ARMISTICE AND PEACE

Armistice Day should have new meaning this year. In a few months a disarmament conference will be held. An attempt will be made to do away with the implements of war. The day which we commemorate as the one which brought peace should mark the beginning of a campaign for standards which will make the machinery of war unnecessary in the relationship of nations.

Thirteen Armistice Day parades have swung down the road since word echoed around the world that peace had come. Thirteen times men have paraded to triumphant music.

There has always been a thrill to marching men, ever since the first knights went forth, steel clad, to seek the Grail. Small boys instinctively parade to the sound of a round red drum and little tin horn. There is an innate martial rhythm in man that makes him join ranks.

But war itself is a bitter reality. The heraldry that precedes it is nothing more than a dazzling flash in the pan.

Broken ranks, mute reminders of half-remembered battles, show that. Slim green beds in other lands, too far away for flower tributes, are added testimony. The dream-scoured hearts of the men who came home aren't always pleasant places. Battle fires leave scars sometimes, that 13 years are slow to heal.

An army on parade is a glamorous thing. An army in action is a tragedy. The brave gleam of the passing helmets doesn't lead to a playground.

The bravery which the soldiers displayed in battles, half-lost under the tangled weeds of 13 years, isn't forgotten. It made a tremendous impression on civilization. Because the suffering that went with it has dragged its scar across the years is added reason that the time for the abolition of war, so far as is possible, is at hand.

World leaders aren't seeking a millennium. They aren't pleading for piety—just workable principles of carrying on the game.

Men should march. They keep step better when they swing down the way. But they should not have to march to battle. Nor should they be called upon to surrender their common heritage. . . . lamplight at dusk, firelight on the floor, rain on the roof, children's voices. . . .

The fragment of a marching army should be a plea for universal disarmament.

MacDONALD'S COURAGE

There is one angle to the recent British election that has not quite received the attention it deserves.

Some time before the election, Premier Ramsay MacDonald was called on to choose between his personal ambition and his desire to serve his country. He chose the latter alternative, broke with Labor Party leaders, and formed a species of coalition government. At the time, he realized that this might mean a complete wreck for his own career.

But in the election Mr. MacDonald scored a great victory. The voters appreciated his unselfish daring, and told him so with ballots.

There is some sort of lesson in that for politicians on this side of the water. Might not the United States equally reward a leader who was consistently ready to serve the country without stopping to think about what it might cost him?

NEW BUSINESS ERA

American industrial leaders, according to current economic forecasts, are going to face an entirely different sort of problem during the next decade than they have faced in the past.

For the past quarter-century domestic markets have been expanding at an amazingly rapid rate. Now, however, with immigration cut down, the birth rate lower and the development of the country largely accomplished, they will expand at a much slower rate. As one economist recently pointed out:

"The task of industry is going to be one of organization and correlation rather than one of limitless expansion."

Washington Letter

Hoover's Squabble With the Navy Is Really Over Question of Parity with Britain.

WASHINGTON.—President Hoover's war with the navy league is really only a by-product of a battle of statistics over the question of getting our navy on a basis of treaty parity with Great Britain.

Willis Howard Gardner's pamphlet, although it contained certain nasty flings to which Hoover took violent exception, was primarily an analysis designed to prove in figures that this country was being let in for naval inferiority to Great Britain which would be made worse by the proposed one-year naval holiday.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and the peace societies have been hurling other statistics and interpretations into the ring, and the factual bases for the various points in view are summarized herewith because they may be of interest as developments wax warmer.

The navy league says:

The United States has only 69 per cent of her treaty quota naval tonnage built or building, whereas Great Britain has 88.3 per cent and Japan 102 per cent. This applies not to capital ships but to aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines. It makes the present American-British-Japanese ratio of naval tonnage 3.8-5-3.8, with the Japanese built or building tonnage during 1932 would widen the gap and, placing American naval tonnage at a par of 10, give Britain and Japan comparative ratios of 17.1 and 13.4 respectively. Such a year, taking into account the naval treaty program which runs through 1936, would result in a gain of 15.5 per cent for the British fleet, 19.6 per cent for the Japanese fleet and no gain at all for the American fleet.

Peace societies, as in the case of the National Council for Prevention of War of which Frederick J. Libby is executive secretary, merely argue that:

We are now building 87,000 tons as compared with 72,000 being built by Great Britain. England is spending $20,000,000 a year for new construction and this country $70,000,000. President Hoover has approved of $65,000,000 in construction for next year in the new naval budget. The fact that we are allowed only 175,000 tons of cruisers, destroyers and submarines, as against England's allowance of 219,000 tons shows that our fleet is more up-to-date than the British. Britain can't replace all her cruisers that become over-age, but we are permitted to replace 150,000 tons of destroyers, many of which are as good as new. We spend more money on our navy than does any other nation.

Secretary of the Navy Adams, using still another approach in a reply to the peace societies says:

We spent $375,000,000 on our navy in 1930 and Britain only $350,000,000, but we must pay more for labor, materials and navy personnel and figures for Great Britain do not include expenses for naval forces. Per capita cost of our navy is $2.24 per year as against $6.21 for Great Britain. It costs us more than twice as much to build a ship as it costs in England and five times as much as in Japan.

Meantime congressional advocates of a strong fleet have taken the field in the battle to demand that the American navy be built up to a parity with Great Britain at once.

Representative Fred Britten, the chairman last session of the House naval committee, and Senator David Reed, chairman of the military committee were leading in these demands.

Representative Britten announced that full co-operation of Senator Frederick W. Hale, chairman of the Senate naval committee, and demanded a program of immediate construction of a $122,500,000 program of destroyers, submarines, a flying-deck cruiser, and an aircraft carrier—22 ships in all.

He asked for a $750,000,000 authorization for the navy to build up to the treaty limit.

He Who Gets "Socked"!

"Gen." Coxey Plans to Cure With 25-Cent Bonds

By LEROY A. SIMMS NEA Service Writer

MASSILLON, O.—After 40 years of bitter defeats and apparent frustration, "General" Jacob S. Coxey, has won the chance to show the people of the United States just how his unique ideas of finance and public operation of utilities will work in actual practice.

He has just been elected as Massillon's mayor. "General" Coxey, who won that appellation 37 years ago when his ragged "army of unemployed" made its historic march on Washington, is 77 now, but the smiling energy which made him a national figure in 1894 is still present.

The two principal planks in the platform on which he was elected are based on ideas which he had preached in vain for 40 years. They are:

- 1. Issuance of non-interest bearing bonds in denominations of from 25 cents up to pay for public improvements, these bonds being cleared through the city treasury and used to pay city labor, thus acting as money in the community. 2. Public ownership and operation of utilities to keep "Massillon money at home instead of in Wall Street."

Wins, Two to One "General" Coxey made his campaign fight on these issues and defeated his closest opponent by a margin of almost two to one. His official "campaign car" was an old horse-drawn coach, driven by a negro coachman. President McKinley and James G. Blaine have ridden in the coach, the general proudly explains.

One of the "general's" principal campaign weapons was a bottle of muddy water which he showed at meetings to illustrate his fiery declaration that "Massillon sent $99,000 to Wall Street so the bankers could drink their cocktails while all we had left to drink was muddy water!"

His battle against the utilities was focused on the waterworks concern whose franchise expires on Jan. 31, 1932, a month after Coxey takes office.

Assails Wall Street "We have been paying water rates based on a valuation for the waterworks of $1,274,000, while the tax assessment of the waterworks is only $714,000," he says.

"We are paying an annual tribute to Wall street of almost $100,000. The city of Massillon can buy this water plant at its assessed valuation, pay for it with bonds bearing interest at only one-tenth of one per cent per year, and pay for the plant out of income in less than 25 years.

"Non-interest bearing bonds," as Coxey describes his proposed one-tenth of one per cent issue, would become, in effect, currency for Massillon. He proposed to use these bonds to pay for all public improvements and to make them redeemable for all city debts. The city treasurer would redeem the bonds with cash when they fell into the hands of outsiders and use them again to pay city labor.

"25 and 50-Cent Bonds" These bonds would be issued in denominations of 25 cents, 50 cents, $1, $5, $10 and $100. Coxey estimates that a $200,000 issue of his non-interest bearing bonds would pay $2,000,000 per month in bills in Massillon. As for power and gas, Coxey hopes to have his city act as distributor only, thus saving the great expense of building its own plant and pipe lines. The rate the municipality would pay would be fixed by Ohio's rate governing body, and the commodities would be retailed by the city, wages being paid in non-interest bearing bonds. "Massillon's unemployed will be given jobs by these projects," he says. "Its citizens will have more money with which to pay their bills and its merchants will thus have money to pay notes which are now listed as frozen assets at the banks. "Banks will then have money to extend credit and the community will be rid of this depression, which was brought on by the Wall street-planned collapse of bank credits."

The same principle can be applied in every state and community in the nation to bring about gradual return of prosperity. "General" Coxey believes.

For Soldier Bonus Now For immediate relief, Coxey advocates payment at once of the remainder of the soldiers' bonus, a sum approximating $3,400,000,000.

"All that is necessary for the government to pay this bonus is to print that amount of money and issue it to the ex-soldiers," he says. "These notes can be made legal tender and can be redeemed by the government at the rate of four per cent per year, to retire them all by 1956.

"Congress should also authorize the government to issue money for state, county and municipal governments to be secured by non-interest bearing bonds. These bonds would be issued to redeem interest bearing bonds now outstanding and to provide further public improvements."

In case Congress fails to act on Coxey's idea, he believes the communities themselves should take matters into their own hands and issue such bonds.

"Under my plan, unemployment would soon be a thing of the past and the nation would begin enjoying the prosperity it is capable of creating," Coxey says.

BRUSSELS TO CONGO

BRUSSELS.—Arrangements have been completed for the Brussels-Belgian Congo air route, one of the longest in the world. The line is to pass through Paris, Algeria, the Sahara Desert, and French Equatorial Africa. It is hoped to start freight services next spring and follow with passenger service a few months later. The route will have ten regular and 51 emergency landing fields.

The Town Quack

A lot of people are dropping in at our office to inquire about Armistice day races. Up until this morning there seems to be no definite information, but here is a private tip. If you want to be sure and not miss anything, be out at Cowboy park Wednesday morning about 10 o'clock. I don't say there will be any races, but I predict that if there are any you will get in on them by being out there not later than ten Armistice morning. These kind of races you don't hear much about in advance are the kind I don't want to miss.

Have you received a chain letter recently? If so, I hope you haven't torn it up or thrown it in the waste basket. Look what happened to Addison Wadley. He and a group of Midland men got chain letters, I heard they were from Doc Carter up in Nevada, and Wadley promptly threw his in the trash rather than to copy it nine times and send it on to nine of his friends. He disregarded what was said about "bad luck if you break the chain." Saturday night his new Buick sedan was swiped.

Things are looking up around Midland. Do you remember back in 1929 when cotton was less than 10c and bringing now, oil was way down, had been down to a dime, wheat was two bits and everything else going to the bow-wows? It looks a lot better now with cotton and cotton seed taking a few slight jumps, oil back to four bits, wheat better and other commodities looking up. And another thing, these farmers are a lot better off than some of the town people that have

Baptists Convene At Waco Nov. 11-13

WACO, Tex., Nov. 10 (UP)—Representing 500,000 Baptist in 3,100 churches throughout the state, the Baptist general convention of Texas will convene here Nov. 11, 12 and 13. The program of Southern Baptists on home and foreign fields, the help given 75 struggling churches by Texas Baptists, and the work of missionaries among 150,000 foreigners within the nation's borders, will be discussed by various speakers. Sessions will be held in Waco hall, this city's gift to Baylor university. Dr. Millard A. Jenkins, Abilene, will deliver the convention sermon on the first morning of the convention. Dr. John L. Whorton, Bryan, has been designated Dr. Jenkins' alternate.

Three memorial services feature the convention program this year. Shortly after the meeting is called to order Wednesday morning, convention routine will be halted as delegates pay tribute to the late Dr. Samuel Palmer Brooks, former president of Baylor university. A half-hour service has also been planned in memory of Dr. J. M. Carroll, of San Antonio, and Fort Worth, and of Dr. D. I. Smyth, Fort Arthur, and Grandview. On the final evening of the convention, memorial tributes will be paid Dr. Forrest Smith, late of Fort Worth, and Dr. W. Eugene Salles, a native Texan who spent 25 years of his life in mission service in China.

Speaker to Tell Subscribers Time

ROME, Nov. 10. (UP)—Some months ago the local telephone company offered its subscribers a gratuitous service, giving them the correct time at any hour of the day or night by simply ringing up the exchange. The service has since grown to such an extent that in the large cities some 15,000 calls a day are being made by subscribers, to learn the right time.

As this means a considerable phone load, the telephone company has decided to install an automatic system whereby a loud speaker functioning with magnetic registration will repeat to all inquirers.

Rijnhart Circle Starts Bible Study And Welfare Work

A business meeting of the Rijnhart circle was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bill Van Huss, 607 North Pecos. The meeting being the first since last spring, various plans were made. Mrs. H. H. Meeks, president, presided and the Rev. Howard Peters gave the opening prayer. Decision was made to hold Bible study the first 30 minutes of each weekly meeting, the remainder of the time to be spent sewing for needy school children. An investigating committee, composed of Mrs. S. P. Hall, Mrs. E. A. Hoffman and Mrs. H. C. Adams, was appointed by the president. Any woman interested in Bible study or welfare work is invited to the meeting next Monday at the home of Mrs. E. A. Hoffman at 2:30. Those attending yesterday were the Rev. and Mrs. Peters, Misses G. W. Brennan, S. P. Hall, Carl Reeves, Hoffman, Meeks, Adams and Van Huss.

Circle A Holds Meeting at Fasken Home

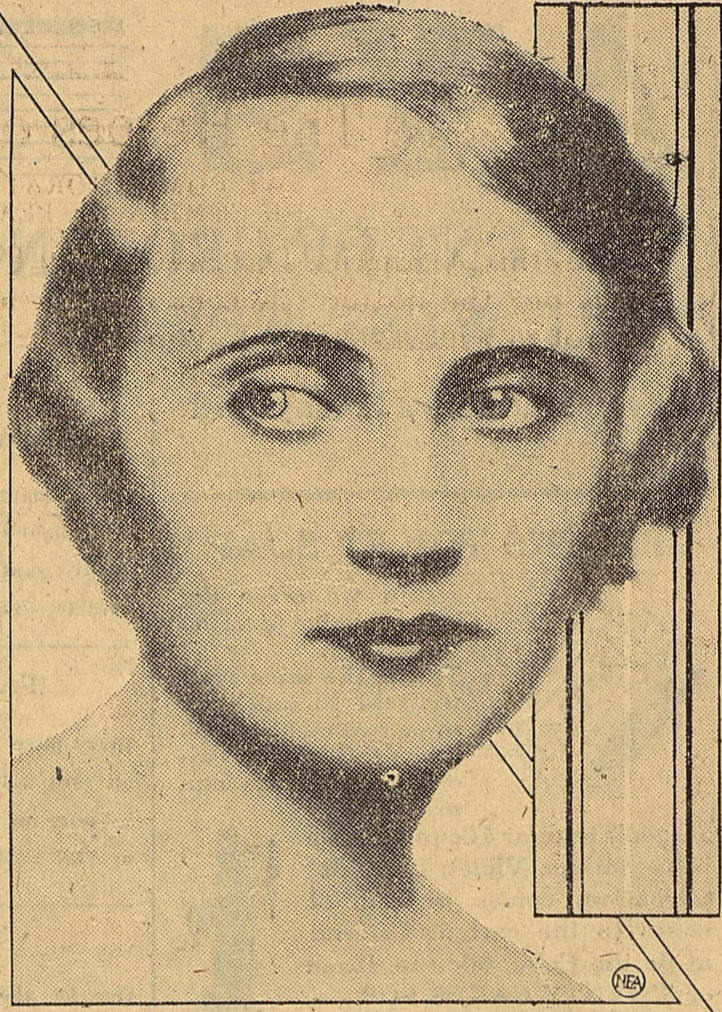

Mrs. Andrew Fasken and Mrs. Charles McClintic were hostesses to members of Circle A of the Presbyterian auxiliary at the Fasken home Monday afternoon. Mrs. R. C. Crabb acted as chairman in the absence of Mrs. F. E. Cragin, when various business discussions were heard. The program was in charge of Mrs. McClintic. An inspiring paper on "Prayer" and a beautiful poem were read by Mrs. J. M. DeArmond. A question box dealing with the finances of the church was conducted by Mrs. McClintic. Mrs. W. J. Coleman, wife of the new church pastor, was a welcomed guest at the meeting. Mr. Coleman called during the social hour. The hostesses served party refreshments at the close of the program.

Paris Styles

By MARY KNIGHT. PARIS, Nov. 10. (UP)—The only time you have a legitimate right to be fussy this season is in seeing to it that your wardrobe is indelibly marked by a lack of fussiness. Insist on it even if you have to throw it on the floor during the first fittings! The rest will be easy because you will have convinced your public as well as your private seamstress that you are au courant of the Paris manner. Ruffle yourself up if you like—moderately, big sleeve your elbows, or your shoulders, tuck your tail—lean simply but chic, and bask yourself in quaint, picturesque fashion—but do it, as we've said before and shall likely say again, by the far more convincing power of suggestion than by the disillusioning reality of too much excess clothes baggage.

Methodist Women Observe Week of Prayer With Program

Twenty-seven women of the Methodist auxiliary attended the program, which was observance of the week of prayer, at the church Monday afternoon. The opening hymn was "Sweet Hour of Prayer", followed with devotional readings by Mrs. T. S. Nettleton, leader. The "Story of an Apostle of Love" was given by Mrs. J. P. Collins. Mrs. B. T. Smith sang a solo, "O Love that Will Not Let Me Go." A story of the life of Belle Bennett was told by Mrs. J. M. Prothro. Mrs. S. R. Preston discussed "Our Spofford Home," and Mrs. Helt Jowell's paper was "Cracked Walls." A short business session followed and the announcement of the social meeting next Monday at the home of Mrs. Fred Wemple was made. The closing prayer was delivered by Mrs. T. W. Long.

Program of Home Missions Given at Circle B Meeting

Circle B of the Presbyterian auxiliary met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. G. Gossett with 14 members present. Mrs. Arthur Stout was leader of the program on the subject, "The Place of Prayer in Home Missions." She was assisted by Mrs. Joe Seymour and Mrs. A. Harry Anderson. It was voted by the circle to spend Nov. 19 with Mrs. A. Harry Anderson and work on a quilt which will be on sale at the bazaar of the auxiliary the first week in December. The circle expressed its appreciation to everyone who helped make the chili dinner given last Saturday a success and especially Mrs. G. H. Butler and her son who donated the use of their building. Mrs. Gossett served delicious refreshments at the tea hour, assisted by Mrs. Seymour.

Helpful Health Suggestions

New Zealand In 1920 the New Zealand government adopted a system of dental clinics for children in the public schools. These clinics are established on application from responsible local organizations which undertake to contribute toward the cost of suitable clinic premises and certain maintenance expenses. The work begins with the primer class. Each year the teeth of all the children in this class are examined, and a form is sent to the parents of each child asking for consent to treatment if treatment is needed. When consent is received the teeth of the child are put in order. The child is reexamined every 6 months thereafter, and further defects are remedied. Thus in five years from the time of the establishment of the clinic in a given school all the children in the primer class and the following four grades are receiving regular and systematic dental treatment. At the present time approximately 60,000 children in 738 schools are being cared for. An important feature of the system is the employment of specially trained women nurses, who received thorough institutional in dental hygiene during a two-year course in the training school at Wellington. —Mother and Child, London.

Let Children Have Their Hobbies Don't Inflict Your Own on Them Give Them Freedom of Thought

We still insist on children riding their bicycles instead of their own. Hobbies, perhaps, is not precisely the right word for it because it is a much more serious affair than that.

Fathers continue to be determined that their sons shall become lawyers, when they want to take up business; mothers are anxious for their daughters to be musicians when they would rather run a photographic studio, or take up nursing or teach.

However, the smaller children concern me most—have watched so many grow up absolute replicas of their parents, small slaves of a cut-and-dried home environment into which they have been fitted re-

The Ship of Life

Albin F. Schneider.

The Mariner, when out at sea, His destination has in mind; In all directions land may be, But one direction he must find:— So star and chart and compass true, Chronometer and sextant, too, Are aids he's chosen thoughtfully,— He's left all guesswork far behind.

One thought, one goal, one distant port, All means and effort sternly bent, To treat each task of any sort, A contributing element, And confident he's each day

The ship his guidance will obey For hourly picked men report All factors to the prime event.

He does not change his plans at sea, Forget his instruments behind, Impulsive, restless, foolishly, Permit each whim to rule his mind Run out of food and water when Three times he's changed his course and then Bestir his men to mutiny, Else he could not his harbor find.

And so is life. If you and I, Our thoughts do not so mobilize, That in each task we really try, By sheer intent, to realize The part it is of all the whole, A milestone to that distant goal, We've just ourselves to blame, for by Our own neglect we fail to rise.

Regardless of their dispositions or of their ability, that I feel something should be done about it.

A Father's Pride
That is what we always say when we do not know ourselves what remedy to suggest, I do not know because there are several million children in this good country and each and every home presents a different case. But even had I known, in one home that impressed me, it would have done no good. This father prided himself upon his method and foresight. His bigotry blinded him to the fact that he was absolutely standing in the way of his children's success. In every respect according to the outside world, he was a fine parent and a God-and-Constitution-fearing citizen.

But he was high priest in his home, and like the high priests of old believed in absolute obedience and also in retribution. Personal liberty was anathema to him.

The boys in their neighborhood used to take hikes, go camping, had a baseball club and a bicycle club and did all the things that naturally sturdy young chaps usually do. A finer lot of young fellows I never knew.

But this father, not understanding the group spirit, nor caring to, and refusing to recognize the right of his son to have a little independence, demanded that his boy stay at home and practice and study. His brother was a famous virtuoso and his son, named for his uncle, was to follow in his footsteps.

Results of Bigotry
The daughter of the house, a girl of 10 or 11 when I first knew her, was intensely fond of music but not a cent was spent on her because her father insisted that she help her mother and learn to keep house—which was all right, but the child was disciplined ridiculously.

Now that man is dead and the son and daughter are grown and the drabdest of drab nonentities, having gained freedom of thought and action too late to know how to use it.

Jackie Searl Is No "Sissy"

Jackie Searl, who plays "tattle-tales" in motion pictures, may have to take a lot of punishment at the hands of other children, but they take plenty from him.

Jackie doesn't like to be set upon by a gang of kids or by Mitzl Green especially when it means real physical discomfort to him. He has become adept at the art of punishing the punishers.

In Paramount's "Forbidden Adventure," at the Ritz today, only, he is set upon by twenty-five boys his own age.

Jackie decided that the others were too rough, so he fought back with subtle weapons that the camera didn't photograph, his elbows, shoulders, and feet. The boys who were unduly rough were pummeled by Jackie, who is much huskier and stronger than he looks. He asserts he can lick any kid in the world his own age, and it's an affront to his pride to have to take it on the chin so often in motion pictures.

Outlaw's Guns In Spotlight

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Nov. 10. (UP)—Guns used by Jesse James which have caused dissension ever since the famous outlaw's death, are creating trouble again. This time the police have been asked to take a hand in the argument over ownership.

Dr. Ernest Lowrey, Excelsior Springs physician, now has the guns—he got them while he was attending Jesse E. James, the notorious bandit's son, several years ago.

Dr. Lowrey says he was given the guns, weapons of the long barreled, cap-and-ball type, as part payment on a bill for his professional services. He keeps them locked in a safe.

Mrs. Jesse E. James has asked police to see what they can do to return the guns to her. She now lives in Los Angeles.

Hollywood Life Toll Is Heavy

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 10. (UP)—Out of 30 deaths of outstanding Hollywood players in recent years, 17 occurred in the 20's or 30's, according to an article in Picture Play magazine.

Strains and excesses of Hollywood life "burn up" the more emotional stars and the toll is heavy, says the magazine.

One of the chief causes of health breakdowns among the stars is cited as excessive dieting to preserve the slenderness of early youth, that is unnatural in later years.

The following roll of 17 young players in their 20's or 30's, who succumbed to life in the films, is given:

Mabel Normand, Barbara La Marr, Lucille Ricksen, Olive Thomas, Alma Reubens, Jeanne Eagels, Gladys Brockwell, Rudolph Valentino, Robert Harron, Wallace Reid, Harold Lockwood, Fred Thompson, Larry Semon, Arnold Kent, Ted McNamara, Sid Smith, Einar Hansen.

Among men over 40 have been: Earle Williams, George Seigmann, George Baban, Dustin Farnum, William Russell, Louis Wolheim, Milton Sills, Lon Chaney, Frank Keenan, Theodore Roberts, Robert Edeson, Marc McDermott, and Edward Connelly.

Flyer Walks Wing To Extinguish Fire

PUEBLO, Colo., Nov. 10. (UP)—When Jesse Martin, "Lady Redbird" flyer of Pueblo, and her copartner, Jimmy Woods, landed, a scorched wing of their plane brought numerous questions from flying field attendants. Reluctantly, Jessie confessed that while they were in midair, a wad of oil-saturated waste near the cylinders blazed up, and flames crept toward the gasoline tank. Jessie, an expert wing-walker, crawled out of the cockpit, helmet in hand, and beat the flames until they were out, while Jimmy continued pushing the plane on toward their destination.

City Great, But Missed Horses

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 10. (UP)—Electric lights, automobiles, tall buildings, airplanes and talking pictures!

That's what Mrs. Mary Olson, 66, came here to see and tell the neighbors "back home" about.

It was her first visit in 45 years, since she married Harry Olson and went to make a home on Lobster Creek, on Alsea mountain, one of the most remote sections of Oregon.

"I have kept up on all these things," she explained. "I read the newspapers and I know all about them. I am going for a street car ride and see all the lights and go to a talking picture and look at the big buildings with elevators in them."

"But an airplane ride—no! I like the earth. These talking pictures must be wonderful things. I've seen a lot of magic lantern shows, but talking pictures—I must see those before I go back!"

The panorama of modern invention provided endless thrills for Mrs. Olson. Forty-five years in a mountain fastness—without even a radio—gave her only a "faint idea of what to expect in a big city."

Despite all the wonders, there was one thing missing. "I miss the horses on the streets," she sighed. "I haven't seen a horse since I arrived."

ROTOR WING
LOS ANGELES—A rotor attachment for airplane wings to lower the landing speed and increase the lifting power per pound of an airplane, is the invention of Ray Thompson.

The rotor wing is a cylinder which fits inside the conventional wing. It revolves, according to the inventor, in such a manner that the upper side of the cylinder will travel in the direction of the slip stream and the lower side against the direction of travel of the plane. This action, Thompson explains, will increase the vacuum above the wing and thereby cut down the landing speed by increasing the upward pressure beneath the wing.

The inventor believes such a device installed on transport planes will reduce landing speed to 25 miles an hour.

OUTCOME OF BULLDOG-BADGER GAME WILL MEAN EVERYTHING HERE

MIDLAND HOPES TO ANNEX TILT THEN REPEAT AGAINST COLORADO; TICKET SALES ARE NOT FAVORABLE

One more day—and we shall see what we shall see. All of which pushes up to the explanation that Midland, in order to break into the win column in District 4 football, must down Coach Clyde Parks' McCamey Badgers here tomorrow at 2:30 on Lackey field.

The assignment will likely be a difficult one. Although the Parksmen have not won a district game this season, they held the Big Spring Steers for three quarters to three touchdowns, which in itself is granted to be quite a feat—one which was not duplicated by the Bulldogs in their showing against the Bristowmen. However, Midland demonstrated more defensive strength throughout the four chukkers, holding the Steer eleven (forty-some odd men entered in the lineup) to 39 points whereas McCamey emerged with 57 points stacked against the Badger crew.

Midland hopes to win its game tomorrow and to cop that against Hardy Pierce's Colorado Wolves on Nov. 21. With two games stowed under hatches, a reversal at the hands of Sweetwater would not be so disappointing to a club that is spending its first year in Class A.

The Purple and Gold doggies could march in fourth place, (according to the way the race has been doped) with a 400 percentage.

McCamey will outweigh Midland, but the locals have speed to burn. This will be a great advantage in case formations employed the past week click. The Bulldog coaching staff has met with good response of men to tutoring, and the club seems to be on edge. The great showing in the San Angelo game Saturday week is believed to have influenced the sudden interest taken by the team as a unit.

Passes are clicking, running plays look good, blocking and tackling were never better—in short, it looks like Midland tomorrow, by two or three touchdowns.

In the meantime, ticket sales in Midland are not going over so well. McCamey has contracted for more of the pastebords than Midland, a check early this morning showed. The high school was moving every possibility to get added response of the public to the ticket selling campaign.

Determination of "all too many people of Midland to see the Big Spring-Sweetwater game tomorrow" was held as the main obstacle to the campaign. "It cannot be impressed too much that Midland will need the support of all Midland people at the game here," a statement from the high school said.

SPORTS REPORTS

By R. C. HANKINS

It looks like Midland will be the favorite in the Midland-McCamey game tomorrow. That sounds good. It has been a long time since we could write that—in fact we have had only two occasions this season to peek out that information. We had Iraan over for a practice session and thought Austin high was here for the same purpose. But Austin narrowly missed knotting the score with us. Now that we've got a chance to make a kill, why don't you fellows buy the pastebords and take your aunts, kids, mothers and grand dames out to see the game?

Benny Leonard should ask himself the same question and answer it by saying: "I guess I will, at that."

When Luther Coblenz made much pow wow in the El Paso press about what he would do to Bowie's team he must have had a hunch he was right. His team beat the other El Paso high school and now it's up to Austin and the main school to scrap it out for the city championship. As we too well remember here, it was Fullback Johnson who did the main work—and on the starting end of one of those brilliant triple passes that thrilled the big crowd here.

Sweetwater and Big Spring meet tomorrow, but the dirty work has already started. It began Saturday when someone sneaked Marcos Williams's automobile, drove it off to a point between Midland and Stanton and fired a shot into the gas tank. The car was recovered yesterday. Then, wonder if it was Marcos? Someone slipped over to Sweetwater last night and touched a match to the biggest pile of kindling ever stacked for a bon fire in this section of the state. The trash mountain burned to the ground. A giant pep rally was to be held to-night. Frosh had worked all week to build the pile of debris. That football game should be a wow after all that! The Sweetwater citizenship is "in favor of lynching the culprit if he is caught," so reads a dispatch from the Mustang capital.

Bill Braugher said it, so it must be good: Jack Dempsey is fixing himself up for an awful pasting around from some palooka who couldn't pay his way in to see the Mauler box a few years ago.

Odessa Plans a Big November 11

ODESSA, Nov. 10.—A full day celebration, in which all the people of Odessa representing various civic and commercial organizations, will take an active part, will be held here on next Wednesday, Armistice day, according to latest information given out by American legion leaders here.

The program is being sponsored by the local legion boys, but other local organizations have joined in and will take part in the program of the day. The celebration will start with mess call by the legion bugler at 4:45 Wednesday morning, and will end at an old-fashioned dance in the building formerly known as the legion hall.

Although the mess call is at 4:45, the breakfast will probably start around six o'clock, it was stated. It will be held at the side of the flag stand, on Grant avenue, in the heart of town. All legion men and their wives, as well as all who donated to the funds for the celebration, and their wives, are to be guests at the breakfast downtown.

Shortly after the breakfast the local legion boys will start their celebrating, with fireworks and stunts, with the apex of the display an old-time anvil shooting, a sight not viewed often in this country.

The parade of the day is scheduled to start at 9:30 Wednesday morning. It will be led by the five and drum corps of high school girls, recently organized and trained under the sponsorship of the legion. The children of the Odessa public schools will join in the parade, and numerous decorated floats of various kinds have been arranged for. Naturally, the high point of interest in the parade will be furnished by the local ex-service men.

Patriotic talks by local men will be held at 11:00 a. m., probably on the court house lawn, in the vicinity of the mounted war trophy guns on the west side of the lawn. A football game at the local gridiron at 2:30 and the dance at 9:00 will complete the day.

The program in full follows:

Mess call	4:45 a.m.
Breakfast	5:30 a.m.
Making whoopee-e-e	5:30 a.m.
Parade	9:30 a.m.
Patriotic talks	11:00 a.m.
Foot races and stunts	1:00 p.m.
Football game	2:30 p.m.
Dance	9:00 p.m.

LOTTE'S EYE

Hard times are not exactly out like Lottie's eye, because Lottie's eye went completely out and suddenly.

But the depression certainly has astigmatism. That is, the depression absolutely is on the wane; it's going out.

Witness the return of thousands of men to industries.

Witness, increasing soundness of banking.

Witness, better business in the north, east, in Texas, in West Texas, in Midland.

Witness, greater confidence of the people, freer spending.

It is the general impression from the president of the United States down to the humblest laborer that things are definitely on the mend. Hoarding has stopped. People are buying what they need. Better times are not only coming, but are actually here. Things are on the up and up!

Let's be cheerio!

Seventeen Million Italians Migrated

ROME, Nov. 10. (UP)—Between the years 1876 and 1930, the number of Italians who emigrated was 17,702,235. Of this total, over eight millions came from North Italy, against six and a half millions from the southern provinces.

The largest number, 5,056,776, went to the United States, while Argentine absorbed nearly three millions.

The statistics do not show how many of these emigrants returned.

CHEAP HELP

LONDON.—Heston airport spends little in keeping up the grounds. The landing field is perfectly level, with a rich growth of grass. Instead of mowing this grass by hand or power mowers, the field maintains a flock of sheep which goes over the grass regularly and keeps it trimmed at an even length.

In England, more than 100,000 war widows have remarried, leaving only 140,550 still receiving pensions.

TOUCH OF SUPERSTITION MUST BE TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT WHEN S. M. U. CONSIDERS CHAMPIONSHIP REQUISITES

DALLAS, Nov. 10.—Southern Methodist university's recipe for a championship football team includes one staff of exceptional coaches, countless hours of faithful practice, the same quantum of hard work, one large measure of self-denial, a dash of inspiration—and a pinch of superstition.

For all the other ingredients, no matter in what quantities they are used, will be ineffective, certain Mustangs feel, if they don't pay their respects to a pet rabbit's foot or perform other solemn rites of necromancy before the kick-off.

Captain Alfred Neely doesn't depend entirely on his "educated toe" for the accuracy that sends the ball spinning between the goal posts, but gives part of the credit to the magic efficacy of a rabbit's paw that he carries with him into every game.

Most reverent of all the Mustangs to the whimsical "spirits" that make and mar football destiny is "Speedy" Mason, ace quarterback of the Ponies. Not content to pay homage to the mistress of fortunes in football season only, Mason has certain daily rites that he performs whether it be November or July. Preceding each game "Speedy" may be seen wearing an old blue work shirt, whose magical powers are said to give him the famous hip twist that enables him to whisk through his opponents like a phantom. Careful inspection will show that when Mason trots onto the playing field he wears a neat piece of tape on his right shin. "Speedy" refuses to reveal the spiritual significance of this patch but says that it is a rite that he has performed since he first began playing football at Waco high school.

Mason also insists upon sitting and eating in the same chair and at the same table throughout the football season. If he can't have his usual place or chair he thinks it better not to eat at all.

Many of the Ponies, including Mason, believe that the number they carry on their backs has a peculiar significance, and if they have had a successful season, insist that the same number be given them the following year.

"Ditch" McIntosh is the only one of the coaches who believes in the efficacy of a charm piece. He slips a rabbit's foot into his pocket on the day of each game.

Another rite observed before each game is for C. S. Hamilton, one of the Ponies' staunch admirers, to hand the headgear to four of the men just before they go onto the field. Bert Baxter, star punter, never fails to perform this ceremony.

Most of the players keep the same locker year after year. The lockers are constructed the same but the men feel since there is no particular reason to change, it is foolhardy to run the risk of tempting the fates.

While those Mustangs humor their pet superstitions with strict regu-

Odessa Fire Dept. Aids in Child Hunt

ODESSA, Nov. 10.—The fire department was called out and a large party of spectators were converted into a searching party shortly after noon Wednesday, in a frantic search for the Smelser child, which had run away from home. The search, which had lasted for over two hours, was brought to a close shortly after the forming of the party. The child was found in the downtown section, some twelve blocks from her home, unhurt.

The three year old child, one of a set of twins, wandered off some time Wednesday morning, and apparently set out to see the town. She came down to the business section, and to the postoffice, where he father works, but finding him not in, started a brief tour of inspection of the city.

When the child was missed her mother first called for her, and later started a search of the neighborhood. When she was not located near her home, the father was called in to the search, as were several of the neighbors. The neighborhood for several blocks around, and the school buildings and grounds nearby searched, when fire chief Morgan Neill came up and suggested calling out the department, thereby getting a crowd to form a searching party. The children of the ward school across the street, were also called in and put to work. Just as the larger parties were getting organized for a thorough search of the town, a neighbor, Mrs. Agnew, drove up with the child in her car. She had found the small wanderer near one of the local churches, and though not aware of the excitement her absence had caused, picked her up and returned her to her home.

Brothers Proud of Alphabet Names

PUEBLO, Colo., Nov. 10. (UP)—Folks, meet Llieusszuesszeszesz Williamsizsziesteizzi Hurriszisteizzi and his brother Jisseppit Normandizzeizzi.

And give the boys a big hand. They deserve it for being able to remember their own names.

The Hurri-and-so-ons are Pueblo residents, emigrants from Siam. Llieusszuesszeszesz, in addition to being proud possessor of such a name, is an accomplished linguist, speaking 11 languages.

To his friends he is known as Leo Hurst.

Europe which followed that event, had the price of wheat been so low. The October low figure was literally ruin for many farmers. Stories were told of grain growers who dumped their wheat in the street rather than market it, or used it for cookstove fuel.

Propose Slush On Oil Import

WASHINGTON—Advocating a 38 per cent reduction in crude oil imports, and 25 per cent reduction in gasoline imports, the volunteer committee on petroleum economics appointed by Secretary of Interior Wilbur, yesterday made public its estimates on the supply and demand for petroleum and gasoline for the period Oct. 1, 1931 to June 30, 1932.

Temperance Almanac Had Drink Recipes

BROCKTON, Mass., Nov. 10. (UP)—One wouldn't expect to find liquor recipes in a temperance almanac, but a book of that description published in Boston in 1843 and now possessed by John S. Heath, tells how gin, brandy, Scotch and other drinks were made.
