LEGISLATURE READY TO ADJOURN

WIFE SLAIN; PERRY IS CAPTURED

Wisconsin Man; Long Sought; Found as Red Worker

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20. (AP). A man identified by police as George W. Perry, alias Frank J. Moran, known as the "marrying brakeman," wanted in Eagle River, Wis., for the murder of Cora Belle Hackett was in city prison here today because the man "with the best memory in the police department" likes detective stories.

Known as Moran Moran, as he was known here, is business agent for the International Brotherhood, a communist organization, and figured in an automobile collision recently. Inspectors James Johnson and Richard Hughes went to Moran's office to get his version of it. While talking to him Johnson, the man with the good memory, took mental notes.

"Bald head. Deep chin dimple. Ear lobes close to neck. Scar under right eye. One eye covered by cataract." These were the notes tucked away in the detective's mind.

Yesterday Johnson was reading a detective story magazine, all about Perry and the six women he had "married," only one of them legally, all about the murder of Cora Belle Hackett, July 6, 1930, near Lac du Flambeau, Wis., and a photograph of Perry was in the magazine.

"Where have I seen that face?" mused Johnson. All last night he pondered on it. Today it came to him in a flash. Out he went to "Moran's" office and arrested him.

Held for Milwaukee Authorities in Milwaukee were notified and police here were instructed to hold Moran and advised officers were enroute to take him back to Wisconsin.

Moran has a wife here, Marie Gutierrez, a native of the republic of Salvador. She refused to believe the things said about Perry and the man denied all knowledge of Perry, the murder or previous marriages.

The arrest of Perry ended a nation-wide search, launched late last summer after the finding of Mrs. Hackett's body. Perry, reputed to have a legal wife in Chicago is said to have married an undetermined number of others bigamously. His practice, according to police, was to desert his illegal brides after obtaining their money.

When search for him was started police several times were close to him in a chase which led through Missouri and Arkansas where his trail finally was lost.

While the story was in the headlines at that time numerous women throughout the country reported they believed they had been victimized by the man.

Father Dies Soon After Mother Dies

On her way to New Orleans, where her mother died Sunday, only to get an intercepting message here this morning that her father, with whom she lives in California, had died late last night—that was the experience of Mabel Elizabeth Watts, 24, Long Beach.

Miss Watts did not learn the particulars of her father's death, but attributed it to heart disease. He was grief stricken at the loss of his wife, who was staying with another daughter in Louisiana at the time of her death.

"I don't know which way to go," the daughter said. She took a bus to the east.

"Dead Man" Revived After Crowd Gathers

Reports that C. C. Wagon "found a dead man" on the Big Springs-Midland road Tuesday were erroneous, Watson said.

"I found a man lying on his face," Watson said, "about a couple of miles from Midland. But he was not dead. He was revived and it was learned that he had not eaten in four days. He was a Frenchman who lives in Louisiana, and had been hitch-hiking."

Watson turned the man over on his back, and a woman stopped her car and gave the man a whiff of aromatic spirits of ammonia. Then he was carried by another motorist to Big Spring.

MIDLAND STUDENTS ASKED TO APPEAR IN CONCERT AT SUL ROSS COLLEGE ON SATURDAY NIGHT; HUNDRED WILL TREK

A concert Saturday evening in the auditorium of the Sul Ross Teachers college in Alpine for the Midland high school band, glee and choral clubs has been arranged through negotiations with the superintendent's office of the high school following an invitation by President H. W. Morelock of the teachers college.

Plans include leaving Midland early Saturday, a stop at Fort Stockton for lunch and a street concert, thence for Alpine, where the party will appear in concert, spend the night and have breakfast on Sunday. The motorcade would then return through the Davis mountains, picturesque Limpia canyon, Fort Davis, one of the most colorful towns in Texas, visit the old forts used as outposts before the establishment of Texas as a republic, and thence to Midland Sunday afternoon.

A telegram from President Morelock this morning offered room and breakfast for 100 students. Superintendent Lackey was advised that a letter explanatory in detail, followed the telegram.

The invitation to appear before Sul Ross students in concert followed the return to the college of the president from a visit in the Midland high school auditorium recently, at which time he spoke to students.

"I have seen boys' and girls' glee clubs, choral clubs and high school bands throughout the state," he wrote, in effect, "but have never seen a better organized musical system than that in effect in the Midland high school. It would give the faculty and students of Sul Ross genuine pleasure to be hosts to the Midland organizations the night of Saturday, May 23, if the date is acceptable to you."

A motorcade will have to be made up in order to transport the students, Supt. Lackey said. He anticipates no trouble in getting the desired number of automobiles.

SPECIAL SESSION UNLIKELY

Sterling Approves Bills, Others Discarded

AUSTIN, May 20. (UP). Adjournment of legislature Friday seemed assured today.

Only a few members were in favor of extending the session to May 29, according to a poll conducted by Representative I. J. Burns of Brady.

Bills Approved

AUSTIN, May 20. (UP).—Governor Sterling today filed approval of 26 bills among which was the resolution for submission of a constitutional amendment to combine the offices of tax assessor and collector.

Extra Session Heard

AUSTIN, May 20. (AP).—Rumblings of a special or an extended session were heard frequently in capitol corridors Tuesday as the legislature settled into the home stretch leading to adjournment at noon Friday.

Two proposals were pending in the senate, one calling for an extension to May 29 and the other proposing that the houses stand recessed from May 22 to June 22 and then resume deliberations on bills not acted upon at the end of present session. Doubt was expressed by several members in both the house and senate that either proposal would get very far, it being reported there were 80 members in the house pledged to oppose any extension.

While several regarded a special session as likely, it was generally believed it would not be called before next fall if the appropriation bills were disposed of by the end of the regular session. Representative Sanders of Nacogdoches, chairman of the house appropriation committee, said he believed agreements would be reached on the appropriation bills in time for action before Friday noon.

The house today suspended the 72-hour rule to permit consideration of senate bills on second and third reading. With the adoption of the suspension approximately 400 house bills were sent into the discard. Included in the bills was one to strengthen the oil proration powers of the railroad commission and another to legalize amateur boxing.

The oil proration bill was introduced in a last minute effort to improve oil conditions. It was bitterly opposed by operators in the East Texas field.

THE INTERNATIONAL BANK

The Bank of International Settlements, known by the simple abbreviation "B. I. S.," or better known as simply the International Bank, which is the most unusual, most extraordinary and most interesting bank in the world, is just now rounding out its first year of existence which has met with phenomenal success, having deposits of more than $400,000,000.

This financial institution is the "baby bank" of the Young Plan organized for the purpose of keeping German reparations out of politics and international finance out of the hands of those who might resort to questionable maneuverings. This bank, with its headquarters at Basle, Switzerland, has total assets of approximately two billion Swiss francs. Twenty-four countries participate in this bank which handles the currencies and investments of 27 nations. At present its financial dealings extend from Tokyo to New York and may eventually reach into South America and around the globe.

As to its unusualness, there isn't any money in the headquarters of the international bank. This institution has no vaults, no cashier's cage and money is the last thing that officials ever see or handle. Yet this bank, which opened its doors on May 20, 1930, is in many ways the most important bank in the world.

Death Recalls Strange Career of Carroll Livingston Riker, the Engineer and Inventor Who Lived in a Tree Top and Who May Have Been One of the Geniuses of His Age

WASHINGTON.—Old Mr. Riker was carried down from his home in a tree on an isolated Virginia hilltop and died two or three days later.

A few persons gathered for his funeral at a small undertaking parlor here. They included an elevator man, several other employes from Capitol Hill, a man from the American Engineering Council and a congressman.

That was the end of Carroll Livingston Riker, who may have been one of the great geniuses of his age. He was engineer and inventor, originator of stupendous projects such as other engineers may be developing a hundred years hence. He proposed to change the climate of the hemisphere by harnessing the mightiest ocean currents; he aspired to alter the future of the great Mississippi valley. His breath-taking programs were so simple and so carefully planned that they often fascinated the sanest and soundest of men.

Built Mississippi Model

Mr. Riker was the white-haired, browned but fragile gentleman, often seen standing by that enormous model of his Mississippi river flood control plan in the Senate office building basement. There the water flows down from Cairo to Cape Girardeau through a miniature of the immense three mile wide, 500-mile long Aiker spillway and into the gulf. Riker's brain made the Father of Waters a canal. His towers, red stoplights, water gates, power houses, levees, conduits, reservoirs, highways along levee tops with toy motor cars and great ocean liners plying up to St. Louis for two or three years have enchanted the guests and denizens of the capitol.

Bent by age but lucid in mind and speech, he operated his model and explained everything to everybody in minutest detail. Quite a few capitol folk developed a deep affection for him. Since 1914 when he assured congress that a "terrible catastrophe" in the Mississippi was certain unless the government's "levees only" flood control policy was abandoned, this man had persistently denounced the army engineers in masterpieces of invective fit to delight any lover of words.

Foresaw Huge Profit

Riker explained to all comers how his spillway would run the river in a new straight line through swamps and cheap land, how great power dams would be built, locks installed to permit ocean commerce, capacity provided to handle twice the historic peak of the river's waters, muddy banks replaced by sites for docks and warehouses, levees built 70 feet high with 100-foot top width and 300-foot base from earth removed in digging drainage canals on each side of the spillway, how the cost would be two billion dollars but how the first five years would show ten billion dollars of profit through enhanced land values, power development, prevention of flood loss, highway and railroad beds and so on.

The old man spent his last years working night and day to promote the plan. Senator Frazier of North Dakota gave himself whole-heartedly to Riker's fight for a full investigation of the plan by a commission of civil engineers. Riker had a large house near Falls Church, Va. But alongside he built himself a pretty little green dwelling held 20 feet in the air by a tall tree-stump. It was his home for three years—a place with a bedroom, sunparlor, electricity and electric heat. His heart trouble was increasing and Frazier, perhaps his best friend, sometimes drove out and besought him to move into town. At last the old man's condition became desperate; friends brought a physician persuaded him to let himself be removed down the ladder and carried into civilization to die.

Designed Ship Hull at 17

Born on Staten Island in 1854, well tutored, Riker studied current and wave action in oceans and rivers as a boy. At 17 he designed the hull of the steamer Castleton, for years the fastest thing running around New York harbor. At 20 he designed and built the first refrigerating warehouse, then installed the first trans-Atlantic refrigeration and made lots of money in the enterprise until the packers drove him

Talkies Add New Handicap to Millions of Hard of Hearing.

One of the most interesting improvements in behalf of the handicapped that has taken place in recent years is a gradual extension of permanent installations for hearing devices in churches and theatres.

When silent motion pictures represented the only type available people who were hard of hearing found them particularly attractive as places of entertainment. Then came the talkies and most of the pleasure in attendance at motion pictures disappeared for these handicapped people.

In the meantime, it had been found that many people with certain types of deafness can hear well provided they have the assistance of suitable hearing devices. Unfortunately such hearing devices demand special equipment which is not generally available.

When these facts were brought to the attention of owners of various places of public instruction and entertainment, particularly in Chicago, they decided to co-operate and to install the necessary equipment. There is in Chicago today one theatre in which 20 seats have been provided for the hard of hearing. When the deafened people come to this theatre they merely sit at the box office and are provided with ear phones which are plugged into the electrical connection on the special seat.

A half dozen theatres devoted to talking motion pictures are similarly equipped. Many churches have provided the necessary equipment in the form of electric connection and head phones.

Tests have been made of thousands of school children and it has been found that many of them who are considered deaf have slight remains of the hearing apparatus. It is necessary to educate these rem-

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

They tell one of those stories of how cold it gets up at Amarillo and how the wind blows. I just heard this one:

A stranger from the east had just arrived at an Amarillo hotel when a norther struck.

"Does it ever snow here?" he asked a cowboy who was sauntering about the lobby.

The cowboy told him it never did, but in a few minutes it began to snow.

"I thought you said it did not snow here," the stranger said.

"It never does," said the cowboy, "but right smart of snow does pass through here now and then."

A gangster in Chicago had been given $200 to bump off a fellow and had demanded the money in advance. Later, the man who was supposed to have been killed was seen on the streets and those who hired the gangster protested.

"Don't get hot in the collar," the gangster said. "I'll do the right thing. The next one is on me."

"I don't like that mutt you've been running around with," a man told his daughter.

"Well, that's all right. He's not so keen for you," she replied.

Who was the wise bird who said a waffle was a pancake with a nonnants promptly, otherwise the portions of the brain devoted to the sense of hearing become quiescent from disuse and the longer the time of re-education is postponed the more difficult it becomes.

In an address on this subject, Mrs. L. Pelton, who has been actively concerned in securing installation of hearing equipment, emphasized the fact that the normal child hears for more than a year before it begins to imitate the sounds that it hears in the form of speech.

Great progress has been made in the teaching of lip reading to the hard of hearing. The combination of education in hearing and speech education and lip reading and the provision of suitable devices for those who hear with such devices means a much happier world for these handicapped people in the future.

It has been estimated that there are at least three million children in the United States who have defective hearing. Early attention to their defects is important from the economic point of view, since the provision of suitable education will make them better able to earn a living for themselves and to live normal social lives in the future.

Gliders, like airplanes, are growing larger and larger, and a sailplane with a wingspan of more than 90 feet was constructed in Germany recently by Robert Kronfeld.

Quarter-Million Smokes a Minute

Every minute American cigarette factories turn out more than a quarter of a million cigarettes on the average, according to estimates based on cigarette production figures for 1930, compiled by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. These figures bear witness to the increasing popularity of the cigarette, which is attributed by authorities in the industry to the removal of harmful irritants by the toasting process...

HONOR SEASON IS HERE

when the city figuratively lifts its hat to the greatest investment it knows--its boys and girls who have completed their school year.

Special honor goes to the 56 who have completed their high school course, those who are poised on the brink of completion and the problem of beginning again.

We offer congratulations, wish them success.

We can only add that, as they leave the city schools that fostered their early educational career, we wish them even greater success as they shoulder their way into the classics offered in the courses of those institutions of higher learning.

ject to corrosion and at the same time adds about 25 per cent to the strength of the wing. A monoplane with the new wing construction is now undergoing test flights at the field.

The wing was developed by Fleetwings, Inc., a concern headed by three young engineers, Carl De Gahl, N. O. Robinson and R. C. Bergh. The metal used is of the same weight as steel, but, as used in this wing, has a tensile strength of close to 190,000 pounds to the square inch, which is some three times the strength of ordinary structural steel. Because of its great strength, it is possible to use this metal in thicknesses of from 15 to 65 one-thousandths of an inch. The metal is cut into strips and these are shaped on special dies into tubing and piece having a modified U-section. The tubing, cut to length, and the other small sections are assembled and the whole is welded together by the electric spot welding process, for which a special machine was constructed.

The ability of the new type of frame to withstand vibration was strikingly demonstrated in the tests that were conducted under instructions from the Department of Commerce before the Department, approved the new wing ribs. In this test the frame was put into a testing machine, half its design load was placed on it by hanging lead weights along the seemingly slight members, and a shaft was so arranged that the entire frame was made to vibrate through an amplitude of a thirty-second on an inch. The Department of Commerce required that the frame withstand ten hours of this vibration. The machine going at a rate of 1150 vibrations a minute was kept in motion for fifty hours, after which the frame was subjected statically to its full designed load to see whether it had been weakened in any part. The frame showed no signs of any weakening and then was put on an actual plane.

TELEPHONE COMPANY KNOCKED OFF PERCH BY SUD BUSTER CLUB

NEWSPAPER, NAIL SACKERS TIED FOR FIRST

Once more the playground ball league is unsettled. The De Luxe laundry Sud Buster hoodlums put the Bell Telephone company loopmen on the spot Tuesday afternoon, when Jones hit three homers out of four trips to lead his mates to a 25-18 triumph.

The game leaves the Midland Hardware Nail Sackers and The Reporter-Telegram tied for top. Both teams have one more game before the half is completed, the Nail Sackers playing the Texas Electric Service Thursday or Friday, The Reporter-Telegram Gossip Mengers meeting the Scruggs Buick Valve-in-Head team this afternoon at 6:30.

Yesterday's game was peculiar, in that the laundry completely got the goat of the telephone company, so that the Bell boys got rattled and a bit hot and bothered. All the while, Jones was hitting the ball so Godbey and McCrary began their match Monday, but the wind storm interrupted.

Stubbeman must play "Doc" Brown, who has been ill; Godbey must play McCrary and Alvon Patterson, and McCrary must play Godbey, Patterson and "Doc" Klapproth.

Bill Fritz forfeited to Brown Tuesday afternoon when he was not able to be at the court in time for the match.

Two clubs that call themselves Panthers and Bobcats bowled Tuesday evening in what is known as the twilight bowling league. From the chart we see the Bobcats were getting their fingers in the ball with a bit more accuracy.

Kiersey tells what athletes say and do behind the scenes has a strange fascination for all fans. In baseball there are many dyed-in-the-wool fans who never leave the entrance to the home team's club house until the last player has gone. Many of them would make a big sacrifice just to get one peep into that forbidden stronghold of lockers, rubbing tables, showers.

Let's have a glimpse of the Chicago White Sox club house after a recent victory. Donnie Bush, White Sox manager, dresses with the players and discusses the game with them like a player, not a manager.

Pat Caraway, beanpole southpaw who pitched the White Sox to victory, is having his arm rubbed by Buckner, faithful negro trainer.

inning. Three were chalked up in the second and eight in the third inning. In the fifth inning, two more runs were chased across. In the last inning eight more runs were started and completed.

The telephone company started out characteristically, collecting seven runs in the first inning and scoring in every inning thereafter; but they could not hit for the extra bases when extra bases meant the difference.

"Buckner always sticks with a winner," yelled Ted Lyons, who has been laid up with a sore arm. "He won't even rub my arm until I win a game."

The White Sox made six errors and yet won, 2-1. Everybody had something to say about that.

"I had to laugh when Fatty dropped that ball," smiled Caraway, who was referring to Fothergill, Sox left fielder.

Bush perking his head up and dropping his underwear to the floor said: "Well, I didn't laugh. I nearly fainted. I would have committed murder if I could have put Fothergill's head in a vice just about that time."

"I couldn't see that ball," Fothergill said. "The wind blew it away from me, I guess."

"How did you catch that ball?" someone asked Watwood, Sox right fielder.

"The ball hit me right here in the chest," said Watwood, pointing to a red spot on his chest. "I never saw it. I just got where I thought it was and it hit me and rolled down into my glove."

"I can miss the easiest chances of anybody that ever was," drawled Luke Appling, rookie shortstop from Atlanta.

"Yes, but you can get some hard ones," sympathized Tommy Thomas.

So the talk goes on and on about what happened in the day's game and how.

Around the walls of the clubhouse are pictures of past and present White Sox stars. There are none of the famous team of 1919—the Black Sox who sold Comiskey out in the world series against the Cincinnati Reds.

Above a mirror where the players comb their hair hangs the strangest sight of all—a replica of the inscription over William Shakespeare's grave. It reads in old English script:

"Good friend for Jesus' sake Forbare, To Digg the dust enclosed here. Blesse he Ye man ty spares the stones, And Curst be he ty moves my bones."

The players rush out, some by themselves, others in pairs and groups to run the gauntlet of autograph seekers. So it goes for baseball players for 154 days of the season, except when it rains.

Rough dry 6c per pound and nothing finished. All pieces neatly folded. DeArman Laundry. 707 South Weatherford. Phone 537. 60-5p

GOLF as the STARS play it by ART KRENZ

Why must the left hand be in control of the backswing and the start of the downswing?

The left hand is the guiding factor of the swing. When the right overpowers the left, the clubhead can't be kept along the line of flight. It turns sharply inward toward the left, cutting across the ball and imparting a spin which sends the ball to the right of the fairway. Much of this slice is due to too little use of the left hand and arm.

Let the left hand and arm dominate the backswing and the start of the downswing. Don't let it be overpowered by the right.

Tomorrow: Should the right hand grip the club over or under the shaft?

Scout Troop Now 21 Years of Age

BIG SPRING.—Troop 1, Boy Scouts of America, was organized in Big Spring 21 years ago. At a court of honor held at the First Presbyterian church, Steve Ford, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Ford became the first boy scout of that troop to receive the recognition of Eagle Scout. Dozens of spots received classification and merit badges at the court of honor, which was conducted by B. Reagan.

J. H. Smith, of Troop 2, the first to become an Eagle scout in the entire Buffalo Trails area was given the gold and silver palms, a significant award. Other awards were to Lawrence Liberty, star scout; Dale Jennings and Benny Murray, first class badges; second class badges were given to Sam Petty, Harvey Hooser and Clarence Alvis. Merit badges were awarded Fred Coleman, Benny Murray, Lawrence Liberty, Steve Ford, Jr., J. B. Bender and Woodrow Cameron.

COULDN'T DO WITH OR WITHOUT HIM, SO TAKES POISON

Rather than live without her husband, Rosalia A. de Wright, 36, 710 Tornillo, swallowed poison Tuesday while sitting in her automobile at El Paso.

Physicians said her condition was critical. David M. Wright, her husband, filed suit for divorce Monday, according to his attorney.

Mrs. Wright attempted a reconciliation Tuesday morning. Witnesses told Policeman H. R. Dieter and W. A. Wilson that Mr. and Mrs. Wright were sitting in a truck on the streets of El Paso, talking.

Swallows Something Suddenly Mrs. Wright raised a bottle to her mouth and swallowed something. Wright was seen to remonstrate with her.

Police were called but Mrs. Wright drove away in her automobile before they arrived. About two hours later they received a call. Mrs. Wright had fallen in a stupor across the steering wheel of her car.

"I couldn't live without him, and I begged him to come back to me," Mrs. Wright told Dieter and Wilson.

Wanted to Die "We couldn't seem to get along. He didn't think I was a good mother to his children. "I couldn't live with him and I couldn't live without him. I didn't know what to do. Life didn't seem worth living."

In Wright's petition for divorce, it is charged that Mrs. Wright didn't know how to care for his three children by a previous wife. They argued continually during the four years they were married, the petition read.

Congressman Writes Thanks to Midland

Expressions of appreciation to Midland people for courtesies while in Midland to deliver the baccalaureate sermon Sunday to the senior class of the high school were found in a letter this morning from Hon. Fritz Lanham, congressman, to W. W. Lackey, superintendent.

"I want to thank you and the good people of Midland for the many courtesies extended me during my delightful visit to your city," he began. "I had a most enjoyable drive and I trust that my feeble words may be of some service to that splendid graduating class."

"I was much impressed with those youngsters and am expecting great things of them. Please remember me especially to Mr. J. E. Hill and thank him for his kindness in looking after me during much of the day."

The congressman spoke on "Arbitocracy of Service."

Juarez to Have No More Saloons

There will be no new bars opened in Juarez. Orders from Gov. Andres Ortiz of Chihuahua to Mayor Baltazar Adame stated that no more bars permits are to be issued to saloons, cantinas, or cabarets in Juarez, or along the border.

"There are 140 licensed drinking places in Juarez now," Mayor Adame said. "There is no pressing need for any more."

Richards Soloes Student Right off

Leo Martin, Sweetwater youth, taking flying instruction at the Sweetwater municipal airport from T. J. Richards, a licensed transport pilot and mechanic, who formerly was connected with Sloan field, Monday afternoon took his first solo flight after only two and one-half hours of instruction.

Martin, one of a dozen Colorado and Sweetwater students at the airport, has been studying aviation for some time and recently when Richards started the school he was one of the first to sign up for instructions.

His solo flight was considered unusual because of the fact that the average student requires about ten hours of instruction before he can solo, but Martin had had only two and one-half hours tutoring from Richards.

Richards said that the student handled the plane very well and that while there was still considerable instructions to be had, that Martin was making fine progress with his work.

Martin intends to purchase a plane after he has had his 10 hours solo flight which is required before he can obtain a private pilot's license.

Harry Phelps is the only other Sweetwater student taking instruction from Richards, but he has several students from Colorado and one from Fort Worth.

Richards received a letter this week from Manuel Fernandez, Havana, Cuba, a student at John Tarleton college, Shenandoah, who probably will take instruction when the 1930-31 session is ended.

Truck Pulls Two Cars of Tourists

When money played out, tourists in Midland this morning resorted to a unique method of continuing their way from Atlanta to the western seaboard.

J. L. Kinney, Mrs. Kinney and flock of children, a young man named Esum, two girls, Pat and Bobb O'Slaughter, and Jack Benedict drove into Midland with two battered autos, a heavy truck and almost flat pocketbooks. This morning they held a council of war and decided to hitch on to the truck and be towed the remainder of the distance, pooling their money so they could eat on the remainder of the distance.

To Bobs goes the credit for the suggestion. She believes she can win a place in the hearts of the big shots of the movie industry, or so she said. A chestnut blonde with a neat chignon and eyes like Juno is reputed to have carried as standard equipment—a she might be thinking in terms of prophecy, or she might not.

At any rate, the truck pulled the two cars and flat pocketbooks out of town this morning.

How far it can continue being locomotive is another matter.

Daniel Green Says

"Don't sacrifice prestige and good will for price."

This we will not do and shall maintain and continue to handle only quality merchandise. But we do want you to know that in most lines that we sell, Good Merchandise is lower in price than in many, many years.

In fact, there are some lines that are lower than ever before.

Silks are cheaper today than history has ever recorded.

Staple cotton sheets, towels, etc., are lower than in years.

$5.00 buys a better shoe than in many years.

$10.00 buys Stacy Adams $15.00 Shoes (close outs).

$6.00 and $7.50 buys Packard Shoes that sold at ten and eleven dollars just a few months back.

$1.00 buys the same silk hose that was a dollar ninety-five a short time ago.

And so all through the stock there is reflected the results of lower prices.

We do want you to know that this store offers you these savings and that we want your patronage and any time we do not have what you want we will "break a leg" (if necessary) to get it for you.

"Trying to serve you better"

THERE'LL BE SOMETHING NEW TOMORROW

EVERY time you feel like muttering "There's nothing new under the sun," take up your daily paper and read through the advertisements. Chances are, you'll change your mind. Here's a new wrinkle in sanitary plumbing . . . there's a new kind of carpet that should have been thought of long ago . . . here's a decidedly better way of washing delicate fabrics.

These things concern you intimately—they affect your life and the manner in which you live it. They are new things under the sun. And advertisements are the arms with which they reach out and touch you. Read the advertisements regularly. There'll be something new tomorrow . . . and the day after . . . and the day after that. Something you wouldn't want to miss.
