LARGE TERRITORY COVERED BY RAINS LAST NIGHT, TODAY

QUARTER INCH HERE REGISTERED

Outlying Territory Reports Rains Are General

Almost a quarter-inch of rain fell in Midland last night and this morning, exactly .12 inch being precipitated last night and the same amount this morning, a 1:30 report from Buster Howard, weather observer, showed. Rain continued falling at press time.

A quarter-inch rain fell on the ranch of Bum Cowden west of here during the night, and general rains on all ranges near Midland appeared to have fallen.

Throughout the past week the weather has seen a cold spell spread over most of this weather district, with occasional showers and rains over local areas. Only one station of the Amarillo district failed to report moisture. Range conditions are excellent as fresh grass is coming out.

Rains reported from over the area included a half inch at Fort Stockton, rain last night and this morning at Pecos, a big rain at Marfa, rain this morning at Big Spring, a good rain at Wink, Kermit and McCombe.

Maximum temperature reported here today was 58 degrees, with minimum of 48.

Masonic Band to Be Here June 2

Entertainment by the Masonic Home band of Arlington will be given at Midland June 2, according to a letter from Wilbur Keith, Masonic secretary, to Harry Tolbert of Midland. Details will be announced at an early date.

Ten Centuries Of Rule Ended

AIMAR—The founder of the House of Bourbon, whose last ruler, Alfonso XIII, has been driven from his throne by a wave of democracy. Aimar went to the Holy Land as a bishop with the Crusaders, but soon became a military leader.

HENRY IV—First of the Bourbon kings of France, who brought order out of chaos, but died at the hands of an assassin.

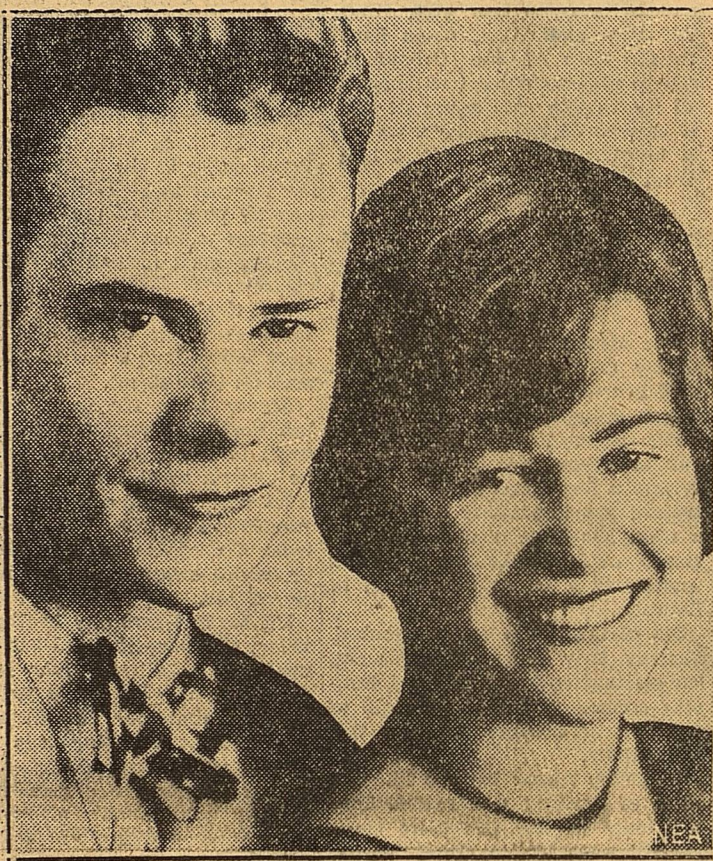

MARIE ANTOINETTE—She typified the gay frivolity of a tyrannical royalty, blind to the rumblings of democracy, and she died dry-eyed and haughtily to the last on the guillotine.

PHILIP V—First Bourbon king of Spain, who was a great ruler while his wife lived, but a stupid one under his second wife. The story of Manuel Godoy, a master of court intrigue.

ALFONSO XIII, born a king as the posthumous son of Alfonso XII who came to the throne when the stupid but gay Isabella II abdicated. These are some of the outstanding figures in the sweep of history which has been guided for centuries by Europe's Bourbons, the famous royal family which now has only a private citizen—Spain's overthrown Alfonso XIII—as its head.

You will find these intensely interesting stories in Milton Bronner's exclusive series on "Famous Bourbons of Ten Centuries" on today's editorial page.

"Kidnaped" Heiress-Bride Found

The search over many states for the former Miss Helen Fisher, right, St. Paul, Minn., heiress, ended when she wrote a note on a paper towel which was found in a gasoline wash room and which reached the hands of authorities at Madison, Wis. Officials held her husband, Harry Drill, left, and two other men, and asked them to explain the girl's story that she was dragged into an auto in New York. The couple were wed in Iowa two years ago, the marriage was annulled, they re-wed and later separated.

Abilene Boy Tries to Commit Suicide in Jail

ABILENE, April 23. (UP).—Carl C. Strain, 19, awaiting transfer to the Chillicothe, Ohio reformatory, last night escaped from the West Texas sanitarium here where he was believed to be dying from ground glass which he swallowed in a suicide attempt. The youth went three miles and was recaptured. He had made three attempts to commit suicide. Fellow prisoners found his twice grinding glass lamp chimney between his teeth. Monday, shortly after he had received a two-year reformatory sentence in federal court here slashed both arms with a safety razor blade but the injuries were minor. In the court trial, Strain pleaded guilty to a charge of impersonating a United States officer to obtain money.

VARSITY ATHLETE IS BURIED TODAY; HURT BY BULLET

CENTERPOINT, April 23. (UP).—Nona Rees, former Texas university athlete, will be buried here today. Detectives said they believed Rees was fatally injured when a small rifle fell from a shelf in a sporting goods store of which he was a salesman in San Antonio.

BLOOD HOUNDS BROUGHT

Body Found With 21 Stab Wounds; a Maniac Sought

SAN ANTONIO, April 23. (UP).—A man believed to be the slayer of Merle Springer, 11, whose body was found last night in a ditch near his home at Leming in Atascosa county with 21 stab wounds, was sought here today. Officers think he is here.

The child failed to return from school and his step-father, Elma Dickey, started a search. Bloody overalls were found near the body. Bloodhounds which are being used in the search for the slayer led the officers to San Antonio.

Haight Returns From Road Meet

Harry L. Haight, Midland's representative to the Broadway of American Highway association convention in Hot Springs, arrived home Wednesday night. Haight said a spasmodic effort made to change the route of the Broadway away from Midland was indignantly defeated.

F. O. Mackay, Douglas, Ariz., was elected president. W. D. Conway, Ranger, and Judge J. G. Thwaiter, De Valls Bluffs, Ariz., were named vice presidents; Harry L. Hussmaier, El Paso, treasurer; H. W. Stratton, Brownsville, Ark.; Garnett M. Eislener, Hot Springs, Ark.; A. H. Gardner, Bisbee, Ariz., regional vice president.

Among hold over directors of the Broadway association is Paul T. Vickers of Midland. State directors elected were: John T. Gay and Frank Hall, Tennessee; R. A. Jones and Terrell Cornelius, Arkansas; H. M. Heard and J. H. Greene, Texas; Frank Knight and Geo. D. Robinson, New Mexico; D. G. O'Neal and Fred Suter, Arizona; E. A. Hornbeck and A. J. Mercier, California.

Directors at large are: Thomas B. King, Memphis, Tenn.; J. F. Walker, McMinnville, Tenn.; G. F. Greenleaf, Brickley, Ark.; Judge Chick McDaniell, Arkadelphia, Ark.; W. D. Rotary Delegates Report Conference

Ted Dozier and E. B. Estes, high school cowboy entertainers, gave guitar and cowboy song numbers at the Rotary club today.

Reports on the recent district Rotary conference at Mainview were made by Fred Wemple, Ray Upham, Chester Shepard, Addison Wadley, Arthur Jury, Chas. McClellan, John Bonner, Percy Mims, W. I. Pratt, Paul T. Vickers and T. Paul Barron. Malcolm Meek, also making the trip, had not returned.

Challenge for a baseball game was issued to the Lions club and Chester Shepard, Ray Upham and Dr. L. B. Pemberton were appointed to arrange details. Resolutions commending the local school students in records made at recent district meets were passed, also to the instructors in charge of band and literary events.

Action was taken appointing a committee to work out details with the south side parent teachers' association whereby the Rotary club will provide milk for south side school students for the remainder of the school year.

Charter to Be Given Vets Of Foreign Wars in City

Charter of the new Midland post of Veterans of Foreign Wars will be delivered Friday night at 8 o'clock to the members of the organization. The meeting will be held in the chamber of commerce office. Officers will be elected.

E. U. Bradley, department commander of Texas, will be here from Amarillo to inaugurate the new post. The Midland post has been named for Brooks W. Lee, Midland youth who died in service in Siberia. He was the son of "Uncle Brooks" and Mrs. Lee of Midland.

Veterans of foreign wars in Midland will be eligible to the organization. Midland men who are taking the lead in organizing the post will attend the meeting Friday night to receive the charter.

The Brooks W. Lee post will observe Decoration day on May 31 with a special program, and on Saturday preceding will sell poppies for the hospital fund of World war veterans.

Commander Bradley was in Midland several weeks ago organizing the Midland post and wired James S. Noland Thursday that he would be here tomorrow to deliver the charter.

CHINESE GANGS TERRORIZE AREA AROUND PEIPING

PEIPING, China, April 23. (UP).—Bandit gangs marauding northern China today were spreading terror and death. They were operating up to the walls of this city.

The bandits had seized the town of Tientsin and that territory was under bandit rule. The outlaw bands were composed of former soldiers which had disbanded from Chinese armies.

Scouts Take Big Part on Program

List of scouts and events in which they will be entered at the Big Spring scout rally Saturday was prepared for publication today by Troop 52.

With the troop will be the Rev. Howard Peters, Malcolm Meek, John P. Howe, Buster Howard, Wallace Wimberly and Scoutmaster G. W. Brenneman.

The troop is one of six "perfect percentage" groups of the council, and the highest ranking Midland troop from standpoint of meetings, attendance, advancement and camping.

The entry sheet of the troop follows:

Twins? No, Uncle and Nephew!

It's a pretty small world, all right, when a fellow wakes up in a New York hospital to find his own uncle snoring in the next crib. That's what happened the other day when a son, left, was born to Mrs. Benjamin Alpert, who is 17, shortly before another boy, right, was born to Mrs. Samuel Teich, 36, the mother of Mrs. Alpert. The nephew and his uncle here are pictured together after they had consented to pose.

Town Changes Name 3rd Time

Porterville, oil town in the Wheat pool in Loving county will become Mentone on May 1. This is the third name change for the town.

The county seat of Loving years ago when it was an organized county was named Mentone. When irrigated farming in the county faltered because of insufficient water in the Pecos following construction of dams higher up the river, Mentone passed out of existence. Ramsey became the town. But Ramsey was built on the mud flats of the Pecos, so when the Wheat pool became active, the town was moved to higher ground and named Porterville.

The U. S. post office department has granted permission to change the name from Porterville to Mentone.

RESIDENTS KILL INTRUDER FOUND IN CADDO STORE

CADDO MILLS, April 23. (UP).—An unidentified man was killed this morning by a posse which routed 10 intruders from a general store here.

Residents agreed to kill if recent robberies in which $500 in loot was taken were repeated.

A night watchman saw the light in the store and aroused neighbors who opened fire. All the robbers except one escaped.

CRITICALLY HURT WHEN CAR STRUCK BY FAST FREIGHT

SHERMAN, April 23. (UP).—E. L. Stephenson, 23, and A. H. Spears, 20, high school student, were injured and burned critically when their automobile met a freight train at a crossing here today.

The car was dragged down the track and burned. Spears suffered a broken thigh and it may be necessary to amputate his arm on account of burns. Little hope for his recovery was held.

Mize Returns From Death Valley Visit

"Slim" Mize returned from Boulder City, Nev., Wednesday, perturbed at what he had seen.

"I was in a burning temperature of 132 degrees one day, and the next night ice froze nearly an inch thick," he said. He was in Death valley when he encountered the intense heat, and in Wells, Nev., the following night. Mize visited the region of the great damsite. Armies of men are at work there, preparing for the magnificent task of impounding a lake about 80 miles long and 28 miles wide.

Boulder City has a population of about 1,000. Mize said. Half of the population is composed of married men who have landed work. Laborers are being added each day, but thousands over the country flocked to the place only to find their services could not be used.

John Graham made the trip with Mize.

Hi School Regaled With Folk Dance

Students of the South ward school entertained high school students and visitors this morning with folk dances. The students have been under the direction of Mrs. Jack Hawkins and Mrs. Golden Donovan, teachers at the South ward.

A short talk was made by H. M. King, extension secretary of the West Texas conference of the Methodist church.

MAN HAS GIVEN UP ALL HOPE

Held for Assault on Three-Year-Old Child

HUNTSVILLE, April 23. (UP).—Moncus Twitty, who is scheduled to pay with his life at midnight tonight for assaulting a three-year-old girl, has abandoned hope that Governor Sterling would snatch him from death with a stay or commutation sentence.

Twitty was sentenced to death from Gray county.

With only a few hours left to live, the prisoner stares blankly at the floor of his cell.

Downcast, the doomed man ignored visitors to his cell, turning his face to the wall when prison officials attempted to converse with him.

He was admitted to the prison several days ago and ushered to the death house, where he joined the four other inmates awaiting the trip "through the little green door" whence there is no return.

Twitty is alleged to have attacked the small girl while he was attending her and her small brother while the children's mother was at a carnival.

Reports Given on Local Ill Persons

Mrs. R. M. Barron, seriously ill since a major operation Tuesday afternoon, was reported this afternoon to be resting quietly with condition showing little change.

W. F. Cowden, Midland cattleman who is ill in Temple, was said to be resting as well as could be expected, although he is weak and undergoing suffering.

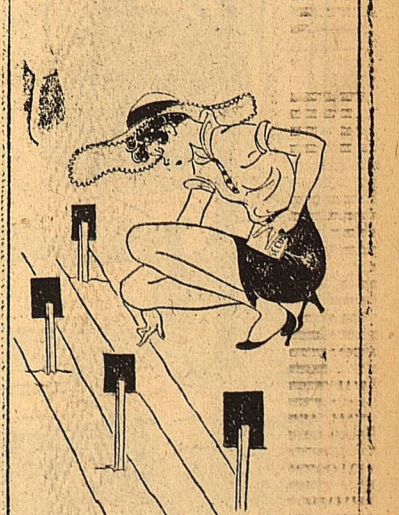

C. A. Taylor, pioneer Midland business man who suffered a fractured hip early this week, was reported to be improving today.

State Is Torn Between Desires

Whether to seek a national park on the great beds of snow white sands near Alamogordo, N. M., or whether to exploit the commercial possibilities of the deposits, is worrying New Mexico people. The sands are almost pure gypsum. Private interests are seeking permits to develop the sands which would bring large revenue to the school system.

Others wish to have the sand deposits which attract thousands of tourists annually made a National monument.

OIL WELL ABANDONMENT

Figures showing the enormous abandonment of oil wells since the low prices came into effect are released by the Independent Petroleum association of America this week and are reproduced as follows:

Since the Drake well was completed at Titusville in 1859 the oil fields of the United States have poured out a grand total of over 13,246,000,000 barrels of crude oil that was worth, at the well, about $17,658,000,000, or an average of $1.33 a barrel.

The enormous potential production of the flush fields of Texas, Oklahoma and California, together with heavy stocks of crude oil caused by excessive imports from Mexico and South America, have combined to force the price of crude oil today down to an average of about 60 cents a barrel for the entire United States.

This is the lowest that the average price of crude oil has been in the last 40 years. In calling attention to this fact, in an interview in Tulsa today, Russell Brown, executive manager of the Independent Petroleum Association, also called attention to the startling fact that in the four years from January 1, 1927, to December 31, 1930, the United States produced 725,000,000 barrels more oil than during the four preceding years and that the price of this oil, at the well, was $159,000,000 less than during the preceding four years. In other words the oil industry produced 725,000,000 barrels more oil and got $159,000,000 less money for it.

Mr. Brown also pointed out that based on today's crude oil production and prices the United States would produce about 50,000,000 barrels less oil in 1931 than in 1930 and would receive about $400,000,000 less money for it.

He also pointed out that in the last four years a total of 54,117 oil wells were completed in the United States and that during the same period 45,449 were abandoned. At an average of $20,000 each, the wells abandoned in the last four years cost, when drilled, about $900,000,000. In the last two years 27,149 oil wells have been drilled and 27,681 have been abandoned. The oil wells abandoned in 1930 cost, conservatively, $250,000,000.

During the four years ending December 31, 1930, the price of crude oil for the entire United States averaged $1.23 a barrel compared with $1.59 a barrel for the preceding four year period. The effect of low prices during recent years is, therefore, clearly reflected in the rapidly increasing abandonment of oil wells. At the present average price of around 60 cents a barrel undoubtedly far more oil wells will be abandoned throughout the United States in 1931 than will be drilled.

A ROGER BABSON STATEMENT

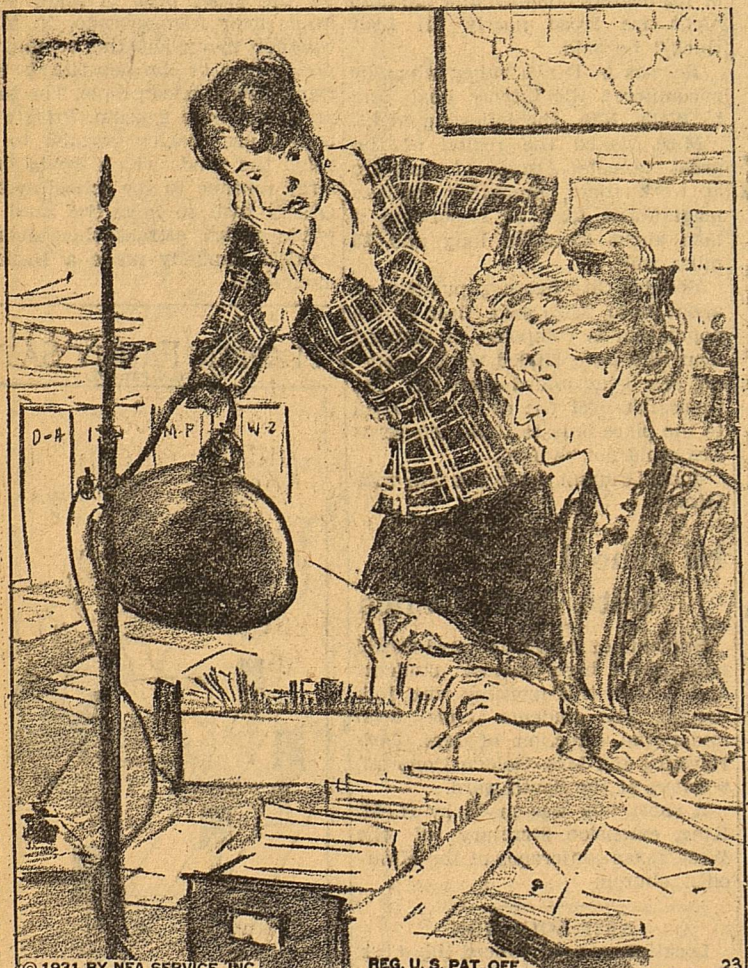

Competition is very keen. In order for a business to maintain its position in a trade it must advertise. Not only will this competition be felt between companies in the same industry, but it will be especially severe between different industries. Producers of old line staples and necessities often wonder how it is that the luxury and semi-luxury businesses, like cosmetics, perfumes, household appliances, chewing gum, motion pictures, etc. continue to grow at such an amazing pace while staples are neglected. They complain that these industries catering to comfort, beauty, and conveniences are getting an undue proportion of the consumer's dollar. One very good reason is that these industries are past masters at the art of advertising whereas the older staple lines are only beginning to learn what advertising really means.

Famous Bourbons of Ten Centuries

By MILTON BRONNER Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.

The last Bourbon ruler has abdicated. Alfonso XIII of Spain is king no more, and for the first time in several centuries no Bourbon now holds a scepter of power.

The history of the House of Bourbon can be traced back to the days of the Crusaders—1000 years ago. About the beginning of the 17th century, a Bourbon became king of France and during the next two centuries members of this royal lineage were absolute monarchs of most of what is now France, Spain and Italy.

The turbulent days of the French Revolution marked the beginning of the decline in Bourbon power. They were finally driven from the thrones in France and Naples, and after 1860, it was only in Spain that the Bourbons remained as monarchs.

And now like the Hohenzollerns in Germany, the Romanoffs in Russia and the Hapsburgs in Austria, the Spanish Bourbons have been swept from the throne by the wave of democracy that came in the wake of the World War.

It was the destiny of Alfonso XIII, born a king in 1886, the post-humous son of the short-lived Alfonso XII, to be king in an age when many thrones crashed—in marked contrast to the days when his ancestors ruled with unquestioned authority.

From the time of the first of the line, Aimer the Crusader, 10 centuries ago, the Bourbons were caught in the swirl of intrigues, wars and counter wars, assassinations. Some were dethroned and regained their thrones. Others met violent death. Some were wise rulers; some were cruel or stupid. All played a big part in history from the ninth century until the present time.

Henry IV, first Bourbon king of France, ruled wisely and well—and died ignominiously with a knife in his back. Under the Louis kings who followed Henry absolute monarchy was established in France. The power of the ruler was supreme. The feudal system controlled the masses until their condition became so deplorable the French revolution was inevitable.

Louis XVI, a Bourbon, died under the guillotine with that great personality, Queen Marie Antoinette. Then for 11 years no Bourbon was on the throne, but after the three-year reign of Napoleon, Louis XVIII, brother of the executed ruler, was made king. Through a succession of abdications and restorations the French line ended with Louis Philippe in 1848 when the Third Republic was proclaimed.

The Spanish branch of the Bourbons started with Philip V in 1700. It has continued without a break up to the abdication of Alfonso.

The third branch of the family—now extinct—was the Neapolitan line, rulers of the kingdom of Naples. It started in 1759 with Charles III, later king of Spain, and ended in 1860 when Naples was incorporated into rapidly growing Italy and Francis II abdicated.

The beginnings of the House of Bourbon are obscured in the black fog of the Dark Ages. Certain it is that Aimer was the founder. He lived in the town of Bourbon l'Archambault in Central France, from which the house takes its name.

A pious youth, he early sought solace in religion and after years of study became a bishop. History would not have recorded him if he had not been such a devout man. When the crusades to the Holy Land started, his sympathies were aroused.

Then Bishop of Puy en Velay, he received with interest reports of the progress of the Christian armies against the infidel Turks who controlled Palestine. He was not a fighting man, a soldier, but he accompanied Raymond IV, count of Toulouse, to the Holy Land as an apostle delegate of this crusade, only to later become a real military leader. It was a tedious expedition, across Central Europe through to Greece, then a voyage to Palestine.

Enthusiastic and hopeful that the crusaders would reach their goal, he looked forward to seeing gallant armies ready to march against the Turks and their Saracen allies. He was bitterly disappointed.

The combined armies were demoralized. There was no organization, no discipline. Leaders were few and weak. It looked like a hopeless case. There seemed no way out. But Aimer was a man of vast energy and resource. His keen mind penetrated to the very core of the problem.

One day he appeared before the leaders. Eloquent he pleaded with them to heed his counsel. And at last he prevailed.

He laid before them a plan for establishing discipline, the one great factor needed for the success of any army. His enthusiasm was contagious. They caught his spirit.

IN DAYS OF OLD, WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD—The famous Bourbon family, which ended its royal line with King Alfonso's abdication, dates back to the time of the Crusaders. These pictures show how knights of the middle ages appeared and a closeup of the armor worn by a knight's horse to protect him from an opponent's lance.

The armies were before Antioch, stoutly defended by the infidels. Half-hearted had been the attacks. Aimer brought vigor.

His success in bringing discipline out of chaos was extraordinary. Within a few weeks he had a well-trained army, working together as a unit. His fame was returned to Bourbon l'Archambault and he was proclaimed a baron—the Baron of Bourbon.

He planned, the army attacked. Fiercely they fought then, using the stratagems he had devised. Success seemed probable. Outposts of the city were taken. Progress was made daily.

Suddenly Aimer became ill. The siege of Antioch was raised. Into the tents of the Crusaders came the dreadful report that Aimer suffered from the plague and that death was inevitable.

He was buried on foreign soil. But the line he started lived on, carrying with it traditions of gallantry and ability to face danger. He was a fitting ancestor for all the Bourbons.

In the years after his death, up through the Dark Ages, his name was a legend which inspired other Bourbons to carry on. His descendants included John of Burgundy, Charles, constable of France, and Antoine de Bourbon, who as king of Navarre, established the royal line in 1554.

His son, Henry, first king of Navarre, later became Henry IV, first Bourbon ruler of France, and started the dynasty which for nearly five centuries controlled the thrones of leading European powers.

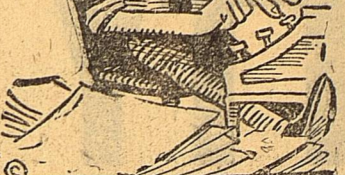

"We propose an Ibero-American union as a means of defense against the common danger," said Iduarte and Carrillo. "We are here not to debate but to defend the spirit of Spain incarnate in 20 American countries. There is no possibility of equality between the lion and the lamb, whose only defense is to bleed when attacked. We saw Dr. Rowe, minister of the colonies (his title is director of the Pan-American Union), how many soldiers there are in the United States and Nicaragua, how many have invaded Latin-American countries. We remember Vera Cruz! The United States should revolve around Latin America because Latin America has a soul."

"Unity of the American continents is essential," argued Captain Antonio Colorado and Victor Gutierrez of the Porto Rican team. "The United States supplies tremendous material resources and technical skill while Latin America contributes spiritual profundity of thought and a deeper sense of international justice. We are not here to defend Pan-Americanism but, although economic and geographic equality are impossible, there can and must be juridical equality between the American nations."

Cited Rubio's Address
Then Gutierrez read from a Pan-American Day address by President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico, wherein Rubio said so many nice things about Pan-Americanism that it was tough on Iduarte and Carrillo. The Mexicans were on their feet, trying to make unscheduled rebuttals, when the Porto Ricans and others dashed over, shook their heads and black-slapped them into silence.

That climaxed the remarkable Porto Rican record, which was being made before and after the period President Hoover was visiting the island possession. The Porto Ricans defeated Harvard, Yale, University of California and more than a dozen others. Eleven debaters were delivered on a no decision basis. At University of New Mexico and Tulane University the islanders won debates in Spanish one night and in English the next.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

I wonder what effect the recently passed tobacco tax bill is having on the disposition of the men and women of Midland. Maybe you think I shouldn't have mentioned the women, but where there are even a few concerned I feel it my duty to include them with the people affected.

This newspaper was squarely against passage of the tobacco tax bill, although it applies to cigars and out of the eleven men on the force, two don't smoke at all and seven of the other nine smoke the same make of pipes.

Anyway, you can't blame us for being in sympathy with the cigar manufacturers when you check back and find that their advertising has played a big part in assuring a daily newspaper for Midland during the past few months. And their advertising has met with success, first hand information from their district salesmen reveals.

Dr. B. U. L. Conner, celebrated Fence editor in the El Paso Herald-Post, seems to be offended personally by passage of the bill and he proposes to beat the proposition by dipping snuff instead of smoking cigars.

Just to check up and see what the local sentiment toward snuff is, I have interviewed a few leading citizens on the subject.

Mayor Leon Goodman says he has never practiced the dipping of snuff to any great extent, but that he expects to be out on the range a lot this summer and will have no trouble in snatching a "tooth brush" from a mesquite bush as he rides by, which should make his dipping convenient.

Dr. W. E. Ryan, city health physician, was noncommittal but in my interview I gathered that he felt that snuff dipping would be easier for him than for smooth shaven men because his moustache would prevent unnecessary waste.

Andy Norwood, city marshal and sanitary enforcement officer, declares that he finds no necessity for turning to snuff dipping, that he can "roll his own" or chaw tobacco just as he chooses.

Due to my extreme bashfulness, I have been unable to bring myself to interview any of the prominent Midland women about snuff dipping or about the effect upon them of the cigaret tax. However, I want to assure them that any letters to me on the subject (or any other subject) will be appreciated.

I have an article before me this morning wherein it is wondered who will be the year's world champion cowboy. If Iull throwing counts for much, I feel that Dr. Conner of the Herald-Post will be a likely candidate.

Slim Mize is back from Boulder Dam. I heard the contract had been let, and from his reappearance here, I presume he didn't get it.

Daily Washington Letter

By Rodney Dutcher

Those Porto Rican Youths Wield a Glib Tongue, as U. S. and Canadian University Students Well Know, Having Lost 28 of 31 Debates to the Island Team

WASHINGTON.—The University of Porto Rico can't very well send football or baseball teams here, but it sent a debating team to the United States which has lost only three of 31 debates with teams from American and Canadian universities.

The Porto Rican boys were willing to debate any subject in either English or Spanish and to take either the affirmative or the negative. There was one exception. They would talk only the affirmative side on the question: "That this side condemns the principal of prohibition."

Porto Rico is under the American flag and the prohibition laws, but the debaters explained: "There is only one side to that argument. But if anyone feels that there are two sides, we will be glad to debate them."

So they argued against prohibition six or seven times and failed to win but once.

Clashed With Mexicans
They also debated the policy of armed intervention by the United States in the Caribbean and as to whether to condemn the "growing domination of the United States in this hemisphere." Then they came to Washington to debate the University of Mexico, whose team came here especially for the occasion, on the question: "That the future of Latin America depends on the establishment of closer bonds with the United States on a basis of equality."

There was a fiery clash of Latin temperament and oratory when Iduarte and Carrillo, came here to attack Pan-Americanism. They didn't believe in Pan-Americanism. Pan-American Day or the Pan-American Union, they declared, was a luncheon in honor of both teams and the Mexican boys stayed away, although the counsellor of the Mexican embassy was there, somewhat embarrassed. Then Iduarte and Carrillo said they wouldn't debate if there was to be a decision; they were here not to debate but to present what they said was the viewpoint of Mexican and Latin-American students.

The Porto Rican boys then got sore, said the Mexicans had promised to debate, accused them of being a debating team which didn't know what debating meant and hurled at them the charge of poor sportsmanship.

No Decision
The debate, or whatever it was, went on to no decision.

of the boys of today know how to make a maple or a willow whistle? What has come of the handcraft in which boys were once so skilled, and for which a sharp bladed jack knife was necessary? How many boys of today know anything about those treasured blades which came from a noted firm in Sheffield, England, and for which a boy would save and save until he had the huge sum of 75 cents or a dollar with which to make the purchase? Trading pocket knives in those days was a fine art, too, and the boy who had one of those coveted imported blades never did any trading without seeing what he was about to get in exchange. With those knives the boys used to carve out wonderful works of art from white pine blocks.

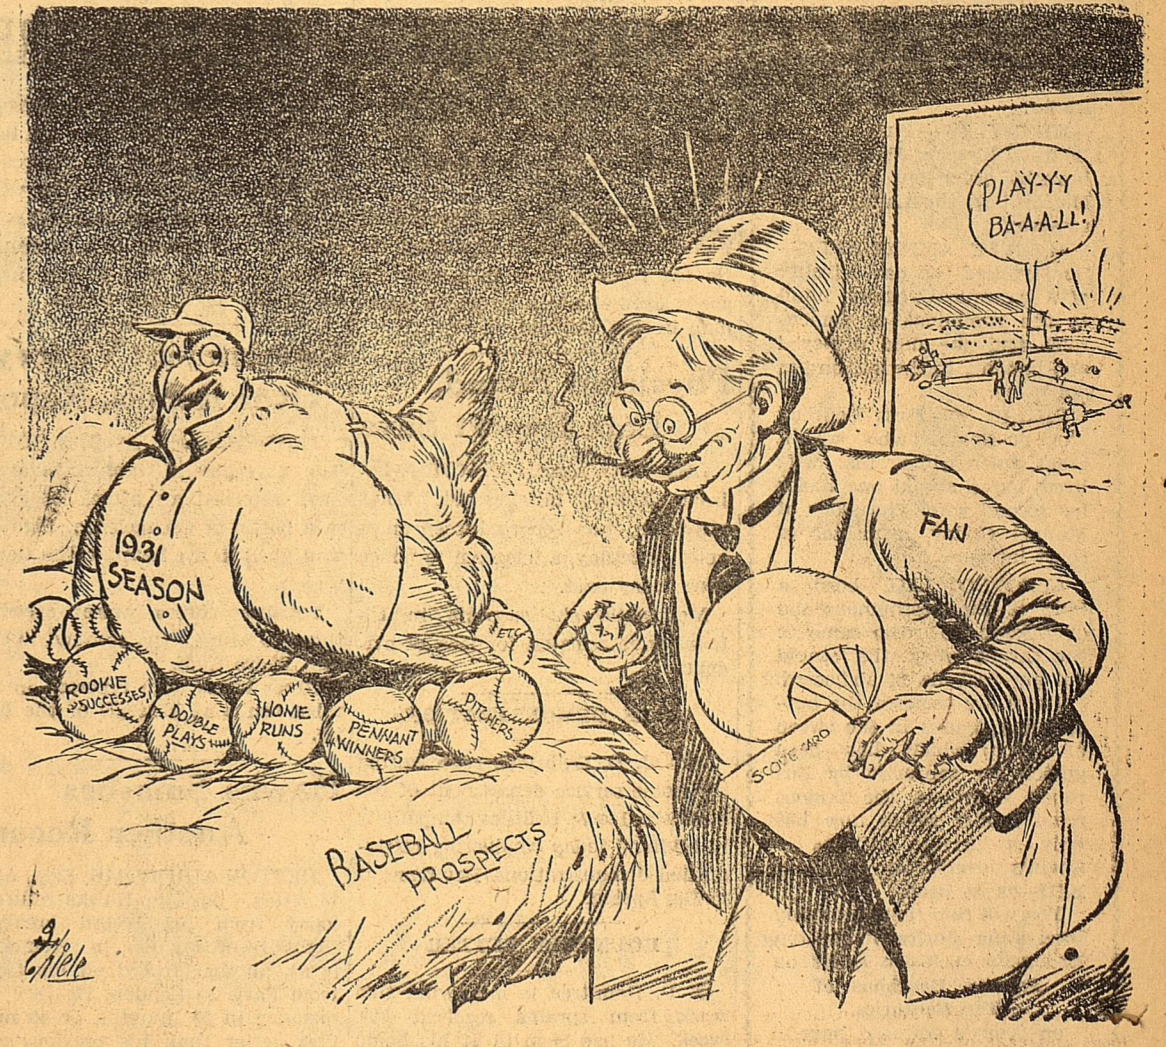

The artist, J. R. Williams, must have been filled with the inspiration of springtime, but how did he happen to forget about the maple and willow whistles which, 40 to 50 years ago, at this time of year would be filling the air with music?

The modern boy can dissect an automobile, but he knows nothing of some of the arts which entertained boys of long ago.—Alton, Ill., Telegraph.

Committees for P. T. A. Round-up Ready for Campaign

The first group meeting of chairman and sub-chairmen who are conducting the Parent-Teacher association summer round-up of children to enter school for the first time next fall was held in conference with Mrs. Martha Bredemeier Tuesday afternoon at her office.

Mrs. Percy Mims, general chairman of the program has appointed Mrs. E. C. Adams as chairman of North Ward. Her sub-chairmen are Mrs. S. P. Hall, Mrs. H. G. Bedford, Mrs. Bob Preston, Mrs. M. R. Hill, Mrs. R. V. Lawrence and several others yet to be selected.

Mrs. C. V. Dale is South Ward chairman and her assistants are Mrs. E. W. Hough, Mrs. T. O. Midkiff, Horace Newton, Mrs. T. L. Lineberry, Mrs. J. L. McGrew, Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Mize.

Each sub-chairman has a district of the city in which she will conduct a house-to-house canvas enlisting children of the pre-school age. As the children are enrolled they will be invited to have a free physical and dental examination by Midland doctors who have offered to cooperate in the round-up.

Examinations are to begin May 4, North Ward children receiving appointments on the first and second day. South Ward children will have engagements on May 6 and 7 and rural children on May 8 and 9.

"Every year many children fail to pass their grades due to health defects," said Miss Martha Bredemeier, nurse. "Health education plays a big part in this, and correction of physical defects and poor habits would reduce the number of failures. The cost in money to state of repeaters is tremendous. For these and other reasons, cooperation of everyone is asked to make the first Midland summer round-up successful," she declared.

The next meeting of the round-up committees is May 1 at 1 p. m. in the county nurse office.

Will V. Gates, rancher of the Shafter Lake area, is in Midland today on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Covington made a business trip to Big Spring Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Benton Taylor of Durant, Oklahoma, is in Midland visiting in the home of her sister, Mrs. Hugh Corrigan.

The "Sweetheart" of Sweetwater

There's the old axiom that you can't mix business with pleasure, but that's just exactly the assignment given Miss Orlena Sanger, assistant secretary of the Sweetwater Board of City Development.

She has been chosen to represent Sweetwater in the historic pageant to be given at Lubbock during the West Texas chamber of commerce convention. Besides that, Miss Sanger is to attend the social affairs of the convention as Sweetwater's official representative.

Here's where the business comes in—Miss Sanger is to assist the huge delegation of Sweetwater business men in convincing thousands of delegates that it is Sweetwater's time, in 1932, to have the convention.

Having never entertained the organization, Miss Sanger will join the other Sweetwater representatives in asking for the 1932 meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt S. Susman of Shreveport, La., are visiting in the city today.

Charles D. Vickers of Rochester, N. Y., is here on business matters.

Mrs. J. E. Lucas of Andrews was a shopper in Midland Wednesday afternoon.

Louis Thomas has returned to the Thomas ranch in Ector county after spending a few days here the first of the week.

Bible Program Is Given at Fine Arts Club Meeting

Bible day was observed by the Fine Arts club Wednesday afternoon with an interesting program on Bible paintings led by Mrs. J. M. Speed at the home of Mrs. Elliott Barron.

History of a painting of the Last Supper was given by Mrs. Barron. Roll call was answered by members describing famous paintings from the Bible.

A complete report of activities of the sixth district convention in Big Spring last week was given by Miss Lydie Watson, official delegate of the club.

A program for the observance of National Music Week was presented to the club by the committee. Arrangements have been made for a musical program to be given by the club on the Monday evening, May 4, at the First Methodist church.

Pretty Spring Party Is Favor to Mid Week Club

Suggestions of springtime in pink and green shades were reflected in the party ensemble at the home of Mrs. J. L. Greene Wednesday afternoon when she entertained in honor of members of the Mid Week club.

Fresh bunches of sweet peas graced the rooms where bridge games were entertainment.

Closing the afternoon the Mrs. Elliott F. Cowden received a trophy for playing high among members and Mrs. Benton Taylor of Duncan, Okla. won the guest prize. Mrs. W. E. Wallace cut high for a gift.

The hostess was assisted with the entertainment by her mother, Mrs. R. L. McCormick of Yates Center, Kansas.

Tea tables were centered with sweet peas and lovely party plates emphasizing the party colors were passed to Meses. H. M. Bayer, Elliott Cowden, I. E. Daniel, Hugh Corrigan, U. Hampton, R. J. Moore, M. C. Ulmer, W. E. Wallace, R. L. York, Harry Adams, Benton Taylor, and W. T. Walsh.

Recipes From the Cooking School

Lemon Fluff Pie

3 eggs beaten separately
1 lemon, juice and grated rind
1 cup sugar

Beat egg yolks and add one-half of the cup of sugar. Add grated rind and juice to stiffly beaten egg whites to which have been added the remaining sugar and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Cook in double boiler and cool. Pour in baked pie crust.

French Cream Pie

4 egg yolks
1-2 cups sugar
1-4 teaspoon Morton's salt
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon gelatin

Put milk over fire and bring to a boil. Add egg and sugar mixture and cook a few minutes. Add gelatin while mixture is hot. Pour through a strainer. Let cool and add extract. After the mixture has set a few minutes in ice box fold in 1 pint of whipped cream. Pour in baked pie crust and let congeal.

THE LONG AND SHORT

Her latest comes from a rich Armenian, who presented himself in person. He was short and fat, and scarcely came to her waistline. Needless to say, he was refused.

What Some Are Planting Now

PREPARATION OF SOIL

By D. Victor Lumsden

Soil moisture is usually the factor which determines just when we can start preparing for spring planting. A sandy soil which is well drained can be plowed and spaded a week or more before a heavy clay will be ready to work.

Here is a simple test: Compress a handful of soil and drop it. If the ball of soil falls apart it is safe to start turning and cultivating.

If you can obtain stable manure to turn under with your soil it makes a valuable addition. Manure not only adds plant food to the soil but lightens the soil and puts it in a more friable condition.

For general use, cow or horse manure can be applied at the rate of 10 to 12 pounds per square yard. Spread it over the garden and turn it under to incorporate it with the soil.

Pulverize the Soil

After the manure or peat is incorporated into the soil by a thorough spading or plowing, rake the soil thoroughly to pulverize it and to level the surface. Rake the soil while it is still moist or it will be difficult to break up the lumps.

When the peat replaces the manure for organic matter it is best to rake the commercial fertilizer that is used into the top 3 or 4 inches of soil after spading, and during the leveling and pulverizing.

If you have a heavy clay soil which will bake under a hot sun, add some sand or fine sifted coal ashes before raking. This will make the soil more granular and easier to cultivate.

If you plant to plant annuals in a bed in which perennials are already established, take care not to disturb the roots of the latter. Work the soil with a hand cultivator to incorporate fertilizer and prepare the soil for planting.

TOMORROW: Annuals and Perennials.

Little America, by Richard E. Byrd: If only by virtue of his having stood over both poles, Admiral Byrd stands apart from all living men. Only one other man of the thousands who strived attained this remote distinction—Amundsen, his friend; and Amundsen is dead.

Byrd, now only 41, has capped a lifetime of amazingly productive geographical research by flying over the South Pole. In itself, this flight was the most spectacular thing of the year. But in his larger sphere of action, it took its place as a single phase of a thrilling series of operations on the southern polar continent.

Little America is the story of the Byrd Antarctic expedition as told for the first time by its leader. It is a narrative of action and at the same time a record of brilliant scientific achievement. It is, essentially, the story of men who brought their own civilization to "a God-forsaken hunk of ice" and created on it one of the most extraordinary communities the world has ever seen.

"It falls to the lot of few men to look down upon things never before seen," Admiral Byrd writes, "and here he tells of his splendid and

They Have Taken the Honeymoon Trail Around the World

BY MARION HALE
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, April 23.—A royal rebuke to blasé tourists who act sophisticated and bored by everything in the Japanese couple, Prince and Princess Takamatsu, brother and sister-in-law of the reigning Japanese Emperor.

The Prince and Princess are on the last lap of a 14 months' around-the-world honeymoon. Yet they looked out on Washington, beautiful in early springtime with its flowering cherry blossoms, jonquills, tulips and other flowers, with a young curiosity peering to behold.

They are the first members of Japanese royalty ever to honor the capital with a personal visit. They came with a whole royal suite, including a "master of ceremonies" and a "lady-in-waiting," yet they have the simplicity of great people combined with quiet dignity of regal blood.

She's a Dainty Princess

Princess Kikuko (meaning Chrysanthemum) is the daintiest kind of little person. She is less than five feet tall, with a waist that barely measures 17 inches and shoes size one and a half. She is pretty as a picture with classically regular features and shimmering smooth, black hair and gracious as only a Princess knows how to be.

She is as Parisian in her lovely French clothes as her husband is English in his correct London attire. In her 18 trunks—mostly filled with Paris clothes—there are many ultra-feminine costumes, chiffons and soft silks and shimmering satins in pastel colors, blues, pinks, beige, lavender, and delicate off whites. Some printed ensembles are included also. She prefers fluffy but luxurious furs, natural lynx, beige, white and silver fox and chinchilla. And her several dozen hats include a predominating number of the "picture" variety, sheer delicately colored straws, some with a rose or other flower or ribbon tucked here or there for ornamentation.

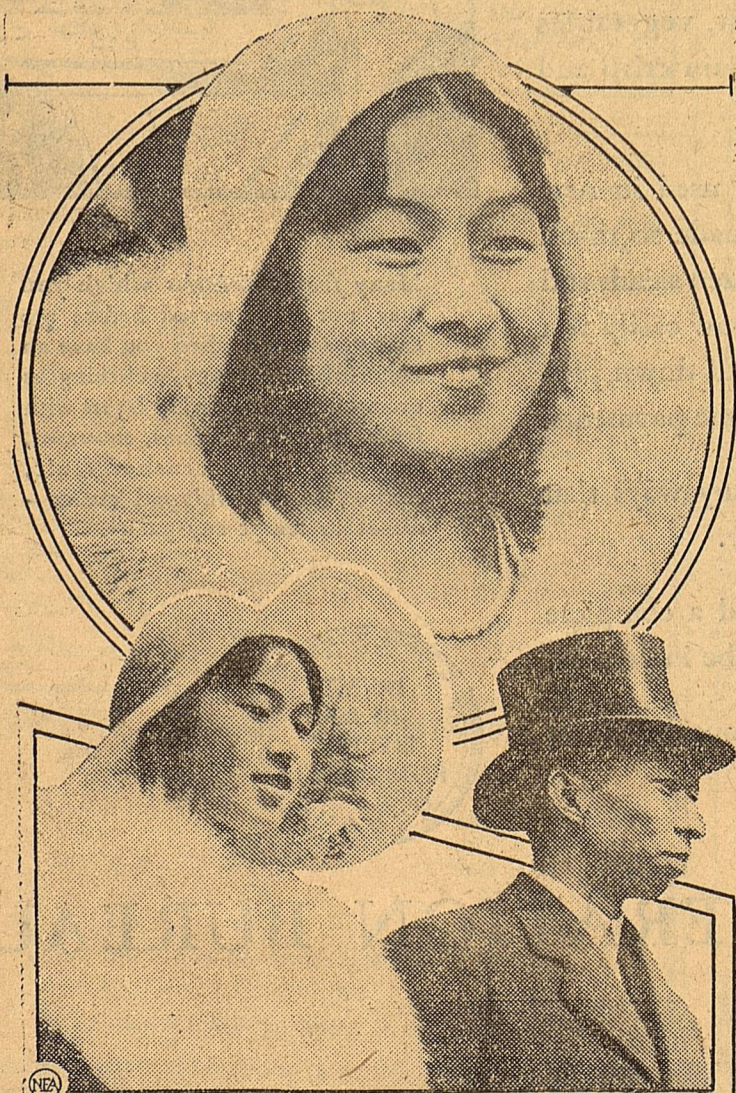

Wears Bridal Necklace

Among her evening things, she looks perhaps most exquisite in a diminutive edition of an Empire gown in the most delicate of shell white, embroidered elaborately in tiny opalescent beads. With it she wears her famous diamond and platinum necklace that her bridegroom gave her, a matching bracelet of the wide, cuff variety, and a ring of one singularly lustrous pearl of huge size.

Only on two occasions, so far, has the Princess appeared in her Japanese costume of the traditional kimono. The whole suite, while in America, is doing what Americans do. Even to eating. For breakfast, the typical order from the Japanese royal couple is ham and eggs, hot rolls and coffee for the Prince, and fruit juice or fresh fruit, two soft boiled eggs, toast and coffee for the Princess.

Fortunate it is for the royal couple that they have a strong bodyguard about them. For literally hundreds of Americans have tried to gain an audience. Midgets out of jobs, theatrical performers who could use a royal okay, singers, dancers, modistes who would like to have their talent known in Tokyo.

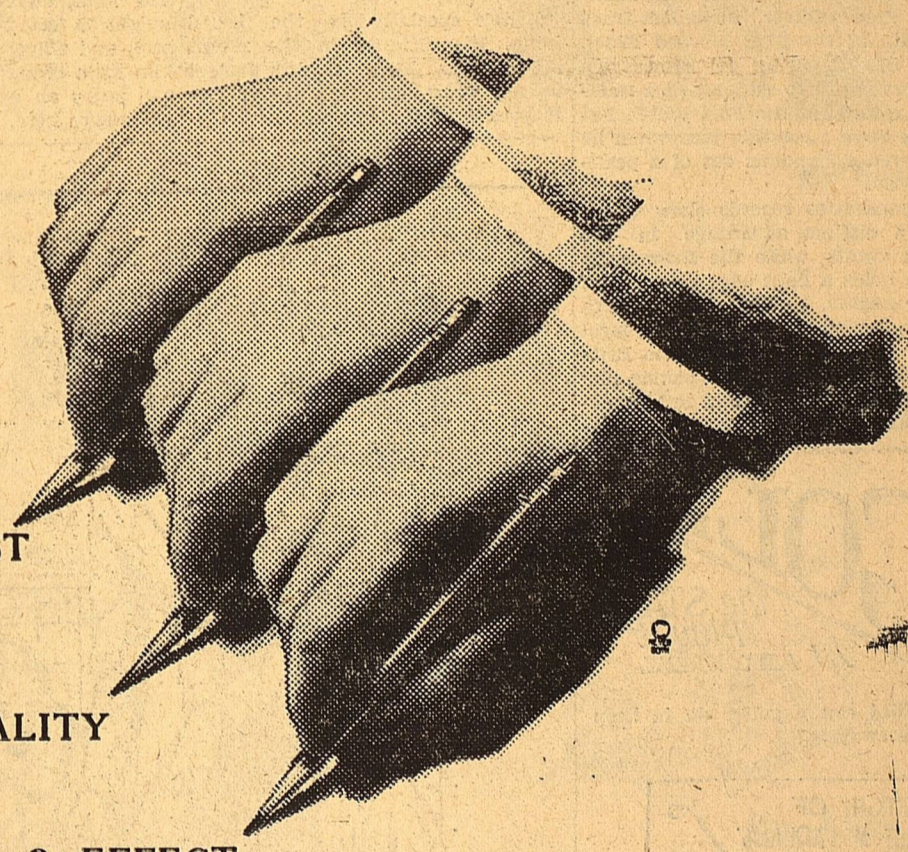

They have granted no audiences. Asked about their around-the-world trip, they have said that Scotland reminds them most of Japan of any country they have visited, that they have eaten French cooking in most countries because the best hotels invariably have French chefs, so that they cannot speak of the national dishes of each country. Washington, because of its cherry blossoms, makes them think of home, for which they will sail across the Pacific the 28th day of May.

Their clothes by Paris and London, their manners by Tokyo . . . their ham and eggs by New York and Washington . . . true cosmopolites are the Prince and Princess Takamatsu, shown here in pictures taken after their arrival in this country.

HERE ARE 3 POINTS TO CONSIDER

When You Order Letterheads

1. COST
2. QUALITY
3. EFFECT

1. The cost of your letterheads depends on the quality and effect that you want. It is not a negligible factor, and we are prepared to keep that figure as low as possible for you.

2. The quality of your letterheads has direct bearing on its effect. You can't expect to have excellent quality with the cheapest paper.

3. You are not present when your letterhead is in the hands of the one to whom you sent it. Here is where quality counts. The recipient of your letter does not know what you paid for the printing, but he does know what quality is present in the letterhead. Your business is silent and so are you—all you have to represent you is the printed letterhead.

WE DESIRE TO ASSIST YOU IN THESE THREE POINTS ON YOUR NEXT LETTER-HEAD JOB.

REPORTER-TELEGRAM SQUEEZES A WIN, HOLDING FIRST PLACE

BELL TELEPHONE BRUSHING UP SPORTS STARTS FAST TO SCORE

The Reporter - Telegram survived a pneumonia-laden wind and a pebble-freighted hurricane Wednesday afternoon, as well as a determined hitting onslaught of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, to take another game, 8-5, and keep on top of the playground ball league.

Scoring two runs in the initial inning and two in the third, it appeared that the Bell boys were scampering for another win, but Gemmill, pitching his fast one around necks and midribs, held them down to only one more run. In the meantime, the newspapermen issued orders for a press run, and the boys began hitting them on the ground against the heavy wind. Bell Telephone infielders, having no idea where the wind was twisting the ball, crowded scratch hits but found them hard to handle. Every newspaperman scored except Rogers and Gunn.

Gemmill led the scoring for the winners, with two runs. Warren scored once and worked his way around to third twice.

The newspaper is one game ahead of Texas Electric Service company, which club plays Midland Hardware this afternoon at 6.

The Reporter-Telegram has a game Saturday with the Gulf Pipeline company. In case Texas Electric wins its game and Reporter-Telegram falls before Gulf a play-off for the first half will be forced.

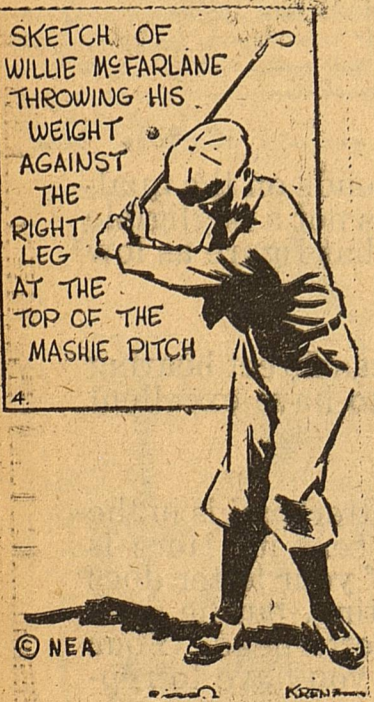

SPORTS REPORTS

The most spirited competition in the Fiesta de San Jacinto track and field meet to be held in San Antonio Friday and Saturday is due to be in the pentathlon with Richard "Red" Oliver, ineligible track captain of the TCU Horned Frogs, and Ben L. Brite of Brownsville competing. Brite established a nine-year record for the Fort Worth Fat Stock show meet this year when he gathered 4382 points out of a possible 5000.

Comparative records show Oliver has a distinct advantage in the track events, while the Brownsville flash holds a light edge in the field and weights. In the Fort Worth meet, which is the largest meet south of the Mason-Dixon line, Brite ran the hundred in 10.2 seconds, and the 120-yard low hurdles in 13.8. Although Oliver has stepped the cen-

GOLE as the STARS play it by ART KRENZ

What can a golfer do to keep from swaying?

Too many golfers have the wrong impression about shifting the weight to the right leg. I think the golfer would improve his backswing a great deal if he would bear in mind to throw the weight over against a stiffened right leg instead of onto it. With the weight against the right leg it is only natural that the head will be kept still and the body rotate mostly about the hips. The style of Willie McFarlane is adapted to illustration.

ture in 9.6, he will probably stop it near the 9.8 mark Saturday. According to the point system by which the winner is chosen, this will give the Frog red-head an approximate 190-point advantage in the track events.

Brite's specialty is the broad jump. His distance in the recent Stock Show Meet was 23 feet, 4 inches, while, although Oliver has surpassed that mark, his best distance of late has been slightly over 22 feet. They fight on about even terms in the high jump, each clearing the bar at a point or two below the 6-foot standard.

In the only weight event in the series, the shot put, the Brownsville star holds advantage. He puts the weight 39 feet, 2 inches when at his best, and Oliver's best efforts bring him little better than 38 feet. Brite will enjoy an approximate 75-point advantage here.

With both stars at their best, only a few points should separate them when the final event is finished.

If the order of the events does not interfere with the pentathlon, the Frog flash will also compete in the 175-meter race.

No track meet is really a success that doesn't finish a real thrill in the 100 yard dash. From indications, the Great Plains track meet, to be held at Canyon on the night of May 2nd, will furnish one of its greatest thrills in this particular event.

McComms, of the New Mexico Military Institute, who has been winning this event regularly for the past two or three years will have his supremacy challenged by at least two able sprinters. Kilbie, of Central Teachers of Edmond, Oklahoma, is stepping the century right along this year in 10 seconds, and on one occasion, made 9.8 seconds, which is the Great Plains record held by McComms.

Then too, Stith of the Amarillo college has shown a new luminary in the firmaments of great sprinters. In the Globe-News meet at Amarillo last week this youngster stepped the 100 paces in 9.8 seconds on a track made slow by rain. In this youngster Coach Baggett undoubtedly has a coming star of the first order.

He is a freshman and with another year or so of competition should make Texas and the Southwest forget the Bracys and Lelands.

PICKING UP

WASHINGTON—It is expected that aircraft manufacturing will take a decided turn for the better when the government lets contracts for 588 military planes sometime during the next two months. It will cost about $24,000,000 for these craft, 370 of which will go to the Navy and the remainder to the Army.

Foreign Legion Recruits Grow

PARIS, April 21. (UP).—There is such a rush of recruits to join the French foreign legion that the war ministry has decided to reorganize and enlarge its regiments and for that purpose has increased the rank of its commander, Colonel Rollet to general, at the same time setting a limit on recruiting.

has been stormed by increasing numbers of Germans, Poles, Czechs, and Russians since the economic depression swept the continent. Germans now predominate, despite the efforts of the Berlin government to end German recruiting in the legion.

Officials at the Quai d'Orsay explained today that there would be no reply to German suggestions that the legion be closed to German volunteers. It was pointed out that the legion offers refuge to men of all nationalities, who accept an engagement for seven years and that Germans who appear at Sidi-Bel-Abbes would be enlisted in proportion to the ranks vacant.

By action of the war ministry, the legion is now limited to four regiments of infantry and one regiment of cavalry. All the regimental headquarters have been moved to Sidi-Bel-Abbes, where all recruits will be trained and then sent to the outposts of French penetration. General Rollet will assume command of the entire legion.

Lawrence Tells Why He Disappointed the King

By HENRY T. RUSSELL, United Press Staff Correspondent. (Copyright 1931 in all countries by United Press. All rights reserved.)

PLYMOUTH, England, April 23. (UP)—How at Buckingham Palace he refused two decorations from the hands of the King of England himself, was today revealed for the first time by Aircraftman T. E. Shaw, (Lawrence of Arabia), once an army colonel, today an air force private. The man who during the war ousted the Turks from the desert and put Arabia on the map.

After his work in rallying to the allied cause thousands of Arabs in the desert, the British government sought to reward him.

It offered him money, he refused.

It offered him high posts; he turned them down.

In the same way he spurned decorations which, he said, would have "shut my mouth."

He said he would not take a thing until the government had fulfilled promises made by him to the Arabs on behalf of Britain. In spite of these objections officials notified him he had been recommended for two coveted honors; V. B. (commander of the bath) and D. S. O. (distinguished service order).

Despite his protests both the awards were "gazetted" and he was summoned to Buckingham Palace to meet the king.

"I was ushered into the presence of the king," he said today. "He was kind enough to chat about my job in the desert. Imagine my surprise when, in spite of my previous refusals to the government, the king motioned to two decorations which lay on a nearby table and signified that they were intended for me!"

"Immediately I explained that when officials suggested I was to be honored, I objected and declined. Of course, I apologized. I deplored the fact misgued officialdom should have brought about the circumstances. And I told him that my previous decision not to accept the decorations must stand."

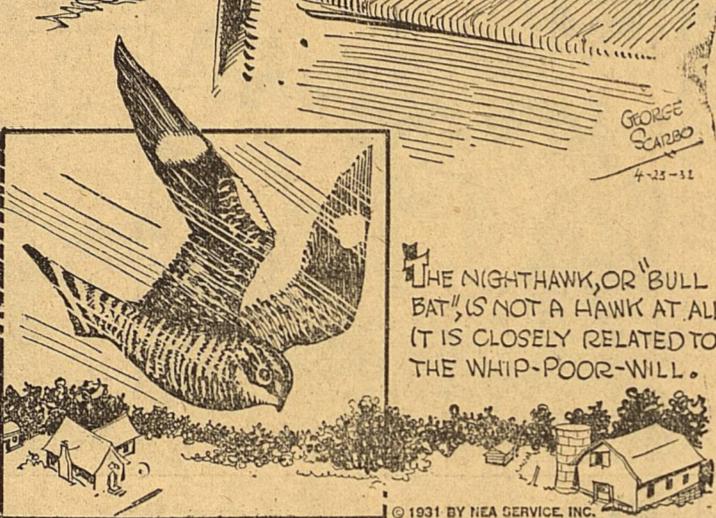

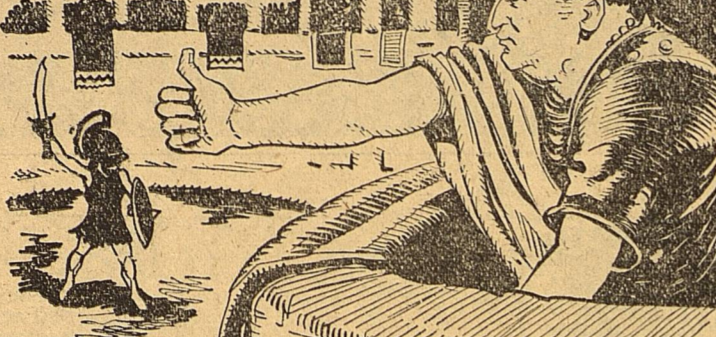

"Naturally the whole thing was most awkward. It was neither the fault of the king, nor mine. The officials had no business to recommend me against my wish."

"Many versions of this incident have been circulated. It is said that I went to the palace in Arab costume. I did not. I was a colonel in the army at the time and went in my uniform."

"I have heard it said that the king pinned one decoration to my breast only to find that I had removed it when he went to pin the second one. This and other versions may sound better than the original, but they are not true.

"Nothing could have been more awkward and unpleasant than what actually occurred."

Although, in refusing the decorations, Lawrence complained bitterly to the king of the manner in which the cabinet had dealt with the Arab question, no ill-feeling resulted.

"The king," he said, "was most kind and understanding." Several months later Lawrence again saw the king. This time he went to Buckingham Palace in Arab costume. He acted as interpreter between the king and Faisal, king of Iraq. The king recalled Lawrence's previous visit on this occasion and spoke to him cordially.

"When the king heard that Lawrence was publishing his now famous 'Seven Pillars of Wisdom,' he instructed his secretary, Lord Stamfordham, to offer a subscription. He meant, thus, to forestall a possible gift by Lawrence because he had learned of the high value of the edition ($150). But Lawrence wrote to say that in calculating the sale price of the edition he had planned to work off a special presentation copy for the king. He asked, therefore, that the king should be willing to accept one in the circumstances. The king agreed. The book subsequently was placed in his valuable library."

On one visit to the palace when Lawrence was describing his war in the desert in answer to questions, the king asked him if he did not have something which could be added to his (the king's) unique collection of war souvenirs. Lawrence suggested several objects, including one which had been intimately connected with the Kaiser. The king smilingly declined the latter. Finally he accepted the rifle.

Speaking of the decorations which he refused, Lawrence pointed out that he was actually in doubt to this day as to the legal status of his case:

"I am in the unusual position of having refused decorations which have been gazetted. To the best of my knowledge the announcements in the gazette have not been cancelled. So I presume that legally I might be entitled to them although I refused to take them from the king. But the matter is indifferent to me."

Referring then to the circumstances which led to his refusal to be decorated, Lawrence recalled that his object was to obtain from the government the fulfillment of promises he made to the Arabs on behalf of Britain in exchange for Arab participation in the war on the allied side.

"I could not get satisfaction at the time," he said, "so when they tried to reward me and at the same time let down the Arabs, naturally I refused. This, of course, gave me a free hand. They failed to shut me up. I told them all what I thought of them. After a long fight in which I was fortunate in obtaining the support of Winston Churchill, I secured for the Arabs all that was humanly practical and possible to secure."

A number of the promises made to the inhabitants of the desert, said Lawrence, never could have been carried out. At one time, for instance, he said, there was talk of creating an Arab federation:

"On paper this looked all right," he said, "but in practice it would have worked out hopelessly." The point was, he said, the vast stretches of desert would have separated member tribes. There could not, he added, have existed proper

Television Tests Conducted in May

The Columbia Broadcasting System will begin broadcasting television images on an experimental basis from New York on June 1, it was announced today by Edwin K. Cohan, Director of Technical Operations.

Tentative plans, Cohan said, are to have the new transmitter on the air every day in the week for six hours daily.

The television transmitter will be located on the twenty-third floor of the Columbia Broadcasting System Building at 485 Madison avenue, New York, and will operate on a frequency band of from 2750 to 2850 kilocycles. It will utilize 500 watts power under the call letters W2XAB.

Four rooms, adjacent on this floor will contain the studio, control, transmitter and scanning rooms for the television experiments which Columbia will conduct throughout the summer.

A two wire, semi-vertical aerial (technically known as the Doublet Antenna) will be erected on the Columbia Building.

Although certain programs emanating from the television transmitter will be synchronized with those of key station WABC the new transmitter will operate independently most of the time. None of the television experiments will be carried to network stations.

"The Columbia engineering staff," Cohan declared, "will undertake an exhaustive study of television transmission characteristics, particularly as related to the metropolitan area. A special study of operating technique from the standpoint of organization, management and production will be made."

Indirect scanning, sensitive pickup equipment, audio and radio frequencies from 20 to 50,000 cycles with minimum distortion, and other late developments will be included in this installation, work on which will commence shortly.

These television experiments will in no manner interfere or supplant the regular programs broadcast through WABC and W2XE. Columbia's experimental television station W2XAB will operate as a separate unit carrying only television images. What sound may be experimentally synchronized with these picture transmissions will be carried in the usual manner over key station WABC.

APTLY NAMED LINER

The George Washington looks down upon Mount Vernon daily now. It is a huge airliner, named in the honor of the First President and christened this week by the daughter of the Czechoslovakian ambassador with water drawn from the well at Mount Vernon at which Washington himself drank.

The airliner is an 18-passenger Curtiss Condor belonging to the Eastern Air Transport System, and is one of a fleet of those craft in service between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Richmond—territory closely identified with The Father of his Country. The christening took place at the Washington-Hoover Airport in conjunction with a flying tea, the entire event being under the auspices of the executive committee of the Festival of Nations. Many diplomats and other members of Washington society attended, and nearly 300 of them flew in groups of 17 over Mt. Vernon and the National Capital.

SAYS WOMEN WILL NEVER RULE WORLD

LONDON.—"Women will never dominate the world. If that ever happens, then civilization must perish."

Such is the opinion of G. K. Chesterton, famous editor and author, who thinks that the woman's place is in the home and the more she is out of it the more difficult situations she creates for men to compete with.

"Not long ago women rose from the fireside and declared in a chorus that they would not be dictated to—and so they became typists," he says. "If man had glorified the household tasks and said, 'How wonderful is woman's performance of these tasks, how magnificent! Feminism would not have run wild.'"

"And about woman's new freedom. Woman hasn't freedom. She had much more freedom in the home. At least, there she had the liberty of throwing furniture about. She could vary her work with her moods. Now she has become a slave to her employer."

The last slave in the State of New York was Margaret Pine, who died in Brooklyn in 1857.

King Hears Attack Made Upon Midland

Herbert King of Midland was in Abilene last Sunday and said the Victory class of that city made fun of Midland and boasted they would beat the Men's class at the Scharbauer Hotel by a good sized majority next Sunday. King said the Abilene group gave him the raspberry about how Abilene would trim Midland.

Visitors count the same as members in the contest with Abilene. Next Sunday is the last day. Many men who have never been to the class before have promised to visit Sunday if they never come again, just to help beat Abilene. One man who stays away may cause Midland to lose, as the contest will be very close. All men of all ages not in their own Sunday Schools will be welcome, and every man and boy present will count one in beating Abilene. People all over the State of Texas are watching the contest to see if Midland actually can beat a town as large as Abilene.

YOUR CHILDREN

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON © 1930 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Spring fever? Who wants to work? Certainly not the children.

Children are our real idealists, matter of fact as they seem. The world hasn't opened up enough for them to have our jaundiced disillusion. Everything is new, magic, wonderful to them, even this prosaic old place filled with noise and dirt and cars. We like to travel, to go to Europe, Egypt, the Indies, to get our new thrills, but children do not need that. They get their thrills every day of life because there is so much new to learn.

Spring is not an event, it is an episode to children. They do not remember much that happened before they were four or five years old.

When Years Are Long

Count the years then. Say Johnny is eight or nine.

How many springs can he remember? Very few. And as a year is a long time to a child, like ten years to you and to me, he forgets the particular charm of it from one season to the next. At each new appearance of the buds, the tulips, the blossoms on the trees, he is transported to a brand new land of wonder.

Add to this the warm soft wind, the cooing of the birds—we'll you know as much as I do about spring—and what have you? Who wants to study geography, do night work, run errands, clean the cellar or wash the car? Certainly not Johnny. He wants to forget earthly things and be a part of Wonderland.

We older people can never enter entirely into the spirit world of children. Even if we were Reillys or Kiplings or Stevensons, all of whom possessed that rare gift to a marked degree, we could never quite reach the heights of the children.

Patience Is Required

For they are above us, not below, and nearer to unseen magic than we are. The transposition is but a step for them, a long distance for us.

Please do not get impatient with Son John if he wants to lie among the dandelions and dream instead of reporting at four to see what you want done, or for flying his kite up to the clouds instead of practicing his music, or for simply dandling with the crowd on the corner instead of getting home for his supper.

We used to loaf, and dream, and play, and live, in those old days of spring. It is what we love to look back to more than anything else in the world now. We

WANT AN ISLAND? HERE'S A CHANCE

LONDON.—If you're tired of city life, why not get yourself an island kingdom for nothing and set up a domain of your own?

England has three islands now which it wishes to let. One is a secluded spot just vacated by Compton Mackenzie, the famous novelist. It is the island of Jethou, a little place of 50 acres. The island belongs to the crown and the owner can exercise all sorts of feudal rights.

The other islands on the market are Bardsley, off the west coast, and St. Kilda, which although occupied for the last 1000 years, has recently been abandoned.

again today—in "Man of the World"—a strong story of love and honor. A beautiful blonde in his support. Incidentally brunettes are far easier to photograph than blondes!

This is a photographic trade secret revealed by Victor Milner, Paramount moving picture photographer, for the benefit of amateur movie and camera enthusiasts. Milner is one of the lens and light veterans of Hollywood, vice president of the American Society of Cinematographers and a frequent contributor to national magazines devoted to the camera.

"The reason brunettes are photographically superior to blondes is obvious," says Milner, who has just finished photographing blonde Carole Lombard in William Powell's new starring picture, "Man of the World." "Shadows and dark tones are what make pictures interesting. Blondes offer little contrast to the camera. Light hair, light eyes, light skin, all blend into one another, making it necessary to handle lighting so the features that give character will stand out. It takes almost twice as long to 'set up' to photograph a blonde than it does a brunette."

The public favor achieved by blonde movie actresses, such as Marlene Dietrich, Carole Lombard, Ann Harding, is due in no small part to the skill of the moving picture photographers, who study each actress separately to assure just the correct lighting, says Milner.
