Invited to Sit in a Debt Parley at White House

ALBANY, Nov. 14. (UP)—Reports at the state capital said today that Governor Roosevelt would make public tonight a reply to the invitation by President Hoover to a conference at the White House on the war debt problem.

The executive mansion, where the governor remained in seclusion today, refused to divulge any information and it could not be learned whether he would accept or reject the invitation.

Search for Lost Padre Mine Under Way at El Paso

EL PASO (UP)—A search for the famed "Lost Padre" mine, extolled in legend as one of the richest ever discovered, was under way here today.

Seven men are digging in the recesses of Mount Franklin, at the edge of the northern city limits, about seven miles from the center of El Paso. They are employed by Mrs. Marguerite Hubbard, an El Paso woman who believes "that's gold in them thar hills."

Her "Lost Padre" claim and two others, the "Aladin" and the "Hornblende," adjoining it on either side, have been registered in the El Paso county claim award records.

Mrs. Hubbard said that an old Indian medicine man of Juarez told her about the abandoned shaft on the mountain in June. After a long search, she found the opening, she said.

She said that after digging 27 feet down the supposed abandoned shaft, her men came to a solid slab, which took 100 sticks of dynamite to blast out. At a 32-foot depth the shaft turned at an angle, and there were stone posts at five feet intervals.

Mrs. Hubbard showed reports of two assays that she said were made of specimens taken from the mine. The reports from an El Paso assay office showed $3,577 gold per ton and $3.50 silver in one assay, and the other showed $1,447.60 gold per ton and $8.95 silver, Mrs. Hubbard said.

Mrs. Hubbard said another shaft had been said to be connected with the old shaft from the north. She said she intends to start a company to exploit the mine and that she has been assured financial help. She gained attention recently from a "radio metal finder" which she asserted would indicate the presence of metal under the ground. She said, however, she did not use her "finder" to locate the abandoned shaft.

Mayor's Proclamation

Every thoughtful citizen knows the inestimable value of the services of the American Red Cross.

It is the only agency so organized to effectively relieve distress resulting from floods, tornadoes, and other national calamities which cannot be anticipated or averted.

It is the agency that has made possible the distribution of flour and clothing from government wheat and cotton for the needy of Midland county.

All will realize that at this time, especially, the Red Cross must be liberally supported in order that it may be prepared to carry on its splendid work.

Membership in the Red Cross should not be regarded as a charitable gift. It is the discharge of a patriotic duty.

I, therefore, as Mayor of the City of Midland, do hereby set aside Nov. 14 to 21 as Red Cross Roll Call week and urge all our appreciative citizens to answer "here" with their memberships in this roll call.

(Signed) LEON GOODMAN, Mayor of the City of Midland.

Woman Writer To Take Trip

CLEVELAND. (UP)—It's a foolish wife who devotes her time to taking care of her husband, according to Mrs. Edna Bob Webster, whose book "Occasional Wife" was recently released.

When a wife follows her husband around trying to make him happy, nine times out of ten she is making him miserable," the novelist stated.

And because she practices what she preaches, Mrs. Webster will leave her husband and children in February and sail for Yucatan on her second trip into the interior to seek relics of the ancient Mayan civilization.

During most of its trip, the expedition will study the primitive life in the region, but Mrs. Webster plans to be in Merida, the capital city of Yucatan for the annual carnival in March.

"We plan to study the contrast between primitive and cultural life in the region," Mrs. Webster said.

Hotels in Merida are veritable palaces with Moorish columns and colonades. Contrary to general belief in other countries, the higher type of citizens of Merida are well educated, highly cultured people.

"There were more millionaires in Merida in 1915 than in any other city of its size in the world."

Few Dry Wins In Wet Fights

WASHINGTON.—Nearly half of the 48 states may have voted against prohibition through referendum by the time Congress encounters the wet-dry issue once more at its short session this winter.

This is by far the biggest year for direct popular votes on the issue, and although only nine or 10 states are now in a position to permit the sale of beer in case congress legalizes it, the winning vote is believed to number are likely to be headed by several state legislatures at their forthcoming sessions.

A dozen states will vote on their own enforcement acts or on the merits of the eighteenth amendment. Those whose voters will declare in mandatory or advisory referendum for or against the state codes are Arizona, California, Colorado, Louisiana, Michigan, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oregon and Washington.

The question of repealing the federal amendment is before the voters of Wyoming and Connecticut, while Louisiana voters will decide whether the state should petition congress for resubmission.

The wet, riding on the great tide of anti-prohibition sentiment reflected in the major party platforms are just confident enough to believe that they will win victories in all 22 states.

Six states have repealed their own enforcement acts. New York, Nevada, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Maryland never had such an act. Illinois two years ago voted overwhelmingly for repeal of the state act and the amendment, and when the legislature sought to carry out the mandate was balked by the governor's veto.

At the time of the democratic primary this year, Texas voters cast their ballots three to one for resubmission.

In addition to these 21 states certain others are suspected of being wet because of their choice of wet candidates in statewide elections, including Ohio, North Carolina and Maine. In Louisiana, Pennsylvania and Missouri the legal definition of intoxicating beverages is dependent on the Volstead act.

Since 1926, the largest previous referendum year, the trend in such popular votes has been all to the wet, except for a single minor defeat. The general momentum of the wet tide lately has caused all referendum, advisory and otherwise, to be (See LIQUOR FIGHT page 4)

Breaks Air Records With Broken Neck

BRISTOL, Eng. (UP)—Breaking flying records with a broken neck is all in the day's work. Capt. Cyril Uwins, British pilot who recently set a new world's altitude mark.

Uwins crashed during the war and broke his neck. A doctor was the first man on the scene and strapped up the airman before he was removed from the wreckage. Since that time he has worn a metal brace to hold the vertebrae in place.

Going higher aloft than man ever has been before in a plane (the corrected barograph showed 43,976 feet, or almost 8 1/2 miles) did not impress Uwins as much of a feat.

"Just a nice comfortable trip, a little job of work I had to do after lunch," was how he described the venture. And about the only reason he came down when he did seems to have been that his gasoline was running low.

Cold? Yes, the tips of his fingers were numb. Uwins admitted that the thermometer registered 104 degrees of frost, or 72 degrees below zero. But with an electrically-heated flying suit, goggles, shoes, and helmet, the flyer was comfortable enough, he said.

Uwins was most interested, not in the way he himself reacted to the ordeal, but in how his machine reacted. He used a Vickers "Vespa," equipped with 550-horsepower supercharged Bristol Pegasus engine. Surprisingly enough, the air at 40,000 feet was extremely bumpy, but because resistance was so slight in the rarefied atmosphere, Uwins attained a speed of 130 miles per hour, although the air-speed indicator showed only 53 miles per hour.

WASTE AND EDUCATION!

Thousands of young people enrolled in American colleges and universities today have no business to be there, and would serve both themselves and the institutions involved if they withdrew and gave up all thoughts of getting any more education.

This is the statement of Dr. Albert K. Heckel, dean of men at the University of Missouri, in a recent interview. Anyone who has ever bothered to look into the matter will be inclined to agree with him.

That, of course, does not mean that a college education should be withheld from any ambitious and deserving youngster. What it does mean is that thousands of youngsters are in college today simply because they have a notion that it is the correct thing to do. They don't want to be educated; they are, in fact, not susceptible to an education. They simply clog the wheels and waste the efforts of the institution they attend.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

Folks, I've been slandered. About two years ago I promoted a new hitching rack and, through the cooperation of Raymond Lawrence, Dee McCormick, John Howe and Lynn Butler, it was erected right across the street from our office on the lots owned by Goodman and Elkin Bros.

Now, along comes Old Erasmus Tack, who writes that famous column in the Amarillo Globe and News, and says that hitching racks are about to come back in the small towns.

He tells of an interview he had with a grocer and the latter told him of Bovina in which the grocer said, "Horses are coming back and my customers are asking for a hitching rack and I intend to put up one." Tack tells the grocer that he will drive over to Bovina with a photographer and will see that a picture of the hitching rack is published in every newspaper in the United States.

"It will be the first new hitching rack erected in the United States in the last 15 or 20 years," Tack said.

Now, I don't want to "incinerate," as Pop-Eye says, that Tack doesn't read the papers, but I claim that every daily newspaper in Texas service by the Associated Press and the United Press carried a story when our hitching rack was built; and Tack should give us some credit for what we did two years ago.

Midland isn't a country town exactly, but there are plenty of cowboys.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Nov. 12.

Among the passages read from the Bible was the following from I Corinthians 15: "Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality."

The following citation together with others from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy was also read: "Mortals will disappear and immortals, or the children of God, will appear as the only and eternal varieties of man. Mortality is finally swallowed up in immortality. Sin, sickness and death must disappear to give place to the facts which belong to immortal man. Learn this, O mortal, and earnestly seek the spiritual status of man, which is outside of all material selfhood." (p. 476.)

ADVENTURE CALLS

EL PASO—The call of adventure is still strong says Tracy Richardson, famous soldier of fame. When asked if he had any projects in mind he said: "You never can tell, I may jump off at any minute." As a machine gunner under Carranza, Villa, and numerous Central American revolutionists he earned from $100 to $250 a day. He headed several peaceful surveying expeditions in to Central America and was arrested in Texas charged with using the mails to defraud. Richardson says he's innocent.

FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By R. C. HANKINS
TCU 14, Texas 0

That brief reminder is about the only excuse for this incessantly poor column today. We feature it to remind those more cocky partisans of Texas university that they might just as well whistle "The Eyes of Texas" in observance of Ma Ferguson's election—the strain would have an off-key significance when applied to football!

Before tapping this and that out of rather confused recollection, we must warn you there is more to come on that great Southern game. It likely will be carried serially in this column the remainder of the week. There are various reasons for the intention. The game was the greatest this department ever saw. We hail from the Fort Worth university on the hill. We have had no chance all year to handle a decent sports story. We have had so many Texas boasts ringing in our ears, read over our shoulders, pounded into our ribs ad infinitum. No matter how conservative we tried to be in writing or talking of a probable TCU victory the opposition kept howling in minor keys of what the Wharton Terror, the Terrible Koy, the Hilliard Express or the Machiavellian Clavis would do to the Royal Purple pile forward line. There are other reasons—most of them the same except in degree, and the degrees were high in the calibrated sports arena. It is strange that we should have more than the usual satisfaction?

There's little time for gathering one's wits, less time for hitting deadline on sports, little space for carrying copy volume—and less inclination for marking cessation of mental elaboration over the game's outcome. But this we will ask you to consider: TCU not only beat Texas, BUT BEAT TEXAS CONCLUSIVELY. Always a threat because of its brilliancy, potential power in every department of offense and defense, a consuming esprit de corps and what do you have in the way of football names, Texas hammered away all the way toward the TCU constituents frightened to the temperature of a carbon dioxide icicle and as weak at times as a WCTU tomato cocktail—but that awful and falling drive of the Broodingnagian Purple frontal attack had Texas supporters gibbering like a bunch of African monkeys disillusioned with their race after catching a missionary and finding they resembled remotely the inferior human race.

It was a battle of brute strength and flashing muck against a hurried campaign through the ozone. That All-America TCU line with masterful precision loved with the Texas forwards, tossing them about as a child does its toys, playing all

Football Game Scene of Murder

An unusual kind of mystery melodrama, under the title of "10,000 Witnesses," opened at the Ritz theatre yesterday, and kept the audience in breathless excitement from the moment Walter Clark, star half-back for the State eleven, dropped dead during a sensational run in the State-University game, until several reels later, his murderer was found at the Ritz today.

For Clark, of the story, whose role is ably played by Johnny Mack Brown, is found to have been murdered, although both the killer and the manner of his death are unknown. No shots are fired, his body bears no marks of violence and he had been in perfect physical condition before the game. It takes a re-enactment of the crime—re-creating the fatal game, play by play—smoke in any coach (the women smoke 'em too, as you possibly have reflected while looking over the old family album) was more adaptable to sensible talk and we sat in the dining car with Mr. and Mrs. W. Pratt and talked religion, education, sociology, football, apologetics and other matters we don't know anything about, enjoying, albeit, the contributions made by Mr. and Mrs. Pratt. They visited with Pratt's brother, a high official of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and one of the few, so far as others tell us, of the officials of that board who is working all hours to accomplish the purpose for which the organization was perfected. Both are well informed on the subjects mentioned and, surprisingly enough, Mrs. Pratt was just as well versed in football as her husband. What the country needs is more women who appreciate sports to the degree of forgetting shop and settling down to intellectual (sports) conversations with the men to whom they said "yes" once upon a time when orange blossoms rather than the odor of cooking cabbage were the essence surrounding them.

Among the sick list: Prof. Lackey, Lingo, Bryan Henderson, the whole back end of this printing establishment, and Mrs. E. R. Thomas. They were soap box orators in the Texas cause. All have a greenish complexion in the face. First time in my life I informed. He made a trip to our desk every day last week, sent marked newspaper articles to us, laughed in a high pitch at every word we used in predicting a TCU win, said Messrs. Koy, Stafford and Hilliard would hit that TCU line for a few downs and shred it to tatters and finally knock out everyone that got in their way. What we want to know is who are Messrs. Koy, Stafford and Hilliard? And how does it happen to be true that if these boys are so superior they failed to gain an inch during the first half of the game and precious little either through the air or otherwise all the game—when the loss from scrimmage is figured? Texas rushed 18 (eighteen) yards during the first half and lost 19 (nineteen) at the same racket. We have plenty of other figures if you are incredulous. Credulous, or incredulous, if you don't want to read about the game, you'd better turn to the comic page for that's the only place we can't give you something on it for the next day or so.

Any mention of Armistice would suggest something on the excursion on the Texas & Pacific. About 70 of us boarded the Thursday evening train. A noisy, rowdy bunch at times, today as Texas U students of today at other moments. We don't mean all 70, but part of the hundreds on the train were organized to shoot the works or suppress those who were shooting them. No fatalities save for a few barked noses, about four fellows allegedly tossed off the train on account of asserted hoodlumism. No sleep for anybody, even in the Pullmans. On the way back the atmosphere, still unbereft of cigar and cigarette

Will Rogers at Yucca Theatre

Will Rogers' newest comedy, "Down Earth," is at the Yucca today. It is said to focus all the brilliance that has made him the keenest and most quoted observer in the country today. While in a sense the picture is a continuation of Rogers' first talkie, "They Had to See Paris," its theme and locale are completely different.

The story opens with Rogers as "Eke Peters," the Oklahoma millionaire, back home again with his family after their Paris jaunt. The stock market is shot to pieces, and Peters is greatly worried, but his wife has an insatiable desire for social honors and his son aids her in extravagant spending. The failure of a bank forces Peters to apply for a local loan, and that failing as a result of Mrs. Peters' love of elegance and display, he goes to Chicago with the same result. How he gets his family down to earth again forms the basis of the situation.

"Down to Earth" is called the most important picture of Rogers' career. It was written by the author of "They Had to See Paris," Homer Crox, specially to fit the star's talent. Irene Rich, who appeared as Rogers' wife in his first two talking pictures, again portrays the socially ambitious spouse who brings about most of his hilarious troubles. Matty Kemp, whose work on the first few days of the production won him a long-term contract, enacts the role of the irresponsible son, and Dorothy Jordan that of the boy's childhood sweetheart who steps aside in favor of her wealthy rival. Burke, who plays the part of the local loan, and the Grand Duke "Mike" of the earlier picture, re-creates the role in this new film and Mary Carlisle plays the part of the spoiled "deb" who sets her cap for young Kemp. Clarence Wilson, Brandon Hurst, Louise Mackintosh and other noted character players are in the supporting cast. Edwin Burke wrote the screen play and dialogue from Crox's original story. David Butler directed the production for Fox Films.

regarded as virtual mandates to state legislators and other officials. Some of the most ardent drys in congress have long since agreed to abide by the result of any referendum in their states.

Only four of the last 16 state-wide referenda have been won by the drys, and none since 1923.

In 1926 California barely sustaining her state enforcement act and to bring about the solution of the mystery.

The film has been most ably directed, for the action is unlagging and the suspense is sustained to the final moment. The performances, too, are of a high calibre, particularly the work of Phillips Holmes as the team's quarterback, who is suspected of Clark's murder; Dorothy Jordan as Clark's sister; Charles Ruggles as the gin-drinking reporter; David Langdon as the detective in charge of the case; Kenneth Thompson as the team doctor; Lew Cody as the gambler-brother of Holmes, and J. Farrell MacDonald as the coach.

It's a first-rate thriller, well worth seeing.

OFF MAGIC CARPET

Baron Munchausen: That big snozle in front of the elephant is his trunk? Charley: Yes! Baron Munchausen: Then I guess the little one in the back must be his overnight bag.

Walter O'Keefe's pet name for his friends is "Toots."

Jack Pearl has expressed his desire to play a role like David Warfield's in the "Music Master"—something that will live on in the theatre.

Howard Clancy, Magic Carpet announcer, was a member of the NBC dramatic staff before assuming his present position.

Contrary to general belief, the Magic Carpet signature, "Happy Days Are Here Again" is not a recording, but is played at the beginning and end of each program by a studio orchestra under the direction of Louis Katzman.

OLD CARS, BAH!

DAYTON, O.—In these days of trying to make the old car last just one more season, imagine the speechless joy of five persons who had brand new automobiles driven up to their homes this week and the bills of sale handed them without the exchange of a penny.

Frigidaire Corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, played Santa Claus and presented cars to the five leading entrants of its recent sentence building contest requiring the writing of a sentence based on the letters in the words, "greater food space," a feature of Frigidaire's new models recently announced.

E. D. Kruse, 536 Surf street, Chicago, got a Cadillac sedan; Mrs. Katie H. Fabio, 323 Maxfield street, New Bedford, Mass., is driving a luxurious Buick sedan; Miss A. V. Strang, 50 St. Paul's place, Brooklyn, N. Y., has an Oldsmobile sedan; Nelson B. Wells, 418 Pleasant street, East Milton, Mass., was given a Pontiac eight; and Miss Helen M. Unger, 832 W. Mulberry Street, Springfield, Ohio, has a Chevrolet.

The awards were announced by H. W. Newell, vice president in charge of sales, after a committee made up of Lowell Thomas, noted reporter; Miss Katherine Fisher, director of Good Housekeeping Institute, and Missouri did so by an overwhelming vote. Colorado voters rejected a proposal which would have allowed intoxicating liquors if and when not in conflict with federal law.

In the same year Montana repealed her state act. Nevada voted for federal repeal and New York, Illinois and Wisconsin voters declared for modification of the Volstead act by large majorities.

The only subsequent dry victory was that in North Dakota, where the state enforcement code was retained by a small margin in 1928. Massachusetts that year voted for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and Montana voters refused to reenact state enforcement. Wisconsin voted for repeal of her state act in 1929.

Illinois voted overwhelmingly in 1929 for state and federal repeal as well as modification, while Massachusetts and Rhode Island voted for repeal of their state laws. The latter referenda were the surprising wet victory in Texas this year.

Action Picture Comes to Ritz

Packed to the brim with action—and bulging out the sides! That's "Steady Company," Universal's two-fisted romance of a fighting truck-driver and his telephone girl sweetheart, co-featuring Norman Foster and June Clyde on the Ritz screen Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Steady Company" is refreshing in its originality. There are prize-fight scenes between handsome Foster and pugacious opponents that will have you holding on to your chair in your excitement and there is romance that will thrill you.

Henry Armetta, capable Italian character actor, and ZaSu Pitts, the incomparable and ever-popular comedienne head a top-notch supporting cast that also includes J. Farrell MacDonald, Walter Miller, Jack Perry and Willard Robertson. Edward Ludwig directed "Steady Company."

Spell out "S-t-e-a-d-y C-o-m-p-a-n-y" on the top of your "must see" list.

TITULAR STRUGGLE

The Sul Ross State Teachers college Lobo football team will meet the strong Daniel Baker Hillbillies from Brownwood here on Friday, Nov. 18, in a crucial T. I. A. A. championship game.

Although the Hillbillies lost their games by a close score, they are strong in the conference. Last year the Hillbillies were doped to win the conference, but a strong Lobo team took the day. This game will be another grudge affair and since team rivalry is intense it promises to be a hard fought contest. Sul Ross must win this decisive game in order to capture the conference championship.

Are You Hesitating About Buying the Things You Need and Can Really Afford?

Does timidity or fear of criticism keep you from doing a real service to the country and to the unemployed?

It is true that many people have been hard hit by the depression and are struggling to make both ends meet. We all know it is difficult for them to make many purchases beyond the bare needs of existence.

There are many thousands of men and women, however, who are still receiving a fair income and who could be of tremendous help in aiding the business revival. All you need to do is to buy the things you need and can actually afford.

That doesn't mean that you should buy extravagantly, wastefully, or recklessly. It simply means buying what you need when you need it in a normal, natural way.

Have you been hesitating about buying because of timidity or a fear that you might be criticized? Exactly the reverse should be true.

You are doing a real service to the country, to the unemployed and to yourself when you purchase the things you need and can afford to buy. Every purchase that you make now—large or small—helps to create work and wages for those less fortunate than yourself.

When you buy a new dress or a new pair of shoes or a new radio or a new refrigerator or a new car you help to give work and wages to people in many sections of the country. When you have the house repainted, rooms repapered or the roof fixed you directly assist other deserving workmen—perhaps in your very neighborhood.

Nothing you could possibly do for those who need help could be more helpful or resultful than this. Sincere, honest, deserving people everywhere would rather have work than charity. That's the big, broad humanitarian side of it. The other side is what it means to you personally to buy the things you need and can afford to purchase now. Never were such bargains available. Never were prices so low.

But price isn't everything. Today, as always, quality is the important thing to look for. It pays to buy standard, trade-marked merchandise from firms you can depend on. You're almost always disappointed when you experiment with some unknown brand just because it is cheap.

From day to day in this newspaper are advertisements featuring many unusual values. Read them and take advantage of the opportunities they offer. Business revival will be speeded up if people will again buy the useful, necessary things they need and can afford to purchase.
