20,000 CHINESE GATHERED

Report Says Chinese Moving on Jap Forces

MUKDEN, Nov. 12. (UP)—Japanese headquarters here announced today that Chinese have started moving against entrenched Japanese forces on the Nonni river front. The situation was described as dangerous. The announcement said that 20,000 Chinese were now mobilized at Anganchi with equipment received from Russia. Japanese forces number about 2,000.

Japs Started March Last Night, Reported

By Associated Press
Japanese troops in the Nonni river bridge area in Manchuria have resumed their advance and have bombed and shelled the retiring Chinese army, the Chinese government declared last night in an urgent message to the League of Nations.

The message said the Japanese forces were twenty kilometers along the road to the Chinese controlled town of Tsitsihar.

Students Marched Out

Girl students attending the Keen school at Tientsin, operated by American Methodist missionaries, were marched to the French concession yesterday to get them out of the danger zone.

Many of them were in a state of collapse from fear and the rigors of the long march when they arrived. The Nankai school at Tientsin was also evacuated.

An unconfirmed report said Japan had issued an ultimatum demanding removal of all Chinese soldiers from Tientsin. Negotiations between Chinese and Japanese were going on, it was authoritatively said, apparently on the basis of substitution of a Chinese regime friendly to Japan.

Emperor Hirohito of Japan ordered a fresh brigade of troops and four naval destroyers to Manchuria after word was received of a battle on a new front in which 300 Chinese and three Japanese were killed.

BODY BELIEVED NURSE WHO TOLD ON HER EMPLOYER

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 12. (UP)—Medical experts were called today to attempt to identify the mutilated body of a young woman believed to be a nurse slain because she had informed authorities of an illegal operation performed by her physician employer.

Some held that the woman is Jeannette Edwards, who disappeared from Kankakee after giving evidence against her employer.

The body was found in a grave filled with quicklime. Both feet were amputated and the head was crushed.

Reserve Squads to Play Here Friday

Midland and Stanton's B squads play a football game at Lackey field Friday afternoon at 3:30. No admission charges will be made.

The Stanton team holds a 6-0 decision over the Midland team from a game played about three weeks ago in Stanton. The Midland reserves have improved considerably in the meantime, however, and are expected to play a neat game, according to Head Coach L. K. Barry.

AID RELIEF

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—Home economic classes in state schools are co-operating with relief organizations in the conservation of surplus food, according to the state department of public instruction. The department said the relief organizations provide the vegetables, fruits and finished products.

A NEW RACKET

CHESTER, Pa.—A modern Pied Piper walked into a beauty shop here, unfolded a gas mask, and offered to rid the shop of rats. His offer accepted, he donned the mask and scattered some powder around the place. The powder gave off a gas that caused the attendants to run out of the place for air. In a few minutes the man walked out of the shop and informed the proprietress that the job was done. The proprietress went in the shop to discover her pocketbook was missing.

A Tank That Swims!

Here is the latest British military invention—an amphibian tank that fights while it swims—in action. It travels 42 miles per hour on land, using caterpillar treads, and when it plunges into water it floats and a propeller is brought into play to push it along at a steady six knots. Its turret gun can be used while in the water. Students of warfare visualize a transport ship disgorging a fleet of these tanks to precede and clear the way for landing of troops on enemy shores. The tank weighs two tons and carries armor.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM HELD AT HI SCHOOL; MAYOR, MINISTER MAKE ADDRESSES

Mayor Leon Goodman and the Rev. Howard Peters spoke to a crowd that almost filled the big auditorium of senior high school Armistice morning. The service was a special one in commemoration of the World War dead.

A parade was staged on downtown streets before the service. This was made up of Legionnaires, Vets of Foreign Wars, boy scouts and the pep squad and band of the high school. Taps were sounded by Fred Middleton at 10:55 and silent prayer was offered at 11 o'clock sharp.

Ralph Bucy presided at the service. The Rev. W. J. Coleman, pastor of the Presbyterian church, intoned an invocation; the audience sang "America." Mayor Goodman spoke; Mrs. Foy Proctor sang; Miss Lucille McMullan read; the Reverend Peters spoke and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Edwin Calhoun, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The address of Mayor Goodman was written and could be obtained for publication. That of the Christian minister was not prepared in written form. The mayor's address follows:

Midland Man Aids In Capture of an Alleged Box Yegg

More excitement than a little happened at Sweetwater during the playing of the Big Spring-Sweetwater game.

Sheriff Jess Lanham, Deputy Sheriff Jack Yarborough and a Midland man, Ray "Slaughterhouse" Holt, captured an alleged holdup yegg who had helped himself to cash from the box office and was trying to get away.

Holt was talking to the two officers near the gate. Suddenly Yarborough made a dash closer to the gate. Holt saw the two officials run towards a man who is asserted to have held a gun. The alleged holdup yegg was quickly hemmed and dropped the gun. Holt caught him by the throat, and the Nolan county officers carted him off to jail.

Reports did not establish how much money allegedly had been taken.

URGES WAR-TIME SPIRIT FIGHTING PEACE BATTLES

Urging Americans to use the spirit of war in fighting the battles of peace, Frank Stubbeman, Midland attorney, delivered a practical and interesting address today before a luncheon of the Rotary and Lions clubs. Stubbeman outlined problems confronting the country which, through use of the enthusiasm and patriotism generated in times of war, could easily be solved.

Mrs. Foy Proctor entertained with vocal numbers.

Mrs. Martha Holloway, Gold Star mother, was present for the Armistice program. Officers of the city and county could not attend the meeting.

Wurzbach's Brother Not to Be Candidate

Four Rescued While Drifting in Boat

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Nov. 12. (UP)—Eleven men, who drifted for days helplessly in open life boats, were rescued today by the United States mine sweeper, Swan.

The men's ship, Banderbadan, sank in a sudden tropical storm. They were sighted several days ago by an aviator who was unable to land in the rough seas. The pilot reported their plight to the government who sent a rescue ship.

CASTOR PLANT WORRIED 'EM

FLORENCE, Colo. (UP)—Neighbor children viewed with consternation the giant castor bean plant which grew in the backyard of Mrs. E. Blades. The plant stretched 16 feet into the air. ## KING COTTON REGAINS THRONE AS PRICES RISE; BETTER TIMES ARE COMING; SOUTH IS WAKING FAST

By LEROY SIMMS
NEA Service Writer
Cotton is King again in Dixie. Just when it seemed that there was no bottom for falling cotton prices to hit, increased consumption, small or foreign crops and heavy profit-taking by short interests brought an upward turn which will mean millions for southern cotton farmers.

The strength of cotton's position—and improved business conditions as a whole—was graphically illustrated when the government's estimate of 16,903,000 bales was taken without a flurry and prices for the day closed $1 per bale higher than the opening.

This estimate forecast the second largest crop in history, but nevertheless the value of the crop increased almost $40,000,000 that day, almost $17,000,000 on the price gain and approximately $22,000,000 for the indicated increased production.

Cotton experts believe the advance in the price of the staple is merely a reflection of generally better business conditions throughout the world, as indicated by the rising prices of wheat, corn and silver.

Higher prices for silver mean more money for countries on the silver monetary standard, many of which are heavy takers of American cotton.

Improvements in stocks and securities also helped the cotton market by removing financial strain from many cotton traders who were also in the stock market.

Better business in the United States, now generally regarded very likely in the immediate future, would mean increased buying of cotton goods.

Huge acreage cuts for 1932 in Texas and other cotton growing states seem assured because of laws limiting the planting of cotton to 30 per cent of all land under cultivation. This means a cut of almost 50 per cent in some of the cotton growing states. This factor (See BETTER TIMES page 6)

$17,500,000 AGAINST 17 COMPANIES OF THE STATE TO BE SOUGHT

Dodging of Texas Law Relative to Subsidiaries Alleged; Companies Operate To Establish Monopoly, Said

AUSTIN, Nov. 12. (UP)—Attorney General Allred today filed suits of penalties aggregating $17,500,000 against Standard Oil companies of New York, New Jersey and California, the American Petroleum institute, the Texas Petroleum Markets association and 12 other leading oil organizations.

The suits asked forfeiture of charters of domestic companies and cancellation of foreign companies rights to operate in Texas. The penalties were asked for periods dating from November 1929. The minimum daily fine of $50 and a maximum of $1,500 were set.

Charge Abuse

Allred charged the Standard of New Jersey with setting up the Humble Oil & Refining company as a subsidiary after conviction of violating the Texas anti-trust law in 1913. The Standard of New York was accused of using the Magnolia in the same manner.

The Standard of New York was charged with setting up the Magnolia as a subsidiary to evade the Texas corporation laws, and no other company was allowed to compete.

The Standard of California was alleged with operating similarly through the Pasotex Petroleum company and the Shell Union through the Shell Petroleum corporation.

17 Companies Charged

The Texas company, Gulf Refining company, Continental Oil company, Sinclair Refining company, Simms Oil company, Cities Service company, Texas Pacific Coal & Oil company, Texas Petroleum Markets association and American Petroleum institute were charged with entering into a combination during 1928 to create marketing restrictions, fix prices to prevent competition and limit the output of pumps, tanks and filling station equipment.

Allred charged that agreements had created a monopoly in marketing gasoline, lubricating oil and greases.

Dollar Days to Attract Crowds

Dollar days are expected to draw the biggest crowds seen in Midland in more than a year. Saturday, particularly, will probably see more people in Midland shopping than at any time since Dec. 24 of last year. The streets will be crowded with city shoppers and with cotton pickers and farmers. Merchants say it will be worth a trip to town to see so much business. People are spending their money as they have not done in months, store owners say.

More News of Hitch Hiker Received Here

A youthful hitch-hiker, who was taken unconscious from an east-bound bus here Sunday night suffering from a dislocated vertebra, also puzzled police and doctors in cities west of here, according to newspaper stories from the Arizona Star published in Tucson. The issue was received here by Sgt. Capriotti of the U. S. army station.

For almost 24 hours the youth lay unconscious in a Tucson hospital unable to identify himself or tell how he received his injuries.

"Hatless, without any marks of identification, with no apparent signs of any attack of accident, the man was brought to the hospital here by a man who picked him up unconscious 17 miles east of the highway," the Arizona paper said. At a hospital here the youth said he was Eddie Firestone, 22, of Fort Worth and was hitch-hiking from the West coast to Fort Worth to visit his step-mother, who is an invalid.

ON BEING A FATHER

American fathers are beginning to take their responsibilities seriously, according to a bulletin recently issued by the American Child Health association.

That is, they are actually studying the job of being a father just as they would study any other job, and are trying to find out things about it by visiting their sons' schools, reading books and organizing study groups.

Evidently Dad wants to make sure that he gives little Willie the best kind of break possible, and he is doing everything he can to bring that to pass.

All of this is more than passingly interesting; for to be the father of a small boy is to occupy one of the most ticklish positions that any human being can step into.

The small boy, you see, dwells in a world apart, and in his world the greatest of men is Dad. To be sure, the rest of the world may look on Dad as a weak and ineffectual sort of citizen, a bluffer or a faker or a plain dumb-bell; but to the small boy Dad is a being without a flaw—a completely wise and admirable person who can fix broken toys, settle difficult arguments, answer all kinds of questions and, on the whole, he can do everything that a growing youngster could ever wish to be and do himself.

Dad himself, of course, almost invariably knows better. Among the illusions that die quickly is the average human male's belief in his own greatness. So Dad, presently, finds himself with an impossible ideal to live up to. He discovers that little Willie is copying his mannerisms of speech and action, his way of walking and sitting, his attitudes and his foibles. And such adoration, while gratifying, is a trifle dismaying.

For it brings Dad—if he ever thinks at all—face to face with the contrast between what he is and what he ought to be. That contrast, for most of us, is not a pleasant thing to look at; and Dad, until little Willie gets old enough to know better, has to look at it rather frequently.

So it is hardly surprising if fathers in various parts of the country are doing what they can to make themselves more efficient in the job of fatherhood. The father-and-son relationship can be a marvelous influence in a boy's life—and it can also do Dad himself a lot of good.

THE TIME FOR FRIENDS!

Even a depression has its good points. How many times in the past two years have you heard men and women say, "Since the depression began, I have discovered that I have time to really enjoy my friends, something that was impossible during the boom days."

It is well known that in days of adversity and trial, men, communities, cities and even nations are drawn closer together. They become more tolerant. A desire to help the other fellow in his troubles, and to forget one's own, becomes prevalent.

Such is the case in the present era. Many times in recent months we have heard men say, "This depression is not so bad. I have discovered my real friends and believe that I have made many more. I have had time to visit with them and have found joy and happiness in communion with them that was impossible in the boom days, when we were too busy to do more than pass the time of day."

After all, friends are the greatest riches that man may accumulate. There is more genuine pleasure in them than in all the stocks and bonds, money and property that can be had.

Yes, even the depression has its good points, for through it, many of us have found time to cultivate our friends and to learn to appreciate them.

"But watch her go now!" Golden signs of prosperity are gladdening the eye of six million people in Texas, in all fields of endeavor, in all fields of production, in all avenues of employment, and Dino Grandi of Italy, Will Act as a Tomato Net for Mussolini When He Comes Here to Talk Things Over.

WASHINGTON—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, when he comes here to talk things over, will serve as sort of a tomato net for Premier Benito Mussolini.

Mussolini wanted to come to Washington. His embassy here broached the matter to the State Department. The state department hemmed and even hawed. The project lapsed. Secretary Stimson and his subordinates, it is learned, had reeled at the thought of guarding thousands of roofs and office windows as Benito rode through the New York streets. The least that might be expected of anti-Fascists, they were sure, was a bombardment of over-ripe tomatoes. Visions of New York Fascists and anti-Fascist fighting and tossing each other from high rooftops strengthened the fear that Mussolini's entry might turn into a terrible international mess. So here comes Grandi.

H. G. Wells, at a tea given by the Overseas Writers, proved to be short, chunky, visible, soft-spoken and very genial. He makes a noble effort to keep his large bald spot covered. He teamed here with his publisher, Nelson Doubleday, who is for all practical purposes, about 11 feet tall. Egged on, Wells talked frankly and fully on international problems, but not for quotation.

"Remember," he said in parting, "I didn't say a thing against France."

Whereupon there was a great roar of laughter.

There was a dinner the other night to John Beard, the British labor leader. The committee, made up of people interested in labor problems, asked Senator Costigan of Colorado to preside. Everyone showed up in ordinary dress, having been told Beard was "that kind of a labor leader." Everyone, that is, except Senator Davis of Pennsylvania, former secretary of labor, who arrived in full dress.

Davis sat at the head of the table with three sheets of prepared address. He said he had been asked to preside and had come all the way from Pennsylvania. Costigan got word to committee members that he was withdrawing in favor of Davis. They sent back assurance that he had been asked to preside and would be expected to do so. Costigan thereupon presided and the party was over before Senator Davis had a chance to make the speech. The misunderstanding has not yet been cleared.

First diplomatic parties of the season indicate that the embassy liquor situation continues to tighten. Most diplomatic salaries have been cut and two legation staffs are paid in pounds sterling which are not worth as much as they were. Guests find the punch less satisfactory and the practice of serving hard liquor in secluded side rooms more prevalent. The best that can be said for most embassy punch is that it makes you sick if you drink enough of it. Early veterans always shun it and begin search at once for the side room and its highballs.

MILES FOR LOVE

EVERETT, Wash.—All the way from Wales, Charles Cotter came to see Mrs. Lil Burt because he loved her. But when he got here, she broke his heart and had him put in jail, he says.

Cotter fell in love with Mrs. Burt two and a half years ago. Mrs. Burt's husband became suspicious and, as Cotter was in the U. S. illegally, had him deported.

Cotter explains that after he had returned to Wales, his home, Mrs. Burt wrote and asked him to come back. He stowed away on a Norwegian steamer and after about four months reached here. Mrs. Burt hid him from her husband for a time, and then told him he'd have to leave. In an argument, Mrs. Burt ran into a knife Cotter was holding. She had him arrested.

"I love that woman and I couldn't help coming back," Cotter dejectedly says.

Millions Wrested From The Sea by Salvaging

By MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Writer

LONDON—Modern treasure hunts that rival in adventure and audacity the tales of pirate gold are successfully wrenching huge fortunes from dark ocean depths. And now, with divers actually working in the bullion room of the sunken S. S. Egypt, and other daring men exploring the shattered remains of the gold-laden Laurentic, science promises to reclaim fabulous wealth from hulks that lie on the floor of the ocean.

It was nearly three years ago that an Italian salvage company searched for and finally located the liner Egypt, which was rammed and sunk in 1922 with $5,000,000 in gold and silver bullion aboard. Two of the original salvage ships have been lost, along with a number of lives, in the most difficult and hazardous task of its kind ever attempted.

But the perseverance and methods of the treasure seekers have been vindicated by their success in laying bare the gold. For more than a year the divers of the Artiglio II have painstakingly cut and blasted their way through the Egypt's hulk to reach the bullion room. Now they are ready to remove the gold.

Meanwhile, off the coast of northern Ireland, the final chapter is being written in the recovery of a greater treasure. For when the Laurentic went to the bottom there in 1917 she was on her way to America with gold ingots worth $30,000,000.

The bringing up the other day of an ingot worth $8500 means that the wreck is soon to yield the last of the fortune for which divers have been groping intermittently for 12 years and more. And it recalls a thrilling story of war-time horror and sea-faring courage.

Once a Proud Ship When the Laurentic was launched some 23 years ago, she was supposed to be the last word in marine construction, with double bottom and water-tight bulkheads. It was believed that not even a collision, or explosion of torpedo or mine could sink her. She was a proud liner, with accommodations for 1600.

The war came and the luxurious Laurentic at once was converted into a British auxiliary cruiser. For 27 months she did patrol duty. Then she was put into service between Ireland and America.

On January 25, 1917, under the command of Captain Reginald A. Norton of the Royal Navy, she set forth on a dark and stormy evening with all lights out and full speed ahead. Within 55 minutes her brilliant career was ended. Two tremendous explosions occurred, 20 seconds apart, along the port side of the ship. Radio and generators were put out of commission. The Laurentic wallowed in utter darkness.

She had encountered German mines. Rockets were fired and the men who had not been killed or disabled by the blasts answered the call to life boats. Only 120 of the crew of 450 men were rescued from the half gale and icy spray of that wild night. In one boat all 17 men were found frozen to death. Long before, the Laurentic had plunged to the bottom.

In those days of frequent war terrors, the story of the Laurentic soon was forgotten by the public. But the British admiralty remembered, for a very good reason that the public did not know. The ship had started for America with $30,000,000 in gold ingots.

$25,000,000 Recovered As soon as the war ended there began one of the greatest treasure hunts of all time. The Admiralty sent salvage ships under command of Lieut. Com. E. L. B. De Maitre to try to recover the gold. They located the Laurentic about five miles from land, lying on her side in 120 feet of water.

Year after year the perilous task went on. Just as in the case of the sunken Egypt, the salvagers frequently were interrupted by storms.

Using explosives, the divers were able to blow in a door in the side of the ship near the strong room. A diver then went down a traverse passage, removed the hinges from the door of the bullion room. There lay the vast fortune in gold.

But the boxes were very difficult to remove. Divers had to crawl up a steeply sloping passage in pitch darkness, pushing the heavy boxes ahead of them inch by inch. However, by 1926 the Financial Secretary to the Treasury disclosed to the House of Commons that $25,000,000 had been recovered, at a cost of $690,000. Finally the Admiralty discontinued the work.

As to horse races, I suggested that you be at the track between 10 and 11. The only place I missed it was that the races were run between 11 and 12.

Some of the boys marched yesterday morning with that same old springy step and were surprised that they could keep it up. Don't you remember how your legs felt the first time you marched in wrap leggings?

I'm forced to admit that the poppy I attempted to auction off brought only $1, as against the $5 poppy sold at the Rotary club. However, if my wager had been called I would kick out on a technicality. The Rotary club poppy didn't sell at auction. A motion was merely passed to have the club pay $5 for it out of the treasury. What would an auctioneer be able to do against that kind of competition. Mrs. Susie Noble, the county clerk, bought the Quack poppy and I'm certainly grateful to her for her generous bid.

It is reported that the jockey-editor will start a school of jockeying. Students merely have to furnish the horses, saddles, track, and tuition.

CONFIDENCE BRINGS GAINS IN WHEAT, COTTON PRICES

Table with 3 columns: Commodity, Value of Total Crop, Gain. Rows include Wheat, Corn, and Cotton.

By ALLARD SMITH Trust Co., Cleveland

Momentous happenings have been taking place upon the economic stage recently. Not the least of these has been the halt in the historic price decline of many basic commodities and the beginning of their apparent stability.

Wheat, corn, cotton, all these shared in the advance in values during October. All told, from the first week of the month to the last, the aggregate enhancement of the gross value of the three great crops was roughly $442,000,000, to a total of $2,473,800,000.

The increase for the 1,203,000,000 bushels of wheat (new crop and carry-over) was almost $150,000,000; that for the 2,703,000,000 bushels of corn was $135,000,000; while the increment for the cotton crop and carry-over amounting to 22,984,000 bales was $158,590,000. The wheat quotation jumped 30 per cent in three weeks, cotton gained 26 per cent, and corn 15 per cent. Despite these advances the prices remain very low.

It is interesting to note that the low point in the epoch-making fall of prices was touched in early October, just before President Hoover's credit bank plan was announced. On that day wheat got to 44 5-8 cents a bushel. By October 27, it was back to 57 cents. Corn reached an extreme low of 32 cents, recovering to 37 cents by Oct. 27. Many reasons have been advanced for the gains. Recovering confidence was the chief cause. In addition, for wheat there has been a reduction of 4 1-2 per cent in the 1931 world yield from 1930, larger exports and smaller movement from the farms. For cotton, there is heavier consumption, as well as crop financing plans. Will the October trend continue? Fundamental factors would seem to be favorable to at least some measure of continuing stability.

YOUR CHILDREN by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The Walk to School A Valuable Bid for Health Don't Let Children Miss It

Are your children getting enough exercise since school started?

Perhaps they are as the days are still warm enough and long enough for them to be out of doors after hours. The leaves, however, are falling, and there are cool dark days and rainy days to punctuate the fine ones. As the season advances the sunny days will be at premium and when that occurs what are you going to do?

In the Old Days

If the children have a long walk to school this partially takes care of the fresh air problem, but nowadays very few of them have very far to go. If a schoolhouse is more than five blocks away, about half the time their either take a street car or a bus or the family motor is commandeered to get them there and home again. In the old days when children had to make their own paths through a foot of fresh snow to the country schoolhouse a mile or two away, children were healthier and stronger without a doubt. We have gotten so far away from that time that children who hear about it now think we are exaggerating. "Gee, if I had to walk two miles I'd never go to school!" But those other children went, and there were no compulsory education laws then either.

However, the children of today are not altogether to blame. "It is the times." No one walks anywhere any more and we are losing our health and constitutions faster than science can think up things to keep us alive.

They Needn't Rush

I should make the children walk. No, not rush—that's different. They should leave home early enough in the morning to be able to walk to school without running and unless the schoolhouse is a prohibitive distance away, or the weather unusually cold or stormy, they should walk it four times a day. There ought to be enough time at noon for the double trip, including time for a well-chewed lunch.

If children have to go on a street car on account of distance, have them walk a few blocks and then board the car. Dress them according to the weather. Overshoes, raincoat, and rain hats are splendid investments, and make the boys wear them, too, on very wet or very slushy days. Rain won't hurt them if the are exercising and are warm and dry underneath. Unless a child is ill, or weak, or very tired, or unless the weather is absolutely impossible, I should see to it that Shanks' Mare didn't get string halt from disuse. That long walk to and from school gets the blood to going and counteracts the unnatural stillness of lesson hours.

Suet Pudding Is Inexpensive Dessert, Miss Derryberry

What to have for dessert when the food allowance is closely budgeted is answered in part by Miss Genavieve Derryberry in her suggestion to serve the typical British dish, steamed suet pudding. Or that great American standby, the apple, which is so cheap this year.

Dried fruits, especially prunes or apricots, are likewise inexpensive. Bread puddings, rice puddings and simple cakes are all economical and filling.

These are the recipes Miss Derryberry suggests:

Apple and Date Roly-Poly 3 medium-sized apples 1 cup stoned dates 2 cups flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 3/4 teaspoon baking powder 1 cup chopped suet About 1/2 cup water. Pare and core the apples, and chop with the dates. Sift together the flour, salt, and baking powder and rub in the chopped suet, using the finger tips. Add enough water to make a stiff dough and roll out to a sheet about 1/4 of an inch thick. Cover with the fruit, leaving an inch margin. Dampen the edges and roll like a jelly-roll. Sew up the pudding in a cheese cloth bag, allowing room for swelling. Steam 2 hours. Serve hot with a lemon sauce.

Lemon Pudding 1 cup flour 1/2 cup sugar 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder 1/2 tsp. salt 3 cups fine dry bread crumbs 1 1/4 cups chopped suet 1 egg 3/4 cup milk 2 tsp. lemon juice Grated rind of 2 lemons Sift the dry ingredients. Add the bread crumbs and chopped suet, and mix thoroughly, using the finger tips. Stir in the beaten egg and the milk, add the lemon juice and rind. Put the mixture into a well greased mold, cover, and steam for 3 hours. Serve hot with clear lemon sauce.

Lemon Sauce 2 tsp. cornstarch 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 tsp. salt 1 or 2 tablespoons lemon juice 2 cups water 1 tsp. butter Grated lemon rind. Mix the cornstarch, sugar, and salt thoroughly. Add the lemon juice and water, and grated lemon rind and cook over direct heat until thickened. Cover and continue the cooking over hot water for 15 to 20 minutes. Stir in the butter. Serve hot.

At one of the largest pheasant farms in England, on the borders of Sussex and Hampshire, 500 hen pheasants are kept in captivity and at least 150,000 eggs are sold every year.

Procession of Flowers

Albin F. Schneider

Each color of the rainbow, And many more it seems, In gallant sequence passes, And every petal beams Its utmost radiant glory As far as I can see, On either side of this highway— And all for you and me.

Their brilliant splashes startle, So lavishly displayed, So vivid, so alluring, So properly arrayed.

What message do they broadcast, What secrets do they share; These flowers of the wayside In clusters everywhere?

Do you their song interpret In terms of tenderness; Accept their contribution Of simple happiness

As something to be grateful To get, when care and strife Have dimmed your normal vision Of brighter things in life?

Or does some baser instinct Revolt and make you feel You should resent this affront, This subtle sense appeal, As something your completeness, Not having thought about As being of importance, Can get along without?

Then they won't long annoy you Or your attention seize, For soon the blasts of winter, Will come along and freeze, To grayness all this splendor, While plans to march are made, For next year's generation, In flamboyant parade.

MIDLAND HAMMERS OUT 10-6 WIN OVER BIG AND BOLD BADGERS

PLACEMENT GOAL KICKED IN SECOND AND TOUCHDOWN IN THIRD PERIOD; McCAMEY LEADS 6-3 AT THE MIDDLE

In a desperate game that found both teams fighting every inch of the way to keep out of the cellar of District 4, Midland defeated McCamey Armistice day, 10-6. The scoring was the first done by either team against district competition this year.

Midland went into the lead in the second period when Sherrod planted his toe against the ball for a beautiful placement goal. McCamey came back in the same period for a touchdown. Colby crossed the goal line, but the added point failed when Midland players swarmed the McCamey ball toter.

Captain Loyd Burris scored a touchdown in the third period and Hallman rammed over for the added point. From there on the clubs fought back and forth across the field, with both threatening at times but neither being able to cross the other's line.

The game was every bit as exciting as the Austin Hi-Midland game. The first period was played as in the other game, without a time out. Midland roundly outplayed the invaders in this period, sweeping from deep in its own territory to the McCamey one-yard line. A penalty set the club back 15 yards and the chance to score was lost.

The tables were turned for most of the second period. After Midland backs found they could not gain through the McCamey line for enough yardage to give a first down, Sherrod sent his placement kick over the cross bar. Then McCamey got started in a beautiful display of running strength. Colby received the Midland kickoff and returned it 44 yards to his 49-yard line. Menefree jarred his way around end for 21 yards; to the Midland 30. But McCamey was momentarily held as a pass failed on the 22-yard line on fourth down. Midland tried to pass with its back to the goal and Robbins intercepted it and ran it back to the Midland 20-yard line. Colby, Menefree and Carl plunged to the Midland one-yard line, made it first down, but could not plunge two inches in four downs. Carl, Colby and Menefree brought the ball back in a series of heavy plunges to the Midland 29, after Sherrod had punted to his 45. Carl, on a hidden-ball play, went around right end for 28 yards, to the Midland one-yard line. Midkiff threw him out of bounds there. Colby plunged over for the counter, wading through interference of McCamey's big guard, Barnett.

Midland scored its touchdown when Midland started a drive after Colby punted out on the 50 in the third. A pass with Hallman on the receiving end gained to the McCamey 16-yard line. Hallman picked up two yards over left tackle. Midkiff faked off eight yards. Midkiff made half the remaining six yards on a long end run. Burris knifed his way for the marker, and Hallman faked, then plunged across for the added point.

The last quarter was a see-saw affair with first one team then the other having the advantage. The first-quarter fight had not diminished in the last quarter and the game was every bit as thrilling as during the first few minutes. Midland (10) Pos. McCamey (6) McCall Leech

KICKERS PLAY BIG PART THIS YEAR IN GAME

By CLARE BURCKY
NEA Service Sports Writer
CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Knieke Rocker casually commented a few years ago that kicking had sunk so low that it constituted hardly 25 per cent of the average team's offense. But it's a different story now.

The countryside from Maine to the Gulf to the Pacific slopes to the Dominion is dotted with good kickers—punters, placement booters and dropkickers. Every sector boasts a dozen or more guys with the ability to set the ball down inside an opponent's 10-yard stripe and have it hop out of bounds. And the returns from the field goal department certainly indicate that games can be won by more ways than running up touchdowns.

Hewitt Is Able Booter
In the east, the names of five remarkable punters stand out. They are McNamara of New York U, Wood of Harvard, Hewitt of Columbia, Morton of Dartmouth and Ferraro of Cornell. Wood and Hewitt also have uncanny dropkicking ability. The latter won two games last year solely by the field goal route. He also has a 33-yard dropkick to his credit this season. And Morton counted twice by placement kicks against Yale, giving Dartmouth a tie in the game with Yale.

Other good punters along the eastern front are Booth and Parker of Yale. Murphy of Fordham, Fields of Army, Fishel of Syracuse, Armstrong of Carnegie Tech, and Grossman of Rutgers. Smith of Penn. Flack of New Hampshire, Wilson of W. and J., Gerstensein of C. C. N. Y., and several others have recorded field goals this season, some of them game winners.

Olson's Long Punt
Most of the midwestern kicking talent that pushes an opponent back in the shadow of his goal posts is concentrated in the toes of Marchmont Schwartz of Notre Dame, Clarence Munn of Minnesota and Olie Olson of Northwestern. These three are at least the equal of any other trio in the country. Of this group, Olson is the only field goal booter. His 34-yard dropkick against Ohio State is the second longest of the current season.

There are several more fine kickers in the Mississippi Valley region. Berry of Illinois, Monnett of Michigan State, Weller of Haskell, Cramer of Ohio State and others are excellent punters.

Carl Zeyher, quarterback of little Muskingum college's unbeaten eleven, booted three field goals in one game, which stands as the season's highest mark. Henry Cronkite, Indian back on Bo McMillan's Kansas State team, made the season's longest field goal, a 45-yarder against West Virginia. Others to break in with scores from the field were Masterson of Nebraska, Worthington of Creighton, Parsaca of Detroit and Monnett of Michigan State.

In real punting ability, the south and southwest sectors are getting sensational results from Felts of Tulane, Chandler of Georgia, Hitchcock of Auburn, Cain of Alabama, Kov of Texas, Wallace of Rice and Mason of Southern Methodist. Cain and Chandler deserve to be ranked with the great kickers of the past.

rod punted out on the McCamey 45. Baldwin went in for Smalley. Carl passed to Menefree on the Midland 46, where he was downed by Midkiff. With 5 seconds to go, McCall went behind the line to down Carl for a five yard loss. The game ended as Colby fumbled on a backward pass. Score Midland 10, McCamey 6.

Romance Not Out of Papers

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12.—Maybe romance has departed entirely from the newspaper business. Maybe the happenings are treated in a soulless way these days.

Maybe it's just an exception to prove the rule; perhaps it's a refutation of the popular belief—anyway the story of a lovers' quarrel back in New York and its happy ending in San Francisco has a newspaper background.

RAISING HOPES
DUBLIN.—Heretofore women dominated the population of the Irish Free State, but the recent census shows that there are 1,909,000 males and 1,452,000 females. Sociological students look for an increase in the marriage rate as a result of this change in the population tide. At present the Free State is said to have the lowest marriage rate in the world.

Miss Louise Hunter, 22, pretty blonde Carolina heiress, and Murray Salzman, young New York broker, were engaged. Business called Salzman out of New York. Upon his return, he found a letter: "I received your letter and I could not believe my eyes," it read. "You once said you hoped I would be as miserable as you were at one time. Be assured that your hopes have been realized a thousand-fold."

"I am leaving. Just want to get away where I don't know a soul who can hurt me."

These two regions also have been active in the revival of the field goal as a means of gridiron success. Both Boswell of Texas Christian and Blanton of Texas won games this fall via the field goal route. Other field goal kickers in Dixie were Jeffries of Sewanee and Lynch of Mt. St. Mary's.

No Kicker Shortage
They don't go in for field goals on a large scale west of the Rocky Mountains, but once in a while they kick one, and it's a long one. Lyle Maskell's 48-yard placement kick gave Washington State a victory over Washington last year. And this season field goals have been recorded by Dickerson of Colorado Western State, Stenzel of Colorado and Bischoff of Utah.

Pop Warner and Howard Jones believe in hanging on to the ball as long as possible, but when they let it go, they usually have a sterling punter to give it a ride. The Stanford booter this season is Phil Moffatt, little triple-threat star. The one kicker of the Trojan eleven is Gaius (Gus) Shaver, a reformed fullback now cavorting at quarterback.

Other fine punters on the coast are Brovelli of St. Mary's, Hufford of Washington and Gee of Oregon. It was the latter's kicking that held off New York U's belated efforts to avert defeat at the hands of Dr. Spens' westerners.

CLASSY WEDDING
LONDON.—Coal wharf workmates of Walter Staples had often seen pictures of society weddings in which the bride and groom entered and left the church under an arch of swords. They decided Walter should have just as classy a wedding when he married Gertrude Wade. At the ceremony bride and groom marched under an archway of picks and shovels.

Salzman had driven aimlessly all night. Early next day he bought a copy of the San Francisco News which told of the reappearance of Miss Hunter.

And right into the midst of a harried bunch of reporters seeking him, rushed Salzman. "Where is she?" he shouted. So the News reporters took Salzman to Miss Hunter.

The couple rushed into each other's arms, wildly happy. A few minutes time was ample to allow the reunited ones to make full explanations and absolve each other of blame.

The News reporters were first to be told that they'll soon be married.

Maybe romance is dead in newspaperdom—but the old sense of human interest appeal seems to cling, somehow.

In Harvard's March to Victory Over Dartmouth

Jack Crickard, hard-running Harvard back, made much of the Crimson's impressive total of yardage in the game with Dartmouth, and here you see a flash of typical action, with Crickard, near the left, carrying the ball for a substantial gain. Despite Harvard's superiority in the line plunging and first downs, it was able to win, 7-6, only by a grand coup late in the last quarter.

Scouting

By CLAUDE O. CRANE

Scouts take this oath to learn this law, and keep it. The gist of all we have been saying in these articles and all we will say is contained in what a boy scout does. All that the scout does hinges back into this oath that he takes and the law he pledges to obey.

Seven hundred boys in our council are scouts. Every one of these boys has taken the scout oath and is living under the scout law. When you have read it you will be in a position to judge what the moral effect in Midland is of the boys who are in this movement. Here it is. As a scout, the boy willingly adopts as real and vital the universally accepted principles of life set forth in the scout oath and law.

The Scout Oath

On my honor I will do my best

1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the scout law;

2. To help other people at all times;

3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

The Scout Law

1. A Scout is Trustworthy. A scout's honor is to be trusted. If he were to violate his honor by telling a lie, or by cheating, or by not doing exactly a given task when trusted in his honor, he may be directed to hand over his scout badge.

2. A Scout is Loyal. He is loyal to all to whom loyalty is due; his scout leader, his home, his parents and his country.

3. A Scout is Helpful. He must be prepared at any and all times to save lives, help injured people and share the home duties. He must do at least one good turn for somebody each day.

4. A Scout is Friendly. He is a friend to all and a brother to every other scout.

5. A Scout is Courteous. He is polite to all, especially to women, children, old people and the weak and helpless. He must not take pay for being helpful or courteous.

6. A Scout is Kind. He is a friend to animals, he will not kill or hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to save and protect harmless life.

7. A Scout is Obedient. He obeys his parents, scoutmaster, patrol leader and all other duly commissioned authorities.

8. A Scout is Cheerful. He smiles whenever he can. His obedience to orders is prompt and cheerful.

9. A Scout is Thrifty. He does not wantonly destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need and helpful to worthy objects. He may work for pay but cannot accept tips for courtesies or good turns.

10. A Scout is Brave. He has the courage to face danger in spite of fear, and to stand up for right against the coaxings of friends or the jeers or threats of enemies and defeat does not down him.

11. A Scout is Clean. He keeps clean in body and in thought, stands for clean speech, clean sports, clean habits and travels with a clean crowd.

12. A Scout is Reverent. He is reverent toward God. He is faithful to his religious duties and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion.

Perfection Stressed

In Ritz Picture

The artistic and mechanical perfection of "The Road to Singapore," the Warner Bros. production starring William Powell is coming to the Ritz theatre tomorrow.

Before the story was bought from the celebrated British novelist and playwright, Roland Pertwee, the producers had decided that William Powell was the one man to portray the strangely original character of Hugh Dawlry, whose suave magnetism causes the English woman in Ceylon to forget convention. Mr. Powell was under contract to another company at that time. Filming was not begun until the star was free.

The same was true of the lovely Doris Kenyon, who was busy at the time in another picture. Louis Calhern, who plays a prominent part, had to await the end of the run of the Broadway play in which he was featured. Story, cast, settings of tropical beauty and weirdness, add to the gratifying completeness of the darkly glamorous "Road to Singapore."

Cats exist in most Japanese towns in a proportion of 80 to every 100 houses with the results that rats are very scarce.

Fordham's Undefeated Team in Action

A hard-fighting eleven from the University of Detroit was trying desperately to mar the undefeated record of Fordham, in New York, during the period in which this picture was taken. Here you see Murphy, Fordham back, clipping off several yards while his powerful interference scattered Detroit tacklers. Fordham at first was battled to a standstill, but turned the second half into a rout and won by a score of 39-9.

will bring to those maimed and crippled souls still among us peace and contentment; and consolation to those who have lost their dear ones.

The Armistice was signed in 1918, thirteen years ago and, yet, chaos is still everywhere. In almost every foreign country, as well as in our own, do we find human suffering, termed by many as an indirect result of the war.

In spite of international conferences, leagues and treaties, we hear the rumble of war in Manchuria. Japan alarms the world by its military activities against China; already many lives are lost in action, and, yet, no declaration of war is made.

But today we are more concerned with our own country and its problems which are many, and complicated. We have much needless suffering among our own. Many thousands of our people are unemployed and without the actual necessities of life.

Men, women and children are actually waiting for food and something to cover their bodies; something to keep the bitter, relentless chill of winter away. Strong, honest men are sitting idle, through no fault of theirs, with their wives and helpless babies crying for want.

And, at the same time, throughout this broad, rich country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, there is stored vast supplies of every known commodity so badly needed, but needed by those who cannot pay, and, as a result, cannot have.

With such a condition confronting us, our work of unselfishness during the war is not enough. Now, more than ever, must we look to you men of service for further help.

You who were leaders in the past, must again lead, and those who were followers, must again follow. It is not, and cannot be a problem of politics; its seriousness is such that politics, with all its petty, hypocritical, self-advancing phrases, must be eliminated.

Greedy, and the advancement of a few at the expense of many must stop. God gave this great country and its blessings to many; it must not be denied them.

There can be no doubt that our country is the greatest that exists today. There is none to compare with it, and I pray none ever will.

It, today, leads the world and it must continue to do so. We who are granted every privilege that education, culture, clear thinking and clean living can give, must do that which is necessary for such maintenance.

You, who have already done so much, you who so willingly stood by your flag for a principle, right or wrong, must again unite for action, but without the horrible torturing implement of war.

You are the ones to get behind and make successful such things as the Red Cross now starting its annual drive for funds to help the needy--aid in your community welfare work so that your neighbors shall not want--Back with your full support, the great American legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, which without such cannot successfully carry on.

In countless ways can you so act as to bring the existing chaotic condition to end--but that action must be through sacrifice of time and energy which you so unstintingly gave in the past--And let them only that can remedy, criticize the action of those who are doing.

Carry on as you know to carry on; keep the faith as know the faith, and may peace, happiness and contentment come to all our people and may it rest with throughout the generation. And may we never waiver, nor be ungrateful of the privilege granted us, to be of, and living with the people who make up this glorious U. S. of America.

out the south, increased in value at the rate of $1,500,000 per day during that period, or by $47,000,000 in all.

Another business stimulant resulting from the rise in the price of cotton is the stronger position of southern banks, many of which faced difficulties when cotton hit the record low on Oct. 5. Loans on cotton which seemed precarious then were placed in much better shape, both because of the rise in price and the increase in expected production. If the rise in price continues, much paper considered doubtful a few weeks ago will become prime.

Another remarkable factor regarding the big 1931 crop is that it was raised on decreased acreage without commercial fertilizer.

Millions of acres formerly devoted to cotton were planted in foodstuffs this year. Therefore, many plantations accustomed to buying large quantities of foodstuffs will have no such bills to meet this winter.

From a food standpoint, southern cotton growers will come closer to being self-supporting this winter than they have been since the close of the Civil war ended the blockade of southern ports in 1865. Still another important result of the rise in cotton prices will be a more favorable balance of trade between the United States and Europe.

Cotton is still one of the nation's most important and valuable exports and the higher the price, the greater effect cotton will have on gold exports and imports. For example, cotton exported to England alone in 1929 was valued at $367,796,000 which aided materially in giving the United States a favorable trade balance.
