McCamey Board's Ouster of Superintendent Sustained

FOOTBALL GAME SUPPLIED CAUSE FOR DISMISSAL

State Supt. Decides Compton Concealed Plan from Board

AUSTIN, Dec. 3. (UP)—State Schools Superintendent Rogers sustained the McCamey school board's dismissal of Superintendent C. V. Compton in a dispute arising out of a football game played at San Angelo instead of McCamey, when he made a ruling Saturday afternoon. The board contended Compton let the game go to San Angelo, concealing the arrangement, after the McCamey Lions club and business men had been assured by the superintendent McCamey would get the game if the town built a grand stand and sodded the gridiron.

EVICTED DREW MUCH ATTENTION

The ouster move of Compton resulted in much interest in District 3, Class A circles. As a result of asserted duplicity on the part of the superintendent, a district meeting was held and two counting games between San Angelo and McCamey scheduled, one to be played in each town. McCamey went to much expense to prepare for the game, only to find it scheduled at San Angelo, the McCamey board said.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Moore were reared in Midland.

Wink Bests Snyder In Saturday Game

Wink high school defeated a crack club from Snyder Saturday, 7-6 to win the bi-district tilt that advances the Wink county club to a game with De Leon next week in the Class B division of the state schoolboy race. Bottling up McClinton, sensational quarterback, so that he could not stage any of his characteristic wild dashes for touchdown, Wink scored early in the game after three rushes at the line after recovering a punt McClinton muffed on his own three-yard line. Wink added the extra point and blocked the try for added point that followed the Snyder counter in the third period.

SCHOOL BOARD ALLOWS SPLIT TAX PAYMENT

Date Extended from Nov. 30 to Sat., December 10

In response to a limited number of requests from tax payers in the Midland independent school district for the privilege of splitting tax payments this year, the school board, meeting in regular session, adopted a resolution permitting split tax payments this year, and extended the date for the first payment from Nov. 30, the date for state and county first payments, to December 10 inclusive.

The revised statutes of the forty-second legislature, providing the plan for the split payment of taxes, stipulates that a tax payer may pay one-half of his taxes on or before November 30 and the other one-half at any time on or before July first following. This provision for split payment of taxes applies automatically to all state and county taxes, but the matter is left optional with city authorities and independent school district boards as to whether they shall allow it or not.

The Midland board of school trustees decided to grant the request for split payment of 1932 school taxes, and extended the time for the first payment of such taxes from Nov. 30, the legal date for the first payment of state and county taxes to December 10, the last provision being to accommodate those tax payers who made application too late to secure the privilege before November 30.

Those trying to find the identity of the child were puzzled. She was found in the street between National and First National banks by Mrs. G. E. Jones. She and her husband brought the 3-year-old child to the chamber of commerce office, where the questions were asked.

With head, skin, feet and entrails removed the carcass actually weighed 120 pounds. It was fat, a male cat that had killed many sheep and goats for ranchmen before the youth's dog and rifle got him. A deer hunter at the same time got the companion of this panther, another male almost as large.

THE TRAGEDY OF DIVORCE

A New York woman and her divorced husband got into court not long ago to squabble over the custody of their 8-year-old daughter.

Their divorce decree had ordered that the child stay with one parent for six months and then with the other for an equal length of time. The father, in this instance, was complaining that the girl was being kept from him; the mother was countering with the charge that the girl didn't want to stay with her father at all.

Taking the matter under advisement, the court remarked that "parental affection cannot be instilled by court orders"; and it is too bad that that remark cannot be impressed on the minds of all married folk, especially those who are making eyes in the direction of the divorce courts.

The increase in divorce in this country in the last decade or two is tragic chiefly because of the children involved.

A child whose parents cannot go on living together is robbed of something unspeakably precious, something to which it is by rights entitled; an undivided home in which it can draw affection and guidance from both its father and mother.

A man and a woman who decide that they must separate take a heavy responsibility on their shoulders when they agree to take that right from their child. Under the best of conditions, the child is going to suffer enough; but how much more tragic does it become when the father and mother can't agree on the child's custody and have to go to court again to have the matter straightened out!

And it is the welfare of the child that is usually lost sight of in the tussle. The bewilderment and loneliness that a youngster must suffer in such circumstances are hard to think of calmly; and it is hard to sympathize with the parents when they complain bitterly that they are losing the child's companionship and affection. Of course they are—and why not? They have done the child a profound wrong. What do they expect?

SPEED LAME DUCKS' PASSING

Franklin D. Roosevelt does not take office until next March. However, it is already apparent that he will have a tremendous influence on the government policies that take shape between now and then. He and President Hoover are trying to shape a mutually satisfactory stand in the war debts; the short-term Congress is looking to him constantly for guidance and advice.

All of this adds one last, clinching argument to the case for the now pending 20th amendment to the Constitution—the lame duck amendment which would abolish the short session and cause a new president and Congress to take office at the beginning of January instead of the beginning of March.

That amendment must be ratified by 19 more states. Let us hope that their action can be prompt.

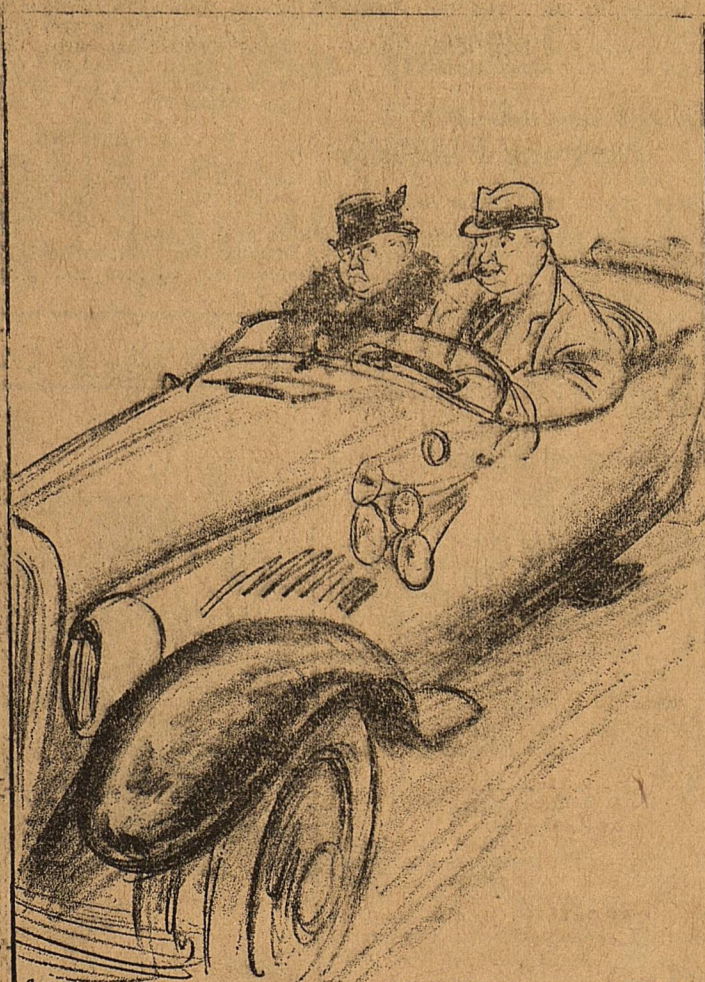

EDITORIAL NOTES

Three Bolivian soldiers walked into a Paraguayan outpost, hands in air, to report that 170 of their companions were lost in the jungle and perhaps facing the horrors of hunger and thirst. The Paraguayans immediately sent out searchers with provisions. The incident is enlightening—though it may leave some persons wondering more than ever why the dispute in the Gran Chaco must take the form of violence.

The new liner Conte di Savoia makes a successful trial run, and its gyroscope, the largest ever built, keeps the ship on a perfectly even keel. Will it be necessary now to set up somewhere on these ultramodern liners a row of seasaws so that old-fashioned travelers may get their accustomed "kick" out of going to sea?

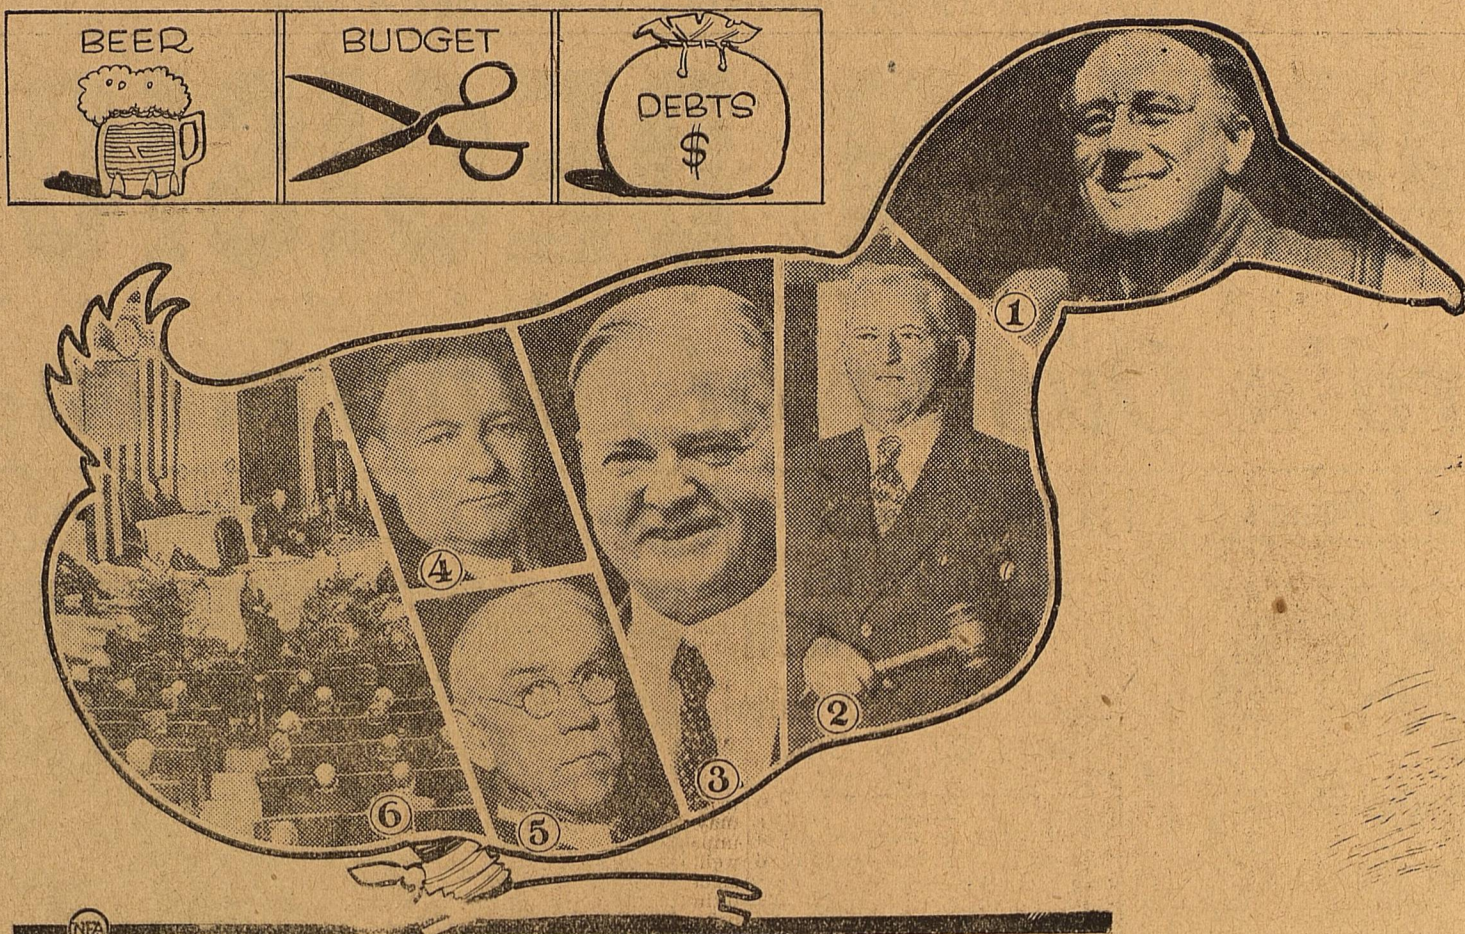

In these days when so much is heard of employers cutting down salaries and employees being obliged to accept them, it is pleasant to read that the officials of the Eton Rural Council in England themselves proposed that their own salaries be cut and the council refused to listen to them.

Lame Ducks Quack Last Time Mon. When Big Problems Face Congress

(1) Franklin D. Roosevelt—will the president-elect guide the lame duck session through (2) Speaker John N. Garner, or will (3) President Hoover's be the guiding hand? The lame duck's last quack (4) Senator Reed Smoot of Utah. (5) Senator Reed Smoot of Utah. (6) The senate scene.

By RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer WASHINGTON.—This session of congress, in which the last lame duck must sing his own swan song, will become the most hysterical—perhaps the most hysterical—as well as the last of the short sessions.

Problems of magnitude without parallel will confront it and circumstances without precedent will provide its unique background and influence its deliberations. All citizens are hereby warned that this is not the overwhelming democratic congress elected in November. It is the 72nd congress, elected in 1930, which wrestled only a few months ago with issues which now loom more menacingly than before.

Power is almost equally divided between democrats and republicans—who have a bare paper majority in the senate, which is nullified by the presence of several republicans who supported the democratic ticket. This session will take its official advice from President Hoover, who may wield the veto power against his decisions, and its unofficial advice from Franklin D. Roosevelt, now powerful than any previous president—and influencing most of those decisions.

Separated only by an arduous political campaign from its hectic, hasty period of budget-balancing, economy and taxation last spring and summer it must tackle more vigorously than ever those same problems of budget-balancing, economy and taxation, worrying about war debts the while.

It will make laws in cognizance of the worst winter of depression, unemployment and suffering ever experienced in America, beset by unceasing cries for federal relief of every type.

It will try to kick prohibition, the most controversial national issue since slavery into oblivion—with wet majorities in the same congress that only last spring voted dry at every opportunity.

It will mark the retirement of the last of the famous republican old guard, whose remnants—principally Senators Reed Smoot of Utah, James E. Watson of Indiana, George H. Moses of New Hampshire and Hiram Bingham of Connecticut—have been voted into private life after long public careers.

It will see the end of the balance of power long held by the republican progressive group in a republican senate, although new progressives in the next congress are expected to insure a larger progressive voting strength and those in this congress will be as powerful and aggressive this winter as ever.

It will hear the angry cries of thousands of militant unemployed persons and farmers who have struggled toward the capital to protest economic conditions, throwing many Washingtonians into hysteria and causing unprecedented plans for official suppression.

Business of Money It will make, perhaps ineffectively, the most serious effort thus far toward slashing the huge appropriations for war veterans, now running into a billion dollars a year.

It must accomplish the essential business of any short session, enactment of appropriation bills which are necessary to keep the government operating but which usually raise such controversies as lead to many days of protracted debate.

It will feature in another great role that famous democratic house leadership which the republicans and Hoover plastered with invective throughout the campaign and which is still commanded by Speaker John N. Garner, probable chief mouthpiece at this session.

It will fret in constant doubt as to whether it can within less than 60 legislative days accomplish enough budget-balancing, prohibition reform and farm relief to avoid a special session of the congress which comes into being after its own demise on March 4.

In the face of all this comes the threat of filibusters in the senate—prohibition and sales tax being among the danger spots, which might tie the congress in a knot.

The Ducks Will Limp If they develop, the session will also be seeing the last of the filibusters. One aim of the Norris lame duck amendment to the constitution which undoubtedly will be ratified by the requisite number of state legislatures this year, was to eliminate filibusters in abolishing the short session.

Another possible complication is in the lame ducks themselves—well over a hundred of them in the house and a dozen in the senate. Defeated in their campaigns for re-election lame ducks are traditionally sore, reckless, hopeful of appointive jobs or hopeful of future re-election—all factors likely to guide their votes. They will be watched with unusual interest, chiefly because their number is so enormous during this last of the lame duck sessions. The next congress elected, under the amendment, will take office in January and go into session at once instead of taking office in March and going into regular session the next December.

Decision of house leaders to arrange a prompt vote on repeal of the 18th amendment is only one indication of the desire of nearly all the leaders to break records this winter on an enormous mass of work. These good intentions may not be much more successful than they usually are, but they are certainly more pronounced.

Hoover or Roosevelt Neither democrats nor republicans in general, want a special session. But there is a great doubt whether one can be avoided. If any vociferous demand arises for one it probably will come from the progressives.

No one can tell yet the extent to which the official influence of President Hoover and the unofficial influence of President-elect Roosevelt will be found in the same channels. Pronounced differences of opinion lead to checkmate. On the other hand, there is a new sense of responsibility among the democrats and a fuller realization of realities in the national emergency.

What President Hoover wants and does not want is indicated in his message to congress. What Roosevelt wants, aside from the fact that he does not want to reopen the war debt question now, is:

- 1.—Beer, a beer tax and no other new taxes, and important economies. 2.—An amendment to repeal the 18th amendment. 3.—A farm relief measure. If congress will deliver those things at this session, he may be able to avoid a special session.

Some of the measures Roosevelt favors are among those which must be left over. As long as their majorities are tiny and Hoover can veto legislation, the democrats would only be wasting time to attempt tariff reduction, other tariff legislation or a Muscle Shoals bill. And in view of Hoover's past animations of the equalization tax and the export duty, it is not at all certain that they will now be successful in any attempt at major farm relief.

EDITORIAL PAGE PLEASE By MARION F. PETERS The need for a constructive and stabilizing scouting program is more than ever acute in hectic periods of financial stress when unemployment multiplies leisure hours, when youthful ambitions are defeated and the morale of the home breaks down through the feeling of insecurity, non-support and helplessness.

Scouting meets this situation with a program of recreation on a low cost basis, both to the individual and to the community. It provides recreation through participation in creative activity in contrast with passive amusement through observing and cheering the winning team. This creative recreation includes a personal health program, an opportunity for exploration in a wide range of vocational subjects, and a community service program for practical and effective training in citizenship. It helps boys to find their own recreation under the stimulation and guidance of the best citizens in the community and in fulfillment of the most comprehensive living interest program ever devised for the growing boy.

The hey-day of racketeering is the wrong time to withdraw the constructive influences that restrain youth from getting mixed up in delinquencies. If it is necessary to have these influences operating in the lives of young people in the days of prosperity, it is all the more essential in periods of enforced idleness when legitimate means of earning money are scarce and illegal opportunities are multiplied.

It is not my intention to take over their work, but they may not tell the whole story. However, the story won't be finished until next Friday when the second engagement is held at Pyote, so I'll hold off until then.

Flowers Sent To Stage Doors LONDON. (UP)—Disappearing are the lush, romantic moments in the London theatre when page boys rushed down the aisles with bouquets and baskets of flowers for actresses at the end of the performance.

The theatre Don Juans still send flowers to their favorite actresses, according to Piccadilly florists, but most theatrical producers have laid down the rule that floral tokens of admiration must enter through the stage door rather than over the footlights. 'Of Thee I Sing,' a Musical Comedy

EDITOR'S NOTE: This play was reviewed by Mrs. De Lo Douglas Wednesday, Nov. 30, at a meeting of the Play Readers club.

By far the most popular play on Broadway in recent months is the Pulitzer prize play, 'Of Thee I Sing,' a musical comedy written by Kaufman and Ryskind with lyrics and music by Ira and George Gershwin. It was first produced in New York, Dec. 26, 1931, at the Music Box theatre, with Lois Moran and William Gaxton in the leads, and immediately became the success of the season.

'Funnier than the government and not nearly so dangerous,' says the New York Times of the American play which is a clever satire on the political situation and administration.

'The piece is a Washington Merry-Go-Round with a hey nonny nonny and a ha-cha-cha, and it gets funnier,' says the New Yorker.

The story begins with the assemblage of the national campaign committee expressing their doubts of a majority for their presidential candidate, John P. Wintergreen. No one is interested in the vice president's race except the candidate himself who is Alexander Throtlebottom. A dire need of a platform causes discussion which ends in a decision to run their candidate on the one-word platform—Love, and to hold a national beauty contest in Atlantic City to select 'Miss White House.' During the contest Wintergreen, reluctant to marry anyone of the 'bathing girls,' falls for and marries beautiful Mary Turner because she can cook corn muffins. Complications arise when Diana Devereaux, choice of the judges, demands justice and that the marriage be annulled so she can marry Wintergreen. The justice's decision is in favor of Wintergreen and Mary, when she announces that he is to become a father. All ends happily when Throtlebottom as vice president gets Diana and twins are born in the White House. The grand finale comes as the whole company sings:

Of thee I sing, baby, Summer, autumn, winter, spring, Shining star and inspiration, Worthy of a mighty nation, Of thee I sing.

In making the award the Pulitzer prize committee said: 'This award may seem unusual, but the play is unusual. Not only is it coherent and well-knit enough to class as a play, aside from the music, but it is a biting and true satire on American politics and the public attitude toward it.'

FOOTBALL SKETCHES

By R. C. HANKINS

The best game played on Lackey field during 1932 gave the nucleus of Midland's '33 squad a 12-0 win Friday over a game and nicely working club from Poyote.

Use of hands on the offense set back Poyote each time its squad got down within scoring distance. Three times in a row the club was penalized within the 20-yard parallel, and one lad who dashed 50-some-odd yards to a touchdown had his run nullified because both clubs were offside.

Lingo, Henderson and Griffin, the three sporting musketeers, tried to get by without issuing too many set backs, but had to call approximately a third of them, as Hendy explained. The stands, keenly enjoying the surge of the eleven back and forth across the greensward, yelled for the officials to shut their eyes and let 'em battle. A Poyote cheering squad formed in the stand, yelling "Hold 'em Lingo!"

But that wasn't what caused Lingo to tear his pants with the public, after all. Bending over too quickly was responsible.

Who was that who made the crack about Poyote's not being capitalized?

This and that, if anything really did happen, Dub Stanley playing his first year, admitted he had been waiting "all my life" for a chance to score and had to miss a pass in the open field.

That wasn't a score resulted when Lingo of Poyote took a punt at mid-field and made some erratic tracks that left the Midland defense agape.

Pal Evans, second son of Cowboy Evans, could take a bath in a Texas pitcher's sweat, but he got into the game and spilled Poyote ball toters every time they tried his side of the line.

Frenchy had the audacity to tell this department during the game that he had only two votes of making All-American while carrying the water bucket at McMurry.

Ironhead, seeing as how no one else wanted to yell for the visitors, took it for granted he should assume the role. Which led to his recounting of an incident developing out of similar circumstances a few seasons ago.

Monahans and the score was nearing 100 for Midland and staying zero for Monahans (at least, so the ironhead one said). Accordingly, he saw a few of his questionable associates went over to the Monahans side of the field and organized a pep squad, yelling like dervishes for Monahans to get Midland line for the position.

There comes Frank McKiff, break that rat's neck! they yelled as Frank spun around on the old moth-eaten Statue of Liberty assignment. Frank's father, T. O. McKiff, a Midland old-timer of many years, charged up to where the row of gamas were sitting and meant it when he said: "You Monahans boys will have to be careful what you call them Midland boys." And we'd all been living here nearly as long as he had, Ironhead concluded.

A bit of the history of the Poyote squad this season (bearing in mind Midland must play there for a return engagement Friday): Andrews, Palmorhea, Barstow and Rankin have fallen before the Indians and Monahans twice. Hobbs won over the midgets 26-13. The school has been playing football about four years. Information furnished thru courtesy of Principal John S. White.

A Texas U. man who said there was nothing particularly funny about TCU valuing the Orange and White recently.

Jess computed the following, and we take no obligation for its truthfulness: Poyote gained 246 yards and was penalized 247 yards.

NATIONS FEAR TYPE OF POSSIBLE WARFARE SHOWN IN YUCCA PICTURE

All nations fear the day when science perfects the Death Ray, a gun capable of killing and destruction at enormous distances through the mysterious forces of electricity.

Such a weapon is perfected by Robert Regent, kindly old inventor, a principal character in the familiar radio broadcasts, "Chandu, the Magician," recently filmed as a feature by Fox studios with Edmund Lowe enacting the title role.

When Roxor, the scheming, sinister villain of the drama, played by Bela Lugosi, gets possession of this deadly ray, kidnapping Regent and his family in the process, Chandu sets out to regain it and to rescue the inventor and his family. It is this central conflict that motivates the stirring plot of the picture to be shown at the Yucca theatre beginning Sunday.

The gun used in the picture was constructed by Fox studio technicians. It is in every way the embodiment of all scientists know of projecting through the air electrical waves of sufficient force to kill at a distance. Roxor is unable to operate the device, but tries by every conceivable torture and horror to wring the secret of its operation from Regent, the inventor.

How Chandu engages Roxor in a terrific battle of wills, forcing him to stay the hand that is already at the levers that will send death and destruction hurtling around the universe, supplies the thrilling climax of what is said to be one of the tenses dramatic scenes ever filmed.

"Chandu The Magician" was adapted from the original radio broadcasts and presents its most stirring episodes. Irene Ware plays opposite Lowe in the romantic lead, with Bela Lugosi, Herbert Mundin, Henry B. Walker and many other popular players rounding out the supporting cast. Marcel Varnel and William Cameron Menzies co-directed.

They found that this school in downtown Dallas, with an enrollment of 500, found this autumn it had some good football players in its enrollment, good enough perhaps to go up against colleges and universities four or five times its size with a fair prospect of winning. The answer seems to be that in eight games, Jefferson won them all, not a defeat or a tie marring its record.

The university specializes in law and business administration and has been in existence 10 years, although it never before had such a good football team. A fair football team and rather big basketball team played last year, but in the summer the baseball team won a league pennant. The university operates the year around.

The school officials, decided this year to go in for athletics in a big way and a check up on the enrollment showed a husky bunch of youngsters on hand who wanted to try their hand at football. A further check revealed a number of experienced players, waiting for a chance to play.

There was no freshman rule to bother with, so all the experienced players became eligible at once. Nick Dobbs, former Dallas high school star, was the only player who had had some experience under Harry Mehre at the University of Georgia. These were Jobie Whire, a halfback and Henry B. Walker, a tackle. Hamrick was elected captain.

The team piled up 180 points to 42. Whire scoring two touchdowns each in six games and one in each of two others. He averaged 32 yards in his touchdown runs. Other backs were Jock Malone, Chuck Bird and Rabbit Minnehan, while star linebacker in addition to Captain Hamrick, headed Chris Dobbs, guard and Joe Carter and Ralph Miles, ends. Reserves were few and far between, so most of the regulars played a full 60 minutes in each game.

Jefferson started out by winning from the Southeastern Oklahoma Teachers, 13 to 0, followed with a 20 to 12 defeat of Oklahoma City University, took Simmons into camp 20 to 0, and Weatherford college 39 to 6 and Central Oklahoma Teachers 13 to 6. Oklahoma A. & M. and University of Oklahoma 26 to 6.

The Jefferson boys are not tired and would be glad to play some more if suitable arrangements can be made.

It may be a bit difficult, however, to find opponents. A poor team could not make it interesting for the Texans and a good one probably would not stick its chin out with any great enthusiasm, in view of Jefferson's record for the season.

It is understood the Rangers, as they are called by name, so some thing may yet come of negotiations.

Marvelous Magic Exponent Comir

While other magicians are content to build their performance around one feature attraction, Rebekah the Magician, who will appear Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Yucca theatre, calls attention to the fact that his presentations are made up almost entirely of feature attractions.

World famous illusions such as "The Birds from Nowhere" and "Where Do the Pigeons Go?" and the feat of producing a human being from a house that has been examined and pronounced empty by members of the audience follow one another in rapid succession.

India's most famous mystery will be shown when an Etheiarian Indian, hypnotized by Rebekah, is made to take part in a performance that will convert the most hardened doubters of feats of magic.

Professor Rebekah's concluding feature will be the startling substitution of a woman for a man, a presentation that has never failed to cause audiences to doubt their sight if not their reason.

During the feature presentations, Rebekah the Magician will further mystify his audience with tricks of fake spirit mediums such as mysterious slate writing. While denouncing all mediums as fakes, Rebekah the Magician duplicates their feats in his shows as an educational feature and for the amusement of his audiences.

In order that the kiddies attending the performances with their parents may enjoy the entertainments to the utmost, Rebekah the Magician throughout the show will perform feats of producing rabbits, ducks and white rats from all manner of containers and even thin air.

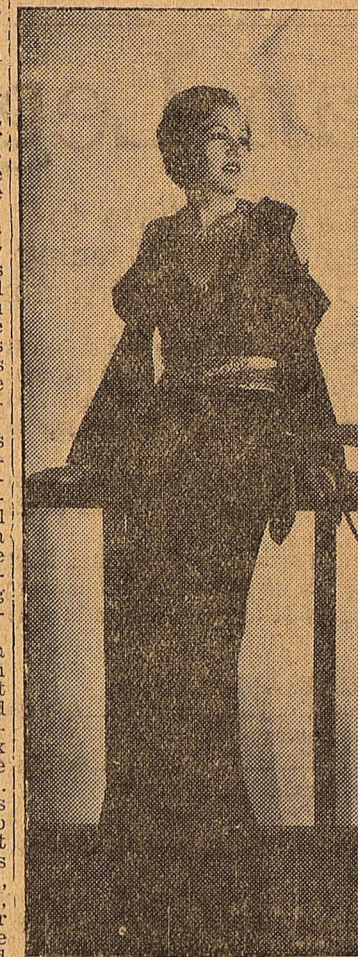

Seniors Advised Not to Take Jobs NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (UP)—Smith college seniors have been advised by President William Allan Weston not to take paying jobs this year unless they actually need them.

"Everybody who hopes for a job next June is not going to get it," he said. "I think many of you will have to stand aside and let people have a chance who have no other way to hold body and soul together or who perhaps have to support dependents."

He did not, however, advise the girls to be idle, reminding them that there were a "great many unpaid jobs which need to be done."

Canister Shot Is Found in Colorado

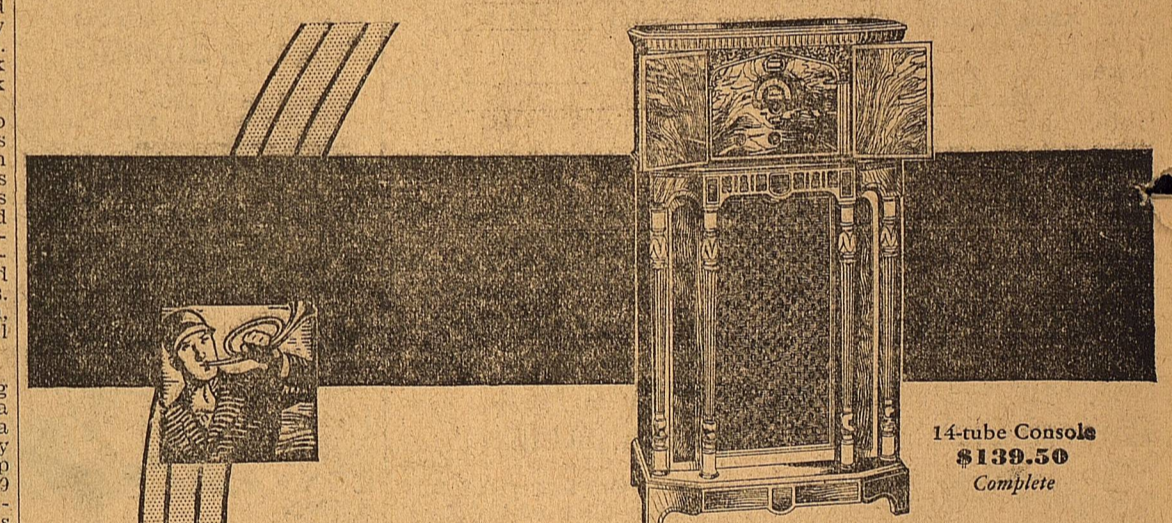

COLORADO.—Reminiscences of the past, during days when modern war equipment was unknown, were being recalled in Colorado Saturday by appearance of a canister shot found in sand along the Colorado river south of town. The relic was dug up by E. Paredos, Mexican, and brought to the Record office.

The missile, one of several shot in a light case that fitted into breach of antedated cannon, was used for firing at close range during the Civil and Texas-Mexico war days. Several of the shot were placed in the canister and as the missile was fired it was burst, the shot scattering along principles similar to charge from a modern shot gun.

The shot weighs two pounds and two ounces. It is damaged from rust and erosion, indicating that it had lain in its hiding place for many years. Probability that it was

Ends Quarrel For Africans

LONDON, (UP)—An African chief eating Kola nut with pepper and salt, from the edge of a razor-blade during an inter-tribal peace ceremony, is among the things witnessed by Dr. Melville D. Mackenzie during a recent visit to Liberia as special commissioner of the League of Nations council.

Mackenzie, a Scottish doctor on the league secretariat, co-operated with the Liberian government in a successful effort to pacify Kru tribes who, having come into conflict with the government and with each other, had fled into the bush. Forty-four towns had been burned and at least 12,000 men, women and children were in a state of advanced starvation as the result of the disputes.

The success of Mackenzie's mission involved settling tribal quarrels about land, women, canoes and palm trees. Finally he managed to stop all fighting and dissuade the natives. He taught them how to mark out boundaries and build houses, and himself carried out their first land survey.

Officer Gives Attorney Notice

FORT COLLINS, Col. (UP)—Traffic Officer Thomas O'Brien proved to the satisfaction of A. I. Betke, Denver attorney, that he enforces the traffic laws diligently.

Betke, during a lawsuit, was severe and thorough in his questioning of Officer O'Brien, a witness. Betke was inclined to infer that O'Brien was a little lax in enforcement of the law.

When Betke started home after the trial, he found on his automobile a notice to appear in justice court and answer to a charge of not having a brake certificate.

The notice was signed by Traffic Officer O'Brien.

Wandering Hotel Of Permian Basin Being Torn Down

The old Big hotel, at Hobbs, New Mexico, which was partially burned almost two years ago, is being torn down, after court fights which prevented the unsightly ruins of the old building from being molested.

This hotel, formerly known all over the West Texas oil fields as the "Texas," was originally built at Fort Stockton, apparently about the time the Pecos river was dug, according to available records, and was moved from that place to Big Lake when the boom struck there. Another move was made, and the old hotel soon became known as the "wandering hotel of the Permian basin." It landed in Pyle for the big boom there, and did a thriving business in serving oil workers and tourists who wanted to "see an oil field boom town."

When Hobbs broke loose as an oil boom town in early 1930, the "wandering hotel," by this time a confirmed boomer, arrived with the big crowd that rushes in pursuit of the flowing gold. During the erection of the building at that place a heavy wind came up after all the frame work had been put up and the plumbing placed, the old boomer fell to the ground, killing her first man. One whole wing of the building collapsed.

Stolen Odessa Car Recovered

ODESSA.—The new Oldsmobile coupe belonging to P. L. Smith, district manager for the Pure Oil company, here, which was stolen on the same evening as the post office robbery here recently and which evidence indicates was taken by the post office robbers, has been returned here. It was found near Hobbs, N. M.

Early in the week a phone call from Hobbs informed officers that a car answering the description of Smith's automobile had been found five miles west of Hobbs. The car was out of gasoline and had apparently been abandoned there by the robbers. It was in excellent condition.

No further trace of the robbers who blew the post office safe has been found, although officers believe that they know the description of the men who did the job.

Collision Ruled Cause of Death

BIG SPRING.—Death of I. B. Ritchie, Lincoln Tank company district manager, Tuesday evening six miles west of here at or near a grade crossing, Justice of the Peace Cecil Collings said in a coroner's verdict was "a result of a collision by a train with a car in which the deceased was then located."

No new developments have come to light since early investigations of the crash left officers puzzled as to cause or motive. Ritchie's car was stalled approximately half a mile south of the grade crossing six miles west of here, Engineer Lamar Smith, who was at the throttle of the locomotive moving at about 50 miles an hour when the crash occurred, said no lights were burning on the car and the locomotive was almost upon it before it was sighted.

Wreckage from the crash was strewn down the right side of the right-of-way for a distance of three hundred yards. The front end of the car was demolished as was the rear end. It was thrown clear of the wreckage. He was dead, his arms and legs broken and his skull fractured, when Justice of the Peace Collings reached the scene. Funeral services for Ritchie were held Friday afternoon at 5 p. m. from the Eberley chapel with Dr. J. R. Spann and Rev. R. E. Day in charge. The body was shipped to Ranget where burial was made Saturday morning.

Old Days Will Be Reenacted

PECOS.—Flowing whiskers and curling mustaches will become the vogue in Pecos for three evenings beginning next Tuesday night when the American legion holds its "Pioneer days" celebration. Site for the affair will be in the old Hardy building, on the highway, across from the City hotel.

An old time brass band, salvaged from a museum somewhere will decorate the bar and persons attending will be able to park a foot on the rail (die) and gulp down a portion of something as intoxicating as root beer.

For diversion there will be dancing nightly to the tunes of a good orchestra and plenty of games in progress. A poker table will be found in full blast. A faro bank will be operating as will a blackjack table, a craps table, a chuckaluck game, a roulette wheel and other means of tossing the shekels to the winds.

Legionnaires will be acted as were the pioneers of days gone by. Wending through the audience will be such notables of bygone days as Billy the Kid, Sheriff Pat Garrett, Nick the Killer, Alkali Ike, Nigger Pete, Two Gun Mike and many others.

A circular reads: "Pecos people are asked by the legion to join in the spirit of the thing and have a good time. Come in costume. Put on your old six-guns, your ten-gallon hats and your boots and spurs. A prize will be given for the best costume," says Frank Vaughn, general chairman for the affair. All proceeds will go to the legion's Christmas charity fund.

Wines, spirits and cigarets sold after dark in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, are subject to a special tax for the benefit of the unemployed.

There are more ultra-violet rays in afternoon sunshine than in the morning sunshine.

Old Days Will Be Reenacted

ODESSA.—"No Football for Pa", a football comedy by Murry H. Fly superintendent of the Odessa public schools, will be presented at the high school auditorium here on the evening of December 16. The play has been published recently by the Western Drama company and has been sold over the state on a royalty basis.

The play is based on high school football, giving a story of a typical conflict of viewpoints between the younger and older generations on the question of football and school spirit in play. It is said to be a type that will interest both young and old.

England has had only one king who grew to manhood and who never married. He was William Rufus, or William II, son and successor of William the Conqueror.

CAUSE OF JEALOUSY
BERLIN.—If your wife or sweetheart is jealous of you, it's probably because she has too much iodine in her blood. Scientists here have come to that conclusion after determining that the blood of a jealous woman often contains 100 per cent more iodine than that of a woman who isn't inclined toward jealousy.
