Dinner-Bridge Is Week End Party For Mid Week Members; The Yorks and Neals Entertain at Scharbauer Hotel

Climaxing a week of Hallowe'en appointed social events, members of the Mid Week club and their husbands were honored at an attractive dinner-bridge in the private dining room of Hotel Scharbauer Saturday evening.

The three-course dinner was served at tables brightly decorated in the season's motif, with noise-making toys as favors to the guests.

Closing the five games of bridge Mrs. W. E. Wallace scored high for women club members and Mr. S. B. Cragin held high for men members.

Guests to receive prizes were Mrs. Elliott Cowden and Mr. A. W. Thomas. Cut trophies went to Mrs. Jones Lamar, guest, and Mr. M. C. Lucky, member.

Local Housewives' Choice Recipes

With oysters a favorite dish of so many people, housewives are often at a loss of finding new ways to prepare the sea food. Today we offer a few suggestions.

Oyster Salad

Oyster salad can be prepared in several ways. A combination of grape fruit sections and shredded green pepper served with French dressing is delicious. Marinate the fruit and fish separately in French dressing for an hour before combining and serving.

The following cocktail sauce is enough to serve eight or ten persons. About 2 tablespoons of sauce is calculated for each person to be served.

Cocktail Sauce

Four tablespoons grated horseradish, 4 tablespoons tomato catsup, 1-2 teaspoon salt, few gratings nutmeg, 1 teaspoon Tabasco sauce, 1 tablespoon grated celery, 4 tablespoons vinegar, 1-2 cup lemon juice.

Combine ingredients and chill thoroughly. When ready to serve add chilled oysters removed from the shell. Serve in cocktail glasses.

Music Study Club to Hold Program Tuesday

The initial recital of the Music Study club of the Watson School of Music has been announced for Tuesday evening at the Presbyterian church at 7:30 o'clock.

The compositions of Chaminade, her life and other interesting details will be discussed by pupils of the school. Numbers from this noted composer will also be played.

Patrons and friends of the school are invited to hear this program. The club meets once each month for the purpose of hearing discussions on well-known musicians, history and biography.

Billy Pinnell

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27. (UP).—Helene Lubitsch has been pronounced the most promising pugilistic prospect in the film colony by her divorced husband, Ernst Lubitsch, the noted director, but the prominence has met with considerable opposition.

Lubitsch bases his contention on the single blow that the fair Helene recently planted on his jaw at an exclusive screen party at the Embassy Club.

While Lubitsch pretends to be an authority on matters of the kind his claim for its former wife finds contradictions on many sides for, in addition to such male prospects as John Barrymore, Tom Mix and Jim Tully, Mrs. Lubitsch has a competitor in her own sex, Miss Jackie La Verne.

Newest Pugilist

Mrs. Lubitsch, it is pointed out, is practically a newcomer to Hollywood pugilistic circles. In fact she never appeared before the public until the night of that Embassy Club party which was sponsored by Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

On that occasion Lubitsch struck Hans Kraly, Mrs. Lubitsch's partner and Mrs. Lubitsch rushed to Kraly's aid. She delivered effectively a right cross to her divorced husband's well-shaven chin.

That ended the affair except for explanations. Lubitsch said he attacked Kraly, a screen writer, because Kraly and Mrs. Lubitsch were making fun of the way he danced.

Kraly denied this and Mrs. Lubitsch said her former husband merely was jealous since she intended to marry Kraly as soon as her divorce from Lubitsch became final.

"I hope they stay married a hundred years," Lubitsch said in closing the incident. "He will discover that Mrs. Lubitsch is an excellent sparring prospect. From the feel of her punch she has the most promising career of any of the fighters in Hollywood."

Glue all the pieces in place and shellac them all around. This gives that slick, glossy and expensive look to them, making them seem much more a Yuletide remembrance than a simple card would.

HIGH SCHOOL TRYING TO SHIFT SCENE OF WINKLER GRID BATTLE

OFFERS DRILLERS $300 TO COME TO MIDLAND

Midland at Wink or Wink at Midland. That was the alternative being worked on by the exchequer of the high schools of the two towns this morning.

Wink is due to be hosts for the struggle, according to the schedule, but Midland is attempting to get the Drillers to come over and trample the luscious green sward of Lackey field, and is offering a bunch of green backs to back up the proposition.

Wink, on the other hand, is counting its own roll and apparently wishes to mark off its grid for the occasion.

But what is really talking: Midland is offering Wink $300 to come here; Wink is offering $125 for Midland to twist ignition keys and start the trek there.

Superintendent Lackey could give no assurance as to whether the wind would be blowing from out of the northwest or out of the southeast.

The boys from the oil village have possible the finest club in the district running and, by rights should grease the skids of the Midland machine, whether on the Wink field or the Midland field. The club lost to Pecos Saturday, in a hard fought game that had a period of free-for-all following it.

November Is Champ Month in Southwest

FORT WORTH, Oct. 27.—November might well be called "Championship Month" as far as the Horned Frogs schedule is concerned. Starting Nov. 1, the Christians take on the Abilene Christian Wildcats on the new Frog playground, but the next week their real testing period starts when they meet four conference rivals in a row.

Houston will furnish the setting for the clash with the Rice Owls Nov. 8, which will be followed by home games with the Texas Longhorns and Baylor university. The 1929 champions wind up their season as usual with the S. M. U. Mustangs. Owenby Oval, on the Methodist campus, will be the scene of the final contest.

When the Longhorns invade Frogland, T. C. U. followers will have a change to see how their favorites function when faced by a real defensive eleven. Stinging from the 15-12 defeat last year, the Longhorns will be out for revenge.

The Baylor Bears showed unlooked-for strength in tying the strong Pony aggregation, but best reports that come from Waco state that the Bears were playing inspired ball while the Mustangs romped around on the field like a bunch of kittens. At any rate, the Bears seem to have the best forward wall in the conference and should the Frogs emerge victorious over the Bears and Longhorns, they will be the favorites to win another title.

Two Years of the Talkies

BY DAN THOMAS • 1930 NEA Service

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of four stories by Dan Thomas, Hollywood correspondent for The Reporter-Telegram and NEA Service, on the rise of the talkies. Today, Thomas discusses the new stars of the screen.

By DAN THOMAS, NEA Service Writer.

(Copyright, 1930, NEA Service, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—Whatever else may be about to happen in the moving picture studios here, conditions have become fairly well stabilized as far as the stars are concerned.

When the talking picture was first introduced the ranks of the high-powered actors and actresses were swept by something like a panic. The face of the old-time star was his or her fortune, and his voice meant nothing. But suddenly—overnight, so to speak—it became essential for an actor or actress to be able to speak, and to speak so that audiences could understand and be moved by what was being said.

Two years of the talkies have seen the retirement of a number of famous stars. They have also seen the emerge to movie stardom of a good many more with whom movie audiences had not previously been familiar.

Payrolls Take Drop
In some cases the disappearance of old-time stars has been due to their salary demands. The newcomers from the stage who flocked to Hollywood with the advent of the talkies were used to much smaller pay checks than those in vogue out here in the silent days, and their arrival caused a sudden downward revision of payrolls here.

As a result, the day of the $7500 and $10,000 weekly pay checks has gone forever. Even salaries of $5000 a week are extremely rare. Once in a great while a celebrity will get more than that for making one or two pictures, but his salary does not run for many weeks. John McCormack, the famous singer, for instance, got $40,000 a week for 10 weeks to make "Song of My Heart"; but 10 weeks ended it, and he could not get a similar contract again.

Old Stars Fade Out
Among the old-time stars who have vanished from Hollywood studios are such luminaries as Tom Mix, Colleen Moore, Thomas Meighan, Corinne Griffith and Billie Dove.

Mix is traveling with a circus, Miss Moore is in Cleveland making an appearance on the legitimate stage, Meighan and Miss Griffith is limitless. They have a great eleven. Regardless of whether or not the championship hinges on that final battle of the season, it is highly probable that the T. C. U.-S. M. U. contest will be one of the best games of the year in the Southwest.

1. Ruth Chatterton, now "the first lady of the talkies," who came to Hollywood from the legitimate stage when motion pictures found their voice; 2. Greta Garbo, successful as an actress in the old silents and equally successful in the talkies; 3. Joe Brown, Broadway comedian who turned to the films; 4. Ann Harding, another recruit from the legitimate stage.

have retired and Billie Dove has quit temporarily, being reported under contract to make one picture a year hereafter for Howard Hughes, the youthful millionaire producer to whom she is said to be engaged to be married.

In the main, these stars quit because they refused to take reductions in salaries. Others, however, had difficulty in learning to speak correctly. Still others weren't sufficiently interested in staying in pictures to take the trouble to learn to act before the sound camera.

To replace them have come some of the bright lights of Broadway. The present list of reigning movie favorites contains many names that were utterly unknown to movie audiences before the talkies. Among them are Maurice Chevalier, Ruth Chatterton, Al Jolson, Jack Oakie, Claudette Colbert, Moran and Mack, James Gleason, Robert Armstrong, Ann Harding, Joe E. Brown, Chester Morris, Edward Robinson, Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Winnie Lightner, Robert Montgomery, Lawrence Tibbett and Dennis King.

The arrival of these Broadway graduates in movieland emphasizes the steady change in values that the talkies have brought to Hollywood. In the old days the prime requisite for any movie star was physical beauty. A girl could get by if she were sufficiently lovely, whatever her deficiencies as an actress; a man could get his name in the bright lights if he were handsome enough, even though his acting was the sort of thing that made husky adults weep.

But those days are gone. The prime essential today is talent; talent in the art of acting. The beautiful but dumb have found the sliding very hard lately. Most of them have given up.

However, it is only fair to say that the casualties in Hollywood have not been as great as was at first expected.

When the talkies first appeared Hollywood went dizzy with apprehension. Stars who had been living in the clouds saw their palaces, luxurious cars and armies of servants floating away from them. Schools of voice culture—and what schools some of them were!—sprang up like magic. It was currently reported, with bated breath, that all of the stars of the silent days would fade away overnight, to be replaced by recruits from the despised legitimate stage.

But the colony's fears were exaggerated. Some stars did fade, to be sure, and many players came on from Broadway. But many stars of the old days—like Greta Garbo—managed to keep their positions. Many of them had had previous stage training, and were amply equipped to meet the new era. Others, by dint of frantic work, put themselves into shape.

WASHINGTON STATE HAS STRANGLE HOLD ON COAST GRID TITLE; COACH GETS LINE HE WANTS, THAT'S ALL

By CLAIRE BURCKY, NEA Service Sports Writer.

The state of Washington may be famous for its salmon, but don't get the idea into your head that Washington State is fish for any football team this fall.

For four seasons, Orin E. (Babe) Hollingberry, coach of the Cougars, has had to sit back and watch Stanford, California and Southern California lick each other for the Pacific coast championship. Every year he has said, "Give me a line and I'll show 'em something."

Natives of Pullman, Wash., noticed that Babe displayed a wide grin this fall when practice opened. When they asked him about it, his only answer was "Bring 'em on."

They brought 'em on—and then they took 'em back. The Golden Bear of California was smartly cuffed by the snarling Cougar. Southern California's Trojans were carried back to Los Angeles "on their shields." The rest of them—Montana, Oregon State, Idaho and Washington—will need more than just a good football team to tame the Cougar.

Yes, Hollingberry has hit his line this fall; not only that, Babe can summon more than a dozen dusky replacements for his regular forwards. And the ball-carriers who scored against the invaders from California never have been better in the history of Washington State football.

A more versatile corps of ball-carriers than Hollingberry's can hardly be found in the country. All of them know how to kick, run and pass the ball. Tuffy Ellingsen and Porter Laimhart can do everything, but swallow it.

Only a peg below them in point of ability are Mike Davis and Howard Moses, sophomore stars; Oscar Jones, pass receiver and off-tackle specialist; Elmer Schwartz, the 200-pound fullback, and Mentor Delhen, another first year man.

But remembering his problems of previous seasons, Hollingberry almost wept for joy when he saw how his line was working out this year. The fellows who had played steadily last year continued to put up their usual good game. The ones who had been erratic in previous encounters, straightened out and became star forwards.

Hollingberry will tell you that they don't make better centers anywhere than Hel Hein, his 195-pound veteran of two seasons. Without pressing him at all, Babe will give you the impression that Hein would be making the All-America for the third straight year if he were playing for any of the California Big Three. And maybe he's right.

Flanking Hein at the guards are Fred Garrett, the only sophomore regular in the forward wall, and George Hurley, brother of "Long" John Hurley, 6 foot 3-inch veteran end. The tackle berths are well taken care of by Harold "Iron Man" Ahlskog and Glen Edwards, a mere 235-pounder. The other first team wingman is Homer Hein, Mell's younger brother, who weighs only 200.

Montana, Oregon State, Idaho and Washington all are showing strength this fall, but Hollingberry's prayer for a line has been answered. The Babe believes that six straight victories ought to break up the championship monopoly held by the Big Three.

Most of us will have to concur in Babe's opinion.

Longhorn Mentor Answers Charges

AUSTIN, Oct. 27. (AP).—Coach Clyde J. Littlefield of the University of Texas will turn out a team composed of gentlemen or will not turn out any team at all. This was the substance of an address made recently at a meeting of Austin business men. The winning of games is secondary, Littlefield said.

Littlefield said that coaching is not all roses and that his difficulties ranged all the way from discord with "a newspaperman who is using his position on the paper to get back at me" to anonymous letters.

"I invite constructive criticism," Littlefield said, "the other kind doesn't do any good."

The longhorn mentor directed most of his talk to adverse criticism of the university football team and its coaching squad, paying particular attention to a statement made by an Austin sports writer that "coaches are a bunch of big-heads."

"The public wants games won and as a coach and a group of players, we are looking to the future," Littlefield said. "When this team doesn't suit you, tell me. When we don't put a team in the field that can be gentlemen, we don't deserve support and when my men say I am not doing the job right, I'll get out."

Scout Gridders Play For Lamesa Prizes

LAMESA, Oct. 27.—The second football game of a series being played between the three boy scout troops of this city, will be played Wednesday afternoon, between troops 22 and 23. The first game last week between troops 44 and 23 resulted in a tie game. The series will end when each team has played two games. Prizes are to be awarded the team winning the series, and an all-star team is to be selected from the three teams, according to scoutmasters.

Collegiate Rodeo To Be in Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Oct. 27.—Frontier days in college fashion will be revived here on November 7 and 8 when the first annual Texas Tech Aggie rodeo will be staged.

Present plans call for every feature of an old-time western rodeo, including wild buffalo riding, calf roping, steer riding, bronc riding, wild horse races, trick cow milking and pack races. Rodeo grounds are to be established south of the Aggie building.

The selection of a queen for the rodeo from the student body has been narrowed down to three students. The student body by popular vote will designate which of these three will be queen at an election to be held soon and the other two will serve as "ladies in waiting." The girls are Kathleen Harmon, Lamasas; Voncie Oikerson, Lubbock; and Frances Ola Reeder, Lubbock.

Rice Owl Twins Bother Scribes

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 26. (AP).—No twins ever resembled each other more closely than Vic and Tom Driscoll, backfield brothers on the Rice Owl squad. Ever since the present season started, fans, coaches and sports writers have had absolutely no luck telling them apart.

Every time a scribe has recorded that Vic ripped off five yards around end, he has discovered it was Tom who did the ripping, and vice versa.

There was some hope of relief when Tom, in a scrimmage session, lost five teeth from the front of his mouth. When he grinned you could tell it was Tom. But he ruined it all by having five new ones installed.

Chases Eagle in Car; Catches It

LAMESA, Oct. 27.—A new form of sport has been discovered in this section. Jim E. Hughes, farmer, residing 23 miles west of Lamesa sighted an eagle on his place one rainy morning recently, and gave chase in his car. After pursuing the eagle for some time, he finally caught it. Evidently the rain had soaked the bird until he could only fly short distances before he was forced to land, then to fly again. The eagle measured six feet six inches from wing tip to wing tip.

GET THEIR DEER

LAMESA, Oct. 27.—A party of Lamesa business men have returned from old Mexico, where they engaged in a deer and bear hunt. They report a kill of 14 deer and 2 wild hogs. As partial proof of their prowess, they are displaying the bodies of three deer, as evidence. Those in the party were, Geo. Canon, Guy Travis, Sherman Hill, Emmitt Busby, W. L. Marr and Luther Hendrick.

Stickler Solution

The answer to the bookworm puzzle is two and one-half inches. You will find that, when three books are placed together, as in the sketch, the first page of the first volume and the last page of the third volume are the ones that are actually nearest to the middle volume. That would mean that the bookworm has only four covers and the distance of the middle book to go, which is a total of two and one-half inches.
