Overproduction Cure Is Purpose of Session

TEXARKANA, March 9. (UP).—Five of eight state representatives went into an executive session today with an intent of curing the oil industry ills of over-production.

Word was received from T. H. Barton, Arkansas, that he would arrive later today. Alfred Landon, Kansas, notified that he was sending a substitute. A New Mexico representative did not appear.

Delegates plan to form an organization and then conduct an open meeting.

FOUR CHILDREN BURN AS FOLKS ARE AT CHURCH

CARIBOU, Me., March 9. (UP).—Four children were burned to death last night in a fire which destroyed their home in the village of Woodland, it became known today.

The parents were attending church when the fire occurred. A fifth child, who was badly burned and suffering from exposure, arrived at a hospital here, having been brought by a horse drawn sleigh.

The dead, who are children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Searles, are Goldie, 18, Bertha 11, Casper 3, and Robert Jr., 1.

Churches Have 720 At Morning Service

The batting average of Midland's churches Sunday morning was far off the percentage leading ministers hope to realize in the "Come-to-Church campaign" that it is hoped will reach an Easter Sunday culmination of "half the population in Midland in church."

Reports were turned in by the four largest Protestant churches on Sunday, attendance being 720. On Easter Sunday it is hoped that 3,000 will attend various churches of the city. Sunday's figures were only .240 per cent of that goal.

It is imperative that Midland ministers telephone their Sunday school, morning service and evening service attendances to The Reporter-Telegram by 9 o'clock each Monday morning if tabulated reports on the campaign are published. The newspaper is attempting to get these reports in order to aid in the movement but, so far, has been unable to do so.

Aladdin Test Has Interest Locally

Announcement of a 5,000-foot test to be drilled by the Aladdin Oil company on 9-13-35, about 30 miles northwest of Hobbs in Lea county, gives a pleasant feeling to several Midlanders who own acreage near the test. Fred C. Kiskiddon is in charge of the drilling. The well, which is a pure wildcat, will start within a few days.

Injured Boy to Leave Hospital

Lester Pittman, Western Union delivery boy who was injured last week when struck by a hit-run driver, will be discharged from the Midland clinic-hospital Tuesday, clinic attaches said today.

Repaving of Alleys Is Ceased as Negotiations Result in Good Credits

Suspension of work in tearing out alley slabs and repaving, noticed the latter part of last week, was explained this morning by Mayor Leon Goodman.

The West Texas Construction company, following negotiations with the city council, agreed to take up slabs that failed to drain according to engineering specification and replace them with new paving, or leave the paving as it now is and credit property owners with one-third of 90 per cent of the cost of paving.

This 90 per cent of the cost of paving alleys was what property owners had expected to pay, the city paying the other 10 per cent. Moreover, the construction company allowed in its alternative that the city would be accredited with its 10 per cent.

The city referred the alternative to property owners for decision and it was decided that the paving as it will be accepted, it being understood that credits of one third of 90 per cent plus 10 per cent be given property owners and the city. These credits will extend to all alley paving in Midland, not merely that part found by engineers as failing to meet specification. One-third of the slabs were protested.

This action of the council saves property owners and the city a large sum.

The construction company readily acceded to requests of the council, it was explained.

Repaving of a slab removed from the alley joining West Wall and West Missouri, in the 100 block, will be done immediately.

Mrs. Jennie Chaney Buried in Colorado

Burial services in Colorado were held this afternoon for Mrs. Jennie Chaney, 73, who died at the A. B. Wilson place, three miles north of Midland, late Sunday afternoon.

The body was shipped early this morning, a funeral cortege following the Barrow's mortuary hearse.

Mrs. Chaney had suffered ill health for several months, and lately was affected by partial paralysis and periods of unconsciousness.

Survivors in the immediate family are: two daughters, Mrs. Linnie Barnett and Mrs. Luther Harris, and a son, John Chaney, Colorado; two daughters, Mrs. Elmer Bizzell and Mrs. A. B. Wilson, Midland; a son, Willie Chaney, Warfield, and a daughter, the former Miss Ethel Chaney, Dallas.

Mrs. Chaney's husband died 11 years ago, in Mitchell county, where the couple lived for 23 years.

All the above mentioned relatives attended the funeral, it was reported here.

MRS. DAY SOUGHT IN THE WEST

Foul Play for Woman Accused of White Slavery Feared

LOS ANGELES, March 9. (UP).—A widespread search was underway today for Olive Clark Day, asserted to be head of a white slave ring, who disappeared shortly after a release on bond from the county jail Saturday.

Her attorney said that he feared foul play.

Mrs. Day was arrested with William Jobeman, theatrical publicity man, and John Mills, wealthy realtor. Each of the trio faced two counts on statutory offenses after a 16-year-old girl charged that she had been taken to Mills' hotel room in belief that she was to become an artist's model.

ARLENE DRAVES DEFENSE ACCUSED OF TAMPERING

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 9. (UP).—Insinuation that the defense medical experts had tampered with vital pathological evidence was made today in Virgil Kirkland's trial on charges of murdering Arlene Draves.

The state vainly attempted to make Dr. Joseph Springer, final defense witness, admit that tissues in Arlene's body were switched. The battle centered around the defense testimony that the examination of tissues proved the girl had not been attacked.

TES Men Injured In Auto Collision

Two Big Spring men, J. O. Ergle and J. B. Hodges Jr., received emergency treatment for lacerations and shock Saturday night after their car crashed into the rear of a negro's car on the east highway.

Ergle was treated in Stanton, Hodges in Midland. A negro, driver of the car, received bruises.

The men, who work with the Texas Electric Service company in Big Spring, explained the negro's car was parked beside the road and had no lights burning. Light from an approaching automobile blinded them with its glare, causing the driver to see the parked car too late to escape a collision.

"It Took Me Two Years To Tame My Time"

An Interview With Publisher of Midland's Daily on Eve of Newspaper's Second Anniversary—Takes Two Years to Realize Time Element

By R. C. HANKINS

"I've learned a formula for making time pass quickly," said T. Paul Barron, publisher of The Reporter-Telegram today in commenting on the second birthday of the newspaper which will occur tomorrow. "Just try publishing a daily paper in a town the size of Midland and you won't realize you have started until two years have passed."

Barron commented upon the peculiar conditions of the newspaper business when a town outgrows the weekly or semi-weekly stage but still needs a larger population to make a daily publication repay its investors substantially.

He declared that the owners of The Reporter-Telegram have the greatest of confidence in the newspaper's field and expressed the belief that Midland will never be smaller than at present, nor will the public be satisfied with anything less than a daily newspaper.

Midland business men are experts at merchandising the publisher said, explaining that there are some of the keenest advertisers and executives among the merchants here that will be found in cities of even much larger size.

"The trade expansion program now under way by Midland merchants will reach 40,000 persons," Barron said. "Business men of more

A Swan Song--By Lane Ducks

With an outburst of song and crash of band music, Congressmen who failed of re-election gave a tuneful farewell to Washington as the 71st Congress came to a close. A group of them are shown here on the capitol steps, before the microphones, as they sang their legislative "swan song." A Marine band played for them.

Harmony ruled the House of Representatives for its last hour of existence as the turbulent 71st Congress came to an end, just as this picture was taken. The Marine Band Orchestra, clustered in front of the stenographers' table at the rostrum, led the singing, and Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen and Congressman Clifton Woodrum sang. Speaker Longworth came down from the rostrum to play the piano. A good time was had by all, for the first time during the session.

TRUCK CROPS OF RIO GRANDE ARE FROST-COVERED

SAN BENITO, March 9. (UP).—Unexpected frost last night blanketed the early truck crops of the lower Rio Grande valley.

A large bean crop almost ready for picking suffered the heaviest damage. Tomatoes and potatoes were also damaged.

It was warmer in Midland Sunday night, minimum temperature being 21 degrees. The season's low mark, 18 degrees, was again experienced on Friday night.

Rotarians Shudder At Ice Plant Trip

Midland Rotarians will enjoy a departure from the routine luncheon Thursday, leaving warm offices to be guests of Kenneth Ambrose at the plant of the Southern Ice & Utilities company.

Ambrose has received advice from his father, W. S. Ambrose, prominent Rotarian of McAlester, Oklahoma, that he will also attend the meeting.

A feature of particular interest to club members having traces of Scotch blood in their veins is that the luncheon will be "on Kenneth" and without cost to the individual members.

Each piece of machinery in the large plant will be labelled and an explanation of ice making processes will be given as a classification talk by Ambrose.

Good Reason Why Cowdens Keep Fishing

The catching of tarpon so large that "anything less than four and a half feet long or weighing less than 50 pounds, is thrown back," may be the reason Jax Cowden and Elliott Cowden are staying with their fishermen's roles off Tampico, Mexico.

But a clipping from an Associated Press dispatch, which was included in a letter home, may be something.

The clipping relates of a happening 15 miles from where the anglers are, as follows:

"Armed peasants were scouring the countryside near here in a hunt for a ferocious mountain lioness which killed two women.

"Inhabitants in the vicinity of the tragedy, were in a state of terror. Children were kept within doors, houses were tightly closed and farmers left their homes only with weapons.

"While the beast has not been seen since she attacked the women, the hunters found her three cubs in the rugged country near the place of the killing.

"Both of the women were wives of peasants. The lioness was driven away with stones as she was about to devour the bodies, which were horribly clawed. The clothing of the women had been torn to shreds.

"Peasants carried the bodies to the nearest farmhouse and then the alarm was spread through the vicinity. Several hunting parties were organized.

MORE BUSINESS HOUSES JOIN BIG TRADES DAY MOVE

To get in on the ground floor of the mammoth trade expansion program which will open this week, Midland business men are urged to phone the chamber of commerce today or Tuesday that they wish to participate. The 10,000 circulars to be distributed to every house in Midland, Stanton, Odessa, Rankin, Crane City, Iraan, McCamey, Wink, Pyote, Monahan, Kermit, Pecos, Andrews, Seminole, Hobbs, Lovington, and in the farm area of Martin county and oil camps of Pecos, Winkler and Ector counties, are now being prepared.

A total of 41 merchants had signed to participate in the expansion campaign. The only fixed cost for getting into the campaign is $2.50, and if nine more merchants enter this cost will be lowered to $2. Every business house, garage, filling station or other line which is a member of the chamber of commerce may join, but those desiring to enter the campaign are urged to sign today or tomorrow, chamber officials said.

The first trades day is April 4. Several thousand people are expected to participate. A circular will go to every house in Midland giving full details and giving the names of merchants participating. The business men in the campaign are paying for it.

Names of other merchants or firms were expected to be added today. The Midland Drug company joined the list early this morning, as did the Hotel Pharmacy.

SQUADRON GREATEST OF HISTORY

Date Not Set for the Landing of Nearly 1400 Airmen

Word was received today from the war department, by the chamber of commerce, that Midland is one of the two score widely scattered cities to be visited by army air corps units in connection with the mimic aerial battles to be staged on the Atlantic seaboard from May 20 to May 30.

More than 670 planes will be concentrated for these exercises from all parts of the country according to advice sent by the war department to chamber of commerce officials and arrangements are now under way to meet the necessary fuel and other service needs of the planes that are to use the local airport and which will make a mid-day stop for fuel.

Great Fleet
The exact number of planes that will visit the city has not been announced, nor has the date on which the ships will arrive. Complete details of the complicated schedules that will govern the movements of 335 observation planes, 205 pursuit planes, 51 attack planes, 36 bombardment planes and 45 heavy duty transports from air corps and national guard airbases in the northern, southern, eastern and western sections of the country to Dayton, the concentration point, will be published within the near future. The total personnel will consist of 740 officers and 631 enlisted men.

This huge concentration of planes and personnel will be welded into one unit to be known as the First Air division and will be commanded by Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, who began his military career in 1909. His staff will number 30 officers and, being an air command, will require the use of 22 planes—one pursuit and 21 two-seater observations.

All States Traversed
Every state in the union will be crossed by air corps units in going to or returning from the field exercises. An idea of the huge task involved in arranging the schedules and routing the planes to take advantage of available landing facilities may be had from the fact that the total distance of the airways routes to be followed by the various units total more than 50,000 miles or twice the circumference of the globe.

Pursuit, bombardment and observation planes will come from California; other pursuit and observation units as well as attack squadrons will be drawn from Texas; Michigan will contribute the First Pursuit group; Virginia the 2nd Bombardment group while observation groups will come from New England, southern and middle western states.

May Month Chosen
The unit movements will begin (See AIRWAYS page 6)

CRUELITIES OF YOUTH BY BRUCE CATTON

The helpless tragedies of youth are things we can all understand, since all of us have lived through them, in one form or another. What we often overlook is the cruelty which youth frequently exercises on its own members.

The suicide of little Benita Bischoff in New Jersey the other day emphasizes the existence of this cruelty.

Benita, who was 16, was the daughter of Vivian Gordon who was murdered after she had prepared to give evidence in the New York "vice ring" investigation.

Circumstances of the murder, and the facts regarding the woman's life which were brought out subsequent to it, were rather unsavory. The name Vivian Gordon was blazoned over newspaper front pages. Little Benita Bischoff was mentioned frequently. Naturally, the child found herself in an unenviable position.

Probably she would have been able to live through it if it had not been for the attitude of her schoolmates. They took pains not to let her forget that her mother had not been all she might have been. They taunted her, made cutting remarks where she could overhear them, did malicious little things to remind her of her tragedy. So, unable to endure it, she killed herself.

Youth, as it happens, can be as cruel as grown-ups. It has its own sorrows and disappointments—and how black they can seem, in the early 'teens!—but it has not had time yet to digest them and through them to learn how to be considerate and tolerant. It inflicts torture thoughtlessly and effectively. It is hard for an adult even to imagine what little Benita Bischoff must have suffered.

Much of this is due to youth's immaturity. But that is not all of it. Youth reflects the adult world in which it lives. It takes its cue from the grown-ups with whom it is in daily contact. And probably it was this fact that caused most of Benita's torture.

The adult world does not go out of its way to jibe at an unfortunate girl. It does not need to. It callously makes her the central figure of a nine-days' scandal. It puts her up on a stage where no one can miss seeing her and turns on the spotlight. It finds in the whole shoddy "vice ring" situation not so much a spur to righteous indignation as a pleasing new sensation.

So the grown-up world need not be surprised if youth turned on Vivian Gordon's daughter and put her in the pillory. It was the adults who set the stage and provided the incentive.

RECHRISTENING THE SUBMARINES

For 20 years submarines in the United States Navy have been identified by numbers and letters which were to most of us meaningless and unintelligible. Now the navy has decided to rechristen them with deep sea titles such as Bonita, Bass, Barracuda.

The wonder of it is that this happy idea had not been thought of years before. Submarines had no more personality than a telephone number or automobile license plate. And yet there was no valid reason why they could not have been as properly addressed as the battleships.

If a submarine instead of the Maine had been blown up in Santiago harbor, it is unlikely an expression like "Remember the V-6706" would long have survived in American history. Figures are so easy to forget!

LOYALTY AND COURAGE

Loyalty is rather a scarce commodity. But now and then there is an example of it that makes the rest of the doubtful world look around for someone in whom to trust again. Ellen Warner, 21, thought that Victor Laurie was taking her to the movies in New York, the other night. The man paused along the way to work an impromptu robbery. The rope, up which he had climbed, broke and he tumbled to the ground in a crumpled, broken heap.

Ellen Warner didn't run away. She went for help and then she stayed with the man until he died. She knew that she would be included in the case, and she had one shop-lifting charge against her name. But an inner sense of loyalty made her do the courageous thing in an un-

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Ambassador and Finance Minister, Stovepipe Hat and All, Spent Three and a Half Hours Between Floors When Elevator Stuck—Now Embassy Has a New Lift

WASHINGTON, March 9. — The ambassador who tells this story would be very sore if his name were mentioned. Ambassadors, above all other persons here, feel that they must preserve their dignity in the public eye. But it's a good story, just the same.

He was entertaining the finance minister of his country. His family was at the time in the homeland. It's a big embassy, but the man who opens the door and also drives visitors up to the ambassador in the elevator was having a night off. The ambassador and the finance minister had a joint dinner date. The ambassador undertook to operate the elevator as they started, in stovepipe hats, to the ground floor.

Between floors the elevator stuck. That was at about 7:30 p. m. They stayed in that elevator until after 11 p. m. There were not seats.

"What on earth did you talk about?" asked your correspondent. "Everything in the world until my man returned," said the ambassador. "Of course, before very long we were sitting on the floor. The one thing I remember is that I told him that our diplomatic establishments abroad were in serious need of more liberal appropriation to keep our plants in good repair. For instance, I said, the elevator. Since then we have been able to afford a new elevator. But don't you ever publish this story or I will kill you with my own hand."

One can always make the over-worked girls of the U. S. Employment Service happy by passing along the word that Washington is just as bad a place as any other to which to come looking for a job. Folks out of town appear to be stimulated every time Congress appropriates a few hundred million dollars for something or other. But the fact is that there is less than the ordinary opportunity for government jobs.

The Civil Service Commission, it may be noted, is holding fewer examinations than ever, and the explanation given is that resignations from the federal payroll are down to a minimum. That's natural enough of course, because ordinarily when employees leave the government service—except on retirement—they are leaving to take more lucrative jobs in private business. Just now, private business hasn't very much posts to fill.

And there are many persons who pleasant situation. It doesn't make any difference where the game is being played. There is something rather fine about those who stay to the end and are unafraid.

RETRENCHING TOO FAR

Throwing out a warning that one may go too far into retrenchment, and may not be ready for better times when they reappear, The Dallas News a few days ago exhorted its readers not to be caught napping.

This is good advice. A merchant may go as far into reducing his stocks as a matter of protecting his bank account that markets will rise before he has had time to take advantage of depression prices.

A man contemplating a new building or an overhaul job on his home while labor and materials are cheap may wait so long that costs will be back to normal and men will have jobs, thereby losing the opportunity to reduce the cost of his job by from one third to one half.

An entire community may take on such a program of retrenchment that it will be caught asleep while its neighbors take advantage of renewed activity in various lines to be the "city" of the territory.

Midland civic leaders, however, are not taking that attitude. There is a program under way of keeping abreast, of reaching out after new business, new people and anything beneficial that may come along while there is a so-called depression.

Neither Midland nor its citizens should go too far into the hole of retrenchment. The distance may be just as far coming out as it was going in.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.

They tell me that down at Kilgore they have worked out a city ordinance that wouldn't be bad anywhere. If a citizen of the town picks up a transient and brings him in, and later it is discovered that the transient can't get a job and is on charity, the law requires the fellow who brought him in to take care of him.

However, I guess there are a lot of bums who won't ask for a ride but who will go right on into Kilgore.

That reminds me I haven't heard from some of the Midland boys who went to east Texas since they left town.

It is reported that several Rotarians who have been attending church regularly, at least on each Easter Sunday, doubled up and went to the Presbyterian church yesterday.

There is a Midland woman who suggests to her husband that he do some job around the place occasionally, and every time he says, "That's used to work for Uncle Sam who left him but still retained their civil service status, who are trying to get back after falling victims to the depression and joining the ranks of the unemployed."

The death of the widow of Admiral Dewey of Spanish-American War fame recalled the fact that for more than 12 years his name was carried in the Washington telephone directory by Mrs. Dewey for sentimental reasons. Last year, before she died, the telephone company persuaded her to drop it, and the listing became that of Mrs. Dewey.

The idiosyncrasy was not confined to Mrs. Dewey. One knows of other widows in the capital, whose husbands were not so famous, who somehow cannot stand the thought of changing the listing.

just what I was fixing to do." Friday night she didn't tell him about cutting off the water, knowing he would say he was doing it anyway. The next day the pipes burst.

A "good fellow" is a man who calls you an insulting name one moment and a minute later slaps you on the back and borrows your plug of tobacco.

You may not like it but you'll have to stand for it. Congress has passed a bill making the Star Spangled Banner the national anthem.

It has been suggested that an endorsement from Mahatma Gandhi might be a big stimulus to the sale of shorts.

It begins to look like I am going to have to enter this city office race. Someone has to run, you know. I haven't taken a big dish in politics, but I could be induced to work out a ticket and wade in. Some of my friends wanted to run me for governor last summer but they suggested it so late that I had already pledged myself to Jim Ferguson.

The American Automobile Association, after an "exhaustive survey," boasts that the expenditure for travel by Americans in 1930 was about five billion dollars and that the annual vacation bill for Americans is now practically equal to the value of our foreign trade. The A. A. estimates that vacation motor-tours in the United States cost some $3,200,000,000 with about $750,000,000 for vacation railroad travel, about $500,000,000 for American vacation travel in Europe and the Orient and about $325,000,000 by American motorists in Canada.

IDEAS that have made JOBS for thousands

Accidental Discovery of Way to Vulcanize Rubber Made Jobs for 80,000 U. S. Workers

(This is the second of a distinctive new series about ideas of industrial pioneers that have made jobs for thousands.)

By WILLIS THORNTON, NEA Service Writer.

Charles Goodyear was 39 years old, and he wasn't getting anywhere. He was discouraged, and no wonder.

Ten years of struggling to make useful things out of "gum elastic," that strange product of the sap of a tropical tree, had brought him nothing but disappointment and failure.

He reflected bitterly on Macintosh, the Scotchman, who had made rainproof coats of gum elastic and had had nothing but ridicule for his pains. The coats melted into a sticky mess in summer, and stiffened into board-like sheets when it turned cold.

His own bitter experiences came back. The time, three years before, when the government had given him a fat contract for mail sacks of his gum substance. How he had made them, and then one hot day had entered his factory to find the whole lot of them softening, disintegrating, and dropping from their handles. Ruin had followed, the panic of 1837 took his last cent, his family had almost become accustomed to literal starvation from which friends had to rescue him again and again.

But Goodyear had previously managed to pay his debts by selling everything he had, and he continued his experiments. The single idea, the idea that some mixture, some processing of rubber would make it useful, would not die.

Goodyear had often tried sulphur as a medium for mixing with his gummy messes, and on one particular evening in 1839 he was mixing such a mess in a great kettle, stirring it occasionally with a huge spoon. Carelessly he dropped a blob of the stuff on the hot surface of the stove. Goodyear had noted before that even slight heat served to melt rubber, so he had never tried to apply great heat to it. He watched it. But the substance, instead of liquefying as he expected, merely flattened out on the stove. He tried it. The elasticity had been retained, but it was no longer sticky.

Charles Goodyear trembled on the verge of a wild hope. Would the strange new compound before him stand the cold also? He nailed it up outside his door that night, and in the morning went breathlessly to inspect it. No change was apparent. It was still firm but elastic.

The idea had triumphed. And at least 80,000 men in the United States owe their jobs to the fact that Charles Goodyear would not let his idea die. Thousands more in the chemical and cotton industries, and the many trades with which the rubber business is interwoven, owe their opportunity to work to the new needs created by the discovery of vulcanization of rubber.

"Vulcanization," Goodyear called it, from Vulcan, the Roman god of fire. It means simply mixing pure rubber and sulphur or other compounds, and applying great heat. It was this process which made useful to man the sap of the rubber tree, which even the South American Indians had known, but had been unable to use except for rubber balls and the crudest kind of overshoes and garments.

Goodyear never grew rich from his epochal discovery. In fact, he went to a debtor's prison in France in 1855. Lawsuits and court trouble over the more than 60 patents that followed his original discovery clouded his later years.

But his idea goes on. Nearly 300 establishments in the country are engaged in the rubber industry, and about 100,000 jobs exist in direct manufacturing processes in the industry, perhaps 80 per cent of which are filled under present conditions. But you must add to this the thousands indirectly provided with work in allied lines, the cotton growers whose product is used so extensively in the building and other rubber goods production, the chemical workers whose products are used to mix with the rubber. No one can say, of course, how many

TODAY AT LEAST 80,000 AMERICAN WORKMEN OWE THEIR JOBS TO GOODYEAR'S DISCOVERY.

30,000 Workers Seek to Aid Business Through Research

By ALLARD SMITH Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

One of the most significant and hopeful developments of the past year of depression has been the great concentration of energies upon industrial research and experiment. Although many lines of business have greatly curtailed their production, they have redoubled their research activities.

Only in recent years has scientific research been applied to industry in America on a broad scale. In 1920 there were about 500 research laboratories in the country and now the number approximates 1500. One result is seen in the fact that patents applied for during the past year are reported the greatest on record.

Great depressions always stimulate the search for new products which will induce buying and for new and improved methods which will lower costs. Developments in these directions tend to help start up the clogged wheels of trade. They also help to lift living standards to new high levels when the depression clouds pass over.

The laboratory often gives birth to a whole new industry such as radio and the automobile. Some years ago the development of four-wheel brakes and balloon tires gave new life to the automobile industry. Industry needs some such stimulators in the electrical and mechanical fields owe their jobs to Charles Goodyear and the idea that wouldn't die.

NEXT: How the invention of the telephone led to work for thousands.

ulating influence now. Years ago this work was left to inventive geniuses working haphazardly. Now there are some 30,000 trained laboratory workers with an expenditure by corporations and the government of more than $200,000,000 annually. It is not possible, in view of these facts, to take a gloomy view of the outlook. There is every prospect that the material welfare of America will continue to advance in the years ahead, notwithstanding such temporary setbacks as in 1930.

What the NEW HUMIDOR PACK

*means to Camel Smokers

COMPARE a package of Camels with any other cigarette and note the difference in the technique of packing.

Note that Camels are completely enclosed in an outer transparent cover of moisture-proof cellophane and sealed air-tight at every point.

We call this outer shell the Humidor Pack. It differs from the ordinary cellophane pack and while it is egg-shell thin, it means a lot in terms of cigarette enjoyment.

It means, for instance, that evaporation is checkmated and that Salt Lake City can now have as good Camels as Winston-Salem.

While Camels are made of a blend of the choicest Turkish and mellowest domestic tobaccos, it is highly important, if you are to get full benefit of this quality, that these cigarettes come to you with their natural moisture content still intact.

The Humidor Pack insures that. It prevents the fine tobaccos of Camels from drying out and losing any of their delightful flavor.

Aside from cheap tobacco, two factors in a cigarette can mar the smoker's pleasure:

Fine particles of peppery dust if left in the tobacco by inefficient cleaning methods sting and irritate delicate throat membrane.

Dry tobacco, robbed of its natural moisture by scorching or by evaporation gives off a hot smoke that burns the throat with every inhalation.

We take every precaution against these factors here at Winston-Salem.

A special vacuum cleaning apparatus removes dust and now the new Humidor Pack prevents dryness.

Check the difference yourself

It is a very simple matter to check the difference between Humidor Packed Camels and other ordinary dry cigarettes.

First of all you can feel the difference as you roll the cigarettes between your fingers. Camels are full-bodied and pliable. A dry cigarette crumbles under pressure and sheds tobacco.

If you will hold a cigarette to each ear and roll them with your fingers you can actually hear the difference.

The real test of course is to smoke them. And here's where the new Humidor Pack proves a real blessing to the smoker.

As you inhale the cool, fragrant smoke from a Camel you get all the mildness and magic of the fine tobaccos of which it is blended.

But when you draw in the hot smoke from a dried cigarette see how flat and brackish it is by comparison and how harsh it is to your throat.

If you are a regular Camel smoker you have already noticed what proper condition of the cigarette means.

But if you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack you have a new adventure with Lady Nicotine in store.

Switch your affections for just one day, then go back to your old love tomorrow if you can.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY, Winston-Salem, N. C.

The Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition.

DAY-TIME DIAMONDS

Diamonds worn in the day-time are in excellent taste when they come in the form of white dots printed against a navy blue flat crepe background. This charming dress, with its flattering Vionnet neck and cuffs of white and an unusual squarish scalloped out to the sleeves, is worn with a navy blue felt hat, with a roll of turquoise blue velvet twisted smartly and posed across the front. Blue buttons fasten the cuffs. (From Mathews and Mason.)

Choice Cooks' Corner

Here's a delightful list for a children's party. Let them learn the art of becoming a charming hostess.

Children's parties are far more pleasing to them if the children are given the responsibility in planning and executing the plans. The art of being a charming, hostess or guest is not a gift or something easily attained—practice and correct examples are necessary. Parties are enjoyed by all children and furnish a fertile field for practical lessons.

Party refreshments may, in fact be good as well as good for you since some of the most appetizing of foods are also among the most healthful. Ingredients should always be of the best quality and adequate time and care should be given to the preparation.

Simple refreshments are especially to be considered for the small child's party, since digestive systems are easily upset at this age. Even the teen age person will find these simpler refreshments delicious and satisfying.

All small children enjoy tea parties. The mid-afternoon lunch may appear in this form and serve both purposes. Gelatin plain or with fruit and a cookie may be molded into many attractive forms that will be appealing to both younger and older children. A fruit sherbet or fresh dessert is also healthful and well liked.

Too often we hear criticism of food served to guests because it is too rich. This is not healthful for adults and is worse for children. Sponge cake is best for children. It is not rich with fat or sugar and has more eggs than the average cake.

is not rich with fat or sugar and has more eggs than the average cake.

Christian Science Church Studies 'Man'

The subject of the lesson-sermon was "Man" in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, March 8.

The golden text was from Psalms 37:23. "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord; and he delighteth in his way."

Included in the service was the following passage from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth"—Genesis 1:26.

The lesson-sermon also embraced the following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (pp. 258, 335): "God expresses in man the infinite idea forever developing itself, broadening and rising higher and higher from a boundless basis. . . . The human capacities are enlarged and perfected in proportion as humanity gains the true conception of man and God. . . . The spiritual man's consciousness and individuality are reflections of God."

It is said that the first American novel was published in 1789 and written by Sarah W. Morton under the title of "Power of Sympathy."

yet you take me shopping with you every day"

The great Paris designer has turned out another creation. A model of good taste! But good taste is no less desirable in a cigarette. What you taste in Chesterfield is milder and better tobaccos—nothing else—in a blend and "cross-blend" that cannot be copied! Just as there is only one Paris...there is only one Chesterfield.

They Satisfy —that's Why!

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

FLOWER SELLERS CAN STAY

LONDON. (UP).—The famous flower sellers of Piccadilly Circus aren't going to have to move, after all. So many protests were made that officials agreed to allow the women, who soon would have been forced to move from the place four of them have occupied for 40 years to remain.

According to a British designer of dirigibles huge passenger airships of the future will be covered with something in the nature of feathers or scales to reduce wind resistance.

HARRIS HOPES ROOKIES WITH LOUD BATS WILL AID HIS BENGALS

BUCKY NEEDS THE PUNCH ONCE DETROIT'S

The Detroit club of 1930 finished fifth in the American League standing. The team was fifth in hitting power and fifth in fielding averages, making it appear that the figures have spoken pretty well for themselves.

In our new training camp at Sacramento the work is pretty plainly cut out for us. From a squad of 26 men we must find players who can better both our attack and defense. I am pretty well satisfied with the pitchers; the staff is far above the major league average.

The Tigers were once noted for attack, but Cobb, Crawford, Veach and Hellmuth have gone, and we need somebody to make some base hits. Thus, at Sacramento, I will look over several rookies whose bats sounded pretty loud in the minors last season. One of these is Frank Doljack, who led the Middle Atlantic League with an average of .391 last year.

We also have the two Walker brothers, outfielders from Evansville, former athletes at the University of Mississippi. Gerald hit .378 and stole 50 bases in the Three-Eye last season, though he was out of it part of the time with a broken leg. Harvey batted .355 for the same team. Eckhardt and Shiver, from Beaumont, bring the total up to eight outfielders, including Funk, Stone and Johnson, last year's regulars, who may find the competition pretty stiff for their jobs.

Alexander at first, Gehringer at second and McManus at third look like fixtures, but there will be a lively battle for the job at short. Akers and Koenig probably will find Owens from Seattle and Holly from Beaumont very much in the running for the job, due to the fine averages they made in their respective leagues last year.

We have added the veterans Schang and Grabowski to our catching staff, and due to their experience they should be of considerable help.

I have faith in the pitchers. Victor Sorrell, George Uhle, Earl Whitehill, Whitlow Wyatt, Elton Hogsett and Waite Hoyt, I believe, are six dependable moundsmen. Hoyt recently expressed the belief he could win 15 games for the Tigers this year. He is taking the season's work with full seriousness and has been keeping himself in good condition. Hoyt wants to prove that he still is a top-notch, and he will be given every chance to show that he has the stuff which made him great in world series of only a few seasons back.

Hoyt is already at Richardson Springs, Calif., climbing the mountains to get into shape.

Sorrell is going to wear glasses this year, I understand, and this may add to his effectiveness as he has been bothered with his eyes for several seasons back. Wyatt informs me that his arm, which went lame last year just as he got into a win-

Especially acute is the need for children's clothing and shoes, according to the welfare association. Bed clothes are also needed.

If you have anything to donate this organization, telephone 106, the Texas Electric Service company, and a truck will be sent to your home for your bundle.

during the second week of May and end at Dayton on May 17 when the air division will come into being. On May 19 Chicago will be the objective of a demonstration staged by 300 planes, on the same day. Detroit will be visited by several hundred pursuit and observation craft. On May 20, the entire division will move to New York where it will remain until May 24 when it will proceed to Boston, Hartford, Springfield and other New England points. On May 26 the division returns to New York. The following day the planes will operate over Atlantic City, Trenton, Jersey City and Newark, while Philadelphia and Baltimore will be visited on May 29. The exercises will conclude at Washington on Memorial day.

On May 31, the division will be demobilized and the squadrons begin the return trek to their respective stations.

Statement Made

Assistant Secretary of War, F. Trubee Davison, in charge of army aviation, gave the following summary of the purpose of the demonstrations:

"It is simple to say that 670 planes of various types will take part in these field exercises and it will be an impressive spectacle to see them in the air, but the job of keeping that number of planes in tip-top flying trim, get them in the air and keep them there, presents intricate problems of supply, maintenance and command.

"For many weeks, General Foulis and his Provision Wing have been working on the problem of providing these airplanes en route with oil, gas and other necessary supplies. The amount of gas and oil necessary to serve the units en route had to be determined and arranged for.

"When a large number of planes are gathered into one unit problems begin to pile up—problems that can only be solved through practical tests. A few of the questions which these exercises are designed to provide the answer to follow:

"1. Are our present tables of organization and equipment and our supply of logistic schedules adequate?

"2. How many, and what, spare parts must be laid down at various airdromes to insure proper maintenance this year?

"Last year at the start everything went wrong. The Tigers lost games in every way known to baseball. I am hoping we get away this year on the right foot and am confident the team will give a better account of itself in 1931.

OIL PRORATION BATTLE WAGED IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Mar. 9 (UP).—A proration battle that may determine the future of the oil curb in all principal oil producing states is being waged in Oklahoma.

Investigations into the motives and methods of proration supplement the fight on the Jones bill, introduced in the Legislature, which would virtually strip the corporation commission of its authority to regulate crude production.

Opponents of the Jones bill claim that its passage would ultimately result in the breakdown of proration in all other states.

Such a condition, they have told a Legislative Committee, would ruin the oil industry.

Bill's Passage Imperative Proponents contend that the bill's passage is imperative to save the small independent producer from bankruptcy, claiming the oil proration regulations amount to a "price fixing" scheme, instead of a conservative program.

Those who claim proration should be lifted have made unsuccessful fights before the corporation commission, the state supreme court and the federal district court. They then turned their attention to boosting for the Jones bill. The Oklahoma Oil association was formed to fight the curb. It is headed by E. B. Howard, former congressman, who believes an oil tariff and not proration is the solution to oil problems.

Sinclair Against Bill Harry Sinclair, chairman of the board of directors of the Sinclair Oil corporation, has announced his opposition to the Oklahoma proration law.

An investigation was ordered into allegations certain companies are allowed to flow their wells open in the large Oklahoma City field. The Legislative Committee reported proration regulations were being violated and that some royalty owners were not receiving the proper amount of money.

A request has been made that if proration is to be continued Gov. W. H. Murray be allowed to name proration umpires. Present umpires are named by the corporation commission on the recommendation of oil companies that petition for the oil curb regulations.

Gov. Murray has remained silent in the controversy except to say he believes if there is to be an oil curb principal oil producing states should adopt a uniform proration plan.

HOBBS OFFICERS BREAK ALLEGED RUSTLING GANG

Diligent work on the part of a trio of Hobbs officers resulted in the breaking up of a ring of petty cattle thieves who had been suspected of operating in this vicinity for the past six months, Saturday week, when Deputies Jack Seay, Edd Carr and Johnnie Fields, acting upon advice from a party who had been watching the suspected men for several weeks, arrested Jack L. Norman, a Mr. and Mrs. Stoker, and W. C. Hardeman, and Hardeman's son, according to the Hobbs News.

Each of the alleged thieves lived in Hobbs. W. C. Hardeman and his son lived over in the east part of town, where they were apprehended, and the other members of the gang lived in the rear of a meat market in the west part of Hobbs. After searching six houses members of the gang were supposed to have occupied recently, enough evidence derogatory to the alibis offered by the five was found by the officers to warrant their arrest. Beef without the seal denoting government inspection was found in three of the houses, and the men were at once brought to the city jail.

Deputy Seay stated that the men had been suspected of rustling operations for a period extending over six months. However, no evidence which could lead to a charge being filed against them had been uncovered until recently, when thieves growing bolder, stole a calf from a ranch pasture north of town, which was in charge of Steve Taylor, an old-timer in Lea county. Taylor reported the loss, and coupled with other facts already known to the officers, it led to the search and discovery of the stolen meat.

NORTHS LEAD AS 212 ATTEND CLASS

Final count showed 212 men at the rapidly growing class meeting each Sunday morning at 9:45 in Hotel Scharbauer. A preliminary check showed 102 men on the South side and 102 on the north, but 8 men came in after this first count.

All kinds of men were there, one came in a wheel chair, another carried his broken arm in a sling, two came on crutches, one was nearly barefoot, they came in boots, sweaters, work clothes, the rich and the poor mingled together. One man said the reason he liked the class was because he could do as he pleased. No women attend. There is no restraint. It's just a bunch of folks having good fellowship, singing old songs, hearing special features such as the colored quartet, and hearing a brief explanation of a Bible lesson.

The North side still leads the South side by seven men. It was pointed out by Captains Cotter Hiett and James S. Noland that these sides in the class had no reference to where a man lived in town. Those who live on the south side of Midland can join the North side of the class, and those on the north side of Midland can go on the South side. The losing side must do the work at the barbecue set for the middle of April. The Chevrolet boys beat the Buicks Sunday.

The colored quartet arranged by Harry L. Haight as a South side attraction was cheered lustily. The Hotel Scharbauer bell boys who sang were: Earl Hudson, A. L. Hudson, A. L. Brown, Ernest Powell, and Mildard Askey.

67,318 VEHICLES Out in February

February production of the Chevrolet Motor company was 67,318 cars and trucks, according to W. S. Knudsen, president. While the total is 3,448 under that of January when 70,766 were produced, daily output was higher in February, with its three fewer working days, than in the previous month.

Final figures on Chevrolet February production show an increase of 2,678 over preliminary reports and indicate that schedules originally set for the month were followed.

March schedules, according to President Knudsen, have been placed at 78,000 and confidence is expressed that the figure will be surpassed. Current factory employment of Chevrolet is approximately 34,500 men.

MURPHY HONORED BY VISIT OF ROTARIANS

"The Way to the Greatest Life" was the well chosen subject of a sermon delivered by the Rev. Thomas D. Murphy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning on being visited by members of the Midland Rotary club and their wives. Nearly all members of the club were present.

In view of the fact that the group filled an entire section of the church, the pastor directed many of his remarks to factors of Rotary ethics and objects as applied to scriptural teachings.

The sermon pointed the error of judging greatness of lives upon bases of wealth of political power, showing instead that great lives are determined by the service they render and by adherence to teachings of Christ.

Mrs. Emily Kannon played piano numbers at the service and Mrs. Leon Goodman gave a vocal solo.

SHIP BELIEVED LOST NEAR LASHED COAST

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., March 9. (UP).—A large trawler was believed to be foudered off this port last night in a terrific storm when wreckage was washed ashore this morning.

Surfman Norman O'Brien of the Merrimack river coast guard station sighted a fishing barge apparently near the bar at the entrance of the Merrimack river last night.

Heavy seas, the worst in many years, made it impossible to launch a boat to go to the ship's rescue.

LEGG ANNOUNCES A UNIQUE DISPLAY

The Texas Electric Service company has one of the most unique and interesting exhibits at the Fort Worth Fat Stock show. A. S. Legg, manager of the company here declared Monday. The display consists of a panorama of West Texas in miniature showing model cities and towns, farms, industries and oil wells scattered over the landscape.

In another section of the electric company display will be a demonstration of the Theremin, a recent-invented electrical musical instrument which is played merely by waving the hands in the air above metal rods. Four performances of this apparatus will be held each day, at 2:30, 4:30, 7 and 8 o'clock.

SEES HUGE PLANES

BRIDGEPORT, Conn.—The future will see huge passenger planes carrying 1000 persons "on regular trans-Atlantic commercial flights, according to a prediction of Igor Sikorsky, noted aviation engineer. He further predicts that these planes will climb to a height of 50 miles and travel at a speed of from 600 to 800 miles an hour.

OIL PLANE LANDS

A Continental Oil company plane was landed at Sloan field this afternoon for a brief stop before resuming a trip from Pecos City to Pecos. The pilot was A. J. Freese and three passengers were on board.
