Trouble in Getting Sherman Witnesses Met by Fines

SEVEN TORNADO DEAD; BLIZZARD SWEEPS OVER NORTHLAND

FIVE ARE DEAD IN SOUTHLAND

West Coast Winds Get Two More Victims, Reports Show

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 17. — As communications today were re-established with remote districts, the death toll of Saturday's series of tornadoes in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia reached five. Many were seriously hurt, and homeless.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 17. (AP).—Snow and winter's grip held most of the north from the Great Lakes to the Pacific Ocean today.

San Francisco bay storm and winds claimed two lives, whipping Private Van Dyke from a dock where he was fishing near the Golden Gate into the water, and capsizing Carl Hoppe's rowboat, taking his life in the bay.

Heavy snows marooned isolated Oregon districts. British Columbia, Washington and northern California were also hit. Snow plows fought blocked Utah highways. Trains were delayed and scores of automobiles stalled in northern Utah.

Sleet and storm swept from Canada over North Dakota and Minnesota toward Chicago. In one solid square block along Canal street, Chicago, west of Chicago's skyscraper area, a swarm of homeless and jobless have built winter hovels from junk, debris and bricks.

Father of Woman Here Dies Suddenly

Mr. and Mrs. Marion F. Peters were called to Garner late Saturday night in response to a telephone message telling of the sudden death Saturday night of Mrs. Peters' father, G. G. Lowe, 69.

Mrs. Peters had returned recently from an extended stay with her father, who had been ill for the past two months but had regained his strength sufficient to be able to walk around his home. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

Davidson Stanton's Methodist Pastor

The Rev. A. B. Davidson of Canadian will move to Stanton this week as pastor of the Methodist church there. He takes the place of the Rev. J. B. McReynolds, who goes to Levelland.

Goldstone Back to Jail; Trial Fails

FORT WORTH, Nov. 17. (UP).—Dr. Archie Goldstone went back to the Tarrant county jail, which has been his home for two and a half years, today after another attempt to try him had failed. He is charged with the theft of $350,000 worth of jewelry, by switching the check on a trunk belonging to Joe O'P. From New York salesman, between Fort Worth and Wichita Falls.

Has Declared Martial Law in Cuba

Central figure in the political unrest evidenced by violent rioting in the city of Havana is President Gerardo Machado, of Cuba, who here is shown in his latest posed photo. When students, civilians and agitators resorted to mob violence in protest against his "autocratic" rule, he exercised the right recently granted him by congress and declared the capital and its environs under martial law. Meanwhile he is being closely guarded.

GERMAN OPERA COMPANY SHOWS AT AMARILLO

AMARILLO, Nov. 17.—The German Opera company, one of the most famous musical organizations in the world, will present three operas in Amarillo in February.

This company, made up of Germany's most famous singers, and including Madame Johanna Gadski, will present Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman," "Die Walkure" and "d'Albert's Die Land," in Amarillo. The opening performance will be the night of Friday, February 6. A matinee and night performance will be given the following day. Popular prices, ranging from $5 down to $1 will prevail.

The company, of which J. J. Vincent is managing director, announces the personnel, repertoire and itinerary of its third American tour from coast to coast.

MIDLAND COUNTY IN ANHYDRITE AT DEPTH OF 2,700

Kervin et al No. 1 Mathena, east central Midland county oil test, was drilling ahead at 2,700 feet reports from the well this morning said, in a formation of anhydrite.

Stringers of anhydrite had been encountered, alternating with the salt, for some time and the last 30 feet was said to be in anhydrite.

The test is located in section 40, W. T. Gray pre-emption.

To Spud Gaines Test Tools were being moved by the Texas Consolidated Oil company to the rig erected in northwestern Gaines county by the Texas-Pacific Coal and Oil company for its No. 1 Jones Consolidated, who will drill the hole, would spud about the last of the week or early next week. The location is section 4, block A-8, public school lands, Gaines county.

CAPITALIST OF WICHITA FALLS DIES AT AUSTIN

AUSTIN, Nov. 17. (AP).—J. A. Kemp, 69, of Wichita Falls, capitalist and father of the Wichita irrigated valley, died here of heart disease last night after a week's illness. The body was forwarded to Wichita Falls. Funeral arrangements were incomplete, although services were tentatively planned for Wednesday. One son and three daughters survive.

JONES IS FIRST TO GET TRIAL

Three Witnesses Fail To Appear; Fined $100 Each

DALLAS, Nov. 17. (AP).—Three witnesses failing to answer the witness roll call were fined $100 each, and ordered brought to court here at today's opening trial of Jeff Jones, charged with rioting and commission of arson by explosion in the burning of the Grayson county courthouse at Sherman, May 9.

The fines, announced after the case of Jones and thirteen others charged in connection with rioting, and the subsequent death of a negro charged with criminally assaulting a white woman, failed to obtain trial delays.

The negro, locked in the courthouse vault, was dead when the vault was opened after the courthouse fire.

Jury selection was started.

Trial Proceeds in "Corruption" Case

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. (AP).—Motion to dismiss an indictment against Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader, and Thomas T. Tammany, former sheriff's office clerk, charged with accepting money for supporting George F. Ewald's appointment as city magistrate, was overruled today at the outset of their trial and selection of a jury was started.

Called to Giddings By Death of Father

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hawkins left for Giddings Sunday on receipt of news of the death of her father, Mr. Jaehne, prominent south Texas business man. Details of the news could not be obtained at press time, although a supply teacher was on duty for Mrs. Hawkins in the local schools today and Mr. Hawkins had left word at the Jackson Chevrolet that they were leaving on account of a death message.

"Archduke Otto and The Hapsburg Curse"

WCTU Leader Scoffs at Story on Return of Beer

HOUSTON, Nov. 17. (UP).—A telegram from Mrs. Ella Boole, national WCTU president, was today sent George Wickersham, chairman of Hoover's commission on law enforcement, lauding the commission for discarding repeal as a solution to the prohibition problem. Mrs. Boole, before the national WCTU convention here, today branded the story that the Pabst brewery had spent $1,000,000 for equipment in anticipation of the early return of beer as absolutely false.

MIDLAND FARMER DIES TODAY AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

R. L. Strickland, 49, farmer living seven miles northeast of Midland, died in a Midland hospital this morning about 2 o'clock.

Strickland, who is survived by his wife and six children, brought his family to Midland from Denton county about a year ago, since when he has been living on the E. R. Leonard place.

Old Indian Well Starts Oil Play

RIO GRANDE CITY, Nov. 17. (AP).—An Indian well the water of which was covered with oil to the disgust of its diggers 100 years ago may be the key to the petroleum situation in Starr county.

Several wells are being drilled by oil magnates in the vicinity and one gasser has blown in within half a mile of the water well dug by the Indians.

The Indians used the oil to rub on skin sores and later ranchers used it as a lubricant for windmills and farm machinery.

Twenty-one years ago the well led D. W. Moore of Houston to drill down 1,500 feet alongside it but he found nothing. More recently geologists investigated further and decided to drill in a different place with the result that there is a promise of a gas and oil field developing in this Rio Grande county.

Car Light Testing To Begin Dec. 1

Headlight testing of cars in Midland county will come earlier this year than before, the state Highway department writing that registrations will begin Dec. 1 rather than Jan. 1.

Those who have their lights tested early will avoid the rush.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS: James Fordney, about 50, fair and serious, is a matter-of-fact man, and has no sense of humor. This character must be quite effective. He walks with a definite stoop.

Matilda Fordney's role is a difficult one. She is angular, gaunt, is about 45 years old, has gray hair and speaks with a Cockney accent. She is English, speaks in a whining tone, is superstitious and believes in spiritualism. This is a good character part.

HEART IS PIERCED BY BULLET

Accidental Death Is Verdict of Jury Investigating

Mrs. Belton T. Hill, formerly Annie Laurie Self, daughter of the late J. D. Self and wife of a prominent Stanton grocerman, died instantly Sunday afternoon in Stanton from a revolver shot through the heart.

She, with her husband and four small children, had just returned to her home from an automobile ride when the shot was heard. The husband and oldest child, a nine-year-old girl, were with her in a room when she started to the bathroom.

The gun was a .32 calibre automatic. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

Mrs. Hill was a sister of Mrs. Jack Esfes, wife of the Midland county commissioner. Her father, the late J. D. Self, was one of the oldest pioneers in Martin county. Barney Hill, her father-in-law, is a prominent cattleman.

Legg Will Aid In Radio Work

Can Midland secure radio reception like that of other towns of West Texas? District Manager Aubrey S. Legg of the Texas Electric Service Company will aid in seeing that full cooperation is given technicians who will soon try to find reasons why there is more interference in Midland than they say should be expected.

He will extend the aid of his own workers in trying to locate interference. It is expected by Ted Hudson and Frank Smith, in charge of the work, that much of the trouble can be eliminated.

UNEMPLOYMENT TEACHING CO-OPERATION

The economic condition throughout the nation has led states and cities to realize new powers and new paternal duties.

This is primarily indicated in the new attitude of government toward the jobless.

Communities are beginning to learn that it is incumbent upon them not only to take taxes from the individual but to help that individual that he may be able to remain an upstanding tax-paying citizen.

The job finding movement in communities is sweeping the nation and once established promises to become a permanent corollary of municipal government and to advance government a step further in a more humanitarian realization of its powers and obligations.

Probably the most interesting labor experiment now going on is to be found in Detroit where Frank Murphy, while he was mayor-elect, named a committee to solve the unemployment problem.

The first measure undertaken by the committee was a registration of the city's unemployed. This was accomplished without expense to the city, 400 volunteer workers gathering the data and 25 precinct police stations and public school buildings being utilized.

Approximately 100,000 jobless men and women registered for employment of whom nearly 20,000 signified desperate and immediate need.

To prevent an influx of persons seeking employment, a condition which has already contributed greatly to Detroit's economic distress, only those who were residents for one year or longer were allowed to seek relief from the mayor's committee. The insistence upon legal residence is being rigidly adhered to.

Having estimated the needs of the unemployed, it became necessary to meet the challenge issued by one of the mayor's opponents during the campaign, "Mr. Murphy can't pull pork chops down out of the sky."

His committee is doing something nearly equivalent to that. By staggering shifts, dividing the hours of men already employed, limiting work to eight-hour days, and cutting down seven-day weeks to six, a number of employers have been able to increase their forces. The recent establishment of an employment committee to devise ways and means of creating jobs promises to be the most constructive emergency measure yet adopted.

They propose to owners of timbered lands near the city that they contribute the timber free in exchange for the clearing of their property, the timber to be cut into cordwood and sold in Detroit, either through established fuel dealers or through the efforts of the committee. All money over expenses will average from $3.50 to $5 a day. This will take care of from 500 to 1,000 men.

Another project is the consolidation of odd jobs in such a way that a month's steady employment at a time can be given to one man or woman instead of innumerable hourly jobs whose profits are largely eaten up in going to and from work. This would be accomplished by the organization by volunteer workers, of blocks of 20 or more homes in well-to-do districts, each paying on a pro-rata monthly basis, and the volunteer assigning the working man or woman to half-hour odd jobs in different homes each day.

The public works committee is making a study of all public improvements for which money is available, or has been authorized, or for which bonds could be obtained.

The present bonding leeway of the city is approximately $25,000,000, with public works authorized approximately $38,000,000. Such as can be financed will be expended, and the November election presented an amendment which increases the bonding limit by one-half of one per cent. Already $4,000,000 has been appropriated to advance next year's school building program, work upon which has already been started.

Detroit has evidently gone in a practical manner about its problem of caring for its more than 100,000 jobless.

The Detroit plan presents many suggestions to other cities.

On the Spot!

Mystery House Arouses Imagination in France

By MINOTT SAUNDERS, NEA Service Writer

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Political plotting with widespread ramifications by communists and anti-Fascists is being feverishly investigated by high French police as the result of the chance discovery of a headquarters, boldly established at Sartrouville, a village near Maisons-Laffite, outside of Paris, where the most sinister operations were conducted.

Terrorism, crime, a gaping grave, secret passageways, mysterious wireless sets, infernal machine mechanism, strange codes and a bewildering collection of false passports are some of the things that have been discovered. A ton of documents, papers and propaganda is being scrutinized, while searching is being made in France and neighboring countries for the ringleaders.

The den was discovered when one of the band, who had been "put on the spot", managed to reach the street with a bullet in his head and there collapsed. He believed he was dying and said his name was Louis Carti, an Italian, and that he had been shot by confederates who had been working with him in the cause of anti-Fascism.

In Great Disorder Bloodstains led the police to a modest, two-story dwelling in great disorder, and in the basement was found a freshly dug pit, apparently meant for a grave, and beside it bags of cement that might well have been used to lay a new flooring and conceal the crime for countless years.

Carti was shot in the neck from behind, but the bullet lodged between the spine and the base of the brain. When he was told he would probably recover, he closed up and refused to tell the police anything, grimly shaking his head like a Jack Diamond. Later during a relapse and a high fever he related how he was called to headquarters where he faced four men assembled as a court of justice, three of whom he knew, but the unknown addressed him:

"We are aware from a sure source that you are a traitor to us. Your activities are known," he said.

"Who says I am a traitor? I demand explanations," answered Carti.

"We have no explanations to make to you," was the retort. "This is a rule of the organization, as you know. You also know that the tribunal judges without appeal."

"I am not a traitor; it is false," cried Carti.

"It is useless to deny it, we have proof. Sit down and write."

Confused, Carti wrote a short confession. He was allowed to leave the house by a door leading into a courtyard. He had gone but a few steps, however, when he was fired upon point blank, from behind.

Conspirators Named by Carti The police theory is that the executioners left Carti for dead, descended to the basement to prepare the grave, and that while they were gone the victim pulled himself together, staggered out into the backyard, climbed a fence and fell in the street covered with blood; that the others returned to find he had escaped and themselves took flight rather than risk a scene outside.

Carti named three men, Angelo Cammetti, Aldo Cavallini and Remigio Bagnini, as his judges, but the fourth is believed to have been an agent who came to hold the court. Carti's movements have been traced so that the police now know that he traveled considerably, that he was expelled from Belgium as Carlo Verni, that he entered again as Jundick Halek, a Czecho-Slo-kan, and since then he has declared his real name to be Eros Necchi, an Italian. Under these various aliases he carried passports, apparently in order.

Everything in the house suggested mysterious machinations, political hatreds and ruthless vengeance. One of the documents found showed that nearly a thousand persons had been marked for death, and that apparently many executions had been carried out, but with no proof where they were done. Neighbors have recalled that a hydraulic motor on the ground, used for pumping water, was operating about the time of the Carti shooting, and that they had heard it at various times during the day and night. As a result the police are digging all over the grounds on the theory that others victims might be found. The house also borders on the Seine, which has given the police the idea that the river might have been convenient.

A Secret Passageway Among the strange secrets the house revealed was a secret passageway which led to a living room and kitchen which had apparently been occupied by one or two women. One has been identified, from photographs and papers, as Elisabeth Soklokhova, rather young and pretty, with blonde hair and blue eyes; either a Russian or a Czecho-Slovakian.

The entire household suggested hasty flight by its queer inhabitants. A meal had been in progress and some of the food remained on the stove.

The wireless sets found were capable of communication with Italy and Russia. Many envelopes seized had been addressed in Moscow. There was a mimeograph machine hidden away, and in the same closet a rolling pin, blood-stained. Names and addresses of over 2000 persons, mostly Italian and Russian, were discovered, and since most of them live in or near Paris they are being questioned. The house had many visitors, and apparently they traveled a good deal because 22 suitcases were found, some with false bottoms concealing passports. The amount of literature taken, mostly of a propaganda nature, is enormous and the police are going through it with great care.

Public Indignation Aroused The police have already established to their satisfaction that the Sartrouville house of mystery was at least a district headquarters known as "E", which suggests that there were four others, probably, judging by the evidence, in Belgium, Switzerland, Luxembourg and Italy. Communications had been received from the Kominter—Executive Committee of Moscow—through a German agent, and indications have been found of a liaison with branches in New York and Indo-China.

Great public indignation has resulted from disclosures of the Sartrouville house of mystery because such high-handed political plotting has been allowed to flourish, with the result that the police are straining every nerve to break the conspirators.

CAMEL GETS AIR RIDE

ROME—What is said to be the first camel ever to ride in an airplane was recently delivered to the Roman Zoo here. While waiting at Tunis for a ship to transport the beast, its attendants found it would be easier to ship it by plane. So the camel rode for four hours over the Mediterranean sea in a Caponi plane.

Daily Washington Letter

By Rodney Dutcher If You Like Your Politics Hot and Furious Don't Worry About the Major Parties' Proposal to Co-operate, Because They Are Likely to Differ on the Best Plan to Save the Country

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The unusual proposal that the two major parties in Congress co-operate "in the welfare of the country," offered by the Democrats and accepted by the Republicans, does not mean that there will be any general cessation of hostilities between the parties.

Those who like their politics hot and furious need not feel doomed to disappointment, even though both Democrats and Republicans have promised that they will devote primary attention to pulling the country out of its hole.

Republicans and Democrats have differed from many decades as to just what's best for this country and they continue to differ right up to the present moment. Most lately they have differed on the Hawley-Smoot tariff act and on the farm relief measures. And the Republicans of the House buried the most important of unemployment legislation offered by a Democrat, Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York. Thus, even in trying to work out the national salvation they are likely to fight among themselves and certainly on other issues one will observe the same old game of politics as well as the lining up of two more or less distinct schools of thought.

Strategic Move Obviously the Democrats won't stand for the blocking of their own relief measures in favor of similar Republican measures if they can help it, as was suggested in a statement by Senator Walsh of Montana when he said that co-operation would have to work both ways.

The statement signed by Chairman Raskob, Executive Chairman Shouse, Senate Leader Robinson, House Leader Garner and the last three Democratic presidential candidates is regarded here as an utterance both statesmanlike and politically strategic. It tended to reassure the country that the party would not delay improvement of economic conditions by a policy of harassing the administration.

The leaders who framed the statement felt that the country badly needed more confidence in its government. They believed that repeated "pollyanna" statements from the administration had reduced the confidence of business men to a very low ebb and that the ebb might go lower than ever with the uncertain prospects of who would control the next Congress and the specter of legislative chaos afflicting many imaginations.

G. O. P. Shrewd, Too Politically, the Democrats stood only to lose by adding to all that worryment. On the other hand, any time a group of politicians can do or say anything really statesmanlike, it represents a net gain. Naturally, the Republicans were quick on the upstroke and accepted the offer through Senator Jim Watson, the Republican floor leader.

As for the Democratic program in the Seventy-second Congress which opens in regular session nearly 13 months hence, Democratic leaders admit they don't know what conditions will be like so far ahead, and consequently are not yet trying to outline any program at all.

President Hoover has promised to iron out bad things in the tariff law through the tariff commission. The Democrats will wait and see. No one knows what business conditions will be like in another year. And, for that matter, no one can tell which party is going to control either the House or the Senate.

MITCHELL COUNTY WINS

COLORADO, Tex., Nov. 17. (AP).—Mitchell county 4-H club boys and girls and pure line grain sorghum seed breeders won 15 ribbons and $63.00 as prizes at the Texas State fair at Dallas, taking two first prizes on maize, one first prize on hegrira and one sweepstake prize on maize over all grain sorghum.

The sweepstake prize was won by A. K. McCarley, who also won second prize in threshed maize and single heads and fourth prize in class of 10 heads.

Oil extracted from cherry pits has been found good for use in salad dressings and for the manufacture of cosmetics and various drugs.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

I have just received cuts of the pictures made at the recent overnight hike made by the local scoutmasters school, when Hankins and a bunch of the boys around town slept on the ground at Cloverdale. The first picture gives a more or less close-up view of two of the boys who had tried going to sleep but couldn't make it. After rolling and tumbling for two hours, wishing they had brought along a mattress as well as some blankets, they got up and pulled on a few extra clothes and last sat by the camp fire until morning. With this training, they will be fitted excellently for guidance of Boy Scouts who may call in their respective troops.

Completing the hazardous night, the future scoutmasters came on back to town the next morning, full of glowing reports of the night's adventure. Right in the middle of a yarn about how well they slept, most of the fellows would have to suppress a yawn, and by the middle of the afternoon you could look around the back doors of their places of business and find some of the over-night hikers in a position something like the second photograph shows. In fact, Arkansas was sweeping out and almost had Hankins hauled off with the trash as he was sweeping out by the trash box.

VETERAN OPERATOR RETIRES

MADRID, (UP).—Spain's veteran telegraph operator, Miguel de Lara, has been retired on pension after 50 years of service. He began his career in 1880, and in 1889 went to the Philippines as head of the service at Ili-Ili and Capiz. The flag on Lara's station at Capiz was the last Spanish flag to be hauled down after the Spanish-American war.

CITIZENS GIVE $1,781,450

WASHINGTON, (UP).—Public-spirited citizens voluntarily contributed $1,781,450 toward the development of federal parks and monuments during the past fiscal year, according to an interior department statement. During the same period earnings from concessions located in the parks exceeded a million dollars.

Wimberly-Witty Marriage Solemnized at Home of Bride's Parents Sunday Morning

In a pretty home wedding at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, Miss Pearl Wimberly of Midland became the bride of Mr. R. E. Witty of this city. They left immediately after for an automobile trip to Tulsa, Oklahoma, and to points in Kansas. After a wedding trip of two weeks, they will return to Midland, residing at the Cochran apartments.

The attendants in the wedding were members of the bride's family, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wimberly, her brother, Wallace Wimberly of Midland, and her brother, Wilbur Wimberly of El Paso and Mrs. Wilbur Wimberly.

The Rev. George F. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist church, performed the nuptial ceremony before an altar formed with tall baskets of pink and cream chrysanthemums and a background of a mass of chrysanthemums of all colors. Burning tapers, providing a soft light, harmonized with the altar colors.

The bride wore a brown and tan tweed suit with deep lapin collar, brown hat, shoes and accessories. Her bouquet was of cream chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Witty is a member of one of Midland's oldest and most substantial families, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wimberly. She received her preliminary education in the Midland public schools, spent two years in Simmons University and one year in the West Texas State Teachers' College at Canyon. In school, she was an outstanding debater and declaimer, having represented Midland high school in state contests. She is also a talented musician.

In her college activities, she served on the news staff of college publications and was also active at Simmons in the University Players.

She was connected with the Midland chamber of commerce for a year as assistant to the secretary and has spent more than a year as society editor of the Midland Reporter and The Reporter-Telegram. She will continue this position upon her return from the wedding trip.

Mr. Witty is district manager of the land department of The Texas Company, with offices in Midland. He has been engaged in oil company work in the Permian Basin for four years, spending much of his time in Midland.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Witty of Claremore, Oklahoma. He attended Tulsa University where he was an active all-around student and was captain of the football team. Later, he went to the University of Arkansas, at Fayetteville, receiving his degree. He was on the varsity football team there and belonged to the Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity.

Midland Wins Banner Zone Meeting

At a zone meeting in Stanton Sunday afternoon, the Senior B. Y. P. U. society of the Midland Baptist church won the attendance banner, having the largest percentage of members present.

Midland people who attended said the meetings was one of the most interesting held in some time. Leon Arnett, president of the Midland Society, Myrtle McGraw, Lonnie Hall, Mary Elizabeth Newman, and Rev. George F. Brown, pastor of the Midland Baptist church, all had parts on the program. Mrs. W. E. Umberson and a number of other Midland young people also attended the meeting.

Panther Draw was the town selected for the next zone meeting which will be on the fourth Sunday in December.

The members of the B. Y. P. U. rounded out a successful day, when after the zone meeting, 81 attended the regular meeting Sunday evening at the Midland church. They reported a particularly enjoyable hour of songs, with Mrs. Paul T. Vickers leading.

Local Housewives' Choice Recipes

Local meat markets are able to furnish housewives with various seafoods now and of course a few recipes that have been tested are good for the cook book.

Oyster Stew: 2 cups scalded milk, 2 cups oysters, 1 cup oyster liquor, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-8 teaspoon white pepper. Salt to taste.

Pick over the oysters, wash in a strainer, set in a bowl of water, removing any adhering pieces of shell. Heat the oyster liquid; then add the oysters and cook until the edges curl, which requires only a few minutes. Add the hot milk, butter, seasoning and serve at once.

Shrimp Wiggle: 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 cup milk, 1 cup shrimps, 1 cup canned peas, Paprika.

Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, milk and seasoning. Wash the shrimps, remove the dark vein and break the shrimp into pieces. When the sauce thickens add the shrimps, also the canned peas drained from their liquor and thoroughly rinsed. Cook all 4 or 5 minutes and serve on squares of toasted bread.

McCamey Paving Making Progress

MCCAMEY, Nov. 17.—Contractors are making rapid progress on the paving of 15 blocks of the city's residential streets. The school board is expected to order paving around the city's $350,000 school plant next week and when this work and that which is now under way is completed the city will have paved more than fifty blocks in the business and residential sections. Only local labor has been employed in the work and this has gone a long way toward relieving the unemployment situation. Much other improvement is being done in the remodeling of downtown buildings.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

CREOMULSION FOR THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON. Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Ideas on Interior Decoration Given To Local Women Through Institute

Midland women who are planning winter or spring re-decorating, or who are puzzled over interior decoration in a new house, might do well to heed the advice given by the Educational Service Department of the Modern Housekeeping Institute, Chicago, on floors, color schemes, and other important problems pertaining to beautification of homes. The Institute says:

Color Schemes: An important general rule which should be followed in planning the color scheme for any room is as follows: use warm tones in rooms with north or east exposure, and cool shades in those which face south or west. The warm colors are red, yellow and their variations; and cool colors are blues, greens and grey. This rule guides the homemaker in selecting the dominant colors, but small contrasting accents in shades of the opposite type may be introduced. New Floors for Old: Not even the sacred tradition of Dutch housewives—that floors must be "clean enough to eat off of"—is good enough for the modern woman. Floors today must be beautiful as well as clean, and furnish a lovely background for the decorative scheme of a room. If of wood, they should have a soft glow and radiance that comes from frequent waxing and polishing. Some wood floors, however, are in such unkempt, worn condition that they cannot take a rich polish. It's an easy and inexpensive process for a woman to refinish such unsightly floors herself. Nor is there any mystery in this simple task which the amateur cannot readily master. Perhaps she may wish to refinish only a three or four foot border around the room; or she may prefer to revive the entire floor. First the old finish, whether varnished, painted, waxed, stained or shellacked, must be entirely removed. Varnish remover and sandpapering will accomplish this, but much the easiest way is to use the sanding attachment which is now a feature of electric floor polishers. Most floors should be sanded with the grain, but if the surface is extremely rough or covered by many finish coats, the machine may be run cross-grain at a forty-five degree angle. For woods like oak and walnut, having an open grain texture, a paste wood filler to close the pores should be applied after sanding, and dried for twenty-four hours. Surplus filler may be wiped up with burlap. A coat of clear lacquer, brushed on with the grain, should dry for an hour. Two coats of paste wax may then be applied and polished. Floors with close grain surfaces such as maple, pine, birch and fir need no filler. For a natural finish, just apply a clear floor lacquer after the sanding is done, and later add two coats of paste wax. A lacquer wood stain of any color may be used instead, and followed by waxing.

Radiator Book Cases: A cupboard or bookcase with two or more shelves may be easily built by any carpenter to fit on top of the radiator cover. It will add charm to the room, and utilize space which would otherwise be wasted. Ornaments and bibelots of various types may be attractively arranged there as well as books. The cupboard may be decorated in any color which harmonizes with the room scheme, and it is a pleasant touch to paint the lining in a contrasting shade. The painted finish should be waxed to protect it from soot and dust. Rough Plaster Walls: Because of their rough texture, plaster walls of this type are particularly apt to catch and hold dust, which soon ruins their attractive freshness. An easy way to protect such walls from soil is to cover them rapidly with liquid wax glaze spread on with a large brush. This treatment imparts a pleasant luster to the plaster as well as providing a transparent, protective surface.

COACH BARRY ELIMINATING FAKE PLAYS FOR GAME WITH STANTON

BELIEVES HARD DRIVE AND BLOCKING WILL WIN FOR MIDLAND; MIDLAND TO SEND ATHLETIC COUNCIL TO STANTON

Two factors relating to the Midland-Stanton game scheduled for Friday were being worked out at the high school today—the athletic council will be in Stanton at 1 o'clock this afternoon to draw up a contract for the game, and Head Coach Barry was working on eliminations of offensive plays.

Barry will have no significant changes in plays, but will make a few minor changes in blocking assignments. All fake plays will be eliminated, judging from the offense used since the Pecos game.

There is no use trying to pull anything like the Statue of Liberty or several other plays against other teams with success. Rufus Hyde's men are intelligently and efficiently drilled against deceptive plays and it would likely be suicide to the Bulldogs to try the old formations.

DISTRICT 8 TANGLE

BY R. C. HANKINS

Good afternoon, sports fans. It may be blue Monday to some, but its black and blue for me. Comes a late explanation from A. Garland Adair, editor of The McCamey News, wherein he explains he did not write the article a few days ago that blasted Midland and Midland's coach, and he takes a crack at me for making an offer or two to buy dinners in case Midland should lose certain football games.

Hard driving and blocking will put Midland over, the coach believes, and he is working to that end.

The athletic council is formed of the superintendent, principal and coach as ex-officio members, Arthur Yeager from the school board, James P. Harrison, former student, and Cy Foster, president of the high school student body.

Adair writes a long letter, explaining that Royce Robbins, halfback on the McCamey football team, got out the story that was printed under Adair's name. The story in question had Adair's name at the top, just as stories are marked by special correspondents, of which Adair is one. If Adair did not write the story, and he makes it plain he did not, I am glad. I didn't like the story in the first place; it accused Midland of doing everything in the category of unsportsmanship. But I marked it up and sent it back, just to give McCamey the break it seemed to want.

As we say on sports desks, Adair has always been "white" with us, and it comes as a pleasure to print his explanation, even though he does call my offering to buy a dinner a "bet."

I regret exceedingly the differences between McCamey and Midland, instigated by the ousting of McCamey from interscholastic football.

"The matter came up while I was busy with a new born 'yell leader' whom we are happy to report is doing fine despite all the arguments, discussions and dissensions.

"But, as said before, I did not write the article credited to me which has furnished so much good copy for several sports editors, but the little boy wrote it and it was mailed following its official o. k. by our superintendent and coach.

"I am not in sympathy with many of the practices of members of the interscholastic league. Every club member has violated some rule or regulation. This thing of betting on the outcome of a contest between our children is the most reprehensible practice imaginable. A crap game in the alley by negroes is much more becoming than gambling on the greatest of all games. However, the encouragement given betting by sports writers who flaunt their desire to exchange a few "bat hides" in case their proteges fail to function successfully, using the columns of their newspapers to that end, are doing more to encourage the practice than any other force or factor. This matter of gambling on the grid results is sweeping trash into filth. It is making a Monte Carlo out of practically every athletic field in Texas high schools—and colleges and universities as well. It is dooming inter-city sports. It is driving such a thing as clean sportsmanship from almost every campus in Texas. It is encouraging professional football rather than making it a game for the physical and moral development of our boys who are to be our rulers of tomorrow.

"Horse racing has been outlawed in Texas. The gambler ruined this great sport.

"Keep this grid gambling a going and it, too, will soon be outlawed in the Lone Starland.

"This sounds like a weird piece of music to be played by a citizen of a young oil field town, but print this item and listen for the "amens" from your citizens. Like an anvil chorus, they will ring out to drown the whining and whimpering of a few sport writers who never contributed anything to a team unless it could make them a few simoleans each week end. They are the ones who first pounce on the school authorities and suggest a new coach.

"I have been in the newspaper game for twelve years. I was editor of the Marshall Daily Messenger, from which I went to war. Later I was owner and editor of the Mexia Daily News, where until 1926 I remained to that capacity. In 1926 I went to Abilene as editor and president of The Abilene Daily Times. In 1928 I went to Breckenridge as editor of The Breckenridge Daily American. Now I am here. I was president of the Rotary Club at Mexia and at Breckenridge. I was a delegate from Texas to the Democratic convention in San Francisco in 1920. I was delegate from Texas to the party's convention in New York in 1924, being the youngest member of the forty in 1920 and next to the youngest to Madison Square Garden four years later. This in brief is my history and I refer to them to bear out that statement that I have a reputation for being fair and friendly.

"I, therefore, again repeat that it is with much regret that any dispute should ever have arisen between our towns. One tilt of this sort, centered around our schools, in one day can demolish all the good work of our Rotary, Lions and Kiwanian's clubs and chamber of commerce and even make it embarrassing for people who call themselves Christians to meet in conference or assembly in pursuance of their labors of unselfish love.

"It will be a pleasure to cooperate at this end of the line in encouraging a genuine spirit of neighborliness between all of us, but one thing certain, one thing is necessary, the man or woman who bets on the outcome of a game should be duly punished just the same as the poker playing nigger is penalized for his lawlessness, if the game of football is to merit the support required for its continuance. (Also run a blue pencil through your sport editor's copy when he openly advertises for a bet). "It's not journalism" to carry such nonsense. It's neither news nor editorials of the type which The New York Times calls fit to print."

"N. B. In the interest of reconciliation, we would suggest that a post season game be played between McCamey and Midland either at Midland or at McCamey.

me. But he says it in such a nice way, and so conclusively, that one can't get back at him very well. He accuses me of interpreting the Midland-Stanton game through "green goggles," of being "hard-headed, cold-blooded," "pulling a fumble in the football lot," unable to collect a malted milk his wife, Mrs. Cora Matlock Kelly, owes me on the Wink affair with Midland—simply because he won a bet with her a few years ago and couldn't collect, and said he is sorry to inform me that the conclusion of the game here this week with Stanton will be something for me to think over for a long time.

But, to cap the matter, he says he is my friend and that I am a gentleman—so everything is o. k. He says if Midland wins the game I am to come over and hunt with him and we will eat what he shoots. He means one of two things—he believes I cannot hit with a gun, or he is a cannibal. Anyway, I'm expecting to eat in Midland—Kelly to pay the check. If not, I'll go with him on his hunt preserve and make as much noise as my toy shotgun will allow.

Flock of Young Quarters Dazzle American Pickers

By L. S. (LARRY) MacPHAIL, National Football Referee

"Give me a couple of tackles, a back who can go places, and a smart quarterback, and I'll have a football team. But first give me the quarterback." That's been the chant of a lot of football coaches from Maine to California.

Great quarterbacks have been scarce since the styles in quarterbacks changed. Ten years ago some little fellow hid behind the center, took the ball, and gave it to the backs. But with the advent of the direct pass, and the huddle, and a complicated offense, the fellow who was just a quarterback passed out of the picture.

In the complicated modern offense all four backs have practically the same duties to perform. The quarterback must be an efficient blocker. If he can run, pass and kick, so much the better. On defense, he must be a sure tackler with ability to defend against forward passes. If he's a great quarterback, he's a great halfback, possessing in addition the qualities of leadership and sound judgment.

Frank Carideo of Notre Dame and Barry Wood of Harvard merited All-America consideration last fall. But both were overshadowed by letter backs in Glasgow, Welch and Cagle, to say nothing of Marsters, Banker and Benny Lom.

This year, however, the crop of good quarterbacks is large. Quarterbacks are in almost every section.

In the East, Booth of Yale, Wood of Harvard and Captain Eddie Baker of Pitt seem to have the call, though French of Penn State also is a fine quarter.

Booth is small but he packs the dynamite and is a colorful and dramatic player. He is spectacular in a broken field and runs well from scrimmage following his interference with deliberation and good judgment. Booth is one of the best punters in the game, a fine drop kicker and a fair passer. His team value is lessened by the fact that 147 pounds can hardly last through a game, much less a season.

"Jock" Sutherland considers Eddie Baker the smartest back he ever coached. The Pittsburgh captain is handicapped by a mediocre eleven. Baker is just about the whole show at Pitt. He is their best passer and best receiver. He punts, place kicks and kicks off. Baker is an ideal leader and gives everything that's in him in every game.

Bobby Dodd of Tennessee has been the South's best quarterback for two years. Rival coaches give Dodd the credit for Tennessee's long string of victories. With Hackman and McEver, both great players, on the injured list at Tennessee, the burden of the attack has been thrown on Dodd. He does everything there is to do and does it well. Dodd is not only as good a punter as there is in the South, but one of the greatest passers from running formations in the game. They don't make better quarterbacks than this slim southerner.

Lee Hanley of Northwestern is a good back and an ideal leader, but the Big Ten nomination probably will go to Harry Newman, Michigan's sophomore flash. Newman was not included on the list of players invited back for early practice at Ann Arbor. He did not get into a game until Michigan was trailing Purdue by two touchdowns. He has been in all games since. Newman has passed Michigan to victory in four major games. He has transformed a mediocre outfit into an eleven with championship possibilities. It is questionable whether any other player has accomplished more.

Notre Dame still has Carideo. Carideo is a good blocker. He has to be to play in Notre Dame's backfield. Carideo is also a good tackler. He has to be that, too. The Hoosier may not be able to punt with Dodd, run like Booth, or pass as well as Newman, but he's a fine all-around player and especially valuable on pass defense. Carideo has the advantage of directing one of the country's greatest teams and the prestige of All-America selection in 1929.

On the coast Orville Mohler of Southern California is having a good year. Mohler had a large part in handing Pop Warner the worst beating of his career at Stanford, and was also a big shot in the 74-0 defeat of California.

Football brains and generalship will determine the All-America rating of these great backs. What constitutes good football judgment? Well, even coaches disagree. If they tell you how dumb a quarter is who threw passes on first down or from deep in his own territory, you'd best agree if you don't want to be taken for an imbecile. Depend upon it, the passes were intercepted. The same strategy would have been lauded if successful.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, November 16, was "Mortals and Immortals."

Included in the service were the passages from the Bible: "That ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness" (Ephesians 4:22-24).

The following citations from the Christ Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, were also read: "Mortals are not like immortals, created in God's own image; but infinite Spirit being all, mortal consciousness will at last yield to the scientific fact and disappear, and the real sense of being, perfect and forever intact, will appear. . . The old man with his deeds must be put off. Nothing sensual or sinful is immortal. . . Not death, but the understanding of Life, makes man immortal."

"UNKNOWN SOLDIER" LECTURE OF A HISTORY PROFESSOR HERE WRITTEN FROM INTERVIEWS OVER COUNTRY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Students in the classes of Robert C. Cotner, one of the history teachers in the high school here, asked his permission to publish this article which he wrote and used in his classes to emphasize the never-to-be-forgotten losses in the World War and to show how men and women gave husbands, sweethearts, and sons, so heroically that there might be peace. To those who heard Mr. Cotner read this article there came a realization of the supreme sacrifice made during the war.

THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

The world loves a hero. The world is always looking for the man or the woman who never gives excuses, but does great things or little things in a great way. There are many heroes who never led a victorious army nor took part in a bloody war. Peace, as well as war, has its heroes, and by far outnumber the latter. A host of men can be seen each day striving and attaining. And then there are those who are better known to the world as Caesar, Napoleon, Washington, and Pershing. But to the world at large who knows Doctor Grenfell, who routed scurvy, anemia, and starvation from Labrador; Cardinal Lavigerie, who smashed the slave trade in the Sahara; Marcus Whitman, who saved the Pacific Northwest to the union; or Doctor William A. Sheppard who saved 50,000 Christians from being massacred in Mesopotamia.

America has her unsung and unknown heroes. America has one unknown hero who embodies the spirit of a whole nation. He sleeps in Arlington cemetery—the Unknown Soldier. France's call was answered, and the manhood of the nation went to her poppled fields across the sea. Fifty thousand of that vast host from the North, South, East and West did not return to take up their duties in the homeland. They caught the torch from the wavering hands of their allied comrades and carried on, and today parts of France are forever American.

One of those who followed the gleam was chosen to represent his brothers and now rests in Arlington—some dear mother's boy, the embodiment of American manhood. Not long ago, while visiting in Washington, I went to see Mrs. Wilson and was allowed to read a few of the personal letters addressed to our late President. Two are reproduced here—

Valley Mills, Texas, February, 1922.

"Dear Mr. President: "My Will he went to the army in 1917. He was all I had. My ole man he had died and left me and Will on a little farm. Times weren't so hard then and we was a doing pretty well until Will was called. My Pa, he fought in 61 and Ma used ter tell me how lonesome she used ter get and how she'd have to work, but I didn't know just how lonesome it would be without Will. He was a good ole boy. He would git up early and milk the cow and go to the fields and work the cotton and corn and after harvest we would sell a little and live pretty well during the winter. Will trained in Waco and used to get to come home once in a while and he would tell me of the boys he had met from all over this here state. Then he was made a Sergeant and sent to France. He would write once in a while and tell me of what he saw and how they were licken the Germans. Then I didn't get no more letters and one of my nabors told me as how she had seed his name in the dead list and then one day I git a letter from a savin he would not come home any more.

"Now you are bringing the boys home and one will be in Arlington. I think perhaps that may be my boy. He was so good and strong and I know he did his best for his country. I was glad to give him and he was all I had but I just hope that some day I may git to see where you have laid him. God bless you, President."

"34 Broadway Ave., New York City, New York.

"Dear Mr. President: "This has been a terrible war. Remember when we were in college together, we talked of the impending war clouds in Europe? We didn't have to go when we were young, but you have seen other men's sons go away to the front and—mine had to go too. Mine will never come back and my hopes for him have been broken and my heart chilled, as have the hearts of thousands of other fathers and mothers throughout our glorious states.

"No doubt letters come to you each day about some dear boy. Letters from a sweetheart, mother, father or loved one, and you are touched and hardly know what to say. My heart too has been broken. John was healthy, a young six-footer. He would have graduated from the Law School at Princeton this spring, and he would have come to work with me. He had been captain of the football team; he was making good, and there was promise of his doing far more than I have ever done. James and I have covenanted to do the work that John would have done if he could have come back to us. I have written this to strengthen you as you strengthened me and may it help you to find a word of encouragement from those who cannot see a brighter day. I am glad that we are to have an Unknown Soldier to symbolize our boys who died in France. I shall meet you in Washington and be with you at the burial, knowing that this boy represents my boy and might be my boy."

Last summer while working in the steel district of Birmingham I reminded a woman of her boy who had not returned from France, and she told me this story:

"You see the long sheds over to the right there? That is the U. S. Steel Corporation plant. My son used to control the great magnate that loaded the flat cars with the finished rails. He told all about their manufacture. How the ore was brought in from the nearby mines and purified and then compounded chiefly with carbon and heated to white heat in vast ovens underground. Then the electric clamp goes down into those flaming cauldrons and brings up a cake about the size of a 300-pound block of ice, and drops it into an electric car which dumps the cake on to rollers. These rollers carry the cake to a eight by ten press and it comes out a long bar which is pressed through a mold the size of a rail. It is then sliced off to the proper length and rolled out to cool. It is then inspected for defects and the holes for the bolting are bored in the ends. Then, my boy dropped the great magnate down on them and hoisted five at a time on the flat cars awaiting shipment.

"It is a noisy place where he worked, the electric switching, and rolling bars, the hammering of the presses, the flying sparks and the intense heat. He liked the work and grew strong. He used to almost squeeze me in those strong arms of his, but that has been a long time now. You don't remember much about the war, but lots of the boys around here never came back. Jack Mulligan in the next block comes to see me some times and tells me how he and Sam went across together and fought together along the Marne. Somehow they got separated in the drive at Chateau Thierry and Sam never came back. Now, if I could sell this house we would move from here because the sounds from the plant set me to thinking and I get so lonely and sad. I have often wanted to go to Arlington because, somehow, I think Sam is buried there. I am mighty glad you came by because you have reminded me of my boy and I know your mother is proud of her boy too."

Somehow, I said goodbye and felt better for having stopped a while to talk with her.

While visiting in a home in Dalton, Ga., I saw the picture of a lieutenant on the piano, and I asked the girl who it was. With a little choke she said, "That is my brother who didn't come home from France. We were raised on a farm and had just moved to town in order that he might make more money to enable him to go to New York to study art. He painted that picture of me on the wall yonder. See the definiteness of stroke and richness of coloring. Father and mother had always expected him to do well and make a name for himself. This one is the old farm house, and father wants to go back now because he hates the noise of the city. Often he goes back home and to the old stone by the barn where brother used to sit and draw in the sand. Dad used sit there for hours revisiting the pictures in the sand, and then, all of a sudden, he will jump up and go to work as hard as he can trying to forget our loss. He has made a scrap book of the boys in training camps, embarking at New York, fighting France and coming home, but best of all he likes the picture of the grave of the Unknown Soldier."

One night, down on the East side, I dropped into a dance parlor to see what manner of place it was. It wasn't very inviting to me, to say the least, but since I thought perhaps some good could be found in any place and in the worst of us I tried this Nazareth. There was the usual bar and rail and almost anything could be bought if you had the money to pay for it. Little rooms were around the walls and here and there a curtain was drawn where someone had got filled and was taking a nap. The lights were dimmed with red paper and the people usually talked in whispers. Once in a while someone would laugh out or slap a hand on the table and call a waiter. Hollow eyed dudes leaned far across the tables toward thin, rouged friends, who turned smokestacks between volleys of chattering.

About 2 a. m. an orchestra tuned up and started "Yes-sir, That's My Baby." Chairs and tables were pushed back with a bang, every one seemed to have new life. The men grasped their partners and away they went in a whirl. This was kept up for probably three hours, when all at once the orchestra changed to war songs. "Roses of Picardy,"

Ready for a Steady Flow of Beer—If and When

Rumors that the Wickersham commission may recommend liberalizing of the Volstead act have caused several people to prepare to put out a flow of beer, if and when such a procedure will become legal. Above is a snapshot showing how a Cincinnati restaurant man attracted attention to his place with two kegs bearing the sign, "Ready for Xmas." At the right are two photos taken at the Schlitz brewery in Milwaukee, where preparations have been made to start operations on short notice. The upper picture shows a row of giant beer kettles; below, a guide lets visitors inspect one at close range.

Shows Depression Is World-Wide

That the current business depression is world-wide is shown in these two charts drawn up by Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company and one of the country's most famous statisticians and business experts. The chart at the left shows recent trends in stock prices in various countries, the peak being 100 and the figures at the right indicating the average levels of prices in October, except for the Netherlands which show September prices. Note how each line follows much the same course. At the right a chart shows wholesale prices in ten countries; and again the trend is much the same in each case.

came and I couldn't stand it any longer. Boys were telling of the great number of dead when the call came for volunteers for stretcher bearers and I went thinking I could go to the hospital and see if I were there. I worked on toward morning. The low cries, the stiff bodies, the setting cold and glaring moon pushing me on. Along about four-thirty I went over a little rise and at the bottom lay several bodies mangled together. Someone helped me to get them apart and there I found brother—caught seven machine gun bullets in his chest and legs just as he made the rise. I don't know what I did, but the next thing I remembered the sun was lighting up that terrible field and some of the squad helped bury him in a quiet place at the foot of a tree stump. When you go to the battlefields see the place and tell me about it. I just live for him and mother, and I will be so glad when I can see him again in that land of peace and happiness."

"For Your Boy and Mine," and "We're Going Over," etc. Everything got quiet and the dancing stopped—it was the morning of Nov. 11.

I noticed a girl off in the corner to herself, and I walked over and, seeing that she had tears in her eyes, asked what was the matter. "Well, you see it is like this," and she threw her head back against the wall and turned her face up to the bare ceiling. "Pete and me used to come here often after we got thru picking pockets as people waited in front of the shows. We didn't get rich, but we had a good time and when we got sick we would help each other. He wasn't very swell, but dressed pretty well, and bought me pretty silks and I stole a tie pin which he wanted. We had planned to get married in June, when some people down in Washington declared war on Germany and all the fellows in these parts were drafted. See old Sing Wu over in the far corner? He and Pete joined the same day, but Pete didn't come back to dance with me and it's been hard, or to make a living too. Sing Wu, Abe Linowitch, and Pete used to tell how much fun it was to show the smart guys from the big jobs and schools how to do tricks and peel potatoes. Then, one day he came and told me good-bye and gave me his little ruby ring which he had bought from Abe's father with the first money he had ever made. I promised him I would be waiting for him. He used to write and tell me about France, the poppies, the wind and the snow. Abe got killed in the first drive, and now I go and talk with his father who runs a shop down the street there. Soon Pete went over the top with the 'Lost Battalion' and Wu told me that as the English saw angels at Cambrai, Pete saw God and was eased in his pain as he told Wu good-bye and gave him his ring to give me. You see why I am not happy this morning, and I am trying to find Pete's God and then someday we shall be together again—for they teach that in the 'Little Church Around the Corner.' The other day I saw a picture of the grave of the Unknown Soldier and somehow I thought of it as Pete's grave."

I stayed a little longer and tried to comfort and strengthen her faith by the previous experiences I had had, and I came away realizing how closely the world is bound together by this great common sorrow.

Who was the Unknown Soldier? Was he a farmer, college youth, steel worker, miner, business man, fisherman, or an outcast of society? We shall never know. We only know that he was an American, who loved home, justice and freedom and gave his life that Democracy and Peace might not perish from this earth.

The entire company will number 150 artists, including a mixed chorus and symphony orchestra of 54 pieces. A special train, comprising six passenger cars and seven baggage cars, will transport the company and its stupendous settings from coast to coast.

The company will present on its American tour Mozart's "Don Juan" ("Don Giovanni"), Wagner's "Flying Dutchman", "Tristan und Isolde", "Das Rheingold", "Die Walkure", "Siegfried" and "Gotterdammerung" and "Albert's Tiedland."

Jasmine, Granya's ebony maid, is easily frightened and is a comedy character.

Christine Norris, Jonah's wife, is about 30. Here is a high class adventurous type, needing black eyes and a contralto voice.

Phillip Norris, a nephew of Jonah, is about 33 and is good looking and manly.

Draydon McKelvie is a special investigator, about 32 years old. He must be good.

Officer Gordon, an ordinary policeman, should be rather stocky. He is rather dumb.

Detective Sergeant Williams is the regular unimaginative dick who believes in himself while the criminals get away. He takes himself entirely seriously.

Daniels is a plain clothes man who is just a plain clothes man.

First rehearsals will be called this week. The play will be read at Mrs. Abell's tonight, and anyone interested is asked to be there. The address is 1507 West Illinois.

REFUEL OVER OCEAN

WASHINGTON—Refueling of airplanes on commercial trips across the sea is a possibility of the future, according to Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics. "There isn't any question in my mind but what refueling will be given practical application in commercial air transportation," he said.

39 W.T. COUNTIES REGISTER GAIN OF 57 PER CENT

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 17.—Thirty-nine West Texas counties immediately adjacent to San Angelo which showed a population increase of 57.4 per cent during the 10 year period from 1920 to 1930, are believed to have registered the largest gain for so large a territory anywhere in the Southwest.

The figures were taken from reports of the United States census for 1920 and 1930, and were compiled by Preston Y. Chumley, statistician for Preston Y. Chumley board of city development.

Winkler county, which in 1920 had a total population of only 81, with 6,884 accounted for by the 1930 census takers, registered the largest percentage increase of any of the counties, with a per centage increase of 8,398.3. Crane county, gaining from a population of 37 in 1920 to 2,194 in 1930, and showing a percentage increase of 5,829.7, was second in percentage gain. Discovery and development of oil fields in the two counties accounts for the large population increases. Mr. Chumley explained. Tom Green county, of which San Angelo is the county site, registered the largest numerical gain of any of the 18 counties, growing from a population of 15,210 in 1920 to 36,029 in 1930, or an increase of 20,819 people, with a percentage increase of 136.9 per cent.

The 57.4 per cent increase shown by the U. S. census figures for the 39 West Texas counties compared with the 24.3 per cent increase in population for all of the state of Texas during that period, indicates the rapid development strides being made in this territory, and shows something of the contribution this section made to the percentage increase made for all of the state.

It is interesting to note that San Angelo now ranks 15th in the list of Texas cities, with a population of 25,304. The following is a list of these cities, and their population: Houston 289,579, Dallas 260,397, San Antonio 254,562, Fort Worth 160,892, El Paso 101,975, Beaumont 57,483, Galveston 53,427, Austin 53,118, Waco 52,825, Port Arthur 50,067, Wichita Falls 43,614, Amarillo 43,107, Laredo 32,716, Corpus Christi 27,785 and San Angelo 25,304.

Confidence that Southwest Texas will continue to attract new population and afford remunerative employment for an even larger citizenship than is accounted for by the 1930 U. S. Census is voiced by business leaders of San Angelo, who point to new development factors as affording new promise for the further development of the unscratched resources of the territory.

Completion of the Alpine-Preisdio extension of the Santa Fe, affording San Angelo direct railroad connection with Chihuahua, Mexico City and connected points, was celebrated early in November by the operation of a special train chartered by the San Angelo Board of City Development which carried 188 West Texas business leaders on a good will tour to Chihuahua. This development followed the completion of the Sonora extension of the Santa Fe from San Angelo to Sonora, affording rail transportation for the rich ranching country south of San Angelo which theretofore had depended on trucks or overland driving of herds for the movement of its livestock, wool and mohair crops to San Angelo.

The following is a tabulation of United States census reports affecting the 39 counties immediately adjacent to San Angelo, and which shows that the population of the 39 counties gained from 184,887 in 1920 to 290,922 in 1930, making a numerical gain of 106,125 people, and a percentage gain of 57.4 during the 10 year period:
