CARDINALS LEAD 1-0 IN THIRD

Apronette and Memorial Day. Spence Jowell horses now in the money on Riverside park race track. Kansas City, may be the forerunners of Midland ponies to crash the big-time purses for years to come.

Yearlings and twos now coming on, from a large herd of thoroughbred brood mares and government stallions, bid fair to follow the try-outs which Bill Merrick took up with him this year.

Merrick, a Big Spring race man, took the two Jowell horses, two of his own and two of the Webb Christian steeds on a circuit this season and has been in the money regularly at the Kansas City track for the past few weeks.

Apronette, a five year old mare, was in the string of polo ponies used by Myrl Jowell here two years ago. Many will remember that she took time out for the birth of a colt while stabled at the fair grounds. Apronette is out of Fayette C, government stallion used by Jowell a few years ago, and Gangham Apron, thoroughbred mare.

Memorial Day, a four year old gelding, is out of the same mare and a Webb Christian stallion. Set Back, the two were sent to the fast tracks because of their good breeding, in the hope that blood would tell and that they would get in the money. The experiment is proving satisfactory and Jowell expects to send up others from his young stock next year. Spence and Myrl Jowell now run approximately a hundred brood mares at their Kent ranch.

Though their argument over the place of the machine in modern life was serious, their attitudes were good-humored, as seen here.

NEVER THE TWAIN SHALL MEET

Charlie Chaplin cannot conceive why Mr. Gandhi should use a hand spinning wheel when modern industrialism has provided power machines so vastly more efficient.

In this strange confrontation two world personages and their alien ideas we have a curious figure of the conflict between the old order and the new. It is increasing, and is manifest in more ways than are here glimpsed.

The meeting between Chaplin and Gandhi does not mean there can be a meeting between Hollywood and Bombay. In the same small world they must always be aliens, as are Bombay and Manchester.

Gandhi, we read, never had heard of Chaplin previous to their meeting. It was the information that Chaplin had made the world laugh that caused Gandhi to wish to meet him.

SCHOOLS FOR CRIME

The move in Texas looking to the segregation of youthful convicts from hardened criminals should gain much impetus as the result of Johnnie Martin's remarkable confession to a Harris county grand jury.

It seems that "Keggy" Jones was sent to the Texas prison system a youngster still in his teens. It is patent there was good material in him—a genius for organization that should have been salvaged to society.

In time he graduated from the "School of Crime" to which the State of Texas had sent him. Versed in the devious way of criminality, he bent his talent for organization to the forming of a gang of criminals that victimized an entire state.

"Keggy" Jones fell a victim, not to the law but to the lawlessness of criminals with whom he was associated. That the full story of the ramifications of his enterprise is now known, is due solely to the determination of one of "Keggy's" lieutenants that the men who murdered the "chief" shall pay the supreme penalty.

Such is the fruit of a system that sends youngsters to a prison where they mingle with past masters in the art and science of criminality. It is a damning indictment of Texas' penal practice.

Washington Letter

Nearly 50 Foreign Service Officers have Died or Been Killed in Line of Duty in Far Corners of the Earth.

WASHINGTON.—The State Department recently compiled a list of about 50 foreign service officers who have died in the line of duty and a bronze tablet with their names probably will be placed somewhere in their honor.

About nine out of 10 of these victims were consuls. Diplomatic officers in the foreign service go to capitals where their chances of survival are better.

Seven of them, mostly in the early days, were lost at sea. Five died in earthquakes or volcano eruptions. Three were murdered. Four died of exposure to extraordinary hardships and two were drowned trying to save a life.

Thomas Nast, the famous political cartoonist, is on the honor roll. In 1892 he obtained an appointment as a consul at Guayaquil, Ecuador, which was then a notorious pest hole.

In the last 15 or 20 years hardly anyone in the foreign service has died in an epidemic or from a plague common to the place of his assignment, indicating a general improvement in medical knowledge and sanitation in some of the posts once regarded as highly dangerous.

The consuls do the "dirty work" of the foreign service, in contrast to the secretaries of legations and embassies in the same grades of the service whose work is less arduous and whose social duties are more so. They represent practically every branch of the government and, to some extent, all business men and private citizens.

They answer trade inquiries from American business men and miscellaneous inquiries from others back home, receive and forward mail to travelers, advise tourists and salesmen and watch the welfare and whereabouts of traveling Americans as far as possible.

They work for the Commerce department in such matters as extension of trade and advising as to trade opportunities, the entry and clearance of American ships and discharges or desertions of seamen, and report to it on fisheries, light-houses and measures and standards. They report to the Navy Department on hydrographic data, light-houses, harboring and coaling facilities, wireless stations, port regulations, movements of vessels and various marine data. They report to the Post Office department on postal affairs. They tell the Agricultural department about crop and market conditions and estimates, plant introductions, weather, entomology, biology and so on.

They tell the War department, the Labor department—especially regarding immigrations, the Federal Reserve Board, the Justice department—on extradition matters for instance, the Interior department and the Shipping Board.

Thus, they are likely to be kept pretty busy, regardless of climatic conditions which may afflict them. Most members of the consular service are on salary of less than $80 a week.

Hungry Arkansas Last Year Is Now Land of Plenty

By LUTHER SOUTHWORTH NEA Service Correspondent

ENGLAND, Ark., Sept. 28.—Here in the hills of rural Arkansas, where hungry farmers staged a food riot last winter and the Red Cross fed starving thousands for weeks, the largest food and feed crops in the history of the locality are now being gathered and stored away.

Nobody is going to starve in Arkansas this winter, nobody even is going to be hungry. Every pantry is stacked high with canned goods, piled up by industrious housewives, barns are bulging with hay and corn and as soon as the first winter freeze brings "hog-killing time" meat will dangle from every hook in the smokehouse.

Grow Own Food The same brassy summer sun that last year burnt up the cotton crop and left a one-crop section without money to buy food has this year yielded food and foodstuffs in profusion. The disastrous failure of the 1930 cotton crop, brought on by the great drought, taught the farmers a long-needed lesson: they are now growing food for themselves and for their livestock.

Last winter, with a short cotton crop selling at 11 cents a pound and no feed or food supplies, thousands of indigent share-croppers survived on meager "one-cent a meal" Red Cross rations.

Although cotton has slumped to six cents a pound this fall, optimism prevails. There may not be much cash money but there will be plenty of food.

Improvised sheds protect much of the phenomenally large surplus, made possible by demands from the government and bankers for diversification when loans were made this spring.

Don't Need Aid Now C. E. Hankins, president of the Bank of England and head of the Red Cross unit of England, says: "We do not anticipate Red Cross aid this winter. We are swamped by the surplus vegetable and feed crops. Food is plentiful."

Local merchants bought 12 pressure cookers and sealers for free canning use in this area. The Red Cross distributed free thousands of cans. County agents have supervised canning.

"Sorghum, which has been scarce in recent years, is now found in every home. It suffices for sugar. "Sixty per cent of school taxes have been paid, and schools will open soon. The government will collect about 98 per cent of seed loans. Even with the six-cent cotton crop, planters will be able to pay last year's and this year's land taxes, interest on current loans and reduce the principal about one-fourth."

Farmers Give Surplus Mrs. Neil Fletcher, county chairman of the "Pantry Shelf" movement, has thousands of cans of food ready for charity distribution this winter if needed. "Farmers brought us their surplus vegetables," she explains. "Eastern Star, Parent-Teacher, Masonic and American Legion members donated money and their labor. The Red Cross donated cans. We are prepared to combat hunger without outside aid."

Of the 35,000 persons in Lonoke county, 27,500 received Red Cross aid last winter.

Although stocked with food and feed, sharecroppers will have but little money to buy needed clothes.

Similar conditions are reflected in Marianna, Forrest City and Osceola, centers in other parts of the Arkansas cotton belt.

"If each of the 5000 families in this county bought $100 worth of clothing, which they need badly, it would aggregate a half million dollars worth of cotton goods," says Colonel Eigan C. Robertson, president of the Lee County National bank at Marianna.

Pay Off Debts The first $100 each family gets should go for clothing. If the nation would follow this plan, the cotton price would soar. "The trouble is that families won't have the money for widespread buying of cotton goods. A production of 35,000 bales is expected in Lee county. Selling at $25 a bale, it would bring $875,000. According to Colonel Robertson, government seed loans and private loans total $435,000, meaning a net return of $440,000 for farmers. Most of this amount will go to persons holding second mortgages.

"But we are 100 per cent better off now than last year, mainly because of feed and food surpluses," he continued. "Each family averages about $600 worth of food and feed they did not have last winter. Many will be able to clear much of their indebtedness."

Thirty-two community steam canners, government's distribution of 1500 pounds of yeast for preventing pellagra, excellent health conditions, hay and corn rotting for lack of granaries—these mark the conditions in and near Marianna.

Marianna merchants sold more jars and cans this year than ever before. Blackberries and huckleber-

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

Here are some of the present-day styles in headlines: "Police Jail Pair Asking Free Meals." (Ought to be picking cotton.)

"Baker Drops Dead As Man Asks Bread." (Probably wanted shipped in bread.)

"Electric Company Earnings Decrease." (Well, whadya know?)

"Officer Apologizes to Man He Arrested." (Showing that courtesy of police is equal to that of prize fighters.)

"Tax Payers Will Organize." (Better organize loan fund to pay taxes with.)

"Injured Officer Hunts Benefactor." (Does he mean the person who ran over him?)

"Common Law Spouse Wins $25,000 Claim." (They'll do it every time.)

Now, the comment I added after those headlines are very little different from those people make in their minds. When you boil it down, a lot of us get no more than that from reading our papers. In other words, we just read the headlines. And what an impression we get of the day's news. The average headline writer is hunting words that fit the size head he wants to write and come nearest to conveying the idea of the story. If he can't have both, he makes the headline fit.

JUNK MAN IS PLAYING BIG ROLE IN MODERN INDUSTRY

By ALLARD SMITH Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.

The dealer in old metals, more familiarly known as the junk man, has become a factor of considerable importance to the country's industry. He is now part of one of the country's great businesses. Recently announced results of the first survey ever made of the scrap iron and steel business show that sales of scrap iron and steel in cities of more than 100,000 in a recent normal year reached the impressive total of $280,000,000.

This scrap iron and steel goes to ries grew abundantly and occupy an appreciable part of the canned goods supply.

See Better Times W. W. Campbell, president of the Bank of Eastern Arkansas, Forrest City, sounds the "new era just starting" in these words:

"Our people are in better circumstances with five-cent cotton, having abundant food and feed surpluses than other years when their restricted production to cotton that brought 15 cents a pound."

"We are starting better times," he continues. "At last we have succeeded in getting started on diversification. The farmer now realizes that he must be self-sustaining."

"With restrained credit, at a time when we have plenty of feed and food, farmers can be more independent. Heretofore, farmers were almost forced to grow cotton, because cotton is a cash crop, and it took cash to repay loans."

Thirty thousand received food and medicine from the Red Cross last winter in this country. Outside aid will not be needed again, says Campbell.

the steel mills for combination with iron ore in the making of new steel, and the figures of the steel industry show a constantly increasing use of scrap and a constantly diminishing ratio of new iron to the total iron and steel production. From 1920 to 1929 the consumption of scrap increased 61 per cent, while iron ore consumption gained only 10 per cent. Steel output gained 27 per cent.

In 1912 approximately 75 per cent of total iron and steel production was new iron from ore, the remaining 25 per cent being scrap. In 1929 the new iron percentage was in the neighborhood of 57 with 43 per cent scrap.

The increasing use of scrap in steel making has given new dignity to the cast off autos of ancient vintage and the salvaging of scrapped motor cars has become an important activity in industry. All this means conservation of our natural resources as well as reduced costs for steel, that great underlying commodity on which so much of our material prosperity is based. What is being done in iron and steel is also being done in rubber, tin, lead, copper and other materials.

We are not a wasteful people, although old world critics have many times characterized us as such. The American trait of wanting at all times the newest and best we are able to obtain is not waste. On the contrary it is an expression of our entire appreciation of a standard of living higher in this country than in any other.

All of the state highways in Hale county are now paved with concrete, a total of 67 miles radiating in four directions from Plainview.

Mental Hygiene Mental hygiene implies good food, temperance in all things, systematic work, suitable exercise, education in useful lines, boy scout activities, botanizing, walking (the automobile is used too much), establishing habits of self-control and respect for "mine and thine." These are all contributory to "mens sana in corpore sano." The latter is idealistic—there is no such thing as a (perfectly) sound mind in a sound body (even Roosevelt was near-sighted), but attainment so far as possible of the goal in view would mean much to the structure of civilization.—Dr. Morris Fishbein.

Horse Races on The Ritz Screen

Race horse fans, smarting under the period of inactivity at the Cow-boy park track, will have an opportunity to see some choice winners of the Gallente track in action today and Saturday, Bill Blair, manager of the Ritz theatre announces. "Sporting Blood," featuring Clark Gable and Madge Evans, comes to the Ritz full of thrills and of real scenes from the track, the trainers' stables and from Kentucky thoroughbreds. Scenes from the Kentucky Derby are shown. A splendid story runs through the film, with enough of the horse race drama to quicken the blood of even the most conservative. Exploitation of the picture is expected to become real Saturday when a Midland pony parades the streets bearing the banners of "Sporting Blood."

Richard Dix, ever-popular screen star, is seen in a new type of characterization in "Shooting Straight," all-talking drama which opened today at the Grand theatre. The role is that of a two-fisted gambler whose regeneration is achieved after a series of thrilling and dramatic occurrences. Dix has played practically every type of role during his notable screen career, and recently has proved himself to be a most capable farceur in light comedy parts. But in "Shooting Straight" he is brought back in a powerful, dramatic and red-blooded role that has been hailed by audiences and critics as one of his greatest characterizations. Dix is given a new leading woman in the production—Mary Lawlor, brilliant blonde actress from the Broadway stage. The two are said to form a most effective combination. The story concerns the re-birth of a big city gambler, with the theme handled in a novel and original manner. "Shooting Straight" promises to prove most popular with local audiences during its showing here.

SPORTS REPORTS

By R. C. HANKINS

The way some sportswriters dream and see visions makes one dwell on belief their only qualification for writing their daily guesses was a blow on the dome from a halyard pin. For instance, the Big Spring sportswriter is accused (or upheld) by Blondy Cross in the following:

"Rumblings from the west would indicate that 'Sherlock' Barry is on the job. It would seem that the Steers, McCamey, Angelo, and a couple of other district 4 teams are due to lose about half their first string material. It would be a big help to Midland should such a thing happen, for in that way only will the Doggies be able to win more than one game this year in class A competition. If Barry put in as much time performing the duties he is paid for as he does trying to find ineligible players on other teams his own team might be strong enough to go places regardless of the strength of its opponents."

Cross prefixed a lead to the pick-up, calls it "Old Popularity Plus," and lets the matter ride. He probably was thinking that San Angelo will have to play the Doggies before Midland engages them, and was having a smirk and grin complex at Mr. Williamson's shallow dabbling in wild guesses. Williamson shouldn't eat cheese before going to bed. We know nothing about the McCamey eligibility problem and doubt whether our friend from Big Spring knows where the town of McCamey is.

Incidentally, Big Spring will have a chance to protest McCamey, as will Angelo, before Midland takes on the tough assignment of matching wits with the Parkmen in Lackey field. If any protests are to be filed, we have our doubts of who will file them. Marcos and Blondy are throwing out something akin to a smoke screen, but we've an idea that in the murk moves a depleting line that is not made up of football men. School officials well backed with eligibility historians and research men can walk in smoke too.

Another note from Mr. Williamson expresses fear that his own town and San Angelo will be included in a probe. District 4 vs. McCamey et al. we take it—with our own rotund Napoleon acting as district attorney. Wonder if Marcos ever thought of whispering to Bristol about turning states evidence, along with his "Four Oklahoma Captains?"

San Angelo gets McCamey first and, judging from belated reports of this and that weakness on the Bobcat machine, may have to do a bit of protesting if they are to start the season off with a win. We refer to the following Cross-written paragraph:

"San Angelo high school football stock slumped miserably Tuesday afternoon when Taylor's proteges indulged in an act of kinship with the orphan junior college team. Patriotic sideliners shuddered at the thought of what a crack passing high school team likely would do to the home guard. The high school pass defense was almost no defense at all against the junior college spirals slung by Jimmy Russell and Clyde Parry usually into the arms of Red Haley and Smoky Brothers. The high school pass offense in turn was still worse, the junior college boys swarming all over the passer and the would-be pass-receivers."

We intended to attend the football supper given the squad by the athletic association last night. Our apologies to those kind enough to remember us. We also feel like apologizing to ourselves for we know we missed an interesting gathering. However, through the kindness of Jim Harrison and John Howe, the former being invited through his inherent good looks and the latter for his wise cracks, we got a laugh or two coming. It seems no one was billed to speak, so all cooed into their soup thoughtfully, coming up for air long enough to pull this or that bewhiskered crack. Howe, out of school for several years, allowed as how he understood that parallel lines would not meet unless one or both were bent. He asked Prof. Lackey if it were true that Algebra was the wife of Euclid. We didn't get the name of the fellow who was saying at the next table that medieval commerce was chiefly carried on in Venus. He should take a course in the Viennese opera. J. E. Hill is understood to have remembered his history to the degree that he could say with blandness that Martin Luther was nailed to the cathedral door in Wittenburg for selling papal indulgences. That Luther died a horrible death by being excommunicated by a bull was just an afterthought. Prof. Lackey has his cracks as well. He told of one of his failures to spell correctly in the letter that described Henry VIII having an abess on his knee "which made it rather inconvenient for him to walk." Burriss said Magna Carta allowed the king all privileges except ordering taxis without consent of parliament. McCall said the invisible armada hove in sight with purple sails and a fanfare of this and that in proportion. Ham Flannell (he would said a certain king had no father, so he claimed the throne through lineage connected with his grandfather. Harrison, who likes his stogies, said Walter Raleigh died in the reign of James I and started smoking.

Which reminds us that Midkiff was recounting a few weeks ago the famous Black Hole of Calcutta incident and said that forty Englishmen were shut up with one widow and that only four of them got out alive. Hallman said they gave William IV a lovely funeral; that it required six men to carry the beer. Other cracks, their sources lost in the choked soup racket: The Declaration of Independence was signed at—oh, at the bottom. The president's cabinet serves the purpose of holding the president's china. Mr. Millon is secretary of the treasury. Gender shows whether a man is masculine, feminine or neuter. Figurative language is where a man means rooster and says chandelier. The feminine of bachelor is ladies-in-waiting. The plural of forget-me-not is forget-us-not. A translation here recently of a famous Latin sentence: "Dido will come again with her second wind." Translation of the Roman LXXX, "Love and kisses." How one of the boys punctuated recently was the subject for much humorous appreciation. He said: "My brother was kicked because he was wicked in the seat of his pants." Letters in sloping type are in hysterics. When a lady and a gentleman walk, the lady should walk on the inside of the gentleman. One boy wrote in economics, "The theory of exchange, as I understand it, is not very well understood."

Observe the foregoing and following are arranged with little regard for coherence. One reason is: there is no coherence to be had. The second reason: ditto. Then too, we are in a hurry to go to the Big Spring-Stanton game at Big Spring. To resume these mistakes made by men and boys connected with the high school: M. Polcaire said "Every day every way I get it better and better." The wife of a duke is a duchy. Socrates died of an overdose of Wedlock. In the United States people are put to death by elocution. One boy, trying to quote Browning: "The pleasures of youth are great, but not to be compared to those of adultery." One who marries twice commits bigamy. A phlegmatic person is one who has chronic bronchitis.

It's time to close this nonsense (with reasonable apologies to the boys who said the foregoing) and go to the game. A last crack, this time coming from Howe: "Most bulls are harmless, but cows stare horribly."

Afterthought: We hope we get in. Our last reminder of the "free silver" days clanks dimly in our pocket—bringing up Robert Campbell, the Breckenridge sports scribe, bringing the following educational and entertaining and accurate item in his newspaper:

"Bill Mayes, the Ranger Times sports scribbler, losses voluminous for issuing passes to the press for all Breckenridge football games. Whilst doing so he heaves bricks at his own institution for making no provision in advance for handling newspapermen. He is quite right each way. Several towns we know of in the Oil Belt could learn helpful things by studying the method of handling press representatives here. For instance Abilene. Some day we'll tell you about the time the august Abilene gate keepers and ticket snatchers kept this department pacing up and down outside the fence for a quarter of a game, even though the Eagles happened to be playing the team we had been following all year. We even went to the extent of showing our strawberry mark right above our third rib. Finally a lady ticket handler allowed us to pass. Chagrined, now, she didn't grin. She laughed out loud at our embarrassment.

"Prexy Anderson, the Abilene sports writer, in the meantime was playing hare and hound up and down the sidelines, not allowing his slanting brow to wrinkle, because we happened to be on the outside looking in, with Abilene solons thinking we were Al Capone, 'One-eyed' Connolly the state crusher, Elonoy Cross."

Minister Warns He May Shoot to Kill

AMARILLO, Tex., Oct. 2. (UP)—His home robbed five times to make a grand total loss of $1,500 in cash and valuables, S. W. Kendrick, disabled Baptist minister, says he "can't stand it much longer." "What am I to do?" he asked. "I have come upon the thieves several times and have spared them by shooting close and scaring them away. But still they won't stop."

"I can't stand it much longer. I have been preaching in and around the Panhandle for years. A long time ago I bought this little place here when I retired. My health failed and I moved here, hoping to regain it.

"Although I don't want to kill a man, it looks as though I might have to stop this petty thieving."

PAINFUL SOLUTION

GENEVA, O.—Capt. I. D. Howard, walking in a pasture, noticed his dog, pigs, cow and cat running about and kicking up their feet in a riotous dance. The captain expected they had consumed some liquor, which might have been dumped in a spring from which they drank. He hurried to the spring to investigate. Just as he got there he leaped into the air and started to dance himself. He had run in a score of angry bees.

EARLY PRESS
A carved stone slab weighing more than a ton, believed to be one of the world's earliest printing machines and estimated to be more than 2,000 years old, has been brought to England from China.

Ford Restores Rural School
YPSILANTI, Mich., Oct. 1. (UP) The little red brick schoolhouse that was known as Willow Run until it was abandoned ten years ago, is the scene of activity this fall, as 30 children from the district study and play and recite in the same room where their grandparents were taught 72 years ago.

Willow Run school was restored because Henry Ford, the automobile magnate, noticed it. The broken windows, the sagging door and the decaying pine wood floor first caught his attention. Then he learned Frank Cody, superintendent of Detroit schools, taught his first class there 40 years ago.

Ford bought the school and the ground. The state was searched for white pine to replace the old floor.

Ancient desks were found, but only five of them. Ford workmen made 25 replicas of the five authentic pieces of past generation. An old brass handbell, such as called the children from recess decades ago, was located, even the paint on the wainscoting the same shade as when Cody taught the school.

When the school was opened this fall 30 children were on hand for the first class. Ford and Cody attended, as did many old-timers and a few one-time teachers.

A BIG PIE
One of the world's largest apple pies was recently baked in Birmingham, England. It was 12 feet long, 10 feet wide and 2 feet deep. It contained 450 pounds of apples, 150 pounds of flour, 50 pounds of lard and 28 pounds of sugar.

The PROOF of the pudding is in the advertising section

WHEN A WOMAN is called "gifted" at cooking, you'll probably find that she owes a good deal to her reading of advertisements.

For it's through the advertisements that the clever housewife discovers the tested—and trusted—food products which assure the success of her dishes. And it's through the advertisements that she discovers the many convenient and dependable appliances which make her kitchen tasks so much more simple.

She has found that advertised products will never disappoint her. She can always count upon them for unvarying quality, no matter when or how she buys them.

In fact, the wise hostess is always willing to stake her reputation on the trade-marked advertised product. For a responsible manufacturer has staked his name upon that product first!

Read the advertisements. They are full of vital, dependable buying news.

WOOD DRIVES TRUCK
 BERLIN—Germany has a new type of truck that burns wood for fuel instead of gasoline. The idea is new in this country, although a wood-burning truck has been successfully tried out by the U. S. army. The truck is equipped with a gas generator, which produces gas from the burning wood. Explosion of this gas in the truck's engine furnishes the driving power.

OFFICIALS COST TOO MUCH, GRID SURVEY REVEALS

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. — Dissatisfaction in regard to the excessive fees charged by officials for officiating at high school athletic contests is generally prevalent among school authorities, it is indicated by a questionnaire which has been circulated by Supt. Bonner Frizzell of Palestine under the auspices of the University of Texas interscholastic league. Of the 40 school authorities who replied to the questionnaire, 46 are of the opinion that fees for officiating at school contests are entirely too high. Ranging from mild protest to rather vigorous language, these 46 school superintendents and principals recorded their opinions along with constructive suggestions.

"In view of the fact that an organization exists among officials, with coaches as active or potential members, and with the universal desire that games be well officiated, there arises some difficulty in getting competing schools to accept capable men who are non-members of the officials' organization," Superintendent Frizzell pointed out.

"For the most part, satisfaction is expressed over the work of officials heretofore, but there is apparent a conviction that the cost of officiating takes too much toll from the gate receipts. In other words, officials appear disposed to 'take all the traffic will bear.' In one district, officials are reported as referring to others who take less than the prescribed fees as 'scabs.'"

Among the opinions expressed by superintendents and officials are the following pertinent comments: "Our expenses for officials are all right because of the fact that a nearby college coaching staff assists us. However, there is quite an organization of professional officials in this section who are trying to compel the Class A schools in this district to use their services."

"We have found that the outside officials are no better than local ones. We use local college coaches. It has some to them. We are unable to pay outside men and visiting team guarantees. The prosperous teams have spoiled officials."

"I think we should be content with more local officials. We send away for high-powered university men and the cost is burdensome and unnecessary."

"Coaches claim athletics emphasize good sportsmanship and fellowship. They draw the best salaries—are keenest for costly officials and usually want pay when they serve as officials. Literary teachers who get less pay usually serve as judges in literary contests for no pay and often refuse expenses. I often wonder if our literary teachers are better sportsmen and have more good fellowship than our coaches."

"We have tried to check the cost of officiating and have failed so far. Visiting teams usually refuse to accept any but high-priced officials. Our coach is under contract to charge for officiating on holidays and Saturdays only. Other days, schools favored, are to reciprocate. Other schools have not used him in two years on this plan. We feel that a limit of $5 plus expenses should be placed for each official for each game."

"About three years ago, this district agreed upon the fees which schools would pay officials: Referee not more than $15; umpire $10; headlinesman $5. We are pleased with the way this schedule has worked, for it has certainly helped to keep the cost of officials down."

"We have no difficulty with officials. We have good college men here whom we use largely."

"Our district has set a maximum of $15 for referee and $10 for other officials."

"If our competing teams will not be too exacting in requiring officials from too far away they would not cost so much. In our district each town gave the chairman of the executive committee a list of competent men available. We pay them $10 for referee work and $5 for minor officials. In many of our games where the relations of the schools are good, local men are used."

Ford Company Shows A Publicized Chassis

Since arranging for the special Ford exhibit which was announced several days ago by Homer Epley of the local Ford dealership, he has been successful in arranging for a most outstanding exhibit known as the "million-dollar Model A Chassis."

A cut-away motor is mounted in a regular Model "A" chassis frame, showing very clearly all rotating parts of the motor. The transmission and clutch are also cut-away, as is the rear axle assembly and wheels.

The name, "million-dollar chassis," has been given to this exhibit by people throughout the country who have been viewing this unusual Ford show. Expressions such as "million-dollar quality" have been suggested because of the strikingly demonstrated quality and refinement that the Ford Motor company, through its vast organization, has been able to build into all of its products.

All are especially invited to attend the Ford show, which will be held at the Cowden-Epley Motor company through today and Saturday from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Chicken Hits Auto And Almost Wrecks It, Says Traveler

When an automobile runs over a chicken it isn't news, but when a chicken almost wrecks an automobile the event assumes greater importance.

W. D. Sommers and wife, of Middletown, Ohio, driving eastward from Odessa this morning, encountered a black chicken on the highway. The bird started toward the roadside, as birds do, with ample time for escaping injury.

Apparently changing its mind the chicken turned back, saw the Ford coupe advancing at approximately 35 miles an hour, flew into the air and landed squarely against the windshield, directly in front of the driver's face.

J. Homer Epley, commenting on the incident while a new windshield was being installed, remarked that "Of course Mr. Sommers ran no risk because the glass merely cracked, instead of shattering and flying into his face. Shatter-proof glass, you know."

LOSES OLD TOPPER

Today might not have been unduly windy to some, but it prevented Johnson Wilmoth of Natchez, Miss., from winning a bet made 18 years ago with his brother, Art Wilmoth of Birmingham.

"I need a hat," he said in a Midland dry goods store. "The wind blew it into some of these wide open spaces I used to read about in my home town. I was out there near the airport, driving into Midland, and the last I saw of it was last night, still going in a general northerly direction."

Wilmoth said he had a bet with his brother that he could wear the hat 25 years, saying he had always lost his hat and that his brother presented the topper to him on his eighteenth birthday, together with a bet of $100 that he couldn't keep the hat 25 years—whether he wore it or not. He said he had worn the hat in 20 states and four foreign countries.

KEEPS HIS RECORD

Dick MacMahon of Tulsa kept his record of never missing a world series baseball game intact today but he had to come to Midland to see it.

He watched the Play-O-raph board relay in front of The Reporter-Telegram, driving all the way from Wink to see it.

He had not missed a series since 1911 until this year, he said.

MORE PUBLICITY

Midland is given the major place in the current issue of the magazine "Radford Grocery News" sent to grocers and others in West Texas and New Mexico. The issue is called a Midland-Goldthwaite number. The lead article is on Midland and is illustrated with seven Midland pictures. It was prepared by the publicity department of the Midland chamber of commerce.

FELT SICK AFTER EATING

"None of my food agreed with me — I would frequently taste what I ate, long after my meals, and I did not see a well day for weeks," says Mr. Peter Seeger, 329 S. Elmwood St., Kansas City, Mo. "I began taking a pinch of Black-Draught after each meal, and kept this up for weeks. Gradually the pain left me and I began to feel better. I ceased to be troubled with gas, and could eat what I liked."

Thousands of people have reported that Black-Draught, taken a pinch after meals, helped to relieve a feeling of distress, upset stomach or indigestion. Try it.

Insurance Test Ruling Returned

WICHITA FALLS, Oct. 2. (UP)—A test case will be made of the recent ruling handed down by Judge R. V. Gwinn and Irvin J. Vogel in justice court here in a suit seeking to levy against insurance money collected for clothing destroyed in a fire.

The defendant in the case was a negro whose residence was razed by fire. The negro collected $250 insurance on clothing which was destroyed. The plaintiff sought to levy for debt.

John Martin, defense attorney, maintained that a man's personal clothing was exempt from any levy for debt.

Judge Gwinn and Judge Vogel, the latter asked to sit in on the case, found that the law specifically exempts the clothing of a single man from such a levy but does not mention the clothing of a married man. The defendant is married.

Goodyear Makes Solid Rubber Tires

"After 33 years in the business of making tires, pioneering tire development for trucks, buses, passenger cars, even aircraft, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company is still making one of its original products—carriage tires. The carriage tire is a solid rubber tire applied to the wheels of buggies and carriages of this and other countries," said J. J. Willis, of Willis Truck and Tractor Company, local Goodyear dealer.

"Horsedrawn buggies still are in wide use in the mountainous sections of some states where paved roads have not penetrated, and the bulk of the market lies in mountainous states, although there is a widespread demand that covers nearly every state in the union that pushes back the so-called saturation point of automobile use to new and undreamed of frontiers."

"So, in this and other countries where buggies and carriages or their equivalent still are in use there is yet an untouched market that pushes back the so-called saturation point of automobile use to new and undreamed of frontiers."
