ROMANCE IN IMAGINATION

A chance phrase in a newspaper, now and then, can provoke dreams and memories; and surely there must have been a good many people who slipped into a pleasant bit of musing when they read a recent press dispatch saying that gunboats were patrolling the north coast of Cuba because two sailing vessels "of doubtful character" had recently cleared from the Bahamas.

Not that there is anything about Cuba's present troubles to set romantic notions adrift anywhere. But who, having been brought up on the tradition of pirates in the Caribbean, can fail to feel a warming glow when he learns that "sailing vessels of doubtful character" are lurking in that sun-warmed sea once more?

There are certain spots on the globe that are under the spell of a tradition, and always will be until men stop reading tall tales and mulling over the adventures of dead years. The Shenandoah Valley is Stonewall Jackson and his foot cavalry, England's Devonshire ports are Drake and his swaggering seamen, and the waters about Cuba are pirates and privateers, the black flag and the poised gangplank.

Of course, one must have a hair-trigger imagination to be stirred by a chance phrase of this kind. But that, after all, is a common possession. All the mere fact that these particular vessels are probably sneaking gun-runners under charter to Cuban rebels is not discouraging. We have to make the best of what we can get, these days. And to do that we have to be able to re-dream the old dreams. When we were youngsters, the world was a glorious place. There were pirates off the Caribbean islands, we knew full well; and in the back of our minds there was always the notion that some day, if fortune broke properly, we could go there and join them.

It did not take us long to find out the truth. But when we did, the world lost something of color and freshness. The Caribbean waters today are as safe as those of Lake Erie, and at bottom we secretly wish that it wasn't so. When we read that the warships are out to hunt "vessels of doubtful character," we can go back, for a moment, to the time when high adventure was waiting for us just beyond the horizon.

BUSINESS IS RECOVERING

There are signs, here and there, that a real business recovery is not so very far away.

For example, there is a report made recently by the White Motor Co., which manufactures trucks. During the last few months business firms have been ordering new trucks in substantial volume; in the first 10 days of this month 161 new orders were received, and the White factory, as a result, is a busy place these days.

Now this reflects some sort of revival in confidence on the part of a good many industrial leaders. No firm is going to buy new trucks in quantity unless it has good reason to believe that presently it will be doing more business than it has been doing in the past. This incident would seem to be one of the autumn's most encouraging developments.

FERTILE MANCHURIA

To comprehend the background of the current trouble in Manchuria, it is necessary first of all to realize that agriculture in the Orient is by no means the depressed and discouraged industry that it is in the United States.

China and Japan suffer from over-population. Their people often go hungry, not because of a business depression but because it is hard to raise enough food for them on the land available. And Manchuria is, potentially, one of the world's garden spots. Its soil and climate are much like those of the American middle west. It represents a fertile granary for hungry millions.

Recognizing that fact, one can more easily understand why both China and Japan are trying to get possession of the country. China is always hungry; Japan is always looking for room for her surplus millions. Their collision was inevitable—and, by the same token, it will not easily be settled.

Hard Times Have Hit Farmers and Workers in Varying Degrees but Everyone is Getting It Alike in the Neck.

WASHINGTON.—The depression, says Commissioner Ethelbert Stewart of the Bureau of Labor Statistics is playing no favorites.

The same government which has been listening to bankers with pleas for debt moratoriums and plans for a half-billion dollar bank relief fund has been making surveys that indicate that farmers, workmen and the white collar classes all have been getting it in the neck—to varying degrees, but always in the neck.

When you think of the "long-suffering" farmer and his troubles, you are likely to think only of the wheat and cotton growers, but the producers of fruits and vegetables, meats and dairy products are all hard hit by the drop in food prices which for most city families, is the only discernible silver streak in the big cloud.

Although the factory workers have been chief victims of unemployment, and heavy payroll slashes the miners and the oil field workers have suffered almost equally. And the government surveys show street car conductors, store clerks, hotel employees, and the like have also been laid off in quite substantial numbers. By the time you put all the facts together you realize that there probably isn't a single group which isn't in intimate contact with the depression or is without reason to pray for early revival.

When you learn that the index figure for the farmers' buying power now stands at 87 it means that the purchasing power as represented by their products has dropped 43 per cent from its average from 1910 to 1914. The index figure was 82 as late as last year, so it has gone down fast and far. The cause is seen in the fact that the index for farm prices has tumbled from 111 in September of last year to a new low record of 72 in the past September. But the cost of what the farmer must buy to maintain his family and run his farm has fallen only 20 points from one summer to the other. His buying power fell 35 per cent and his expenses only about 13 per cent during the year. Grain prices fell 50 per cent from September to September. The indexes also show declines of 69 points on fruit and vegetables, 42 points on meat animals, 30 points on dairy and poultry products and 36 points on cotton and cottonseed.

The treasury has revealed that the first quarter of the 1932 fiscal year, ending the last of September, gave the tipoff on members of the white collar class who make enough money to pay income taxes. Income tax receipts decreased 43 per cent from those of the first quarter of the year. An interesting sidelight is that miscellaneous internal revenue receipts declined less than 10 per cent. These are made up mostly of tobacco taxes, so it appears that smoking is going on about as usual.

A further glimpse at the white collar situation one cites reductions in payrolls of 13 per cent for street railway workers, 9 per cent for retail clerks and 15 per cent for hotel workers between the 1930 summer and the one just past.

Stewart says the net loss suffered by workers in manufacturing, during the accounts of the Texas A. & M. college student body of 2,200 for the first term of the present session shows that nearly 2,000 students profess one or another of fifteen religious faiths. The census, prepared by M. L. Cashion, general secretary of the college Y. M. C. A., shows the Methodist church leading in the student body with 613 members, the Baptist church second with 469 members and the Presbyterian church third with 210 members.

The Real Edison Record!

Edison Wrote Plea to God Asking More Years Life

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 20. (UP)—On the afternoon of March 17, 1930, Thomas Alva Edison stood in the Florida sunshine, and, on a battered piece of paper, addressed a plea to God asking for five more years of life.

He wanted it, not because he was afraid to die, but because his work, which was his religion as well, was unfinished. In the crowded 83 years of his life he had brought the almost limitless forces of electricity within the reach of any child able to push a button; he had distilled voices in wooden boxes and made it possible to preserve the arias of a Caruso; he had cut down time and space, linked the hemispheres with the thread of telephone wire; he had channelled the earth's ether waves and turned night into day.

But his death came in the midst of his most perplexing experiment. Waving aside the laws of the vegetable kingdom, he had sought to make the common golden-rod perform functions for which it was never intended. He wanted to extract from it rubber, a commodity of ever-increasing importance to a motorized world.

Asks for Five More Years. "Give me five more years," he scribbled on that March day, "and the United States will have a rubber crop that can be utilized in 12 months' time."

It was characteristic of Edison that he should be disappointed, because for him yesterday's triumph became insignificant in the excitement of tomorrow's possibilities. Edison, born in Milan, Ohio, February 11, 1847, violated virtually every canon in the typical American success formula except two—he was a poor boy and he worked hard.

Some of his violations of the code: He quit school as soon as possible and was at the foot of the class as long as he remained. He chewed and smoked. He was careless of personal appearance. He was discharged frequently from various jobs. He turned his inventive talent, in his early years, to cheating his employers out of working time. He was careless of personal property and frequently endangered lives with his chemical experiments. He scoffed at persons who insisted on getting the conventional eight hours' sleep a night.

Many Eccentricities. Edison evinced many of the eccentricities and contradictions commonly associated with genius. He was addicted to heavy, black cigars, but would not permit anyone who worked for him to smoke cigarettes. His knowledge of and interest in rudimentary business transactions were so slight that at 26 he did not know how to cash a check and when someone showed him how he took $40,000, obtained for his inventions, on a market-quoting machine, in $5 and $10 bills and sat up with it all night because he did not know how to open a bank account.

Edison sacrificed thousands of dollars because he was indifferent about protecting his patents. His mind, energetic and briar-like when applied to a scientific problem was incapable of accurate retention of words and phrases and when he tried to write from memory the verse from Gray's "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard," beginning "The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power," he made a mistake in every line.

Often neglecting to buy new suits even when his clothing was threadbare, he insisted on wearing silk nightgowns and carrying India silk handkerchiefs a foot square.

ADMINISTRATION AGAINST PLANS FOR U.S. JOB AID

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (UP)—The Hoover administration looks as coldly upon various employment stabilization "plans" that involve "Hippo was his favorite author"; "The Birth of a Nation" and "The Covered Wagon" in motion pictures. He read newspapers three lines at a time instead of by words and his mind sponged up information quickly.

Unsentimental about most things, his only regret concerning his deafness was that he could not hear the song "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," a sentimental ballad. He resented talking motion pictures, and shortly before he died expressed the desire to see "Clara Bow or Mary Pickford in one of the good old silent films."

Edison's humor was designed to be humorous to no one except himself. Two examples: "When I was a baby I lived on milk and didn't like it. Now I have gone back to milk again. That's funny."

"I've been working two shifts most of my life. Lots of other men work two shifts, too, but devote one of them to poker."

Never a publicity seeker, Edison minimized the importance of his own inventions. He was prepared to accept $2,000 for his stock quotation machine, and was speechless when offered $40,000; he believed the chief benefit of his incandescent lamp was that "it helped keep the world awake." Oversleeping and overeating, he contended, were the two greatest human vices. Edison's four hours of sleep nightly have become legendary, although his friend, Harvey Firestone contended the inventor drowned during the day.

any government participation as it does upon proposals for direct federal appropriations for unemployment relief. It will use its influence in Congress against plans of such character, which are expected to be offered at the coming session, symbolized for the moment in the elaborate and comprehensive measure drafted by Senator Couzens, millionaire Michigan Republican. This would require an outright contribution by the federal government to be lumped with contributions from states, employers and employees to form an unemployment reserve fund.

Official Position. This is the official position of administration leaders at present as gathered in private conversations with them. The administration is sitting very tight and making no commitments on the various suggestions which are being offered so freely to meet the problems which the depression has intensified. The administration goes farther by withholding any open endorsement of stabilization plans in which private industry alone would participate. The most discussed one at the moment is that sponsored by Gerard Swope, president of General Electric. The president's unemployment organization set up here is a clearing house for such propositions, and charged with considering all such proposals. This committee is expected to go slow, just as the administration is going slow.

Swope Plan Later. One high administration official gave expression to this waiting and watching policy by saying that such a plan as that offered by Swope might come later, but nothing of the sort appeared necessary at this time. All the influence that President Hoover could bring to bear upon industry was ineffectual in preventing wage reductions, though it is generally credited with holding them off for a longer period than in any other depression.

The administration now has taken a position of silent opposition to wage cuts, but with officials generally conceding that with the cost of living way down there is no further use of agitation on the subject.

The American Federation of Labor is continuing its open war on wage cuts. High wages is one part of its program, which also embraces the five-day week, stabilization of industry, and guarantee of at least six months' work a year by employers to their minimum work force. But the federation has not endorsed unemployment insurance, or old-age pensions, as a governmental measure, thus refusing to take a position advanced by some members of Congress. Under the Couzens plan, a reserve fund equal to one and three-quarters per cent of the annual industrial payroll of the country would be established through a 30 per cent contribution by the government, 30 per cent by the states based on their pay roll totals, 25 per cent by the employer and 15 per cent by the employee. This fund would amount to $2,039,750,000 in 10 years. It would be handled jointly by the federal reserve system and local banks. The Swope Plan sets up an elaborate system with industry for workers' compensation, old age pensions, life and disability insurance and unemployment insurance. Industries would be organized in trade associations which would have power to regulate production through agreement on trade practices and control. The government would supervise the plan through one of its agencies. The difference of views on methods of employment stabilization plans was manifest when American

VALUE OF FARMER'S DOLLAR IS HIGHER FOR INDUSTRIAL GOODS

Executive Vice President, The Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O. Crop statistics indicate that agriculture in 1931 has experienced about an average year, with yields per acre nearly normal, although 11 per cent greater than last year, when serious drought ruined crops in many parts of the country. Aggregate yields of seven leading cereals total 5,061,000,000 bushels, a gain of 6.6 per cent over 1930. Corn and winter wheat increased substantially, while oats, barley and spring wheat dropped.

While the outlook for an abundance of cash in the near future is not encouraging for the farmer, he has the assurance of ample food supplies, in contrast with conditions in many drought stricken areas last year. In truth, this year the farmer's condition is generally more favorable than that of great numbers of industrial workers in the city. This fact is being reflected in the "back-to-the-farm" movement now definitely under way, as shown by the somewhat better demand for farms in some parts of the country, and increasing farm population as shown by government statistics. How far the country has carried industrialization in the last century is seen in the figures showing that in 1830, 7 out of 10 of the gainfully employed were tillers of the soil, while in 1930 only 3 out of 10 were so employed.

STYLE CHATS WITH Alma Archer

Always trying to lighten mother's burden that's what we do. "If it isn't the front door, it's the back door. . . My, my, mother's work is never done!" (No doubt you remember that old toast better than we, as we're just a girl of 30 summers, after all).

But for months, we've been wondering howinell to keep our liquid nail polish on 40 minutes after our new manicure, if we persisted in washing dishes and getting our hands all soaky in hot water. And just when we couldn't fight it out any longer, little man, along came a great, big, beautiful fairy who whispered to us about a new dishwasher that has a chromium attachment that fits onto any hot water faucet. Attached to this is a long rubber tube, and attached to the tube is whichever brush you wish to use, one for pots and pans, and one for glass and china. The soap is inside the attachment, and you should see the hot suds rush through the brush and make a game out of dish washing.

Baptist Women Elect New Officers at Monday Meeting; Missionary Program

Election of officers, devotional, Royal Service program, and business were combined in a meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the First Baptist church Monday afternoon which was attended by approximately 50 women.

Talks by the Rev. and Mrs. Winston Borum, new pastor and wife, of the W. M. S. program were also principal parts of the meeting.

Mrs. M. R. Hill was re-elected to the presidency of the society; Mrs. C. N. Swanson was named as vice president; Mrs. R. V. Lawrence as secretary and treasurer and Mrs. L. A. Grantham as young people's leader. These officers will serve for a one-year period.

The Bible lesson opening the program was brought by Mrs. W. W. Wimberly.

AGGIE-BAYLOR GAME AT KYLE FIELD IS EXPECTED TO HEADLINE ATTRACTIONS

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 20.—Headlining the Southwest conference gridiron program for Saturday, Oct. 24, in interest probably will be the Texas Aggie-Baylor university game on Kyle Field at College Station because it will be the only clash between member teams of the conference. The renewal of football rivalry between the two schools after a four-year interval will mark the thirtieth game between the Cadets and the Bears.

Football relations between Baylor and A&M first began in 1899 and continued with only four short interruptions until 1926 when athletic relations between the two schools were severed. The Aggies have won twenty of the twenty-nine games played and the Bears six. Three were deadlocked at the final gun and two of these were scoreless. The Aggies have rolled up a total of 370 points in these encounters and the Bears 163 points. Three games were played in 1901 and 1903 and two games were played in 1902, 1904, 1905. The Aggies and Bears did not play in 1900, 1906, 1907, 1910, 1914 and 1915.

Since and including the 1920 season the Aggies and the Bears have broken even in their contests, for each team has won three games and one game ended in a tie.

The all-time record of the Aggie-Baylor games is as follows:

Year	Aggies	Baylor

SPORTS REPORTS

By R. C. HANKINS

This department is in receipt of two football tickets to the TCU-Simmons game to be played in Abilene Friday night. Casual talk in coffee places and on street corners, not to mention a bit of buzzing in church Sunday evening, discloses quite a large delegation from this village will be in the stands to see the initial kick-off. People are beginning to realize that Simmons will slip up on TCU some fine evening after dinner. That nothing to nothing affair last year is held an augury. Abilene boys who forsook advantages at Simmons and went to A&M would have a peculiar sensation at reading of a Simmons upset of the Purple Tóads after last week's game in Fort Worth.

On vacant lots that stretch in the shadows of Lackey field we find boys of the junior high school playing football each afternoon. What would surprise one more than the fact they elect to play the game in street dress is their surprising knowledge of the game. Odd points that would baffle several good football players of District 4 are quite simple to the midlets. We saw Bill Flowers of the black and blue polishers of Big Spring hesitate before returning an attempted place kick in a game this season. None of the wee ones of junior high would stop at returning the ball, even if it lodged in the referee's pocket. A sure method of making men for the future is to encourage play among the lower grades. That was how Coach Paul Tyson of Waco built his miracle club. When he quit paying attention to the lower grades he began starting lean years. Coach Morrison of SMU raised objections to letting physical education be conducted in a gymnasium there. He asked that the boys be given a football and turned loose. He watched from a distance. Several men who had never been interested in football, high school days or otherwise, were scouted and made into good material. Some of them went into the north to play under the spotlight of national publicity.

You fellows who keep up that doleful song about Midland's place being in Class B again should remember you were carrying the bass section when the move to enter Class A started. While our voice is not tuneless enough to enter a chorus and is nearer falsetto than bass, we did carry a mean tenor in support of the shift to faster company. We still maintain we should be in Class A—but we solemnly affirm that to stay there we must go about building a Class A team in a Class A manner. And that means, among other things, that we must have more football material. There are various ways to get more material. One may take a trip of inspection to the Indian territory, or some of these eligible bachelors must kick in and pay the preachers for saying words over a joining of hands. For immediate purposes, the former method might be more efficacious, even though our high school grid mentors may protest our statement as violating the spirit of the rules.

To answer a chorus of questions: No, no game this week, or none we have been informed of. McCamey plays in Big Spring Saturday, and there's the university game in Abilene the night before. Sweetwater is in Colorado Saturday, but you, no doubt, would like to see a football game—not just a track meet in football clothes.

Long-whiskered lads of Soviet Russia must play football according to a scratch-chin system of ethics, if one may believe what he reads. Even football must serve the purposes of socialist upbuilding in the Soviet union, the Moscow board of physical culture recently ruled in expelling several players and reorganizing several teams accused of infringing Soviet ethics.

A special conference was called by the board to consider alleged hooliganism on the football fields. In its statement to the press the conference declared: "Football if properly organized, has great educational importance, creates habits of collective struggle, prepares warriors on the front of labor and defense." The behavior of some players, it proceeded, has been "tearing away the mass of football players from political and social work." The collective struggle "apparently was carried to the point of undue roughness on the field." Besides punitive measures against teams and individuals guilty of misconduct, measures were taken to prevent excesses in the future. Courses of training for umpires were among these measures.

ONE-YEAR RULE IN SPORTS WILL BE FOUGHT FOR

PALESTINE, Oct. 20.—Classroom teachers, as well as school executives and athletic coaches, will be given an opportunity to define the place and part that athletics should have in our public high schools at the annual convention of the Texas State Teachers Association to be held in Amarillo beginning on Thanksgiving day, according to Bonner Frizzell, superintendent of schools here and a member of the Executive Committee of the State Association.

Resolutions dealing with high school athletics, presented by Superintendent Frizzell, were recently approved by the State Executive Committee at a meeting held in Fort Worth and will be offered for adoption at the Amarillo convention. The resolutions commend the work of the University Interscholastic League and approve athletic contests "as having wholesome educational values when properly conducted by school authorities." Certain practices are condemned "as being contrary to the purposes for which our public free schools are maintained, and other as violative of high ethical ideals and correct moral standards." Among practices condemned are

A Bouquet for Bill

Clyde Park, the McCamey mentor, puts in his vote for little Bill Harrison, San Angelo's triple threat quarterback, who either set, San Angelo up for a touchdown after touchdown Saturday in the game with McCamey or flipped a pass that netted a touchdown. Harrison slipped off the McCamey tackles and over the McCamey ends in sensational manner. He flipped six passes, five of them completed, two of them with touchdowns appended.

The McCamey coach said after the game that Harrison is the next best football playing article he has ever seen in Texas high schools. —Blondy Cross, San Angelo Standard-Times.

In Fast Company

Buster Mitchell, the Sweetwater grid artist who starred with Davis & Elkins when that little school was pushing 'em all over the east, is playing professional football this year, being teamed up with the Spartans, of Portsmouth, O., in the national professional football league. He spent the summer in Sweetwater.

Other members of the Spartans makes the roster appear something like one of these "all" teams. Among its members are Schwartz, of Washington State, Emerson of Texas, Peterson of Texas, Holm of Alabama, Roberts of Iowa, Bodenger of Tulane, Lumpkin of Georgia Tech, Wager of Carthagen, Sienek of St. Mary's, Randolph of Indiana, Presnell of Nebraska, Long of Southern Methodist, Alford of Texas Tech, Shelby of Texas, Armstrong of Missouri, and Douds of Washington and Jefferson.

Guns Pop Armistice Day

Things should ride along comparatively easy in the district, now that McCamey and Midland have practically been eliminated, until Oct. 31 when McCamey comes to Sweetwater. The big boys of the oil field might be able to popple the Mustangs, who should have a clean slate after the Colorado game.

Then, though, comes Big Spring on Armistice day and from all indications the whole town will move here on the holiday. They took a special train to Midland last week.

This week, while Sweetwater is playing Colorado, the McCamey and Big Spring elevens are to mix at Big Spring.

—Millard Cope, Sweetwater Reporter.

Careful, Now

Inasmuch as Abilene's Elephants—Eagles, if you prefer—defeated Brownwood's Lions by score of 34 to 6 on Saturday afternoon, the win is not as impressive as the score might seem at first glance. The lowly Lions made 13 first downs against the Elephants and scored one touchdown. The passing defense of the Elephants was noticeably weak and pass after pass was completed by the Brownwood crew.

Any team that can make 13 first downs against the Abilene defense is either strong or the Abilene defense is weak. The latter would seem to be the case as Brownwood is admitted the weakest team in the district by far, and is not doped to win a single game during the season. They lost to Cisco by a score of 32 to 0 and never threatened to score throughout the entire game against a team that Cisco admits is not all it could be.

Bill Mayes, Ranger Times.

Verily!

R. C. Hankins, the Midland journalist, recently charged that San Angelo, Sweetwater and Big Spring have football teams built on "questionable transfers" and that the Saturdays and holidays. The Inter-scholastic League is urged to adopt the "eight semester rule," which would bar contestants after four years of high school attendance, and the "one year transfer rule," which would bar athletes for one year after changing from one school to another.

In commenting on the resolutions, Superintendent Frizzell, a former three schools seem to have an understanding not to fuss at each other about it, making McCamey, Midland and Colorado the fall guys. Commenting on Mr. Hankins' missives, R. C. Campbell, the versatile Breckenridge Buckaroo, remarks:

"They'll grow up out there in a few years. Then they'll know there is absolutely nothing to this transfer business. They should be thankful, anyway, that San Angelo is not playing the venerable Scrap Iron Grimes again. He is, we understand, now an outstanding linesman on the Old Men's Home squad."

"We never did know exactly how old the iron man was, but we have suspicions that he can easily recall when bustles were the rule rather than the exception."

—Blondy Cross, San Angelo Standard-Times.

college athletes and ardent supporter of athletics, said the Executive Committee of the Teachers Association was not apposed to athletics but was seeking to correct abuses that are hurtful to sports and to the schools. "I think the good now outweighs the evil," he said, "and a better case can be made for athletics than against them."

"With a crowded curriculum and classroom teachers under stress to do good school work in a five day week, we are confronted during the football season with a school week of four and a half days with schools in a frenzy of work demoralized on Fridays."

"The adoption of the semester and transfer rules will correct many of the abuses that are now hurtful to school sports. It is well known that many athletes willfully fail courses or void graduation requirements in order to continue another year in football. This practice does the boys an injustice, imposes burdens on their parents, keeps bona fide students from playing on the teams, and wantonly wastes public funds."

"The transfer rule, with reasonable modifications, will stop proselyting and subsidizing of high school athletics, a practice that has become notorious throughout the state. Few fans will put up money to hire an athlete to transfer from one school to another if a year must pass before he can play. More home boys will have a chance to represent their schools on a purely amateur basis."

"I NEVER READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS"

YOU know this person. He thinks he is telling the truth. But quiz him and he will recite the make of his motor-car, his hat, his shirt, his suit, his shoes, his tooth-paste, his towels, ad infinitum . . . with the accent of the "ad." In other words, they are all advertised products.

Why, he could no more escape the presence and the power of the printed word than he could evade eating or sleeping. The advertisements are a definite part of contemporary American life. Their messages are vital to daily existence. They have a definite association with the pocketbook, than which there is nothing more intimate and personal.

The important thing is not merely to "read the advertisements," but to read all of them. The one advertisement you "didn't see" may contain information you would have given a great deal to possess. Certainly, it is as important to you to know that Smiths are having a sale of sheets or shirts, as to read that Congress will hold a special session!

BIG SPRING MAN MURDER CHARGED AT LAWTON, OKLA.

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 20. (AP)—Murder charges were filed here Monday against Big Meeks of Big Spring, following a Sunday motor car accident in which one man was killed and another injured.

Boy Scouts--

Hamson; presentation of second class badges, Claude O. Crane; presentation of first class badges, G. W. Brenneman; presentation of merit badges, John P. Howe; recognition of Eagle Scout Jack Lawton, address, "Importance of Scouting," Winston P. Borum; dismissal, "The Scout Oath" repeated in unison and taps.

Ritz Player Can Ab Lib as Wants

The red-headed Irish-American New Yorker who is star of Warner Bros. farce "God's Gift to Women" now at the Ritz theatre, is one of the few comedians who can think of the right thing to do and say on the spur of the moment, to get the laugh—in other words, he is an adept in the rare art which people of the entertainment part call "ad libbing."

Even the teddy bear he impersonated in "Babes in Toyland" at the age of seven, gave evidence of his latent imitative genius. Broadway took him to its sophisticated heart in "The Passing Show," "Oh, What a Girl," "Girl of Mine," "Arbitrators and Models" and those clever bits of foolery which he acted and produced under the name of "Frank Fay's Fables."

There is a definite reason why every individual should especially appreciate scouting, in addition to the general interest in boy life. For instance, take a certain troop with which we recently dealt. Note the particular reason for interest in the troop of the men (or scouters) connected with it. One committee man was father of one of the boys, and considered the program an asset in training his boy. Another was a banker and valued the teaching of thrift and honesty. Still another was an insurance man and appreciated the helpfulness of the prevention part of the program. The fire insurance rates were recently lowered in that city three per cent because of a program headed by the scouts.

"The former court of honor chairman was superintendent of schools and recognized scouting as a valuable asset to the carrying out of his duties, promoting honor at exam times as well as all others. When he moved, he was succeeded by the city mayor who was especially interested in the citizenship training of the program. He assigned a civic task to the boys on their 21st birthday of last year, of beautifying the city and fire prevention work. He recognized the law authorities have no trouble with, but are aided by the boy scouts.

"As a pastor, I have always been interested in the program as the most valuable asset for the church's program for the spiritual welfare of the boy. And so, we might go on and on, and show how every citizen has a definite reason for being interested in the scout program other than his general interest in boy life. "Not long ago an Eagle scout from Shanghai, China, walked into my office in full uniform and merit badge sash. We sat and chatted together and were soon close friends on the common grounds of boy scout work. As we talked I thought of how this great boy movement started some 25 years ago in England, had grown. Only 21 years old in America, yet having over a million boys now enrolled with around a quarter of a million scouters lead-strong odor and refused to yield them. The man and woman departed and several hours later the trunks were opened.

One of the slain women apparently was in the early thirties. Her face had been beaten in and was unrecognizable.

The other, whose body had been hacked into pieces, was younger, apparently about 20, and had red hair. She had been shot and her face also had been crushed as though in a deliberate attempt to prevent identification.

The older woman's body was in the larger trunk and had not been dismembered. Police said the condition of the bodies indicated the women had been slain within the last two days. In the larger trunk was a long broad knife, bent but not blood-stained.

As police were marshalled here and at Phoenix to solve the mystery, it was announced an envelope in one trunk bore the address "Hedvig Samuelson, 529 Portland street, Phoenix, Ariz."

Both women, it was determined, at the county morgue, died from bullet wounds. Preliminary examination showed the younger woman had been shot at least three times. The other woman had been shot in the temple.

Railroad officials said both trunks left Phoenix at 8:10 p. m. Sunday, and a railroad message from Phoenix said the person sending them gave a fictitious name and address.

El Paso Opens Utility Fight

EL PASO, Oct. 20. (AP)—The city council announced Monday it would demand reductions in gas and electric light and power rates here in line with recommendations of experts employed to determine whether existing rates were fair both to the utilities and to the public.

Representatives of a Kansas City engineering firm, after an exhaustive survey of investments, income and operating expenses of the Texas Cities Gas company and the El Paso Electric company, recommended reductions of 13 per cent in electric light and power and 2 per cent in gas rates.

The council said if reductions were not made voluntarily by the utilities the next step would be passage of an ordinance putting the reductions into effect.

Estimates on cost of building municipally-owned light and power and gas distribution plants and the potential savings of such plants were included in the experts' report.

Utilities officials did not say whether the rates would be reduced, but indicated their men likewise were preparing a survey of investments and income and would make a report to the council.

CHICAGO GRAFT SCHEME AIRED; JOBS BOUGHT

CHICAGO, Oct. 20. (UP)—One man was arrested today and several were questioned after reports that a graft ring collected huge sums selling jobs on the police and fire department force.

It is reported that the ring has operated several years, selling jobs to more than 30 men. No jobs higher than lieutenant were sold. Positions of lower ranks cost from $1,000 to $3,000.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor: In my recent visit to Midland, the home of my girlhood, it was a joy unspeakable to meet many friends of "auld lang syne." These renewals of old associations add so much to the rich lustre of life. But there was one friend of these morning days who was missing—Sylvia Garrett, whose very glance radiated tenderness, sympathy, and loving kindness; and whose warming effect penetrated the very soul of those whom she loved. Sylvia, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Garrett, grew from childhood to womanhood in Midland. Hers was a rarely beautiful nature—selfish, reserved, and modest. It was in the sacred precincts of home where the sweetness of her life shone in its greatest beauty. Through weeks of suffering she looked calmly into the future and did not falter, but with a fortitude born of her supreme faith in Jesus of Nazareth, she approached the end as one who knocks at the gates of eternal morning. To live in the hearts of those we love is not to die. In God's Acre her body sleeps, and there we paused, breathed a prayer above the sod, and left her to rest and God. Sincerely, Mrs. Ethel Jackson Means. El Paso, Texas.

Wickedness to "Destroy" a City

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20. (UP) Reno's "wickedness" will destroy itself, believes Mrs. John C. Urquhart, law enforcement chairman for the General Federation of Women's clubs.

Speaking at a meeting here, Mrs. Urquhart said: "Reno clubwomen neither aid nor combat abuses of the divorce colony and the wide open gaming laws. They ignore them. They feel that these laws will be short-lived because, like sin, they will destroy themselves. It is easy to ignore them because they exist only in one part of the town. The rest of Reno is just as fine as any other American town."

"Prominent citizens of Reno are agreed that no benefit has accrued to the city through its lax divorce laws," she concluded.

90 Die as They Disregard Poison

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 20. (UP) Disregard of the "poison" warning sign, the grim skull and crossbones on a bottle or package, cost 90 lives in Pennsylvania, during 1930, the State department of vital statistics reported.

Bichloride of mercury was taken mistakenly for aspirin in five cases. One woman drank liniment intended for external application in mistake for medicine. Another person took phenol poison, thinking he was drinking a prescribed tonic. In another instance, a gargle solution was not properly diluted. In several cases pills were eaten by small children who thought they were candy.

The department urged greater precaution in administering and in storing medical supplies which in certain forms and under certain conditions are poisonous. For the most beautiful and most economical Christmas cards to be had in Midland, see Mrs. H. A. Rountree, Phone 77 for appointment.—Adv.

TO MOVE DEER

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20. (UP) The State Fish and Game commission may attempt removal of deer from farming localities of California to hunting districts following the presentation of a plan at a conference session of the conservation committee of the state chamber of commerce here.

Marin county will be the scene of the first experiment, where protected deer of the Tamalpais game preserve have become a menace to the property owners by invading farms and gardens.

Comparatively tame deer, fearless in visiting human habitations, will be the first to go. Salt will be used to entice them into corrals. Then they will be shipped to hunting areas of Mendocino, Humboldt Lake, Napa and Sonoma counties.

The plan has been approved by farmers and sportsmen.

"ABOUT a year ago, my health was not good," writes Mrs. W. F. Stivley, 8800 First Court, N., Birmingham, Ala. "I felt weak, tired. I had pains in my back. I knew by these symptoms I needed something to build me up. My mother advised me to try Cardui, which I did. I found it was what I needed, for it built me up. THE "HIDDEN QUART"

That Stays up in the Motor and Never Drains Away

OTHER OILS DRAIN AWAY FROM MOTOR PARTS BACK INTO THE CRANKCASE

GERM PROCESSED OIL NEVER DRAINS AWAY FROM VITAL WORKING PARTS

PROVES ANY OIL WOULD BE BETTER OIL IF GERM PROCESSED

Other good oils lubricate working parts after the motor starts and oil is pumped from the crankcase through the motor, which takes several minutes. But Germ Processed Oil stays up in your motor at all times and lubricates working parts safely during the starting period... when almost half of all motor wear takes place! A "hidden quart" stays up in your motor and never drains away. Only Germ Processed Oil can give you this sure protection at all times, because only Germ Processed Oil can penetrate and combine with metal surfaces... an exclusive characteristic called "penetrative lubricity." So you can see... any oil would be better oil if Germ Processed!

But only Conoco makes Germ Processed Oil... for Conoco owns exclusive patent rights for North America. Don't be contented with oil that lacks the germ process. Stop at any station displaying the Conoco Red Triangle and fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. Save your motor from wear... keep it young and powerful!
