REBUILDING OF PAVED ALLEYS TO PROVIDE EMPLOYMENT

NO WORK ON JOB GIVEN TRANSIENTS

Construction Firm Executive Here On Project

Paved alleys in Midland are to be rebuilt!

President Edward Ailes of the West Texas Construction company is in Midland today to arrange details for rebuilding the four paved business alleys. The alleyways will be torn up and rebuilt so as to insure proper drainage.

The city refused to accept the alleys as they were originally constructed, because of poor drainage. The city was also averse to compromise agreements, holding that the alleys should have been built originally so as to drain.

Ailes told Mayor Leon Goodman Thursday that his company wanted the job done right and proposed to satisfy all of the city's demands.

Work is to begin at once. The West Texas Construction company is giving the city's request for the employment of local labor 50 per cent cooperation. Only two skilled workmen from out-of-town will be employed. Work will provide several days employment for men now seeking work. Arrangements will be made by City Manager A. J. Gates for registering the unemployed.

No work will be given to transients.

Fireproof Waste Basket Needed

City Editor R. C. Hankins "got hot" and showed speed shortly before press time this afternoon, grabbing up the waste basket in the Reporter-Telegram's narrow-walled news room and rushing to the curb in front of the office when sparks from his cigarette fell into the waste paper in the basket.

This was the second narrow escape the city editor has had while in action since coming to Midland three years ago. The other hazardous experience occurred when he had a private desk on the "roost" above the front windows of the office, flames spreading from the waste basket to the lower extremities of his desk before he could tear himself away from the "hot yarn" he was writing.

The management of the paper is considering a fire proof waste basket for Hankins' office.

PUBLISHERS SHOW FAITH IN WEST TEXAS' FUTURE

Despite the rush of people from West Texas oil fields to the new discoveries in East Texas, there is enough oil business to cause two new West Texas oil town weeklies to mail out their first issues this week. The Monahans News and the Loving County Journal issued Volume 1, No. 1 on Feb. 14 and were mailed this week. Both papers are published by F. W. Barnes, present publisher of the Andrews Journal, and former publisher of the Crane City News and the Upton County News. Monahans is a Ward county town growing steadily and Porterville where the Loving County Journal is issued, is showing increasing growth through development of the Wheat oil pool.

It was conceded that Dorris and Ida Beth would run an interesting race, and it was thought that the race would become more interesting by running a third candidate, who

SENTENCES SUSPENDED FOR YOUTHS

Court Resumes Work Friday After a Recess Today

W. R. "Red" Giles, on trial in district court here Wednesday on a charge of possession of liquor for sale, was found guilty and assessed a year penitentiary sentence when the jury returned its verdict late in the afternoon.

A. J. Allen, co-defendant in the case, was found not guilty. Giles did not take the stand in his own behalf as testimony was being taken Wednesday morning, staking his side of the case on testimony of his wife, occupants and lessees of the house where the liquor was alleged to have been found and building up a hypothesis through his attorney, G. W. Dunaway that the liquor was not necessarily his.

Answer Is Quoted District Attorney W. R. Smith based his plea for a guilty verdict upon alleged admission by Giles to officers at the time of the raid that he "guessed so" when asked, "You've got it haven't you?" Smith, in his plea to the jury recommended that Allen be found not guilty.

Suspended sentences of three years each were given M. H. "Bill" Hogan and Zennie Booger in connection with their pleas of guilty under charges of theft of a saddle, blanket and two bridles from Frank Cowden, valued at $100, the theft having occurred on or about September 10, 1930.

IT MUST BE DRAMATIC
By BRUCE CATTON

If a man's misery and danger can be dramatized, he is pretty sure to get speedy help. If they can't he is apt to be out of luck.
This pessimistic conclusion is provoked by reading of the recent efforts that have been made to save fishermen from drifting ice floes on the Great Lakes.
Not long ago more than two dozen men went adrift on the ice in Lake Erie. Airplanes were chartered to take food to them. Coast guards risked their lives to get help to them. For two or three days half a dozen states forgot about weightier matters to watch exciting efforts to rescue the drifters. When the men were finally saved there was rejoicing on all sides.
In the same way, the state of Michigan was galvanized into action a few days later when one man went adrift on the ice near White Shoals lighthouse, in Lake Michigan. Dozens of men put out in boats to get him. Many lives were risked and unusual pains were taken to see to it that he might be brought to safety.
Those incidents are fair samples of the way people respond when someone's danger is made dramatic. Unfortunately, a predicament that isn't dramatic generally goes unnoticed. We reserve our tears for the cases that make headlines.

An unemployed workman can stalk city streets for days, staggering on the edge of starvation, with hunger and sickness threatening his family because he has no money—but no one gets excited about it. To be sure, most cities have fairly capable relief organizations that will come to the rescue if the man asks for help; but none of us will worry very much about it. We will not even contribute to these relief organizations unless elaborate campaigns are staged to drum us into line.
Similarly, a farmer in the section that has been hit by drought can go as hungry as he likes without stirring the compassion of his fellow countrymen. The newspapers have made it pretty clear that thousands of people in such states as Arkansas are enduring very real suffering this winter—but the Red Cross is actually having a hard time collecting $10,000,000 for their relief, and a proposal to appropriate federal money to help the work along has drawn bitter and spirited condemnation.
The trouble with us is that we don't respond to ordinary misery and misfortune. Appeals must be made dramatic. We must have something that could be put on the moving picture screen. The fight against hunger and cold is not exciting enough.
The moral seems to be that one who falls into misfortune must take care to pick a misfortune that has plenty of human interest.

PASS THE VESTAL BILL

One of the things that the Senate should do before adjourning in the spring is pass the Vestal bill revising our copyright laws. The measure has passed the House of Representatives by a large majority, and enjoys the support of authors, publishers and song writers. It should not be permitted to die under the weight of more momentous legislation.
An amendment has been proposed providing that registration of copyright shall not become effective until three months after it is filed. This, apparent, would benefit only the radio broadcasting concerns, since in effect it would permit the broadcasting of any song during the three months period without payment of royalties to the composer; and since few popular songs last more than three months, its effect would be to nullify the bill entirely, as far as the song writer is concerned. The Senate would do well to kill the amendment and pass the bill as it came from the House.

IT WAS WORTH IT

Try as we can, we are unable to get indignant over the fact that the Nye Senate campaign funds committee spent more than $96,000 in nine months. Strenuous efforts have been made to make this look like silly extravagance, but they don't wash very well.
If the Nye committee had done nothing else, it justified its existence and its expenditures by its revelation of the shoddy trick that Nebraska politicians tried to put over on Senator Norris. To bring that bit of skullduggery out into the light of day was worth the whole $96,000. Do the drifters of the committee mean to imply that they would wish that example of political piracy had gone undiscovered?

Wets Have Achieved Little in the Way of State Legislation in Spite of Unusual Amount of Agitation Over Prohibition and Activities of Governors During Current Sessions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. — The state legislature season has been marked by what appears to be an unusual amount of agitation over prohibition and governors have been somewhat more articulate on the subject in their messages. But although the wets have been on the offensive they appear to have been somewhat more articulate on the subject in their messages. But although the wets have been on the offensive they appear to have achieved very little in the way of real legislation.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

I enjoy reading quotations from famous or well known people. Get this from Mary Borden, "I find an overdraft at the bank very stimulating."

That's not a bad subject for discussion, especially since it hits most of us in a tender spot.

Let's consider the overdraft. It brings us in close contact with our banker, as he is usually brazen enough to give us some notice that the deficiency exists.

By being in close touch with our banker, he knows more about our financial condition and we know more about his attitude toward our financial condition.

There is usually something in the manner in which he notifies us of the deficiency which shows he's depending on us to cover the overdraft from other sources.

There are various ways of covering an overdraft, sometimes only temporarily and other times permanently. Professionals get a habit of going from store to store and from house to house, cashing checks to take up checks they have cashed somewhere else.

This practice gets monotonous, however, and soon tires out the checker except when he manages to let a check lay over in some store's cash box during the week end, in which case he gets a day of rest. Sunday. This explodes the quotation that "there's no rest for the wicked."

I don't hesitate to condemn this practice of cashing checks to take up checks or to cover overdrafts, however, as it soon leads to the terrible habit of dry checking.

Overdrafts exist in the best of well regulated families, households and business houses, but it's a sad day when these things get on the basis of dry checking.

Once a country boy went to the city where he landed a job. He took his first pay check to a bank having resources of approximately a hundred million dollars. A few days later the bank telephoned him at the place where he was working that he had an eight cent overdraft. The boy became excited and said, "Do you have to have it today?"

The good part about him was that he considered the welfare of the bank along with his own condition, and was willing to do anything to raise the eight cents if the bank needed it immediately.

Longview Not to Be a Shack City

LONGVIEW, Tex. (AP).—Longview is going to take no chances on an oil field within the city limits endangering the property of all the citizens.

The city commission has passed an emergency ordinance prohibiting the drilling of oil or gas wells within the city limits, except following a public hearing at which interested property owners could give their position.

The commission also has in mind the prevention of a "shack" town contiguous to the present business district. At a special meeting called for Friday night it is probable that an ordinance will be passed extending the fire limit from the present limited area to cover all the blocks contiguous to the business district. Under the terms of this ordinance nothing but brick, rock or concrete buildings could be erected within the district.

Sichinsky, Slayer of Ukraine Tyrant, Speaks in the U. S.

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer. (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Twenty years ago the Ukrainians of Galicia were being opposed and terrorized. When they protested against wholesale robberies in the elections they were shot down by Austrian troops.

So Miroslav Sichinsky, a 22-year-old Ukrainian student, walked in on Count Potocki, the tyrannical governor of Galicia, and said: "I have come to take your life."

He said that very courteously and then began to shoot. He killed Potocki. Then he gave himself up, was sentenced to execution, had his sentence commuted by Emperor Francis Joseph, escaped from prison and finally became a United States citizen after the Department of Labor had officially held that the killing involved no moral turpitude.

Today there is still electoral repression in Galicia and the same Ukrainians are still being terrorized under Poland, which was given the territory after the war. The same Polish landed aristocrats are masters of the country.

And Miroslav Sichinsky, more courteous than ever, mild of voice, a man highly cultured, is devoting himself to bringing the cause of these Ukrainians to the attention of the American people. He is a great hero to millions of Ukrainians. Representing various Ukrainian societies in this country, he lectures around the country, comes here to talk to members of Congress and seeks to publicize the Ukrainian cause.

Assassin Is Reluctant In Telling His Story

It isn't every day that one hears the first-person story of an assassin. I drew this one from Sichinsky after a couple of conversations about the Ukrainian problem. He was reluctant to tell it.

Miroslav's father was a priest who served in the Galician diet at Lemberg and fought the peasants' battles against the Polish aristocrats. From time to time as Miroslav grew up there were electoral frauds and minor massacres of Galicians in connection with them. The government always insisted on electing its own candidates.

Miroslav studied political problems seriously. At 19 he was in the University of Vienna. About 1905 the Austrian government, frightened by revolution in Russia, consented to universal suffrage. When peasants gathered at a mass meeting in Galicia to support this reform Count Potocki sent troops to disperse them and several were killed. Shortly after that, Sichinsky saw Potocki on the street in Vienna and thought vaguely that the governor ought to be killed.

Elections were held under the new system and again there was terrorism and bloodshed in Galicia. Miroslav Sichinsky visited a friend in a hospital and wandered into a room where wounded victims lay on the floor. They told him what had happened to them. Other atrocities occurred—a man who wrote a protest against falsification of election lists was bayoneted to death in his wife's arms.

Makes Calm Decision To Kill His Victim

Potocki condoned the official terror as a method of government. Sichinsky decided to kill him. That was in 1908.

"He was a clever, powerful, arrogant man," Sichinsky recalls. "I felt that his death would be the just punishment of a great tyrant and would rally the spirits of our people. He had joined with the Russian prime minister in an attempt to stamp out the Ukrainian social movement and bad things were in store for Ukraine.

"After making my decision I had not one moment of hesitation or doubt. It took me about a week to arrange an appointment with him at his office in Lemberg.

"For about three hours I waited outside for the audience. I sat and read a newspaper. I do not know how I could have been so calm and so entirely free from excitement.

"Finally my turn came and I told him that I had come to take his life. I explained that I would do so because he had denied the Ukrainians their constitutional liberties and had sent troops to shoot them down.

"If he had given an indication that he was human—if he had been a tired, gray old man—I believe that I would have changed my mind. But he appeared to be in an angry mood. Probably he could have rushed me and overpowered me, but he made no such attempt.

First Bullet Causes Death: He Surrenders

"I shot several times but the first bullet, which struck him in the forehead, caused his death. I did not realize that he was about to die because he jumped to his feet. He called a servant and ordered my arrest. He was a strong man and an aristocrat to the end.

"The servant was afraid to approach me. I shot my remaining bullets into edgers and into the floor to show him that he need not be afraid. Then I accompanied him downstairs and waited an hour for the arrival of the police. I had already told the governor that I would make no attempt to escape. I had decided in advance that it would be indecent to shoot him and escape. My motives might have been misunderstood. I wanted to explain in open court."

would be indecent to shoot him and escape. My motives might have been misunderstood. I wanted to explain in open court."

One of Sichinsky's defenders at his trial was Thomas Masaryk, then a liberal deputy in the Austrian Parliament and now president of Czechoslovakia. The prosecutor kept all Ukrainians, Jews and Germans off the jury. Miroslav made a two-hour speech of explanation, but it was a foregone conclusion that he would be sentenced to death.

Public Sentiment Is Strong for Slayer

The public sentiment of Galicia rose in his favor. Many persons were punished for publicly espousing his cause. Immigrants in the United States and Canada wrote to the emperor of Austria-Hungary for clemency. His lawyers appealed. A commission was appointed to examine him and promised him commutation and possibly a later chance for escape if he would plead "brainstorm." Sichinsky refused and although the commission made a favorable report he was again sentenced. Then the emperor commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

Sichinsky spent two years at hard labor and one night two guards who were sympathetic to his ideals allowed him to escape. The guards themselves subsequently had to flee and are now living in Canada. Sichinsky went into hiding in a village. Ukrainians in America sent him money and went to Norway and Sweden. He became intimately acquainted with the Swedish statesman, Branting.

In 1914 Sichinsky came to America as a Swede, on a falsified passport. But then, against the advice of friends, he surrendered to the commissioner of immigration and asked that his presence be made legal. Assistant Secretary of Labor Louis F. Post decided that Sichinsky would make a good American citizen and should not be deported because of the assassination, which he held was an act "purely political."

Becomes a Lecturer And Tours America

Sichinsky became a lecturer, specializing in political education for Ukrainian immigrants and persuading Ukrainians here to help democratic movements in eastern Europe. He was in Washington during the war and interested President Wilson in the Ukrainian population of Austria. He recalls Wilson as genial, sympathetic and statesmanlike. Nevertheless, his people were handed over to Poland without a plebiscite and found themselves getting much the same deal they had had from the Austrians.

Sichinsky is a leader in the Ukrainian Defense Organization, lives in Rochester, N. Y., and last year at the age of 44 graduated from the University of Rochester, where he studied with the idea of becoming a teacher.

"The Ukrainians have been struggling against Polish domination since the 17th century," he says, "but their problem is still unsolved. The Warsaw government had a promise the powers that it would give autonomy to the 5,000,000 Ukrainians of East Galicia but the promise has not been kept. Ukrainians in Poland are forbidden to purchase land from the Polish landlords and denied the right of education in their own nationality. Many of their political leaders have been imprisoned and tortured. Thousands of innocent persons in several hundred villages were brutally punished by the Police cavalry last fall and many have died from wounds.

There are 30,000,000 Ukrainians across the border in Russia who are naturally sympathetic and that surely will complicate the situation."

There are cases of heart disease in which difficulty of circulation of the blood through the lungs may result in coughing up blood from the lungs. Here the study of the chest must include functions of the heart.

There are, of course, other conditions in which the sputum may contain blood. In pneumonia, the lungs become engorged with blood and the sputum is likely to contain rusty red material. There the lung or rupture of a blood vessel in the lungs when blood may appear in the sputum. Cancer, and such conditions as destroy lung tissue, may also give rise to this symptom.

Obviously the diagnosis of the cause is the most important step to be so thorough as to establish beyond a doubt the cause of this symptom itself is, however, sufficiently important to demand immediate application of the best medical advice that can be had.

Everyone knows that it is important to get a person who is bleeding promptly to rest in every sense of the word and this will be one of the first steps in connection with bleeding from the lungs, as well as bleeding from any other portion of the body.

The Waughs had purchased a lot of eggs at a grocery and one of them was labelled 1912. It is believed a trick was played.

There the lung or rupture of a blood vessel in the lungs when blood may appear in the sputum. Cancer, and such conditions as destroy lung tissue, may also give rise to this symptom.

Obviously the diagnosis of the cause is the most important step to be so thorough as to establish beyond a doubt the cause of this symptom itself is, however, sufficiently important to demand immediate application of the best medical advice that can be had.

Everyone knows that it is important to get a person who is bleeding promptly to rest in every sense of the word and this will be one of the first steps in connection with bleeding from the lungs, as well as bleeding from any other portion of the body.

English Play Read By Mrs. Patrick At Play Readers

Mrs. W. W. Patrick read "Michael and Mary" by the English playwright Wednesday at the home of Miss Frances Lolley.

In choosing the ten best plays of the 200 produced last season, Burns Bantle, eminent dramatic critic, named as one, "Michael and Mary," pronouncing it the strangest and most unusual adventure in matrimony that the stage has yet produced.

The play tells the story of two young people, a writer, son of a clergyman, and a girl who has been duped into an unhappy marriage by an adventurer who deserts her shortly afterward.

The father-son relationship of yesterday and today is brought out in the following by Mr. Milne:

"Simon Rowe loved his son Michael, but he can never forget that he is responsible for him and to his God. To be a father at all is difficult, but to be a father and a clergyman almost impossible, and so Michael and he have come to dread each other's company, knowing there can never be any real friendship between them.

Years later, the following transpires between Michael and his son David:

"Honestly, Dad, were you and your father as fond of each other as we are, as intimate?"

Michael knows the answer, but after profound reflection replies: "It's a funny world. We hear a lot about the unkind day in which Victorian children were brought up and how much more wisely and kindly we bring our children up today.

There Is No "But" in Buttons—They Are in Fashion

By FRANCES PAGET (Copyright 1931, by Style Sources)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (UP).—Buttons are being brought up like well trained people, this season, not only to be self supporting, but to help with the rest of the costume family. Their idle ways of considering themselves merely a decoration are passed and, while they have important contrast value in design, they usually profess their distaste for being considered among the unemployed by actually buttoning, which, by the way, drags the button hole into the spotlight.

Of course everyone knows that they are very busy this season buttoning up frocks and pockets and coats and blouses and that in this role they help considerably in the color and accent scheme. But they have learned new tricks which are really quite amusing and which add to their reputation as a style item.

In the first place, many of them are quite large, the size that used to be referred to as dinner plates; secondly, they are frequently black or brown (tortoise shell color) and posed on white or pale color for their arresting effect; thirdly, their new stunt is to act as pegs on which to hang collars, cuffs or even jackets. Bib collars, cowl collars or caplet collars are swung over big buttons which act as anchors. Tricky cuffs are set into place and held in the same way while little bolero or eton jackets are buttoned onto the blouse by way of stabilizing them.

NEWSPAPER SCARLETEERS EVEN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE PLAY-OFF

Walter Johnson Pins His Hopes on 'Standout Pitcher' in the Senate

STOUT-HEARTED CLINIC FIVE TRIES HARD, BUT INJURIES AND ABSENCE OF CLAYTON TOO MUCH OF HANDICAP

The Reporter-Telegram evened the Industrial league playoff with a crippled Clinic team, winning 29-23 last night in a fairly fast game that was featured by a Clinic scrappiness that more-or-less made up for the torpor of the Monday night game, when Clinic won by a lone tally.

The shooting of Lane Whitmire, lanky forward for the scarlet club from Paul Barron's office, was the most thrilling achievement of the night, possibly. Twice this man sighted through the rafters and in some inexplicable way arched long shots through the brace wires and grids to get swish shots through the basket.

Godby for the losers turned in an excellent game, ranking next to Whitmire and only accounting for three less points in the scoring column. Other players of both clubs concentrated in passing the ball or holding tight to the flying jersey tails of "bad men" at the baskets.

The above is more of a figurative expression than anything else. The game was almost free of fouls, only three being called on each club. Clinic made each free toss count, but the newbies made only one of their tries.

Clinic has the town believing it is still in the way of a Reporter-Telegram championship, and deservedly. For the black coated boys showed unsuspected form and power last night. A night or two at working the new combination would stamp the Thomas boys as dangerous in their present line-up.

Slim Clayton getting an offer from a Texas college to play basketball and join the thinny clads? He is to leave Midland as soon as his leg permits. He is said to be a good high jumper, weight man, miler and quarter heat man. Too bad about that leg. He may have to hobble on a cane for months.

When a woman gets ready for a game of playground she trains for a week ahead. Take, for instance, the teachers of the high school, the feminine ones, that is. They have announced several days preparing for a game with the women teachers of north ward. They will experiment with brets set at such and such an angle, possibly, see what shade of lip rouge looks best under certain lights, and have their sports clothes measured again. Or that is what one would expect of women as fair as our coterie of femmes. They will have resolved their plan of battle to the point where they will know what shade of powder to use if the day is cloudy, or what to use if the sun shines. Take the men teachers, on the other hand, they would have to do nothing but decide what brand of chewing tobacco they use—or do they use it? If they don't they do nothing but don a pair of old smoes and get going. And they play a good brand of ball, as some of the teams around here are going to find out soon.

The things being said about Midland make you think about gridiron-roasted Bulldogs. The kitchens of the various sports writers over this newly created Class A district reek with the odor. One has only to turn to any newspaper of the district—San Angelo, Big Spring, Brownwood, Colorado, McCombs or the rest. There it is, in big type—something about Midland turning attorney and trying to cross-question teams as to their intentions towards Midland. Even out of the district—throughout the whole oil belt—we find remarks directed against the sportsmanship of the high school. Scribes say in no uncertain terms no one is worrying a particle whether Midland gets into the Class A swim or not, and point out that—Midland should confine activities to football and not to voice culture. This department called this morning for an expression from the high school, but all was quiet on the Barry front. Anyway, we'll have a look at what more of the scribes are saying. This morning's contribution comes from Boyce House, editor of the Ranger Times:

While on the subject of the personnel of the district to the west, it is perhaps permissible for a writer—who is an outsider in the mercy battle—to gaze with interest and amusement at

Grady Glider and his orchestra struck up lively dance numbers at the gymnasium last night. That, together with the support of Clinic given by Clayton, who walked about on crutches, made the game faster than was expected. Everyone will want to dance to Grady's orchestra Friday night. The whole basketball fandom will be there. The league needs the money. Legs need stretching. The ballroom floor needs scratching. Teams need to fraternize again. Come on out and see a paradoxical win for every basketball team in the league.

Cotter Heitt will likely give white suits to those who play with him in the De Luxe laundry line-up of playground ball. And he wants players. Go see him. Nothing cheap about the way the laundry is getting into the league. They will even laundry their men's suits, it is beginning to appear.

Miller Brothers will order complete playground ball equipment this week, just as a service to clubs in the loop. And Mr. Gemmill is sending to California for night equipment for playing the game under the arcs.

That's the spirit that counts.

IS BEST BALANCED TEAM IN THE LEAGUE

By WALTER JOHNSON
Manager Washington Senators

The Washington baseball team is the best-balanced club in the league, I believe, and all we need is one "standout" pitcher to put us over this year.

I am enthusiastic over the prospects for Washington's success in 1931, and anxious to get started as I believe we will be right up there all through the campaign.

Three or four of our pitchers are due for better years, and if one of those boys has a great year I don't think the club will be stopped. With the other pitchers winning 15 or more games each, as they did last year, we will be right in the pennant fight.

Hadley, Liska, Burke and Brown—let alone some other youngsters—are mighty promising. Crowder pitched fine ball after he came over here and I believe with a fresh start he will be a great pitcher for us. Jones can beat the best teams in the league when we need a win. I am going to try and have Marberry ready this spring, and with the change in the baseball I believe he will win more games this year than ever before. I think our pitching staff as a whole is superior to any other in the majors.

Liska, whose earned-run average was bettered only by Lefty Grove in 1930, should go even better this season. I hope for Hadley to blossom out into the really great pitcher he is capable of being. Charles Fischer, our new speedballer, may see much service in relief roles, though to judge from the performances last year our team won't need relief pitching as much as the other clubs.

Bob Burke's left-hand shots proved as effective as usual last year against certain clubs especially the White Sox and Red Sox, and will be with us again. Lloyd Brown lost a lot of hard-luck games in 1930, and may turn out to be one of the top-ranking left-handers this season.

I have heard some say that our batting, which gained 25 points last season, was a flash in the pan. I don't think so. Our veterans, Rice and Judge, merely hit their normal gait. Bluege and Myer were below par. Shortstop Joe Cronin came on with a rush but I think Joe is up there to stay. He is still a boy and has the desire to be better.

Myer played good ball at second last year but I am expecting more from him next season. Judge had a fine year and is still a good first baseman. If he needs help we have Joe Kuhel who looks very good to me and I believe he is due for a long and brilliant career in the big league. All in all, our infield of Judge, Myer, Cronin and Bluege performed in great shape last year, and I am hoping the boys will repeat.

Last year we needed help in the outfield at times. With Harry Rice and Harris here this year we will have plenty of protection. Manush is still a real ball player and Sam Rice will stay in there and hit for several years to come. I think Sam West is a real star and he will come fast this year. Harris, though a rookie, showed himself to be a real hitter in the latter part of last year's race.

I hated to see Muddy Ruel go. He is a high-class man and I worked some of my best years with him and will miss him in there behind the bat. Roy Spencer will do most of the catching, with Cliff Bolton, who batted .377 in Chattanooga last year, and Pinky Hargrace to assist him. Spencer's throwing arm is one of the best in the league.

We are going to do our best to bring a pennant to Washington in 1931 and I think we have a great chance to win.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BRUSHING UP SPORTS

THE EDDIE COLLINS-HEINIE ZIMM footrace in the 1917 world series is still a subject of hot stove league discussion. It is unfair to lay the entire blame on Zimmerman, however, as there was a combination of mental errors on the play. Here is the setting: Eddie Collins was on third when Joe Jackson tapped the ball to Pitcher Rube Benton. Benton whirled and caught Collins off third. A run-down between Zimm, Collins and Catcher Bill Rariden ensued. Collins jockeyed up and down the line until he slipped by Rariden while Zimm was holding the ball. Too late to throw, Zimm chased Collins across the plate with the winning run. Firstbaseman Walter Holke, who should have covered the plate, was fast asleep at first base. Who should have been blamed for the boner?

The complete guide-book

IF YOU'VE been a tourist in foreign lands, you've probably come to have a high regard for one or another of the standard guide-books. Surrounded by strange scenes, strange names, and with your time limited, you have turned with relief to any volume which tells you on good authority where to go and what to do.

Consider your ordinary shopping tours in the same light. Without an up-to-date guide-book of merchandise appearing daily within the pages of this newspaper, your most casual trip to the stores would be more or less like a ramble in foreign countries.

We're speaking of the advertisements, of course. If it weren't for the advertisements you would be a stranger in the market, surrounded by strange names, strange brands. Buying would be guessing, unless you tested every article you wanted before you bought it.

As it is, you can make up your shopping list in a few minutes, and buy with confidence instead of suspicion—knowing what you're getting—knowing that consistently advertised goods must maintain standard quality.

Take full advantage of the great guide-book of this modern age . . . read the advertisements every day

33 TEXAS CITIES DISCUSS GAS ROW IN ABILENE MEET

ABILENE, Feb. 19. (AP)—Adopting a platform which calls for competition in reduction of gas rate and the establishment of municipal ownership of gas distributing companies where operation of such would be advantageous, an organized group of 100 city officials from 33 West Texas towns were in session here Wednesday.

Mayor Thomas E. Hayden Jr. and H. L. Debusk, city attorney of Abilene, served as chairmen and secretary, respectively for the conference. Recommendations in a course of action for towns where gas rates are believed to be excessive were returned Wednesday afternoon by a committee composed of City Manager O. M. Bothwell, Sweetwater; Mayor W. L. Baxter, Santa Anna; John C. Turner, Hamlin, and Earle Earp of Sweetwater.

Members of a committee to work out a constitution, rules and regulations for the organization were named as follows: Forrest Wright, Cisco; Earl Earp, Sweetwater; H. L. Debusk, Abilene; C. Brown, Mineral Wells, and N. A. Moore, Eastland.

A committee composed of S. H. Bothwell, Sweetwater; John C. Turner, Hamlin, and W. C. Baxter, Santa Anna, was named to receive annual reports from gas distributing and pipe line companies.

In the afternoon session, which closed the conference, Al B. Vickery and C. Y. Winder of Fort Worth, identified with that city's recent municipal ownership fight, spoke. Charles Coombes, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, also addressed the group.

F. D. Wright, city attorney of Cisco, said that excessive profits lie in piping rather than in distribution. Represented in the meeting were the following towns: Hamlin, Santa Anna, San Angelo, Ballinger, Breckenridge, Stamford, Cisco, Sweetwater, Lorraine, Colorado, Winters, Moran, Coleman, Albany, Knox City, Merkel, Trent, Lawn, Roby, Spur, Amson, Mineral Wells, Ovalo, Munday, Baird, Putnam, Henrietta, Lubbock, Roscoe, Haskell, Eastland, Rule and Clyde.

The organization's platform includes: Support of utility legislation bill No. 306, support of bill to prevent pipe line companies from owning producing properties, opposition to the Holbrook bill of utility regulation, a maximum of 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet in cost of natural gas at city gates, support of the League of Texas Municipalities.

OIL VS. WATER

Water sells higher than oil at Porterville, new oil town in the midst of wells in the Wheat pool of Loving county. Water sells for 75 cents per barrel, while crude brings 73 cents. Plans are being made to supply Porterville with cheaper water, while higher oil is longed for.

Kaye Don's 107-Mile-an-Hour Run

Undaunted by the grim fate which overtook Sir Henry Segrave in the speedboat Miss England II, Kaye Don, English speed pilot, is pictured above as he drove the rebuilt craft to an unofficial world's record of 107 miles an hour in the choppy waters off Belfast, Ireland. Sir Henry was drowned when the boat sank in Lake Windermere, England, a year ago. Don will take the speedster to Buenos Aires for an official try at the record and later will challenge Gar Wood of America for the international trophy in the August Contests at Detroit.

More Premiums For Amarillo Fair

AMARILLO, Feb. 19.—A last minute addition to the premium lists of Amarillo's first annual Fat Stock show, March 2-5, 1931, appears in the catalogue, just off the press. Carload beef cattle have been added, carrying $300 in premiums, contributed equally by the Fat Stock show, the American Hereford Cattle Breeders, and Julian Bivins, of Amarillo. A carlot composes 15 animals, either steers or heifers.

Another feature will be a meat grading and cutting demonstration by the United States department of agriculture. Cattle will be graded, both on the hoof and on the block, and demonstrations given teaching the art of home-cutting.

Show officials and officers of the five organizations cooperating in the show are enthusiastic over the rapid completion of new facilities at the Tri-State fair grounds, where the show will be held. The sale ring, seating 1,000, is nearly finished. Steel is practically all in place for the new sale arena. Comfortable quarters for attendants with the cattle are being installed, including gas, lights and hot water. Plenty of room is provided in the judging arena for groups and spectators inspecting the offerings. Offices where the business of the sales can be handled easily and quickly are going in right at the arena. Every precaution is being taken to provide the necessary machinery for making the show schedule move swiftly and smoothly throughout the four days.

although polling a total of 148 votes, 20 more than G. B. Hallman, who was elected as most representative boy, and 53 more than Whitten Pinnell who was elected most popular boy.

Hallman, because of a scholastic ineligibility, could not accept the election as most representative boy, the honor going to Ed Watts, who polled 79 votes.

Thus, as one school student in the freshman class chortled: "When the aristocrats try to play politics with us plebs they are using their superior education to bad advantage."

Nominations were made for candidates this morning, from the platform. Home rule teachers made a list of the nominees, placed them on black boards and had students vote by the ballot form. The ballots were turned to Miss Theresa Klapproth and Miss Tammie Burris. Students who received the greater number of votes were declared elected.

Representative students had to qualify as to scholarship and as to student activities, the latter of which includes offices, plays, debate, choral or glee clubs, band and athletics. Balloting of the popularity contest follows:

One 85 Cent Bottle of Kruschen Salts Did It "I am starting on my second bottle of Kruschen Salts and am real pleased with results. I take it for reducing and so far have lost 14 pounds and I think it is doing wonders for me. I do not feel so tired evenings when I get home from work."

Midland "Still in Picture," for Bldg.

The expected passage in the house this week of the second deficiency bill would do much to keep Midland "in the picture" as regards one of the federal buildings, several here believe.

The bill provides for an expenditure of $3,685,000 in building or rebuilding in Texas of 21 public buildings. The bill is likely to pass the house this week, and no difficulty is expected in its passage of the senate.

By "keeping in the picture" refers to the words of Secretary Martin of the public buildings committee, who told a Midland representative a few months ago that Midland had been taken off the deferred list and placed on the active list, and that "Midland is still in the picture" on its petition for a federal building. Postal receipts would have to reach $30,000 first, the secretary said. The receipts did more than that $30,000 for the year, however.

The value to Midland in other Texas towns and cities getting public buildings is the realization that as fast as applicant cities are given their wishes the sooner will Midland come up for a closer consideration.

Big Spring will receive a $165,000 building in case the bill is passed. Breckenridge, Memphis, Cisco and Pampa being other cities to get building appropriations in this general section of the state.

Stanton Wins Boys School Tournament

Courtney was completely vanquished when the Stanton Buffaloes, boys' basketball team, smothered the opposition 36 to 5 in the final game of the Martin county tournament Wednesday.

The Buffaloes will go into competition in the district tournament at Lubbock, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Courtney won the rural school basketball championship for boys last Saturday, over three contesting schools, Lenora, Tarzan and Valley View. Lenora elevated itself to second place among the rural teams with Valley View holding third.

The county tournament was held indoors in the excellent gymnasium at Lomax, just across the Martin county line in Howard county.

MURRAY WANTS STATE MINERAL SURVEY HALTED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 19. (UP).—State participation in the work of locating additional mineral resources in Oklahoma will cease if recommendations of Gov. William H. Murray are accepted.

Gov. Murray has requested the legislature to make no appropriation for the state geological survey.

"The survey is primarily for the discovery of oil and gas fields," the governor said. "Since Oklahoma is now producing more oil and gas than needed, it seems an official extravagance and public folly to continue the survey."

Dr. Charlie N. Gould, survey director, has announced his opposition to Gov. Murray's recommendations.

Mineral Deposits He said the survey has been conducted to locate deposits of other minerals, including zinc, coal, lead, limestone, asphalt and clay.

Gould declares that when the oil and gas resources are exhausted it will be necessary to rely upon production of other minerals. Recommendation that the geological survey be abandoned is one of the few opinions expressed by Oklahoma's new governor on the oil problem.

The governor has refrained from expressing his future plans toward oil proration.

Attempts have been made to bring the proration question up on the floor of the Oklahoma legislature, but heated debates over the issue have been avoided when resolutions condemning the present oil curbs policy have been shunted to committees.

Legislative Inquiry However, sub-committees of the house oil and gas committee have conducted inquiries.

Charges have been made before the committees that certain operators in the Oklahoma City field, one of the largest pools in the Mid-Continent area, have been allowed to flow their wells wide open in violation of the curb order, which is enforced by the state corporation commission.

Opponents of proration have attacked the curb on the grounds it is causing a decrease in the state collections. Revenues from that source decreased approximately $3,000,000 last year, it has been pointed out.
