President Rubio of Mexico Resigns After Storm Breaks

CALLES IS BELIEVED TO BLAME

Rubio Plans Treatment at Hot Springs

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 3. (UP)—President Pascual Rubio of Mexico has resigned, the department of interior announced today.

Rubio's resignation was believed to have been due to differences with General Plutarco Elias Calles, the "strong man of Mexico."

The present secretary of war, General Alvaro Obregón, was believed to be the most likely successor to Rubio if the Mexican congress decides to accept his resignation, which was not unexpected.

Rubio's resignation was announced and predicted in United Press dispatches early Friday night.

The official announcement followed a dramatic cabinet meeting last night when the president is reported to have said that since he was unable to carry out his duties in a manner satisfactory to himself, he believed his resignation was advisable.

Rubio plans to go to Hot Springs, Arkansas, Sunday for a vacation and rest.

Midland Gets a New Veterinarian

Midland gets a veterinarian. He is Dr. Wilton Orson. Dr. Orson is a graduate of Texas A. & M. college and is a licensed, accredited veterinarian.

The new doctor has had four years of practical work as well as college training and has done an especially large amount of actual veterinary work in the past two years.

Dr. Orson is especially well prepared for practice on beef cattle, cows, horses, mules, dogs, cats, chickens, and all other domestic animals, having specialized in this line of work. He will practice veterinary science in Midland, Marlin, Dawson, Gaines, Andrews, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Pecos, Reeves, Crane, Ector, Ward, Loving, and other West Texas counties.

Dr. Orson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Orson of Midland. He is a graduate of Midland high school as well as the veterinary school of A. & M. college. His familiarity with West Texas, having been reared on a ranch in Martin county, is expected to be of much assistance to him in work over this area.

Dr. J. D. Young, president of the Trans-Texas Oil Co., Inc., spudded in his 19th Crockett county test this week. The new well is the Shannon Estate No. 1, 330 feet from the north and west lines of section 35, block 1, G. C. & S. F. R. Co. survey.

The well will be carried to the big lime and the pay horizon is expected around 2,450 feet.

Dr. Young has sold two spreads near the hole to two major companies. The new well is a quarter of a mile northwest of the first hole he put down in Crockett county, in 1923, which had 220 feet of saturation in the lime encountered at 2,245 feet.

Two shots, however, were made to make the well produce commercially.

$135,000 Ranch Deal Is Made; Largest in Years

Consumption of one of the largest ranch and cattle deals to have been made here in four or five years was announced Saturday, the firm of Mabee & Pyle, with W. M. Pyle of Midland as manager, having bought all cattle of the O. P. Jones ranch north and southwest of Midland and leased the 130 sections of range.

Prices paid for the cattle were eleven cents, but street reports gave the probable total figures at $135,000.

Approximately 3,000 head of cows and calves and an indefinite number of steers and mixed cattle were involved in the deal, also about forty head of saddle horses. Roy Holloway, Midland commission man, negotiated the deal. Work of turning over the cattle and the ranch will begin September 20, it was reported.

Steer calves from the herd had previously been contracted to Tom Good of Big Spring.

P. Jones has been one of the largest cattle operators in the Midland section for approximately eighteen years, although he also has holdings in the marillo and Shamrock sections and at present makes his home at Amarillo.

Mabee and Pyle have extensive holdings in various directions from Midland, having several large ranches under lease and also owning several in fee. John Mabee lives in Tulsa and W. M. Pyle at Midland.

1932-1933 SEMESTER BEGINNING

Informal Program on Monday; Teachers Three Less

The 1932-1933 session of the Midland public schools will open Monday, September 3, at 9 o'clock with appropriate programs at the high school and at the various other buildings.

The first day will be taken up with the announcement and classification of pupils, the issuing of text-books, and the assignment of lessons for Tuesday.

On Tuesday the tentative schedule will be followed, it being the boast of the Midland system that prepared lessons are heard throughout the schools on the second day.

A rather informal program will be conducted at the high school auditorium. The program will consist of choruses and readings by the high school, brief talks by patrons of schools, and special announcements by teachers of private classes.

For the first time in many years there will be no new teachers in the Midland system. Former teachers having been re-elected and having accepted. Mrs. David Wright will not return to the junior high faculty, and Mrs. Clinton Dunagan, having resigned during the month of August, will not return to the high school faculty.

The work of these two teachers is being absorbed by other members of the faculty. Only one teacher will be used in the negro school. This makes three teachers less than were on the roster at the close of the term in 1931-1932.

Due to an anticipated falling-off in enrollment, the board of education has decided to begin the work of the year with a smaller force, and this reduction will be reflected in the 1932-1933 budget.

All pupils of the eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh grades will be taught in the senior high school building; all pupils of the low seventh grade, the high and low sixth grades and the high and low fifth grades, will be taught in the John M. Cowden junior high school building.

In addition to these grades, the following should report to the junior high school building: pupils of the low and high fourth grades, the high third grade living north of the railroad; and pupils of the low third grade living north of the railroad and west of Carrizo street.

Pupils in the low and high second grades, the low and high first grades, the low and high fourth grades, living north of the railroad, and south of Carrizo street, should report to the high school building.

WATERS RECEDE IN GREAT OVERFLOW

EAGLE PASS, Sept. 3. (UP)—Twenty-two thousand persons, many now without shelter, went homeward here and at Piedras Negras today as the Rio Grande receded after the worst flood in history.

Authorities believed the fifty foot rise had passed into the lower valley without casualties. The Rio Grande flood crest was scheduled to meet the crest from the swollen Mexican San Juan river at McAllen. Hidalgo county residents today began evacuation as the water spread over the lowlands.

Four hundred laborers patrolled the McAllen levees today. The water was within two feet of the international bridge as the crest reached Laredo. Nuevo Laredo houses along the river bank were flooded.

Several thousand lined the United States bank to see the normally peaceful streams sweep great quantities of trees, lumber and debris down-stream.

Traffic was resumed over the Eagle Pass international bridge, although the railroad bridge was slightly damaged. All Del Rio highways were impassable today but trains were operated eastward to San Antonio.

Learns His Job Isn't Perpetual

HENNING, Tenn. (UP)—Poe B. Jordan, 81, has learned that the job of constable isn't perpetual.

For 42 years he held the position of constable in the Eighth Civil District of Lauderdale county without having suffered a defeat.

Then along came this election year and Deputy Sheriff Tom C. Meeks defeated him. The election for constable was more keenly contested than state and other county offices.

Fist fights occurred in a number of precincts as a result of the race.

A LONELY BOY AND THE DEPRESSION

Beside the front walk of a middle western orphanage there sits, every day, a three-year-old boy, one arm circling the neck of a big police dog which has befriended him. The boy keeps watching everyone who comes up the walk; and whenever he sees a woman approaching his face lights up and he asks, eagerly, "Mamma?"

This youngster was brought to the orphanage several weeks ago. His mother and father had been out of work for a long time, and at last they had left him with their landlady "for a day or so" while they went to a nearby town to look for jobs. They haven't come back yet, and the landlady at last notified the authorities. So now the lad waits at the orphanage, tries to see his mother in every woman who passes by, and wonders dimly what is the cause of this upset in his little world.

Quite clearly, the lad is just another victim of the depression; and his plight, so pathetic and heart-wrenching is a thing we ought to remember—because it helps us to understand the tragedy and suffering which that one word, "depression," means.

There are good grounds now for believing that we have just about got to the end of the depression. Sooner or later we shall be back on our feet again. Shall we, when that time comes, talk glibly once more about "economic cycles" and the like, taking it for granted that our civilization must swing back and forth between extremes of prosperity and stagnation?

If we forget all of the bitter lessons that the last couple of years have taught us, we might be foolish enough to do just that; and, if we do, in a few years we shall repeat the old cycle again and go down into another depression like this one.

But we might remember that this "business cycle" catches thousands upon thousands of tragedies just like this one of the lonely boy at the orphanage. It means an almost immeasurable amount of human suffering. Keeping that in mind, shall we not insist that we will not put up with any economic system which does not find some way of averting periodic depressions?

THE JAPANESE NATION

Edmund Burke, a long time ago, reminded his fellow-members of the British Parliament that you cannot indict a whole nation. In these times, when international discords are more than usually prevalent, that advice is worth remembering.

For an example, consider the case of Japan. By her actions in China and Manchuria, Japan has earned the distrust of most of the civilized world. In every land, thinking people condemn the militaristic adventure which has brought so much danger into the world. And yet—

In Los Angeles, during recent weeks, a squad of Japanese athletes has been competing in the Olympic games. They have been likeable, appealing young folk, and they have done uncommonly well. No one can watch them without feeling that the nation which sent them overseas must be a pretty fine nation.

When we denounce "the Japanese" in Manchuria we are really talking about a small governmental clique, not about a whole nation. The distinction is one we should never forget.

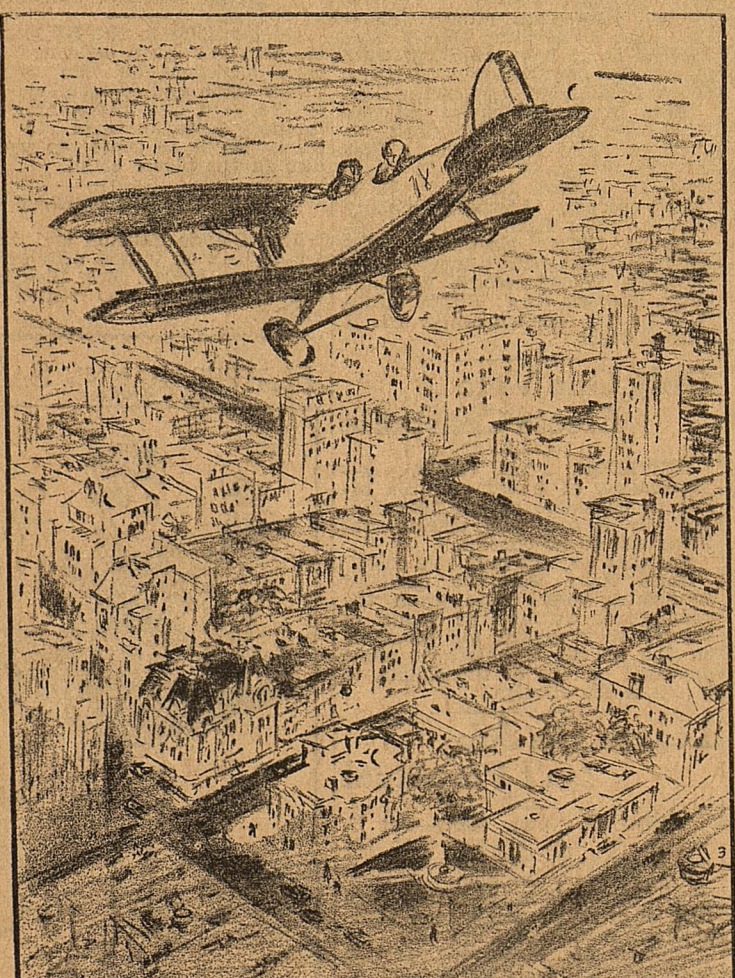

THE SPANISH REVOLT

There is something just a little bit comic about the complaint, "Everybody abandoned me," which was voiced by Jos San Jurjo after the revolt which he tried to lead in Spain collapsed and landed him in prison.

The leader of any revolt has to take his chances; because, in most cases, he has no very definite idea how much popular support his movement is going to command. It may sweep the country like wild-fire, in which case he becomes a great popular hero and rises to the height of fame and power; but it may, just as well, fizzle out like a wet firecracker, leaving its leader in a very pronounced jam.

That seems to have happened in Spain; and the cry, "Everybody abandoned me," rings out as the perennial wail of the revolutionist who misjudged the popular appeal of his cause.

BLONDIE Of the Follies

By Frances Marion

CHAPTER XV

For more than an hour Blondie and Larry had been sitting at a gay little table in one of the most exclusive and modern speakeasies in town. When Blondie had met Larry on the stage after she had visited Lurline in the dressing room, Larry said he was going to keep his promise, and take her to the best speakeasy that had evaded the raiding officers.

Implicitly Blondie followed Larry from the theatre until they arrived at an imposing door. They were ushered into a smart, startling modern room, and Blondie gasped. A beautiful bar at one end of the room, a glistening dance floor, an orchestra in evening dress, soft colors throughout the room bathed in the mellowest of lights, made the place inviting and to Blondie, pleasantly fantastic.

The cafe was almost deserted, except for the soft-moving, courteous waiters. Larry explained that the place was patronized mainly by the theatre crowd. Now Blondie sat across from Larry, thoroughly enjoying the relaxation after a long, hectic evening. She slowly sipped her wine, as she chatted gaily with her companion, and seized the opportunity of their being alone to study him. The result of her observations and conversation with the young giant of Wall Street was most pleasant. She was beginning to thoroughly like this young man who could be so interested in a nice way and so courteous.

Slowly at first, and then as though a sudden flood of humanity had been unloosed from nowhere, the room began to fill with couples and parties—gay, laughing, noisy.

The orchestra lived up, playing popular and rhythmic numbers. As Blondie caught the mood of the evening she became aware of the exhilarating effect of the wine she had been drinking. As she drained her glass, Larry smiled at her and said: "Another cold bottle! Almost instantly there was a waiter at his side taking the order. "Will you dance now," Larry asked.

Blondie looked at him seriously; then her face broke into a broad smile, and she let herself enter into the spirit of the occasion.

"High! High!" she cried, getting to her feet jubilantly and settling comfortably into Larry's arms. The music was entrancing, and they danced in silence enjoying to the utmost the mating steps.

Back at their table the waiter was pouring the champagne. Larry looked at her closely. "Happy?" he asked. "Delicious!" "And happy?" "Scars me . . . I'm so happy," said Blondie sincerely. "We've just started."

"Who's a good little girl," he said fervently. "Who wants to be good," Blondie admitted. "You're sweet — everybody tells you that?" Larry asked.

"Who?" Larry said sharply. Blondie looked at him quickly caught the questioning look in his eyes, and purposely delayed her answer. "Pa!" she exclaimed, smiling. Larry looked relieved, but before he could answer, Blondie said: "Oh, you'll be crazy about him . . . Say, do you know what I'm going to buy him for his birthday?"

"One of those swell overcoats with a near mink collar!" Blondie was enthusiastic and excited now. "Do they make a lot of money in the Follies?" she asked. "Maybe I will." "I hope not." "That's not fair," said Blondie, falling to get his double meaning. "Fainter than you think," replied Larry. Then suddenly, "Dance!" "High! High!" said Blondie.

Swapping Yarns with Col. True

Col. True maintains a standing invitation to others to write to him and tell of their own extraordinary experiences. No holds barred. Address Col. True, in care of The Reporter-Telegram.

Say, Col, I wish you could meet old Squint-Eye Dick, the guy who wore out three irons in one day. Why, he even drank the sun with smoke from branded flanks. The old boy stands three gunshots high, he is so outlandish tall he got kinda sunburned until his hide toughened so thick, not even a Texan Sawsting bumble bee could pierce it—and when you realize that a flock of those bees look just like elephants with wings you'll realize just how tough this baby was. Now let's see you toughen him up some more, can you? MACKTON F. PETERS.

I wish you could have seen the fight that occurred, though, when Pete Piffle drifted into town. Pete was a good deal of a man himself. A head taller than Squint-Eye and so heavy that wherever he walked he left a canyon behind. Dick was sauntering up and down the street with a lollipop in his mouth, and Pete laughed at him. Dick cursed him, using such words as you might expect from a man as tough as that. Pete offered to fight him.

It was a good fight and lasted from the twenty-third of July until after frost, and would have been going yet if Pete's wife hadn't interfered. She was no small woman herself. She took Pete down across her knee and laid it on him with a twenty-foot two-by-twelve that it seems she carried around with her for that purpose.

Squint-Eye always claimed he would have licked Pete if he'd been let alone. He said he was just getting his fifth wind and had already found two of Pete's weak spots. Squint-Eye is not the man he once was, though. He swam over here from Ireland about the same time the Mayflower came over, and he is getting old now. His legs are not what they used to be, either, and he now carries a saddle-horse in his hip-pocket all the time, to use when he gets tired of walking.

As he struck a chord on his ukulele, the bewildered man came to attention, Larry said: "Go home and get some beauty sleep." Then turning to Blondie: "We'll ride in front . . . you won't be so cold."

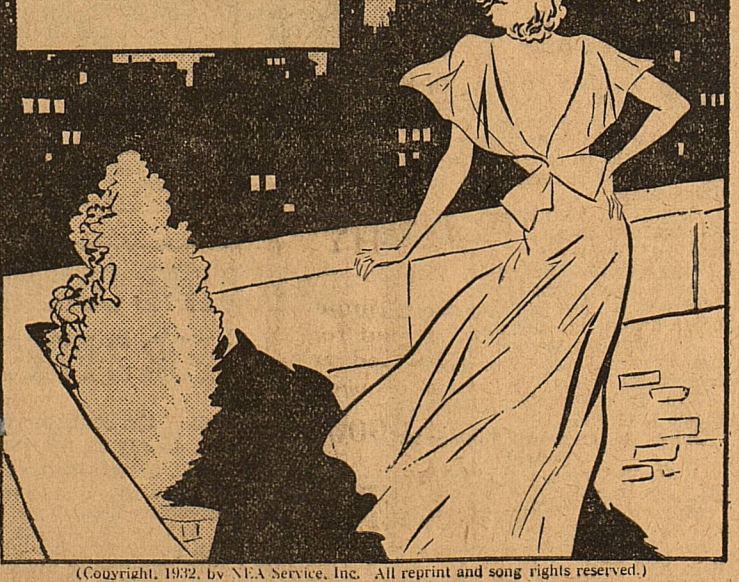

Blondie got in beside Larry snuggled up in his coat, and said: "Snice warm fellow," Larry replied. "Heigh! Heigh!" . . . what time is it? "Before Larry could answer, Blondie started singing. "It's far too early in the morning . . ." and Larry interrupted himself by stepping on the throttle, his voice rising in the roar as the car shot away from the curb.

"And It Came to a Pretty Pass"

By COL. AMOS ANDY HOOPLE

And it came to pass that during the reign of Miriam, the handmaid of Jim, there arose a young man whose hair was red and whose name was Dan. Now this Dan was a mighty warrior in the land and gave trouble to the Jimites, yea, muchly.

The servants of Miriam had gathered many shekels unto themselves, even six hundred thousand bucks, (which in the Jimite tongue means smackers) all in one pot. Now this same Dan saw that all this money was little money paid in as dithes by the people to make the paths in the land straight, as foretold by the prophets.

When Dan saw all this, he was wroth, and he said unto the servants of Miriam: "How come?" It is not written in the Book, thus saith the Lord: "Thou shalt not steal." Putterback! which means in the Danite tongue, restore the money.

And the servants of Miriam were sore and wrothy—and they said unto Dan, gothel! Hearing this, the spirit of righteousness wrought mightily on Dan and he arose and laid strong hands upon the servants of Miriam and strove with them and threw them down unto me, Gimite, and I took that which they stole and put it with the other shekels of the sanctuary.

Gathering many shekels from tithes of the people and dealing with them with great waste of their substance and with much deceit, they began to murmur against Miriam and at Jim the high priest and chief bottle wash of the Jimites.

Thus it came to pass that there was war between the Jimites and the Danites and they strove with each other mightily, and the Danites overcame the Jimites in a great slaughter at a ford on the river Salt. At this ford, a sheaf of wheat was hung in a holly-berry limb, and when a Jimite sought to pass by and cross over the river Salt, a Danite guard would confront him and say: "Come unto me, Gimite," and owing to a slight defect in his tongue, he would say, "Jimite" and the Danite would smite him, and that day fell the Rossites and the House of Miriam fell and Dan became the ruler over all the land of Tehas.

And Dan had his palace in the city of Aus, by all river Colorow. And after many days Dan took unto himself a wife, a princess, even Mildred of the House of Paxton, of the tribe of Abilene. She was lovely and fair to look upon, and all the people rejoiced with a great joy. And it came to pass that Mildred bore a son unto Dan and they called his name Dan.

After he was four years old and walked before the law as it is written in the book, but jimmerferson was an hungrier for more shekels, and the Jimites began to murmur again unto me, Gimite, the house of Sterling sought to be the ruler of the land of Tehas in the city of Aus, the Jimites rose up against the Rossites and they strove with a mighty strive and the Rossites smote the Jimites until they were sore, so that for two years they stood upon their hind legs to eat.

After many days Dan took to pass that jimmerferson took down his ukulele (which means groceries in the Danite tongue) from the wild chine limb where it had hung for many moons and began to sing and play while the Jimites danced.

As he struck a chord on his ukulele, the bewildered man came to attention, Larry said: "Go home and get some beauty sleep." Then turning to Blondie: "We'll ride in front . . . you won't be so cold."

Blondie got in beside Larry snuggled up in his coat, and said: "Snice warm fellow," Larry replied. "Heigh! Heigh!" . . . what time is it? "Before Larry could answer, Blondie started singing. "It's far too early in the morning . . ." and Larry interrupted himself by stepping on the throttle, his voice rising in the roar as the car shot away from the curb.

STICKERS

A man bought a house for $4400 and spent twice as much to repair it as he did to paint it. Then he sold it for $6000 and profited 20 per cent on his whole investment. What did the repairing cost and what did the painting cost?

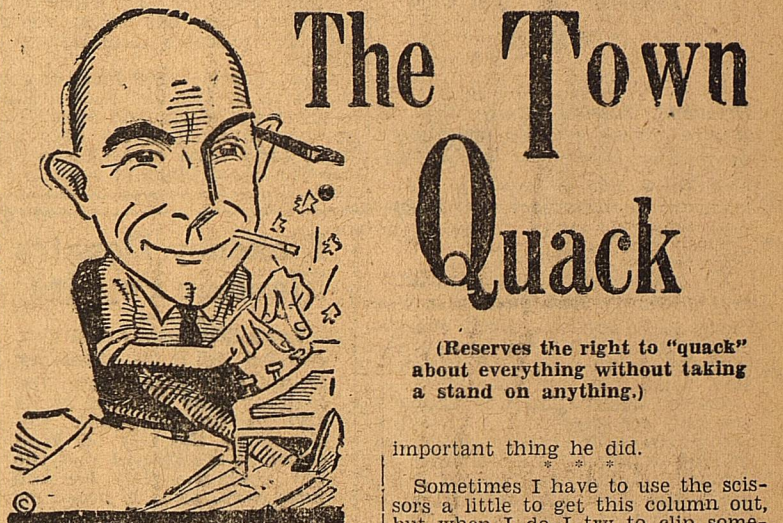

lele, he sang: "In my reign the shekels in the sanctuary, they tempted me even as the serpent in the garden of Eden tempted Adam and I reached mine hand and gathered them. I bought chicken salad and this ukelele at the grocery store and behold they charged them against the state as groceries. I strove against the select draft law with great profit and much applause from the Germans. I borrowed one hundred and fifty-six thousand from Yomooho and wouldn't tell them where I got it."

"And it came to pass that the Chiefords and elders rose up and were wroth with me, and they did throw me down and kick me and I lost my job for many days, and they spat upon me and called me skunk (which means polecat). They dealt me great misery and tribulation."

And the Jimites shouted, Shame, shame! "Then the Chiefords and elders repented them of their acts, and they forgave me of mine evil, even with a damnsty act which they called a law. Then they encompassed me and threw me down and took mine damnsty away from me and here I am without a job."

And the Jimites gnashed their teeth and cried aloud: "Thisishell! Thisishell!" Then he hung his ukelele on the limb of an oak tree, yea, even a sapok tree, and stood upon his hind legs, hitched up his britches and with his whiskers, even though his hat, "Bullyfermaw! Bullyfermaw!"

When he had made an end of speaking, this same Jim whisperead in his sleeve: "Behold, these are my faithful jackasses in whom I am well pleased, upon their backs will I and mine handmaid Miriam ride forth . . . to give the Rossites battle," Selah.

The Town Quack (Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

One of our readers sends word that she would like to see pictures of good looking men on our front page for a while, instead of so many pretty girls. We had a picture of Max Schmeling Friday and may return the famous photo of Jitterwhisk, my demented brother, in the near future. And then there was the big jack rabbit a while back. And, too, there was E. Frank Haag on the front page, right at the peak of his political squabble.

They may have a hanging up at Dalhart. I read in the paper from there where a man was being held at Canadian for stealing a horse at Dalhart. Worse than that, he stole a mare. A good mare would bring as high as $10 these days, so the culprit should be punished to the full extent of the law.

A variety of pest who doesn't know it: The fellow who leans on a newspaper desk and laughs about how easy it is to take the scissors and paste and get out a newspaper.

You can almost judge how good a newspaper man is by the way the paste dries up in his paste jar. I heard of one editor who cleaned and refilled his paste jar every day, and that was about the last.

I heard of a girl who was so attractive that even the horse she was riding tried to run away with her. And she lived in Midland.

Successful campaign speaker: The candidate who held his audience so long that one listener dislocated his jaw, yawning.

An incubator may be able to hatch up something, but it can't lay an egg.

Many a fellow who thinks he is somebody's sugar is not worth his salt.

Baccalaureate Address of the President Of the University of Colorado Is Sent By His Secretary to Methodist Class

Assuring M. F. Peters, teacher of the class, that President George Norlin of the University of Colorado in Boulder would be glad to send a message to the "Threshold Thinkers" class if he were in the United States, his secretary, Miss Grace L. Craven, sent a copy of his baccalaureate address of last year:

"I am echoing here a doctrine of Aristotle. He defined the State as a partnership of all citizens in the quest of the good life. No one has improved upon that definition of the purpose of the state or of the nation. It has had a tremendous influence. You can trace in the evolution of democracy everywhere. You can see it in the Declaration of Independence and in the preamble of the Constitution of the United States. Yet we Americans have been strangely negligent of it. We still think in terms of the state or of the nation as an instrument of security—as a police power merely or mainly. We are willing to pay any price for police protection or even for "gang" protection, in order that we may severally go about our business without let or hindrance, but about the state or the nation as an instrument for the public welfare—as a partnership of all in the pursuit of the good life—we have been curiously indifferent. We have been rather generous, we think, in the matter of public education, but we sulk and we grumble, now more than ever, about the cost, whereas the cost of racketeering alone in this country is about five times the cost of all public education, lower or higher, and yet we say this tribute rather blithely.

"Now, however, the principle of everybody for himself, of every group for itself, of every "bloc" for itself, has gone to pieces on the rocks and we cling to whatever bits of wreckage come to hand, waiting anxiously throughout the night for a prosperous dawn.

"It is a situation which cries out for nothing less than the mobilization of the best brains of the nation, not in the cause of labor, not in the cause of capital, not in the cause of any group or class, but in the cause of the nation. It is a situation which is a challenge above all to christian men and women.

"Young men and women, perhaps you think it strange that I speak of material things on the day set apart by our religion for the contemplation of spiritual values. I might have preached to you from the text, 'Man shall not live by bread alone,' which is a profound truth. But it is equally true that in order to live any life at all on earth, man must first have bread. I recall that even the Founder of our Christian Faith, who 'came that we might have life and have it more abundantly,' an occasion when the multitude was hungry did not preach, but fed the multitude. He had but a few loaves and fishes wherewith to do this miracle. We have ready at hand a surfeit not only of the necessities but of the comforts and even of the luxuries of life.

"Yet ours is by no means a simple undertaking. I speak to you in no despondent mood, but I am not blind to the fact that you are now voyaging forth into a perplexing, changing difficult world. Quite as much as those who manned Columbus' fleet, you are, I think, embarking upon a thrilling and challenging adventure. What you will find, I do not know. It may be that you will sail through storms and

NINE-INNING GAME MONDAY NIGHT DETERMINES ALL-STAR CLUB

TWENTY OF CRACK PLAYERS TAKE THE FIELD

At a meeting Friday between Luther Tidwell, manager of the Midland Hardware club, and Bill Connor and Andy Northington, co-managers of the all-star club, it was agreed upon that a five-game series should be played in the approaching Nocturne decision.

The first game will be played Tuesday night, rather than Monday as first announced, the second game falling on Thursday, the third Friday. In case either club has won three games the other two will not be played.

All games will begin promptly at 7:30 and go nine innings.

A 10-cent admission charge will be made for each game.

Monday night will be utilized by the all-stars for practice, 20 men forming into two teams. The ultimate selection of opponents for the Hardware series will be chosen from these 20 men: H. L. Smith, Johnny Woody, Doc Bloss, Ralph Parrott, Bill Howard, Sam Warren, Loyd Burris, W. Whitmire, H. Whitmire, Gilbert Brunson, Leslie Stevens, D. L. Woods, Red Moore, Eb Estes, Joe Pierce, Jimmy Adamson, Lee Cook,

"Ironhead's" Joke Wins Argument in Favor of Andrew

By HERB ROUNTREE

Prize was written Friday night to the battle of the over-stuffed Nocturne managers, Andy and Harry.

Andy Northington said he didn't want to accept an insistent challenge from anyone who doesn't know the difference in a 14-inch in-seam ball and a 12-inch cantaloupe.

Harry Bunnell, who has precipitated quite an argument through his continual challenging of Andy to a Tesco-Phone series, was at bat.

"Ironhead" Rogers slipped into the pitcher's box, whispered to Jake Price, moundsman, handed him something and beat it. Price tossed in an easy offering and the crowd roared. The phone manager had made a great circle swing around

Scotty Gemmill, H. L. Straughan and A. Estes.

Any of the players listed above is asked to report to one of the managers as soon as possible if he cannot take part in the Monday night game.

The game likely will draw a good crowd, as will the series to follow.

McCAMEY HIRES ANOTHER COACH; LETTERMEN BACK

McCAMEY, Sept. 3.—Leonard Hill, former Austin college backfield star and for the past three years assistant athletic coach at Cisco high school, has been secured as assistant coach at the local school for this year, and he arrived in the city the first of this week to begin his duties. Hill comes to McCamey highly recommended, and he is expected to be a valuable asset to local athletics.

This will be the first time in the history that McCamey high has ever employed more than one athletic instructor. Last year McCamey was the only school in district 3 not employing two or more coaches, and as a result Clyde Park, head coach, was the most overworked man in this division of class A football.

In football, Park, who has been at the local school for the past two years, will coach the line while Hill will have charge of the backfield. Park was a stellar lineman at McMurry college before entering the coaching game.

According to an official announcement, football training will get underway here Monday afternoon, and Park is hopeful of a large turnout for the first sessions. Nine last year lettermen are expected to report.

HORSE PLAY IS FEATURE ENDING NOCTURNE SEASON

The sockball league passed out of existence in as much as a schedule is concerned, Friday night with games between Bell Telephone and the Cowden-Epley and United Dry Goods and the "Ugly All-Stars," a group thrown together just to insure a game about to be forfeited because of Hokus Pokus' failure to show up with enough men.

The All-Stars won a light and exciting game, 7 to 6. Seven pitchers were used by the two clubs and all sorts of liberties with the rules of the game taken.

Bell Telephone won from the Pords, 7-1. The features of the game were home runs by Girdley and Day, and Bunnell's striking at a cantaloupe tossed him for a ball.

5 Stars in Laugh Hit at the Grand

Fresh from its record run upon the Broadway stage, "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," Samuel Goldwyn's film version of the Zoe Akins play, comes to the Grand today and Monday, with Ina Claire, Joan Blondell and Madge Evans portraying the roles of "Them."

This screen gets a new idea in film entertainment. Smartness and sophistication are its keynote, a keynote which demonstrates anew the daring showmanship of Samuel Goldwyn.

From the beginning—even from the beginning of the stage run—questions have arisen as to what it was the Greeks had a word for. Fans will learn now that the word is "hetaera," meaning blondes on the loose. In fact, the Greek "hetaera" and the modern so-called "gold-digger" appear to be sisters under the skin. The girls are always saying: "Meet my fiance—not that I'm engaged or anything like that—but," Susceptible millionaires are never safe when they are in the offing.

One thing they prove, though, and that is that gentlemen really do prefer blondes. They also prove that it isn't the woman at all who pays and Hokus Pokus pays and pays.

Lowell Sherman both directs and plays one of the leading male roles. The cast also includes David Marners and Phillips Smalley. "The Greeks Had a Word for Them" is Ina Claire's first United Artists starring film.

In South America there are some trees known as "cow trees" which, when pierced, yield a rich, milky, nutritious juice in such abundance as to render it an important article of food.

Are you a Well-informed Person?

Every day this newspaper is filled with news. And our experience is that the news which interests you most is the news which affects you most. When one of your friends has participated in a minor accident, you are more interested in that than in a major accident in another city.

Advertising, too, is news of the first importance. It affects you. It is intimate, local news addressed to you. It deals with your comforts, your pleasure and your business. It saves you time by telling you where the merchandise is. It saves you money by announcing fair prices. It is the guide to efficient spending. When you fail to read the advertisements, you do not keep up with news that is most important to you. You miss many opportunities.

The best-informed people are those who read the advertisements regularly. In fact, in this modern age, when each day brings forth new things which directly affect you, you cannot ignore the advertisements in your daily newspaper and still be well-informed!

Woman's Place Is in the News

Earning her salary in a cage of lions is much more interesting than pounding the black and white keys of a typewriter, according to Marian Knowlton, Miss Knowlton, a lion tamer, who used to be a New Haven, Conn. stenographer, was clawed up by six lions at Luna Park, New York, not long ago.

Miss Kate Wheelock, known as the "Queen of Whist," started her career of teaching people to play whist, nearly 50 years ago. She was the woman instructor in the game. Now, 75 years old, she lives in New York. She retired from active teaching of cards just a year ago. She was charging $12 a lesson when she stopped.

A Missionary First author of the "Good Earth," the novel that was awarded the Pulitzer prize last year, insists on calling herself a missionary instead of a writer. Mrs. Buck, who lives on a narrow lane known as Fighting Cock Alley, in Nanking, has accompanied her husband, John Lossing Buck, to America where he will spend a year studying at Cornell University. He is an instructor in agriculture at the University of Nanking. Mrs. Buck, the daughter of missionaries, has spent 34 years in China. She has two small daughters.

A Professional Interviewer Interviewing people to discover what they think of anything and everything from soft drinks to refrigeration has been the job that Mrs. Margaret R. Hollingsworth has been performing for the last two years. She has questioned more than 3000 people in all walks of life, listened to their secrets, and often advised them. Mrs. Hollingsworth, who has translated several books from the Portuguese, a language which she learned while living with her parents in Argentina, is now at work on the translation of a Brazilian book by Mario de Andrade, who is a friend of hers.

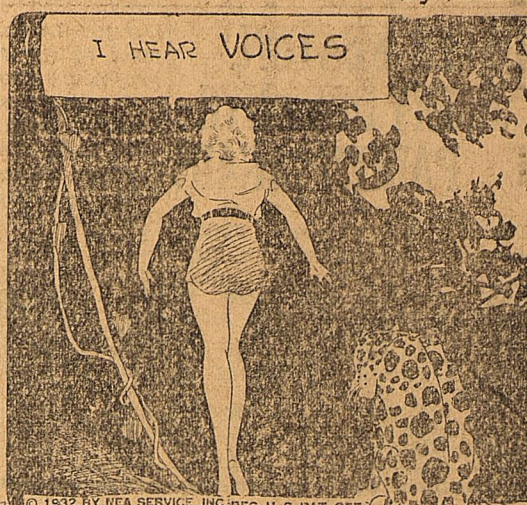

Woman City Commissioner When Mrs. Doris W. Bradway assumed her position as commissioner of finance in Wildwood, N. She takes care of her household tasks by rising earlier in the morning. She believes that economy is the leading question of the day.

A Prize Essayist Zena Abrams-Debure, who works for a New York social organization, has won prizes for two successive years in the competitions on "Why I Go to the Stadium Concerts." The stadium concerts, which are part of New York's musical life, sponsor this competitive writing annually. Miss Abrams-Debure adopts another character when she writes her winning essays. Last year she pretended that she was a dance hall instructor. This year she chose the role of an aged scrub woman.

BUSTER KEATON, JIMMY DURANTE PAIRED AGAIN

Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante continue their combination as the most hilarious of all screen comedy teams in "Speak Easily," which opens today at the Yucca for two days.

The fun riot they started in "The Passionate Plumber" is carried on into this new laugh romance with added comedy embellishments. Keaton has long been acclaimed as the frozen-faced comedy king and Durante has recently come into favor as the supreme purveyor of long-nosed "hot cha" antics. Together they are said to provide the funniest screen situations that have ever been filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

"Speak Easily" was adapted from Clarence Budington Kelland's story, "Footlights." The theme concerns the adventures of an absent-minded college professor, played by Keaton, who inherits nearly a million dollars and decides to go out and "see life." He makes the acquaintance of Jimmy, the piano player of a musical show stranded in a small town, and "adopts" the entire troupe for a Broadway run. The many complications they encounter in their theatrical career provide

Miss Helena Price In Stanton School

Miss Mary Helena Price of Stanton, who took much of her training in Midland, has been elected head of the public speaking department of Stanton high school.

After studying two years in the Vickers studio at Midland, Miss Price continued her work in T. W. C. at Fort Worth. She and two other student assistants will instruct in the Vickers studio here this year.

version by bailie, Donald Brown, cleared in the last term of court of charges of robbery with firearms, must face a burglary theft count.

The civil suit likely to be contested is that of Henry Currie vs. The Home Insurance company. Currie seeks payment of insurance carried in two policies on a house that burned here about three years ago.

Likelihood of the civil suit of Dr. C. B. McCall against John Bonner, W. H. Williams, Fred Morley and the Griffith Amusement company was nipped when the cause was settled out of court and Judge Charles L. Klapproth sitting in a vacation season, handed down a decision dismissing Dr. McCall from claim on the Yucca and Bonner from connection with the Ritz at the same time dissolving a temporary injunction granted months ago when the Yucca was opened. Dr. McCall, plaintiff, was ordered to pay court costs.

Stellar Comedy Cast
Ruth Selwyn, recently featured in "Polly of the Circus" and "New Moralities for Old," has the feminine lead in "Speak Easily" as Keaton's romantic heart interest. Thelma Todd, whose co-starring comedy appearances with Zasu Pitts have achieved outstanding popularity, is cast as a vamping actress who makes things exciting for Keaton and Durante. The sophisticated Hedda Hopper, last seen with Greta Garbo in "As You Desire Me," plays a nagging mother, and other important parts are filled by William Pawley, Sidney Toler, Lawrence Grant, Henry Armetta and Edward Brophy.

Edward Sedgwick, veteran comedy ace, directed "Speak Easily" and also demonstrates his versatility by enacting the part of an amusingly "hard boiled" theatre owner. Sedgwick has worked with Keaton on many of his outstanding successes, including "Spite Marriage," "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" and "The Passionate Plumber."

Famed Blonde, Once Called the Most Perfect of the Screen, Now Is Known As "Love Pirate"; Suit in the Court

By NEA Service

The woman who was hailed a few years ago as "the most beautiful blond in the movies" today stands accused as a "love pirate," faced by a suit for $100,000 by the wife of the man whose affections she is alleged to have stolen.

Whether Claire Windsor, film star whose graceful beauty once captivated millions of moviegoers, must pay this price is the question that now pends before the courts at Oakland, Calif., where Mrs. Read's attention suit is on file. Moreover, Mrs. Read has sued her husband for divorce, naming Miss Windsor as co-respondent.

The former movie queen, the 29-year-old San Francisco stock broker and his socially prominent wife from the three points in this Pacific coast "love triangle," interest in which has been revived by the lobby Holman-Smith Reynolds "Ab" Walker drama in North Carolina.

Claire Windsor's famous beauty—hair like golden sunbeams, eyes of deep blue and features like those of a Dresden china doll—had been pretty well forgotten until last March when Mrs. Read filed her $100,000 suit. Then those whose memory goes back to the days of the silent films remembered Miss Windsor for her successful roles in such bygone pictures as "Fools First," "Brothers Under the Skin," "Captain Leah" and "Midstream."

They remembered, too, that she had been the wife of Bert Lytell, that she and Lytell had eloped to Mexico in 1925 and that about a couple of years later this union had come to the parting of the ways, as so many movie marriages do.

Then Claire had faded out of the picture into the forgotten limbo of ex-stars.

Suddenly Claire Windsor's name came back into the news. She was playing in Al Jolson's "Wonder Bar" at San Francisco when officers arrested on her the papers in Mrs. Read's $100,000 suit, which charged that the famous blond beauty stole the affections of Mr. Read, prominent stock broker and former University of California athlete.

Mrs. Read charged that her husband was "constantly in the company" of Miss Windsor when he was in Los Angeles, "supposedly on business." She declared the actress had pursued "a course of conduct calculated to win his love." Almost simultaneously she filed the divorce suit naming Miss Windsor as co-respondent.

"Why, the very idea!" exclaimed Claire. "I never lured any man away from his wife and never expect to. Of course, I know Mr. Read; I was introduced to him by Louis Epstein, Al Jolson's manager, but I don't know why all this fuss should be made over my knowing him. Honestly, I don't know what it is all about; it has me flabbergasted or floundered, or something like that."

Very adroitly, Mrs. Read obtained letters that Claire had written to her husband and pictures showing them in friendly poses. She submitted the pictures as proof of her contentions.

And so, in July, when Claire was in high school, she was charged with the same crime as now.

Miss Christine Golladay, high first and low first grades.
Miss Janis Wilkes, low first grade.
The Mexican school and the negro school will not open until about the first of November. The teachers of the Mexican school are Miss Edna Marie Jones and Mrs. Lois Baughman. The teacher of the negro school is E. L. Loftin.

An institute of teachers was held Saturday morning at the high school auditorium. The second day of the institute will be held later, at which time Dr. Frank Dobie of Texas university will address teachers from this and surrounding counties.

Windsor was called upon to make a deposition under oath, it is said she admitted she "had loved" Mr. Read, but denied alienating his affections.

Roy Hudson, attorney for Mrs. Read, said that Claire admitted writing the letters and quoted her as having said in the deposition: "Yes, I wrote the letters. I was very fond of Mr. Read then. In fact, you might say I loved him. But I had no idea I was coming between him and his wife. I had no desire to break up anybody's home. I thought Mr. Read and his wife had separated, and he led me to believe that."

Whereupon Mrs. Read commented: "Miss Windsor has admitted exactly what I have said in my suit."

Midway between the filing of the suit and Claire's deposition came an exciting episode: Mrs. Read, in May, Mrs. Read had her husband arrested on a charge that he had kidnapped her at the point of a gun. She told Oakland police that she had abducted her from the home of friends and with several accomplices, driven her to a lonely spot in a forest 30 miles away. She said she obtained the car keys and escaped when her husband fell asleep beside the road.

One report had it that a reconciliation was the purpose of the alleged kidnapping. Another report had it that Read was trying to effect the return of letters written to him by Miss Windsor which, it was said, he had previously turned over to his wife in an attempted reconciliation and upon her promise that she would drop her suit.

Mrs. Read declared she had no intention of dropping it. However, she admits spending part of a night in a hotel with her husband to get the Windsor letters.

Confident of vindication, Miss Windsor has declared that she is ready for a "fight to the finish." She asserts that it is her duty to beat the case and thus protect other movie luminaries from "unwarranted charges."

"Time after time, my friends have been unjustly accused and I suppose it is my turn now," says the blond beauty. "I am going to fight to a finish because it is high time to stop this abuse of people in the public eye."

"It is all so utterly absurd; why, I have seen Mr. Read only five or six times in my life."

Viola Cronk—the Topeka school girl who found fame in Hollywood after a brief residence in Seattle and changed her name to Claire Windsor—has known romance before.

When still in her teens she was married to William Bowles, whom she divorced in 1920, and by whom she has a son, Billie Bowles, born in 1919.

In 1925, she married Bert Lytell soon after the latter's divorce from Evelyn Vaughan. That romance wilted in 1927 when, it is said, Bert found it necessary to spend a lot of time on the road in vaudeville appearances. Rumor also linked her name with that of Buddy Rogers in his calf-love days and, only a few years ago, with the young multi-millionaire, Philip Plant, who was once the husband of Constance Bennett. In 1930 Claire was aboard Plant's yacht when it was sunk in a collision off Stamford, Conn., and was rescued from the sea.

Today the former movie queen is as beautiful as ever. She is five feet six inches in height; her weight still remains at 120 pounds or thereabouts, her deep blue eyes are as luminous as before and her famous blond tresses are still her crowning glory.

Mr. Read has been accused by his wife of a lot of things—but nobody has accused him of being a poor judge of beauty.

Sticker Solution

If $6000 was a 20 per cent profit on the whole house investment, the investment was $5000. The house actually cost $4400, so painting and repairing together cost $600. Repairing was twice as much as painting, so repairing cost $400 and painting $200.
