Pat Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Skeet Porter of Vealmoor and grandson of Tom Good, won the Area II Future Farmers of Amer-ica public speaking contest at the Lamesa meeting last week.

Pat took as his subject "Conserving And Using Soil Moisture" and will now represent Area II at the state contests held during the state convention at San Antonio.

The Area II winner is a member of the Gail High School FFA Chapter of which Bobby Gray is advisor and instructor in vocational agriculture. Area II covers that portion of West Texas included, roughly, in a line from El Paso to Stam-ford, and from Del Rio to Lubbock. The state convention will be held July 21-22-23.

Toby Thomas of Sweetwater placed second in the public speaking contest at Lamesa, and Charles Waldrop of Marfa was third.

In his speech, Pat recalled the story of Joseph, who was put in charge of all the production and storage of food in Egypt; how Joseph received the vision of seven years of plenty to be followed by seven years of want and famine and how, because of this vision, stored during the good years so there would be food in soll, for the "lean-dry" years, is a the kids and their maternal grandthe lean years.

Corrective Action By Congress Should Be Sought In Gas Case

The Supereme Court's disturbing decision in the gas case leaves gas-producing states only one appracch to ultimate relief, since the court in its present mood fam't likely to concede anything in the way of a re-hearing in the interests of modifi-

Only Congress can restore to the states the right to exercise control over gas pro-duced for interstate commerce. Congress came to the relief of the states in the came to the relief of the states in the federal attempt to deprive them of their tidelands. In the case of gas, however, a Congress dominated by people from nongas producing states, and concerned primarily with "protecting" their consumers against unreasonable prices, may be hard to deal with. About the only effective approach aside from the manifest federal enproach, aside from the manifest federal enroachment on state's rights, is to prove to Congress that the ultimate effect o this decision will be to make gas harder to come by for interstate distribution and thereby inflict upon consumers in non-gas-producing states not only a diminishing supply at the source, but inevitably higher prices.

One facet of this decision is that by FPC whimsy, Texas well and mineral right owners might receive a lesser price than the product might command in the open market.

Extension of the Supreme Court's philosophy to the absurd lengths to which it might be carried by a federal bureaucracy on the make could wreck the economy of Texas, which supplies most of the nation's natural gas. Texas gains substantial revenues from natural gas, based on a percentages of the value of the gas at wellhead. The FPC, under authority of this decision, could fix the price of was so low that the could fix the price of gas so low that the state's revenues would be seriously affect-

In logic, if the federal government has the power to control the price of gas in in-terstate commerce, it could also control the price of gasoline and other petroleum products. And if it can do this, it could superimpose federal control upon the state gov-ernment in every phase of the oil and gas

Hopeless as it may be, Texas should join with other states in an effort to persuade Congress that the best interests of consumers and everyone else alike is to take the chilling hand of federal bureaucracy

He was the second Maverick to add a word to the dictionary—the word "gobble-dygook," which he coined to describe the involved phraseology of New Deal direc-tives. Maury himself believed in the direct approach to words and to problems. His language was as colorful as his person-

His friends recalled that he never ducked a fight from the time he went to Congress in 1934 and became one of the most ardent of FDR's supporters. He was not a passive fellow. He was a whiz, a wow, as mayor of San Antonio. He was a standout in Washington at a time when spectacular personalities were a dime a dozen.
On his death this week Sheriff Owen Kilday of Bexar County, whose brother Paul

"We were bitter political enemies but good personal friends. He did an awful lot for San Antonio."

Men in both major parties could and did disagree with Maury Maverick in political and economic matters, but no one ever made the mistake of underestimating his sincerity or his prowess in debate.

He was a lawyer, author, politician, executive and student. He became a hobo to study the plight of the unemployed. His oratorical and writing style was as vehe-ment and exciting as his personality. A master of the sharp retort, he was nevertheless a humble man respecting his manysided talents.

His ancestor, Samuel A. Maverick, native of South Carolina, graduate in law from Yale, was one of the giants of the Texas Revolution. He took in a bunch of cattle on a debt, turned them over to a Negro to take care of, and the Negro neglected to brand the calves. Unbranded calves became known as "mavericks," the prop-erty of anybody who "got to them first"— are illiterate, the scholar stands apart, a person to be respected and honored because he can read. In China, for instance, a Hanlin scholar (equivalent perhaps of an American Ph.D. before that degree showered like a spring rain) was permit-ted a symbol before his door; among the Jews of the ghettos, the scholar sat in the front seats in the synagogue and the wealthiest men prided themselves upon obtaining such a son-in-law.

In Czarist Russia, the intelligentsia were a class apart, an elite who could read. The person who could read more than one language or who had studied in a foreign university was indeed a superior being. It was not unusual to meet an intelligent Russian who could not only read but speak five or ten languages.

As literacy spreads among the people, mere ability to read is not so great an achievement because everybody can read. The scholar ceases to be a member of an elite group and becomes just a per-

The scholar ceases to be a member of an elite group and becomes just a person, wise or foolish, able or incompetent, intellectually courageous or just a job-holder. In Russia, it used not to be unusual to hear a person say, "I am intelligent." Can you imagine any person saying in this country. "I am an intellectual"? Surely, it would convey no precise meaning, because this is a classless society in which every man, woman and shill seems to have an opinion on every pubject and the adults can vote an opinion conclusively in an election.

On the other hand, the disciplines of learning do give to certain persons either expertness in a particular field or a broad, philosophical view of the forces of nature and the activities of man. Learning is a matter of intellectual discipline. Knowledge run riot is unrelated to wisdom. We have all met the "walking encyclopedia" stars are in the heavens to the baseball scores for a decade, but who cannot apply his knowledge to anything because he possesses no disciplines, no capacity for evaluation, no apparatus for mature thought in narrow or broad fields. The scholar then is distinguished as a person with a disciplined mind.

The Big Spring Herald

There was a time when it was assumed that an educated man knew everything; today, such an assumption is impossible. The cosmic philosopher, the mind that can encompass the whole of human knowledge and can develop such a system as Spinoza or Kant did, or even to make a try at it as Bergson did, is unknown in our day in any part of the world. Undoubtedly the most accepted philosophic figure of our era is Karl Marx, whose ideas controi the minds of hundreds of millions of human beings; yet he was a man of comparatively small knowledge even for his times and his special theory of dialectical materialism does not stand up in the face of our knowledge either of the special or of our knowledge either of the social or natural sciences.

This discussion inevitably leads to what, our country, has been vulgarised into the word, egghead. I do not quite under-stand what an "egghead" is, but I assume that it is a characterization of a sume that it is a characterization of a scholar who goes into the public service and acts beyond his capacities. The American penchant for a slang phrase makes an "egghead" a radical, a member of the A. D. A., a professor who is a Fifth Amendment Communist or a fellow-traveler who often becomes such because he is a husybody.

The idea seems to prevail that all scholars are Democrats or liberals or Communists. This has been encouraged by the contrary notion that all Republicans, all business men, and all anti-Communists are "anti-intellectuals."

Buch simplifications are not only ridiculous but mischlevous. The trained, disciplined minds of this country cannot be divided that way. If a count were taken, I am sure that as many, if not more, disciplined minds are employed in private industry as in our universities; that more research is being done in the natural sciences in private industry than in our universities; that as many professors are Republicans as Democrats; and that in our universities the anti-Communists will exceed the Communists by 1,000 to 1—s conservative guess, I am sure.

In a word, no political group in America has a monopoly on scholarship. Some do, however, make more noise than others.

Commies Go Free Enterprise, With High Interest In Watches

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

Rumor has it that the Commies attending the Asiatic Conference in Geneva are going capitalistic.

They are, it seems, hocking everything in their possession to purchase wrist watches. The Red delegates aren't content with the necessities of life common to the masses. They want luxuries, yet. Funny thing about the whole deal is that the bigger the "wheel," the better the watch. An unbiased observer might deduct that "some" people from the Communist countries have more to hock than Actually the people in Geneva have no need of a program to spot the players on the Communist team. By looking at the wrist watches, they can tell who is important and who is not.

If the watch is an oversize gold model with a gold bracelet and gives the time, date, phase of the moon, latitude and longitude, then the wearer is a first secretary or better. If the watch has no gold band and does nothing but tell time, then it belongs to a third secretary or an advisor

And if it is silver, then the owner is obviously a nobody-an interpreter or clerk. Gold is still preferred over silver in the peoples' democracies, and a self respecting wheel wouldn't be caught without the preferred stock. All these Russians, Chinese, North Koreans and Indochinese with watches, according to the rumor, make a flare in restaurants or during meetings. They altable and chin resting in hand. This displays the watch to advantage.

Commies with watches, it seems are just like a kid with a new toy or a girl with an engagement ring. They want to let everybody know they have them.

And those who can rake up enough Swiss francs are not stopping with one watch. They are buying as many as they can get their hands on, from two on up. One official from China is said to have purchased 26 watches

This would indicate that the boys are going back to their respective countries with the idea of "making a killing" on a profitable sale. Free enterprise is taking over, and I got a hunch some of the "masses" in the Communist countries are fixing to get took.

President's Economics Prof Has A Hard Time Teaching Reporters

WASHINGTON - What an unruly class! The professor would pause for a comma and up would go hands, many hands, clamoring for notice. Nothing like this had happened at Columbia. Nor at meetings of economists at the National Bureau of Economic Research, from which be is Thus it was that Arthur F. Burns, chairman of President Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers, learned what headline hunters are. This was Burns' first press conference after 15 months in office. It was a command performance. A reporter had asked President Eisenwer for an answer to Prof. Sumner Slichter's charge of a do-little anti-reces sion policy. You'll have to see Dr. Burns on that the President said in effect.

In due course, Burns appeared in the marmoreal Indian Treaty Room in the old State Dept. Building, site of the President's press conferences. The room wasn't as full as when the President performs. There was sitting room for all. But there was plenty of questioners.

On entering the reporters' den, Burns said:

"My name is Burns, Arthur F. On my left is Walter W. Stewart, and on my right, Neil H. Jacoby, my associates on the Council, Our work is that of confidential advisers on economic matters to the President. That being the case, I may not be able to be completely free in all my answers to questions. But I will do best, I'm ready."

hands. Burns selected a hand in the second row. The hand's voice said: "Nonfarm employment is down 1,500,000 from year ago. It's still going down. What's going to stop it?"

Burns puffed on his pipe, which was continually going out and being lighted. He agreed there had been a substantial decline in employment, but there is "evidence that it has leveled off." He was particularly encouraged by the increase in hours worked per week in May. It's only 0.3 of an hour, but "I regard this as significant. The work week tends to fluctuate narrowly."

Hands shot up throughout his answer, distracting but not stopping him. When he satisfied himself he'd finished his reply, he said: "I'll answer the questions in the order of hands." He pointed, "T'll take that person, then that person, then that

Burns reminded reporters he doesn't have "the gift of prophecy," a favorite phrase, but he feels the chances are good an upturn's on the way. However, if business bumps along at the present level for another five or six months-with three to four million unemployed-it would call for action by the government.

He was impatient-in a resigned waywith the notion that the government had failed to act to head off a depression. He cited the easy money policy of the Federal Reserve Board last spring, "Such action was the promptest response to an incipient decline in the history of our country." He cited the tax cuts-"the greatest for one year in history"-as a business spur. He said the President's legislative program "has economic punch."

'How much has business declined?" was another question. "You'll have to define what you mean or you and I will be in real statistical trouble. Do you mean the decline of industrial production or of employment?"

The same reporter pointed out that small companies seemed to be doing badly and the big ones well-Studebaker versus General Motors, for example. Did that mean the economy was unbalanced?

"I'm sorry, I have no adequate information on that." "Will there be more such press con ferences?" Burns couldn't be sure. "If I could just talk for an exchange of information, I'd find them useful. But the Council of Economic Advisers shouldn't give out news. industriously scratching away with your pencils, then I don't know." Someone said, "Thank you, Mr. Burns." It was over. There were two schools of thought about the professor. He'd done very well. He was a thoughtful, studious man who wouldn't leap to judgments. Reassuring. There was another opinion. Too many ifs and qualifications. "He takes too long to say what he means."

That was the irrepressible schism at the press conference-between the reporters who came to learn and interpret and se who came for spot news to rush into headlines. To the first group, Burns was articulate, clear-headed, circumspect, and precise. To the second, he was hypercautious, circumambient, pedantic, and, st times, evasive.

and Italian cuisine.
All this deep enthusiasm for cooking was entirely personal until she married Pino in 1938, a year after his arrival in this country from Italy. She was doing movie bit parts in New York at the time, and Pino was giving concerts and singing on radio.
Fedora decided they might as well pool their talents, and wrote a script involving the daily adventures, culinary and romantic, of an Italian singer and his wife. The Bontempis were an instant success.

Fedora still writes all the scripts for both radio and television shows. She and Pino produce a weekly radio program, have two weekly television shows originating in New Haven, Conn., and a show from New York, playing up Italian cooking.

Their projected new program will deal with American cookery. Writing all the scripts, acting in all the shows, co-producing and cooking up new recipes keeps Fedora fairly busy, but she's a glutton for punishment.

"After cooking all day on TV I start right in again when I come home," she says, "Pino still likes my cooking."

Dulles Concedes Some Savings Have Backfired

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON WASHINGTON UP—Secretary of State Dulles concedes that his efforts to save a dollar here and a dollar there have sometimes back-fired.

"I personally scratch out words here and there to save a few dol-lars on every cable," Dulles told the Senate Appropriations Commit-tee in secret testimony May 17, and just made public.

Dulles acknowledged that editing cables to save money would seem like a job that could be performed by someone whose time was less valuable than the Secretary of State's, but he added:

PA Hymn Is Born

Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me

The hymn that was written for sailors

It was April 23, 1888. The Rev. Edward Hopper settled back in an easy chair in his study. The Presbyterian minister had a weak heart and, at 72, he was living on borrowed time. But he felt up to writing so he took a pencil and paper and started outlining a hymn. Nobody knew how many hymns the modest minister had written because he rarely signed them and even when he did he usually used fictional names. During the week days the Rev. Hopper worked among the sallors. On Sundays he preached to them at New York Harbor's "Church of the Sea and Land." But when he cast his bread upon the waters through his hymn writing he always stayed in the background.

Edward Hopper was a man of the city. He was born and educated in New York and, after pastorates at Greenville, N. Y. and Sag Harbor, Long Island, he was elected to the church at the harbor with its congregation of sailors. Like Methodist Charles Wesley, who often wrote hymns to fit his various congregations, Hopper Jesus, Saviour, pilot me Over life's tempestuous sea; Unknown waves before me roll, Hiding rocks and treacherous shools Chart and compass come from Thee, Jesus, Saviour, pilot me.

As a mother stills her child, Thou canst hush the ocean wild; Boisterous waves obey Thy will, wrote for the men who go out to see in ships,

"They Pray the Best Who Pray and Watch" and "Wrecked and Struggling in Mid-Ocean."
In 1871 one of his hymns was published in "The Sailor's Magazine" and Philadelphia's Composer John Edgar Gould set it to music the night before he sailed for Africa for his health. When it was learned that Gould had died in Algiers the sailors may ned the death of the man who the sallors mourned the death of the man who had st. "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me" to music but none of the Rev. Hopper's congregation knew their own pastor had written the words.

when they found Edward Hopper he was still seated in his chair. The pencil was in his hand and a sheet of paper with the outline of a hymn had floated to the floor. The title was "Heaven" but there was no name of the author. Even if the hymn had been finished it is doubtful anybody would have known who wrote it. The sailors' hymn was sung nine years before anybody knew it was the Rey, Edward Hopper who body knew it was the Rev. Edward Hopper who

When Thou sayest to them "Be still!" Wondrous Sovereign of the sea, Jesus, Saviour, pilot me.

When at last I near the shore, And the fearful breakers roar Twixt me and the peaceful rest, Then, while leaning on Thy breast, May I hear Thee say to me, "Fear not, I will pilot thee."

Both Parties Claim Credit On Security

WASHINGTON 49- Republican and Democrats alike today vied in claiming credit for a sweeping social security liberalization plan which seems headed for over whelming congressional approval. The measure broadening social security coverage and boosting benefits swept through the House 355-8 last week and comes up soon for public hearings before the Senate Finance Committee.

An advance check of committee members today indicated Republicans and Democrats will try to out do one another in eagerness to support it

Both sides agree that passage of the measure is one of the most politically popular moves Congress can make in this election year And Republicans say the chief ad vantage will fall to them, because President Eisenhower put the bill high on his 1954 legislative pro gram and the GOP controls Con

Eisenhower renewed his plea for the measure in a televised speech on his legislative program last night, declaring that the "goal for every American" includes "a rea-sonable assurance . . . against in-security in old age."

However, Sen. George of Georgia, senior Democrat on the Finance Committee, said in an interview social security "Is a Democratic party program." He said Senate Democrats will back fully the 1954 iberalization of the system" just what has television done for newspaper reading?

- survey shows that TV INCREASES It!

For the fourth year in a row the Cunningham & Walsh independent "Videotown" survey shows that television set owners are spending more time with their newspapers than ever before!

It is clear that every medium -including TV, the newcomersimply whets people's appetites for the full story.

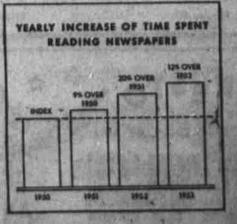

In their newspaper they'll find the whole story about the fight they saw on TV last night . . . about the entertainers they watched . . . the debate they saw ... or the educational program that was so interesting.

No matter what the source of news may be-an angry dictator across the sea, an earthquake in Mexico, a tennis match in Australia, a fire downtown, or a TV program in the living room-it's the newspaper that tells it all.

No wonder people are reading their newspapers more! No wonder advertisers are finding newspapers more productive than ever before!

Yanks Favored To Topple Sox This Evening

BY BEN PHLEGAR

If you feel the urge to make riendly wager on tonight's big clash between the Chicago White Sox and the New York Yankees, you might consider backing the Yanks to win by one run while using at least two pitchers.

The two teams have met four times so far, New York has won three of the four, always with two or more pitchers. And every one of the games has been decided by a single run.

PONY LEAGUE NEEDS 2 MANAGERS AND AT LEAST AS MANY UMPIRES

The Pony League doesn't want for players or interest but is in need of two managers and at least that many umpires.

Both the Anderson Devils and the KP Tigers are rudderless at the present time. Red Harrison has been filling in as manager of the Devils but lives in Coshoma and cannot make the drive every time his team plays.

Curtis Choate has been serving as manager of the Tigers but he works nights and cannot spare the time from his duties.

Umplres, of course, are always a pressing need for the loop.

Man's Execution BALTIMORE UN - George Edward Grammer, once a prosperous New York businessman, dropped to his death from Maryland's gallows early today for the murder that was almost a "perfect crime." The state accused Grammer of beating to death his 33-year-old wife on a sultry August night in 1952 so he could be free to marry a pretty United Nations secretary. Grammer admitted he killed his wife, but he claimed he hadn't planned the crime.

The body of the mother of three little girls was found in an auto-mobile, smashed by a wild, careening drive down a Baltimore hill. Police found a pebble lodged beeath the accelerator to force it into an open position. Their alert discovery led to a trail of damning evidence and the 37-year-old New Yorker's ultimate conviction. Grammer earned $860 a month as office manager of the Climax Molybdenum Co. It was testified at his trial that he had an "almost unlimited" expense account. State prosecutors put into evidence love letters Grammer had written to Mathilda Mizibrocky, of Hamilton, Ont., a vivacious brunette employed by United Nations.

ry her, state prosecutors argued. He loved her and wanted to marry her, state prosecutors argued. They produced testimony that the two spent at least one week to gether in a swank Chicago hotel on Grammer's fancy expense account. She testified she never knew he was married.

The burley, six-footer went to his death without a trace of emotion. He had a glass of milk and a bun for breakfast yesterday and passed up the traditional last meal. The Rev. Benjamin Blubaugh a Methodist minister, was with
