Bizzell May Build New Baseball Park

Negotiations are under way for erection of a park fence and small grandstand for a new baseball park in Midland. The physical equipment of Cowden park, on the east highway, is to be moved. Elmer Bizzell is interested in preserving for the town a park, and is considering several locations for it. He says an apparent advantage can be seen in having the park within the city limits, where the high school can play and where the football men of that institution may practice in the outfield since they have no practice field within the city but that the park may have to be constructed outside the south limits.

Soviet Cargo May Face U. S. Ban

It was a voyage unique in maritime annals when the Finnish tramp ship Anversoise, her decks piled high with Russian lumber, steamed into Providence, R. I. For if it is proved that convict labor had any part in the production of her $85,000 cargo, the vessel may have to turn around and go back without unloading. The timber was sent to this country by the Soviet government as a test of a recent United States Treasury embargo against products of forced labor. Inset is Captain Arne Stenroos of the Anversoise. Consignees have submitted evidence that the lumber did not come from any of the four restricted areas in Northern Russia included in the Treasury's ban.

MIDLAND GETS 1.74 INCHES

Three-Inch Rainfall Reported at Van Horn

Hard rains that fell at Abilene, Fort Worth, Big Spring, Kermit, Wink, Rankin, Pecos, Seminole, Fort Stockton and over most of the grazing belt were reported here today. Midland received 1.74 inches Monday and today, .32 inch falling Monday, .82 today. The airport reported a rain of 2.16 for the two days. The above mentioned places reported it had been raining almost continuously for the past 36 hours. A three-inch rain fell Monday night at Van Horn, or approximately one-third the average annual rainfall of that place. Bus drivers reported it was raining every direction from Midland and as far away as their lines extend. Rain to the east as far as Fort Worth was reported, west to El Paso. Dirt roads to the north and south were soaked and little traffic came in to report on the extent of rains in those directions. Midland street gutters carried a great volume of water most of the morning, and several streets were under water. Surface water on ranches stood several inches deep in draws and sags, ranchmen said.

THE VALUE OF CONVENTIONS

Midland has at present two invitations outstanding which, if accepted, will bring here hundreds of leading West Texans for a few days in 1932. The organizations having been invited to meet here are the 41st district of Rotary International and the West Texas Laundry Owners association.

Action on both invitations is to be taken within the next few weeks by representatives of the towns and cities affected.

Conventions are valuable to a city like Midland which has ample facilities for taking care of the hundreds of visitors. The money that is spent while the visitors are here for two or three days is not the greatest benefit from such gatherings.

The visitors go away with first hand information about Midland. Sooner or later they will either be looking for a new location in which to make investments or will come in contact with others who plan to do so. Out of from 500 to 1,000 visitors, in such a city as Midland, there will be acquaintances made which will prove valuable ultimately. At least, Midland will come in for friendly recommendations by those visiting her if the people of this city show the usual Midland hospitality and entertainment.

Let's get behind the invitations for conventions at Midland. Let's have more organizations to meet here and make of Midland, with its ample hotel facilities and other accommodations, a real West Texas convention city.

DEPRESSION UP AGAINST IT

The old nation wide enemy, depression, is going to have some tough competition when farmers, ranchmen and the general run of citizens begin to reap the benefits of the general rains falling over Texas, and especially this section of the state.

Ranching, already considered as in better condition than any other industry, is receiving a better outlook each day for its continued good physical status and also for good prices. Contrary to some forms of agriculture, good rains do not help bring on lower prices in the cattle business but have the opposite effect. When a ranchman has plenty of grass he doesn't have to take just such prices as are offered.

Farmers of this area also are getting good news and good prospects for business this fall. Action of the house of representatives at Austin yesterday in passing the bill for remuneration of losses sustained in growing and marketing cotton under pink boll worm restrictions will turn loose thousands of dollars in Midland and adjoining counties, provided the bill is passed in the senate, which seems possible.

This money will go directly into the hands of citizens who not only need the money but who will use it for purposes advantageous to themselves and to the general public. The money will be used for purchasing necessities, paying debts and making crops, surely the best form of putting farm money into circulation.

Depression bids fair to run into tough barriers in the Midland area this fall. Confidence, common sense and hard work, exercised in the mean time, will bring the good months around in record time.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

The wise cracker who asked why ducks fly north in summer and answered his own question by saying it's too far to walk may mean that it is too far to swim. The past few days have been fine for ducks and I'll admit that I'm in no hurry for it to quit raining, because here is one duck that has a better chance to stay on the payroll when conditions are improving. Quack! Quack! Quack!

The city of Waco is planning a bonus of $25,000 to the first operator bringing in an oil well in that county, I have heard. I will make the same proposition to anyone bringing in a 10,000 barrel well in Midland county, provided only that I get the well.

We have a new competitor. I shouldn't give him this publicity but I am in receipt of the first issue of the Midland Mirror, published by the Ever-Ready Auto Service. Fred Wemple is sports editor. I would judge, because he jumps from pictures of a Cleveland pitcher to one of the make of tires he sells. He'll have to do his own advertising.

In the little corner of Morocco where Spain tried still to hold its power the Rifis revolted. In the mountains Mohammedan tribes congregated and defied the nation of Alfonso. An army was sent to rout them. It met ignominious defeat at Mellilla. More than 10,000 men were killed and the Spanish general, overcome by grief, killed himself.

This brought on a crisis in old Madrid. Through all Spain the people rose up and declared they didn't want war. The peasants, the Socialist workmen and the Communists turned their wrath upon the royal regime.

It was an opportunity seized by General Primo de Rivera, governor-general of Barcelona. In the fall of 1923 he led a revolt of army officers against the cabinet and proclaimed himself dictator of Spain.

On the surface it appeared as if Alfonso yielded. But actually, although he agreed to the demands of Rivera for a military dictatorship, he was planning for the future. While Rivera was restoring order in the country, Alfonso appointed General Berenguer commander of the palace troops and military advisor. This indicated the king had not submitted to the dictatorship, for the general was an arch-enemy of Rivera.

Rivera's popularity waned as soon as the value of the peseta began to fall and the cost of living increased. Alfonso was watchfully waiting and at the opportune moment appointed Berenguer dictator. The populace clamored for a new constitution, a new parliament and a newly-elected government.

Berenguer promised to make changes "soon," but that time didn't come. Unrest grew. Students rioted, Socialist and Communist labor unions joined them.

The crisis was imminent. But Alfonso had met other crises and had won. His great personal courage, his complete disregard of danger, his coolness under fire—all were points in his favor. Yet he had been denounced by the famous novelist, the late Blasco Ibanez. Other prominent Spanish writers had condemned him. He was losing his personal popularity.

His love of pleasure lowered his prestige with the people. In the spring of 1930 a serious situation developed. The student rioters caused trouble, but the flyer-hero, Ramon Franco, caused more. He was the moving power behind a revolt that threatened to spread from one end of the country to the other.

Using planes, Franco and other revolting flyers of the Royal Air Corps dropped pamphlets urging the masses to join the insurgents. Alfonso coped with that situation by sending his army officers and squadrons of soldiers to arrest the flyers when they came down at the government airport. The plan was a success, although Franco escaped.

The unrest continued, however, and when the national elections were held April 12 the overwhelming majorities the Republicans received forced Alfonso to accept the will of the people. He left the throne with dignity, perhaps the last of the Bourbons. Who knows?

SOCIETY

"Get Together" Is Motif of 1931 Music Week

A stimulation of personal music-making by the individual, through mass concerts and other big events is to be a feature of the eighth annual National Music Week, on May 3-9. The keynote of the celebration will again be active participation in music in addition to merely listening to it. With the rallying call, "Hear Music—Make Music—Enjoy Music," the observance will emphasize not only music in the home, by members of the family and friends, but vocal and instrumental concerts and other demonstrations by merged groups in which the citizens of the various communities as actual performers of music. In this way the Music Week is expected to develop the habit of musical participation such as will be continued in year-round musical activities. Suggestions for planning such mass events have been received by the local Fine Arts club committee headed by Miss Lydie G. Watson.

Those suggestions call for such local Music Week high spots as massed band or orchestra concerts; programs by community choruses or composite choirs made up of various units; piano ensemble concerts and piano performance contests; demonstrations of group piano teaching and of vocal or instrumental classes in the schools; joint programs by fretted instrument ensembles; music memory contests; recreation festivals uniting harmonica bands or rhythm orchestras, and community sings in large auditoriums.

SPORTS REPORTS

That hole in Clarence Schaubert's alley didn't get deep but when we fell in this morning we began figuring how we could get some of the other townsmen to take the hazard. "Two Gun" Holster comes along and we ask him to jump it. He didn't see the banana peel just under the surface of the muddy water and when he landed he took it again, his back to the water. And then he turned around and showed us back in!

What we can't understand is why people can't palm off their disappointments on fresh customers, rather than becomingired at the ones who point out trouble makers.

In lieu of sports, we'll have to organize an open swimming tournament. This morning, while this was being meticulously dumped out, a finger at a time it was raining so hard we couldn't tell whose car it was out front honking at us—Prof. Lackey or Court Sleno Boone. Both have habits of driving up and blasting away with their horns until someone comes out and informs them of the weather forecast.

At last we have heard Prof's favorite "Would to God I Were a Tender Apple Blossom." They say he sang it in the days that have sprained. Can't keep from remarking that Boone doesn't choose to sing, since his falsetto is not in keeping with the only song he suggests. "What a Great Man Am I." Incidentally, both are individual enough to cast shadows, as George Bernard Shaw said of himself.

Someone writes us a letter, informing us the day has passed when it is a faux pas to call a spade a spade in writing of sports, telling us we don't have to say "the Crab binged to center for one station with the hassocks crowded and then pilfered the next cushion" when we were trying to say Evers had singled with the bases full and had stolen second. The writer harks back long enough to remind that the best writer of pure English on an American newspaper is a sports writer in the north. Furthermore, our counselor says, "I remember when a hit was a bingle, clout, pole, belt, slam, wallop, sock, crash or whack, at the discretion of the writer in the press copy, but never by any stretch of the imagination, just a hit."

The baseball, by the same token, whatever that means, was the pellet, pill, sphere, globule, apple, onion, potato, radish, or tomato, or, sometimes, the cantaloupe, and to call it a baseball in print was to plead guilty of laziness or bad taste.

The above smacks of the work of Westbrook Pegler and whoever sent it in scribbled himself "etc., etc."

Incidentally, the heading of the letter sent us was "Taming the Sports Slangsters." We take it we must modify our language and exclude objectionable terms.

Bobby Campbell of the Big Spring Herald in bed with mumps. Boyce House sits on the desk of a Fort Worth newspaper. James Kelly is taking a free bath on the weather man. Henderson and Ralph Shuffler are devising a new loving cup for an all wet golf tournament. As Bloddy Cross of Angelo puts it, "All's Quiet on the Sports Front." Some wag put a sign on Clara Bow's Some wag put a sign on Clara Bow's to sleep, we are reminded, "All's Quiet on the Western Front." War

At Ithaca, N. Y., a Cornell crew is preparing for the Poughkeepsie regatta in June in the hope of repeating last year's victory. From the Pacific coast comes a challenge sent by Washington and California oarsmen, and a promise that they will not be "also rans" again this year. Syracuse and Massachusetts Tech, improving, may be hard to pull out of the place, and show

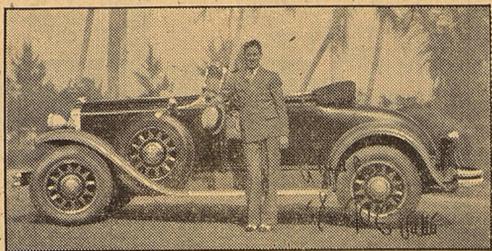

The world's lightweight championship is at stake in a bout at Chicago Stadium April 24. Tony Canzoneri will defend the title against Kid Berg, busy Britisher.

On the evening of July 3 at Cleveland, Max Schmeling will risk his heavyweight championship against Young Stribling.

Buick A Great Car, Says Rudy Vallee

Appearing in Florida recently with this speedy Buick Roadster, Vallee says it enabled him to cover much ground between engagements at Miami and elsewhere.

started next morning.

Ben Dublin ambles in ahead of the rain, with a report on the Sunday game of the Firemen and Pleasant View nine. Looking wise as though someone, not including himself, were about to get soaked, here's Ben's version of the game, too late to hit these columns yesterday:

"Schneider pitched almost shut-out ball and deserves a better game than the score shows. A single getting by Murick for three bases cost two scores and the same thing by Greenhill cost another. Shankles was in mid-season form behind the bat and hit well. The fielding of Walker of the Firemen was sensational, and he made almost impossible stops and catches.

"Crawford played his usual good game in centerfield, pulling down some long drives that had tickets for another county. Florey started the game for Pleasant View and got by for three innings with only one score. He was relieved by Osborne after his wildness filled the bases in the fourth, however. Osborne retired the side without a score. Butler opened the fifth with a long home run over the left fielder's head, which started the Firemen on their way to scoring.

"Florey had plenty on the ball but was wild as a March hare. While he allowed only one run, he was the losing pitcher. J. Jones was the only Pleasant View player to get the range on Schneider's delivery, collecting three of the rural team's hits. The Terrible Bennis Bizzell was held down, as was Elmer."

What kind of game does Elmer pull out at his farm? Ben informs us he served lemonade to the motley crowd that lined up cars around the diamond as though the affair were being played at Cowden park. "We all enjoyed the Bizzell hospitality," he summed up.

Sports are opening up with a bang. Says William Braucher of the NEA:

And now a lot of big things are happening or about to happen in seven outdoor sports as spring swings into summer.

The baseball races have begun. Boxing is getting ready for two championship fights. In the colleges of the east and west oarsmen are pulling for Poughkeepsie. Two great intercollegiate track meets are in the making. Golfers are getting ready for the British Amateur and Open and the Ryder Cup, American Amateur and American Open on this side of the ocean. Davis Cup battles are just ahead in tennis. The bluebloods of the turf are training for the Derby and rich prizes in the north.

GOLF as the STARS Play it by ART KRENZ SLICES

What causes a slice?

The player who shoots around 100 and is bothered by a slice may find the cure in the above illustration. One of the most common mistakes the average golfer makes is the mistake of getting the body and hands ahead of the club. By doing this you hit the ball while the clubhead is at a distinct angle, causing it to fade to the right.

Jones, Hagen, Voigt and other stars of that caliber keep behind the ball until the clubhead meets it. One should get the feeling of the club drawing the body through rather than the body drawing the club.

honors they enjoyed in 1930. Late May and early June will see the I. C. 4-A games in the east and the N. C. A. A. track and field meet in Chicago. These will bring out such stars as Wykoff from the Pacific coast; Sentman, the Illinois hurdle champion, and Churchill, the University of California javelin king.

Track and field events this year have an added significance in the light of the Olympic games that will be held at Los Angeles in 1932. America's scoring possibilities will be better known after the two national meets.

On May 18, the first of the great golf tournaments will be held at Westward Ho—the British Amateur. George Voigt and other Americans will try to pick up where Bobby Jones left off, but they bear the knowledge that there is plenty to do. On June 1 the British Open will be held at Carnoustie, Scotland. On June 26 and 27, the British Ryder Cup team will try to beat an American team at Columbus, O. Not many miles away, at Toledo, on July 2, 3 and 4, the National Open will be fought, with Jones for the first time in years a spectator. The National Amateur will be played over the Beverly course at Chicago, beginning August 31.

This is the first year of international tennis without Tilden since the tall Philadelphia started his reign more than 10 seasons ago. In the place of the veterans there will be young men, Frank Shields and Sidney Wood, teaming up with Johnny Van Ryn, Wilmer Allison and George Lott. The matches will continue for two months and a half, beginning the first of May.

The turf world is turning its eyes toward Churchill Downs, where a big question will be asked of Equipoise in the Kentucky Derby May 16. The horse that promised so much as a two-year-old, thrown in to competition with such horses as Mate, Twenty Grand, Vanderpool and other high-class thoroughbreds, clearly would demonstrate greatness by winning at Louisville. The Belmont, the Arlington Classic and the American Derby are other rich purses that await the decision of flying heels and crouching jockeys.

More ice was consumed in 1930, a year of general business depression and the keenest mechanical refrigeration competition, than ever before, according to the National Association of Ice Industries, says Mr. Ambrose, local manager of the Southern Ice & Utilities Co.

Newspapermen to Be Guests of Paper

LUBBOCK, April 28.—All newspaper publishers and editors in West Texas are to be guests of the Lubbock chamber of commerce at a luncheon at noon on Friday, May 14, the second day of the West Texas chamber of commerce annual convention, according to Chas. A. Guy, of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Details of the affair for the newspaper people are in charge of a committee of which Mr. Guy is chairman. Special invitations to the luncheon and the program that will be given in connection with it will be sent out within the next week, he says.

The program will be made up largely of entertainment features and will be presented in a way, Guy declares, "to make those who attend glad they came."

STAMFORD REUNION

STAMFORD — That the second annual Texas cowboy reunion to be staged in this city June 25, 26 and 27, will be a larger and more interesting affair than the initial one given last year, is indicated in the manifestations of enthusiasm for it among local people and those received from folks in various parts of the country.

ATTENDING SPIRITS

MARION, Ohio.—This city's progressive committee is composed of several live and five dead men. The dead, among whom are the late President Harding and Dr. Sawyer, his physician, serve "in spirit" in a drive to make the city larger and improve its public holdings.

BREEZY BREEZE

CHICAGO.—One of those winds which this "Windy City" is noted for hit Lucy Galvin the other day. Lucy heard her dress flap behind and then felt unnaturally cold. She turned around and saw the garment flying down the street in two pieces. She made a mad dash for a nearby furnishing shop and was glad to pay the cover charge.

RADIO GREAT HELP

WASHINGTON.—Radio is a great bid in helping pilots along the transcontinental route across the United States now. The aeronautics branch of the U. S. department of commerce reports that a radio range beacon service is now in continuous operation along the route from New York to San Francisco, and that there are 21 broadcasting stations in the chain.

"Men on Call," Featuring Edmund Lowe and Mae Clarke, Depicts the Valor of Men Who Go Down to Sea

"Down to the sea in ships" is a phrase that always brings to mind the inherent call of the sea, but "Men on Call" is a phrase describing accurately the guardians of the sea and its shipping—the heroes of the U. S. Coast Guard.

Theirs is a service devoted entirely to the cause of humanity. As such, it forms fitting material for "Men on Call," the Fox movietone dramatization of the lives of Coast Guardsmen which is brought to the audible screen at the Ritz theatre today, with Edmund Lowe, Mae Clarke and William Harrigan in the featured roles.

Directed by John G. Blystone, who megaphoned "So This Is London," the story of "Men on Call" deals with a member of the Coast Guard who joined the service to escape from a misunderstanding in love. He is befriended by the captain of the Coast Guard station to which he is detailed, and their friendship grows throughout the term of his enlistment.

Drama enters the situation when the girl in the case reappears and

At the County Library

If you are one of the many who enjoy Western stories, you will like "Whispering Range" by Ernest Haycox. Haycox has been called a good substitute for Zane Grey, "Whispering Range," while not quite so thunderous as Grey's stories, has all the elements of the true Western tale. It has a hero, Black Dave Denver, who plays a lone hand against his enemies—and wins. It has a villain who is attractive and who indulges in repentance just enough to make us like him. For good measure there is plenty of cattle rustling, ambushing, and shooting.

NEW AIRPLANE TIRE

Stream-lined so that it presents much less resistance to the air, in flight, than any other existing type of airplane tire, the new General Streamline airplane tire, which has been in development for more than a year, was announced today.

The U. S. army air corps has cooperated with the General Tire company in the development of this new type of tire, which was tested, under army air corps supervision at Wright Field, Dayton.

The tire was announced only after its superiority over previously existing types of airplane tires had been demonstrated by these tests and by others conducted by the Daniel Guggenheim School of Aeronautics at New York University and by the bureau of aeronautics at the University of Michigan. Aerodynamic tests of every kind, including wind-tunnel test, were successfully passed, many with double the favorable result that had been anticipated.

In the general shape of a triangle, the narrowest part of the tire is at the tread. Uninflated, the tire is an exact triangle. When inflated with air pressure of only 10 to 15 pounds, it take on somewhat more the form of a parabola.
