Neff To Succeed Gilmore As Railroad Commissioner

WAS NAMED TODAY BY GOVERNOR

While Governor, Neff Appointed Moody To Office

AUSTIN, Oct. 14.—(P)—Governor Moody today appointed Pat M. Neff of Waco, former governor of Texas, a member of the state railroad commission, succeeding the late Clarence E. Gilmore.

Neff was formerly a member of the United States Board of Mediation, being appointed by President Coolidge. He served for two terms as governor of Texas, from January 1921 to January 1925.

While governor, he appointed Dan Moody, present governor, as district attorney.

Neff has been mentioned as a likely candidate for a third term as governor of the state, especially if the former United States Senator, Earle B. Mayfield, should enter the race. Mayfield bitterly opposed Neff's re-appointment to the federal mediation body.

Royalty Owners To Meet At State Fair

A meeting of the Midcontinent Royalty Owners' Association will be held Tuesday, Oct. 22, at the Texas State Fair grounds, the Fair Association having designated Oct. 22 as this organization's day at the fair. E. G. Bedford of Midland, is president of the association, and C. E. Wandell of Fort Worth is secretary. Among the directors are three Dallas men, Capt. J. F. Lucey, Judge R. T. Meador and Judge P. S. Godfrey.

It is expected that at the Dallas meeting Judge Gresham of Abilene will discuss the matter of regulating royalty owners' taxes throughout the State. Mr. Bedford will speak on the treatment accorded the royalty owners by the pipe line companies.

Fire Messages At City Schools Today

Students of the Junior High school and South Ward school today heard messages on fire prevention. Mayor Leon Goodman spoke at Junior High, and Claude O. Crane, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Fire Prevention Committee spoke at both schools.

Mr. Crane presented the prizes to the winners Doris Tidwell, F. B. Roundtree, Virginia Moore, Locksley Hall, Jr., Florine Baker, and Billy McGrew.

Rally Night At Little Theater

Tonight is rally night at the "Home of the Little Theater." Everyone in Midland interested in the success of the movement to "dramatize Midland" is asked to be present.

The house will be called to order at 8 o'clock. Speeches from "Swede" Swenson, president of Little Theater, on "The Value of Little Theater," an address from Mrs. Paul T. Vickers, of the Vickers Studio of Classical Dancing and Expression, on "The Workshop of the Little Theater" will be heard.

BACK FROM EXPOSITION

W. A. Younger returned today from Tulsa where he attended the International Petroleum Exposition. Mrs. Younger and Wilbur Arthur Junior, who have been visiting relatives in Pawhuska, returned with him.

PENN WELL FLOWS WITH INCREASING RAPIDITY DAILY

Making heads of oil periodically, the Penn well in Ector county flowed 348 barrels Sunday and had flowed 348 barrels today, having lost two heads on the ground while the crew was installing a gas separator.

The well, listed in state papers Sunday as one of the two prime features of production in the West Texas Permian Basin, was shut down Friday at a depth of 3744 feet. At that time the well was producing a half million cubic feet of gas, and had flowed 300 barrels of oil over a 24 hour test, flowing 178 barrels over the last 12 hours.

Storage tanks, two of 1,000-barrel capacity, had been erected. Both gas and oil heads were forming each two hours.

MIDLAND SURGEON SEES IMPORTANT STEP IN PHOTOS

A time is to come when physicians and surgeons will have film libraries which will allow them to sit at leisure and watch projected on a screen delicate operations performed over the world, according to Dr. John B. Thomas, Midland surgeon, who is in Chicago attending the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons.

"The potential value to medicine of introduction of sound and color in motion pictures will be one of the subjects emphasized at the congress when more than 3,000 surgeons assemble," Dr. Thomas said before taking a train Friday night from Midland.

Heart beats, tissue colors, and the voices of master surgeons explaining, as they demonstrate, intricate phases of surgical technique, can now be put into permanent records and widely distributed. The inestimable value of such pictures has led the surgeons' association to make an extensive study of the possibilities offered by the modern motion picture.

Medical motion pictures of the ordinary type have already begun to play an important part in education, according to Dr. Franklin H. Martin, president of the College of Surgeons. A department for creating, supervising production of and critiquing them was established in 1927 by the College.

Thirteen subjects have been filmed by this department for loan to professional organizations. Four more recently were rushed to completion for the Clinical Congress here. These pictures are permanent records of perfected, standard surgical technique.

"Drama" of Appendicitis While most of the films now available are for the profession, definite plans have been made for popular medical reels. One has already been produced. It is in story form with a cast including a school girl, her family and her physician. An attack of appendicitis provides the dramatic element.

"Perfection of the motion picture by addition of sound and color is of great interest to an organization such as the American College of Surgeons, which is devoted to improving the quality of medical education and raising the ethical and technical standards of surgery," said Dr. Martin.

"Several interesting color pictures have been produced by different individuals. The first 'talkie' film has just been completed by a London physician.

"We have made many experiments and studied the work of others. At the Congress we shall review the results obtained thus far and decide if it is feasible to go into the production of sound films at the present time.

"There are many features of the moving picture that make it an ideal teaching medium. By means of the picture, all details of an operation can be studied as often as desired.

Future Rulers Of Italy

They're the future King and Queen of Italy. It's at a court wedding in Rome—though not their own—that Crown Prince Humbert of Italy and pretty Princess Maria-Jose of Belgium here are pictured together for the first time. Their engagement has been announced and it has been reported that they may be wed by the Pope.

Rain Provides Best Range Conditions for Two Years

More lake water was deposited in rains during the week-end than has been received in the Midland cattle area for two years or more, in the opinion of a number of cattlemen here today.

The rain, some of which fell Saturday and Saturday night, and more Sunday and Sunday night, covered a wide territory. Tourists coming in from various directions report rains for hundreds of miles, and ranchmen who have visited or have heard from their ranches say that the rain was general.

Coming closely behind the recent rains over the country, this precipitation makes the grass and weeds better than has been seen here for the past few years. Cattle are in good flesh, and cattlemen are jubilant.

Farmers say that although the rain delays the maturing and picking of cotton, the rain has not damaged the crop as it would have if more of it had fallen on the ground.

T. O. Midkiff visited his ranch south of here Sunday, and found that the rain had been so heavy that fences were washed down in draws leading to a lake near his headquarters.

Rain in that section averaged approximately four inches, being reported heavy on the Midkiff, Elkin, Neal, Youngblood, Hutt and Schrock places.

Reports of a five-inch rain in the Andrews area Sunday night reached here this morning.

Publicity for Midland at International Petroleum Exposition Is Immeasurable

Midland received an inestimable amount of publicity at the International Petroleum Exposition at Midland, newspaper clippings brought back Sunday night by the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce showed.

Four column cuts of the Midland booth were pictured in the Tulsa World and Star-Telegram. Newspaper accounts sent out by the exposition publicity department appeared in at least 200 newspapers and magazines, and programs sent out advertising Midland Day as well as other days were sent all the way from Siberia to South American countries.

Again this year, Midland was one of the few cities to have a special day. Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio and Midland were the only Texas cities to have special days, and there were not a dozen cities in the world, outside of Oklahoma that were honored with special days. Midland Day was declared several weeks ago on request of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Interviews in Tulsa papers, articles about Midland in oil journals, distribution of several hundred pieces of Midland literature, Midland signs seen by over 100,000 people and pictures of prominent Midland buildings seen by thousands were features of the wide publicity Midland obtained.

The value of Midland advertising may be seen in the following statement made by the general manager of one major oil company: "You Midland people certainly stay with it. Everybody knows about Midland."

A small amount of the publicity will be posted in the Chamber of Commerce window Tuesday for (Continued on Page 6)

GOODMAN ADDRESS STARTER

Five Groups Working From Bases Over The City

"Little Theatre Week," officially designated Sunday through Monday by Mayor Leon Goodman's proclamation, got away to a flying start this morning when five group leaders with their assistants heard addresses from the president of the organization, Fridolph "Swede" Swenson.

Green "I-have-joined-the-Little-Theatre-Have-You?" tags were to be observed on the laps of many persons on the streets today immediately after the five groups had gone to their posts in the postoffice, Petroleum building, Scharbauer hotel and two banks. The tags signify membership with the Little Theatre. All persons who bought membership were asked as a favor to the organization that the tags be worn, for two reasons—that others might be influenced to buy, and that workers soliciting membership might not approach them again.

Lasts This Week The campaign, which is to last all week, seeks to get Midland behind the Little Theatre movement to a man. Mayor Goodman, in talking to directors this morning, said that it is always hard to recruit memberships in a drive of the kind now on, but that Midland is the best town of its size he has seen for raising money for legitimate enterprises.

He bespoke for the organization a successful week and stated that the group might enter him for a $25 patron ticket. "I think your membership ticket prices are extremely low for the class of art you put over the footlights," the mayor said. "I was at the productions of the Midland Players last year and, while enjoying them keenly, believe that the work this year will be far in advance of that done last. I say this because the evidence of better organization you have exhibited this year."

Mayor Is "Sold" "Another thing which impresses me as a business man is that you are offering the public something for sale which you are 'sold on.'" When a man goes before a board of directors at a bank and wishes to borrow money for furtherance of some operation. If he is sold on his enterprise he has a psychological basis upon which to feel more certainty in success of his request. The same applies to your Little Theatre drive. You have something to sell, something which you yourselves believe in, and something which the town has approved by representative box office return."

Swenson Speaks "Swede" Swenson spoke on the Little Theatre movement as an outcropping of the general desire for expression, saying that the drive must necessarily interest the public for that reason. "The whole world's a stage," Swenson said. "People inherently, innately feel the impulse voiced by the famous English dramatist Shakespeare. They will listen to those who want to give them a better chance to develop the impulse by coming to the productions of the Little Theatre."

Swenson praised the public of Midland as the potential force which made the Little Theatre what it is. "This public supported the movement started by The Midland Players, and gave every indication that it would continue its goodwill during years to come."

EPISCOPAL SERVICES Rev. Martin of the Big Spring Episcopal Church will be in Midland Thursday and will hold a service at 7:30 in the evening at the Presbyterian Church here.

GREAT SOUTHERN AIRLINE READY TO PLY THROUGH

Opening of the first leg of a proposed Los Angeles to New York air line by starting service between Los Angeles and Dallas by way of El Paso was promised within two weeks by John Borden Miller, vice president of the Great Southern Airways, when he went to Dallas Sunday for a series of conferences there and in Fort Worth.

Accompanying Mr. Miller was E. L. Blessing, one of the financial backers of the line. They came from Cincinnati where they had visited the factory manufacturing the equipment to be used on the line. Mr. Miller explained that a delay in the start of the line had been occasioned by a sale of this factory, which stopped its production for a while. The first of the line's planes, he said, will be delivered and placed in operation in two weeks, and other planes will follow at intervals of a week until four are in operation.

ELEPHANTS OWN COMPANIONS TO BE EXECUTIONERS

BAY CITY, Oct. 14.—(P)—Black Diamond, elephant, which killed Mrs. Eva Donohue at Corsicana Saturday while she was watching the parade of the A. G. Barnes circus, will die sometime tomorrow or next day to atone for the murder.

Three of the elephant's companions will be hitched to one end of a huge chain, and three to the other, and the elephant's neck will be caught in a slip knot in the center. The lunge of the six animals will bring his life to an end quickly.

Breeder-Feeder Ticket Available

Any cattleman who plans to attend the Breeder-Feeder meeting in Dallas October 16 can get a banquet ticket from the chamber of commerce without charge. The ticket is furnished by the State Fair of Texas.

Two Tickets For CC Entertainment

Only two calls have been received by the chamber of commerce for delegate tickets to be used at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at El Paso October 24, 25 and 26, and there are still two to be sold at $2.50, giving the purchaser $7 worth of privileges to banquets and entertainment. The first two to call for these tickets at the chamber of commerce office will get them.

Fall Accused Of Feigning Illness

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(UP)—The trial of Albert B. Fall was called a "farical performance" by Senator Heflin, democrat of Alabama, in the Senate today. "The whole thing stinks, it is so revolting," Heflin said.

He criticized Fall for refusing to let Dr. Sterling Ruffin, appointed by the court, examine him. He told of the time when, as a member of the Senatorial committee, Fall went to Wilson's sickroom and pulled the covers off of the bed to examine the wartime president.

Russians Seek To Fly Round World

SEATTLE, Oct. 14.—(P)—Safe in Seattle after a hazardous flight from Moscow, four Russian aviators today disclosed that they are considering a Trans-Atlantic flight as a sequel to their present undertaking which will be completed when they reach New York. If the Russians cross the Atlantic, they expect to continue on to Moscow, making a complete round the world flight.

HAAS HOMERS TO BALANCE COUNT AND DOUBLE AND A SINGLE CONTRIBUTE RUIN

Makes Second Game Ruined For Cubs By The Incessant Hit Revivals of Connie Mack's Quaker City Crew

Philadelphia smashed its way in the ninth inning of today's game to one of the most decisive finales ever recorded in the annals of organized baseball, coming up with two Cub markers staring them in the face, against a bad smelling goose egg in their own basket, and hammering out a single, homerun, double and single to throw the monkey wrench in the cogs of the so-called Chicago Cub's machinery for the second consecutive game. The game ended 3-2.

The game broke up. Frenzied fans from the old Quaker City fell on the necks of Cub supporters and found as much response in the necking as if the Cubs had won the game instead of the Athletics. The Philadelphia entry of the American League had engendered just that much respect—the kind of regard that made the opposition feel "right" in the face of the crushing loss administered it by the Connie Mack club.

Homer Knots Count Haas's home run over the right fence shoo'd in Bishop who had fanned—and the fans over America drew the first breath of the game. The score was suddenly tied when it seemed certain that the Cubs had won another.

And then—Simmons scored on Miller's double—

And the game, and series, merged with history. Chicago scored its runs in the fourth inning. Cuyler doubled. Stephenson walked. Grimm singled to score the fast running Cuyler, Stephenson going to third. Stephenson scored when Taylor singled.

First Inning Cubs: Malone, Cub pitcher; Ehmk, Athletic hurler. McMillan thrown out Dykes to Fox. English beat out hit to Ehmk. Hornsby popped to Fox. English out stealing second.

Athletics: Bishop fanned. Haas filed to Stephenson. Cochrane out to English.

Second Inning Cubs: Wilson singled to left. Cuyler hit to Ehmk and Wilson forced at second. Cuyler trapped off first and was out. Stephenson walked. Grimm out to Fox.

Athletics: Simmons singled to left. Fox lined to Hornsby and Simmons was doubled. Miller thrown out at first.

Third Inning Cubs: Malone doubled to right. Cochrane. Malone doubled to right. Malone went to third when McMillan out at first. English filed to Miller.

Athletics: Dykes filed to English. Boley thrown out at first. Ehmk filed out.

Fourth Inning Cubs: Hornsby hit to Boley and put at first. Wilson fouled out to Cochrane. Cuyler doubled. Stephenson walked. Cuyler scored on Grimm's single. Stephenson going to third. Stephenson scored on Taylor's single. Ehmk removed in favor of Walbert. Malone struck out.

Athletics: Bishop out at first. Haas also out at first. Cochrane hit to Grimm and out at first.

Fifth Inning Cubs: McMillan fouled to Fox. English filed to Bishop. Hornsby struck out.

Athletics: Simmons filed to Cuyler. Fox hit to Hornsby who fumbled. Fox reached first. Miller singled. Fox stopping at second. Dykes filed Cuyler. Boley popped to McMillan.

Sixth Inning Cubs: Wilson lined to Miller. Cuyler hit to Walberg and out at first. Stephenson struck out.

Athletics: Walberg filed to English. Bishop out Hornsby to Grimm. Haas struck out.

Seventh Inning Cubs: Grimm filed to Haas. Taylor filed to Miller. Malone fouled to Cochrane.

Athletics: Cochrane walked. Simmons filed to McMillan. Fox hit to

FURNISHINGS FOR HOTEL ADDITION ARE PURCHASED

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer returned Sunday from a two week's trip to Chicago and Grand Rapids, buying complete furnishings for the new seven-story 100-room addition to Hotel Scharbauer.

Visiting the nation's principal marts, they studied the various types and qualities to suit the exacting demands of their hotel, already recognized as one of the most beautifully and substantially furnished hosteries of the southwest, and made selections in keeping with the present six story part of the hotel.

In addition to furnishings for the guest rooms, furniture and equipment for the handsome seventh-floor apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Scharbauer were selected.

The equipment will begin arriving within 30 days. Mr. Scharbauer said. J. O. Everett, contractor on the addition, is here today, and work is going forward on schedule time, assuring completion of the building.

English and double play got Cochrane.

Eighth Inning Cubs: McMillan singled to right. English struck out. Hornsby filed to Miller. McMillan stole second. Wilson struck out.

Athletics: Miller popped to English. Dykes filed out to Wilson. Boley struck out.

Ninth Inning Cubs: Cuyler out to Fox unassisted. Stephenson singled to center. Grimm fanned. Taylor filed out to short right.

Athletics: French batting for Walberg fanned. Bishop singled past third. Haas hit homerun over right fence tying score. Cochrane out second to first. Simmons doubled to center. Fox purposely walked. Simmons scored on Miller's hit into center for two bases. Chicago two, eight, one. Philadelphia three, six, naught.

MISDIRECTED ENERGY?

Americans, as everybody knows, have a great deal of energy. But once in a while a glance at the scrambled, bewildering list of items that make up the news of the day leads one to think that a whole lot of this energy is pretty badly misdirected.

One day's paper brings an assortment of news something like this:

The mayor of Lynn, Mass., with a valiant and virtuous flourish, announces that no more Lynn girls may appear in public without stockings, and orders the Lynn police to arrest any maidens who disregard the fiat.

A Kansas City lady calls her husband "a bum" because he fails to make his bid in a bridge game. He slaps her in retaliation and she promptly shoots him dead.

William B. Shearer, high-powered propagandist, mentions to a Senate committee that he is very patriotic and full of wisdom, calls a newspaper correspondent a liar and wants the fact that he can trace his ancestry back to 1660 put into the record.

Texas rangers rule the boom town of Borger after the district attorney is murdered, and it is revealed that Borger has had 24 murders in three years with only one prosecution—a situation that the district attorney was trying to remedy at the time of his death.

Fifty murders are ascribed to a white slave ring uncovered in Boston and the Boston police insist that Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" shall by no means be allowed to disgrace the stage of any Boston theater.

Albert B. Fall prepares to go on trial once more in connection with the Elk Hills oil scandal, which took place so long ago that half of his horrified countrymen find themselves unable to remember what it is all about.

The New York mayoralty campaign turns into a public discussion of the murder of one Arnold Rothstein, gambler, who was killed a year ago; and because of the furor the trial of the sole suspect in the case is ordered held at once.

Those are a group of items taken from one day's grist of news. Viewed separately they are, by turn, matters for indignation, mirth, amazement or grief. Lumped together this way, they somehow bring bewilderment.

Our country, headed somewhere with great speed and activity, seems to produce an unusual amount of queer happenings. Have we a little bit too much energy for our own good? Or do we just need a better balance wheel, individually and collectively?

THE PROFESSORS AT FAULT

Dean Max McCann of Lehigh University declares in the current North American Review that the American college professor himself is largely to blame for the prevalence of students who rank football games and fraternity dances above their studies in importance.

Too many professors, says Dean McCann, are more concerned with their own research work than they are with teaching. As a result they spend most of their energy on their own pursuits, and their classes get dull and boring.

In such circumstances, the student is hardly to be blamed if he concludes that his studies are unimportant. No teacher of real ability ever found himself unable to hold the eager attention of his students, no matter how pressing were the competing demands of athletics and the collegiate social whirl.

Principals in Washington's Strangling Case

Dexter Churchill Dayton (left), who has been held by the Washington police in connection with the death by strangling of Marjorie O'Donnell, Washington society girl, who was found dead in a prominent Washington, D. C. hotel. According to police Dayton confessed to killing the girl in a drunken frenzy and then when he realized the girl was dead kept vigil beside the body for a whole day. Chart shows the room where the body was found after Dayton had called police.

Daily Washington Letter

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Whether the big battleship is in its twilight is a question which may be decided in the affirmative in event the five chief naval powers take up the subject at the conference now proposed by Prime Minister MacDonald.

Our Navy general board does not believe the battleship has been made obsolete by airplanes and submarines but a capital ship is such an expensive proposition—one now costs close to $50,000,000 plus high maintenance—that no powers except the United States, Great Britain and Japan are pretending to keep up a first class fleet of battleships. Neither France nor Italy has built the two allowed each of them under the Washington arms conference treaty. The Italians have voluntarily scrapped two of theirs and France has not attempted to replace the battleship France which sank several years ago. Italy and France can get better protection through inexpensive submarines and light cruisers.

So with only the three chief powers interested in battleships, the question becomes entirely a relative one. None of these three powers is permitted to build a battleship until 1931. Probably in the forthcoming naval conference an attempt will be made to abandon the battleship replacement program which under the Washington treaty was to have begun in 1931. The aging battleships of the existing fleets will be retained indefinitely if this program is adopted and finally they would be scrapped gradually. By reducing their battleship fleets proportionately the three powers would retain their relative strength so that none would suffer a disadvantage.

Should this happen some novel developments may take place. For instance, it is conceivable that Germany might again become a powerful naval factor should the battleship be abolished and this is one factor that will have to be taken into consideration—Britain would never risk the rise of a new German naval threat across the North Sea.

In 1913 the German navy concluded 47 battleships as against 38 which the United States and Britain combined now have. The Treaty of Versailles limited the German navy to six "battleships" which could be replaced after they became twenty years old only with 10,000 tons ships—less than a third the size of a modern battleship.

Germany has just built the first of these post-treaty ships—the Ersatz Preussen. It is faster than a battleship and carries 11-inch guns which contrast with 8 1/2-inch guns, the maximum allowed on cruisers by the Washington arms treaty. Therefore this new German ship theoretically can out shoot an enemy cruiser and outrun a battleship making it potentially dangerous. Under the Versailles treaty Germany will be allowed to build only six of these. But eliminate battleship fleets and Germany would have six ships which would become a naval factor, especially in alliance with a heavy cruiser fleet.

Naval experts are in dispute as to whether the new German "baby battleship" will influence naval designs of other powers. American naval officers appear to believe it is a freak type devised to give the greatest offensive power within the limitations of the Versailles treaty and that no power, not even Germany, would build such a ship if the normal types were permissible.

The Ersatz Preussen though limited to the tonnage of the maximum cruisers allowed by the Washington arms treaty, has been given much heavier armor and guns. Diesel motors of an improved design take up much less space than older types. This ship cost $20,000,000 and three others are already authorized.

Hector Bywater, the British naval expert, said in commenting on the new German ship: "When four of these ships are ready for service the

YOUR CHILDREN by Olive Roberts Barton

It is difficult to understand the condition of the mind of a child who has been constantly cheated. What must he think of life? What impression must he have of people? What sort of a grim joke in this world anyway that promises you one thing and gives you another? Of course there can be only one result: the cheated child becomes a cheat. Double-crossed in little things that his parents may think of no importance at the time, he may become to their surprise and consternation an expert double crosser himself as he gets older, and in a far more elaborate fashion than his parents ever dreamed of.

One way of cheating a child is by breaking promises. Of course there are times when promises simply cannot be kept. Emergencies are always coming up. But the last thing I'd let the emergency interfere with would be the promise. "I'll take you to the zoo tomorrow, Billy," should be static as the laws of the Medes and Persians.

Let Nothing Interfere If Mr. Jones, the president of the club you've wanted so much to get into, calls you up and asks you to go driving, "No, thank you, Mr. Jones, not today. I have a very important engagement," should be the answer.

Tell Billy you're going to get him something—and then get it. Or don't mention it at all. Of course he should learn to bear disappointment, but not to the extent that he's constantly feeling cheated. Parents are not likely to place much importance on the fact that basic relationship is shattered by just such small incidents.

Then there is another way of cheating children that I consider of mammoth importance. It is to lull a child into a sense of false security about something he has to go through with, and then have him experience not only the sudden shock of pain, but he shattering discovery that he has been swindled with false promises. "The dentist is a kind man, Billy. He wouldn't think of hurting you. Why it's fun to get a tooth pulled." That kind of talk is silly.

Avoid Frightening Child Don't scare Billy to death of course. Prepare him just a very little for a bit of discomfort, but don't say much about it at all. Don't dwell on it until he's ill with foreboding. But he can't go through life without pain. All little children should be given a bit of encouraging propaganda about enduring discomfort and pain by occasional stories and by praise of people they admire who have suffered without complaint.

However, I shouldn't overdo the subject of suffering. Just plant the seeds of bravery and then silence is golden. But don't deceive him by false hopes when something lies ahead. That is important. Don't tease him, either. One day a mother wanted a child to eat a dish of "ice cream." He tasted it and found it to be schmear-kaese. He kicked the saucer on the floor in a rage.

These are some of the ways of cheating children. All of them are bad.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

"Have you noticed," an observing young man asked me, "how the girls don't seem quite able to manage these new-fangled dresses?" What prompted the question was the sight of an athletic type of girl wearing a new high-waisted, long-skirted dress, trying to get out of a taxicab, and getting all involved in her new hemline. Some good longshoreman English that escaped her rouged lips at this time indicated she herself was not altogether pleased with the management.

But give her time. Do you remember how self-conscious women seemed when they first adopted the very short skirts—how leg conscious they were and how they tried to cover their knees when they sat down? Then, eventually, women forgot all about it and wore them with the casualness that they required.

Fashion has a way of saying "be feminine" or "be tailored" or "be something else, quite as unconcernedly as it styles were something that came and went like seasons instead of arbitrary mandates that required a psychological adjustment.

If feminine styles really are to be successful—and certainly they are going to be if the designers have anything to say about it, women will have to be more feminine in their ways. They are going to be obliged to cultivate grace, and they may even have to revert again to manners, in order to create the needed illusions. You can't strut and stride in a frock that was cut for gliding and grooming, unless you want to look like a caricature.

There is always a great deal of talking about a change in style before it comes, but when it actually arrives, it comes with a bang. A month ago, in New York, people were talking long skirts—and wearing short ones. Today the girls in the shops have taken out their hems and pushed up their belts. That means the style is launched!

ABOUT EDUCATION

Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, summed up the ideals of modern education in his address to the 2000 undergraduates at the first chapel meeting.

He began by quoting the Oxford man who defined education as "what remains behind when you have forgotten all you have learned" and then elaborated thus on what should be left behind:

"A mind, a tempered and skilled instrument of realizing the processes of the will, a depository of ideas gained from study, contemplation and experience, a creative power to make possible the things regarded as impossible, surmounting obstacles that are regarded as insurmountable, a creating power, a discerning faculty separating the essentials from the unessentials in a mass of confused and chaotic facts, penetrating to the heart of a subject in any new and unfamiliar situation, a mind that is the enemy of sophistries of loose thinking and of hasty and ungrounded generalizations."

We are so apt to think of education as something acquired, rather than created, something that you get from college, in the laboratory out of books, or from travel, instead of the sum total of everything you feel and experience as well as absorb.

A boy could go to college four years and be completely uneducated, according to Dr. Hibben, or he could be an educated man without ever having entered an institution of learning—according to his own reactions to the experiences that come to him.

Incidentally, the Doctor says, nothing of the financial value of such an education—or how much it is worth in dollars in cents. However, it does sound more like the mental equipment of a philosopher than of a millionaire.

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

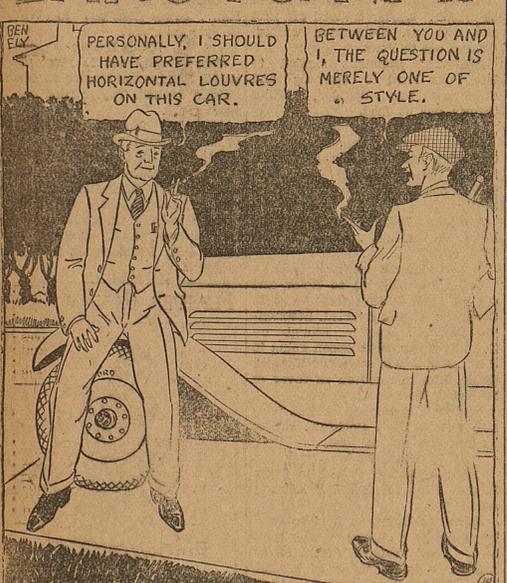

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

ERRORGRAMS

PERSONALLY, I SHOULD HAVE PREFERRED HORIZONTAL LOUVRES ON THIS CAR. BETWEEN YOU AND I, THE QUESTION IS MERELY ONE OF STYLE.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it. On page 6 today we'll explain the mistakes and tell you the word. Then you can see how near a hundred you bat.

BARRON-M'CLARTY WEDDING IS SOLEMNIZED IN DALLAS SUNDAY

A wedding of interest in Midland was solemnized Sunday when Miss Louise McClarty of Henderson, Texas, became the bride of Mr. Elliott H. Barron of Midland.

A wedding breakfast was served by Mrs. W. M. Fehheimer, at her home on Gaston Avenue, to the bridal couple to Mrs. J. P. McClarty of Henderson, mother of the bride, Mrs. J. H. Barron of Midland, mother of the groom, Mrs. J. B. Parks, Miss Clifford Parks, Mrs. W. H. Paulding, Jr., and son, Barron, of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. T. Paul Barron and son, Charles, of Midland, Rankin McClarty of Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Curry and daughter, Dorothy Jane, of Dallas, Mrs. Parks of Dallas, W. M. Fehheimer and son, Bob.

The couple left immediately afterward for an automobile trip to Orleans, Houston, Galveston, San Antonio and the Rio Grande valley.

The bride, the daughter of Mrs. J. P. McClarty of Henderson, Texas, is of a family whose name is among the most revered and respected in that part of the state. Following her education in the Henderson schools, she attended the College of Industrial Arts at Denton and then entered the teaching profession.

She taught in the public schools here for three consecutive years, doing primary work at the south ward school, resigning at the end of the term last spring.

While in Midland she became active in the social life of the city, and has a host of friends who will welcome her back here as a permanent resident.

Mr. Barron is the son of J. H. Barron of Midland, and is a member of one of the original families of the city. Born and reared here, he went through the Midland schools, going then to Simmons and Baylor Universities. Since then, with the exception of the time he served in the army, he has been engaged actively in business here, being a partner now in the firm of Sparks and Barron and the Midland Abstract Company. He is active in the business and social life of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Barron, on their return from a two-week's trip, will make their home at 417 North Lorraine Street.

Alden Donnelly Wed To Denver Girl

Friends of the couple will be glad to learn of the marriage on October 9th, of Alden Donnelly, to Miss Adelaide Fields, daughter of Curtis H. Fields, of Denver, Colo. The ceremony was held in the home of the bride's father in that city.

The couple will arrive in Midland in a few days, where they will make their home. Mr. Donnelly is associated with the Fisher Lowrie Company, consulting geologists, here.

New Arrival In Davis Home

Mr. and Mrs. Don Carlos Davis, of this city are pleased with a new arrival in their home by the name of Nancy Marie. The little visitor was born in a hospital in Big Spring Sunday morning at 11:20. Mrs. Davis is reported as doing nicely, and her many friends will be glad when she and her young daughter can be at home.

Yellow tomato preserves are particularly good with tea and toast and are not a heavy sweet.

Damon preserves are rich and heavy. They were a great favorite with our grandmothers for their excellent keeping qualities.

Yellow Tomato Preserves Five pounds tiny yellow tomatoes, 4 pounds granulated sugar, 2 lemons.

Scald tomatoes and slip off skins. Squeeze juice from lemons and cut rind in narrow strips. Add juice to sugar and about one and one-half cups hot water. Put over a low fire in preserving kettle and bring to the boiling point. Add tomatoes and lemon rind and simmer gently until tomatoes are clear or transparent. The tomatoes should remain whole. Pour into sterilized jars and seal while hot.

A small bottle of preserved ginger can be added or candied ginger can be chopped and added. Two tablespoonsfuls give a pleasant flavor.

Damon Preserves Wash plums through several waters. Remove pits, taking care not to separate the halves of the fruit. Weigh. Use pound for pound of fruit and granulated sugar. Weigh sugar and put into preserving kettle. Add 1-2 cup of hot water for each three pounds of sugar. Bring to the boiling point and add prepared fruit. Simmer until plums are clear and seal in sterilized jars.

Three pounds of sugar to four pounds of fruit can be used and raisins and nuts added to make a conserve. Use one cup seeded raisins and one cup nut meats. Add raisins with fruit and nuts ten minutes before removing from the fire.

ANNOUNCEMENT The Zone Meeting of the Methodist Missionary Society which was to have been held at the Midland Church Tuesday, has been postponed until Friday, on account of the disagreeable weather, it was announced today.

DOGS THWART THUGS (P)—Two thugs who had kidnapped Mrs. Rebecca Martinez were set upon by a pair of wild dogs, forcing them to abandon their victim and flee. The dogs' barking brought a policeman to the scene, who captured one of the kidnapers.

Kisses!

By Madge Geyer

KISSES! Love's own phrase! And Love's own trade-mark! From the day when we first feel Affection's clutching fingers this is the way we show love. The tiny babe whose doll is broken is instantly comforted by the kiss of a playmate. The wee baby finds delight in the soft lips pressed so caressingly against its cheek. And so through life until you receive the sweetest of all kisses—the lover's own sign of affection and true love. Oh yes, there are many grades and kinds of kisses—from the duty peck to the thrilling lover's kiss. And each has its meaning. But why not endeavor always to keep the love kiss? It means so much, and yet it can mean so little, so why not make the most of it and ever have the kiss of love on your lips for your loved ones?

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.,—Years ago, in the days when face lifting was an ice pack and not a stitch, John Barrymore married in a comedy yclept, "Are You A Mason?" Mr. Barrymore's inebriated scenes caluroided mirthfully. Being a silent picture, the actor's—er—Scotch hiccoughs were lost to all except studio workers.

Down through the years, and John leaps nimbly from the lightning tempo of comedy to the dark procession of dramas. In his current talkie, however, he must needs resort to a god old-fashioned hiccough, but 'twixt "Hamlet" and romantically jazzed movies, the Barrymore has slipped in the artistic expression of hiccoughing.

It so happened that at the crucial moment, Lew Cody came a-visiting him on "The Man" set at Warner Brothers. John satirized said moment by inducing Lew to coach him in hiccoughs. Lew did. He's a good fellow. John's hiccoughs registered a resonant barytone on Vitaphone wax. Lew's reached a tenor pitch. The boys in the play-back room listened-in critically. Drama actually reached dramatic heights. And, to be sure, between John and Lew, Director Al Green has quite a collection of choice hiccoughs from which to select for the desired scene in "The Man." My, oh, my, the things that do go on in studios . . .

Never Mention "It" If You'd Win Clara's Favor

By DAN THOMAS NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 14.—"I'm sick and tired of continually being termed Hollywood's 'It' girl and always having my sex referred to as my predominating feature."

The speaker, as you probably guessed, was Clara Bow. Several years ago Clara was named by Elinor Glyn as the perfect "It" girl. The title has stuck ever since. And the girl is getting so fed up on it that she is ready to tear her flaming red tresses right out by the roots.

"I'm an actress and I don't see why people can't recognize me as such," she wailed. "There very seldom is anything written about my acting ability. It's just sex and then some more sex."

"Sure I have sex appeal, and I'm not afraid to admit it. But so has every other girl. I am no different from them. But I do claim to be able to act and I wish somebody would recognize that fact. Do you think I would have climbed to my present position in pictures if my only quality was my personality? Of course, personality is important but if a girl is to be successful she also must have some acting ability."

"Perhaps the roles I have played have had something to do with the reputation I have gained but I know I have had parts which displayed my acting ability just as much as they did my personality. I do wish something could be done that would stamp this on the minds of the people."

The writer believes Clara is justified in her complaint. It is a bit discouraging to reach the top after working for several years and then have all the credit laid to her sex appeal. And the actress has reached the top, having been the biggest box office attraction in pictures in 1928.

Clara has done some good acting, too, particularly since speaking films became the vogue. There has been some criticism on her voice but after all that is inconsequential. All of filmdom's leading directors agree that it isn't the quality of the voice which counts but the manner in which lines are spoken. And Clara knows how to act with her voice as well as with her face.

"If I ever arrive at the place where I am accorded recognition solely on my merits as an actress, then I will be happy," Miss Bow declared. "As it is everything seems rather futile. When I was climbing I had something to work for. There was stardom ahead and I wanted to reach that goal. Now that I am there the only incentive I have for working is my salary—and to hear people say I have 'It.'"

"Who cares if I have! I want to be known as an actress and if I can achieve that I will really enjoy working again. Besides, if my sole quality was 'It,' why is it that most of my fans are women? Figure that out if you can."

An automobile is the first thing about most any city that strikes you nowadays.

Wedding rings were made of agate and iron in ancient Roman times.

Clara Bow . . . "Why is it that most of my fans are women?"

"Goodbye, Texas, Prison Is Hell"—Man Note Found In Box Car Given To Attorney Thought "Santa Claus Robber" Writes

BIG SPRING, Tex., Oct. 12.—A scrawled message believed to have been written by Robert Hill Cisco, "Santa Claus" bank robber who escaped from the state prison with 16 other convicts was in the hands of A. J. Merrick, Howard county deputy sheriff Thursday. The note, signed by "Hill" was found in a railroad car bearing merchandise consigned to a Big Spring firm. The message was written on a sheet of paper bearing information concerning the car, the type of merchandise when it was shipped and other data important to the Railroad company. The message contained these words: "Here I go, Bye Old Texas. My name is Hill. I was in the Cisco Bank Robbery and went to the pen for it, but am gone from there. I am on my way to France and if they want me they will have to come after me. I want to tell all you that pen is Hell and I don't want to go back so good by to all the boys." The message was signed "Hill, Cisco Bank." An investigation conducted in Big Spring failed to reveal any clue that Hill stopped here. The theory is that Hill believed some one would find the note and that he continued his flight westward.

Economists and students of business say the retailer is an absolute essential in modern society.

For many years it has been the prevalent belief that only the actual producer of raw or finished goods was an essential to modern life but analysis has proved that without the retail distributor—the grocer, the hardware dealer, the dry goods merchant, the filling station operator, the realtor, the automobile dealer, is essential to complex modern life. Now, since this distributor is essential, he must make a living. The only way he can make a living is to get a good break on local retail trade. When any considerable part of the population of Midland or any other community quits the local retailer and trades with some other retailer, the local retailer is forced out of business.

Every time a Midland retailer is forced out of business, or has such a poor business that he barely makes both ends meet, the schools, the churches, the roads, the water system, the streets, and every other public supported institution suffers. These retailers pay a large proportion of the taxes. Hence, every time you get a little sore at the retailer and think his prices too high (higher than a catalogue price) just remember part of the money you pay the Midland retailer will go into your schools, roads, churches, streets, etc. What you send the catalogue man is gone forever.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

HELLO JAKE!

PURPLE-AGGIE GAME AT FROG STADIUM MAY SET S. W. WINNER

TCU HOLDS LAST FOUR YEAR JINX OVER A'S

When the gray, cold afternoons of late November are here and the Southwest Conference football season has been brought to a close, the championship crown may be worn by the winner of the game between Texas A. & M. and Texas Christian University Saturday afternoon at the home of the Horned Frogs. Regardless of the championship aspect, the game looms as one of the bitterest battles ever staged between the two teams or in the conference as well, says a staff writer of the Star-Telegram.

It isn't the only championship game in the conference this week, but attracts the greater interest. Arkansas University and Baylor University of Waco meet in a title bearing tilt, while Texas University engages Oklahoma University in an interstate affair. Southern Methodist is on the program but it plays its freshmen on Friday afternoon. Rice Institute isn't down for a game this week.

The complete schedule:
Texas Aggies vs. Texas Christian, Fort Worth, Saturday.
Oklahoma University vs. Texas University, Dallas, Saturday.
Arkansas University vs. Baylor, Waco, Saturday.
Southern Methodist vs. Freshmen, Dallas, Friday.

Texas Christian University's 28 to 0 victory over Centenary at Shreveport, Saturday, supported the early season indications that the Frogs would be a threat for the championship. It served to add considerably more interest to the game with the Aggies. As the Frogs were annihilating the Gents the Aggies were elevating themselves from the "dark horse" to a definite rating as one of the four strongest teams in the race with a 19 to 0 victory over the Kansas Aggies at Dallas. It was an offensive spectacle, one which saw Coach Matty Bell switch from his defensive tactics to an open game, which swept the eleven of Coach Bo McMillin, school day and present chum of the Aggie mentor, to defeat.

Bell's change in his style of play adds to the spectacular in store for the crowd of between 15,000 and 20,000 expected for the game with the Frogs.

Should the Aggies be successful in their efforts to conquer the Frogs, their schedule is so arranged that they are expected to travel on toward the championship, the annual game played at College Station this year, looming as the greatest obstacle. The game at Fort Worth is their last away from home, playing Arkansas and Southern Methodist in College Station, Baylor will not be met.

A victory for the Frogs would go a long way toward bringing Fort Worth its first Southwest Conference championship. Texas, Arkansas, Baylor, S. M. U. and Rice still remaining on the schedule. The Texas and Baylor games will be played at Austin and Waco, respectively.

Forgetting the championship angle of the game, it brings together rival teams. Added rivalry is given the battle with Matty Bell, former coach of the Frogs, as mentor of the Aggies this season. His former charges will be anxious to defeat his eleven and will Matty be eager to down the Frogs.

Baylor will have a score to settle with the Porkers. For a defeat at the hands of the Razorbacks at Fayetteville in 1928 cost the Bears the championship. Arkansas opened its conference season Saturday with a 27 to 0 reversal at the hands of Texas, the four touchdowns coming in the last quarter.

Texas and Oklahoma will resume their gridiron relations after a lapse of six years in the game at Dallas Saturday. Texas handed Oklahoma a 32 to 27 beating in 1923. Since then the Sooners have joined the Big Six.

Texas ridded its followers of all doubts as to their prowess in the 1929 scramble when they decisively defeated Arkansas, 27 to 0. Rice and Southern Methodist, other members of the conference participating in the games the past week, scored victories. The Ponies defeated Austin College of Sherman, 16 to 0, Friday, while Rice downed Southwestern University of Georgetown, 14 to 6, Saturday.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Sports Editor

With the backing of President Emilio Portes Gil, American football has been given a start in Mexico which seems certain to establish the game on a permanent basis.

The University of Mexico eleven, coached by Reginald Root, Yale '26, lost its first game with an American college but the players were not disheartened. The sweeping end runs, behind perfect interference, bewildered the Mexican players, but it only made them more anxious to learn the game. Louisiana College won the game at Mexico City, 59 to 0.

The second international game at Mexico City will be played between Sewanee and the University of Mexico on November 20.

The game with Sewanee was arranged by Dr. Michael Smith Bennett, athletic director of the Tennessee school, who was sent to Mexico City last year by the American Football Coaches' association to give the Mexican youth its first instruction in the fundamentals of the American intercollegiate sport.

Dr. Bennett and his team will go to Brownsville, Tex., by rail after playing Tulane in New Orleans, Nov. 16 and will fly in tri-motored planes from Brownsville to Mexico City. The trip from the border ordinarily consumes at least 33 hours. Over the route of the Mexican Aviation Company via Tampico it is possible to make the journey in less than six hours.

The expenses of this trip will be borne by President Portes Gil. The president hopes that the South-National University game will be attended by perhaps a 100,000 persons who are expected to participate in the opening of a new athletic field.

Senor Portes Gil saw his first game between the National University and the Deportivo Club, his enthusiasm for the sport was instantaneous.

"This is the way you, Americans work off your energy and avoid revolutions," he said after watching the first few moments of play.

Here is a dictionary of the Spanish equivalents of American football terms. (It will be noted that many of the words, including even the verbs, have been taken over bodily from the English with the spelling changed to Spanish.)

End—Ala; Tackle—Tackle; Guard—Defensa; Center—Centro; Quarterback—Quarterback; Halfback—Centro-medio; Fullback—Fullback; Punt—Patada; Kickoff—Kickoff; Dropkick—Dropkick; Signals—Senales; 'Hip'—'Hip'; to Tackle—Tacklear; A Tackle—Un Tackleada; Down—Down; Forward Pass—Pase Adelantado; Goal—Goal; to Block—Bloquear; Coach—Coach or Mentor; Cheer—Grito; Use the Hands—Use Las Manos; Shoulder to Shoulder—Hombro a Hombro; to Charge—Caragar; to Hit Him Low—Pegarle Abajo; Speed, pep—Fibra; to Watch the Ball—Fijarse en la Bola; Football—Football or Futbol; Ball—Bola; to Fumble—Fomblear; Lineup—lineup; Neutral Zone—Zone Neutral; Offside—Offside; Referee—Referee; Umpire—Umpire; Field Judge—Juez del Campo; Linesman—Linesman; Touchdown—Touchdown; Foul Ball—Sigue la Bola; Time—Tiempo; Faster—Mas Aprisa; Lower—Masa Bajo; A cheer for a Man—Aribia.

This is the most popular cheer of the National University:

The Midland secretary held personal conferences with several heads of oil companies, obtaining information on which to do further work toward advancing Midland's interests as an oil city.

Two other Texas towns exhibited this year, imitating the idea proposed three years ago by Ralph M. Barron and recommended by W. A. Yeager, but Midland's superior location together with snappy advertising developed especially for oil men, practically monopolized the attention so far as advertising was concerned.

Miss Claylia Evan A Poster Winner

A committeeman on fire prevention, which was officially observed last week following the proclamation of Mayor Leon Goodman, had a correction to make this morning, according to Claude Crane. The statement follows:

"We wish to correct a statement made in Sunday issue. The second prize in first, second and third grades was won by Miss Claylia Evan of the north ward school instead of south ward school as stated. Crane also said:

"Mayor Leon Goodman and Chairman Claude O. Crane presented the prizes in junior high school chapel this morning. Mayor Goodman spoke on the advantages of teaching and studying fire prevention to the pupils of the entire school. The prizes will be awarded at the north ward and south ward schools Tuesday morning. Speeches will be made in the two chapel exercises by officials of the chamber of commerce.

and while there was a heavy accumulation of over-holiday hedges during the initial session, these were executed with a narrow range of fluctuation, being absorbed by trade buying on the scale down. On the other hand, the market reflected the absence of outside interest. Opening prices were slightly irregular, the morning eased under hedges with October in New York selling at 18.23c, December 18.31c, January 18.42c and March 18.71c, or only 6 to 10 points under the close Friday. Noon calls were about the same level. In domestic cotton goods market, the weekly reviews claim the trade is up to expectations.

Midland Surgeon—

"Slow motion can be used so that every movement of the surgeon's hands and instruments can be followed. Animated sketches are used extensively, as by this means growth of tumors and other changes can be presented accurately.

"The greatest value, however, lies in the fact that the skill and experience of great surgeons can be preserved for all time in a vivid and realistic fashion which will be instructive and inspiring to others long after the death of the surgeon himself.
