HALEY HAPPY AT CONCLUSION OF LUBBOCK TRIAL

Smiling broadly, boyishly trying to hide his own elation—that was J. Evetts Haley, Midland author, who Saturday won what was considered a "test suit" at Lubbock.

He was in the Haley automobile with his parents and just about ready to drive to El Paso.

"Have only a minute here," he said, "but I'm glad to be home again. As you might suspect, I'm glad the $200,000 suit ended as it did."

Haley plans no let-up in work. He will not go on a vacation but will continue gathering material for his next book, the life of Col. Charles Goodnight. He says, contrary to what people have said, he has no inclination to write novels.

He did say, however, that it is sometimes safer to write novels than history. He laughed at that.

He thinks of other books he intends writing, and is stuffing note books with data as he works on his present book.

LUBBOCK, June 22.—Motion for a new trial was to be entered by the plaintiff's attorneys before the court today, G. E. Lockhart, chief counsel, announced following the return of the jurors' decision.

"Just Begun To Fight" "We have just begun to fight," Lockhart declared. "We'll file motion for new trial and if that's denied, appeal will be made to the court of civil appeals at Amarillo. Should we lose there, we're going to take the case to the supreme court of Texas."

"In the meantime," Mr. Lockhart continued, "we will announce ready for trial on Jeff Spikes' case in Crosby county in September. We're going to try that one while waiting on the decision of Fred's case."

Mr. Spikes, a Lubbock business man, sought the damages as the result of the publication of "The XIT Ranch in Texas," a book written by Haley for the trustees of the ranch. Mention of the "Spikes gang" in chapter 8 of the book, was made in reference to alleged cattle rustling and outlawry. The chapter was titled "A Long Fight For Law."

Other Suits Filed Jeff Spikes, brother of the plaintiff, has a similar action against Haley and the trustees in Crosby county. Sam and Ernest Spikes, other brothers and residents of California, have filed suits in Lubbock, as have Mrs. Julia Ann Spikes, mother of the boys, Houston and Velton Spikes, nephews of the plaintiff, and Mrs. Freda Spikes, Hunt, a niece. Total damages sought in all suits is approximately $1,600,000.

George R. Bean and C. C. Crenshaw, defense attorneys, said as far as they knew, they will be ready for trial as soon as the plaintiff in the (See HALEY page 6)

CHANGES MADE IN RULES OF RACES FOR JULY 3 AND 4

Slight changes in the racing program, to be held at Cowboy Park July 3 and 4, were announced by members of the committee today.

The first race, a quarter-mile event for polo horses and cowponies, to carry 160 pounds, is to be a maiden race, all horses who have run in previous races to be barred.

The sixth race, the relay, has been changed to the degree that instead of allowing a relay cinch, each contestant must have a regular buckle cinch, with ring and tongue. This race will have teams of three horses each, with saddle as much as 25 pounds and rider as much as 130 pounds besides the saddle.

Other changes may be made, subject to the will of the race committee, such changes being to fit the entries that will be made. It is the purpose of the committee to arrange events to the best interests of contestants, it was said today.

Lee Haynes, George Underwood, Neal Stator, Spence Jewell, Timberline Floyd, John Dublin, Elliott F. Cowden, Clarence Scharbauer, Elmer Jones, Myrl Jewell, Leon Goodman, Ellis Cowden, Harry L. Haight, T. Paul Barron and M. R. Hill compose the race committee.

Lee Haynes, chairman, has heard from Clayton Stewart and John Christian of Big Spring, both of whom will bring horses here for the races.

Jim Waddell will bring in an entry for the cowpony race and possibly one for the three-eighths race.

All contestants are asked to have their horses entered at least five days before the race meet, or on June 28, so that programs may be completed and printed. Colors of each stable also must be listed.

Baseball Players Fight; One Shot

CORPUS CHRISTI, June 22. (UP)—Baseball players of Portland and Gregory turned from the umpire to fight among themselves yesterday and an innocent bystander, Arturo Mireles, was shot through the body.

Mireles was in a critical condition. The accident occurred when one of the players produced a pistol.

INVALID IS SHOT IN BED

Accidents Figure in More Deaths Than Other Causes

DALLAS, June 22. (UP)—Sixteen Texans died violently over the week end in shootings, drownings, accidents and suicides.

In Amarillo, Jack Dennis was shot and killed and E. C. Baker was held.

In Nocona, V. A. Lyles, farmer, was shot fatally. Olin Roberson, charged with the murder, was out on bond.

Invalid Shot In Brenham, Mrs. May Dod, incurable invalid, was shot and killed in her bed. Her brother, W. Rees Bradford, was held. It is believed that he also planned to kill himself.

An unidentified man was found with broken neck under a bridge near here. A murder is suspected.

In Fort Worth, F. L. Keller, train dispatcher, was believed fatally shot. His wife said it was an accident during a domestic quarrel.

Accidents Fatal Trains killed M. L. Shelton in a car east of Alpine, Jess McElreath, cowboy of White Deer, and J. J. Cluck, Waxahachie.

An unidentified man was killed by an auto near Mesquite in Dallas county.

Drowning victims were Agnes Corrine Cathey, south of Brownwood, R. W. Delaney, Texas City, Miguel Guerrero, Austin.

One Poison Victim Joe Alice of Houston was found dead with an empty strychnine bottle in his pocket. A suicide verdict was returned.

George Daniels was killed by a shooting gallery operator when he stepped in front of a bullet fired at a target.

Louie L. Mangus was killed when he dove in front of a freight train this morning near Fulton, 20 miles northeast of Texarkana.

Midland Loses In Net Matches

A tie in doubles and a loss in singles for the Midland tennis club caused McCamey to even matches lost in Midland earlier in the season. Matches were played Sunday in McCamey.

Ferguson, No. 1 man for Midland, beat Wilson, 6-2, 6-1; Godbey lost to Shipman, 4-6, 5-7; McCrary won from Jones, 6-3, 14-12; Pope lost to Walker, 6-2, 2-6, 4-6; Stubbeman lost to Edwards, 1-6, 5-7.

In doubles, Godbey and Stubbeman beat Shipman and Pulman, 6-4, 6-1, and McCrary and Ferguson lost to Edwards and Jones, 3-6, 6-8.

Big Spring will be in Midland Sunday for matches.

Experts Lift Whale's Face

SAN DIEGO, Cal. (UP)—"Your whale, Mr. Hayward, needs its face lifted. It is sagging badly."

Imagine being faced with the problem of a shrinking whale 1,500 miles from the ocean! Ralph Hayward faced and met the predicament during a tour of the east with one of California's biggest products.

For eight months, and over 30,000 miles of railroad track Hayward escorted and pampered his pet. Dead to be sure, but nevertheless in constant need of care.

Germany Builds Biggest Land Plane

Germany's latest bid for leadership in airplane design is the giant machine shown here—the largest land plane in the world. It is a Luftwansa Junkers, recently completed and sent on a test flight to Croyden Airport, England, where you see her here. The G-38, as it is called, is powered by four motors. Quarters for fourteen passengers and a crew of six occupy part of the leading edge of the extremely thick wing where it meets the fuselage.

Government Stallions Sire Most of Local Race Horses

Government stallions, furnished to reputable ranchmen and horse breeders for periods of four years, have played a big part in making possible such race meets as will be held in Midland July 3 and 4, Jay H. Floyd, prominent polo player and horse breeder, said today.

Most of the local horses to be entered in races, just as in the evenings last July 4 and Labor Day, are sired by stallions furnished by the government to the Floyds, the Jewells, the Bryants and Jim Waddell.

Those four horses were the first to be sent here but since that time others have been furnished to O. P. Jones, Timberline Floyd and sons, Leon Goodman, Tom Nance, Spence Jewell and sons, Clarence Scharbauer, Walter Hightower and Ed-ward and Arnett.

Boone's Knoll, first stallion sent to the Floyd ranch, is the sire of all the horses now being run by this stable, at least one horse being entered in each of the six race events. Boone's Knoll is of the Dark Ronald line, which breeding is famous in racing circles. Pansy Walker, world champion in the mile and a half being a notable example.

Boone's Knoll has been replaced at the Floyd ranch by Sir Dar, half brother to Foreign Relations of the Bloss-Buchanan stables, but, better still, a half brother to The Porter, now of Kentucky, who has the record of being the leading sire of two-year olds for several years. Sir Dar came to the Floyd stables last winter.

Jewell's Fayette C has produced some notable race, polo and cow ponies for their string. Jim Waddell now has five year-old horses from the stallion first sent him. He will have entries in as many as two races July 3 and 4.

The horses entered by Booger Bryant are from Toro, well known stallion sent to Buck Bryant in the first allotment to Midland ranchmen.

Within the last few months, government stallions have been sent to seven ranches listed above, to be left here for the customary four-year period.

In the approaching race meet, sires of the various horses entered will be listed on the printed programs, giving fans an opportunity to judge the results of the horses allotted here.

BACK FROM COLORADO

Buddy Creech and family returned Saturday night from a vacation which took them first to Louisiana and then back to the north, with the climax at the top of Pike's Peak. A pleasant trip was reported.

B. H. Heidelberg was brought to the Midland clinic-hospital this morning for medical examination and treatment. He lives on his farm southeast of Midland.

THREE FIRES ON SAME NIGHT HAVE $10,500 DAMAGE

Three fires visited the residential sections of Midland Saturday night and early Sunday morning, breaking into a long period of low fire loss records.

The first fire, doing damage estimated at $3,000 to the home of Sam Weinstein, occurred at 10 o'clock Saturday night. Prompt work of the fire department prevented total loss to the large frame building on North Marienfield street and also saved adjoining property.

At 2 o'clock Sunday morning, the residence of J. N. Weils, in the west end addition, just north of the Hughes Tool company plant, was totally destroyed, the loss being estimated at $2,500.

A. P. Baker's home on West Texas avenue caught fire at 4 o'clock Sunday morning, with loss of $4,500. The fire is said to have originated in the bath room.

Causes of the three fires were undetermined, insurance agents said today. All were protected to some extent by insurance. All were frame structures.

Scouts Coming Home from Camp

Midland boy scouts, sunburned to the marrow of their tired bones, are on the road back from camp at Madera canyon. Some of them, headed by G. W. Brennan and Wallace Wimberly, arrived Sunday evening.

For a whole week, the boys hunted, fished, swam, ransacked the canyon in search of plant and animal life and, in general, lived that indolent, carefree existence of scouts on vacation.

They knew discipline during the time, but not too much to interfere. Scoutmasters were especially considered, taking out time only for those requisite duties all scouts must have in camp.

Several visitors were at camp Sunday, when the breaking up progress began. Most of the visitors had sons or brothers in camp.

Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Ambrose and son Jack, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Journey and family, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Long and family, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mims and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Dunagan and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Nolan, and Mrs. G. W. Brennan were on the visiting list.

Scouts who returned Sunday night were Robert Rankin, James Walker and Oliver Buffington.

Court of Honor was held Sunday, and Fred Wright went up for Eagle scout rating. A Big Spring boy was the only other scout to ask for the rank, Ted Williams.

BEN DRIVER IMPROVING

Ben Driver, city night officer who received stab wounds while making an arrest last Thursday night, was reported to be steadily improving today at the Midwest hospital-clinic. Driver sustained a severe abdominal cut but the wound was made lighter because the knife struck his heavy leather belt.

REVIVAL SUCCESSFUL

Thirty-seven converts to the Pentecostal Holiness church have been added during the revival now in progress, the Rev. O. W. Roberts pastor, said.

Thirty have been baptized, 18 of them Sunday. Sunday night's crowd was estimated at from 700 to 800.

The revival will go on indefinitely the minister said.

GERMANY JUBILANT AT PLAN

U. S. and France Lose Millions Through Suggestion

WASHINGTON, June 22. (UP).—The outcome of President Hoover's proposal of one-year suspension of war debts reparations appeared today to depend on France.

Other nations seemed agreeable with Germany, who was jubilant.

France is hesitating since it would mean a sacrifice of $96,000,000, which is the difference between what she received from Germany and what she pays her crediting nations.

The proposal would cost France more than any nation except the United States.

Stocks React NEW YORK, June 22. (UP).—A wild short covering sent stocks up from one to 15 points here today as a result of President Hoover's proposal of a one-year moratorium of war debts.

The market opened at the rate of 10,000,000 shares per day.

Hoover's Suggestion

President Hoover announced the offer Saturday night as a move "to give the forthcoming year to the economic recovery of the world and to help free the recuperative forces already in motion in the United States from retarding influences from abroad."

The proposal would deprive America temporarily of more than $245,000,000 in war debts due in the next year. This follows a deficit of nearly $1,000,000,000 for this year. However, it would cost France, Great Britain and the other Allies during the year collection of more than $425,000,000 in reparations from destitute Germany.

"The American government proposes," announced the president, "the postponement during one year of all payments on intergovernmental debts, reparations and relief debts, both principal and interest, of course, not including obligations of governments held by private parties."

SELL BEEF BY ADVERTISING

It is encouraging to see the up-to-date stock raisers of the Big Bend making efforts to aid the livestock industry through their two-day "Field Day" yesterday and today.

Stockmen, feeders, shippers and packers are thus brought together to see splendid cattle, some of the finest ranches in the southwest, and those modern facilities and practices for which the better ranches of the Big Bend are noteworthy.

Ranchmen of Presidio, Brewster and Jeff Davis counties have made heavy investments in improving their ranches and herds in recent years.

Other foods have been urged upon the consuming public to the detriment of beef. Fruit and vegetable organizations, by persuasive advertising, have done this.

Beef consumption is said to have fallen off 25 pounds per capita since 1907. That has been the result of fruit and vegetable advertising, combined with the high prices beef has brought in the butcher shops.

Something may be said about the latter. Meat dealers have been forced to charge relatively high prices for the few cuts of beef housewives will buy in order to cover the rest of the beef for which there is little demand.

It is remarked by dealers that many people do not seem to know there is any part of a beef except the porterhouse and T-bone steaks and the rib roast, whereas the truth is that many other parts of the animal are cheaper, equally good to eat and quite as nourishing.

But the meat industry may well take its cue from the citrus associations, the raisin growers, the lettuce, cabbage and celery people.

If those organizations have taken business away from the meat industry by advertising, the meat producers plainly may expect to recover it by using the same method.

Consistently conducted, intelligently planned meat advertising in the daily newspapers which all classes of people read, and not principally in a select list of magazines with their comparatively limited appeal, will solve the problem.

Make people realize, all over again, that meat is GOOD for them, as well as good to eat; that it possesses elements of bodily nourishment in concentrated form; that it is NOT something to be done without, or to be used skimpily as if it were delightful but slightly poisonous, but to be eaten in a normal and enjoying manner with the expectation of getting a lot of good out of it.

It will take education THROUGH THE NEWSPAPERS to bring the American public back to normal meat consumption; back to eating moderate amounts of meats along with the vegetables and fruits.

Meat dealers, packers, feeders and ranchmen might profitably establish a fund for advertising, and go after the trade that has gotten away from them—El Paso Times.

MODERN FAGINS

When Dickens wrote "Oliver Twist," it was generally taken for granted that Fagin, the professional corruptor of youth, was about as scoundrelly a character as any novelist could invent—too scoundrelly to exist in real life.

Compared with some of the underworld rats of today, however, Fagin looks almost like a gentleman. What, for example, would Dickens make of the Cleveland bootlegger who was convicted of hiring a 15-year-old boy to undertake the dangerous work of "hi-jacking" liquor from rival bootleggers at $5 a gallon?

Dickens probably would be interested, too, to note that this modern Fagin got off with a year in the workhouse and a $500 fine. There are times when the charge that we coddle our criminals seems to have a bit of truth.

Eye Witness Assassination Archduke Recalls That Day

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—"I was an eye-witness to the assassination and will remember it forever."

This is the statement of Marianna Pollak, a Czechoslovakian miss, who saw the Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife murdered in the little Serbian town of Sarajevo on June 28, 1914. Seventeen years later, now, and on the anniversary of the act that brought on the World War, the deed and its resulting happenings are still indelibly impressed on the mind of Miss Pollak.

"The town was gayly decorated with bright flags, flowers and carpets that day to receive the Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife, the Countess Hohenberg, successors to the Austrian throne. The feelings of the town were rather sharply divided, however. Austrians were eagerly awaiting the archduke's arrival so they could honor him. The other part of the population, the Serbians, were plotting the archduke's death. The stage was so set that it was impossible for the archduke to enter the town that day and not be killed.

"About 30 young men were posted on all prominent corners. Each man was armed with a revolver and all were excellent shots. All were under 18 years of age. It was against the law to execute a person under this age for murder. The first attempt to murder the archduke was made before he entered the town hall. The assassin made the mistake of picking the wrong car, however, and wounded the archduke's aide-de-camp.

Warned by Mayor "When he arrived at the town hall, the archduke was warned by the mayor not to proceed with the proposed parade, as he would probably be killed. Franz Ferdinand scoffed at this and said that it was his belief that the first attempt had merely been an accident. As the car turned the first corner away from the town hall a young Serbian student by the name of Gabriel Princip fired the two fatal shots at the car and instantly killed the archduke and his wife.

"I happened to be standing on the opposite corner and had been brought here by my grandmother and brother to watch the parade. When the shots were fired the couple sank back in their seats and a great tumult arose. Policemen and onlookers were shouting and chasing the assassin. He tried to escape by jumping into the nearby river but as this was very shallow he was soon caught and later imprisoned for life for the crime. He died from hard work shortly after the war, however.

Anti-Serbian Riots "Following the shooting, the feeling against Serbia was very strong among the other nationalities of the town who began demonstrating their loyalty to Austria. Not a shop, school, hotel or church that was Serbian property was left undamaged by those seeking vengeance. Shops were broken open and their goods destroyed and thrown in the streets. There was a Serbian bakery in the house where we lived and I heard the commotion going on in the street while I was playing in the garden in back. I gathered my dolls and ran inside crying for my mother as I believed robbers had broken in.

"Precious carpets, meat from butcher shops, goods from bakeries, coffins from a carpenter's shop, shoemaker's boots and leather goods were all piled in a tangled mass in the streets. Windows were smashed by the hundreds and furniture tossed out into the general mess. This went on for a day and a night until it was finally stopped by the proclamation of martial law.

Was Is Declared "My father was an Austrian officer, in charge of the bacteriological station in Sarajevo, and was called upon to sign the death certificate of the archduke and his wife.

"A month later we went through the world's most exciting and history making day. The day that war was declared between the Serbian and Austrian governments. That same day the Turkish people of the town were having their religious celebration and part of this celebration included the firing of guns. These guns fired on the first day of the war still sound in my ears. During the war I traveled around Europe with my mother and took care of the wounded. My father was in charge of the sanitary burial of the soldiers.

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

I. C. C. SEES BIG PROBLEMS BEHIND RAILROADS' DEMAND FOR HIGHER FREIGHT RATES

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of four timely articles dealing with the powers and workings of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The final installment describes some of the problems which confront the commission.

WASHINGTON.—Enormous problems, affecting the future of the entire great system of American transportation, continually beset the 11 members of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Along with its continuous investigations of rate structures and its hearings on individual cases involving rates on grain, cotton, coal, cement, oil, vegetables, granite and all else that moves in freight cars over our 250,000 miles of railroad track and besides manifold other big and little jobs it does by act of Congress, the I. C. C. must wrestle with such issues as these:

- 1. Request of the railroads for a general freight rate increase of 15 per cent.
2. Valuation of railroads—which Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison describes as "the most stupendous piece of appraisal work which the world will probably ever know."
3. Consolidation of railroads—concerning which there is a wealth of ideas in Congress, among the carriers and within the I. C. C.
4. Recapture—a congressional scheme so difficult to carry out that the commission has asked Congress to relieve it of the necessity.
5. Competition on the highways—a threat to the railroads which led the commission to urge federal regulation of interstate bus transportation.

Now to outline these problems in a little more detail. Sees Problems Ahead The last general rate increase was made in 1920 following the war and amounted to 35 or 40 per cent. In 1922 rates were reduced 10 per cent and the railroads contend that the I. C. C. has been whittling them down separately since. Meanwhile, the carriers are hard hit, both by the business depression and the increasing competition of busses and trucks. The railroads say they earned a return of but 2.11 per cent in the first four months of this year and that a 15 per cent rate increase, amounting to about 10 per cent after readjustments, would increase revenues about $400,000,000 and give them a return of 4 per cent. They contend that the extra revenues would be spent largely on labor and materials and that the rate increase would thus benefit the country at large. The I. C. C. seems hardly likely to grant the 15 per cent boost but, as the body regulating railroads and charged with extensive responsibilities, it finds a serious problem in the requests and the reasons behind it.

Valuation Expense Initial valuation of the railroads under the LaFollette resolution was a job that lasted 14 years. At one time the I. C. C. had 170 men working on the job. It spent about $30,000,000 on the work and the railroads are said to have spent three times as much checking the results. The reason for valuation rates might be based and the importance of the result to shippers and consumers may be seen in the fact that the railroads valued themselves at about $35,000,000,000 and the commission at only around $23,000,000,000. In the famous O'Fallon case the supreme court held that the I. C. C., in fixing a fair value, had given insufficient weight to the factor of reproduction cost—that the railroads, that is, had not been given a fair break. So the commission made a new attempt to value the railroad properties, giving increased consideration to that factor in its decision ordering the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad to turn over nearly $900,000 for the recapture fund. It is supposed that the railroads will take the R. F. & P. case—or another like it—to the court again, although the I. C. C. is estimated to have given reproduction cost from 50 to 60 per cent weight in the decision.

Recapture Clause The recapture clause of the 1920 transportation act provided that half of a railroad's net income over 6 per cent be turned into a continuing fund for loans to less prosperous roads and for surplus reserves. Recapture is bound up with valuation because the roads have con-ing up of the Austrian empire and the forming of the Czechoslovakian republic. My parents were both Czech-born and we returned there."

Since the war Miss Pollak has lived, until recently, in Czechoslovakia where she took up the study of English and became so proficient she was made an interpreter for the American Red Cross while it did social work in that country. She came here last year and is now enrolled in the University of Southern California, where she is taking up an advertising course and intends to embark on an advertising career when she goes back home.

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.) "And what happened in 1487?" After a long pause the pupil ventured, "Luther was four years old."

"You looked tired." "Yes, I get no sleep—my wife wakes me up every time she hears a noise in the night in case it is burglars." "But burglars make no noise." "So I told her and now she wakes me up every time she does not hear a noise."

Our office girl thought we were talking about a hula hula dancer the other day when one of us remarked that a fellow had something on his hip. A Midland man who was reading the market-page the other day said he was getting the "low-down" on some good stocks. How low, I wonder?

The Brazilian government is said to have dropped the letters K, W and Y. This would be tough on radio stations if the custom were followed in the United States. Not to speak of the tough break it would give the soup makers.

MAYBE I'M RIGHT Pitiful cases: Newspaper cartoonist drawing a long prison sentence. It is said that in Borneo a man can get a wife for six coconuts. Yeah? But what are you going to hit 'em with?

It was in the evening and a naked Scotchman was seen hurrying down the street. He was met up by a friend. "Where you going?" he was asked. "I've been invited to play strip poker," he replied.

"What happened in 1483?" asked the teacher of her history class. "Luther was born," answered a little boy. "Quite right," replied the teacher.

tended that they were not fairly valued and hence were excessively charged for recapture. Hundreds of millions of dollars are involved in the dispute, but only about 10 millions have been paid into the fund. The I. C. C. has recommended to Congress that the recapture section be repealed, explaining that endless litigation is involved, that the benefits are questionable and that equitable distribution of the contingent fund seemed impossible. Meanwhile it has gone ahead with the R. F. & P. case and the $900,000,000 demanded, represents half that road's excess earnings for 1921-23.

Consolidation Issue Economies in operation are the main goal of consolidation. The consolidation issue is now to the fore again with the report that the eastern road have smoothed out the details of the "big four" consolidation plan involving the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania and Van Sweringen lines for presentation to the I. C. C. President Hoover has inferentially endorsed this plan, but approval or disapproval is entirely up to the commission.

Congress in 1920 told the I. C. C. to formulate a plan within whose limits various carriers might consolidate if the commission thought their plans were compatible with public interest. In 1929 the commission, although it had repeatedly protested the impossibility of carrying out various specifications of the consolidation section, submitted a general national plan providing for 21 big railroad systems. It provided for five systems in the east and the four lines named are asking it to modify the plan in that respect. Thus far railroads have made no important acquisitions under the commission's 1929 plan. The investigation of the "big four" proposed probably will last several months.

Bus Regulation The commission in 1926 asked Congress for a law to regulate bus operation and such a law passed the House in the last session but failed to reach a vote in the Senate. The I. C. C. didn't think the time was ripe to regulate motor transportation also has been a drain on railroad revenues. About 1,896,000,000 persons rode on busses last year. The commission is now investigating co-ordination of motor transportation with rail and water transportation. One of its

Girl Who Received Conference Diploma Tells of Program at Annual Encampment

By Georgia McMullan

Every year the Presbyterian young people from every part of Texas assemble together at Kerrville, in the heart of the hills, for a week of christian study and fellowship. During the last three years Midland has had representatives in this conference at Westminster encampment on the outskirts of the city.

Representatives this year were Avalyn Pogue, Edythe Sundquist, Marguerite Bivens, Frank Stubbsman, Georgia McMullan, who received a diploma, and their chaperon, Mrs. R. C. Crabb and daughter, Helen Margaret.

The purpose of the conference is to train young people in Christian leadership and to bring the young people of the state in contact with one another.

Kerrville forms the foundation of many lasting friendships and there is an enthusiastic spirit which can be found in many places. If one attends the conference one year, he always desires to return as long as he can. The course of study covers three conferences, at the completion of which one may receive a diploma. However, a diploma does not end one's going to the convention because there is a post graduate course for the graduates. This year there were 46 young people to receive diplomas. They had completed nine units of study.

Each year a person enrolled in the conference has three subjects, each covering a period of 45 minutes. These subjects include Bible I and II; studies in the New Testament; Bible III on the "Beliefs that Matter." Presbyterianism, including its establishment and its organization; Stewardship; Missions; Program Building for Christian Endeavor societies; Personality course, the study of the qualities which make up the strong character; Social Teachings of Jesus; and Modern Heroes.

The faculty included some of the most capable of Texas christian leaders. Among them were Rev. Wm. Hague Foster of Brownwood, who led the singing; Rev. B. C. Boney of Cisco, Dr. D. R. McConnell, who is pastor of the Broadway church in Fort Worth, Rev. Paul Van Dyke, minister of the Kerrville church and for many years a missionary to Japan, Rev. O. C. Williamson, who looks after the Mexican boys in the theological seminary at Austin and formerly a missionary in Mexico, Dr. W. T. Riviere of Victoria, who taught Presbyterianism; Dr. James K. Thompson of Fort Worth, Rev. F. V. Long of Harlingen, Dr. Conway Whorton, a former missionary in Africa and Dr. Lawrence H. Whorton of Austin.

The enrollment at the 1931 conference included 450 young people between the ages of 16 and 25. The number reached 600 when the chaplains, adult counselors and other visitors were included.

At the noon hour and at supper the assembly reminds one of a great pep rally. The young people were divided into ten groups which were given Scottish names as McDonald, Hay McPherson, McAlpine and Stewart. Each class or group had its own yell, colors, songs, councilor, pep leaders and chieftan, who presided at meetings and meals where the clans had separate tables. Each group worked to secure points to win the banner given at the close of the meeting.

There were tennis matches, baseball, volley ball, swimming races of all kinds, washer pitching, track meet and stunts. This formed interesting means of entertainment for all. Stunt night on Saturday was full of laughs and jokes.

After a complete day of study, the hours from 3:15 to 6:30 were vacant. The encampment has a wonderful place to swim and one could easily drive to the Kerrville pool, which is really the most beautiful I have ever seen. The water is as clear as crystal and the pool itself reclines in a beautiful location above the banks of the river. If one did not care for swimming, he could play tennis, or drive through some of Texas' most beautiful country Camp Waldemar, a girls' camp, is only 15 miles from Kerrville and the Heart of the Hills Inn is 18 miles away. These two places alone were worth the 325-mile drive to Kerrville.

During the social hours of the encampment, there were a "Smile" party, a clan party for each clan, stunt night, Sing Song where everyone was merry and full of funny songs and the mystery raffle which was the most impressive feature of the conference. With a lighted cross each clan accepted the "challenge of God to uphold the christian faith and Jesus Christ."

Choice Cooks' Corner

Beef Pineapple Fritters

Fry one pound chopped bottom round of beef in a little fat in skillet until brown, working with a fork to keep pieces separate. Add to two well-beaten eggs. Add the contents of one 8-ounce can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple (one cup), one tablespoon chopped parsley, and one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt, sifted together. Drop by small spoonfuls into hot fat, 375 degrees, and fry golden brown. Serve with gravy made from drippings in which beef was fried. This makes two dozen small fritters.

Liver-Bacon With Fruit

Pour boiling water over two pounds liver, let stand several minutes, drain and remove blood vessels, skin etc. Dip in seasoned flour and fry in fat until brown and tender. Lay slices of canned Hawaiian pineapple over each slice of liver, and on top put half a banana, cut crosswise, then lengthwise. (This requires one No. 2-1-2 can of pineapple and eight bananas.) Cut eight long slices of bacon in halves, and cross over the top. Place under broiler flame until bacon is crisp and fruits slightly browned. As the bacon cooks faster than the fruit, it is well to let the fruit start to brown before laying on the bacon. Gravy may be made from the drippings.

Director Defends The Much Maligned Movie Theme Song

Is the theme song dead?

Harry Beaumont, who directed the first musical film, "The Broadway Melody," doesn't think so.

And to back up his contention, Beaumont introduces a new song number in "Laughing Sinners," Joan Crawford's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle at the Ritz theatre today.

"Any song that serves a useful purpose in a picture is welcome," declared Beaumont in discussing the use of music in talkie productions. "If the song is part of the story development it is vital and belongs just as much as a part of important dialogue. Nothing can so impress a sentiment upon an audience as an appropriate song.

Songs Lacked Motive

"However, I agree that 'theme songs,' as we have come to know them, are exhausting. It wasn't the songs or the manner of their rendition that brought them into disrepute. It was the way in which they were used. For no reason at all, a man or woman stopped suddenly in the middle of the scene and started to sing a totally irrelevant song.

"That, of course, is quite absurd, although in straight musical comedy certain license and latitude is just as permissible as it is on the stage. Songs, injected for 'plugging' the number or demonstrating the vocal powers of the star, have no place in any picture. They must be an integral part of the story and action.

"In this picture, a very dramatic one, our story cannot be told without the song number. The song is the fundamental basis for the entire motivation and premise. It cannot be termed an interpolation and yet it is a theme song in every sense, strictly speaking. The song we use was written especially for the production by Arthur Freed and Martin Brookes. It is called 'What Can I Do—I Love That Man.' Miss Crawford sings it in one of the opening scenes, the episode in the wild roadhouse, just before her conversion into the Salvation Army ranks.

Every Midland cattle owner knows about the terrible foot-and-mouth disease. But it is safe to say that to say that not so many know the inside story of its stamping-out in the United States a few years ago or the name of the man who did it. The story of Mohler and his battle against this menace of the cattle industry forms one of the most fascinating chapters in "Hunger Fighters" by de Kruijff.

"Hunger Fighters" is an unusual book. It gives in readable style the stories of about a dozen scientists who have helped increasing the food supply of the people or in fighting diseases of humans. Here is the story of the men who worked for 12 years to get wheat that would ripen a few days earlier in order to miss the frost; the story of Dorset who fought the hog-cholera; Mohler and the foot-and-mouth disease; Steenbock and his sun-lamp of which we have heard so much. These and others are pictured in swift pen strokes by a man who uses the English language with ease and fluency.

"Hunger Fighters" is written in a swift-moving style that is at times Melody' the use of music in pictures was a novelty and perhaps somewhat of an experiment. All of the songs, however, fitted right into the story and action, never intruding, yet definitely song numbers and rendered with all the frank privilege of musical comedy.

"Since that time, however, the talking screen has quieted down, so to speak, with musical pictures more or less obscured. This I feel will not obtain for long. The appropriate use of music will be found and the abuses of the past will be supplanted by judicious employment of music in more forms than the screen has yet known."

positively slangy. What is more important, it is interesting and full of vitality and force. At times because of the scientific material presented, the narrative is a bit heavy. But what a vivid style can do to overcome this and it is much, Go Kruijff has done.

It is more than usually interesting for a book of scientific information and at times really fascinating.

Many men and some women will enjoy "Hunger Fighters."

Now that China is again in the news headlines, it is interesting to note the amount of fiction, not to say general literature, that has been written about that land and its people during the last few years. The county library has on its shelves a number of books which deal with the Chinese.

The latest of these is "Good Earth" by Buck. It is the chronicle of a Chinaman, his family, and his love for the land which he thought of as the "good earth." Reviews on this book are enthusiastic. One Midland reader expressed the belief that "Good Earth" was the best book he had read.

"Rice" by Miln is another rent book dealing with the Chinese and depicting their mode of life.

An unusual piece of writing which some readers will enjoy greatly is the anonymous autobiography entitled "My Chinese Marriage." It is the story of an American girl who married a Chinaman, went to China, and found happiness among the people of her husband's race. If one is skeptical, he might be inclined to doubt the authenticity of the story, were it not for the fact that the girl acknowledges that her husband was high-tempered at times and that there were occasional stormy waters on the matrimonial sea. Confession of such human imperfections puts the stamp of truth on the narrative.

The love of a white girl and a Chinaman is the theme of Louise Jordan Miln's "By Soochow Waters." Such a theme is repugnant to the average American mind, but Miln has handled the story well and made something beautiful of it. It is written in a way to hold the reader's attention quite fully and to make him wonder about the race prejudices that are so much a part of our training. Man Ling and Margaret Rivers are delightful people who love each other devotedly and their romance is told sympathetically by the writer who is evidently an admirer of the Chinese. But even as fine a love as theirs runs against the snare of fundamental racial differences and the result—well, the reader will find it unusual enough to draw his interest, and logical enough to satisfy him.

In "Mr. and Mrs. Sen" Miln pictures a White and Yellow marriage with its happiness and sorrows, and in "Ruben and Ty Sei" tells the stories of a boy and his sister, the mixed offspring of that marriage. Mr. Miln has written a number of other books dealing with the Orient. Whether he is deeply interested in the question of the Oriental character or not, the casual reader will find the time consumed in reading one or more of these books on the East, both entertaining and instructive.

BUSHER-COLTS HAMMER OUT WIN; BIZZELLMEN TAKE ENCOUNTER

WARREN KEEPS UP WILD BATTING SPREE

In their first game on their new diamond and under the management of Louis Wraga, the Bushers landed hard on the offerings of three Big Lake hurlers to defeat the boys from down south by a score of 21-6.

The Bushers got a total of 19 hits, six of them being for extra bases, according to Statistician Jess Rogers who turns in the following account: Ten men went to bat for the Bushers in the first inning and 13 men batted in the eighth when the Bushers made seven tallies.

Every man on the Busher team got at least one hit except Hill. Wade Heath got two singles and two doubles, Simpson got two doubles and a single, and Johnson got a double which he stretched into a home run on an overthrow at second.

Sam Warren was the heavy hitter; however, with a single, two doubles, and a triple. The triple came with the bases loaded.

Shelton was the hardest man of the losers to get out, getting four singles out of five trips to the plate. Moore got their only extra base play, a triple to deep left field. Fast fielding by Heath and Johnson kept this from being a homer.

The new diamond of the Bushers is fast and in good shape and Skipper Wraga has announced that bleachers are to be erected to better handle the large crowds that are expected to see the local boys play.

Importation of players has made of Elmer Bizzell's club at Prairie Lee a ball playing aggregation, judging from a 7-4 set-back they administered the Southern Ice club Sunday.

Timmons, Stanton's star right fielder, pitched great ball, giving up nine hits, but these were scattered well. Roderick was touched only eight times, but bunched hits kept him in hot water. Myrick caught one of the best games seen this season. Biggs had a perfect day at bat; Jones ran wild on the bases, stealing five; Miller hit a home run and made three electrical back-handed catches, and there were other features.

Roderick pitched a good game, losing the contest by an error of his own.

RESEMBLANCE TO DEMPSEY IS AID TO MAX

BY WERNER LAUDER
NEA Service Sports Writer
CLEVELAND, O., June 22.—"That's Jack Dempsey in there or I'm a Siberian snake farmer!"

The scene was a boxing stadium in Berlin just a few years ago. The speaker was Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine and a noted New York fight writer. The boxer was squint-eyed, bushy-browed Max Adolf Otto Siegfried Anton Adelbert Schmeling himself, going about the business of sending a ham spinning into oblivion.

After the fight, Fleischer went to Arthur Bulow, manager of the Teuton Thumper.

"Take him to America," Fleischer told Bulow, "and your fortune's made. Why, a guy that looks that much like Jack Dempsey could clear up over there if he couldn't fight a lick. And this guy really can fight!"

Bulow took Fleischer's advice, but that was a mistake about making his fortune. As it turned out, Max divorced himself from Bulow after they arrived in this country, Bulow being unable to get him "spots" in which to dust off his eager knuckles. As to Max's fortune—well, he hasn't yet applied for his old job helping bricklayers back in Mulheim.

Max's last fight in Germany, before sailing for the land of the bumptious cauliflower, one in which he knocked out the tough old Fraez Diener—left him with a broken nose in his right maul.

It was an apprehensive pair, Max and Bulow, who arrived in New York for it would take money to get Maxie the proper surgical attention needed to fix up that injured money-getter and that is something they had neglected to bring along in sheaves.

They promptly sought shelter at Madam Bey's boarding house over in Jersey, a heaven for up-and-comers and also down-and-skidding prize fighters. Here they learned that a certain Dr. Fralich was very clever in fitting new pieces in the broken dukes of fighters and that he was very reasonable to the boys in extenuated circumstances.

Dr. Fralich got the job. He fixed up Max's fist in great style. Meanwhile the fighter was thirsting for battle.

Bulow, after much dicker with promoters for fights, finally had to let out small pieces of Max's contract to land him in a show at the Madison Square Garden, where he met the worst Joe Monte.

It wasn't much of a fight that Old Joe could put up against the ambitious German boy and he lapsed into slumber in the eighth round after being floored for a nine count in the fifth. But the strange resemblance of Maxie to the great national hero, Jack Dempsey, was apparent when Max first skipped through the ropes. The fans yelled themselves hoarse. They sensed Max's color.

Tex Rickard, too, was impressed. "I never seed a feller who looked more like Dempsey," drawled Rickard. "That boy has a future and should be a great card around here. Maybe he'll take Dempsey's place, who knows? I never seed nothing like it." Poor Tex never lived to see any part of what he predicted for Max Schmeling.

The fans wanted more of the German and the promoters wanted to now if the boy could fight the way some of his enthusiastic boosters said he could. So they matched him with Pietro Corri in Newark and Maxie stiffened his foe in one heat.

The promoters were not yet satisfied. They wanted to test Max's ring against a good fighter. That fighter was Joe Sekra—a man who had met the best in his division and had always given a good account of himself.

Max fought Sekra in the Garden before a goodly crowd (who remembered Dempsey) and Max won a

CHURCHES JOIN IN FAREWELL TO GEORGE F. BROWN

Congregations of the Methodist and Christian churches will join in a service at the Baptist church Sunday evening, June 28, as a farewell tribute to the Rev. George F. Brown, retiring pastor. It was announced today. Although the Presbyterian church is without a pastor at present, members of the church said today that they would be glad to join in the service.

The Rev. Brown is completing a period of more than six years of service in the local First Baptist church and the organization has shown much growth during his pastorate. He tendered his resignation recently, to become effective July 1.

The farewell service, at which the Rev. Brown will preach, begins at 8:15 Sunday evening.

EL PASO CELEBRATES

EL PASO.—This interesting border city will have many activities for the celebration of July 4. A beauty contest, with a number of the local and valley beauties, is scheduled for Washington park. There will be two baseball games in the Texas League at Dudley field.

Across the Rio Grande in Juarez, Mexico, a bull fight, featuring a famed Spanish torero, will be offered in the Plaza de Toros both Saturday and Sunday. And of course the cabarets and cafes of Juarez will have their usual interesting floor shows with a number of picnics scheduled for the brewery's beer garden.

In El Paso the Hotel Hussmann has a unique menu ready for visitors to its famous air-cooled coffee shop, featuring the regular full course luncheon at fifty-five cents and the evening meals at 85 cents and one dollar. Special week-end rates are offered to readers of the Reporter-Telegram who are invited to drop a line to the hotel for reservations.

SCATTERS LITERATURE

Lum Daugherty took Midland July 4 window cards with him Monday to Andrews, Hobbs, Monument, Nacogdoches and Lovington, New Mexico. These will be placed in prominent windows in those towns. Window cards were also taken to Big Spring Monday. John Gay took cards Monday to Crane City, Odessa, McCamey, Iraan, Grand Falls, Monahans, Pecos, Kermit and Wink. These men volunteered to do the work. Volunteers are wanted now to place cards in windows at Rankin, Seminole, Lamesa and Stanton.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Is the Universe, including Man, evolved by Atomic Force?" was the lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 21.

The golden text was from Ecclesiastes 3:14. "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it."

The service included the passage from the Bible as recorded in John 6:63. "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life."

The following citations were also comprised in the lesson-sermon; from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (pp. 356, 547):

"Jesus knew, 'It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing.' There is neither a present nor an eternal co-partnership between error and Truth, between flesh and Spirit. The true theory of the universe, including man, is not in material history but in spiritual development."

MRS. CHILDERS BETTER

Mrs. A. B. Childers, of Mart, Texas who has been confined at the Mid-West clinic-hospital due to serious throat trouble, was improving today, according to physician's report. She will be able to return to her home within a few days.

Seven ballots were taken by the jury on the issues, it was said by members following the close of the hearing. There was no indication as to how members stood on the several ballots.

According to attempts in the case this was the first time that an alleged history was used as the basis of a libel suit. The book was written by Haley, now a member of the faculty of the history department of the University of Texas, on contract for the trustees of the owners of the old XIT ranch. The volume was said to be a history of the ranch, dating from the time that the state of Texas gave title to 3,050,000 acres of land in West Texas to John V. Farwell and associates of Chicago for construction of the present state capitol building at Austin.

Clerk Metcalfe said that he had not figured up the cost of the case but that fees in depositions filed had checked up $3,433.45. Several additional depositions have not had the fees checked and these will bring the costs up considerably higher.

Case Is Costly

Costs of operating the court, including salaries of Judge Mullican and the court reporter, as well as jury fees, will amount to between $1,900 and $2,000, according to preliminary estimates.

Total cost of the suit including fees for filing motions is expected to be more than $7,000 before the court reaches the civil appeals court, should it get that far.

original sphere. It took five generations of men to carve the interior spheres, legend says. The interior spheres range in size from an apple to a pea.

Priests persuaded the succeeding emperor to have the statue of Buddha carved and placed on the sphere because of calamities that befell the emperor. Then the sphere was removed to a temple, which later was ransacked by pirates. The pirate ship was sunk, and the sphere disappeared for 200 years, to reappear in a curio shop and thus come into the hands of the Iturbide family.

galons of blood, and then pumped 10,000 gallons of embalming fluid into it.

"After a few weeks, our leading lady began to shrink. Her carefree, open countenance sagged disconsolately. We called in some experts and they said face-lifting would restore her beauty.

"Go ahead and face-lift," we said. So they shot the carcass full of paraffin. They climbed all over it, shooting in the hot wax, just as though they were building up a boxer's nose.

"You never saw such a resurrection. The whale returned to life, glistening and fat."

Cities Skeptical

Some of the cities, Hayward added, were skeptical about letting them exhibit. Chicago was the worst, he continued, but in Cleveland he executed a contract with the city making it a partner in a deal which allowed the use of a city-owned track in the public square.

Later, Hayward said, he sold the whale to Cleveland and Col. H. J. Twelvetree, commissioner of the public auditorium, put it on "permanent" exhibition.

"Strange to say, the best business was not in inland cities. We did a tremendous business on the New England coast, birthplace of the whaling industry. Old whalers came for miles to see a whale on a railroad car," he added.

CABLEGRAM SENT BY ROTARY CLUB TO VIENNA MEET

Expectations that the convention of Rotary International, opening today in Vienna, Austria, would result in benefits to the entire world were expressed in a cablegram from the Midland Rotary club today to officers of the international body.

The convention is paying especial attention to the present economic crisis affecting the entire world, having in mind the cementing of friendly relations between countries through better understanding as result of this meeting of a tolerant organization.

Local Rotary officials today said that the meeting should be one of the most important to be held anywhere in the world this year, in that approximately 50 nations of the world are represented by outstanding citizens.

VIENNA, June 22.—Five thousand Rotarians and members of their families from all corners of the world were getting settled in Vienna to enjoy the first typically European convention of Rotary International which started today. From first to last, Europeans have planned and arranged the details of this convention and they have brought to the fore for a thorough discussion the economic problems now confronting the world.

Unemployment, international finances, tariff walls, League of Nations, disarmament and all the thorny questions from which international friction arises, are on the program. Small informal assemblies will pursue the exchange of thought on these subjects on the friendly basis of Rotarian fellowship which lends a ready ear to the other fellow's viewpoint.

Some 30 resolutions are up for discussion today before the voting delegates assembly, but these pertain in almost every case to the Rotary administration. One resolution proposed by the Rotary Club of Montreal, Canada, would urge Rotary clubs to study school text books so that mischievous or misleading information about other races or countries could be pointed out for elimination. These resolutions will be voted on at Wednesday's session.

Officers for the coming year will be nominated tomorrow, ballots will be cast on Wednesday and the result made known on Friday. The international representatives in each of the 76 districts around the world have already been selected by the clubs back home and their nominations will be ratified here. These 76 "district governors" have been at Semmering for the past week preparing for their year's work.

The economic aspect of international relations will receive more attention on the convention program than perhaps any other one topic. After the official greetings and reports tomorrow, Lord Robert Cecil, British representative on the Geneva disarmament conference will talk on the political phase of international affairs under the title of "Disarmament."

Story Hour to Be Held July Fourth

Special Independence day features will be on the program at the story hour for children at the county library Saturday, July 4, Miss Marguerite Hester, librarian, announced yesterday.

Invitation is extended to children from other counties, here for the day. The program is held from 2:30 to 3:30. Mrs. Marion F. Peters will conduct the story hour.

The library will be closed Monday July 6, allowing a holiday on the same day with local business houses.

SUNDAY LONGEST DAY

Daylight saving can't keep the natural course of events from providing a longer period of daylight Sunday.

The sun rose at 5:25 and went below the western horizon at 7:41 Sunday, giving one minute more light than on Saturday, and marking up the longest day of the year as well as inaugurating officially the summer season. Warm weather, however, came ahead of the calendar date. The shortest day is six months hence, December 21.

The mercury only went to 91 here Sunday while the morning provided a minimum of 68.

Diving Diana

Here's a brand new brand of arrow-nautics, performed by Georgia Coleman, of Los Angeles, national diving champion. It's just part of her training for the forthcoming national A. A. U. championships, wherein she hopes to retain her title. She leaps from a springboard and, at the top of her flight, aims and shoots an arrow at a target at the end of the pool. She declares it to be a splendid way of perfecting time and balance in the air. Anyway, it makes a remarkable picture.

The rare gas xenon has been successfully extracted from the air by a French scientist. Its ratio of content in the air is one part in ten million.

The sense of smell in birds is not very acute, although their organs are well developed. It is doubtful whether the sense of smell is of much use to birds.

SCALES OWNER ROBBERY AUTO, POLICE LEARN

MEMPHIS, June 22 (UP)—Identification of Herbert Scales, Dallas social registerite, as owner of the automobile used in the $29,000 robbery of the Union Planters National bank and Trust company was claimed by Police Inspector Will T. Griffin here today.

An Alexandria, Va., dealer identified Scales' photograph as the purchaser of the car, Griffin said.

POISONED MEAT CAUSES DEATH OF TWO; TWO ILL

LEBANON, Ind., June 22, (UP)—Poison filled capsules pushed into the meat of sandwiches at a family reunion picnic were blamed today for the mysterious deaths of Virginia Simmons, 14, and her sister, Alice Jean, 10, and the critical illness of two men.

All four had eaten before a capsule dropped from one sandwich.

AID IS ASKED

A girl with ambition to go to college wishes to complete her credits in Midland high school summer courses. She is not financially able to pay room and board. She seeks a home in Midland, where she may work for her room and board. Midland people who know her say she has a good reputation and is a good worker. Anyone willing to give this girl room and board for housework, cooking, etc., may get details from the Midland chamber of commerce officials said.

Haight Writes For Magazine

A clipping of interest and sound advice has been clipped from the Institute Notes, publication of the New York Y. M. C. A. It is a contribution from Deldrick Van Pel, Midland columnist, perhaps better known as Harry L. Haight.

The article deals with whistling and carries a good point to remember:

"We had some unpleasant thoughts awhile ago which we wished to get rid of. You all know how very persistent they are. They lack delicacy and they spoil good manners. They are the bad apples in the barrel. Now, we have a friend named Al, not the Al of fiction, but a real human being, one of the kind that not only keeps his own troubles to himself but helps others out of theirs. He has a fairly accurate perspective of life's requirements. He has had great experience in it and is also keenly observant. He maintains that experience is not the real teacher but that observation is. Experience warps the mind and creates a bias, while observation supplies a solid basis for correct deduction, he says.

"Knowing his philosophy we mentioned the unpleasant thoughts problem and he said the way to rid the mind of unpleasant viewpoints to take more interest in your job—and WHISTLE. Some will whistle just to let off steam, or to keep up courage. We've tried it both ways. When we did it to let off steam we were ordered out of the house and had to finish our melody on the back fence, and when we tried it to bolster up our courage it was nothing to brag about—it was too thin.

"But we did make an important discovery—it is impossible to think unpleasantly and at the same time whistle. You notice by now that Al did not advise mental progression of a metaphysical character including its ramifications, the establishment of a line between demarcation and the analogous proportionate conception of life's problematical equisope, or the centralization of a measurable mentalization without deviations, as a cure, but instead, he combined two simple conditions that will absolutely kill any unpleasant thought in the human mind and that is, 'TAKE MORE INTEREST IN YOUR WORK—AND WHISTLE.'"

SHERIFF AND 31 UP FOR TRIAL ON LIQUOR CHARGES

HOUSTON, June 22. (UP)—H. Wyatt Collins, former Fort Bend county sheriff, and 31 other men and women went to trial today in federal court for liquor conspiracy. Three indictments were filed against Collins and 70 others after a Richmond liquor raid January 18, 1930.

A jury acquitted Collins on one count May, 1930.

HOW LONG IS A HEN?

Mrs. Malcolm Meek bought a nice, fat dressed hen. Malcolm Meek looked on with satisfaction, picturing a pleasant week-end, with the fowl as the principal dish at a few well prepared meals.

A telegram came. It was from Grady Shipp, secretary of the Plainview chamber of commerce, advising that he and Mrs. Shipp would arrive to spend the week-end with their friends, the Meeks.

Meek's visions of plenty of chicken faded. Saturday he introduced Shipp to his friends here. When one asked if he would spend several days, Shipp replied, "I'll be here 'till the hen's gone."
