EAST TEXAS MAKES READY TO CHOKER IN WELLS UNDER PLAN

SUPPORT PLEDGED BY ESTES

Governor Sterling Lauds Plan to Limit

TYLER, June 17. (UP)—East Texas major and independent operators today prepared to choke wells under the Cranfill plan, which is to be effective Saturday morning. The plan provided 300 barrels per 20 acres.

Captain J. F. Lucey, chairman of the arbitration committee, issued a call to the small pipeline operators to meet with the field operators Thursday morning at Longview. The East Texas publications of Carl Estes, Tyler editor, printed editorials pledging support of the plan.

Governor Lauds Plan HOUSTON, June 17. (UP)—The governor today lauded the Cranfill plan to limit East Texas oil production to 300 barrels per twenty acre unit as the railroad commission ordered action on request of the arbitration committee for an emergency order pending a ruling from the attorney general on their power to issue a proration order without the ten days notice of hearing. Hearing has been set for June 29.

Criticizes Limit WICHITA, Kan., June 17. (UP)—R. Vanderwoude, president of the Shell Petroleum company, predicted here today a price of 15 cents per barrel for crude oil unless East Texas production is limited. He said the Cranfill limit is too high.

Big Spring Boy Shot to Death

BIG SPRING, June 17.—Jack Jones, 17, high school student, was accidentally killed Tuesday at a farm 27 miles northwest of Big Spring with a .22 caliber rifle said to have been in the hands of W. H. Coats, Big Spring high school football star.

The boys were said to have been examining the rifle to determine whether or not it had long or short shells. The bullet entered the right shoulder and ranged upward, severing the jugular vein. Jones and Coats went to the farm of Becher Airhart and were in the pasture hunting rabbits at the time of the accident. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones; one sister and two brothers.

Alba Pitts Brought Back to San Angelo

MIAMI, Okla., June 17. (UP)—Alba Pitts, 23, was being returned today to San Angelo for jail breaking there last month. He was captured Sunday in Junction City, Kansas.

J. E. Connor and Clint Powell, said to have escaped with Pitts, were being returned from Albuquerque.

Commissioners Give Rabbit Poison Free

Poisoned salt for killing rabbits will be furnished free of charge to farmers and ranchers of Midland county by the Midland county commissioners, court, Judge M. R. Hill has ordered 100 ounces of strychnine for use in preparing the bait. The bait donated by the county will be prepared ready for use. Farmers wishing to mix their own poison should use one ounce of the strychnine to 16 ounces of salt Judge Hill said. Rabbits are doing considerable damage the past few days, and several farmers are waging a campaign to exterminate them.

Two Held for Quiz in the Frank Kempf Murder Case

SAN ANTONIO, June 17. (UP)—Two youths, one a nephew of Frank Kempf, and a Fort Sam Houston soldier are being held here by police for questioning.

One of the trio is expected to make a confession which will clear the mystery of the whereabouts of Kempf, who disappeared last Monday night. Kempf's bloody car was found Tuesday morning.

SAN ANTONIO, June 17.—The car in which Frank M. Kempf of Devine, near here, is believed to have been slain Monday night and his body brought to San Antonio, was recovered by police from where it was left early Tuesday morning. The interior showed evidence of a bloody fight.

Kempf, 54-year-old rancher, was called from his ranch home near Devine early Monday night by two unidentified persons. His aged father told officers they had retired for the night when his son answered an argument about a rope, but nothing more.

A blood-stained iron bar was found in the yard by officers. Search for the suspects has centered in San Antonio with military and civilian police running down a number of clues.

Sister Midland Woman Killed

A sister of Mrs. Ann Linton of Midland, Mrs. Kitty Shannon, was instantly killed this morning when struck by lightning near her home at Hawley, Texas.

Mrs. Linton left immediately after receiving a telegram from relatives.

The body will be interred in Abilene Thursday morning.

Midland People To Marfa Meeting

Leaving Midland this morning for the Marfa field day, were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Connell, Virgil C. Ray and his son, Earl Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer, and Mr. and Mrs. Elliott F. Cowden.

More than 1,000 persons have made reservations to attend the Breeder-Feeder field day. The purpose of the event is to promote a better understanding between various branches of the cattle industry.

Special trains will take guests from all sections of Texas. An interesting entertainment program has been arranged.

A tour of ranches will be made Thursday. The visitors will be shown the world-famous Highland Herefords on their native range. A polo match between Ft. D. A. Russell and a picked Big Behd team held the field day activities. All agencies of the cattle industry represented will take part in a round table discussion of their problems.

Barnsdall Men Here for Conference

B. R. Snow, manager of the land and geological department of the Barnsdall Oil company, and W. K. Whitford, general production superintendent of the company, were here from Tulsa Tuesday to confer with Midland Barnsdall officials.

Kidnaper Enters Plea of Guilty

CORSICANA, June 17. (UP)—James Nash, charged with assault in connection with the Corf kidnaping last December, today abandoned his fight for a change of venue and pleaded guilty. The jury in the case sentenced Nash to seven years imprisonment. Currie Caldwell was given a penalty of 12 years in his trial several weeks ago.

Ohio Girl Found Slain in Quarry

The body of Thelma Woods, 17, right, mysteriously missing since Memorial day eve, when she went riding with a boy acquaintance, was found in the debris at the bottom of this abandoned stone quarry pool at Lima, O., as it was emptied by pumps 13 days after they vanished. The girl's hands and feet were lashed together. Earl Tressdale, 20, her escort on the fatal ride, was still missing and searchers believed he was also slain.

SCHARBAUER IS WTCC SPEAKER; VICKERS NAMED

Clarence Scharbauer and Paul T. Vickers were in Sweetwater a few hours Tuesday to attend the executive board meeting of the West Texas chamber of commerce, of which Scharbauer is a member.

The board named various committee chairmen and secretaries and assigned staff members to the committees. A program of hard work to be done with economy was emphasized. Scharbauer made a brief talk giving his views regarding a tree planting campaign, and the Midland man also emphasized what he said was necessary for better contact between the regional organization and its members.

Scharbauer, as chairman of District No. 6, accepted the task of obtaining the subscriptions now due. He reported Midland as having already paid its subscriptions. Vickers was made secretary of the Breeder-Feeder committee. John M. Gist of Odessa and Midland is chairman of the cattle feeding out group.

The Abilene News carried the following article from Sweetwater: SWEETWATER, June 17.—Endorsement of a program of beautification of West Texas cities and countryside and support of an exhibit at Chicago's century of progress exposition were outstanding accomplishments of the executive committee meeting of the West Texas chamber of commerce Tuesday.

These two major objectives were chosen after expenditure and revenue budgets had been presented by Wilbur C. Hawk, vice president, and the work program offered by Spencer A. Wells, also vice president. An audit was presented by A. J. Swenson, treasurer. E. G. Keys was elected assistant treasurer.

"We want to start planning now for Chicago's century of progress in 1933," said Houston Hart, president. (See SCHARBAUER page 8)

PLAINTIFF TESTIMONY IS ENDED

Remarkable Case Has Been in Session Four Weeks

LUBBOCK, June 17.—With Mrs. Fred Spikes, wife of the plaintiff, relating her story of the shooting on Mesa Redonda, January 21, 1902, when her former husband, John Spikes and his brother, Dick, were killed and her present husband wounded, presentation of testimony in Fred Spikes' $200,000 libel suit against J. Evetts Haley and trustees of the Capitol Reservation Lands company was brought to a close shortly after 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The trial has been in progress for more than four weeks.

Plaintiff Close With the completion of Mrs. Spikes' testimony, the plaintiff's counsel announced close, defense declined to cross-examine and also announced their case resting. Arguments, expected to take the majority of one day, were scheduled to begin this morning. Attorneys for both sides indicated they would ask for more time to prepare their pleadings after the charge had been drawn up.

Describes Shooting Wiping away tears as she testified, Mrs. Spikes told of incidents leading up to the fatal shooting, which is related in a chapter of Haley's book "The XII Ranch of Texas," upon which Fred Spikes is basing his libel action. Scores of friends and relatives in the courtroom also gave way to weeping as Mrs. Spikes retold the tragedy which claimed the lives of her husband and his brother and seriously wounded the plaintiff, to whom she was married several years later.

Mrs. Spikes' testimony was in charge of C. E. Lockhart, chief attorney for the plaintiff. By J. SAM LEWIS, Avalanche Staff Writer LUBBOCK, June 17.—Two of the four surviving Spikes brothers, Jeff, retired merchant of Crosbyton, and Ernest of Huntington Beach, Calif., testified Monday in 90th district court in the $200,000 libel suit of Fred Spikes against the trustees of the Capitol Reservation Lands and J. Evetts Haley, Austin. Mr. Spikes is asking damages for publication of certain statements in one chapter of Haley's book concerning the fatal shooting of John and Dick Spikes and the wounding of the plaintiff.

Brothers Testify Jeff Spikes went on the stand at 11 o'clock, following an hour's delay in opening court, due to the opening of federal district court here yesterday. He completed his direct testimony soon after the afternoon session opened and was cross-questioned for more than an hour by E. L. Klett. After the recess Ernest Spikes took the stand and completed his testimony and cross examination just at closing time Monday.

Jeff Spikes testified that he had never, during the three or four months he had lived in New Mexico, seen any evidence of burned brands on cattle or of theft of cattle; nor had he seen any butchered hides or cut brands on horses. Lockhart read to him the pleadings of the defendants, concerning a so-called "conspiracy" and Mr. Spikes answered he had never entered any scheme or conspiracy to do unlawful acts. He heard of his brothers being killed on January 22, Mr. Spikes testified. He at once started for Hereford where he heard Fred Spikes had been taken and arrived there about sunup the morning of January 23, he described. (See HALEY CASE page 8)

MRS. CHILDERS BETTER Mrs. A. B. Childers, of Mart, who was taken to the Mid-West clinic-hospital Monday night for throat treatment, was improving this afternoon. (See HALEY CASE page 8)

President Hoover Sent Them

The big box of American Beauty roses that you see Miss Cora Stanton Jahncke of New Orleans holding here was sent to her on her graduation from a private school by President Hoover with a card reading, "The president sends greetings to Miss Cora Stanton Jahncke." She is the youngest daughter of Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy.

TOKIO ROCKED BY A VIOLENT QUAKE TODAY

TOKIO, June 17. (UP)—The Tokio vicinity was rocked by a severe earthquake at 9:10 o'clock today. Authorities believe that much damage has been done, but no certain estimate has been reached yet. Parts of the city are in darkness and telegraph and telephone lines are damaged.

Lions Frolic at Court House Today

Members of the Lions club roared and ate in the demonstration room of the court house at noon today, guests of the Busy Bee club under the direction of Miss Genevieve Derryberry, demonstration agent of the county.

Appearing on the short program were Dorothy Lou Speed and Mrs. Ray Veale, both of whom gave humorous readings. Thomas Inman spoke on some of his experiences while a music student in Chicago. The club received into its membership Lion Bill Paara, manager of the Ritz theatre. Paara was a member of the Cushing, Okla., Lions club.

Good Times Are Coming—Babson

NEW YORK, June 17.—Economists scanning the economic horizon told the Advertising Federation of America of their optimistic views of the future. Roger Babson, whose prediction of the stock market crash in 1929 aroused widespread interest, asserted he was willing to stake his reputation that business has seen its worst; that although the change will be slow it will be in the right direction and that "within a reasonable time the country will again enter into a period of marked prosperity."

"The old law of action and reaction teaches now that unparalleled prosperity will again follow the depression."

His paper warned the advertising men of the opportunity newspapers now have to render a real service of (See GOOD TIMES page 8)

COPE IS DENIED A RETRIAL

Appeals Court Acts To Uphold Local Sentences

C. B. Jones, sentenced in the February term of court here to 35 years on a charge of murder growing out of the slaying on January 25 of Weldon Russell, Midland and Abilene real estate dealer, must serve his penitentiary sentence, according to action of the court of criminal appeals at Austin today affirming the judgment of the court here.

Jones, still in the Midland county jail, had appealed his verdict to the higher court through his attorney, Sam K. Wasaff. The state submitted the case last week, saying the sentence should be affirmed on the grounds that no bills of exception or statement of facts had been filed by the defense within the required 90-day period. The decision of the higher court was given today.

Overrule Cope Motion A. L. Cope, sentenced in the December term to one year in the penitentiary on a charge of possession of liquor for sale, and whose sentence had previously been affirmed by the appeals court, must also serve his term, the court overruling today his motion for retrial.

Legion Completes Plans for Meeting

The American legion is completing plans for its two-day district convention July 4 and 5, Joseph A. Seymour, general chairman, announced.

Committee meetings are being held almost daily. There will be no other general meeting of the post until after the convention, but several committees will report. Five hundred Legionnaires are expected to attend.

Hill Invites Many Officials of Area

Judge M. R. Hill is inviting county judges and commissioners courts in West Texas to attend the July 4 celebration at Midland. Judge Hill is writing letters to the various courts, telling them of the big Midland celebration and also inviting them to inspect the magnificent new court house here.

Word continues coming from various towns, particularly Odessa and Stanton, that they are coming to Midland full strength July 4.

PRESS LEAGUE CALLS FOR C. C. BROCHURES

Midland is receiving and will receive further advertising of a nature never before exploited through the medium of the Texas Daily Press league, an advertising organization with offices in principal cities of the nation.

Copies of the recently printed brochures of the chamber of commerce were sent to the Press league by the Reporter-Telegram.

The Dallas office wrote: "The very excellent 5-Minute Talking Picture on Midland which you forwarded us contains some admirable sales material. May we request that you forward ten copies of this to our Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis and Kansas City offices, with twenty copies being forwarded to Dallas, Chicago and New York?"

The brochure was prepared for publication by Paul T. Vickers, it carries excellent pictures and statistics on Midland. The chamber secretary has a supply of them at his office and has requested that Midland people get supplies of them for mailing.

Willis Completes Barbecue Pit

The J. J. Willis Truck & Tractor company completed its big task of pit digging for the July 4 barbecue, Wednesday afternoon. Kelso Adams had direct charge for Willis, with Virgil C. Ray as pit boss. The Willis company donated the machinery and services of three men, also assisted in marking off parking lines for handling the enormous crowds expected.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Geneva Jo Hinkle was resting well this afternoon after a tonsil operation at the Midland clinic-hospital this morning.

Mrs. Selman also sustained a tonsil operation at the clinic-hospital and was doing nicely.

GAME SCHEDULED

A game between the Business Girls of Mrs. Evelyn Herrington and the Petroleum club of Miss Daisy Lindsey will be played at Scharbauer diamond Friday afternoon at 7 o'clock.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any persons, firm or corporation which may occur in the columns of The Reporter-Telegram will be gladly corrected upon being brought to the attention of the firm.

ENCOURAGING HOME BEAUTIFICATION

Roswell, New Mexico, has adopted a summer water rate whereby 6,000 gallons will be sold to home consumers at $1. The regular rate allows 3,000 gallons for the dollar, but an additional 3,000 is being allowed during the summer to encourage use of water on lawns and flower gardens for the beautification of the city. And those who have been in Roswell will remember that its trees and beautiful yards are outstanding.

On top of that cheap rate, the next 7,000 gallons will cost the consumer at the rate of 15 cents per thousand and all over that at 10 cents per thousand gallons.

Roswell will gain much by this liberal move. Already a beautiful city, its officials realize what the yards and well kept lawns and gardens mean in value. The water system, able to stand the increased allowance, is being used for the benefit of the consumer.

STATES AND THE DEFICIT

The threat of a huge deficit in the federal treasury has done more than call the public's attention to the decline in federal income due to the business depression. It has strikingly emphasized the tremendous increase in the cost of government that has taken place during the past decade or two.

In 1911, just 20 years ago, the federal government spent a little less than $700,000,000. In the fiscal year now ending the government has spent almost $4,500,000,000. Even when allowance is made for the cost of the World War, the increase is still astounding.

One item that bulks large in this increase is the practice of spending money from the federal treasury on state projects. Uncle Sam, for instance, matches the states dollar for dollar in many highway building programs. He contributes to the national guard organizations.

All told, he now contributes around $150,000,000 a year to state activities. Two decades ago such contributions came to only $8,000,000. Many thinly populated states receive far more from the federal treasury than they pay back into it in the form of taxes.

Yet this by no means means that federal expenditures on state projects should be abandoned. The system is not as out of balance as it looks.

The New York taxpayer may object when the government spends a million dollars on roads in Wyoming, for example; but when he takes a motor trip through the west he will drive over those roads, and rejoice that they are so good.

The Pennsylvanian may object to federal expenditures on the national guard of Arizona; yet, if war came, the Arizona national guard would take its place in the first line of defense and help defend the Pennsylvanian from the common enemy.

State lines, in other words, are not water-tight boundaries. We do not live in isolation.

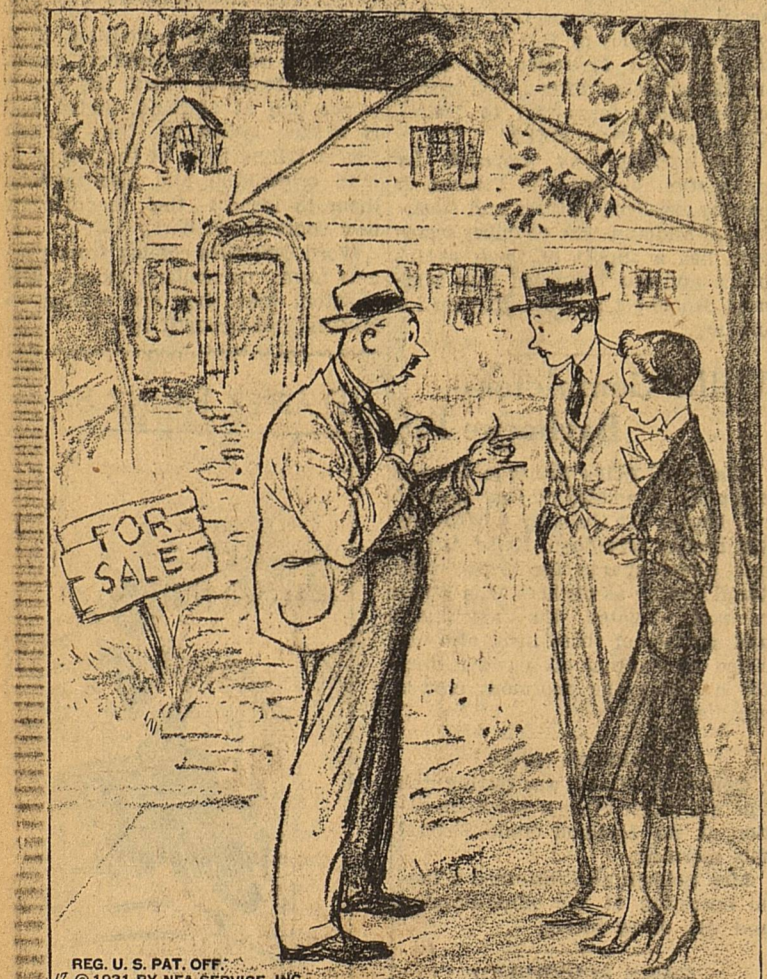

Furthermore, our conception of government is changing. Uncle Sam spends more than he used to because he has found so many more things that need to be done. The states may, as some critics protest, be "raiding the federal treasury"; nevertheless, it would be very hard to find a place where the federal expenditures on state projects could properly be cut down very appreciably.

PASSING OF COAL MINE POLICE

Liberal-minded men and women throughout the country will be glad to learn that Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania plans to cancel the commissions of all "coal and iron policemen" effective July 1. The move should have been made many years ago, but even though tardy it is extremely welcome.

The coal and iron policemen, of course, are private guards employed by the big coal and iron companies who are actually sworn in as officers of the law. Obviously,

ARDMORE, Okla., June 10.—With the case already developed into an international incident, the U. S. State Department investigating, President Hoover cabling his regrets to President Rubio of Mexico and reports that Mexico may ask an indemnity of the United States being heard, Ardmore awaits with keen interest and mingled emotions the murder trial here on June 22 of Deputy Sheriff William E. Guess and Cecil Crosby.

At liberty under $25,000 bond each, they are charged jointly with the deaths of Emilio Cortes Rubio, nephew of the Mexican president, and his college chum, Manuel Garcia Gomez, scion of an old and wealthy Mexican family, at a parked auto in the residential section of Ardmore.

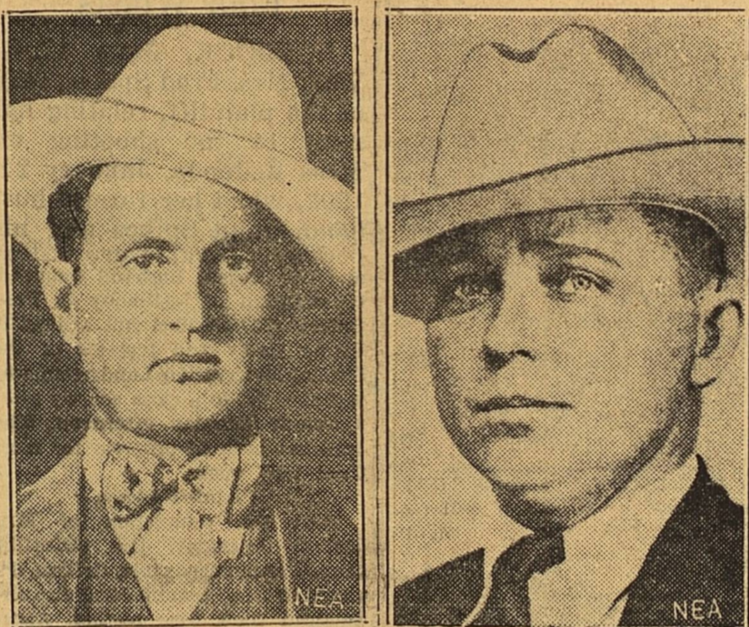

Mingled emotions—regret over the untimely deaths of two young men, and divided opinions as to what might have been done to avert the tragedy—are expressed here as the murder trial nears.

"A Tragic Mistake," Says Mayor Charles F. Adams, "and no one regrets it more than I do. It seems to have been just one of those tragic mistakes."

"It seems to be just one of those unfortunate affairs that happen from time to time," says County Attorney Marvin Shilling. "It is easy to see after it all happened how the trouble might have been avoided, but that may have been far more difficult at the instant it was transpiring. It will be the purpose of my office to see that justice is done."

A survey of opinions as expressed by citizens generally results in the conviction that Ardmore feels that the tragic roadside drama was the result of a misunderstanding on the part of both the officers and the boys themselves. Because this country has had four officers shot to death by outlaws in the last 12 months, men who are commissioned to enforce the law have reached a point where they do not take undue chances. The public seems to realize this.

On the other hand, it seems clear that the Mexican youths thought they were the victims of holdup men and sought to resist. Whether the officers identified themselves as such is practically the only controversial

"I shot the boys because I thought they intended to shoot me. I am sorry I had to do it, but I felt it was my life or theirs. I thought we had run into a bunch of young hi-jackers."—Deputy Sheriff William E. Guess, below.

"I informed Salvador Rubio that I was a deputy sheriff and showed him my badge. One of them had an automatic pistol in his hand; there was a scuffle that caused Deputy Guess to anticipate trouble."—Deputy Sheriff Cecil Crosby, below.

point. Several prominent attorneys have volunteered their services to the accused deputies. Three of the best known lawyers of this section appeared for them at their preliminary hearing.

"My Life or Theirs," Says Guess
Guess is frank in his discussion of the slaying.

"I shot the boys because I thought they intended to shoot me. I am sorry I had to do it, but I felt it was my life or theirs."

Salvador Cortes Rubio, also a nephew of President Rubio and the third member of the party of Mexican students who had left St. Benedict's college in Atchison, Kan., in such high spirits on the morning before the killing, said in a statement to County Attorney Shilling:

"If the boys drew guns as the officers say they did, I do not suppose that one could say that the officers took unfair advantage of them. It was all a mistake. The boys probably thought they were being held up."

On only one major point does the story of the slaying as told by young Salvador Rubio vary from that told by the deputies. That one point however, is of vital importance. It is the question as to whether or not the officers properly identified themselves as officers of the law when they stopped to investigate the activities of the three youths on a dark residential street at 11 o'clock on the night of the double killing.

Deputy Crosby's Story
Deputy Crosby, on the witness stand at the preliminary hearing, said: "We (Guess and Crosby) were coming home from a hunt for a stolen car. We saw a Ford coupe with a Kansas license tag parked on a street in the residential district. Out in front of the car we saw a youth performing what we deemed an indecent act, especially in view of the fact that cars were passing at regular intervals.

"Guess stopped the car and I got out to remonstrate. I asked the youth (Salvador Rubio) what he was doing. I told him that this was not the place and as authority for my action informed him I was a deputy sheriff and I showed my badge."

"I walked back to the car and saw two boys in the car. I asked them who they were. They wanted to know what difference it made to me. I told them my authority. One of them told me that they were college boys en route to Mexico City. I looked down in the car and one of the boys had an automatic pistol clutched in his hand. I reached in and grabbed it and drew my own gun. He sought to hold his gun. I jerked it out of his hand. It was this scuffle that caused Guess to anticipate trouble, I suppose. He had not left our car."

Guess Tells of Killing
Guess, on the stand, corroborated the story to this point.

"I jumped out of the car and taking my flashlight in one hand and my gun in the other. I ran toward the Ford car," he testified. "As I came upon the right side of it I saw a man with a blanket over his shoulders getting out."

"I saw an automatic protruding from under the folds of the blanket. It was aimed directly at me and I yelled 'hands up' and fired. The man spun half around and I fired a second time. He fell.

"I was still walking. As I came up even with the car door I heard a sound in there and I turned my light inside. I saw a man reaching for his pocket. His hand came out and I saw the gleam of a nickel plated gun. I shot him. I thought we had run on to a bunch of young hi-jackers."

"Didn't See Badge"—Rubio
Young Rubio, in his story, told of their car stopping as described by the officers. He got out, he said, but he denies he was standing in the glare of the headlights.

"I was standing on the curb out of the lights, and it was an isolated block with few houses; I meant no harm or disrespect," he said. "I saw the car stop and a man came toward me, asking what I was doing. I told him. He told me to stop. I did so.

"He did not tell me he was an

Livestock Men Hurt Own Business by Protesting Health Service's Warning Against Heavy Meat Eating During Hot Weather

WASHINGTON.—If anyone doesn't realize now that less meat should be eaten during the summer months it isn't the fault of the meat packers and the livestock interests.

The more umbrage you take at anything the more publicity you give it and the bulletin of the United States Public Health Service warning against eating too much meat in hot weather would have attracted no more attention than other U. S. P. H. S. bulletins if the meat men had been willing to let well enough alone.

Instead, they protested vigorously to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in whose department the health service is, and got themselves and the meat-eating issues into the newspapers. When Mellon decided to censor federal health bulletins in the future that news and the row about censorship which it stirred up presumably left few people unaware of what the U. S. P. H. S. had been advising.

Politicians can tell you that it often doesn't pay to take umbrage. When Premier Mussolini went after General Smedley Butler for calling him a hit-and-run driver the charge didn't stick, but Mussolini found himself being panned on general principles all over the United States while Butler became a sort of national hero. Senator Nye of North Dakota, finding that Moses of New Hampshire had introduced his expenses as chairman of the campaign funds committee into the Congressional Record, heatedly charged a political plot and so directed attention to his accounts. The accounts undoubtedly were fair, but some of the items looked funny on the face of them and lots of people had a good laugh at Nye.

As one who has sometimes reported the presence of numerous speak-easies and gambling joints more or less "in the shadow of the White House", your correspondent now announces that it is virtually impossible to buy a drink or place a bet in the First police precinct as a result of continued police raids. That hasn't been true for several years heretofore and appears to demonstrate that the coppers can, if they try, keep the town comparatively free of speak-easies and gambling joints. The successful methods employed have been, principally, the removal of barricaded doors from such places and arrests of gamblers as "vagrants." The First precinct, where the drive has centered, takes in the downtown business district and part of the White House grounds.

The liquor traffic is now in the hands of men and women who accept telephone orders for delivery. These violators have proved hard to eliminate.

Nearly everyone would like to know what comment, if any, President Hoover made to Congressman Dyer of Missouri against the latter's proposal for legalized four per cent beer so as to raise a billion dollars in taxes and employ 100,000 persons. But there is a strict rule that if the president ever says anything to you, you mustn't tell anyone what he said. The most conspicuous violator of this rule was Amos Pinchot who seven months afterward, wrote an article about how Mr. Hoover, after a year ago, had told a visiting delegation that unemployment was shamefully exaggerated, that business was on the upgrade and that the committee had come "six weeks too late."

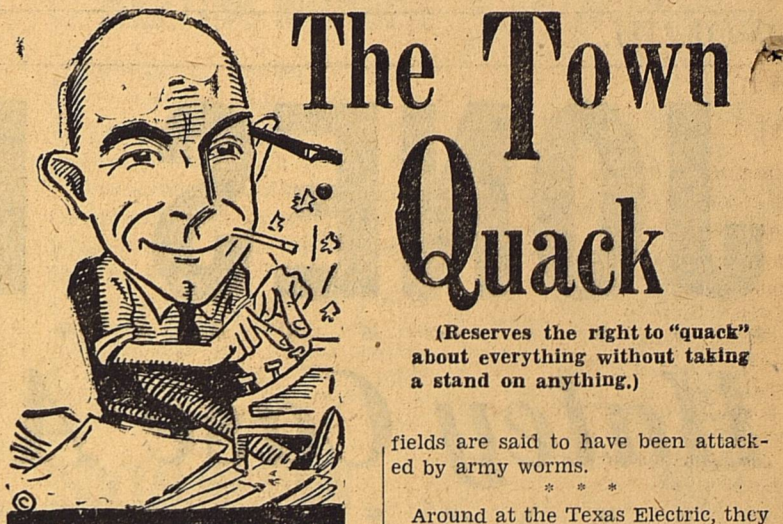

World production of copper in 1930 was about 14 per cent less than that of 1929, the total output amounting to 1,806,642 short tons as compared with 2,104,110 short tons in 1929.

officer and I did not see any badge. He walked back to the car. I heard some talk but couldn't understand what was said. I was then back in front of the car and the glare of the lights blinded me and I couldn't see what happened. Then I saw two flashes and heard two shots. Then the fellow on the side of the car came toward me with a gun in his hand. I put up my hands."

Guess also testified to hearing Crosby tell the youths of his authority.

Guns Found in Car
Matthew Alexander, city policeman, who arrived at the scene almost simultaneously with the shooting, testified that he found a loaded automatic pistol, cocked and with the safety released, lying under the body of the man first slain, identified as Manuel Gomez. Other witnesses testified to seeing Guess take a double-barrelled Derringer from the body of the boy in the car, Emilio Cortes Rubio. A considerable quantity of ammunition for the two automatic pistols, for the Derringer and for high-powered rifles was found in the car. Extra clips for the automatics were discovered on the bodies of the slain youths, it was related.

Ardmore closed its stores as the bodies of the slain youths passed from the funeral home to the train for Mexico City. Airplanes shuttled back and forth, sheltering carnations on the silver caskets as the citizens of Ardmore stood silently by, watching the departure of its ill-starred young guests. Fully 7000 persons viewed the bodies here.

Romber, Clerk of said District Court for the sum of Three Hundred Ninety-eight and 93/100—($398.93)—Dollars and costs of suit, under a judgement, in favor of R. D. Heatley in a certain cause in said Court, No. 2449 and styled R. D. Heatley vs. Abe Fishman placed in my hands for service, I, A. C. Francis, as Sheriff of Midland County, Texas, did, on the 18th day of May 1931, levy on certain Real Estate, situated in Midland County, Texas, described as follows, to-wit: The North one-half of Block No. 13 and all of Block No. 14, Langford and Weathered additions to the City of Midland, Midland County, Texas, and levied upon as the property of Abe Fishman and that on the first Tuesday in July, 1931, the same being the 7th day of said month, at the Court House door of Midland County, in the City of Midland, Texas, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 4 P. M., by virtue of said levy and said Execution, and Fee Bill, I will sell above described Real Estate at public vendue, for cash, to the highest bidder, as the property of said George Wallace.

And in compliance with law, I give this notice by publication, in the English language, once a week for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding said day of sale, in the Midland Reporter-Telegram, a newspaper published in Midland County, Texas.

Witness my hand, this 23rd day of May 1931.

R. D. LEE, Constable, Midland County, Texas.

White Jackets Top the Mode

BY JOAN SAVOY NEA Service Writer

Everywhere you go these days you see chic young things, and some chic older ones, in smart white jackets.

They have a freshness about them that is very pleasing on hot days. Of course you wear them with dark skirts, in black, brown or blue. And if you want to be ultra-ultra, you can have both the white jacket and the dark skirt of linen.

You can have your jacket costume in a little dressmaker type, with fine seaming, perhaps tucks, or varied sizes of pleats. Or you can have a softly tailored type, with trim revers, belt, long sleeves and all.

The two diverse white jacket costumes pictured here show these two trends in this vogue.

Has a Fitted Jacket First there is the graceful little short-sleeved costume of linen, the jacket white and the skirt brown.

The skirt is pleated down the front and back panel and tucked all around the bottom in a finish like that of the white jacket. The jacket is a fitted, flaring little trifle with a minimum of sleeve, not quite to the elbow, and something brand new in a graceful round neck with tie ends.

The second is white, with blue buttons and polka-dotted scarf for the upper and a navy blue gored skirt below. It, too, is linen, and it is topped by one of the new starched linen hats that are so new and good this season. Of course it is banded in blue.

Incidentally, the brown sports felt hat on the other figure has a white linen banding like the jacket. Quite a new touch, combining these two materials, but most effective.

This is the newest version of the old shirtwaist-and-skirt mode revival. But it is infinitely smarter than a separate waist and skirt, much more flattering to the average person.

Foreign Missionary Tells of Trip Through West Africa; Meets Kings

Miss Lucille Reagan of Big Spring Has Circle Here Named for Her; 150-Mile Trip Reveals Experiences

Such experiences as "traveling 150 miles through Africa in pursuit of a dentist, interviewing two kings, and inspecting a rubber plantation which marked one week" are told by Miss Lucille Reagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Reagan of Big Spring, and for whom the Reagan circle of the First Baptist church here is named, in a letter from Lagos, W. Africa, where she is principal of a Baptist school.

Miss Reagan has visited in Midland several times and has many friends, who are especially interested in her work on the foreign field.

The letter as published in the Big Spring Daily Herald Sunday follows: "When I went to the dentist, I found he had just left town for a several weeks' business tour in a dentistless section of Nigeria. My tooth was still aching so I caught a ten-thirty train and rode it for 12 hours, then walked 5 miles, since I was unable to get anyone by wire to meet me, I found a motor truck returning to Lagos, so I came back in it.

"We have a man working for us now who has just come from a people whose custom it is that only men may die in the house. Women and children are thrown out on the streets to die. He saved the life of one baby he had picked up on the streets this way, by massaging it. Another time he picked up twins and after they were well, persuaded their parents to take them back again.

"On a recent trip, we went to a town, which is the capital of the Yoruba tribe, whose language I first learned. Their king is supposed to be the father of all kings. We were introduced to him.

"He is a young man who has been king only a few months, since his father's death. He was dressed in his royal robes and had a crown with a cross on it. His robes were of velvet and his crown of cloth. We also saw some of their idols which no Yoruba woman is allowed to look at, because if she does she will never bear children, they believe. Nor was the king allowed to see this particular powerful idol, because the year in which he looks on he is supposed to die. He talked to us in English, for he is a well-educated young man.

Women's Program

The Royal Service program for the month of June will be presented by women from the Reagan, Lockett and Walker circles at the prayer meeting hour at the First Baptist church tonight, starting at 8:15.

Mrs. J. M. White will lead the program.

Miss Anna Lee Cahill and Miss Martha Phillip of Iran were in Midland Tuesday afternoon.

"We also saw the king of Benim. Benim fought tenaciously against British protection, so it has a bloody history. The town had enormously thick walls with a moat on the outside, and the wall still stands in places.

"This king was dressed in beads and more beads. His dress had nothing above the waistline but he had on so many beads that I didn't realize there was nothing under them until someone told me. He did wear an enormously high collar, about four inches high and so large that he could have easily dropped his chin inside.

"He was attended by his chiefs in full dress. It was hot and we were about to melt. Yet the dress of the chiefs were made from row after row of red scalloped felt, overlapping like feathers. Some were trimmed with clock wheels.

"One of the most interesting sights was the rubber plantation. There were 65 acres planted in trees. Each was numbered and tapped every other day. We saw them tap the tree and make the latex (juice) into rubber. All the latex collected in the morning is manufactured into rubber in the afternoon. Each man taps 500 trees between 6 and 10 a. m. The rubber is as white as this paper but it is smoked for 14 days until so thoroughly dry that no mold will set in and destroy it; when dry it is amber in color."

Happy Birthday!

TEXAS ELECTRIC AND BELL TELEPHONE BEAT BUICKS AND NEWSIES

CHEWNING BESTS GEMMILL IN A FAST GAME

Through strong pitching and hitting of Chewning and good support from his mates, Texas Electric Service company remained on top of the Nocturne league last night, along with Midland Hardware & Furniture company, which did not play.

es of the game over the Newsies, winning 14-7. The Bell Telephone company had a comparatively easy time of it beating the Scruggs Buick club. Doc Ellis showed improvement over the pitching brand commonly employed by the Telephone Installers, but he walked four of the five men who scored against him.

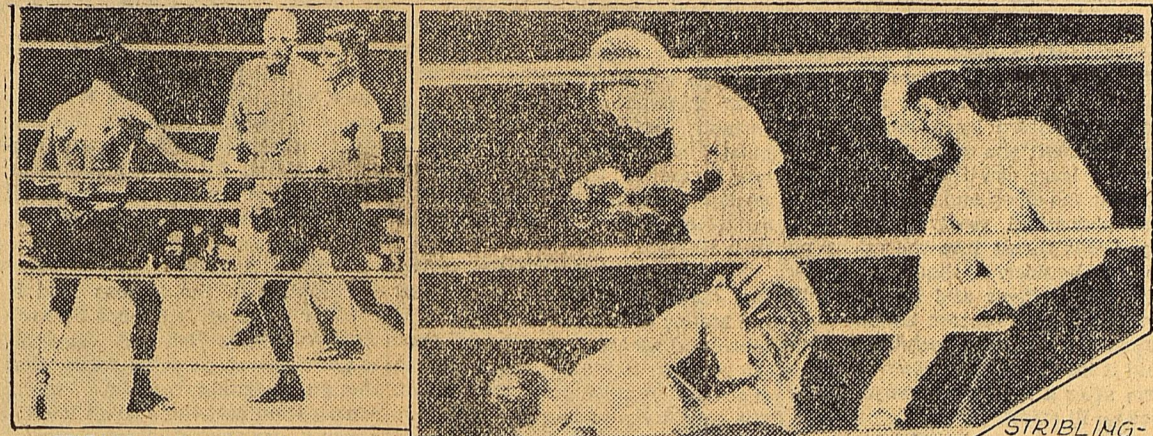

Through last night's game, four clubs loom for first division strength—the Texas Electric, Midland Hardware, De Luxe Laundry and Bell Telephone. Scruggs Buick, Cowden-Epley, Rexall stores and Reporter-Telegram show second division form.

Ma Stribling Cherishes Hope of Title More'n Son

STRIBLING-SHARKEY STRIBLING-SCOTT STRIBLING-GRIFFITHS STRIBLING-VON PORAT STRIBLING-DE KUH

Both favorable and unfavorable attention was called to W. L. Stribling, Jr., as a result of the bouts pictured here. His dance with Sharkey and his waltz with DeKuh caused people to cast many sturring remarks. But it was different in the Scott, Von Porat and Griffiths frays. Willie was a fighting fool in those engagements and because he was he is getting the shot at Schmelzing's crown July 3 in Cleveland.

BY CLAIRE BURCKY NEA Service Sports Writer. GEAUGA LAKE PARK, O., June 17.—"If it's a boy, he's going to become heavyweight champion of the world."

He was a boy, and the words that Ma Stribling spoke 27 years ago in Bainbridge, Ga., before he was born appear just about ready to come true.

Sometimes the goal has seemed near for W. L. (Young) Stribling, Jr. Then it faded—a mirage. Now it is near again—July 3 at Cleveland—when this good-looking, likeable young Georgian meets Max Schmeling, to box 15 rounds or less for the title.

He has booted his important opportunities—with Mike McTigue, one-time middleweight champion; with Paul Berlenbach and Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight kings, and with Jack Sharkey—one by one for 10 years. Still, should everybody be sour on the young man? Shouldn't he be commended for building himself new chances with swift comebacks on the heels of these failures?

This is his big chance—and perhaps the last chance he will need. I hope he gets there this time. There was no apparent reason for his letting McTigue's title get away from him, though he actually did have the championship for an hour while Mike's own referee was changing and rechanging his decision.

I am informed that there was a moment in that bout when Strib had the ancient Irishman completely at his mercy and should have knocked him cold. But he didn't, and the opportunity passed.

"Didn't they accuse you of 'faint heart' in the Berlenbach fight?" I asked him the other day. "They accused me of lots of things," replied W. L., "but it wasn't as bad as that. I didn't lack heart and I'll never lack it in this life. The fans couldn't understand that I didn't have a pair of legs under me and that I was fighting on heart alone. Without a heart, I couldn't have gone 15 rounds with a guy hitting as hard as Berlenbach was that night."

Maybe that explanation suits you, and maybe it doesn't. Anyhow, we'll pass on to the Loughran and Sharkey fights.

According to Pa Stribling, a series of bad breaks bobbed up in front of W. L. in both those fights. The young man injured his shoulder while training for Loughran. In spite of this, he started out to beat Tommy, says Pa, only to wrench his lame shoulder. He was through after that.

"W. L. aggravated that same shoulder injury while getting ready for the Sharkey fight," explained Pa. "I wanted to call off the fight and I argued it out with both Dempsey and Carey, co-promoters of the fight. They finally made us see that we'd be disappointing a lot of our own home folks, so we went through with it. First, though, they said they'd give us a fight in New York later."

"The boy was in no shape to do his best, but he went through with it. With his left arm practically useless, he fought Sharkey well enough to have an even break going into the tenth round. W. L. lost the tenth, according to the referee, but it was close. If his showing was disappointing, what about Sharkey, who had two good hands to fight with?"

But it was Willie's knuckles, and not his clinches and wrestling holds, that brought his this July 3rd chance against Schmeling. A couple of left hooks exploding on Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott and a well-fought encounter with Tuffy Griffiths were responsible.

Another tour of the tank towns, followed by a jaunt through Europe in which he twice fought Primo Carnera, and Willie worked his way into a bout with Von Porat, the long-jawed son of a Norwegian school teacher. You know all about that; Stribling rammed his coccinized left fist halfway down Von Porat's throat and knocked him cold in the first round.

You also know all about how he went back to England and left-hooked Scott to the floor five times before Painting Phil was counted out in the second round. And you probably recall how he fooled around with big Arthur Dekuh, content to outpunch him, and then had to whale Tuffy Griffiths last winter to bring himself back into good graces again.

Pioneer Cures for Beast And Man Told By Old Timer

One of the current issues of "The Cattleman", a ranchman magazine published at Fort Worth, carries the first of a series of three articles on the very interesting subject of "Ranch Remedies." The articles were written by Frank Woodhull and published through the courtesy of the Texas Folklore society.

In the opening paragraphs of his very interesting article, Woodhull explains:

"The question of a properly descriptive title for this paper bothered me. Some people call remedies 'Household Remedies'; some folks call them 'Family Cures'; a few careful persons term them 'Home Treatments'; but most folks of Southwest Texas call them 'Remedies.' A remedy is, I suppose, a Mexican remedy. 'Remedy,' unfortunately, contains the hint or warranty of efficacy, and, Jimmy Slaton said with regard to his remedies, 'I give you these without warranty or guarantee on my part as to reliability or efficacy'; furthermore, the great majority of the treatments are Anglo-Saxon in their abrupt simplicity rather than Latin in their finesse. But usage covers a multitude of irregularities, especially in folklore, and after all a title does not mean much.

"My original intention was to collect only ancient treatments for live stock, but cures commenced to come in covering ill ranging from drought maddy water and lack of wind to teething children, gun-shot wounds and pigs with stomach-ache. The party grew. I finally opened the doors and welcomed with growing enthusiasm everything that came. I found that treatments for labor pains and freckles were just as interesting as treatments for fistulas and dislocated stifle joints and I hope that others may find them interesting too—although many people haven't. I was drafted as a substitute speaker on a Conopus club program. My co-entertainer was a two-hundred-pound night club hostess who gave mammy songs in black face. "The little girl got a wonderful hand" but my remedies and I produced only an occasional puzzled expression."

Regardless of the tastes of various social clubs, this writer found the collection very interesting and I am certain the ranchmen of our section will find many of them have a familiar ring. Here are a few:

"Cavin Woodward, down on the Frio, had a horse which fundered from overheating. Someone told him that if he'd go down to the river, catch a frog and tie it between the horse's eyes, his horse would be cured; this on the theory that the cold-blooded frog would relieve the overheating. Cavin said that both frog and the horse died. He thought that the news was good and advice bad. A dog suffering from strychnine poisoning can be cured by branding a cross on the dog's forehead. It is a little difficult to understand the mechanics of that operation but it's news of some sort. A sure cure for nausea is a broth made from the lining of chicken gizzards. It is perfectly obvious that a chicken will thrive although its gizzard be filled with a collection of rocks and other indigestible matter; the lining of the gizzard must logically possess some remarkable power. The president of a San Antonio land bank told me his father was never without some dried chicken gizzard linings in his pocket. Whenever the old gentleman felt an attack of indigestion coming on, he pulled out a piece of dried chicken gizzard lining and chewed on it. Relief was immediate. The bank president's family physician states that chicken gizzard linings put up in powdered form are sold in drug stores, and that they constitute a very effective cure for indigestion. If that's true, and I am sure that it must be, this remedy is at once good news, good advice and valuable knowledge.

"An absolutely positive cure for hayfever is to smoke coffee grounds in a pipe. Last year during hay-fever season, Frank Dobie went into the wilds of Mexico to hunt mountain sheep and hide from hay-fever. I offered him that remedy merely as a matter of information, but it sounds more practical than the effort to have the Texas Legislature remove obnoxious pollen from all the cedar trees in Travis county.

"Rattlesnake bite: I knew two men, brothers, who were in camp many miles from aid of any kind. One was bitten by a large rattler on the hand; the other quickly shot down a large cow that happened to be near the camp and slit a hole into the abdominal cavity. The bitten hand was thrust into the cavity up to the shoulder. A shade was made over the sufferer and he lay there until the cow's carcass became cold. When the arm was withdrawn they said it looked like a washer-woman's arm after a hard day's work. There was no ill effect."

"Whooping cough: Drink liberal quantities of mare's milk.—Marvin Hunter, Bandera.

"Toothache: If we got a toothache when we were out on the range we cut the first skin off the frog of a horse's front hoof, and then put the skin over the fire and charred it until it crumbled, and put it in the tooth and it would stop the toothache every time.—Pete Anderwald, Bandera.

"For warts, steal a neighbor's dishrag and rub the warts with it. Then bury the dishrag under a peach tree. (An East Texas remedy.)—Mrs. Harold Looney, Leon Springs.

"Warts: Prick the wart with a needle, run the needle into a grain of corn and bury the grain of corn.—Peggy Prassel, San Antonio.

"Founder and lockjaw caused by overheating can be cured by driving eighteen or twenty nails—make three rows of them—in a board so that the sharp points stick out from a quarter to half an inch. Then lay the board on the horse's forehead and hit the board with a hammer. I have seen my father cure more than a hundred horses which had lockjaw from founder by hitting this board a wallop.—John Grissom, San Angelo.

"I am going to give you the most novel remedy I have in mind. Fold blanket several times, place on forehead. Place plank on blanket, strike plank with ax or heavy hammer. The purpose in this is to jar jaws unlocked. I have seen this method used without results but have been told it is very effective.—W. J. Maltzberger.

"For lockjaw, sharpen a long stick and jab it up both nostrils. This causes the horse to bleed so freely that often it appears that he is about to bleed to death.

"Another treatment that is very effective is to knock the horse in the head with an axe. The jar is supposed to shake the jaws loose. To prevent killing the horse it is recommended to place a board on the horse's head before hitting.—Edgar Kincaid, Sabin.

"Broken bones: The Mexicans on the ranch cure broken bones by taking a couple of scaly lizards and killing them. Then they slit the lizards down the belly, from head to tail, and tie them around the broken bone, like a splint. In a week or two the bone is entirely well.—Roy Jackson, Sinton.

Survivors Famed Hill Fued Now Friends and Neighbors

By STUART WHITEHOUSE
NEA Service Correspondent
MOSSY ROCK, Wash., June 17.—Here in this little valley, surrounded by cloud-capped peaks and far from the rumble of commerce, live the last survivors of the strange western migration of the fighting Hatfields and the battling McCoy's.

Shortly after the turn of the present century, a group of the feudists, weary of the fighting that had kept West Virginia and Kentucky in a turmoil for several generations, quietly slipped away and found a new home in the west. Strangely enough, members of both families came here, but they never resumed their warfare.

Two men still live in the valley: Ben (Dan) Hatfield at one end and Bill McCoy at the other. They live in peace and plenty, but although they are on good terms there is no great depth of friendship between them. The men folk among the Hatfields and the McCoy's are funny that way, even the descendants of the earlier generations.

Hatfield and McCoy agree on most things, but they split on the burning issue of the day—the prohibition. "I'm a Temperance Hatfield, and don't drink," Ben says.

McCoy admits to taking a little nip now and then to warm his bones and observes, out of his experience—"In the old days they used to make moonshine out of corn. Nowadays they make likker out of sugar, and it is not near so good."

Why did these members of the great fighting families move westward, just when the war between their clans was drawing to a close? "The folks got tired on all the fighting and carrying on," says Ben Hatfield, known as Dan to many. "Cut here we found a good living and not all that ruction. So here we came, and here we are."

But Bill McCoy, 20 years senior to Hatfield, disagrees.

"Hatfield is all wrong," he declares. "There was no McCoy nor Hatfield ever came west looking for peace. The war was over back there and we wanted new land, that's all. My pappy had told me about Washington when I was a boy and here I am. If they had needed me back there, I wouldn't have come. No, sir, no McCoy or Hatfield, either, ever ran from a fight!"

Bill McCoy's marriage was the talk of all Kentucky in 1895. For, like a page from Shakespeare's tender "Romeo and Juliet" he took his bride, pretty Mary, from the Hatfields.

"A few years before that when Jonse Hatfield ran off with a McCoy girl, there was the dickens to pay," Bill McCoy laughs.

"But that was when the feud was quite true. If rain isn't forthcoming soon, the Mexicans take a little switch and switch the picture.—Gallie Bogel, Fabens.

"For teething children: Rub the swollen gums with the brains of a freshly killed rabbit. Strange to say, this is pretty good.—Gallie Bogel."

hot. When Mary and I slipped off and got married everything was rosy. Nobody cared then."

Their has been a fruitful union. Five strong sons were born, now scattered throughout the west. Mary Hatfield-McCoy, a grandmother now, is visiting relatives this summer and old Bill is lonesome.

"I surely miss the old lady," he says. "A man couldn't have had a finer wife. Why not? The Hatfields and the McCoy's both are the finest families in the south. I've told my boys, and I'll tell my grandson, Willie, when he grows up, that he couldn't be luckier than to get him a Hatfield for a wife."

The start of the famous feud is another point of difference between these two men. Ben Hatfield holds to the classical, accepted theory that the great family conflict, which caused the deaths of more than 100 persons, was started in an argument over a hog.

"All Hatfield knows about it is what he read in books," McCoy laughs. "He was just a boy when he came west. I was a grown man. The real start of the whole trouble was over elections. What finally stopped it was the governors of two states. It was mighty hot toward the end, too."

McCoy raises hogs. He is a grand-nephew of the great McCoy leader, Randall McCoy, a fierce daredevil who delighted in shooting as many Hatfields as he could.

Ben Hatfield, is a great-grand-nephew of the fiercest "fightingest" Hatfield of them all, old "Devil Anse" Hatfield—a kindly, bearded patriarch, but a very devil when it came to warring on the McCoy's. Ben has a garden, a pretty wife and two small sons; and some cattle.

Between the two, near the Mossy Rock postoffice, lives old Aunt Sarah Hatfield, 82 years old. Nearby in a grassy country cemetery, sleeps her husband, Mitchell Hatfield, a brother of "Devil Anse," surrounded by his three daughters, Nellie, Zee and Laura. Mitchell died last year at the ripe old age of 83. He lived in Kentucky when the feud was at its height. They all came out here when peace was declared and the families have numerous descendants scattered over this region.

"One thing is certain—no Hatfield ever took a McCoy for a hide nor did a McCoy ever take a Hatfield for one," says Hatfield. "The old folks don't fight that way; the Hatfield-McCoy feud was nothing like the dirty gang wars in Chicago."

"Back in Kentucky and in West Virginia some of the young ones still fight a little when they get likkered up—but out here, shucks, we've forgotten it all."

Though Ben Hatfield and Bill McCoy live in peace, stories of the famous fights of their relatives are highly interesting to Herman Hatfield, 11, and his 10-year-old brother, Harry.

Instead of playing "Cop and Robber" as city boys do, they have a game of their own, called "Hatfield and McCoy"—and you can be sure that the one who plays Hatfield always wins.

"I wish I'd lived when Hatfields really shot McCoy's," Harry says wistfully.

"Shush now, son, quit talking such foolishness," gentle Ben, their father, remonstrates. "It's not nice."

Glowing Idyl of Young Love, With Dorothy Mackail, Comes to Ritz

Dorothy Mackail, again creates an altogether fascinating young woman of the day, a character even more intriguing than that of the office wife which everybody remembers. The first crowd at the Ritz theatre this afternoon enthusiastically acclaimed the dazzling blonde in the character of Laura in "Party Husband."

Though the play deals with advanced theories of marriage, the characters are made so living and human by the players, and there is such a truth in the dashes of comedy and in the tender scenes, that the total effect is a cross-section of modern life, well worth the while of young and old married folks and those who think of being married folks, to behold.

James Rennie gives a sincere performance as Jay, the husband who agrees with the young bride that marriage should not curb one's activities, or hamper one's personality. He gets a job of arranging radio broadcasts and Laura takes a position with a publishing house. Her theory gets a slight jolt when a modern maiden takes bibulous possession of Jay, but true to her creed, she lets it pass.

It is when she is taken to a distant city by her employer, on a business trip, that Jay's theory goes absolutely to pieces and he follows on vengeance bent. This is but a hint of the story which never loses its breathless pace till the last fadeout.

Dorothy Peterson, who was so successful in the highly emotional title role of "Mothers Cry," shows her versatility by the creation of a not-too-modern girl, who grieves at the plight of the newly-weds and succeeds in hiding her love for the groom, Helen Ware is at her best as the strong-minded mother-in-law, who comes in at the critical moment. Light comedy roles are cleverly done by Joe Donahue and Paul Poreasi. Mary Doran and Barbara Weeks add to the charm of the cast.

"Party Husband" is an adaptation of the novel by Geoffrey Barnes and Clarence Badger directed.

The glittering performance of Dorothy Mackail places her even more firmly in the heart of fandom. All who want an evening of real entertainment should see the picture.

DEAD MEN'S SHOES

PORTLAND, Ore.—The county coroner has one of the oldest hobbies in the world. He collects dead men's shoes. Dead persons brought into the morgue here to be identified but who have remained unclaimed and have been laid away in Potter's Field, furnish shoes for the coroner's collection. When he gets enough shoes, he passes them out to needy persons and starts collecting again.

OFFICE SEEKING

ALBANY, N. Y.—It is reported that the huge new state office building here is sinking and that it has leaned since its construction, as a result of its sinking, so that it is more than four inches off perpendicular. The $8,000,000 structure has sunk all of nine inches since it was put up several years ago, it is said.

AIR MILEAGE UP

NEW YORK.—Reports for the first three months of 1931 show that American air transport lines flew 7,427,514 miles during the period, compared with 5,044,639 miles during the same period of 1930. During the same period of 1931 express poundage jumped 279 per cent and air mail poundage 15 per cent, according to figures of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

AIR SAFETY CONFAB

NEW YORK.—To increase the safety of airplane operation and protect the lives of air passengers, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce has formed an Aviation Safety Conference. The duties of this body will be to gather facts and test appliances designed to promote air safety. An air safety code will be worked out by the body.

ROCKET EXPERT DESIGNS A FAST PLANE MOTOR

ROSWELL, N. M.—A new type airplane motor has been developed here by Dr. Robt. H. Goddard, professor physics at Clark university, Worcester, Mass. Dr. Goddard has spent the last year in Roswell experimenting with gas-propelled rockets in an effort to gather scientific data of the stratosphere.

The motor, Dr. Goddard believes, will enable airplanes to travel in rare atmosphere and at a greater speed than ever has been attained.

The invention has been pending in the patent office at Washington for two years and final patents were issued on June 9, Dr. Goddard said.

Solves Speed Problem

Discussing the invention, Dr. Goddard said: "It has been estimated that above 600 miles an hour, rocket propulsion for airplanes will be more effective than any other type of engine, and it is on this theory that I have built and patented this motor."

"Although the rocket jets themselves have more efficiency than either the Diesel engine or the steam turbine, this efficiency cannot be utilized at lower or present airplane speeds, because a large part of the energy passes off in the jet and comparatively little is given to the plane.

"The present invention, involving the use of a urbine and propeller, in addition to rocket jets, overcomes the disadvantage which exists under 600 miles an hour. I believe this motor will solve the problem of most efficient propulsion at all speeds below which direct rocket propulsion is most effective.

Dr. Goddard selected Roswell for his experiments because of atmospheric conditions and the absence of storm areas. He is working under the direction of the Guggenheim Foundation.

'Chutes on Rockets

Propelled by a newly developed liquid fuel, Dr. Goddard hopes to send the rockets 250 miles into the air. The rockets now being developed will carry thermometers, barometers, electrical measuring apparatus, air traps to collect samples of upper air stratas and other specially designed apparatus to gather information from the stratosphere.

The rockets, which are equipped with parachutes, are shot into the air vertically and experience has shown that they come back on the parachutes generally to a point near where they were released.

Dr. Goddard's experiments in rocket propulsion, conducted since 1912, led to the invention of the new airplane motor, built on the same principle as the power behind the rocket.

Discusses Letter

Three months were spent in Hereford with Fred Spikes, the witness testified on cross-questioning. He told of what he had left at his home near Mesa Redonda when he left there December 18, including bed-clothes, chain harness, a dozen head of saddle horses, and cooking utensils. Fred Spikes remained at John Spikes' house, the witness stated. He stated that he was not breaking up his housekeeping for good and said he had decided to return to New Mexico "before I left Crosby", adding that his brothers knew he was planning to return.

Jeff said he left John Witt in charge of the mercantile store he had a half interest in, at Old Emma. He had bought the business with a small stock and built it up. In New Mexico his duties were looking after cattle, he stated. Sam Spikes had married in Floydada before going to New Mexico and Mr. Spikes was not sure whether she was related to J. W. Elliott family in that state or not.

"If John Spikes wrote to Henry Hawkins, I never knew it," the witness said in response to a question concerning a letter John was alleged to have sent to Hawkins at Clifton, Arizona. "He never told me of receiving a reply to it. I never heard of Cook and Massagee until this suit was filed."

Touches on Cattle Business

The witness said he had never seen any men around the Mesa who he did not know. "If I did not know them I would soon get acquainted with them," he added.

Figures on the number of calves and cattle taken to New Mexico by the brothers were gone over, also the number of animals sold to T. A. Wayne. Mr. Spikes explained that he had sold about 325 head and that the total was around 800 or 900 head. With calves, the witness said, the number might have been higher.

Other Suits Filed

Questioned concerning his own interest in the suit Jeff Spikes said his mother had Ernest and Sam had also filed suits "so I understand," as well as the three children of the late John Spikes. Plaintiff's attorney objected to mention of the other suits, but their objections were not sustained.

Asked by Klett, "do you claim to be one of the four Spikes brothers mentioned in the book?" That witness replied, "I claim that the book slandered me." Again he answered "I claim to be one of the Spikes brothers." Then he added "I am one of the four Spikes brothers."

Was Never Accused

On redirect examination, Jeff Spikes declared he had never been accused of the theft of any cattle or of anything else. Referring to a trip to Mesa Redonda after the death of his brothers, he explained why he made his trips by night. "I was afraid to be seen," he said. "It would have meant death." Questioned by Klett if he thought his brother Sam who remained in that section until late in 1903 also had been "afraid", the witness said "I don't know." He said he knew that John, Dick and Fred Spikes were around the ranch almost every day because he saw them there.

Second Witness Heard

Ernest Spikes followed his brother on the witness stand. The witness said he was about 13 years old when he came to Crosby county and that he attended school at Emma, then work for his father, the Z-Bar-L and other ranches.

John and Dick Spikes went to New Mexico in 1899 and he helped drive the cattle, the witness said. Two trips were made with the cattle, 400 to 450 head in the first bunch and 135 to 150 head in the second group. Some of the cattle belonged to Van Sanders, Mr. Spikes testified.

Fred and Jeff Spikes went to New Mexico in 1901, the witness said. Sam Spikes and his wife were there for a while.

"I never attended a round up at Fort Sumner and my brothers never did," he said. Asked if he had heard of any alleged acts of lawlessness as claimed by the defendants the witness said, "Not until I heard of them in this case."

The witness said he did not enter into any conspiracy with anyone in acts of lawlessness.

"I left Mesa Redonda in December 1901, and after a little time in Crosby county, I went to Mineral Wells. I was there when I heard of the death of my brothers in New Mexico. I then went to Hereford where I met Fred," the witness said.

After returning to Crosby county, Ernest Spikes said he worked for T. H. Ellis and on other ranches until about 1906. Questioned concerning his trip to Mesa Redonda after the killing, Ernest said he made the trip because he was afraid to appear in daylight. He stayed there two nights, the witness stated.

Attorney Lockhart asked him about a conversation with Frank Bond, living near Mesa Redonda, purported to have occurred three or four weeks before the shooting, allegedly heard that the residents of the community "were going after the Spikes brothers."

"I never was in Frank Bond's house with John and Dick," Ernest Spikes said. "I was at Bond's house one time with Dick, but it was not the time stated by Bond."

Klett again cross-questioned the witness and after asking him several questions about his work in California and his hearing about the book

CHIEF RED WING MUST SIT IN THE CHAIR, IS RULING

AUSTIN, June 17. (UP)—Chief Red Wing, Indian convicted of attacking and killing Evangeline Cavazos, three, daughter of the proprietor of the carnival in which the Indian played, must go to the electric chair, the appellate court affirmed today.

The child's body, beaten with rocks, was found last October, hidden by a signboard at New Braunfels where the carnival was playing.

written by Hazy, the attorney began to quiz the witness whether or not he claimed to be one of the four brothers mentioned in the book.

"I claim the book refers to me as a cattle rustler and a cow thief," the witness declared after the objection of the plaintiff's attorneys had been overruled by Judge Clark M. Mullican. Again he answered, "I claim to be one of the Spikes brothers mentioned in the book." After being told by Judge Mullican to answer "yes" or "no", or if he did not know to say "I do not know" the witness said "I do not know."

The witness said he had heard of the trouble his brothers might have had with Sam Gholson and Bud Lee. "I talked to Mr. Gholson," he said, "but it was not about cattle." He said he was not seeking trouble when he left the ranch.

In response to a question concerning a letter from Henry Hawkins, to John Spikes, the witness said "All I know about Henry Hawkins was when he worked for the Circle S ranch." The witness said he knew nothing about Fred Spikes obtaining a Winchester rifle from Condy Carmack.

Ernest Spikes said he did not hear of any cattle rustling and did not hear of the state sanitary board taking cattle from anyone that were believed were stolen animals.

At morning session Jeff Spikes, in telling of alleged calf stealing charges brought against John Spikes by a Mr. Kidd said the calf, branded both "WAX" and "KID" claimed by Mr. Kidd, went to sucking a Spikes cow when it got near the herd. Mr. Kidd, he said, told John he would have the case thrown out of court and it was dismissed. Jeff Spikes said he sold the animal in 1894, as a two-year-old.

Bob Norfleet, brother of J. Frank Norfleet, in testifying about his trip to Mesa Redonda about January 10, 1902, said he planned to buy the Spikes ranch. He said he told Sam Gholson about the proposed purchase.

"Mr. Gholson told me he thought I had better wait a few days and that I could make a better trade when there would not be so many Spikeses to deal with," Norfleet said.

Norfleet stated on cross-examination that on his return to New Mexico later in the summer he did not make an attempt to buy the Spikes ranch.

"There appeared to be a great deal of discord around there," the witness replied when asked why he did not buy the place.

Norfleet was not inclined to answer cross-questions with a "yes" or "no" at times and argued with his inquisitor. He also stated that while talking to Sam Gholson the latter had exhibited a new rifle which had been given to him. The conversation occurred about January 10, 1903, the witness said.

A sinking fund will be set aside, it was decided, in order to get a distinctive exhibit to send to Chicago. The exhibit, as tentatively planned, would depict development of Longhorn to white-faced Hereford cattle, Mexican goats to Angora, common sheep to Rambouillet and Delaines, show progress of agriculture and evolution of stage coach trails to modern highways, railroads and airways.

All committeemen were present except Amon Carter of Fort Worth and John Perkins of Alpine.

Dr. Lewis H. Haney, director of the bureau of business research of New York university, cited seven reasons for his hope that the bottom of the business recession is not far distant. The first was that the country "has ceased to listen to bunk about business and is now at last facing the facts."

CHICAGO, June 17. (UP)—Al Capone is as good as in prison, Chicago has been convinced today.

The strength of the gangs is believed to have been broken following Capone's plea of guilty yesterday in federal court on a charge of income tax fraud and conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Capone is reported to be hiding and allegedly is making plans so his business will be continued while he is in prison.

Railroads Ask for Freight Rate Hike

WASHINGTON, June 17. (UP)—United States railroads today unanimously petitioned the interstate commerce commission for a 15 per cent increase in all freight rates.

J. S. Kelly, chairman of the eastern group, H. A. Scandrett, of the western group and W. R. Cole of the Southern group described the present situation as an emergency threatening serious impairment of the financial resources and the capacity to assure the public continuation of efficient and adequate service.

VETS COMPLETE PROGRAM IN A MEETING MONDAY

Veterans of Foreign Wars will meet Monday night, 8:30, in the Petroleum club room of Hotel Scharbauer for completion of plans for conducting Fourth of July's race card and other entertainments on the program, James Noland, general chairman, announced today.

Lee Haynes will call for a report of race committeemen, and concessions plans will be completed.

Five thousand out-of-town people are expected for the program, according to Noland.

SOCIAL LEADER WILL RETURN TO FACE CHARGES

DALLAS, June 17. (UP)—Herbert Scales, 35, Dallas society leader, today agreed to return to Memphis, Tenn., for questioning in connection with the $20,000 bank hold-up there.

John Cherris, 37, and Ralph Arnold, 23, ex-convicts arrested here in connection with the hold-up also agreed to waive extradition.

Scales' father, Greenville farmer, urged his son to return, denying that the boy had anything to do with the robbery.

Child Suffocates In Combine Splot

LOCKNEY, June 17.—Buried under wheat when he fell into the spout of a harvesting combine, Harold Orr, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Orr, met instant death by suffocation on his father's farm three miles southwest of Lockney at 6:30 Tuesday evening.

The boy, interested in watching the big machine harvest grain, had persuaded his father to allow him to ride in the combine hopper. When a grain dump was made, the lad slipped and fell into the spout. Wheat rushed over, smothering him. He was dead before his father could extricate him from the spout. His body was not injured.

It was understood there were no others at the scene when the tragedy occurred.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night. Besides his parents, the boy is survived by several brothers and sisters.

GOLF as the STARS Play It

by ART KRENZ

Is the waggle of any importance?

The golfer who tries for direction and for the correct follow-through is benefitted greatly by the preliminary waggle. It is a splendid means for loosening tight wrists and does away with any tense feeling.

For the beginner learning to hit the ball, the waggle comes in handy. He may improve his swing by emulating the action at the moment of impact of clubhead and ball and the low follow through along the direction line.

Virgil Ray has gone to Marfa this week to attend the field trips to various ranches in that section.
