HIGH SCHOOL BAND, GLEE, CHORAL CLUBS ON CONCERT TRIP

MOTORCADE WILL LEAVE SATURDAY

Concerts at Alpine, Fort Davis and Fort Stockton.

Alpine bound! The 50-piece band, the choral and glee clubs, boys and girls, of the high school will chug out of Midland at precisely 9 o'clock Saturday morning for a concert at Alpine, brief programs at Fort Stockton and Fort Davis, and a trip through the scenic Davis mountains.

The Alpine concert will be given Saturday evening in the auditorium of the Sul Ross Teachers college.

Twenty-five cars will be necessary for making the trip, which will be unusual from standpoint of relaxation for students who have just finished their school year, and unusual from a standpoint of publicity that will result to the school and town.

A meeting will be held at the high school at 8:30 Saturday morning. The procession of motor cars will be lined up behind the automobile of John Howe, who will lead the motorcade at the rate of 35 to 40 miles an hour to Fort Stockton, where lunch will be eaten. A short band concert will be played there. The motor cavalcade will then start rolling for Alpine, where dinner will be taken.

The concert will be given and 100 students will be given dormitory room. They will have breakfast on Sunday morning through the courtesy of President H. W. Morelock of the college.

The return trip will lead through Fort Davis, scenic Limpia canyon, the ruined forts that are as picturesque as the Alamo, and various other sight-seeing spots.

"A great opportunity for every one, children and grown-ups alike," Superintendent Lackey said, this afternoon. "I sincerely hope that every family will consider giving its children this chance of seeing some of the wonder spots of the Southwest."

The superintendent said that cars are needed, and that calls to the high school building this afternoon, telephone number 287, would be appreciated from those who will take a car of students. Or Mr. Shifflett may be reached after 6 o'clock at his private number, 208. Mr. Lackey may be reached at 481 after 6 o'clock.

Reynolds to Train Polo Ponies Here

Plans for establishing a training and marketing center for polo ponies at Midland are under way by J. O. Reynolds, veteran horse dealer, who has moved back here from Venice, California. Reynolds has been engaged in the polo horse business in that section for the last ten years. He lived in Midland for a long time and hopes to build up an active trade in polo horses here. He was busy this week looking for a home with a small pasture on the outskirts of the city. Mrs. Reynolds arrived last night from California. Their daughter, Mrs. Howard, and her small son, are here also.

Visitor Praises Interest in School

Dr. T. S. Cartwright of Van Alstyne, here this week end visiting his daughter, Miss Marion Cartwright, complimented Midland highly on the co-operation between the citizenship and the schools. He said the city shows unusual interest in education of her young people and that the cooperation was seen in the effective work accomplished.

Dr. Cartwright has lived in Van Alstyne since 1887 but comes to West Texas frequently, hunting in the Davis mountains and fishing on southwestern Texas streams. "I like to play around in West Texas. It is a most interesting country," he said.

WACO, May 22. (UP)—Judge W. H. Jenkins, secretary of the Baylor university board of trustees, denied today that overtures had been made to Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of Oklahoma university as a successor to the late Dr. Samuel P. Brooks. No action will be taken until Tuesday, it was declared.

Report Bizzell Favored WACO, May 22. (UP)—Selection of a successor to Dr. Samuel Palmer Brooks, late president of Baylor university, was believed imminent today, according to an announcement at a meeting of the board of trustees here Tuesday.

Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the University of Oklahoma was reported to have been offered the position. He said he would decide today.

Neff Is Mentioned Men intimate with educational affairs in Texas, in Midland this week, expressed individual opinions as to filling the position vacated by Dr. Brooks' death. One said that he expected the position to be tendered to the Hon. Pat M. Neff, railroad commissioner of Texas and chairman of the board of trustees of Baylor university.

Another expressed the opinion that Neff was being held in reserve for another major position in Texas and that hence his name might not be considered.

A Midland man, in central Texas last week on business, heard the names of Neff, Bizzell, Dr. T. D. Brooks of Baylor and Dean Sims Allen of Baylor mentioned for the position, but expressed the opinion that Neff would lead as choice for the place.

56 Graduates Given Diplomas; Special Awards Given

Commencement is a borderland state where one pauses to remember the experiences of the past and catch his breath for a drive into the future. United States Senator Tom Connally told 56 graduates of the Midland high school in a literary address Thursday night.

The speaker spoke almost one hour on "Quo Vadis," the famous question propounded by Peter to the Christ as the apostle fled the scenes of Roman carnage following apprehension of secret rendezvous of Christians.

"Where are you going?" has come to be recognized as the question that has burned before the eyes of men down the centuries, he said, "and it will be your challenge throughout the remainder of your lives—always chiding the mind bent on mischief, encouraging ambition, serving as a beacon to him who fell with his face in the dust."

Midland Truck Growers to Offer Plenty of Products

Truck growers of Midland are viewing with anxiety the local market for vegetables, melons and all garden products.

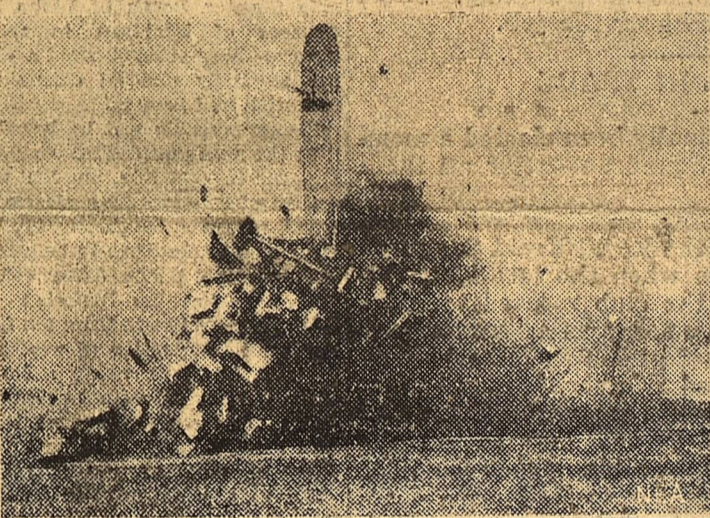

Increased acreage both by former truck growers and new men entering the business will produce more vegetables and melons at Midland than ever before in this history of the city, according to leading growers. M. O. Prestridge, for example, has five acres in vegetables. These five acres will produce as much as probably 500 persons will eat. Paul Spencer has five acres, two of which are in various vegetables and three in sweet potatoes.

Growers point out that with the cooperation of Midland grocers in buying their products, they can get from under the slavery of cotton growing and can support their families. Some of the men who produce garden products, poultry, etc., declare that if the Midland grocermen will buy from local producers, the local producers can buy more from the grocermen, dry goods merchants and others.

2 DEATHS CHARGED TO CLARK

Held for Murder of Politician and Newspaperman

LOS ANGELES, May 22. (UP)—David Harris Clark, former deputy district attorney, was held without bail charged with murdering on Wednesday, Charles Crawford, politician, and Herbert Spencer, newspaperman.

Clark was prosecutor in the Clara Bow vs Daisy Devoe trial and was a candidate for municipal judge.

He surrendered last night after three persons had partially identified him as the third man in the office of Crawford when the two were shot to death late Wednesday.

District Attorney Buron Fitts issued this statement shortly before Clark surrendered.

"David N. Clark is the man we are seeking for the murders of Crawford and Spencer. From the information I have just received I have reasons to believe that he may have committed suicide."

Identify Pictures Chief Taylor said George Crawford, brother of the slain man, Mrs. Lucille Fisher and Ray J. Radke, employes in Crawford's office, said pictures of Clark bore a likeness to the man who entered the office and killed the two men after a lengthy conversation.

Detectives immediately rushed to Clark's home but he could not be found. Mrs. Clark was brought to police headquarters for questioning. Simultaneously, District Attorney Fitts said he possessed positive information Clark was the killer.

The sudden turn of events that drew Clark into the investigation came after detectives had found a check marked "insufficient funds" which had been given to a sporting goods store by Clark in payment for a $38 calibre gun.

On the heels of Taylor's statement the Rev. Gustave A. Briegleb, pastor of the church Crawford attended and who was with Crawford when he died, said he asked the dying man last night who shot him and Crawford gasped "Dave".

Clark recently resigned from the district attorney's staff. Fitts said he requested his associate's resignation. Clark became a candidate for a municipal judgeship but was defeated and police said Crawford had opposed his campaign.

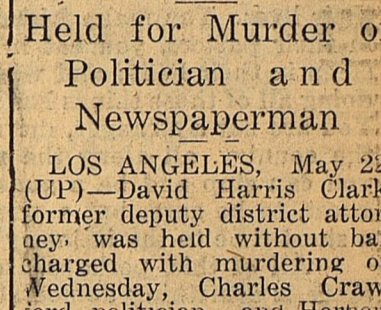

Mrs. Clark said she had not seen her husband since Tuesday, when he drove away promising to return to keep a dinner engagement. On Wednesday she reported to police her husband was missing and said (See PROSECUTOR page 6)

A FRIENDLY "INDUSTRY"

A good many years ago the French and Germans had a contemptuous way of calling the English "a nation of shopkeepers." Any American who takes a motor trip during his summer vacation must wonder occasionally if the United States will not soon be called a nation of inn keepers.

There hasn't been any especial increase in the number of hotels, to be sure. But the main highways through the nation are dotted today with an almost infinite number of private homes where tourists can hire rooms for an overnight stop. In many of them meals are served as well.

No one has ever counted these places. The number must be high in the thousands. On a well-traveled road one can count scores of them in an hour's drive. And the surprising thing about it all is that most of them are very good places to stay. As a general thing they are clean and comfortable, and the people who run them are friendly.

Here is a new industry, born of the automobile, whose annual gross income must be very large. But it is not as a new industry that it is interesting. It is a new social custom, a new manifestation of modern democracy; as such, it is worth a little study.

When you travel about the country and stop overnight at these "Tourists' Rooms" places, you get a new and intimate contact with your fellow citizens. You get to know them, however briefly, and you get a glimpse into their lives. You make friends with their children, you sit in their parlors, you eat in their dining rooms and you sleep in their beds; and when you move on you feel that doing all of those things has been an enjoyable experience. You are not a stranger, driving through a strange part of the country, all along the road there are houses where you can stop and be a guest for a few hours—a paying guest, to be sure, but a guest nevertheless, admitted for a short time to the intimacy of the family circle.

All of this, perhaps, isn't especially important. Yet there is something democratic and friendly about it that warms one's heart. It is reassuring to discover that this far-flung, utterly informal "industry" has not found a lot of rules and regulations necessary; to learn that traveler and host can take one another at face value and that it is only very rarely that either has cause to regret it.

The automobile already has done a great deal to break down provincialism and misunderstanding. These important roadside inns are finishing the job.

BUT HE'S STILL IN TRADE

So Sir Thomas Lipton has finally been elected a member of England's Royal Yacht Squadron—after all these years!

Sir Thomas has been England's best known yachtsman for a long, long time. But the Royal Yacht Squadron would have none of him. Even when the late King Edward VII interceded for him, the club refused to make him a member. Sir Thomas, you see, was a "tradesman"—and hence the aristocracy could not recognize him.

Now he is in, a duly qualified member. It may be that his years and his honors have taken the cure off the fact that he has earned his own living; or it may be that the English aristocracy is loosening up a bit. Either way, the mere fact that he was excluded for so long casts a revealing light on the mental attitude of the upperclass Englishman.

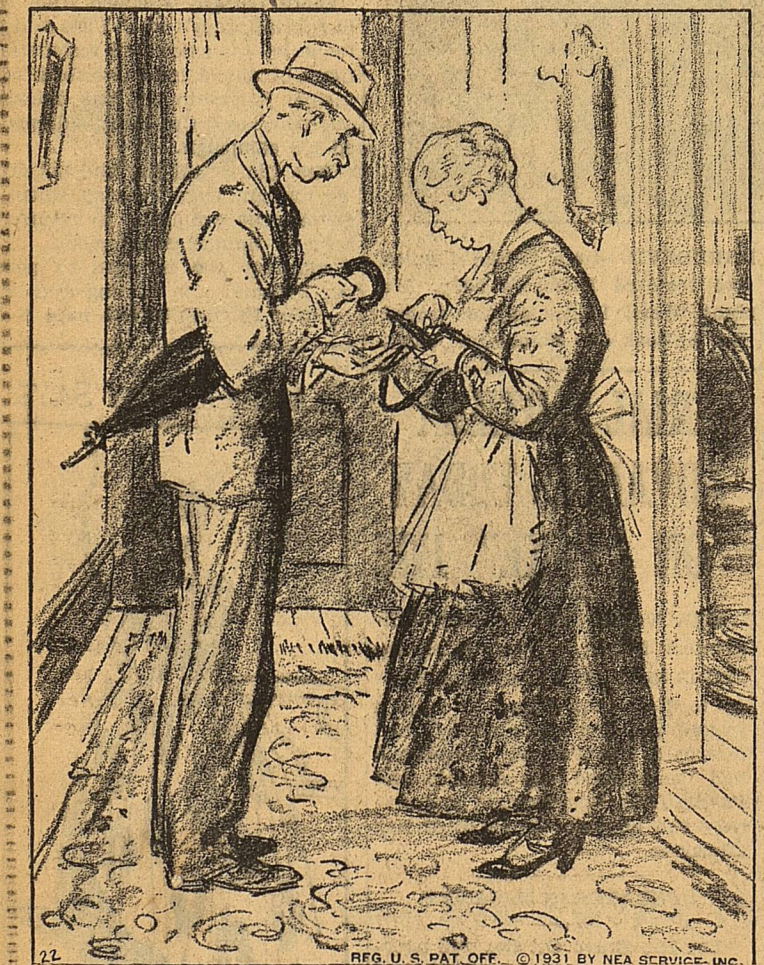

THE "SPHINX'S" BIOGRAPHY

Why the late George F. Baker, "Dean of American Finance," paid $125,000 to have his biography published, only to order it barred from the public, is a mystery almost as profound as was his sphinx-like silence.

According to Baker's reasoning, the account of his rise to eminence among the world's bankers was, to put it bluntly, his business and not the public's. In this assumption, we think, he erred.

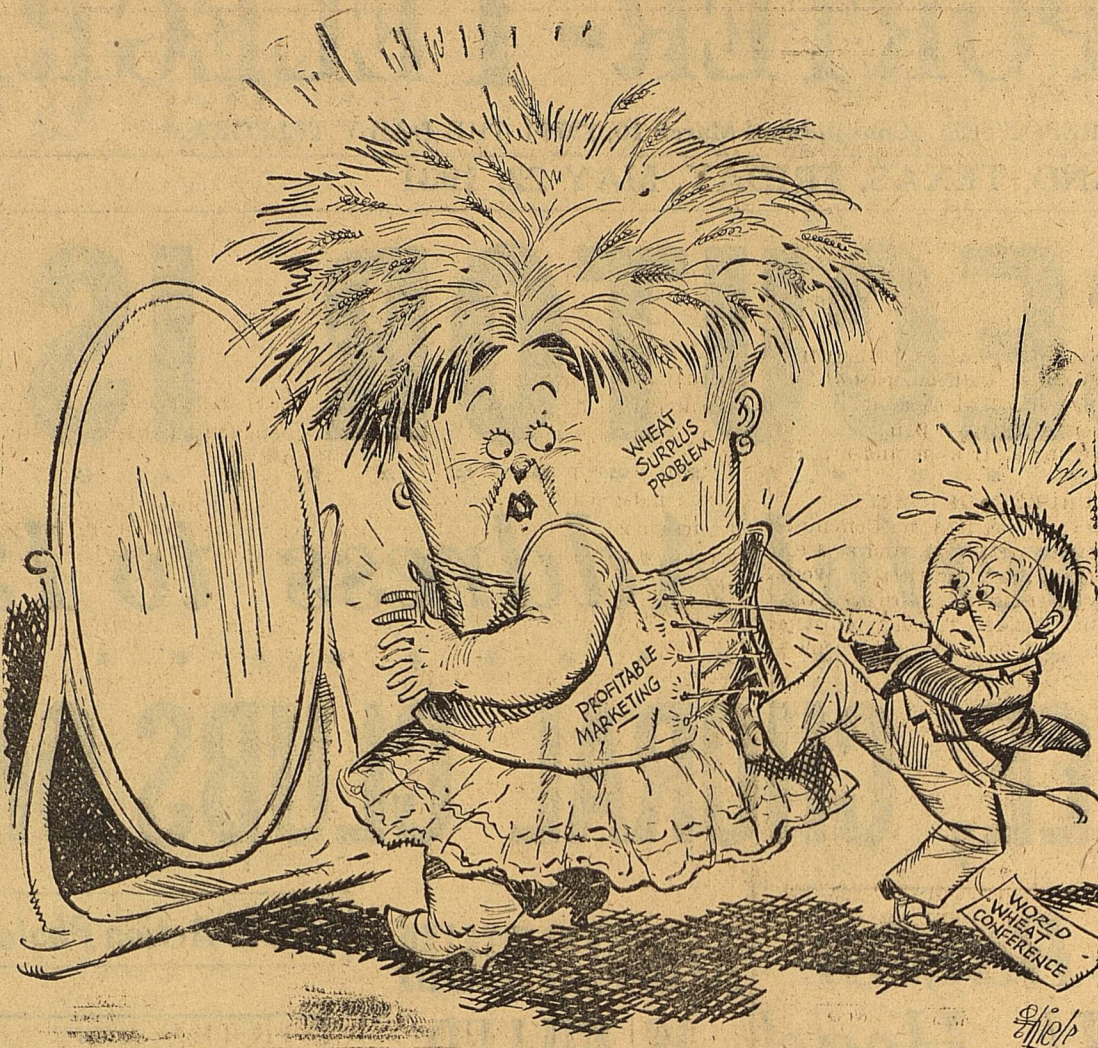

The story of any American renowned for his achieve-

Pope's Address Is Expected to Stimulate Interest in U. S. on Fight for Change in Economic System

WASHINGTON.—Before the pope spoke, the question of distribution of wealth in this country was shaping up as an issue on which more and more was sure to be heard.

No one can measure the probable effect of a papal message addressed to the entire world, advising that it is "absolutely necessary to reconstruct the whole economic system" and "insure a more equitable distribution of the united proceeds of capital and labor." But it obviously will stimulate interest in the United States where the Progressives—notably Senator Borah of Idaho and Couzens of Michigan in recent months—have often shouted against the markedly unequal distribution of wealth and income.

Plenty probably will be heard of it in the next presidential campaign and much, certainly, in the next session of congress as a strong attempt is made to plaster tax increases on millionaires to help meet the treasury's billion dollar deficit.

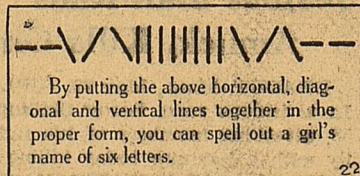

Pope Can Be Distorted
Maybe you'd like to know the facts about the distribution of wealth in America. Well, so would a lot of other people. As with most other figures, you can do various tricks with those statistics of income published by the treasury every year.

Everyone knows, as the Pope says, that the rich have been piling up immense fortunes and that the poor are very little better off than they used to be. The year 1930 was a banner year for corporation dividends—the big profits of 1929 being distributed—but 6,000,000 persons were unemployed and perhaps 20,000,000 affected by their loss of jobs, other millions worked part time and many others had their wages cut.

Such facts are incontestable, but when you get to such statements as Borah's that "three per cent of the people own 75 per cent of the wealth" or, to be more liberal, he said that four per cent owned 30 per cent. Such a state of affairs would be enough to make most of us sore, and Borah attributed the assertion to "economists and students of the subject."

Attack Borah's Figures
But the sharpshooters on the conservative side have gone after Borah about that. It is true that the income statistics for 1929 show that 4,035,000 persons, or only 3.3 per cent of the population, made federal tax returns in 1929. That 75 per cent of the national wealth is owned by less than 4,000,000 wealthiest citizens has also been computed. But it has been pointed out that nearly all property owners and most income tax payers are heads of families and adults; that you have to count in the rest of the family with that 3.3 per cent who filed income taxes accounted for only an estimated 30 per cent of the national income. And so it is argued Borah's figures show in effect that 20 per cent of the population owns 75 per cent of the wealth and that the ments in industry, finance, and for his great philanthropies, is not only of interest to the masses but of great inspirational value. It should therefore be made common knowledge; there is a lesson and moral to be derived from every life.

WOMAN MAYOR GOVERNS WITH DIRECT ACTION

PACIFIC GROVE, Cal., May 22. (UP)—Mayor Julia B. Platt, 73, oldest woman mayor in the United States, may rule this seaside community with scientific logic and she may rule it with a crusading axe. She smilingly admitted today that though she regards the task of city government as just another scientific problem, she has known the expediency of direct action and she would not hesitate again to employ it. She referred to two occasions: Once when she protested against an attempt to appropriate public beach property for private gain by smashing a bathhouse barrier with an axe; another time when she urged beautification of a scenic spot and, failing to get quick action, led a crew of volunteers with shovels and wheelbarrows until the littered spot was cleaned and planted in flowers.

Practical Biology
Miss Platt was a practicing biologist in Germany and Naples before settling here 31 years ago. "My training in the laboratory," she said, "gave me a fondness for a problem. I find this training very valuable on this new job. I hope to work out this town's problems as I would any arising in the laboratory. Sometimes that can't be done, then we'll try something else." She laughed.

She ran for mayor, she said, because politicians were threatening to undermine her favorite reform, wealthiest 3 per cent have only about 20 per cent of the national income.

What seemed to count most with the Pope—what stands out baldly in recent industrial history—is the increasingly unequal split between capital and labor. The productivity of labor has increased rapidly, but that hasn't meant much to labor.

Wages Fail to Keep Step
Senator Couzens pointed out that the value of manufactured products in 1929 was $6,699,000,000 more than in 1927, but the wages paid in 1929 showed an increase of only $573,000,000 over 1927. That sort of thing, Couzens says, "drips up the springs of consumption. The difference is not pure profit, of course. One important development of the last few years has been comparatively stabilized and lower production costs accompanied by greatly increased distribution costs. But concentration of wealth has speeded on."

An American Federation of Labor official says the value of manufactured products has increased fifty per cent and real wages only 10 per cent. Julius Barnes says 40,000,000 persons still employed are receiving $46,000,000,000 this year in wages. If those figures are any good they mean that many millions are making much less than $1,150 a year or $22 a week which would be the average wage. Barnes suggested awhile ago that about $5,000,000,000 might be taken from the $46,000,000,000 wage kitty to employ those now unemployed. Meaning, of course, wage cuts which would reduce the average national wage a couple of dollars a week.

Staunch Humanitarian
She doesn't mind seeing anyone take a drink, but hates to see anyone get drunk. She doesn't object to women smoking, though she feels it is unhealthy in excess. She is a staunch humanitarian and her arch hate is the "eye-for-an-eye" theory of punishment. She believes that many are thus penalized for hereditary and environmental accidents beyond their control. She believes, instead, in correctional and educational methods, which are, she said, in their infancy.

She is a New Englander, born in Burlington, Vt. She was graduated from the University of Vermont in 1882.

Also Prescription babies are healthier and stronger."

NEWSPAPER WINS PLAYGROUND BALL TITLE THROUGH LEGGMEN

ELECTRICIANS IN RARE FORM TO BEAT BELLS

The Reporter-Telegram won the last half of the playground ball league yesterday afternoon when the Texas Electric Service company stepped up to the breach and shelled the Midland Hardware & Furniture company for a 3 to 2 win. It was the best game of the season and had to go eight innings.

An afternoon or two before, the De Luxe Laundry did the same bit of clearance work with the Southwest Bell Telephone company. Both teams had been in a deadlock with the newspaper for league supremacy.

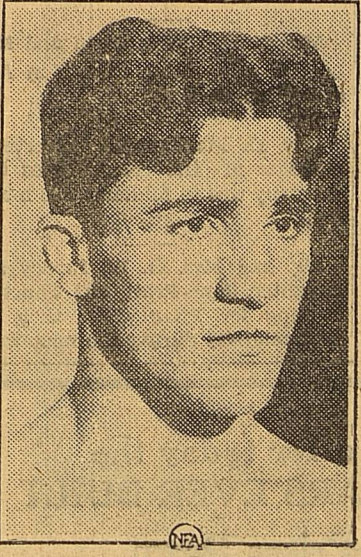

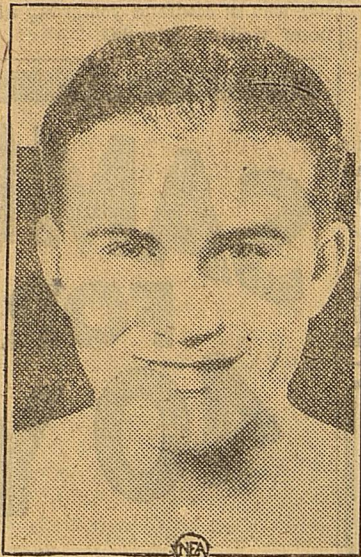

The Reporter-Telegram thus wins the league championship, having taken the first half without a loss. Only one game was lost in the second half, a decision to the harrowing Nail Sackers of Dee McCormick's institution.

The season is being cut short, due to the beginning of night playground ball at a near date to be announced soon. Eight clubs, Texas Electric, De Luxe Laundry, Scruggs Buick, Rexall Stores, Cowden-Epley Ford, Reporter Telegram, Midland Hardware and Southwest Bell Telephone company, are in the league.

Texas Electric Netters Win Association Championship Over Clinic

Fight for Feather Crown Tonight

East meets west when Christopher (Bat) Battalino of Hartford, Conn., defends his world's featherweight championship from Fidel LaBarba of California in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight. LaBarba earned the title bout by beating Kid Chocolate, Kid Francis, Bud Taylor, Earl Mastro and other top-notch featherweights. It will be Battalino's second fight in defense of his crown.

What we can't understand is how he could have been so secretive about the shot. Most people are to be shunned like the disease of the seven-par variety once they have seen their ball roll into the cup on the initial shot. Superintendent Lackey likes his jokes, and the time or place for them is of no consideration. He blasted away the mystery surrounding the significance of our initials last night while presenting diplomas to his graduating class. For the advantage of you 13 people who weren't in the auditorium, he said R. C. means "Rarely Correct." We are under no delusion that the 13 mentioned had not already "caught on." Our friend Cy Foster was introduced as "Christopher Columbus." Oh, well—even such great men as Al Capone are given names that they try to live down. In our case we simply adopted the initials. Young Foster requested his numerous friends to call him "Cy," and Al Capone is still trying to shoot the shoes off anyone who remembers the family Bible listed him as Almir Caponitch.

Life magazine is starting a campaign against the new golf ball. Campaign opens with today's issue, in which appears an open letter to the United States Golf association. Following issues will carry cartoons and copy by nationally known cartoonists and humorous writers, Sam Hellman, Rube Goldberg, Vic Forsythe and others. Copies of Life's letter have been sent to every golf club in the country, with protest cards to be filled out by members and returned to Life. These will be used as a final representation to the USGA proving that players' opinion is strongly against the new ball, and demanding action. Here's the letter received here: Gentlemen: We address this letter to you with every reasonable assurance that it represents the opinions and wishes of the great majority of golfers in this country. Being very much interested in any thing affecting the enjoyment of several million earnest and devoted sportsmen, we believe our representation on their behalf should claim your serious attention. For a month or two now the tollers of the fairway have been knocking your new ball around. The greatest body of rule-obeyers in our land have humbly accepted this newest noble experiment and they are working loyally at it. They are thwacking it mightily into the toughest gale, watching it hover and dip and rise again, often to soar away like a homing bird into the trees to some unplayable nest. They are putting it diligently at the cup, diligently and boldly—boy she's in!—oop—a curl and a flip and out pops Big Boy for another try.

Yes, gentlemen, your new ball is in use. Or shall we say it has so far been successfully enforced! It has been tried in the sporting and open-minded spirit that you might well expect from that splendid gentleman-lyar, The American Golf Player. But it is a failure. It was a disappointment in May; it will be hated in June; and by July it will be a tyranny. You have literally commanded the player who worked and slaved for years to break 90, to work and slave quite a bit harder to break 100. He watches that ball leave the tee more anxiously than a father ever watched his daughter go out at night. His very backstroke is ordered by an imagination seething with alibis. He sees his caddy reach for his putter with the tortured mind of a patient watching his dentist.

because it widens the gap between the expert and the duff. It may prevent a great player from turning your toughest course in a casual 66, but it will prevent many thousands of others—who make the game, make the galleries, and love the fun—from turning in that joyous 89 that means so much. You simply cannot educate these players to accept bad shots they don't deserve. Our own government has found that out.

We have asked you to accept what may seem an unproved assertion of golfing opinion as it now stands regarding the new ball. Actually, it is based on carefully gathered reports from all parts of the country, and we omit these only because you gentlemen must surely be aware of the situation and the increasing discontent.

What will be done about it? Are we going to have an Eighteenth amendment in golf, stubbornly adhered to? Bootleggers of the former standard ball? International squabbles about the world's most widely played game? A great body of disappointed players regulated and then ignored?

that the majority of players in this country want the old ball back, will you restore that ball to official standing?

We are certain that the golfers of America will be very much interested in any reply you think fit to make.

Sincerely yours, LIFE.

TRAFFIC DEPLETES DOGDOM

SINGLES TOURNNEY TO BE SETTLED SUNDAY P.M.

Texas Electric Service company fulfilled expectations yesterday when its doubles net team won over the Midland clinic-hospital in the Tennis association.

The match went to Ferguson and Brown, 12-10, 6-2, 6-4. Stubbeman and Godbey played excellent tennis, but tired under the strain of having to place rather than drive balls in the heavy wind and choking sand.

The match was won in straight sets. Brown and Ferguson had to go an even dozen games in the first set, but Brown, who has been ill with influenza, began to get warm in the second set and gained, rather than lost, strength. Stubbeman played a neat game. Godbey was a bit erratic, as was Brown.

Ferguson played a conservative game, cutting the ball so it would fall safe rather than trying to smash it beyond the reach of the clinic netters. He lobbed much when he had the wind with him, the ball bounding so it couldn't be handled with accuracy.

Finals in singles of the association will be settled Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Ferguson of the electric company meets Stubbeman of Clinic or McCrary of Reporter-Telegram, it is likely, for the playoff. McCrary and Godbey must finish a match that has gone 9-8 and a deuce count on the first set. Wind and rain the other afternoon broke off the match. They will finish this afternoon at 5 o'clock, they plan. Stubbeman must meet Brown. McCrary plays Patterson and Klapproth. If Brown beats Stubbeman and McCrary wins his matches, McCrary and Stubbeman will have to play off a tie Saturday.

Trophies for players will be presented Sunday.

Miss Imogene Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Cox, has returned to Midland from Lubbock where she has been attending Texas Tech. She was accompanied home by Miss Evelyn Garlington, also a Tech student, who will visit here several days before joining her parents in Longview.

SPORTS REPORTS

Two championships have been played and won, 56 high school seniors graduated and various other important matters since this department last held converse with you scanning public. This newspaper, nominally, won the playground ball league and Texas Electric sprinkled the Old Dutch Cleanser on the perspiring pores of W. Godbey and Frank Stubbeman to annex a tennis title.

It was Texas Electric in both headlines, however. The newspaper had played its damndest, but the best it could do was achieve a tie with the Midland Hardware company. The men who repair highways and listen to consumers' arguments along towards the first of every month gave the opposition a knock on the head, leaving the newspaper on top. Illness on the Texas Electric team this half possibly contributed to its failure to own the franchise on the top position.

Well, Cotter Hiett and his sud bustin' crew from the De Luxe laundry proved the other cog in the bringing of the championship to the newspaper club. The De Luxe players won from the Southwest Bell Telephone company in a woe of a game the other afternoon. After the score had been added by a comptometer, the De Luxe men were given the decision, 25-18.

Finally, the California Oil company must be given the credit for the win. It was that team, playing under the name of the newspaper, that did the stick and palm work. "Scotty" Gemmill gave the newspaper a break by bringing over his pioneers in the playground ball racket and placing them on various and assorted bases reserved for Reporter-Telegram. Only two newspapermen played on the club, Sam Warren was the only regular of the two, and he was absent from the last two weeks due to illness. Gemmill is a good manager, however, and found ways of playing nine men when necessary—10 when he could get them. He is the patron d'art when it comes to the night playground league, and is getting an interesting response.

We dished up an aromatic drivel yesterday about Jimmie Harrison almost making a hole-in-one. Imagine our surprise to find he really made one of the sensational shots once. Hearing someone mention the

Let 997's Friction - Fighting Molecules give you Better Lubrication

They're on their toes, ready to go—every one a friction-fighter! Humble's scientists see to that when they refine 997 Motor Oil. At the very start, only 2% of the crude is selected—the part that contains natural friction-fighting molecules.

Then that part is refined, drilled, realigned, until Humble 997 Oil attains a new high in boiling points—997° Fahrenheit. This guarantees a protection heretofore unattainable against heat and loss, and assures lower oil consumption.

That's why 997 gives better, safer lubrication—is almost entirely carbon-free—is so economical to use. Because it's stable and lasting. Drive to the nearest Humble dealer today, and give 997 a chance to give you better lubrication.

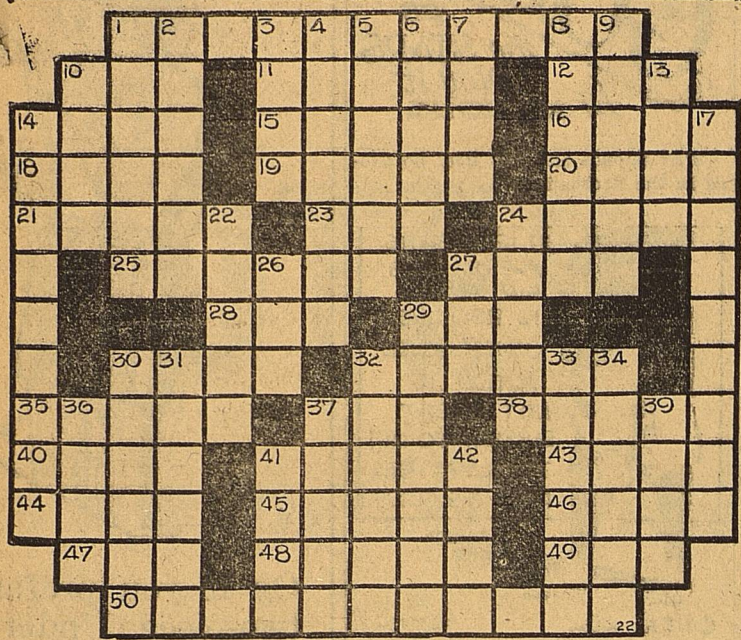

HUMBLE OIL AND REFINING COMPANY

Above all else, you want one thing in a motor oil: Stability. That's what Humble's 997 gives you.

It's a good number 997. It won't break down.

Science knows that all matter is made up of little invisible bodies called molecules. They're in continuous motion—some fast, some not so fast, and some slow. In petroleum crude, it's the middle ones that are born friction-fighters. They're the only kind we use in 997.
