Jail Four Suspects for Assault Upon 9-Year Old Girl

ATTACKS ON 3 OTHERS ATTEMPTED

Police Continue to Search in Port Arthur Crime

PORT ARTHUR, June 30, (UP)—Police here today sought the man, who, early this morning, criminally assaulted a nine-year-old girl and attempted to assault three others. Four men have been jailed.

The first attack occurred when a 13-year-old girl awoke and found a man bending over her. She screamed and he ran.

Similar experiences were reported by girls 10 and 11 years of age. The man held his hand over the nine-year-old girl's mouth while assaulting her. Physicians said her condition was serious.

COOL COLORADO BOY DISCUSSES SHOOTING GIRL

FT. MORGAN, Colo., June 30.—(UP)—A debonaire killer, who eats heartily and spends most of his time reading murder mysteries, was held in the county jail here Monday—his confession having cleared up Colorado's most baffling murder.

William Schopflin, 21, who confessed he killed Enid Marriott, Wiggins school teacher because she "talked about me," and tossed her body into an irrigation ditch, watching it float down the stream in the moonlight, appeared little worried over the possibility of hanging.

Almost disinterestedly, he told newspapermen how he had shot the teacher, as she ran screaming from him on the night of Nov. 16, 1930.

She had talked about him, he said, and when he sought to reproach her, tantalizing him by singing snatches of popular songs.

"I drove past the railroad station that night, as the train pulled in and saw her get off," he said. "I asked her where she was going, and when she said to the hotel, offered to drive her there.

"Instead, I drove her out into the country and accused her of gossiping about me. She had threatened to tell about me running around with a married woman and bootlegging.

"She denied it, and it made me mad. When I started to argue, she sang, and I got madder.

"Then she said she would have me arrested for kidnapping if I didn't take her back right away, and that she would give me 12 hours to get out of the county.

"Finally she got out of the car and said she was going to walk back. She was pretty mad then.

"She got out on one side and I got out the other and pulled my gun.

"She saw it, and yelled, 'Good God, don't do that!'

"She started to run and she was yelling. I shot her four times in the back and then I picked her up and dumped her through the rail into the irrigation ditch. It was a moonlight night and not very cold and I watched the body float down the stream in the moonlight. It was on its face.

"Then I went back to Omar." Schopflin was arrested in California.

BULLETIN

It was reported in Midland early this afternoon that W. E. Dolman, former Wichita Falls oil operator, was burned in a fire at Wink.

The report did not say whether Dolman lost his life or whether he had been severely burned, and gave no particulars. It originated in a wire from a press service in Dallas, and calls to Wink had not been completed at press time.

Committeemen for Fourth Are Revised by Chamber Of Commerce; More Names

Crown Prince

Revision of committee lists for the July 4 celebration have resulted in several changes, due to inability of some members to serve. Midland men have been asked to read the lists to see on which they belong. The committees as finally revised follow the first named on each being chairman:

Beef committee: Elliott F. Cowden, Donald Hutt, Audcy C. Francis, Foy Proctor; meat cutters: Bill Connor, Billy Sparks, Charlie L. Klapproth, Leon Goodman, Alvin Roberts, J. C. Miles, Dave Bizzell, Harry McClintock, A. A. Jones, O. M. Bizzell, W. C. Lewis, Pat Bodine, E. B. Dickinson, Bill Lewis, (all meat cutters are asked to bring their own knives and large dishpans, Virgil C. Ray's barbecuing squad: Bob Preston, B. C. Girdley, Hollis Scarborough, Pat Curtin, Lynn Butler, Fred Middleton, Lewis Beyers, Buck Underwood, Frank Roberts, Howard Moutrey, Herbert Berry, Meade McCall, Paul Jones, Dulaney Ward, Holly Roberts, Dewey Pope, (these committeemen are asked by Virgil C. Ray, chief barbecuer and pit boss to bring pitchforks); dance or slindig: Harry L. Haight, Timberline Floyd, Fred Middleton, Ed Cole; water: John P. Howe, Charlie Nolan; tables: Charles Berry, Alvin Hicks, Raymond Lawrence, Foy Proctor; slaughtering or dressing cattle: Neal Staten (ground to name his own helpers); stunts: Luther Tidwell and fire boys; purchasing: Kenneth E. Ambrose, E. H. Barron, E. N. Aycock (no purchases may be charged to the chamber of commerce without official check by the chairman and at least one other member); truckers or cattle haulers: J. O. Nobles, Andrew Fasken, Sam Preston, J. B. Ford; pit: Oris Kelly, Virgil C. Ray, Kelso Adams, Jim Hundle, this committee is to get pit dug and provide wire and iron for meat over pit); utensils, plates cups: George D. McCormick, Alvin Tolbert, J. E. Hill; wood: T. E. Bizzell, J. B. Ford, E. N. Snodgrass, Joe Roberts; coffee: Chunky Cowden, Roy Parks, Tom Nance, Spence Jowell; policing: Audcy C. Francis, Midland sheriff; Leo Haynes, Midland police chief; Reeder Webb, Ector sheriff; W. Ily Pratt and boys; scouts of whom he is the Midland leader; lighting: Aubrey Legg; water pipe extension, P. J. Mims, and A. G. Gates.

Serving will start promptly at 12. If Midland people wish to avoid standing about an hour and wish to avoid the rush, they are invited to wait till 12:30 or 1 to come to the barbecue so the visitors may be served first. However, no requirements are made; this is merely a suggestion to home people that they can add to their comfort by coming late, an official said.

The cold drink concession at the barbecue pit was given to the American Legion and Veterans. They will get all profits.

Men named to assist Lee Haynes: Neal Staten and George Underwood at the horse races in charge of Vets are: Spence Jowell, Timberline Floyd, John Dublin, Elliott Cowden, Clarence Scharbauer, Merle Jowell, Elmer Jones, Leon Goodman, Ellis Cowden, Harry L. Haight, T. Paul Barron, Judge M. R. Hill.

Following are the serving committeemen, the first name in each group representing the captain of his table:

Table No. 1, Troy Elland, W. E. Pigg, H. H. Meeks, T. R. Abbott, Hollis Scarborough, J. M. Conner, E. N. Snodgrass, Dr. D. K. Ratliff.

Table No. 2, Aubrey Legg, Bob Martin, John Butler, Jack Wilmouth, R. D. Scroggs, B. G. Grafa, J. M. White, and John Howe.

Table No. 3, Hilroy Bedford, O. B. Holt Jr., Frank Orson, Horace Newton, Bryan Standifer, S. Howe, H. A. Palmer, R. E. O'Neal.

Table No. 4, Homer Epley, Dee Montgomery, Howard Moutrey, C. W. Post, W. M. Pyle, Bill Paara, L. A. Grantham.

Table No. 5, Al Watts, Al Ackes, Bill Hoey, Wallace Irwin, Joe Roberts, A. H. Riley, Bill Simpson, Ed Watts.

Table No. 6, Arthur Yeager, Dave Finley, A. Loskamp, Hugh McClure, Bob Patterson, L. C. Waterman, Ralph Geisler.

Table No. 7, Jim Hundle, J. C. Miles, Harry Haight, Harry Anderson, Doctor Tom Bobo, Dr. K. F. Campbell, Doyle Rayburn.

Mrs. Terry was an aunt of Mrs. Frank Prothro, Mrs. Luther Tidwell and Bascom Terry, all of Midland.

Mrs. Terry died at Ft. Worth Home.

Mrs. Clara Terry, former Midland woman, died at her home in Fort Worth last week following an operation induced by an illness of several years.

Until about seven years ago, Mrs. Terry made her home in Midland at a residence just north of the high school.

THREAT IS NEW LINK IN MURDER

Continue Search for Slayers of Pair At Dallas

DALLAS, June 30, (UP)—City and county officers, spurred by an aroused citizenry, today followed slender clues in the search for the slayers of Pauline Corman, 17, and Abe Schriber, 19, Galveston cotton broker. Rewards totaling $1,600 have been offered.

Officers found a pistol near the scene where the bodies were found early Sunday but were inclined to doubt it was the weapon used in the killings.

George Stroud, 20, reported that he was kidnapped, shot in the left leg, robbed of $135 and taken for a ride past the spot where the two were killed. He said his assailants last night threatened him with similar fate if he did not obey orders.

TEXAN OFF TO START FLIGHT ACROSS WATER

FT. WORTH, June 30, (UP)—Reginald Robbins, former endurance record holder, and H. S. Jones, oil promoter, left at 4:50 a. m. for Seattle in a Lockheed Vega.

The flyers plan to leave Seattle Thursday or Friday for a non-stop flight to Tokio.

They were accompanied by a trimotor which will refuel the Robbins' plane at Nome, Alaska.

Water Carnival At Pagoda Pool

Plans for an open water tournament to be held the evening of July 4 at Pagoda pool were being shaped today.

Mrs. W. A. Hyatt, proprietor of the pool, will issue season passes to first-place winners of events, half-season passes to second place winners.

The meet, as arranged up to date, provides for the following boy scout events, drawn up by Alvon Patterson, boy scoutmaster:

- 1. Diving
2. Straight
3. Jack knife
4. Optional
5. Swimming
1. 40 yd. dash
2. Back hand swim, 20 yds.
3. 100 yd. swim
4. Underwater swim 20 yd. (speed event)
5. 80 yd. relay race (4 man team)
6. Water Polo
1. Light weight team—Troop 51 vs. Troop 52
2. Heavyweight teams. Anyone who wishes to enter.

FIFTY-TWO CONVERTS

Fifty-two converts are claimed by the Rev. O. W. Roberts to have been received by the Pentecostal Holiness church since the beginning four weeks ago of the revival being held there. Twenty-nine have been baptized.

"No end of the revival is seen yet," the minister said.

Girl Who Gave Name to Round the World Plane Lands Here; Won't Try Sea Trip

Winnie Mae Hall, who gave her name to the famous Post-Gatty Lockheed-Vega that at this moment seems destined to smash all world-girdling records, was at Sloan field today and told a reporter of The Reporter-Telegram "hat while others may do this round the world stuff, as far as she's concerned, 'I'm just a good passenger."

Winnie Mae is married and has a four-year-old son. She landed at Sloan field with Pop Moore, who flies a sister ship, 'Old Number Two'

CONFESSION REPORT IN MURDER CASE UNTRUE--MIDLAND SHERIFF

While the wheels of the law continue to grind, evidence in the case growing out of shooting to death here Friday night of Mrs. Lillie May Buckelew continues to be elusive.

A Midland man is still held in jail, but it is generally felt his alibi is iron clad; he says he was in Peacock at church, where he was seen by about 50 people, a few hours before the shooting here.

The case is one of the most baffling ever to be faced by Midland county officers.

Mrs. Buckelew was killed while dressing to attend a dance. Jack Mayfield, truck driver, was waiting outside. She was standing in the doorway leading from the kitchen of the W. H. Steele home, that of her parents, when an assassin stole up to the back screen and emptied a charge from a shotgun through the door and into her right side. Death was almost instantaneous.

Reports that a woman had been jailed and had broken down under grilling and confessed to the murder were branded by the sheriff's department as positively untrue. No woman has been arrested in the case, it was said. Another man was held for a short time, arrested a few minutes after the slaying, but was released the following morning.

District Attorney W. R. Smith was in Midland this afternoon to look into the evidence of the case.

Entries Slow for July 4th Races

Horse racing men are in no hurry to enter for the Midland races July 3 and 4, although practically all of the stalls and many of the corrals at Cowboy park are filled with ponies for daily workouts.

Lee Haynes, general chairman of the horse races for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said this morning that entries had not started coming in. He urges race men to fill each event as rapidly as possible in order to eliminate as much of the final rush of work as possible.

SCOUTS ARE CALLED

All Midland scouts are asked to meet Thursday evening at the First Baptist church at 7:30, for discussion of plans for operation of concession booths at Cowboy park July Fourth.

Scouts will man the booths, it is planned.

GIRL BORN

A seven-pound girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Hunter this morning at 2:20 at their home, 119 North Big Spring. Physician's reports said this morning that the mother and baby are resting nicely.

Three Girls Lose Lives in River

PONCA CITY, June 30, (UP)—Pearl Hunter, 21, and her two nieces, Elinor and Esther Dotson, 9 and 13, were drowned in the Arkansas river last night when sucked by an undercurrent while wading. They were unable to swim.

Two Overcome By Sewer Gas

WICHITA, Kans., June 30, (UP)—George Durham and Oscar Lindquist were overcome by sewer gas and swept into a sewer main here this morning while pulling a sandbag plug used to dam at the opening of a larger main.

Workmen opened a manhole several miles away and waited for the bodies to appear. They had not arrived at 9 o'clock. One's hat floated by.

COMPLETE LONG HOP TO NOME

Gatty Hit by Prop; Uninjured by The Blow

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, June 30, (UP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round-the-world fliers, left here at 3:30 a. m. for Edmonton, Alberta, en route to New York.

Gatty was uninjured yesterday when he was struck by a propeller. The propeller had to be replaced.

When the fliers left here they had completed 11,615 miles of their 15,000 mile flight.

Land at Nome (By the Associated Press)

NOME, Alaska, June 30.—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, around-the-world fliers, took off from Solomon for Fairbanks at 5:30 p. m. (10:30 Central Standard Time) Monday night.

With a rest of less than three hours during which their plane was refueled, the aviators took advantage of the summer daylight to continue their dash eastward.

By direct line, Fairbanks lies about 520 miles away.

After leaving Norton Sound and striking inland, the fliers planned to follow the course of the Yukon river more than half the distance.

Flew From Siberia (By the Associated Press)

NOME, Alaska, June 30.—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty landed at Solomon, 36 miles from here, last Monday after a non-stop flight from Khabarovsk, Siberia.

The landing was made at 2:45 p. m. (7:45 p. m., EST). They were not sighted over Nome.

The landing was 16 hours and 45 minutes after the take-off from Khabarovsk, Eastern Siberia, a distance of about 2,500 miles. The fliers averaged about 150 miles an hour in their dash over Okhotsk sea, Kamchatka peninsula and Bering sea.

The landing was in broad daylight. Elaborate preparations had been made for the reception of the fliers in Name where the airfield, on a hill overlooking the town, had been lengthened to assist the aviators in taking off with their heavy load of fuel on the next hop to Edmonton, Alberta.

Sleep on Field Tents and beds had been erected on the field to enable Post and Gatty to rest while their ship was refueled.

The daring American aviators hopped off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, at 3 a. m. (central standard time) Monday, with as dangerous a flight ahead as ever attempted by man. The projected aerial trek of around 2,500 miles to Nome, by way of the Kurile islands was the longest single jump of their flight.

When the fliers reached here they had covered, about 11,750 miles of land and water, with an elapsed time of about seven days since they (See OCEAN FLIERS page 6)

GUIDANCE IN MUSIC

When little Willie shows that he has unusual talent for playing the violin, his parents usually see glittering visions of a highly salaried child prodigy and start putting him through the grind that will make him a professional concert musician.

Once in a great while it works, and little Willie follows in the footsteps of Elman and Heifetz. More often, however, it does not. Willie becomes just another fiddler, and he discovers too late that his whole childhood was wasted.

All of this, of course, isn't a problem that the average parent needs to worry about. But it is an illustration of the attitude parents are too apt to take when their children show musical ability; and a remark recently made at the convention of the National Federation of Music clubs by Mrs. Elmer J. Ootaway, president of the federation, is worth bearing in mind.

"Parents must be taught," she said, "that merely because their youngsters show musical talent is no reason for intensely preparing them for a professional career. Music for its own sake is the fundamental joy."

There is a lot of good sense in that remark. Sometimes it seems as if the United States today had too many professional musicians—a lot of whom, by the way, are not eating regularly these days—and too few amateurs. Parents are always willing to stand the expense of musical training if they believe that their young hopeful can cash in on it when he goes out into the world. They are not so willing when they know that he will never make a cent out of it.

But there are few things that give one more solid enjoyment, during the course of a lifetime, than the ability to play some musical instrument passably well. There is a spiritual relaxation to be found in music that you produce yourself that can be gained in no other way. Even the poor wight who can play nothing but the newest jazz knows this is true.

And that is not the whole of it. Knowing how to play enables one to get more enjoyment from the music the professionals produce. The best possible way to learn to appreciate great music is to learn how to play yourself.

Parents who guide their child carefully toward intimate acquaintance with some musical instrument, with no thought of public performances, are giving the child a possession that will be priceless later on.

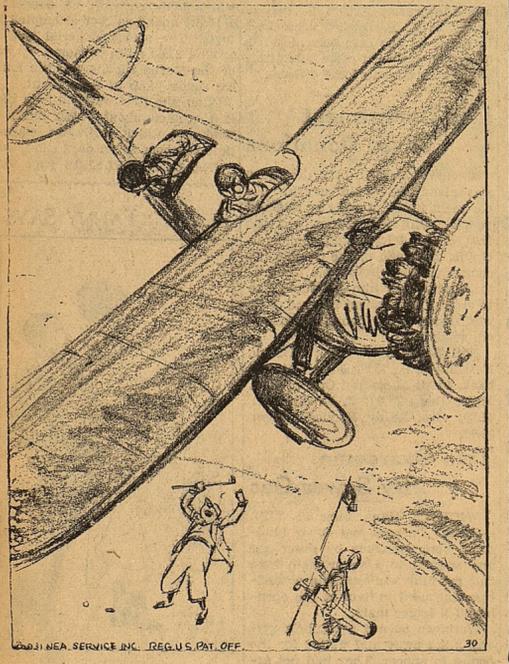

SPOILING THE MACHINERY

As American engineers return from Russia and tell of conditions over there, one is led to wonder if the Communist regime may not eventually founder because of the fact that Russia does not have a large class of skilled mechanics.

Over and over again the returning engineers have remarked on the Russian workman's inability to get along with machinery. Complicated machines are allowed to run unlubricated. Workers who think they know more about mechanics than they do take machines to pieces and are unable to put them together again. Roller bearings wear out with abnormal speed.

Some observers predict that the five-year plan will collapse as soon as the foreign engineers leave. Whether or not it works out that way, it is clear that Russia labors under a tremendous handicap in trying to mechanize a country that had always been predominantly agricultural.

Chance Discovery of Slot Check Beats Capone Alibi

BY ROBERT TALLEY NEA Service Writer

(Copyright 1931 NEA Service, Inc.) CHICAGO.—The business depression which reduced the demand for Al Capone's liquor, gambling and vice may be responsible for the gang leader's insolvency today, but he owes his approaching penitentiary sentence to a small group of persistent men who worked nearly four years to get him behind the bars.

The "intelligence unit" of the U. S. Internal Revenue Bureau is probably the least known of Uncle Sam's investigating agencies. It hunts income tax dodgers quietly, sticks with a given job year after year, works behind the scenes, gets no glory, wants none. In fact, this is probably the first time you ever seen its name in a newspaper.

Therefore, it is in order to tell something about this little known but highly efficient secret service organization. It works under the direction of David Burnett, U. S. commissioner of internal revenue at Washington. Its chief is Elmer L. Irely, a veteran investigator with many famous cases to its credit. Heading the Chicago division, which comprises seven states, is A. P. Madden, division chief. An ace among its special agents is Frank J. Wilson of Washington.

Its men are not detectives and do not claim to be. Mostly, they are expert accountants and lawyers. They know little about guns and nothing about disguises, but they do know an awful lot about bank accounts and financial transactions. Give one of them a few days and he can possibly tell you more about your financial affairs than you know yourself.

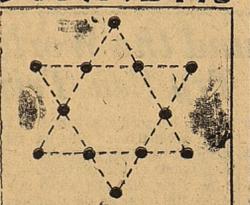

They worked three and one-half years to get the goods on Al Capone and in doing so they assisted in the financial wrecking of his gang by sending two of his chief lieutenants to the penitentiary and getting several more started well on the road there. Frank Nitti, Capone gang treasurer, and alcohol king, and Sam Guzik, slot machine and vice czar are in Leavenworth prison now for trying to beat the income tax law. Ralph Capone, Al's brother and chief of beer division, is under sentence of three years, but has appealed. Jack Guzik, Capone's business manager, and head of the gambling syndicate, is likewise under sentence, but has appealed. There are others, too, but they don't figure in this story.

The trail that finally led to Al Capone himself began late in 1927. One of the Income Tax Bureau's agents found that Ralph Capone had not filed returns for 1922, 1923, 1924 or 1925. He suggested to Ralph that he had better file.

Ralph filed, but paid no tax, insisting that he was financially unable. Pressed, he offered $1000 as a compromise. He represented that he was insolvent, or virtually so, and that his only holdings amounted to half interest in race horses of doubtful value.

What One $500 Slot Machine Check Turned Up After Three Years

The extent of gangland's financial operations in Chicago and the part played by the gangsters mentioned in this story is indicated by these figures, taken from federal court records at Chicago. These incomes are for three years in each case. The government does not contend that these figures are complete; they represent merely the amounts the government was able to prove.

Table with columns: Three-year, income, Source. Rows include Ralph Capone ($1,871,000 Beer), Frank Nitti (1,049,000 Gambling), Jack Guzik (700,000 Alcohol), Sam Guzik (340,000 Slot Machines).

All these men were Al Capone's lieutenants. How much of the money they collected eventually went to the "Big Shot" himself? They wouldn't tell, preferring to go to the penitentiary instead. The government was getting ready to show what Al Capone got when he suddenly pleaded guilty and thus evaded a trial.

Check Gives First Clue

In January, 1928, the intelligence agents began to investigate his ability to pay his taxes, penalties and interest charges for the four years.

Somewhere along the line the investigators chanced upon a $500 check drawn by a South Side man whom they knew to be interested in a slot machine racket. Who got it? Bank accounts were quietly analyzed and it was found that this check had been deposited in a bank at Cicero (Chicago suburb and Capone stronghold) to the credit of one "James Carson."

Tracing the "James Carson" account the agents made an amazing discovery. They found that several years before Ralph Capone had opened an account in this bank under his own name, and had then opened and closed six successive accounts under various aliases, during which time $2,000,000 passed through these several accounts.

This discovery wasn't easy. The bank officials said they didn't know of any connection between the various accounts and therefore could be of little aid. Moreover, the bank officials were not acquainted with "James Carson" or any of the others because, as they said, these customers had never come to the bank. They always sent the signature cards out to them, it was explained, and deposits and withdrawals were made by representatives. The canceled checks had been returned to the customer long ago. There seemed to be no trail to follow.

Slow Comparison of Accounts Links Them

But this didn't stump the investigators. By tediously checking the amounts of withdrawals and comparing these amounts with simultaneous deposits to other accounts and finding people who got various checks, the investigators finally tied Ralph to every one of these accounts. Where the amounts were in round numbers it was hard, but where odd amounts were involved comparison was easier. The government then produced witnesses who testified that Ralph signed checks by these various aliases in their presence. Moreover, handwriting experts identified the various signature cards as having been signed by the same man.

Turning next to the deposits made to these accounts, the agents traced these checks back to saloon keepers who had bought beer from Ralph. They even produced saloon keepers who testified to this on the witness stand. Some of them were payroll checks that saloon keepers had cashed for their customers.

Remittance sheets of the bank showed checks sent to other bank for collection. Though details may vary, every bank keeps such a record of every check. This led to a new trail. For six weeks six men did nothing else but trace literally thousands upon thousands of old checks. Bales of dusty remittance sheets and other bank records, long stored in warehouses, were taken out and scanned.

Ralph Capone Trail

Leads to Guzik Account

In the end, they got what they wanted. The trail of the Ralph Capone checks led to Jack Guzik's accounts in other Chicago banks—accounts that represented yearly transactions running into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Gangdom was being linked together.

By some means best known to themselves, the agents found Fred Reese, Guzik's financial helper, in St. Louis and brought him back here. Reese testified he, at various times, had purchased $250,000 worth of cashier's checks with gang profits from gambling houses. Practically all of these were traced to Guzik, just as Reese said they could be. Guzik, trying to be shrewd, had turned in his money and bought cashier's checks, but he was too dumb to know that cashier's checks leave the clearest trail of all.

The Capone gang's Hawthorne dog track was paying huge profits—in one year it actually paid a 300 per cent cash dividend. These dividend checks were traced and some found deposited to the account of a Dr. David B. Owens in a certain bank. Strangely enough, an identical sum of money had been withdrawn from Dr. Owens' account the next day. Strangely, too, an exactly similar amount had been deposited to Guzik's credit in another Chicago bank the following day. On the stand, Dr. Owens admitted that the stock held in his name really belonged to Guzik.

The trail led next to the accounts of Sam Guzik, Jack's brother. Sam was hiding behind aliases, too, and dealing with various brokerage houses, but again the careful checking of accounts nailed his man. Sam pleaded guilty.

Nitti, Gang Treasurer, Is Finally Nailed

On and on the trail led to Frank Nitti and his transactions, as it was eventually ascertained of $700,000 to $800,000 in two years. But Nitti had a different system; he didn't deposit the checks he collected, but would merely leave them at the bank to be cleared, call back again after they had been cleared and get the cash. It looked like Nitti hadn't left much of a trail.

But investigators who had been trained as expert accountants knew better. They knew that every bank keeps a record of "out clearings" showing where checks sent to it for collection went when they went home. Tedious tracing followed these checks back to the alcohol buyers and others whence they came. Nitti soon found it advisable to enter a plea of guilty and take 18 months in Leavenworth where he now is.

Trail at Last Leads To "Big Shot" Himself

On and on the trail led, through a maze of bank records of one sort or another. Weeks and months had gone by since the government agents had stumbled on that first $500 slot machine check that led its devious path to Ralph Capone, otherwise "James Carson," Capone, otherwise

Daily Washington Letter By Rodney Dutcher

It's Pretty Hard for Some Business Firms to Fool the Public for Even Some of the Time While a Watchful Federal Trade Commission Sleuths Dishonest Advertising

WASHINGTON.—There's a nice thing about the Federal Trade Commission, in case you don't know. It protects you and me from a lot of slickers who are constantly trying to gyp us by false pretenses.

False claims and misbranding of goods come under the general head of "unfair competition" with the competition" with the commission; but while the law thus designedly protects business firms from each other it also saves a whole lot of consumers who would be likely to believe whatever they were told.

The Federal Trade Commission, that is, keeps advertisers honest. Most of them presumably are honest anyway, but a glance at some of the cases wherein the commission has issued orders to "cease and desist" indicates that some of them would like to get away with murder.

Testimonial Subsidy About a year ago the commission decided that when companies paid for testimonials for their goods they would have to admit the fact when using same for advertising purposes. Thus one finds that recently the commission had to get after a hosiery company which was paying money to actresses and using their testimonials and photographs with no conspicuous mention of the monetary consideration as required. The same firm, the commission found, was using unauthorized endorsements alleged to come from actresses.

A common complaint is that companies claim to be manufacturers of the goods they sell when they aren't. The commission puts a stop to that sort of thing, too.

The prize among recent "cease and desist" cases was offered by a burial vault concern. The commission says it is charged with:

"Offering rewards for the disinterment of burial vaults of competitors; acquiring and exhibiting products of competitors and calling attention to their alleged bad condition; circulating pictures and letters disparaging competitors' products and the value of their guarantees; securing the co-operation of cemetery associations and the superintendents of cemeteries in conducting a campaign against competitors' products."

Making Wild Claims Other similar stipulations lately have covered such bad actors in business as have been:

Producing a compound designated as "an infiltrating oxygen reducing cream" alleged to remove excess fat from any part of the body.

Asserting that a certain transformer for automobiles will "eliminate carbon, fire any spark-plug regardless of condition, eliminate the necessity for new piston rings and reboring cylinders, and save from 15 to 40 per cent on gasoline."

Promoting a "coal saver" which, although composed mostly of common salt, was represented as making poor, coal good and good coal better, as preventing and removing soot and as increasing the heat of a given quantity of coal from 22 to 28 per cent.

Using statements and pictures for a poultry farming correspondence school which implied a larger factory and more space than existed. Using the words "English" and "China" to designate men's clothing articles made elsewhere and "silk," "crepe," "flannel" and "suede" to describe things made of other materials.

False advertising among colored people of "charms, sex books and similar articles."

Representing a battery solution as one that would not freeze and would instantly charge the battery. Advertising paints as "best" and "high grade" when such is not the fact.

Using the word "grape" on jam and jelly labels without admission that neither product nor flavor was derived from the fruit itself.

Publishing clothing and underwear endorsements by French couturiers which were not authorized and representing the garments to be used by them as a foundation over which to model their garments when the couturiers did nothing of the sort.

Representing a so-called "water revitalizer" as imparting to water, by immersion therein, a special therapeutic value.

Using the label "West Point" on jewelry and cotton goods, with pictures of cadets or soldiers, when the War department had not adopted them for use at the U. S. Military academy.

"James Carson," but always the object was the same. Higher still was the man who was yet to be got—the "Big Fellow" himself.

The other day the Internal Revenue Bureau's men found themselves ready. At last they had the long-sought missing link. They struck. The long-awaited income tax indictments against Al Capone himself were returned. A few days later Capone came into court and pleaded guilty.

You may guess that that missing link was. Until Capone is actually behind the bars at Leavenworth penitentiary, these shrewd investigators will not reveal it. Specifically, Al was charged with "failure to file, failure to pay, attempt to defeat and evade" income

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

They're going to allow only twenty minutes between races here July 3 and 4, thereby giving the people in the stands the breaks. This is unusual. I always thought the time between races was for the benefit of those who run the races, and it didn't make any difference what the spectators thought.

This will be a tough break for jockeys who might want time for a crap game between races. Not that anything like that goes on here, but I've always sat in the grandstand and wondered what could require from thirty to forty five minutes after one race before another was ready.

Anyway, somebody will have to do a little planning in advance or he will have his saddle at the barn and his horse on the track and his jockey half way between when the next race is called, thereby forfeiting his chance at winning the race as well as his $5 entrance fee.

However, when you consider that it's the public that pays to see the races the new idea is a good one. I've heard people say they went to races once but never went back because their back was worn out with squirming against the plank seats, waiting for something else to start.

Of course it will be better this time however, because there will be the exciting Jelly Bean race in the interim between two of the principal taxes for the years 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929 on an income totaling $1,038,659.89. The government says it can prove that he evaded a tax of $215,080.48, which now— with the 50 per cent penalty for fraud and interest charges—amounts to $400,000. They say they can prove this much income in court; there may be much more.

Others of the income tax bureau's secret service who aided in getting the goods on Al Capone were: Special Agents N. E. Tessem and Clarence Converse of Chicago; Archie Martin of Kansas City; U. S. Revenue Agents Westrich and Claggett of Brooklyn, and William Hodgins, Chicago revenue agent.

Letter to the Editor

College Station, Texas June 27, 1931

Dear Sir: Your interest in the agricultural situation prompts me to send you special word about the plans for the farmers' short course to be held as usual at College Station July 27 to August 1.

The general theme of the program this year is to be "Increasing the Profit, Comfort, Culture, Influence and Power of Every Farm Family." For this theme we have gone to the wise leadership of the great agricultural statesman, Dr. S. A. Knapp, to whom we owe the establishment of the demonstration as a means of promoting wise agriculture and better home life.

In developing this theme we will follow the general lines laid down by President Walton in his Texas Farm Policy—(1) preservation of land as capital stock; (2) use of events. Doc Ryan has definitely groomed himself and will start grooming his horse within the next two days. He didn't take the suggestion of riding two horses like a circus rider because he was afraid some slim bird like Oscar Seymour would ride between his legs and get the inside track, but he has prospects of getting a big pony to carry his 200 or better.

There's some talk that Oscar Seymour will not get back in time for the races, but the Lions club will be represented, according to Vice president Jim Harrison. Jim first thought of riding but when he learned he couldn't get a certain Coyle race pony here in time for several days' workout, he decided against it. He said there were enough Reporter-Telegram jockeys already, what with Paul Barron riding for the men's class.

So far, the line-up is about as follows:

- General Jim Noland, riding All's Quiet, representing the Vets; Manager Malcolm Meek, riding Scattergood, representing the chamber of commerce; Officer Oscar Seymour, riding Twister-Tail, representing the Lions club; Dictator Doc Ryan, riding Rotatin' Rambler, representing the Rotary club; and President Paul Barron riding Harry Chest, representing the men's class.

Nobody loses in this race except those furnishing the horses. Lost to be divided 60-30-10.

- adapted crops and livestock; (3) balancing the farm business; (4) employing low cost methods; (5) living at home; (6) production of quality products; (7) marketing on a quality basis.

We believe that there was never a time when a farmer needed so desperately more knowledge along these lines. In forming the program we mean to make every minute count to the end that those who come to the short course shall go away better equipped for their jobs. We invite you, also, to attend this series of meetings and ask your cooperation, both before and after the short course, in directing the thinking of our state toward increasing the profit, comfort, culture, influence and power of every farm family.

Sincerely yours, O. B. MARTIN, Director.

Baptist Women Hold Monthly Meeting at Home of Mrs. John Hix; Mrs. Robertson, Recent President, Is Named Honor Guest

Holding the interest of women of the Missionary society of the First Baptist church was the monthly party and business meeting held at the home of Mrs. John Hix Monday afternoon.

A short business period, in charge of Mrs. M. R. Hill, included the election of Mrs. A. B. Coleman as secretary and treasurer of the society, and Mrs. Claude White as chairman of young people's activities.

Plans were formulated to entertain the Workers' conference of the Big Spring association which will meet at the local church July 7.

Mrs. C. M. Goldsmith was appointed chairman of the church committee.

The social hour was marked by

Breakfast for Winners of Contest At Cloverdale

Complimenting winners in a Martha-Fidelis class membership contest, Mrs. C. C. Hiett and Mrs. J. A. McClurg acted as hostesses for their groups at a sunrise breakfast this morning at 5 o'clock at Cloverdale park.

Women attending were Meses. Clarence Ligon, J. O. Vance, Dean Tucker, R. A. Morgan, D. E. Carter, Jim Walker, C. G. Stanley, Herbert King, Jones, C. E. Strawn and the hostesses.

Ices and cake revealing a color note of yellow and white were passed to 34 women attending.

In an apartment house elevator the removal of a man's hat seems to introduce a personal note—a note which, in the case of some tenants one could do very nicely without.

Happy Birthday!

TOMORROW Mrs. Pat Curtin. Bobby James Kerby.

Park Is Scene Of Breakfast for Endeavor Group

Breakfast was served to a group of young people of the Christian Endeavor of the First Christian church this morning when ten motored to the city park.

In the party were the Rev. and Mrs. Howard Peters, Misses Lillian and Catherine Dunaway and Helen Lee Stewart. Messrs. Bush Elkin, Charles Sandidge, Buster Howard, Haskell Watkins, and Howard Dunaway.

Sitting Pretty in German Society

Wherever society gathers in Germany you're likely to find the Baroness Moeigsvarter, who is known as one of the most beautiful matrons of the younger set. This is her latest portrait, posed the other day in Berlin.

Women Look Best Sunday 3 o'Clock; Worst on Saturday

Peak hour of feminine loveliness is three o'clock, Sunday afternoon and the zero hour is one p. m., Saturday.

Authority for these statements is Mme. Helena Rubinstein, famous beauty specialist of Paris, London and New York, and she supports her contentions with apparently plausible arguments, to-wit:

"Women almost always are at their best at three o'clock of a Sunday afternoon for the very good reason that the Sabbath is a day of rest and relaxation and by that hour all of the necessary Sunday work is done. At that hour women are sitting, as it were, on top of the world a week of drudgery and possible disappointments behind them, a week of pleasant expectations stretching out ahead.

"They are lovely to behold at this hour because they are nervously relaxed and mentally alert—plus the fact that Sunday is the 'dress up' day of the week and they have doffed their drab work-a-day apparel for bright-colored silks and satins."

As for the zero hour of feminine beauty, Madame has this to say:

"Both facially and figuratively speaking, women are at their worst at about one o'clock of a Saturday afternoon. It is at this hour that most circles appear under the eyes, that most noses are shiny, that most hair is mussed. It is as though women give in to indifference as the week draws to a close. After keeping up their spirits and their appearances during the first six days of the week, they unconsciously let down on Saturday afternoon. They may snap out of it before sunset or they may not appear really well groomed again until Sunday afternoon—depending upon the woman or her program."

No medical examination or psychological test, according to this distinguished beauty specialist, registers the true state of a woman's mental and physical condition more accurately than her appearance.

Choice Cooks' Corner

Washington Strawberry Pie

Four tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1-2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3 cups strawberries, 1 cup whipped cream.

Cream butter, sugar and egg. Add milk, flour, baking powder, salt and vanilla and beat three minutes. Pour in round cake pan, lined with wax paper. Bake 25 minutes in moderately slow oven. Turn out upside-down on plate and let cool. Spread top with berries, which have been washed, hulled and sweetened. Cover with whipped cream.

Brittle Fluff

Mix two cups of finely ground peanuty brittle with one cup of vanilla wafers which have been ground to crumbs. Fold in 1 pint of whipped cream. Put into sherbet dishes and set in the ice box for about ten hours before serving.

Products sold: butter, eggs, meat, cream, milk and chickens. These products brought $349.23, cost to produce them was $3.26, making a profit of $146.06.

Five New Novels For Rent at Main Library

Five new novels have been added to the rental collection in the County Library. These books include:

PERSONAL MAID by Grace Perkins. Nora Ryan is a red-headed Irish girl, a Delancey Street girl, who made good on Park Avenue. "Personal Maid" tells her story and incidentally gives the low-down on New York's high society.

SNOBS by M. A. Dormie tells the story of an American girl who married an Englishman and went to England to live. "I won't flag-wave consciously or conspicuously, please God, but I'll live and die a Yankee, no matter what exterior British veneer I acquire with the years"—so said the bride (to herself, not to the groom). The many laughable complications she finds in her new life are told easily breezily in a volume that should prove amusing to the average American reader.

WHITE PAWN by Olive Higgins Prouty is the story of a poor little rich girl in the America of today. Fabia Vale has a whole set of traditions and an aristocratic background to live up to. These conditions imply that she shall love a certain type of man—rich, aristocratic, one-of-the-club. But instead she loves a "fiery, ambitious young doctor named Daniel Regan, whose origins are regrettably humble." That started all the troubles. But eventually, of course, the pathway of love was smoothed and the book reaches a conventional happy ending.

FLAMENCO by Lady Eleanor Smith is a novel of gypsies so the reader can at least look forward to something different in its pages. It has been variously described as an international best seller, "a masterpiece of outlawry" and "the only novel in which gypsies have been treated with understanding and sympathy."

Reviews stress its beauty, color, passion and melody. MURDER AT THE VICARAGE by Agatha Christie is another of the oh-so popular crime mystery tales. This one has seven people suspected of the murder of the most disliked man in the village. Of course a woman solves the mystery, and she an old-maid at that. But in the usual course of things, the doughty police get the credit. If you like detective stories, "Murder at the Vicarage" should have your attention.

E. E. Davis and daughter arrived yesterday to make their home in Midland. They have been living in Cisco.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Schroder and son of Los Angeles were in Midland this week visiting Mr. Schroder's brother, J. W. Schroder and wife.

Frank Wendt arrived last night from College Station where he has been several weeks on business. He was formerly county agent here.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Robertson and daughter, Anna Louise, are leaving today to make their home in Weatherford.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McGlaun and niece, Mrs. Lillian Wallace, arrived last night from Beaumont for a visit with the McGlaun's daughter, Mrs. C. E. Smith, and family.

Personals

Paul McNab of Dallas is here today transacting business.

J. C. Behne, internal revenue representative of Abilene, is in Midland on business.

Ray Gibson and Ray Smith of Carlsbad left this morning after a brief visit with Mr. Gibson's brother an employe of Everybody's store.

Consider your Adam's Apple!!* Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Consider the Garden of Eden. When that old serpent put Eve up to the idea of handing Adam an apple, he may have been doing them both a good turn—for where would we be today, ladies and gentlemen, without our Adam's Apple. If we didn't have our Adam's Apple, we couldn't sing, we couldn't even speak. For your Adam's Apple is your Larynx—your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. So—Consider your Adam's Apple. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Remember—the serpent in the smokers' Garden of Eden—harsh irritants are present in all raw tobaccos. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead. Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" Process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say, "Consider your Adam's Apple."

HARDWARE AND REXALL STORES WIN MONDAY NIGHT IN NOCTURNE

ELECTRICIANS TIE UP WITH PAPER TONIGHT

Midland Hardware squeezed a win from the Bell Telephone company last night, and Rexall stores won from Cowden-Epley. The score of the first game was 9-5, that of the second 16-10.

This evening, beginning at 7 o'clock, The Reporter-Telegram plays Texas Electric, and Scruggs Buick and Bell Telephone play in the nightcap.

The Electricians continue to lead the league, with no losses chalked against them. The hardware company has lost only one encounter, and holds second place.

WHO WILL WIN JULY 3RD FIGHT? STRIB IS PICKED

BY CLAIRE BURCKY
NEA Service Sports Writer
GEAUGA LAKE PARK, O.—"Nobody realizes any better than I the importance of this bout. I'm prepared for a hard fight with Schmeling, but I expect to make it the best of my entire career."

Willie (Young) Stribling of Macon, Ga., had slipped into his clothes and was combing his hair before the glass in the doorway of his training quarters when he made the above statement. His workout of a few minutes before had been one of the most impressive of the long training grind.

"I expect to win, of course," he continued. "I want to win by a knockout, so there can't be any argument about it. Right now I haven't doped out any definite plan of battle except to fight Schmeling from the first going. If he fights as the papers say he will, it will be a real battle. But I expect to win."

And Pa Stribling Chimes In
Pa Stribling wasn't present during this little monologue. Only Lake Russell, Stribling's trainer, was in the room with Stribling and me. But Pa later added his comment, and emphatically.

"Sure we'll win," said Pa. Then quickly he added, "and maybe by a knockout, too. If Schmeling uses his right against W. L. and leaves his chin open like he has been doing with his sparring partners, the heavyweight championship is sure going back to Georgia. W. L.'s left will ruin that guy."

Pa also would have it known that Young Stribling's right is something more than his fork hand.

"It's fine news that Schmeling is working his right hand overtime," repeated Willie Sr. "We want him to do just that—and then W. L.'s left will do some business. But speaking of rights, W. L.'s might figure in that fight, too. He has finished lots of them with that right. Big Camera hit the canvas from W. L.'s right to the chin."

Smith Will Second Willie
And Bob Smith, too. Bob Smith used to work with the late Leo P. Flynn and has rubbed elbows with fighters for years and years. He joined the Stribling camp early in the training period and will be with Pa in Willie's corner the night of July 3.

"I'm for this Stribling, both as friend and fighter," said Bob. "His stuff is good any way you take him. He'll be out in front when the bout ends."

These opinions aren't all, by any means. Of more than 400 sports editors queried in a recent straw vote, three of every four believed Stribling would prove the German's master, and doubly so if he abandoned his clutching-clinching tactics.

But maybe you're wondering about my own opinion. Perhaps you shouldn't because this observer's views differ little from many others.

A Kayo—Delivered by Strib
I look for a knockout—either the plain old 1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9-10 kind or a technical kayo. I regard the wallop of champion and challenger as sufficiently potent to end the bout before the full 15 rounds have been completed.

And another thing—I wouldn't be shocked if Stribling stops the champion. Willie has shown me a straight left, a blow the challenger puts his whole weight behind, that may spill a lot of Maxie's blood and play havoc with the German's features. My choice for the knockout blow, if he lands it, is a left hook to the champ's chin.

I doubt that Schmeling carries enough guns to pierce the Stribling armor. Max's vaunted short blows, punches that are supposed to carry plenty of steam behind them, may never find a more vulnerable spot than the Georgian's neck, arms or shoulders. If they should break thru Stribling knows how to ride with the punch.

Stribling in Great Condition
Willie is a master of defense; perhaps too much of a master, judging from the kicks one frequently hears about his clutching. He never has been knocked out.

CLEVELAND, June 30.—In most of Max Schmeling's fight in America, he proved that he could withstand terrific punishment and come from behind to win.

SPORTS REPORTS

BY R. C. HANKINS

Our old friendly enemy John King, who managed the Colts of Midland in the West Texas league, has finally made the miscue of his tempestuous life. We bickered around here for a whole year and the only thing we had against him was the way he had of razzing us because we sat low in the stand, with a background of girls parked above us on the high seats. Said he didn't like the background. And now he goes down to Longview and here is what results.

LONGVIEW—A wedding around which much interest centers was that of Miss Mary Brown, daughter of Mrs. R. G. Brown of Longview and John King of Kilgore, popular members of society.

The wedding took place in the study of the First Methodist church in Shreveport, Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock with the Rev. A. Smith, pastor of the church officiating with the impressive ring ceremony.

The bridegroom who has been actively identified with the oil development in Gregg county is a member of one of Kilgore's prominent families. He is at present filling his summer engagement as umpire of the Texas baseball league.

About 22 men, divided equally between the Gemmill and the Chewing camps, will play an all-Nocturne game here the night of July 4 for exhibition purposes. The game will begin at 8:15 and will feature the best players on every club in the league.

Now that Mickey Walker has resigned the world's middleweight championship—long ago declared vacant by both the National Boxing association and the New York State Athletic commission—an elimination tourney to decide a new champion is in order.

Although Walker consistently refused to defend his title on the ground that he was unable to find worthy opponents, the class has a wealth of talent. Doubtless none of them is the equal of Walker, regarded generally as the best of current scrappers, pound for pound, but any ruling body willing to stage a title tourney will have no difficulty in finding half a dozen fighters entitled to consideration.

If the tournament were to be made an open affair the title might go to a negro fighter, although past records indicate that the negro contenders will be overlooked if the New York commission has a hand in the tourney.

Harry Smith of Brooklyn and Tiger Thomas of Leipsville, Pa., rival claimants to the "colored middleweight championship," deserve berths in any tourney to decide the actual ruler of the class, and it will take a real champion to beat either of them.

The white contenders include Vince Dundee, Baltimore veteran; his recent victims, Len Harvey of England and Ben Jey of New York; Jack Rosenberg of New York and Leo Larrievie, a French-Canadian.

A bicycle race was held to decide once and for all the relative merits of vegetarianism and meat-eating at Copenhagen, but the argument was not settled.

The contestants were a vegetarian nick-named "Banana," who is a student, and a butcher popularly known as "Beef."

The pair cycled neck and neck for 35 miles, but at the finish "Beef" spurred and won by two seconds. The meat-cutter tilted an exultant eyebrow and said, "there you are," and the vegetarians calmly asked "where?"

And—the argument still rages.

Miniature golf has invaded two Paulino was ahead on points, too, in the early rounds, but Max rallied and gradually wore him down in their 15-round battle.

Against all these men he showed he had a chance to prove that he could go a Derby route and have plenty left for that final drive down the stretch.

But against Sharkey, he had no such chance.

Sharkey was handing him a one-of the former imperial gardens of Manchu emperors, where hundreds of Chinese are learning, or improving, their game.

Courses have been laid out in the Pei Hai (North Lake) Park, one of the Three Seas gardens used by generations of emperors, but now public parks, and in Chungshang (San Yat-sen) Park, another former imperial garden.

Two other miniature golf courses have been laid out in Peiping and Chinese billiard halls are losing their popularity, as the Chinese take up the new sport.

In the three rounds the fight endured, Max seemed like a novice, taking a boxing lesson from a master.

But the German was undaunted. He kept coming after Sharkey, and was coming after him when the low blow that ended the fight occurred.

Here is a story of that fight: Sharkey, rushing from his corner, threw a left to the German's head. He had little trouble jabbing Schmeling, but in the first round Max jumped in twice with lefts, one of which split Sharkey's lower lip.

Near the finish of the first round, after being outboxed most of the way, Max fired a heavy right that shook Sharkey's head. Sharkey took the punch without moving, then clubbed three lefts to Max's head.

it all his own way, but Max kept coming forward. I got the impression then that the German would be hard to discourage.

Sharkey seemed to have the German on the verge of a knockout in the third round, but Max rallied and kept coming in, cool and alert. In this round Sharkey cut Schmeling over the left eye and jarred him badly with lefts and rights to the head. For an instant Schmeling seemed ready to go down, but he collected himself and jumped in with a hard left to the head. Jack sank a beautiful right to Schmeling's stomach at the end of the round, and the German grinned to hide the pain he must have felt.

MIDLAND-STANTON GIRLS PLAYGROUND BALL GAME TODAY

The Petroleum girls, Midland's premier girls' playground ball team, go to Stanton this afternoon for an engagement due to begin at 7 bells, and determined that as they have not lost a game this season they will not begin today, and out of town.

Half the town's going along, judging from the number of cars being filled, greased and oiled around the noon hour.

The Stanton girls are exceptionally fast on the playing field and well. In a game played Friday 7-6, but the loss was the first to alter the percentages of the Stanton girls and today's game may be a reversal for the leading Midland team. Several Midland golfers will journey early to Stanton, playing 18 holes of golf prior to the game was said.

TOURISTS WRECK LINDY'S HOME IN MINNESOTA

LITTLE FALLS, Minn., (UP)—The contemplated journey of the Lindberghs to the Orient focuses attention upon the past exploits of the "flying colonel."

Perhaps the least known place is Lindbergh's boyhood home, a short distance south of here.

The tourist who seeks his birthplace will be disappointed if he expects to find the road well marked. He is told to drive "west of the Mississippi river bridge, then turn left at the Swedish church, this at Pine Grove park." Upon following these directions the tourist finds an ordinary sand road.

After following the road for a mile and a half, he enters a "state game refuge," really the first effort of Minnesota to honor Lindbergh.

Cardboard Sign

Driving through this park, one finds, tacked to a lone evergreen tree an old piece of cardboard on which is printed the sign, "Picnic Grounds" and in smaller letters, "Lindy's Home."

At the left is a dilapidated frame house, boarded up, with broken windows and much writing, clearly visible even from the road.

Entering the grounds an old gentleman, wearing the star of a Minnesota deputy sheriff, appeared.

"You're lookin' for Lindy?" he demanded. "This is it. It was a swell place once. Now look at it. Tourists have made a mess of it."

Inquiry developed the information that the Lindberghs' homestead has been the object of "unwelcome" tourists since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew his "Spirit of St. Louis" across the Atlantic ocean in 1927.

"I don't mind these folks that come up here and are polite," he continued, "but these young folks that climb into the house, break windows and the like, and steal even the locks off doors, get my goat."

He said that Minnesota, which has taken over the grounds for the purpose of reconstructing the house in its original state, and make a state park of it, is doing what it can with the limited funds at its disposal.

Tourist Lust

Inside were pitiable evidences of tourists' lust. What had once been a beautiful mahogany cabinet stood in a corner, propped up by stragglers because some tourist had stolen its solid base and even the glass which once had covered its doors.

An oak cabinet which had contained law books owned by "Lindy's" streaked away from Roosevelt field New York.

Although weather reports from along their route were varied, Post and Gatty concluded they were no unfavorable and made a sudden decision to be off.

Two More Hops

A cordial send off was given the fliers.

The fliers had two more hops to New York, starting point of the flight. One of 1,900 miles to Edmonton, Alberta, and the second of 2,000 miles from Edmonton to New York.

BY FRANK HOUSTON

NEA Service Correspondent

MAYSVILLE, Okla.—Wiley Post's parents did their best, but they just couldn't keep him down on the farm. The globe-circling flyer, whose dexterous handling of the complicated controls of an airplane carried him and Harold Gatty safely across the treacherous Atlantic and the bleak Siberian wastes, never could learn such simple farm lessons as which harness went on which horse, according to his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Post, who live on a 90-acre farm two miles north of here. The farm is an isolated section, even without a telephone.

But a joyful gleam comes to their eyes as they tell of futile efforts to keep Wiley on the farm, digging potatoes, calling hogs and hoeing corn.

For if they had succeeded, he would not be a world hero today.

Tried to Keep Him Down

"He didn't have our blessings when he started out in this flying business," the father says. "I did everything I could to keep him out of the air and make him stay on the ground as a farmer."

"He was always a good worker here on the farm, but he just wasn't interested. He could cultivate and plow and sow, but never until after I had fixed everything for him. He never (could learn which harness went on which horse or how."

Post shook his head in a puzzled way as if he couldn't figure out how a smart son of his could be so dull in such a simple thing as that.

So, despite parental opposition, Wiley went away to a mechanical school and learned the intricacies of machinery. The things he learned there are in a large measure responsible for his world flight.

Mother Doesn't Worry

Mrs. Post celebrated her 58th birthday soon after her son started winging his way around the world. She refuses to become excited about his flight.

"Wiley's always flying around and I don't worry much about him any more. I'm used to him," she says.

The Posts have no telephone and must wait for a courier to bring them news of the flight.

Wiley began his flying career by making parachute jumps when he wasn't working in the oil fields near Holdenville. That was about six years ago.

"One time when he came home to Maysville to make a jump before a big crowd of farmers who had gathered for a cotton meeting, I told him I wouldn't let him make the jump," Mrs. Post recalled. "I just hid his parachute."

When Wiley missed his chute, he strode into a cotton meeting in full swing and demanded his father get out and find it.

"He raised the devil—but he didn't jump," Mrs. Post says with a chuckle.

Mrs. Post, who, according to her husband, is the best chicken and hog raiser in the southwest, wasn't so sure her husband did the right thing by hiding that parachute, and she did so.

Injury Started His Career

The parents recall how an injury in the oil fields furnished the funds with which Wiley bought his first plane. A piece of flying steel blindered his left eye and the company employing him paid him $2000.

Wiley bought an old "crate" and started barnstorming the same way in which so many other famous flyers got their start. After three years of this he became pilot for F. C. Hall, wealthy oil operator, on flights to and from Hall's scattered holdings.

After winning the National Air Race from California to Chicago, last year, talk was started of an around-the-world flight. Hall put up the money and Post and Gatty sailed away in the "Winnie Mae" named after Hall's daughter, Mrs. Winnie Mae Fain, to fly around the world faster than any men had ever flown around it, before.

RODDEO WILL MARK FOURTH PECOS, (UP)—

The second annual "West of the Pecos" rodeo and celebration will be staged here July 3 and 4 under auspices of the Richard Briscoe Post No. 91 of the American Legion of Pecos. Cowboy performers from over west Texas and New Mexico are expected to vie for the $4000 in prize money which is being offered.

What One Hears Via the Radio

Jacques Renard, director of the Camel Quarter Hour orchestra, is planning his Christmas card now. Wants, maybe, to have his own vast frame pictured on it, but doesn't know whether or not it would come within the postal regulations as to size.

Tony Wons, whose soothing voice is heard during the Camel Quarter hour, been receiving more mail than ever since that program started. But some of the new fans can't spell his name correctly when writing. He has been called Wons, Wones, Ownes, One, Wom, Wham, Warrens, Work, Ons, Worms, Watts, Wam and so on indefinitely.

Gladewater Keeps Its Log Jail Full

GLADEWATER, Tex., June 29, (UP)—This newest incorporated town in Texas boasts one of the busiest jails as well as the most unusual.

Built of logs, the jail was opened May 9, less than a month after this oil town, 14 miles west of Longview was incorporated. In less than a month after its "house-warming" 153 prisoners had passed in and out of its doors, and $1,145 had been collected in fines by corporation court, which has met every weekday morning since the jail opened.

Gaming, liquor traffic and all the other vices that flourish in an oil town were in full bloom when the jail opened, but now Police Chief W. A. (Bill) Dial, a former Texas ranger, and his assistants have things under control.

The jail is a show-place, which looks like the "jugs" of gold rusted towns in the old days. There are no bars—only logs. But the place is the coolest spot in town, for there is a wide space between the logs.

The men's ward contains cots and 13 chain fetters and the women's ward three cots and three chain fetters. Besides having to get loose from a chain and break down the door, a prisoner would have to climb a high board fence surmounted by barbed wire to escape.

The motor car has brought into existence a new race of human beings, who go into the country not because they love the country but because they love their cars.—Robert Lynd.

NEW CONVENIENCE

To meet the demand of Midland residents for money orders to be mailed or sent by methods other than the telegraph, the Western Union offices here will begin the sale Wednesday of American Express money orders. It was announced today by R. J. Walker, local manager of the telegraph company.

Western Union main and branch offices in all parts of the United States will inaugurate the service at the same time, offices of the American Express company will act as branches of Western Union in the sale of telegrams, cablegrams and telegraphic money orders.

This service will in no way conflict with the Western Union telegraphic money and gift order service which annually transfers $275,000,000 in small amounts, and comprises about 93 per cent of the nation's telegraphic money orders.

Weather Stations Aid Flyers

NO LAW FOR IT

NEWARK, N. J.—After the wife of Wilbur E. Tipper obtained a divorce, Tipper says he caught her kissing her lawyer, a married man. On this charge, Tipper asked the court for custody of his child. But Judge Backus refused, saying that it wasn't against the law for a single woman to kiss a married man.

Olive Branch In New Mexico

SANTA FE, N. M., June 30, (UP)—U. S. Senator Bronson Cutting, progressive leader in the senate, and the New Mexico Republican organization have forgotten their differences and the senator once again is welcomed back as the head of the party in this state.

In the interest of placing this state in the Republican column in 1932, in the presidential election, the old-guarders welcomed Cutting at a meeting recently. Senator Cutting pledged his allegiance to the Republican party.

Elections are won in this state, which has a small population, on two or three thousand vote majorities, so that the support of the senator behind an organization is welcomed.

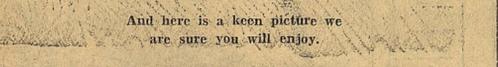

Since the 1929 legislature was in session there had been differences between Senator Cutting and the Old Guard Republicans. He made a trip from Washington to address the New Mexico senate in 1929 to admonish them to remember their campaign promises and to enact legislation that would give the state a labor commission.

But the senate remained deadlocked for two weeks on the labor commission question and finally defeated it. In contrast to the 1929 election, when Cutting worked in the Republican ranks and the Republicans were victorious, the senator maintained an apparent "hands off" policy in the 1930 elections.

As a result the Democrats made a clean sweep in 1930.

Smoke a fresh cigarette

Leaving the moisture-proof Cellophane on my Camel package when I open it protects the cigarettes against the odors of powder and perfume

CAMELS
NO CIGARETTE AFTER-TASTE

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons—Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office

Nature, not parching, Makes CAMELS Mild

HARSH tobaccos require harsh measures, like parching, to make them tolerable to the throat.

But the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended are naturally mild and gentle. Parching would only ruin their exquisite flavor and aroma.

No matter where you buy Camels you will find them always in factory-fresh condition. Their rare flavor together with their natural moisture is air-sealed-in by moisture-proof Cellophane. We call it the Humidor Pack.

This protective wrapping is dust-proof, germ-proof and weather-proof. A great boon to the smoker.

No stinging particles of peppery dust to irritate the throat; no brackish smoke from stale tobacco; no burnt tongue from the hot smoke of dried-out cigarettes.

Just the cool, mild fragrance of choice tobaccos expertly blended and properly conditioned.

If you are not a Camel smoker, switch over for just one day. Then leave them—if you can.
