweater.

The Midland girls and even the boys find everything in or from Odessa so attractive.

M. D. was seen Wednesday afternoon with a tag on his back? G. B. changed his mind.

It seems that Frank takes them as they come. Good idea.

ECONOMIC CLUB REORGANIZED

The pupils in the home economics department met Monday afternoon, Oct. 27, under the direction of Miss Theresa Pawelek, for the organization of the home economics club. The following officers were elected: Edythe Sundquist, president; Martha Louise Nobles, vice-president; Helen Margaret Ulmer, secretary; and Annie Fay Dunagan, reporter. It was decided that the club would meet the first Tuesday in every month.

IMPORTANT GAMES NOW PLAYED EARLIER

By FRANK GETTY, United Press Sports Editor.

Tomorrow will be one of those strange days in the middle of the football season when few "big games" are played. There is a distinct let-down in the furious tempo of the sport, with most of the leading elevens taking a breather. It used to be that the outstanding teams could point for the season's end and one climatic game. But the sport has become so popular and so wide-spread that this no longer is possible, and many teams have their hardest games—and some their most important—early in the season.

Early Games Not Practice
Moreover, if no longer is possible to consider early season games as practice. There are so many good football teams going around that a club must watch its step—and the enemy's pass receivers—every minute.

Tomorrow, however, is in the nature of an off day. In the East, the best battles should be between Carnegie Tech and N. Y. U. and between Yale and Dartmouth. The Army is taking a badly needed breather, meeting North Dakota. Harvard plays William and Mary. Cornell will romp over Columbia.

The Yale-Dartmouth game should produce fire-works, the Green being out to avenge last year's last minute defeat and stop Albie Booth. Lots of teams have had the latter intention.

Yale Fooled Dartmouth
It will be recalled that Dartmouth thought she had Yale licked last year, Booth and all. The little cuss had scored a touchdown and assisted in the making of some more points, but Dartmouth led 12-10 in the closing minutes and the Hanoverians were beginning to tune up for a chant of victory. And then a substitute quarterback (and we won't mention his name, hoping you've forgotten it) hurled a long forward pass into Yale territory, one of those tactical errors which sometimes are exposed with such appalling abruptness.

Hoot Ellis, a Yale back, who had been caught out of position by the play, happened, therefore, to be right at the spot where the ball was sailing through the twilight. Hoot grabbed it and set out on the dead run for the Dartmouth goal line, some 80 or 90 yards away. He made it, and Yale won.

It was a grave mistake on the part of the Dartmouth quarterback, but it was sheer tragedy for him to have his error turned into a touchdown.

APOLOGY CARD

LONDON.—Americans in Great Britain have "apology cards" for use by offending guests to appease outraged hostesses, according to an article in an English magazine. It reads that the sinner is exceedingly sorry for committing the breach of etiquette "marked in the adjoining column." In the column are the following breaches of etiquette: Striking hostess with bottle; falling downstairs; sleeping in bathtub, and spanking guests.

PAINFULLY CLEAN

PHILADELPHIA.—It pays to keep windows a little dirty, according to Harry Rose, local salesman. In attempting to catch a taxi, he made a dash out of a store in which he was making a sale. The windows of the store were so clean that he, thinking one of them an open door, crashed right through it, landing painfully on the sidewalk outside.

Arkansas Man Tells of the Good He Gets From Taking Black-Draught.

Mena, Ark.—"If there is a better laxative medicine made than Theodor's Black-Draught, I've never found it, and I tried a good many before I began taking Black-Draught about twenty years ago," writes Mr. E. F. Miller, who lives on Eleventh Street, this city.

"I am satisfied with Black-Draught. When I feel all out of sorts, my feet seem to feel heavy, and I feel tired when I haven't worked; and I get a bad, slimy taste in my mouth, I just take two or three doses of Black-Draught and I feel better."

"I have found it good for indigestion, in fact for about everything it is recommended for. We just keep it in the house and use it for biliousness, headache and such complaints. I recommend Black-Draught to others."

This well-known medicine has been in use nearly 100 years, and its popularity is constantly increasing, as growing sales clearly prove.

SPORTSMANSHIP STRESSED ON EVE OF GAME WITH WILDCATS; SPIRIT OF STUDENTS, TEAM INDICATES WIN

Cooperation and interest of "the boys down town" in a desire to win the football game against Wink on Lackey field Saturday afternoon was carried to the Bulldog team and to students of Midland high school at chapel this morning when four Midland men made an impromptu visit. Speeches expressing confidence in the Bulldogs and offering assistance to townspeople in extending to Wink the maximum of good sportsmanship and courtesy were made by E. Frank Haag, James P. Harrison, Paul T. Vickers and T. Paul Barron. Each speaker insisted that the Bulldogs will win and offered commendation for their aggressiveness and good sportsmanship. Talks were made by members of the team, by members of the pep squad, faculty members and by Mrs. Kenneth Ambrose.

Reports on the game at Stanton Thursday between freshmen teams of that city and Midland were made by Jack Ambrose, Murray Fasken and Coach Cotner.

A band concert was held at the chapel exercises, also a rally by the pep squad. Interest in the approaching game with Wink was running high and students were calling for victory.

wards, with a lighted candle in one hand and a mirror in the other, hopefully expecting to meet your future husband's reflection in the looking-glass, no books tell. And if a girl sees anyone she usually doesn't tell, either.

Once upon a time in the highlands of Scotland, people believed that if a man put a spoonful of salt in his mouth, drank no wafer, and went walking down the road in silence until he came to a place where three crossroads met, and then sat very still on a three-legged stool at midnight, after a while a voice would mention the name of a neighbor who was to die during the year.

The man then picked up the three-legged stool and went running down the road to tell the news. The doomed man didn't have a chance. The neighbors started to inquire about his health. The minister asked his favorite task and made suggestions about the proper way to die. His wife measured him for his shroud. As a result, very often the prophecy came true.

Over in Scotland, even now, housewives empty thimbles of salt on every breakfast plate at night on Hallowe'en. If the salt falls out of shape on any plate, it is taken as a sign that there is going to be a vacant chair at that table before the year passes.

Girls in Scotland often ate salt cakes and go to bed without talking or drinking water, believing that their future husbands will appear to them in their sleep.

The Irish make a stew of Hallowe'en, mixing mashed potatoes, parsnips and chopped onions with other vegetables. Then a ring is buried in it. Sometimes a coin is put in, too. The person who finds the ring will be married within a year, or if he is already married, will be lucky. The one who draws the coin will be wealthy. If a thimble has also entered the potage, its finder might as well buy a radio and settle down to get his thrills by way of the air, for it is a sign of bachelorhood or spinsterhood.

Hallowe'en is observed in America in a spirit of revelry today.

But once upon a time it was a serious, sacred occasion. So if a black cat crosses your path, an owl hoots suddenly, or a strange shadow falls on the floor, remember that this is the twentieth century—and be your generation!

GOT HIS BATH—BUT IN JAIL

RACINE, Wis. (UP).—An ill-kempt tramp who insisted that a Racine housewife allow him the use of her bathtub so that he could clean up was arrested here by police. He got his bath—in jail.

turns his lantern-green eyes our way!

The Romans, a little more civilized, followed a somewhat similar custom. November 1 they held a festival in honor of Pomona, expressing thankfulness for the purple grapes, the crimson apples and the golden grains in which their colorful souls delighted.

Apples ducking and the burning of chestnuts began at this time. Another custom, no longer used, originated some places in Wales in the dust-covered years of antiquity. When the fire had burned down, stones were collected, named for the members of the group and placed in the embers. Next morning a search was made for them.

If the stone belonging to a certain person had disappeared the others shook their heads and started to collect for a funeral wreath. For they believed that he who lost his stone, wouldn't be alive to name another one the next year.

Football Picture Is Success, Says Yost

Showing of aerial views and action shot of the Midland-Odessa football game by Kenneth Yost, of the Keystone Royalty company, this afternoon was scheduled for 3:15.

In a preview Thursday evening it was found that the shots are exceptionally clear for aerial shots, and Yost, who takes motion pictures as a hobby, projected them on the screen at the Ritz this morning and said they showed well.

On Monday night at the first show, Midland and Odessa high school students will be in the theatre to see the picture, which will be run in connection with the news reel. This has been made possible through the courtesies of the management of the theatre.

The picture was made when Lackey field was dedicated, and Harold Bocherer, field-manager of the airport, flew the cameraman low over the field so that the best shots could be made.

LONDON, (UP).—A miniature golf course is to be installed on the White Star liner Majestic.

Should Ministers Keep from World?

Shall a minister keep away from the world or shall he get into it? What are the bounds that determine his relationship?

The Rev. Howard Peters, pastor of the First Christian church, will explain these questions and numerous others of kindred interest soon. He has just returned from Washington, where he attended the International Convention of Christian churches.

Whether a minister should whet his appreciation of good by a study of evil at close range, whether he should get his contract with the outside world by the medium of the radio—these and many other questions and answers will be given.

1,000,000 PIECES IN SUITE

PARK FALLS, Wis. (UP).—A bedroom suite inlaid with more than 1,000,000 pieces of patterned walnut, redwood, and spruce stands in the little bedroom back of Andrew Halaksen's filling station here. Halaksen spent four years making a bed, dresser, cedar chest, and stand out of pieces of wood so small he was able to hold 10,000 of them in his two hands at one time.

AD AIDS EMPLOYMENT

BELOIT, Wis. (UP).—As a contribution to solving the unemployment problem, The Beloit Daily News has agreed to publish free of cost all want ads offering odd jobs to men out of work. The offer was made when 17 men applied in person and 15 others telephoned in answer to the advertisement of a citizen wanting someone to mow and rake his lawn.

Mystery Surrounds Midnight Matinee

All of the mystery usual to Hallowe'en is seen in advertising of the Ritz theatre for the midnight frolic tonight when the name of the picture to be shown is not given. The only available information is that it will be full of surprises and that the film is here for the midnight show Friday only.

"We will have all sorts of surprises," Manager Bonner said, with a mysterious expression on his face.

Market Report

NEW YORK—Steadier tone prevailed on New York Cotton Exchange today with prices rallying few points around noon from early lows to within narrow range of yesterday's final levels. Outside support was induced by steadiness in staples in face of irregularity in stocks and gains.
