Two Die Today as Result Double Shooting Early Sunday

ONE DEAD, ANOTHER ILL FROM AUTO'S EXHAUST FUMES

EN ROUTE FROM HOBBS TO MIDLAND

Texas Music Co. Employees Victims Of Deadly Gas

John Schultz, 25 or 30 years old, is dead and Kinloch Cole, about 19, is seriously ill, information received from Andrews this afternoon said, as result of being overcome by carbon monoxide gas when their automobile was stalled in the sand last night. They were found today by motorists en route to Hobbs, the report said.

Both were employed by the Texas Music company, Schultz at the Hobbs branch of the store and Cole at the Midland house.

It was not known when they left Hobbs, but it was presumed that they left there late Sunday and that when the car became stalled in the sand they allowed the motor to run to keep them warm, death from the carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust resulting.

Details were lacking as to care of the two after they were found.

Remuneration to Farmers Is Asked

Work already done by the Midland chamber of commerce in cooperation with other chambers to obtain pink boll worm fumigation costs to protect rest of Texas. Pink boll worm can never harm this area. Every ethical and moral principle entitles farmers to remuneration. Justice demands appropriation to reimburse farmers who are protecting Texas cotton, not their own cotton.

Letters, telegrams, personal representation at four meetings in Odessa, Dallas and Austin, together with numerous wires and letters, summarize work which has not yet borne results. Penrose Metcalf, Carl Rountree and Lee Satterwhite have been especially active in seeking remuneration for farmers in the affected counties.

661 at Church Sunday Morning

Six hundred and sixty-one at preaching services Sunday morning was reported by ministers of five churches. Several churches did not turn in a report.

Those reported night crowds of 410, and four of these had Sunday school attendance of 851.

The following figures represent an increase over the Sunday previous. Sunday marked the fourth Sabbath in the "Come to Church campaign," which sets a goal of "half the population in church by Easter Sunday."

Reports as turned in by churches: First Methodist church: Sunday school, 268; morning service, 255; evening service, 80.

First Baptist church: Sunday school, 392; morning service, 155; evening service, 141.

First Christian church: Sunday school, 124; morning service, 98; evening service, 68.

Presbyterian church: Sunday school, 67; morning service, 53; evening service, 21.

Pentecostal Holiness church: morning service, 100; evening service, 280.

Definite purpose of the meeting had not been learned here this morning, but a telegram was received Saturday calling the session for 2 o'clock at the Brandon hotel, Pecos, with the advice that important issues faced the association following the signing of the Small land bill late Friday by Governor Sterling.

W. F. Scarborough is Midland county chairman of the association but was unable to attend the meeting because of previous plans to attend the cattlemen's convention at Corpus Christi.

No one else was seriously injured. All were slightly bruised and the cars badly damaged.

Saturday Was a Good Business Day

Business men of Midland reported improved business Saturday. One dry goods store had the biggest business of any day this year. Another dry goods store ran far ahead of any Saturday in many months.

The merchants ascribed at least part of the renewed business to the trade expansion campaign and predated day activities. Every line of business in Midland is represented in the trades day activities. Midland people are reminded that when they buy drugs, dry goods, groceries, hardware, furniture, toilet preparations, automobiles, garage work, printing, gasoline, in fact anything from soda water to tractors, they may take advantage of trades day.

Window cards are available to all merchants who are participating in the trades day events.

DR. J. B. YEAGER DIES ON SUNDAY; WAS WELL KNOWN

One of Midland's best loved characters has passed on.

Dr. J. B. Yeager, retired physician who has been making his home here with his son, W. A. Yeager, manager of the Midland office of the Prairie Oil & Gas company, will not see his 77th birthday. He had often mentioned that date, "because it will mean I have been here another year," as he explained.

Dr. Yeager died suddenly of heart disease Sunday afternoon, about

MEETING POSTPONED

Out of courtesy to W. A. Yeager, son of Dr. Yeager, who is a director of the chamber of commerce, the regular meeting of the chamber announced for tonight will be postponed, it was announced early this afternoon.

3:30. He died easily and knew little suffering. Funeral services were to be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Presbyterian church. Burial will be made at Enid, Okla., at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mrs. Yeager was buried there. The body will be shipped by the Barrow mortuary tonight on the 10:20 train to the east.

Dr. Yeager was born near Rochesport, Mo., Sept. 2, 1854. He was graduated in 1880 from the Iowa Medical college. He practiced medicine in Memphis, Mo., until 1923, when he moved to Pawhuska, Okla., thence to Enid. When Mrs. Yeager died, he came to Midland, where from Jan. 1, 1927, he made his home with his son until his death.

W. A. Yeager is the only child to survive. A brother, Marion Yeager, 92, lives at Columbia, Mo.

Dr. Yeager was known to possibly more Midland people than any man of his age here. He was cheerful, always smiling, and maintained his "visit rounds," as he termed them, up to the week of his death. Certain business establishments knew when to expect him and he stayed only long enough to learn if his friends were well, to speculate concerning the weather and to tell something new he had seen his young grandson do or say.

"You know, I lived seventy-six years for that grandson," he had a habit of saying. The boy was the pride of his existence and he never tired of talking about him.

Dr. Yeager came to town almost every day, explaining that the exercise was good for him. He made a certain round in his visiting. At some places he stayed longer each time than others. At the Petroleum pharmacy he found much enjoyment telling the young soda dispensers he would be back soon to chase them behind counters with his cane. He would drink a cup of coffee and, if the wind was blowing, one or two of the clerks would support him across the street to the Prairie oil office.

At other establishments he would tell of how young he felt and how much older everyone looked than he.

At the newspaper office he might be expected to visit every week, bringing papers from Missouri with him, and talking about "standing" invitation of the newspaper force (See DR. YEAGER page 4)

In "Love Market" Probe

These two girls, Alice Blake and Helen Livingston, are held in technical custody in Los Angeles while investigation is made of alleged participation of Alexander Pantages in the "love market" said to have been maintained to provide gay young companions for wealthy men. Pantages, wealthy theater proprietor, is still facing final settlement of charges filed against him by Eunice Pringle, a dancer.

Wilbur Is Asked for a Full Hearing of Oil States

AUSTIN, March 16. (UP).—Representative Bailey Hardy of Breckenridge, chairman of the house committee on oil, gas and mining, today sent a letter to Governor Sterling declining to introduce the governor's conservation commission bill.

Hardy said he objected to the bill because he opposed creation of new commissions and the bill. No action was taken in the house. The governor sent Hardy a draft of the bill this morning.

In the senate, however, Senators Walter Woodul of Houston and Walter Woodward of Coleman offered the bill to create the commission. It was sent to the state affairs committee.

Urges a Commission

AUSTIN, March 16. (UP).—Governor Sterling took steps today to help the oil industry. He submitted to the legislature as an emergency measure for the creation of an oil and gas conservation commission, accompanying his message with submission of a bill for that purpose.

The creation of a commission is one of the recommendations of the oil states advisory committee after a meeting March 9 in Texarkana.

"Full Hearing" Asked

WASHINGTON, March 16. (UP).—Secretary of Interior Wilbur was asked today to grant "full hearing" to the conference representing the oil states advisory committee.

The request was contained in a telegram from Cleo Murray, chairman of the committee.

The purpose of the meeting, which is to be held in Washington March 18, is to "develop plans to stabilize the petroleum industry."

PUBLIC EDUCATION BY BRUCE CATTON

The worst thing about trying to appraise the status of common school education in the United States today is the fact that one gets so many different verdicts from which to choose.

On one hand, it is asserted that the education that is given children today is immeasurably better than that which was given half a century ago, and on the other hand there are people who declare that modern educational methods have lost themselves in a maze of technicalities, so that the pupil emerges with a narrow horizon and a poorly-trained mind.

In the current issue of World's Work magazine, for instance, a teacher calls for a simplification of the public school program. Experts in the field of education, she asserts, have learned teaching everywhere except in the classroom. They know nothing of children from first-hand observation—and try to study them through charts, curves, graphs and tests. They bedevil the teachers with questionnaires and extract profundities from the tabulations thereof. They then write new text-books and put them into the schools—and the hapless child is the goat.

Undoubtedly, there is ground for complaint in this respect. Faddists and theorists do settle on the public school system very often—so that one wonders, now and then, if the little red schoolhouse of the old days did not, after all, train its pupils just as well as they are trained today, if not better.

On the heels of this, however, comes Dr. C. V. Good, professor of education in the Teachers College of the University of Cincinnati, to point out the genuine advances that have been made in elementary education.

"The chief qualifications of the schoolmaster of 100 years ago," he points out, "were to manage the big boys and to rule the school with an iron hand. Two of the favorite pedagogical maxims of the time were: 'Spare the rod and spoil the child,' and 'A boy has a back; when you hit it, he understands.'"

In addition, Dr. Good points out that much of the information contained in the old text-books was actually untrue. Geography and history, in particular, were so handled as to give the child a faulty picture of the world in which it lived. Furthermore, no effort was made to enlist a child's interest or stir his curiosity.

Undeniably, enormous advances have been made in these respects. In the light of Dr. Good's remarks it is impossible to deny that the modern school is leagues ahead of its predecessor.

But we have, nevertheless, two verdicts. Which is right? Or, if neither is entirely correct—which attitude comes the closer to expressing the truth of the matter?

AFRICA AND CIVILIZATION

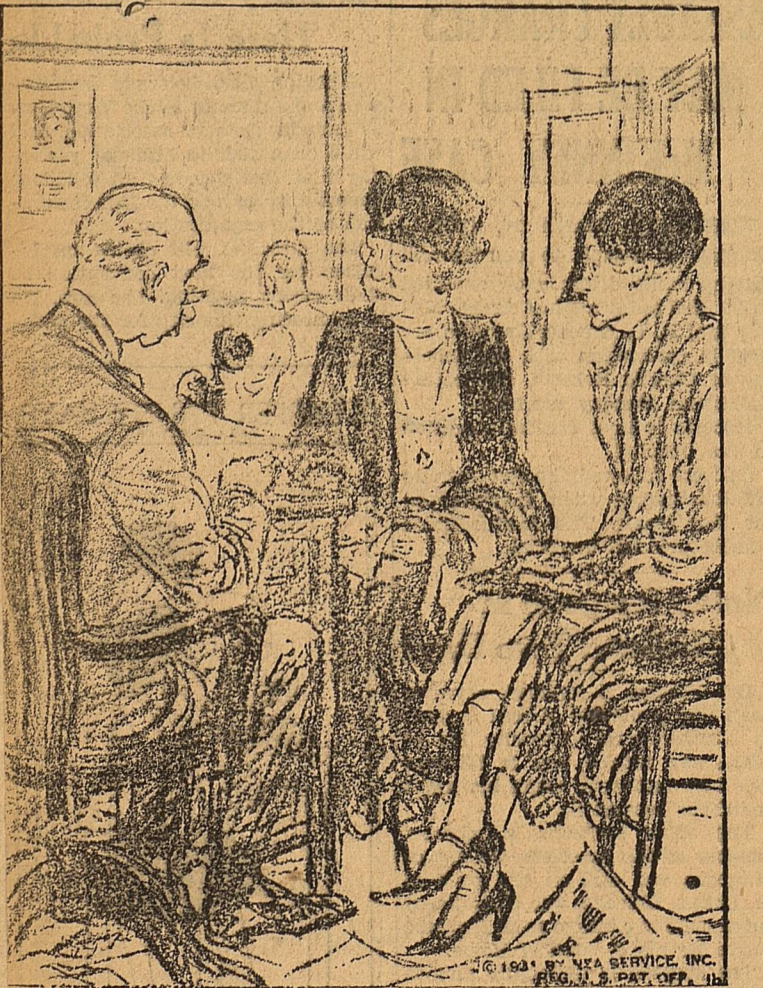

A representative of the Union of South Africa has arrived in this country to spread the word that Africa is no longer a wild continent but that it is quite as civilized, quite as modern as Europe or the United States. He quotes figures on production of iron and steel and boasts that symphony orchestras are taking the place of the beating drums of savage natives.

No doubt this is all true. Men who have visited the "dark continent" in the interest of science during the past 10 years have repeatedly urged the establishment of sanctuaries to preserve species or animal life that are fast disappearing. Africa is becoming civilized.

All this is thoroughly disheartening to one who likes to believe that somewhere in far-off places real adventure still exists. And what of future generations of small boys? Already most youngsters have discovered that cowboys can be found only in rodeos or wild west troupes; that Indian reservations are groups of farm houses with here and there a filling station or soft drink stand. As for pirates—they disappeared a hundred years ago.

Now there is to be no Africa, no impenetrable jungles made blood-curdling by the roar of lions, the thunder of herds of elephants and blazing campfires waiting for cannibals to toast their victims. Of course, there is still the circus, but the lure of the "Big Top" was never the same as that of the jungles. Africa modern? Africa civilized? Yes, it is all most disheartening.

Look Here, Do Americans Pay Big Income Tax?

Infographic comparing income tax in U.S.A., Britain, and Germany. Includes columns for Personal Exemption, Normal Tax, and Surtaxes for each country.

Americans who make out their income tax returns to an accompaniment of groans and wails about the high cost of government, literally 'ain't seen nothin' yet.' Just consider the tax burdens of the English or the Germans. An Englishman doesn't have to have much of an income to be paying 22-1/2 per cent of it in income tax, and this rate quickly amounts to 50 per cent among the wealthier. To put it concretely, a married man with an income of $6690 would pay to the British government $845, which is at least 15 times as much as he would pay in the United States.

The Town Quack

Reserves the right to quack about everything without taking a stand on anything.

There has been a lot of talk around here about the need of a veterinary to look after Midland cows, dogs and other animals. The city health department has been using the good services of Dr. Wolfe at Big Spring to examine milk cows. We have a veterinary right in our office and it's gradually getting out on him. Baxley recently went to the northeast part of the county and inserted some salt in a cow's tail. Later, he was called into consultation on a pet dog. I am not authorized to run any advertising for him, but in case anybody needs a horse doctor—see Baxley. Incidentally, he is an authority on horticulture. I know what you are thinking, and so am I—What's he doing working on a newspaper?

I know what I'll do to get even when Odessa gets the paved road built, connecting everything from McCamey to Amarillo. I'll refer to Odessa as a cross-roads town. Talk about a fellow who knows his letter "G", a member of the British Parliament made this statement, "The Socialist government has neither the guts to govern nor the grace to get out."

There's one comforting feature about the drop in eggs. Had the eggs been rotten, we would have thought it was an earthquake. And then what?

A United Press story from Austin says, "Spooning Center to Become Rock Bed." It seems that a grassy rendezvous along a well known creek will be covered with rock and lighted with electric lights. That's a thought for Clarence Scharbauer in handling his "Popular" grove.

A member of the local Legion post went through the war without a scratch but he has been wearing woolen underwear all this winter.

In the old days of Saint Louis or Milwaukee society, members of the socially elite may have been referred to as the beaige.

IDEAS that have made JOBS for thousands

How Telephone Revolutionized Business and Created Jobs for Half Million U. S. Workers

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of stories showing how ideas have built new industries that have provided jobs for thousands of workers.

By WILLIS THORNTON, NEA Service Writer.

Alexander Graham Bell had studied the human voice, and became convinced that electric wires could be made to carry its vibrations. And because he relentlessly ran this idea to earth, men talk to one another from San Francisco to New York as though they were in adjoining rooms, today 20,000,000 telephones minister to the convenience of the American people and nearly 500,000 men and women have steady jobs in a field that did not exist a little over a half century ago.

Bell's great contribution to human progress was made to recently that he himself died only nine years ago. The venerable old Scot was 76, but had kept up his interest in invention until the end, dabbling in the field of flying. The 8000 patents which had piled up on top of his original one had dulled his interest in the field, and he was branching out into another.

Bell was different from many inventors and great men of all kinds in this respect: his genius did not spring from nowhere, a flower without perceptible root in immediate ancestry.

His grandfather, Alexander Bell of London, was an elocutionist and corrector of defective utterance, a student of the mechanics of speech. His father, Alexander Melville Bell, was also a student of linguistics, and inventor of a system of putting sounds down on paper by a set of signs. The excellent general education and specific training in speech and its mechanics given to young Bell by both these men were directly responsible for his interest in speech and its transmission. After a studious youth in Edinburgh, Scotland, where he was born, he, too, became a teacher of those whose speech was defective.

But two brothers died of tuberculosis, and the Bells decided to remove to America, and in 1870 settled in Ontario. Then young Bell went to Boston University as a lecturer on vocal psychology. Already he was interested in the newly-invented telegraphy, and his whole training conspired to bring forth his idea: the transmission of speech over electrified wires.

comparatively ignorant of electricity, but that it was his knowledge of the principles of speech which led him to dare experiments which electricians would have thought ridiculous.

Thomas A. Watson was working with Bell through most of the three years of disheartening work that followed the hatching of the idea. They worked in spare time, mostly at night. One March night in 1876, Watson, who was working on his instrument in another room from Bell, was startled to hear Bell's voice say, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you." It was the first human voice to be conducted over a wire.

Bell got his patent, and prepared to exhibit his contrivance at the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition. The judges had promised to give it a trial, but they showed so little interest in it that it began to appear that it might not even get a chance for recognition. Just then the Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil, who had previously heard Bell lecture on the subject of his telephone, came by. Bell quickly arranged a demonstration for him. Dom Pedro placed the receiver to his ear.

"My God, it talks!" he cried. Quickly enough, then the judges gave the invention a hearing, and Bell was "made." He founded the company which now bears his name, and which employs today 399,000 people. Nearly 300,000 people are stockholders in A. T. & T. or Bell System.

IDEAS FOR SPRING GARDENING

Editor's Note: Garden produce furnishes many of the essentials for a health diet. With the warmer spring days many housewives enjoying putting their efforts on a successful spring garden. Notes taken from the county demonstration offices will be published in this column for Midland's housewives. Kinds of vegetables, the time to plant and how to plant will be stressed.

Asparagus is easy to grow and care for, yet few home gardeners ever attempt to grow it. In either late fall or early spring place one year old roots 15 to 24 inches apart in rows that are 3 feet apart. The roots are put in a trench one foot deep and as the plants start to grow soil is pulled in around the young shoots until the furrow is completely leveled off.

Asparagus needs lots of plant food which can be furnished by plowing manure into the furrows and by a heavy application (2 to 4 pounds per 25 feet of row) of a 15-5-5 fertilizer. Applications should be repeated every year.

Shoots should not be cut at all during the first growing season and for only three or four weeks the second year, but in the third season they may be cut for a period of 10 weeks or more. Cut shoots just below the surface of the ground, cutting off all the shoots every day or every other day during the harvest season to force out new ones. At the end of the season the tops should not be cut off until they have died in the fall and then all tops should be cut and disced under, using them as green manure.

Beets are usually planted just as soon as the ground is dry and warm enough in the spring in rows spaced 18 to 24 inches apart. Care should be taken not to plant seed too thick as what looks like one seed is usually two or three sticking together. To get even shaped beets it is best to thin the young plants to stand 2 inches apart in the row. Crosby Egyptian and Detroit Dark Red are good varieties of which the former is the earlier.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Substance" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, March 15.

Proverbs 3:9 furnished the golden text: "Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thing increase." The lesson-sermon included the following passage from the Bible: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen"—Hebrews 11:1.

The service also embraced the following citation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. Truth, Life, and Love are substance, as the Scriptures use this word in Hebrews: 'The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.' Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance" (page 486).

MACK RELIES ON GROVES, EARNSHAW FOR PENNANT

CONNIE CONFESSES NEED FOR NEW BOLSTERING

By WILLIAM BRAUCHER, NEA Service Sports Editor.

PORT MYERS, Fla., March 16.—"If something should happen to Groves or Earnshaw? That would be just too bad!"

The words were Connie Mack's and he uttered them with a vehemence that broke through his usual calm poise with a surprising jolt.

In fact, Mr. Mack almost glared when he spoke, and a glare on the patiently polite face of Mr. Mack is about as common as a sunstroke in Siberia.

We have been discussing the Athletics' chances to win a third straight world championship, and through Connie Mack still retains ideals that he cherished as a youth something like half a century ago.

Carefully, almost painfully, he had gone over the roster of his team with me, conducting a careful inventory of his baseball assists as a Scotch grocery who has misplaced a can of beans.

We had been talking of luck and injuries and offhand I asked him if he thought the Athletics could go any place without Groves or Earnshaw, except perhaps to a good movie.

"If something should happen to Groves or Earnshaw? Well, that would be just too bad!"

Mr. Mack is not a man who goes around blindfolded. He is aware that he has only six pitchers who can be depended upon as regulars.

As a result, every other person you meet in Fort Myers this spring would probably admit under pressure that he was a pitcher.

The six regulars are Earnshaw, Groves, Walberg, Rommel, Shores and Mahaffey, and it has been generally admitted that three or four of these pitchers are pretty regular at that.

Noticing the size of the squad, which seemed unusually large for the Athletics, I asked Mr. Mack if he happened to be going in for experimenting in a big way this year.

"Not much experimenting," was his reply, "except for the pitchers.

At a few positions, our men had had years last year. Haas and Miller did not do so well as I think they will this year.

"With Todt, Williams, McNair and Higgins we have a pretty good re-

Senator Woodul Leads in Bills

AUSTIN, March 16. (UP).—Not all Texas senators have the same desire to foster legislation, else the needs of their constituents differ, if the record of number of bills introduced by senators at this session of the Texas legislature is any criterion.

Of the 500-odd bills, Senator Tom De Berry of Bogota has offered the fewest number—one. It provides for working together of the state service officer of the American legion and the adjutant general.

Senator De Berry's most distant rival is Senator Walter Woodward, from Comman, has offered 32 measures, many of them for reforms in legal procedure sought by the Texas Civil Judicial council.

The people back home may ascertain how active their senators have been in introducing the bills now pending, from this compilation: Senator T. J. Holbrook, Galveston, has offered 35 measures. Included in the number are a public utilities commission measure and a truck regulatory bill.

Senator W. A. Williamson, San Antonio, has offered 30 bills; Senator George Purl, Dallas, has offered only 23. Several of them deal with changes in insurance laws.

Other senators offering 23 bills so far are W. R. Cousins, Beaumont; Margie Neal, Carthage, and John W. Hornsby, Austin.

Offerings of other senators number: Beck, 22; Berkley 14; Cunningham 7, (of which the drought relief measure is regarded as most important); Gainer 5; Greer 18; Hardin 7; Hopkins 6; Loy 5; Martin 17; Moore 22; O'Neal 20; Parr 24; Parrish 26; Patton 14; Poage 9; Pollard 10; Rawlins 12; Russak 18; Small 20; Stevens 15; Thomason 15.

Representatives of Jackson Chevrolet, Inc., who spent the week end in El Paso attending the sales meeting for this territory, returned to Midland late Sunday.

In the party were H. S. Lacey, manager of the concern, Frank Shields, C. R. Cottrell, M. R. Jackson, J. P. Rountree, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hawkins, Frank Adams and C. C. Hiett.

serve infield. Bob Johnson and Jim More are good outfield substitutes. One of the other recruits may show promise. Palmitano from Portland, and Heving, who came from the Red Sox with Todt, can help Cochran out with the catching.

"There will not be much experimenting, except for pitchers."

We talked over a few of the great pitchers of other years. Would Mr. Mack like to have Chief Bender or Rube Waddell, in his prime, this year?

Mr. Mack agreed sadly that he would.

But his conclusion carried a note of optimism based upon a baseball experience of 19 years ago.

"I didn't think they could beat my ball team of 1912," he said. "It seemed to me the best team I ever saw. We had won the world championship in 1910 and 1911 and I looked forward to 1912 with a whole lot of confidence."

"But they beat that team. Jake Stahl's Boston team won the pennant and the series that year."

"The very next year we won the world champion again, despite the fact that I had lost Jack Coombs, one of the best pitchers."

"Oh, well, maybe pitchers are not so important, after all," I said. But his quick reply was:

"Oh, yes, they are!"

Golfers Qualify During This Week

Qualifying rounds in the golf tournament at country club will take in only 18 holes instead of 36, as planned, Ellis Cowden, chairman of the sports-greens committee, said today. The wet weather of Sunday was blamed.

"Golfers can qualify any day this week or next Sunday," Cowden said. "The lowest eight will be placed on top of the ladder and matched games will follow until the best eight men have been decided for representing Midland country club in the West Texas Golf League."

Cowden said it had been decided to take in two other clubs in the league, Lamesa and Snyder, making the league six-cornered. A meeting in Big Spring next Sunday will result in election of officers and drafting of by-laws and constitution.

"Incidentally, in the qualifying rounds, golfers may improve their lie in the fairway, but may not use ready tees," Cowden said.

Texas Electric Wins at Tennis

Texas Electric's tennis doubles and singles teams won matches Sunday afternoon from Midland clinic-hospital.

In the singles, Stubbeman won over Brown, 6-2 and 6-3. Ferguson won from Godbey, 6-1 and 6-3.

Godbey advocates forming a tennis league for play in the afternoons and evenings at his court on West Wall street. He intends ultimately to light the court for night play.

Anyone wishing to enter clubs in a tennis league is asked to call Godbey at the clinic-hospital building.

156 Attend Men's Class Sunday

Bad weather made only a slight dent in attendance Sunday at the big class of men meeting each Sunday at Hotel Scharbauer. There were 156 men present, and the South side won for the day, having two more men than the North side. This leaves the South side only 5 men behind in the barbecue contest.

The men Sunday again sang their old favorites and had a good time mingling with their friends. Next Sunday will be business house day. Every business house that has 100 per cent of its employes present, no matter if there is only one employe, will be given a cheer and a rating of 100 per cent.
