A FALSE CLAIM

A Boston engineer writes President Hoover urging him not to forget, when payment of the war debts is up for consideration, that the allied nations have a "moral counter claim" because of the great number of their soldiers that were killed before the American army was ready to take its place on the firing line against Germany.

Because this is an argument which sentimentalists on both sides of the water have been using freely for more than a decade, it might just as well be given a little close examination.

It sets forth the thesis that this nation was culpably unprepared to do its part in the war and that, in consequence, it had to rely on the efforts of the English and the French until it could get its army trained and transported overseas. The military efforts of those nations, according to this thesis, counterbalance the money borrowed by their governments from America. As a result, we have no right to ask for our money now. The debts were paid by thousands of dead English and French soldiers.

That is a very pretty way of looking at things, but it hardly stands analysis.

Such a view assumes that the war was really our war from the beginning and that we ought to have been in it from the first. It discounts the fact that our actual military effort was far greater than anyone outside of America expected it would be when we finally did enter the war. It utterly ignores the steadily growing American suspicion that we might better have stayed out of the war entirely.

It tries, in fact, to transport us back to the days of 1917 when a cloudy sentiment possessed our minds, when we looked upon Germans as fiends incarnate and when it was possible for us to see in France and England the heroic and unselfish saviors of civilization.

We don't feel now as we did then. We have learned too much about the origins of war; we have seen too much of its consequences.

There are a lot of weighty arguments for revision of the war debts. This one, however, which tries to balance vanished American dollars against dead Tommies and Poilus, isn't one of them.

JUVENILE SUICIDE

The suicide of a child ought to be the rarest of all tragedies. Unfortunately, however, it isn't. Newspapers quite frequently carry stories telling how some youngster who hasn't even entered his teens has killed himself; and usually, in the last paragraph, it is explained that nervous strain caused by overstudying was responsible for the act.

Here, it seems to us, is something for the directors of our educational systems to think about very seriously.

A child who has reached the age of 11 or 12 is, of course, capable of maintaining a fairly stiff pace in his school work. Nevertheless, it is quite possible to ask such a child to do too much; and the comparative frequency with which we get these reports of juvenile suicides due to overstudy seems to indicate that the strain which is put upon our youngsters is often a good deal too severe for them.

ADVERSITY SOMETIMES USEFUL

The uses of adversity, according to an ancient proverb, are sweet. That proverb usually is more popular among people who haven't had much contact with adversity than among people who have; nevertheless, it seems to work out right once in a while.

Consider the man in a mid-western state, who because of poverty was forced to live for six weeks on stale bread and skimmed milk.

During that time he gained greatly in weight and recovered from a long-standing stomach ailment.

All of us, no doubt, would be happier if we could be sure that all of the victims of the depression would find scanty fare equally beneficial. Unfortunately, this man's case is a very marked exception to the rule.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

Every business house in Midland, whether a store, a bank, a garage or service station, or of whatever type, needs a certain amount of newspaper advertising in 1933. Budget your advertising expense and keep it spent regularly in the manner you believe will do the most good for your particular kind of business.

Whatever became of Sanolito? There's an outfit the quit advertising. Our New Year edition is coming out Sunday. That's a good time for your 1933 plans and greetings to be expressed. Let us have your copy Friday or Saturday, Thanks.

Paul T. Vickers spoke at the Rotary club today on Technocracy, describing it as a scientific theory for the solution of economic ills. Dr. B. U. Connor, in the El Paso Herald-Post, may have a different idea about technocracy, so I'll print what he says about it.

Technocracy, the latest theory of how to get out of work, is being discussed by everyone, who now has a job. The folks with jobs are sold on the idea of working two days four hours a day, a week, and drawing $10,000 a year minimum.

The people without jobs would just as soon work four days a week for the same money. Under technocracy, one would not worry about bills, bill collectors would not hound the debtor, and nothing would be done today that could be put off until tomorrow.

The Finance editor has been a technocrat for many a year. And like all technocrats he blames everything on the machines. Before they got typewriters, there were no stenographers, and therefore man didn't have such an incentive to nullify the machine.

Some people keep asking us why we don't go back to a weekly or semi-weekly paper. Do you want us to do that? Midland has become accustomed to a daily and deserves it, just as long as the daily can be supported. Our paper can stand better support, but not just on the support basis. Every dollar spent on advertising comes back to the advertiser.

A Rhythmic Weave

Start

Practise to the tune of "Paris" By ARTHUR MURRAY Written for NEA Service NEW YORK.—The dance craze of the New Year is the tango. There are two tangos, the Argentine tango and the French tango.

Today we will learn the French tango. It really is a modified form of the native tango, a much more sophisticated dance than the Argentine, the tango the majority of adults dance.

The Chassez gives the rocking steps, which distinguish the French tango. It combines slow and quick steps, rocking on the slow ones. Plant both your feet firmly on the ground for all the tango steps. Your body rocks, in undulating motion, and you need good balance on firm feet.

Hold your partner about six inches away from you for the French tango. All steps are taken in closed position in the French tango. Take your steps sideways. The man has his back to the center of the room and goes left. The woman faces the center of the room and goes sideways to the right. This is how the man does the Chassez, the woman reverses feet, using her right where he uses the left.

Colorado Cowmen Revive Branding

DENVER.—The branding iron, that scepter of power with which the old-time western cattle barons stamped their marks upon their steers, is coming back.

Through years of peace and security, many cattlemen have neglected to brand their herds, apparently safe behind wire fences. Lately they have awakened to find their fences out and cattle missing.

Aroused against the menace of rustlers, Rocky Mountain cattlemen from the dusty banks of the Rio Grande to the wind-swept northern slopes are moving to combat the thieves. Their battle is not the spectacular manhunt of the days of the running iron and mavericks.

Rather it is a slow, piece-by-piece campaign against thieves who ride in motor trucks. The Colorado board of brand inspectors, which keeps a watchful eye on all cattle coming to market here, has warned cattlemen to revive their brands, pointing out that the ranchers are no longer secure behind three strands of barbed wire and a tradition of death for rustlers.

Cases of altered brands are scarce partly because there are few men left who, with running iron and rope, can forge a brand, and partly because there is little need to change a brand when there are so many unbranded cattle.

The depression, with its lean and hungry days for many, is blamed for some of the thefts in Colorado, Wyoming and Montana, but New Mexico cattlemen have found the same depression has lower a certain type of rustling. No longer do organized bands steal whole herds and change their brands, thus converting them to their own herds. Cattle are too cheap to justify the necessary organization and, again, there are few left to do it.

Instead there is the quick dash to a favored grazing spot, swift work with wire-cutters and prod poles and a half dozen fine steers are away to the market while the rancher sleeps. Two men can do it quickly and quickly the rancher may not discover for days the steers are gone.

Mrs. Bertha Benson, secretary of the New Mexico Cattle Growers' association, said the association, in the years of security, had reduced its reward for cattle thieves from $250 to $100 but despite this several convictions had been obtained.

The League of Nations now has a membership of 56 nations.

Mrs. E. R. Thomas Introduces Her Daughter-In-Law from Austin with a Lovely Appointed Party Wednesday Afternoon at Her Home

Introducing her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thabert Thomas of Austin, Mrs. E. R. Thomas entertained Wednesday afternoon with a lovely appointed tea at her home, 110 South A.

The receiving hours were from 3 o'clock to 4 and from 4 until 5. Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Elliott F. Cowden.

Mrs. E. R. Thomas, the honoree, and Mrs. Thomas' sister, Mrs. Hugh Barnes of Andrews, were in the receiving line. The home was decorated in poinsettias, Russian violets and ferns.

Mrs. Johnson Phillips and Mrs. Harvey Conger invited the guests into the dining room, where the table was laid in lace over red satin and was centered with a three-tiered cake topped by a miniature bride and groom. White candles in silver holders burned on the table.

Two tea services were used. During the first hour Mrs. W. L. Holmesley and Mrs. J. M. Caldwell presided at the table and Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer and Mrs. S. R. Preston at the latter hour. A tea course of cheese, wafers, fruit cake and crystallized fruit was served by Mrs. Alf Reese, Mrs. Johnnie Rathiff, Mrs. J. F. Blunt, and Miss Lucille Thomas.

Over the chandelier was placed a huge bride's bouquet, from which hung white ribbons dotted with snappers.

Mrs. Roy Parks sang "The Star," fragments from "Pinto" by Rogers and "Tip-toe" and Mrs. Roy Proctor "Tumble Down Shack in Athlone." They were accompanied by Mrs. Emily Kannon, Mrs. Johnnie Rathiff, accompanied by Mrs. De Lo Douglas, sang "Sunshine of the Smile."

Members of the house party were dressed in evening and afternoon clothes. One hundred guests called.

Xmas Liquor Prices Slashed

CHICAGO. (UP)—Holiday prices of liquor average about one-third lower this year than last, a United Press survey indicated today.

Reductions have been made in almost every city checked. In some localities prices were slightly advanced for the holiday trade. Generous supplies and a considerable variety of alcoholic beverages appeared available.

In New York City prices were virtually unchanged from last year. Gin sold at 75 cents to $2 a quart, rye at $1.75 to $3.50, Scotch at $1.50 to $4.50 and common wines at $1.50. Reductions were noted in Chicago prices. Gin was offered at $1 to $1.25 a pint, 50 per cent lower than in 1931. Rye whiskey sold at $7 and Scotch and Bourbon at $5. Off about a third. Wine was $1 a quart. San Francisco offered the greatest variety of liquors of any city reporting. Prices there were only slightly lower than 1931. Champagne sold at $47.50 a case, cheaper than before prohibition. Imported Scotch was $35, domestic $28 a case. Imported Bourbon was three pints for $5. Good Cresta Blanca California wine, red and white, sold at $8 for 12 quarts, guaranteed three years old. Port and sherry wines were $8 a gallon. Good 190 proof alcohol was priced at $7.50 for 10 gallons.

At St. Paul, Minn., prices were off 50 per cent. Alcohol sold at $3.50 to $4 a gallon. Imported Scotch was $9 a quart, imported rye or Irish whiskeys $7.

Prices at Washington, D. C., were generally lower. Champagne sold at $9 a magnum compared with $12, Scotch at $7.50 compared with $10, rye at $10 a gallon compared with $12.

Kansas City, Mo., bootleggers cut alcohol prices to $5 a gallon from $8. Little variety was available and prices for good liquor were reported as high as ever. Much activity among bootleggers was noted at Detroit. Prices were advancing slightly with the holiday imminent. Choice Canadian Scotch and rye was offered at $4.50 and $5 a quart. Los Angeles liquor prices were reduced almost 50 per cent. Bourbon retailed at $37.50 a case, compared with $50 to $65 last year. Champagne at $60 against $90, Scotch at $40 against $75.

ALERT COUNCILMAN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—Everyone on the council but Mr. Korns had voted on the question of a bond issue for the improvement of streets. "Councilman Korns," called the recorder. He got no answer. There sat Korns as still as a statue, fast asleep. The chairman banged his gavel and the recorder raised another shout. "Aye!" shouted Korns coming to life. And he looked sheepish when told he had voted to issue $100,000 worth of bonds.

YOUTHFUL POETS

BOSTON. (UP)—To pacify her pupils during a severe thunderstorm, Miss Wilhelmina Crosson, of grade 4 at the Hancock school, read them poetry.

So popular was the feature that later verse was introduced as a regular part of the curriculum, and now the children, between eight and ten years old, write poetry themselves.

Samples:
"In desert lands from town to town
The camel travels, big and brown."
"The elephant, with clumsy feet,
Has only the jungle for his street."
