U. S. OFFERS PLAN TO WITHDRAW NO CREDITS FROM GERMANY

PROVISION MADE THAT OTHERS AID

Strict Economy Set For Company as A Provision

WASHINGTON, July 22. (UP)—The United Press was informed by good authority today that leading American bankers have agreed not to withdraw advances, deposits or credits from Germany for the present, providing bankers of other financial powers act similarly.

The bankers thus tentatively have accepted Hoover's latest proposal to safeguard Germany's financial structure.

It is estimated that of the $1,250,000,000 credits extended Germany fully half is held by United States.

Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary Mellon yesterday submitted Hoover's proposal to England, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Japan.

Hoover's latest plan provides that international bankers maintain their existing credits while Germany takes strict economic measures.

WEBB TO ADDRESS BAPTIST CHURCH; ALSO MENS CLASS

Ollie B. Webb, widely known lay speaker, will make three addresses in Midland next Sunday. He will speak at 9:45 to the Men's class at Hotel Scharbauer to men of all denominations and no denomination and will speak at 11 o'clock and again at 8:15 at the Baptist church to whomsoever wishes to hear him.

Webb is assistant to the president of the Texas & Pacific Railway company with offices in New Orleans. He is said to be the best known layman church speaker in the south, and is called to many of the largest cities in the south to make addresses. His speeches are usually brief, pointed, humorous in places, and adapted to the practical business man and woman. He always has large audiences, and extra large crowds are expected to hear this widely known business leader next Sunday.

Membership Grows In Local Chamber

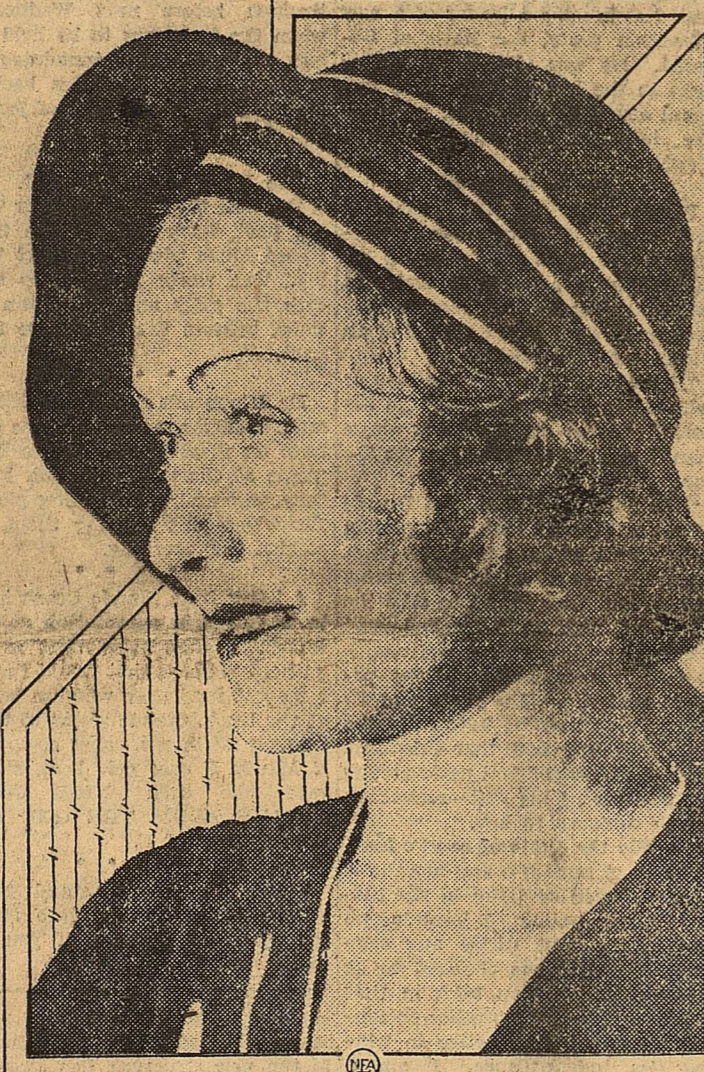

The Scharbauer news stand is the newest member of the Midland chamber of commerce, and is the third volunteer membership in Midland this week. The membership for the news stand was taken out by Miss Mildred L. Etnridge, manager. Miss Etnridge and the other two new volunteer members, A. J. Florey and J. A. Tuttle all declared they wanted to do their part in the unified effort of the people of Midland, as expressed through the chamber of commerce to build up this city and surrounding territory. Less than 5 per cent of the business firms of Midland are not members, and some of this 5 per cent plan to join shortly, they have said.

The demonstrators sought to dislodge members of the cabinet from accepting posts in the government formed by Frisco Gana.

Farmer's Good Crops Show Effects Brains and Energy

"As far as the human eye can see, nothing but cotton."

This is almost a true statement of the Dublin cotton plantation four miles south of Midland. At a point in the center of the 1,600 acres little else can be seen except cotton and grain sorghums.

The big farm is managed by J. C. Miles. Those having unbounded faith in farming at Midland say that Miles is living evidence of the declaration that brains and energy are all that is needed for a farmer in the Midland country to be successful.

Miles lives at home. He raises and cans vast quantities of peas, beans, corn and other vegetables. He sells chickens, eggs, turkeys, ducks, and has plenty of them to eat, to boot. As side lines he raises goats and has one of the finest jersey herds in West Texas. Miles is the kind of farmer who gets top prices because he will permit only quality stuff on the huge farm. His milk brings a premium. His cotton is pedigreed, some seed having cost him $2.50 a bushel. He is this year raising Grohoma, a new hybrid grain sorghum said to be much better than feterita, the increasingly popular feed crop of this area.

When Dulin Bros, wealthy family of Fannin county, offered Miles the management of the farm, he declined, but finally came to Midland to look the place over. He saw the possibilities and immediately took the job, and has made a citizen of the community, as well as an expert manager for his employers, neighbors and friends say. Dulin Bros have such faith in Midland as a farming country that they have refused $50 an acre for this place, which is 300 per cent more than the land cost them.

The place this year promises a big yield of cotton and grain sorghums. The corn crop, for this country, is making a good yield. This plant upon Miles management is an eye-opener and startles Midland people who ride over it.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 22. (UP)—An old Spanish treaty gives Oklahoma jurisdiction over Texas banks of the Red river, Governor Murray said today in reiterating his determination to open the free bridges.

He said the treaties had been upheld even by the United States supreme court and empower Oklahoma to move highway department employees into Texas and force rangers to move barricades.

Murray said he has the law on his side and is determined that the bridges shall be opened.

Armed rangers continued to guard the Denison bridge. Denison citizens protested the barriers in a mass meeting last night.

MORE THAN 100 REGISTERED FOR ROTARY BARBECUE

Committees in charge of the Rotary club's chicken barbecue, to be held Thursday evening at Cloverdale, estimated that more than 100 would be present, from the number of registrations made up to this morning.

Members of the club, their families and friends will enjoy a chicken barbecue and picnic at which there will be no program. Percy J. Mims, J. E. Hill, Malcolm Meek and Ralph M. Barron compose the committee in charge of the affair.

PERMANENT SITE FOR CAMPING IS TOPIC OF SCOUTS

Before the largest attendance ever recorded for a boy scout executive board meeting, the matter of selecting a permanent summer encampment site was discussed Tuesday evening at a special dinner in the Settles hotel, Big Spring.

Following an outline of an offer made by Balmorhea, presented by K. M. Regan, mayor of Pecos who acted as spokesman, it was decided that an official vote of thanks from the council be given Balmorhea and that the offer be tentatively accepted. Only such matters as committee inspection of the proposed camp site and the clearing of minor technicalities must be attended to before a 10-year lease with privilege of option will be taken, it was generally said.

The camp site lies in the rugged Davis mountains near Balmorhea. The nights are cool and the country is scenic. Plenty of water adds to the natural advantages of it as an encampment spot, a delegation of Balmorhea residents said. A 10-year lease as proposed would cost $500, which might be paid at the rate of $50 a year, preferably $500 down. Or the owner would take $250 down, the balance after six months.

Erection of permanent buildings at the site came in for a variety of opinion, it being generally conceded that now is not the time to consider that matter.

The Rev. John Thornton of Coahoma, the oldest scout in point of service in the United States, pronounced the invocation. Coke Williamson, scout executive, read the minutes of the last meeting, and these were approved quickly. He then reported that 366 scouts had been in camp during the summer session and that, for the second time in the history of the council, slightly more than $400 was cleared during the period. A motion made by P. T. Quast of Sweetwater, seconded by the Rev. Winston F. Boren of Pecos, resulted in this account

KLAPPROTH TO PRESENT IN SPEECH

Club Members and Families to Attend

The spotlight of civic attention will be focussed on the official opening of the Lions club wading pool at Cloverdale this evening at 6 o'clock.

In the absence of Mayor Leon Goodman, City Councilman P. J. Mims will accept the pool in behalf of the city from District Judge Charles L. Klapproth, who will present it in behalf of the Lions club.

Master Fred Gordon Middleton will accept the pool on behalf of the kiddies of Midland.

Lions and members of their families have been invited to the dedicatory services to be held this evening. The regular luncheon hour of the club was changed from 12 o'clock at noon to the gala affair at Cloverdale.

Lion Thomas Inman and his select group will furnish music for the group.

The wading pool is constructed of reinforced concrete and is of the latest design, plans of which were drawn by Contractor L. L. Butler and Lion Harry L. Haight.

Spokesman for the Lions club have expressed the confidence that their venture is the beginning of the construction of several such wading pools over the city.

Horses Added as Riding Increases

Horseback riding has become so popular at the Midland riding club that the Floyd stables now have eleven horses in service. Women patrons have increased in numbers, resulting in the bringing in of several gentle, quiet mannered horses.

The race track, used as the principal bridle path, is not being ridden on this week, due to rains Monday. Riding parties are taken principally across the pasture country south of Belmont addition. Practically all brush has been cleared from the tract, making it an admirable bridle path.

GOVERNOR WITNESS IN PROBE

Overproduction Said Fly in Petrol Ointment

AUSTIN, July 22. (UP)—Governor Ross Sterling, appearing as the first witness before the senate investigation of the oil industry, today said he thought the pipeline rates were too high and should be reduced.

The executive's first statement was that the oil business is in much worse condition than farming or any other industry. He urged enactment of legislation to alleviate the situation.

Sterling said that oil is selling at 10 per cent of a fair price and added that the chief trouble in the industry is overproduction, in answer to questions asked him.

The governor denied that the price of gasoline is high compared to the price of crude oil.

Attacks Majors AUSTIN, July 22.—Collapse of the Texas and national oil structures was caused by "unwise and shortsighted advisors" in the East Texas field, Robert E. Penn, chairman of the Texas Central proration committee testified before the house of representatives in its investigations of the oil industry. Penn had referred to Carl Estes, Tyler editor, and other leaders in the movement against the railroad commission's proration orders.

Penn denied statements made at the morning session that the oil market had been demoralized by the majors who had forced the price down to run the independents out of business. The allegations were made by T. F. Hunter, independent oil operator of Wichita Falls.

The senate will start a separate investigation of the oil industry. A resolution was adopted yesterday giving the state affairs committee broad powers to subpoena witnesses and records. Lack of information on which to base legislative action was given as the cause of the senate inquiry. The house investigation was undertaken to determine the truth of charges the oil industry was controlled by monopolies and trusts and the price of oil forced down by agreements in restraint of trade.

Third Inquiry The senate investigation was the third to be authorized, the house several days ago having instructed the attorney general to investigate the industry and file suits if any violations of anti-trust laws were (See STERLING RAPS page 6)

STRICKEN TOWN TO GET RELIEF; PLANS FORMED

HENRYETTA, Okla., July 22. (UP)—Plans for immediate enactment of relief measures for supplying food and employment for 500 destitute families were completed here today.

Mayor Barclay Morgan announced that $1,000 had been raised by local subscription to be used immediately. Also, Governor Murray had donated $300 with more promised.

"One plan of the relief is to employ and make payment in food instead of money."

The Red Cross has announced plans to establish an emergency station to care for acute cases.

THE BILLBOARD MENACE

The campaign against the roadside billboard has been in operation for a good many years now; but sometimes a weary citizen is compelled to wonder if anything but axes and sticks of dynamite will ever rid the highways of these commercialized scenery destroyers.

The American Nature Association recently issued for the National Council for the Protection of Roadside Beauty a little booklet surveying the roadides of California—one of a series of surveys which so far have covered five other states. It is a discouraging but useful little pamphlet.

California probably has as much natural beauty as any other state in the union, if not more. Furthermore, California's citizens are eager to make their roads as attractive as possible, and have spent a great deal of money in beautifying them, planting long stretches of trees and shrubs to hide scars of construction or relieve monotonous vistas.

But the booklet contains some dismal pictures. We see beautiful Mount Shasta, for instance, rising above a long row of blatant billboards. We see huge advertising signs flanking a road that leads to another snow-capped mountain. We see another sign rearing its ugliness in front of a state-planted grove of trees along another highway. We see one stretch of road containing 14 billboards in a fifth of a mile. We see billboards erected at dangerous curves, where there should be nothing to distract the motorist's attention from the roadway. We see miserable, sign-dotted filling station shacks in and near national forests.

What are we to do about this problem, anyway? It seems almost impossible to devise laws that will cover it. Not even the enlightened attitude of California's citizens has saved the state from billboards. Public sentiment so far seems to be powerless.

The only remedy, it may be, is to keep harping on the subject until every motorist takes each billboard as a personal insult. That might get results and save the country.

NINETY-FIVE A DAY

Unless there is a sharp drop in motor vehicle fatalities in the second half of the year, 35,000 Americans will be killed by automobiles in 1931, according to figures just issued by the Travelers insurance Company. This will be approximately 2,000 more than were killed in 1930, and would make the loss of life average about 95 a day for the whole country.

If we could once appreciate the gravity of this situation we would undoubtedly be moved to do something about it. But the figures somehow fail to move us. We can't translate them into reality.

If some nation-wide epidemic were killing 85 people a day we would insist on speedy and drastic action. But it's only automobiles—so we do nothing, and the toll goes a little higher each year.

COURTEOUS DRIVERS

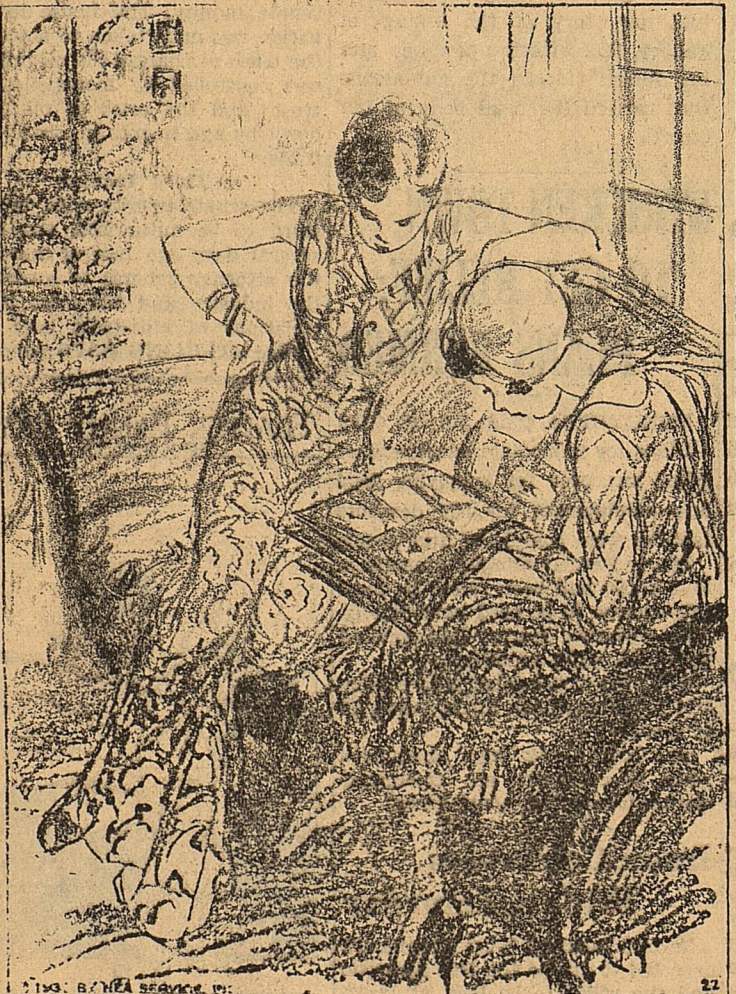

Probably the greatest aid to highway safety would be education in highway courtesy.

There are a few courteous drivers of automobiles and trucks. It is difficult to explain, but it is fact nevertheless. Psychologists should be studying the problem, for lack of common, ordinary courtesy is unquestionably the chief cause of all automobile accidents.

A gentleman, who, under ordinary circumstances, would step aside to give a lady elbow room, when he sits behind the wheel will crowd and even curse the lady who drives another car. And two gentlemen behind steering wheels appear to be natural enemies; the gentilities are gone; there is just a mad rush to see who gets there first, and the devil take the hindmost. (He frequently does.)

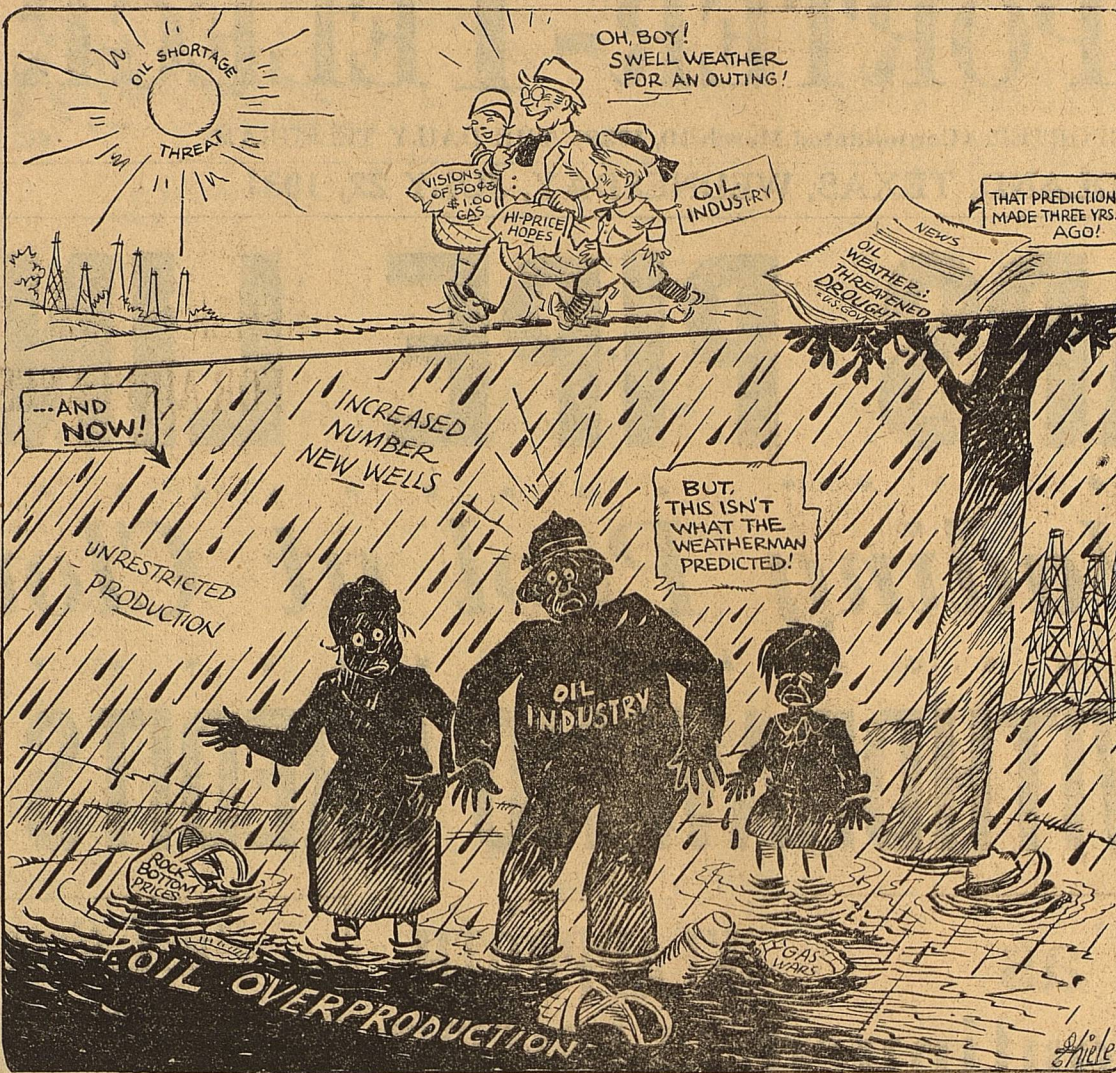

Automobile associations, schools and newspapers should collaborate in teaching the courtesies of the highway. Drivers' license laws would do much to cut down the appalling toll of life, as might compulsory liability insurance laws. But the chief factor in highway safety is, and always will be, just common, every-day courtesy.

Control of Children Is Real Concern of Italy

Marching, miniature rifles in hand—these members of the Balilla, Fascist youth organization, are being reviewed by Benito Mussolini—who takes this method of insuring a good crop of Fascist in the next generation.

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Writer

LONDON.—To the average American reader, puzzled by the recent sharp notes exchanged by the Vatican and the Fascist government of Italy, the situation can be made clear in one sentence:

It is a battle for the souls and minds of the children of Italy.

Both Pope Pius XI and Benito Mussolini realize that the children of today are the citizens of tomorrow. The Pope wishes them reared in the Roman Catholic church. Mussolini wishes them before all to be good Fascists. The Pope maintains that the citizens of tomorrow can be both good Italians and good Catholics. They can render to Caesar what is Caesar's and to God what is God's. Mussolini is concerned first of all with the part that belongs to Caesar.

The quarrel between them started in this way: Mussolini, with an eye to the future, is enrolling as fast as he can all the children and youths of Italy into various Fascist organizations. The Church enrolled the children in the Azione Cattolica. The Azione Cattolica had over 800,000 and was growing fast.

Held a Political Body Suddenly the Fascist state pounced down on the Azione Cattolica—Catholic Action—and practically forbade it to go any farther. It was held that this body was largely political in its aims and that, thereby it came into conflict with the purposes of the national state. The Pope denied the accusation.

STICKLERS

that the Azione Cattolica had a political character. The possession by that body of banners, badges and membership cards was not peculiar to political organizations, he said, but could be seen throughout the world in sporting, professional and other organizations.

Everything, said the Pope, pointed to the existence of an intention to monopolize young people from earliest childhood to the exclusive advantage of a party on the basis of what openly amounted to pagan worship of the state.

Looking to the Future Italian papers, standing close to the governmental regime, re-asserted that the Azione Cattolica was by all means an organization for political action. It was not the church and was not even necessary to the church's spiritual life.

Whatever the truth may be as to that, there is no doubt that, outside of the Young Communist organizations maintained by the Bolsheviks in Russia, no country in the world has so active a propaganda organization as that maintained and fostered by Mussolini and his government. The whole powerful machinery and resources of the state are actively at work to make of the children and youths of Italy good Fascist Italians. It is a shrewd and clever move to perpetuate the Fascist regime.

Many adults of Italy today are nominal Fascists by necessity, by fear, or by an eye to the main chance. Mussolini aims to make the nation by passionate conviction.

It is estimated that over 1,800,000 of the flower of Italian childhood and youth are enrolled in his organizations.

The children's legions are enrolled in the Balilla. There used to be 490,000. Now there are 780,000. They used to be mainly boys between 8 and 14. Recently children from 6 to 8—270,000 in all—were enrolled. Girls as well as boys are enrolled. Not only the fathers of the next generation, but the mothers as well are to be formed good Fascists.

Better Cannon-Fodder

Walk out any sunny Sunday morning into the lovely Borghese Gardens in Rome and you will see children and youths, black shirted, bareheaded, carrying Fascist banners and singing Fascist songs.

But there is something more to this than mere attack by mass psychology. Fascist Italy wants strong men and women, so there are athletic exercises and contests. It wants future soldiers. So when they are of a suitable age, the youths are trained in military exercises to make them good material for the national army. So cleverly is this done, that swarms of them, when called to the colors, choose the navy and the air forces—a new phenomenon in Italy.

But Mussolini is after the minds of youth, as well as desiring to train their bodies. In over 900 communes there are libraries.

No community is without a Balilla movie house where films made by the government subsidized movie firm are on display. The movement is keenly selective. All those youths who show special aptitudes for higher studies are sent, often with the financial aid of the organization, to the universities, the musical academies and the art schools. Those who show a preference for manual labor are sent to technical schools where they are trained for trades.

Those who are specially interested in agriculture are sent to schools where scientific farming and gardening are taught. Mussolini aims to make good Fascists of the farmers and the workers as well as of the intellectuals of tomorrow.

Children's Camps

Being a keen psychologist and knowing how all children love to camp, he has seen to it that the various Balilla branches have spring and summer camps all over Italy. Poor children, who are members of the Balilla, get a holiday in these camps for nothing. So do the children of Italians who live in other lands. They are thus taught to love the home country.

So important is all this work considered, that it is directly under the

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

Charles Pergler Is Determined to Be Recognized as a Citizen of Czechoslovakia, Which He Helped Win Its Independence, Even if He Has to Take it up at the Hague

WASHINGTON.—Mr. Chas. Pergler, who is sometimes called "the man without a country," does not like to be called that and will not be called that any longer than he can help it.

Pergler used to be a lawyer in Iowa and is now lecturing on American constitutional law and international relations at a university in Washington. But he has been an important figure in the politics of Czechoslovakia and insists that he is a citizen there even though a Czechoslovakia electoral court has said he is not.

He is an interesting type, square-faced and genial, only slightly grayed and apparently in his forties.

He was born in what is now Czechoslovakia, but his parents came to America and he was graduated from Chicago's public schools. He returned to his native land when his father died but then came back to the United States in 1903, becoming first a journalist, then a naturalized American citizen and a lawyer in Iowa. He left practice when the war broke out to join the now President T. G. Masaryk in the Czech independence movement. With creation of the republic, Masaryk named him minister to Japan.

"The necessary oath of allegiance meant forfeiture of my American citizenship and that was a precious thing," Pergler says. "But I yielded to President Masaryk's assertion that the country of my birth needed me and became a Czechoslovakia citizen when I took the oath. I am still a Czechoslovakia citizen."

Pergler lost the diplomatic job but since has become a leader of a new opposition party, the National Socialist. He was elected to Parliament in the last election. The national electoral court later excluded him, however, declaring he wasn't citizen.

"There Is No Liberty" Pergler says the Czechoslovakia government is a reactionary oligarchy, the court which denied his citizenship is a political tool and that its ruling was designed to help Premier Edward Benes get rid of an uncompromising critic.

"There is today no liberty, civil or political, in Czechoslovakia," he declares. "Press censorship is worse than it was under Austria before the war."

"The unheard of action of the alleged court caused such an explosion of public indignation that this body, subservient as it is to the ruling powers, has been forced to take the matter up again. The so-called court is elected by Parliament and consequently is a committee of the political majority. The nature of its rulings may best be judged by the fact it has often held that a deputy's expulsion by a political party results in forfeiture of his seat—something clearly contrary to law.

"Legally the electoral court's finding is sheer nonsense and morally it is an unheard of thing in the history of any nation. I know of no case in the past where any self-respecting body has declared to be a non-citizen a man born in that country, possessing no other citizenship, who had been active in winning its independence. I am a Czechoslovakia citizen for all purposes except holding a parliamentary seat and the proper authorities admit that I am even a duly registered voter in Prague."

Will Appeal to World Court

Pergler was "teaching" constitutional law in this country, however, a month before he was elected to Parliament in October, 1929. He then sat for a year and a half in the chamber at Prague, serving on the foreign affairs committee and making speeches, especially about foreign policy. He says the Benes forces admitted that the electoral court's recent ruling would have been different had he "behaved properly."

"Proper behavior," he says would have meant abject service to the dictatorship. The court vote was on strictly party lines.

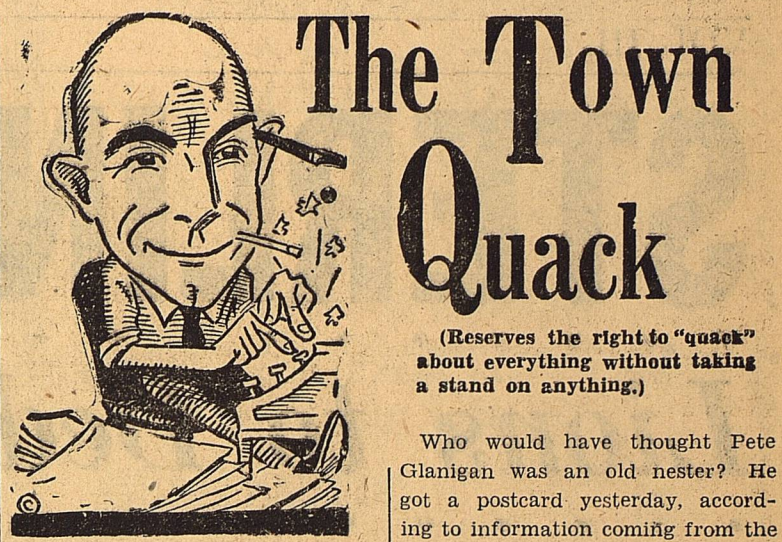

Contending that barring of a deputy by "brute force" is an incident of international significance and that his Czech citizenship is guaranteed by the peace treaties, Pergler promises:

"If the action of the 'court' is made permanent I shall protest to all the signatory powers and I shall not be surprised if one or more of them submit the problem to the Permanent Court of International Justice at the Hague."

So the conflict between church and state in Italy goes on—a contest for the winning over of youth.

Biggest Children's Class Here

Forty miles every Sunday Will M. Midkiff travels to gather his Sunday school pupils. The picture shows 29 pupils, all of whom rode at one time on the Ford coupe.

The class was organized in April, 1929. Of the six charter members, two, Mary Kinnebrew and Erin Cox, are still members.

The class is called the True Blues. The organization adopts cripples and shut-ins throughout the world for the purpose of cheering them. It has one correspondent in England and several in various states.

Six members who have a perfect attendance record this year are: Lura Bryan, Doris Tedford, Mary Kinnebrew, Carmen Powledge, Margaret Kuykendall and Goldie Wood. The class meets each Sunday at 9:45 in the First Christian church. Midkiff invites all children of first year junior age not attending Sunday school elsewhere to join the class, the biggest in Midland.

FAMED ACTOR ON SCREEN HERE HAS NO ROMANCES

"Nothing ever seems to happen to me," explains George Arliss, star of "The Millionaire," the latest Warner Brothers picture showing now at the Ritz theatre. "I have always been the despair of theatrical press agents."

"I have friends whose lives seem made up of exciting moments. I know men, and women, too, who cannot even go out to buy a newspaper without coming back palpitating from the effect of some startling experience--while I go out, praying for adventure, and the only thing that happens to me is that I lose my way--which I almost invariably do."

This is the remarkable confession of a man who has enjoyed more honors on stage and screen than any contemporary actor of his times. Although Mr. Arliss may think he is poor copy the fact remains that everything he says and does is considered news in two countries.

So is the fact that he appears now in a modern American comedy, written by Earl Derr Biggers with dialogue by Booth Tarkington and with a supporting cast that includes Mrs. Arliss Evelyn Knapp, David Manners, Noah Berry, James Cagney, Tully Marshall, Ivan Simpson and J. C. Nugent.

MUST WATCH HIS STEP

BALTIMORE.—Alonzo Slaymen, of Baltimore county, owns a lot of land bordering on a public highway, and all the ground between, belongs to a real estate agency. A quarrel over trespassing on that foot of ground took both Slaymen and the agency to court. The Maryland court of appeals ruled that Slaymen cannot step over the intervening foot without trespassing.

IT'S NOT YOURSELF

HOUSTON.—No matter how safe a driver you are, always count on carelessness on the part of another motorist. Tom Hernandez has a broken arm today because he tried to drive safely and forgot about the other fellow. He held out his arm to signal for a turn. A truck struck the arm, causing a double fracture.

ACE FORECASTS HIGHER SPEED FOR AIRPLANES

NEW YORK, July 22. (UP).—Col. Eddie Rickenbacker, American World war ace and now an aircraft company official, forecasts that the winning plane in the coming Schneider cup races at Cowes, England, will travel at 400 miles per hour. He also foresees an air speed of 500 miles per hour or more within the next two years.

Rickenbacker made these predictions at the Society of Automotive Engineers' meeting.

The Schneider cup races and similar speed events along the same line are the proving grounds for fast airplanes, just as the Indianapolis race events have become the proving grounds for many automobile improvements, he said.

"Events of this type furnish the incentive for the development of fast planes needed in time of war," he declared.

The Rev. and Mrs. Geo. F. Brown left Tuesday afternoon for Abilene where they will visit friends for a few days.

Sheriff A. C. Francis, here yesterday from Ballinger, returned there this morning. His brother, W. A. Francis, prominent citizen of Ballinger, is seriously ill.

aces of 328.64 miles an hour, was made last year by Flying Officer Henry R. D. Waghorn of the British team. The United States did not have an entry in the race, and, from present indications, will have none this year either.

"The building of racing planes requires a great deal of money," Rickenbacker pointed out, and said that "the public's money should support our entry." The funds are needed for research and it is his contention that no individual, or corporation, should be expected to carry on the work alone when the whole public will benefit from the improvements and knowledge gained.

The famous war-time flyer said that a cruising speed of 200 miles an hour is essential and will be developed in the future, and the continent will be crossed in 15 hours in regular service.

Rickenbacker also asserted that there is a growing need for larger and cheaper aircraft engines and predicted that engines of 24, 36 and 48 cylinders may so be developed for aircraft.

TRAPS BUZZARDS

BAY CITY.—A buzzard trap recently built at a cost of $7 on the Hawkins ranch in eastern Matagorda county caught 140 of these birds in the first two days of operation. So obnoxious had the buzzards become that they had practically ruined one of the wind mill watering places on the ranch and were a torment to young livestock, according to F. O. Montague, county agent, with whose aid the trapping was begun. The buzzards caught were killed in the trap with a .22 rifle and piled up and burned.

The trap was built 14x14 feet and 4 feet high out of light poultry wire stretched over 8 or 10 2x2's, and the funnel constructed at one end of the same wire and some old cast off pieces of steel picked up at the shop. Jack rabbit and armadillo were used for bait but were soon changed to Brahma calf to produce sufficient odor to attract the buzzards. Seventy birds filled the enclosure each of the first two days of operation and more would have been caught, Montague says, had the trap been larger.

Dear Easy, Well old pal, by the time you get this I guess I'll be on my way. I guess you have really fallen for this house & have always wanted to come back & marry her instead of always running around & getting in scrapes & anything you were married to her once before only they did you dirt & I don't want to interfere as I'm your pal.

Well old pal, I guess this is pretty long winded for me. I never expected to see you marry some Bon Bon. I always thought you would get shot. Well I never guessed that your Dad ever ran for the U.S.A. senate either - I always thought you were only a bum like me because you never comb your hair I guess.

Do not try & find me, I am doing what is best for your own good as I would only get you in scrapes again.

Best wishes your old pal

ROTATION NEEDED

COLLEGE STATION - The best way to invite diseases of truck crops is to grow the same crops on the same land year in and year out, says Dr. J. J. Haubenhaus, chief of the division of plant pathology, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Crop rotation is just as important in truck farming as in growing field and fruit crops and constitutes a chief method of controlling disastrous diseases, he says.

Many truck crop diseases are carried with the seed, Dr. Taubenhaus points out, and adds that "many of these may be eliminated by using disease-free seed and by seed treatment with organic mercuries or other dips made of mercuric chloride or formaldehyde."

Traces of a forgotten snake religion evidently practiced by ancient inhabitants of the island of Crete in the Mediterranean sea and perhaps the beginning of the many myths of serpent wisdom, "snake mothers," and so forth, have been discovered in excavations near the ancient Cretan city of Knossos.
