Mayor Cermak Rests Quietly Says Bulletin

Mrs. Gill Shows First Definite Signs Of Improvement

MIAMI (UP)—Trial of Giuseppe Zangara, who wounded five persons Wednesday when he unsuccessfully shot at President-elect Roosevelt, was set for 10 a. m. Monday.

The action was taken after County Solicitor Charles Morehead moved for postponement from Saturday on the ground defense attorneys had not received a report from a sanity commission appointed to examine Zangara.

Should Mayor Cermak or Mrs. Gill die, Morehead said, the trials would be transferred to circuit court. In the event of a death the case will come under the capital crime classification and cannot be handled in criminal court.

Zangara is charged with attempting to murder Roosevelt and Russell Caldwell, Miss Margaret Krulz and William Sinnott, victims of his bullets. Spectators were searched before they were permitted to enter the courtroom.

MIAMI (UP)—A bulletin issued Saturday morning said Mayor Antonio Cermak continues to rest quietly. His general condition is favorable. His temperature, pulse and respiration are normal.

No official bulletin was issued concerning the condition of Mrs. Joe Gill, also shot during the attempt to assassinate President-elect Roosevelt Wednesday evening. Hospital physicians said unofficially the first definite sign of improvement in her condition was noted Saturday.

Gas Line To Be Built From Conroe To Houston

HOUSTON (UP)—The Morn Corporation of Texas announced it proposes to construct a 10-inch natural gas pipeline from the Conroe field, Montgomery county, to a point near Houston.

Approximately 35 miles of pipe will be used and the line will terminate on the ship channel near the Sinclair Refining company's plant. The line will be used to supply industrial plants.

It was learned that the Sun Oil company plans to build a smaller pipeline from the Conroe field to a terminus at Humble, where Sun has a main line leading to the loading terminal at Beaumont.

It was rumored that Golding & Murchison, Dallas, who recently acquired Conroe holdings, contemplated building a pipeline.

Meantime, work progressed steadily on the eight-inch line being laid by the Tidewater Oil company to tie in at Humble with the line of the Texas Pipeline company, a Texas company subsidiary.

Steers Advance To Final Game With Colorado As Opponent To Determine Championship Of Western Division

Big Spring Takes Preliminary Games By Top-Heavy Scores, To Become Favorites For Third Straight Title

Big Spring and Colorado were to meet in the final game to decide the champion of the western half of district eight of the Interscholastic League Saturday evening at Colorado.

The Steers, champions for the past two years of the entire district, advanced to the final round by crushing McCauley, Fisher county champion, under a 51-34 score Saturday morning. Colorado humiliated Coahoma soon afterwards in the other semi-final game, 51-15.

Friday afternoon Big Spring opened the tourney against Divide and had easy slitting, piling up a total of 61 points while Divide managed only for 24. Townsend was high with 16 and Harris was runner up with 11. Hammond of Divide made 16 of his team's points. Every man on the Big Spring squad broke into the game.

Colorado took Divide under by a 33-9 score in the Friday evening game, leading all the way. Coahoma and McCauley both advanced into the semi-finals on eyes when neither Kent nor Sweetwater appeared at the tourney.

Morgan led the attack in the morning game when he rang nine field goals and one free shot. Townsend followed with six goals from the field. Nine Steers were used in the fracas.

Colorado was impressive in her win of Coahoma, making 17 points in the first quarter while Coahoma went entirely scoreless. The game was a rough and tumble affair, twenty-four fouls being called. Colorado led 24-3 at the half and was ahead 31-15 at the end. Steger, Wolf, center, was high with 17 points while Rogers did most of Coahoma's scoring with his 8 points.

Big Spring was a heavy favorite to win the championship for third consecutive time, although odds were somewhat diminished by the splendid Colorado showing against Coahoma.

Colorado is one of the few teams that have humbled the Steers this season despite the fact Big Spring has registered three victories over the Wolves.

Zangara Hated All Governments But Entrusted Savings With U. S.

Good Bricklayer, Pained By Stomach Ache, Turned From Trowel To Pistol And Built Himself A Cell

BY DALE HARRISON

NEW YORK (UP)—He was the kind of fellow who cursed government and then ran to the government's postal savings bank with his money for safekeeping.

That was the philosophy—if it be philosophy—of Giuseppe Zangara who from a cheap pistol fired at Miami Wednesday night five shots that threatened to write red pages of American history.

He came to America, an immigrant in 1923 from Italy. Many years before another immigrant had come from Bohemia. That was Anton Cermak. He elected to write his life's destiny in the golden sands of the new world which another Bohemian, also with the given name Anton had apostrophized in a great sympathy.

The one, hating government and hating rulers, ranted from soap boxes in broken English, or, if his audience could understand, in his native Italian. The other became mayor of Chicago.

Their paths met Wednesday night at Miami. In the hands of one was an eight dollar pistol. In his heart, by his own words, was the assassination of the president-elect of the United States.

Back in Calabria, Italy, the father of Giuseppe Zangara had been wondering for several weeks what has become of his son in America. The money which Giuseppe had been sending home was much appreciated by the father, the stepmother and the step-sisters there.

Letter of Inquiry

Only a day or two ago a letter came from the elder Zangara to Vincent Cafaso of Patterson, N. J., an uncle of Giuseppe, asking where the son was.

"The money has stopped," wrote the father. "Where is Giuseppe? He was always so prompt with the money."

Cafaso didn't know. But he knows now. Giuseppe tried to (Continued On Page 7)

Auxiliary Expense Fund For W. T. C. C. Convention Is Sought

Thursday and Friday, April 20 and 21, a home talent theatrical program, featuring a hilarious comedy, "Casey's Trial," with a number of snappy songs and dance numbers and various specialty acts, will be presented at the Municipal Auditorium under auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

The purpose of the show will be to provide an auxiliary fund with which to add special features of entertainment at the general convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce here this spring.

and to further protect the community from any possibility of public subscriptions being asked to bear convention expense.

West Texas Chamber of Commerce conventions for several years have been financed wholly from sale of registrations at the convention. By this system the host towns have been called upon only to buy as many one dollar registrations as possible, and have not found it necessary to solicit donations to cover convention expense.

In announcing dates for the "Casey's Trial" show Chamber of Commerce officials appealed to the public to cooperate in preventing conflicting dates for public attractions to occur April 20 and 21.

W.T.C.C. Officials To Visit Here Soon

Wilbur Hawk, Amarillo, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, has wired that he cannot attend a Chamber of Commerce directors meeting here Tuesday for the purpose of fixing dates for the annual W. T. C. C. chamber convention to be held here in the spring.

He said D. B. Bandeen, manager of the body, would communicate with the local chamber to fix a definite date when he and Hawk, together with Maury Hopkins, assistant manager, would be able to meet with local directors.

Thomason Writes Architect Due Saturday To Make Corrections

Bids for construction of a federal building to be erected here may be asked in Washington, D. C., before the end of the month.

"The only possible delay I can see right now is that the architect might not get here to complete his work immediately," wrote Thomason.

Man Is Found Dead In Hotel

Inquest Verdict Withheld By Coroner At Midland

MIDLAND—The body of a Midland, Michigan, man, identified as L. V. Styles, about 38, was found in his hotel room here Thursday night, by hotel employees who battered down his door after repeated knocks had failed to get a response.

A coroner's verdict was delayed because of rather definite clues which might establish his death as unnatural. A telegram found in his room indicated the Michigan bank holiday might have indirectly caused him to die.

A drinking glass in which were crystals of a strong antiseptic was found in the room. A doctor said death resulted from poison in a solution made from this. Death appeared to have been several hours before.

Dr. John E. Thomas, testifying at an inquest, said it was his belief (Continued On Page 7)

Scott Gaines Resumes Testimony In Inquiry Of Ferguson Charge

AUSTIN (AP)—Scott Gaines, assistant attorney general, resumed the witness stand Saturday as the senate was sitting as a committee of the whole, continuing inquiry into handling of county escrow funds by the highway commission.

Gaines testified the commission's action had been business-like and legal and that proper steps had been taken to protect the state's interest in the escrow funds.

AUSTIN (UP)—Communications between the attorney general and Cone Johnson, veteran member of the Texas highway commission were laid before the Texas senate Friday in its consideration of allegations by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson that certain transactions by the commission had resulted in a loss to the road funds.

The senate, sitting as a committee of the whole, voted to permit the state's chief law enforcement officer to open his files to it, releasing certain information with reference to the commission's policy of adding some counties in financing construction under way after an unsuccessful effort had been made to shunt the inquiry to the house of representatives.

Allred Represented

Scott Gaines, assistant attorney general, who handled correspondence between his department and Johnson, relative to a plan to have counties draw against escrow funds pending liquidation of their securities, was the first witness.

Gaines read an opinion given Johnson on January 29, 1932, holding that no statute prohibited, and that it was considered legal for the commission to enter into contracts with counties to accept their warrants for construction costs against the escrow accounts until such securities deposited to guarantee payment could be sold at a price considered as advantageous to all concerned.

Johnson had pointed out to the attorney general's department that some twenty-two counties had started construction work and had put in banks approximately $6,000,000 in securities to guarantee the county's share of the cost of the construction. He explained that for the counties to draw against the escrowing banks at that time would have imperiled ultimate recovery of the counties on their securities because certain of the banks did not have current funds to meet withdrawals.

He described to the attorney general a conference of county judges affected in which resolutions were adopted requesting the highway department to accept bonds to (Continued On Page 7)

Man Famous For Successful Administration Of Most Famous Prison Is Author

Sing Sing Prison, at Ossining, New York, which is the setting for the first national picture "Twenty Thousand Years In Sing Sing," featuring Spencer Tracy, and announced as the attraction at the Ritz Theatre today and Monday, is unquestionably the most famous of all penal institutions on the North American continent.

Several other American prisons are older—notably those at Charlestown, Mass., Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia, and the notoriety and reputation that has belonged to the "big house" on the banks of the Hudson River, scarcely an hour's ride north of New York City.

Fannie Hurst Writes Story Of "Hello, Everybody" Especially For Kate Smith's First Picture

Beloved Radio Star To Appear Tuesday and Wednesday

Fannie Hurst has a pet theory. It will be demonstrated at the Ritz Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday when "Hello, Everybody!" the story which she wrote especially for Kate Smith, radio favorite making her debut as a movie star, opens there.

Miss Hurst's theory is that original stories make the best screen material. She is opposed to adaptation of stories written for some other medium—novels, or short stories, or plays, for example—to the movies.

"Hello, Everybody!" is an example of her theory. It is a story written especially for the screen, and is one written deliberately, and solely, for the films, by a writer who is a skilled literary craftsman and possessed of a practical working knowledge of screen requirements. Revisions, she points out, are often so drastic that much of the original story has vanished by the time it gets to the screen.

Miss Hurst has devoted her literary efforts to the every-day woman. Her novels have dealt with women who live ordinary lives, filled with the drama of familiar events.

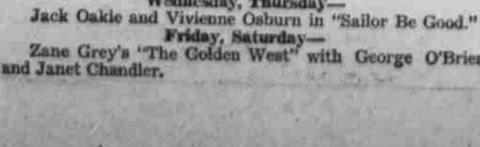

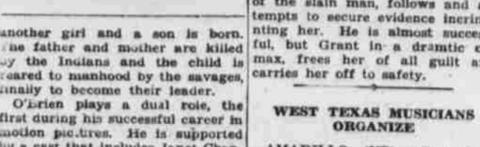

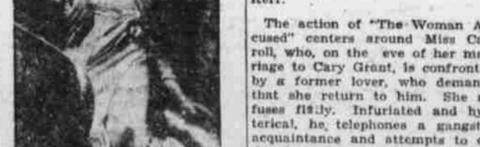

From the days of her first literary triumph, "Humoresque," a poignant story of a poor family in New York's Ghetto, to her recent best seller, "Back Street," Miss Hurst has chosen that type of heroine.

Miss Hurst's literary creations have been sought eagerly by Hollywood ever since "Humoresque" was pictureized and proved to be one of the greatest artistic and commercial hits in motion picture annals. At least eight pictures that can be recalled off-hand have credited her with authorship—"Humoresque," "Back Street," "Mannquin," "Lumina," "Five and Ten," "The Younger Generation," "The Painted Angel" and "Back Pay."

When Miss Hurst was invited to write a story for Kate Smith, she recognized immediately that here was her opportunity to put her theory into effect, and she accepted eagerly.

"Hello, Everybody!" presents Miss Smith as a big-hearted girl who does a man's work running a large farm for her fatherless family. She sacrifices her own desires to give happiness to others, and when a ruthless power company tries to drive her and hundreds of other farmers out of a beautiful valley so that they may build a dam, she heads the fight to preserve their homes. To raise money for the closely legal fight, she sings on the radio and wins fame. All her earnings are sent back home to furnish the sinews for war.

Brilliant Stars Offered At Ritz

"The Sign Of The Cross" Opens Saturday Night At Ritz Theater

DeMille Present Magnificent Spectacle Of Pagan Rome Under Reign Of Nero

Cecil B. DeMille's magnificent spectacle, "The Sign of the Cross," will begin its local engagement at the R and R Ritz Theater at 11:30 p. m. Saturday, February 25.

Spectacle on a monumental scale, including a whole panoramic picture of Rome under the reign of Nero; a dynamic story of elemental events crowded into the space of forty-eight hours; a series of performances of sheer brilliance! It is no wonder that audiences all over the country are cheering DeMille's achievement.

The spectacular type of film, such as DeMille himself made famous in the silent days, is one of the screen's finest contributions to entertainment. No other medium has the scope and variety of the camera. Now with the addition of sound, the great director has been able to surpass all his past efforts.

"The Sign of the Cross" is first and foremost a spectacle of pagan Rome, reaching its fullest expression in a Roman holiday at the Circus Maximus, where the gladiatorial contests and all the brutal games that delighted Nero served as a prelude to the sacrifice of the Christians to the lions. But it is also a dramatic story of Christian persecution, and a tenderly beautiful love story of a Christian girl and a Roman patrician, whose roles are played with rare beauty by Elisa Landi and Fredric March.

It is Charles Laughton's Nero, however, which is not only the outstanding characterization of the film, but one of the memorable characterizations of all times. Here is acting that approaches genius. Claudette Colbert, too, as the Empress Poppaea, gives a performance of remarkable depth and power.

Famous Derby Action Scene In Ritz Play

'From Hell To Heaven' Stars Carole Lombard And Jack Oakie

How does a race-horse get his name? Who chooses the fanciful titles, "Twenty Grand," "Man o' War," "Lady Bountiful," "Gallant Fox"—and why?

Research in connection with the screening of "From Hell to Heaven," drama centering around a group of people attending the running of a famous Derby, which comes to the Ritz Theatre Friday and Saturday of this week with Carole Lombard, Jack Oakie, David Manners and Adrienne Ames in leading roles, revealed varied sources and motives for the name selections.

A race-horse's name is chosen more carefully than that of most human babies, it was found. Choice is seldom made before the horse is a year old and has begun to show "characteristics." That's part of the huge network of turf superstitions.

Many horses are named for women dear to the hearts of their owners. Some are given names carefully tested by numerology. Individual superstitions play a large part—some owners refuse single or double names with seven letters in them; others, with three letters.

Once a horse is named, however, it's considered the worst luck in the world to change it.

"From Hell to Heaven," is set in a southern racing town, and its action takes place during and preceding the running of a great Derby. It concerns itself with eleven people on hand for the event—among them a brokerage clerk who is attempting to win back enough money to cover funds he has embezzled; a paroled convict; wife of a hotel clerk, who has bet all her husband's money in an attempt to swell it to a point where he can buy a partnership in the hotel; and others.

Each stakes his entire career on the Derby. Each bets on a different horse, and each prays for his choice to cross the line first.

Ten Great Authors Combine Efforts In Writing Narrative

Ten nationally-famous authors combined their talents to write "The Woman Accused," the Paramount-Liberty Magazine all-star story, which comes to the Ritz Theatre Thursday, with Nancy Carroll, Cary Grant and John Halliday heading its cast.

The authors are Rupert Hughes, Vicki Baum, Zane Grey, Vina Delmar, Irvin S. Cobb, Gertrude Atherton, J. P. McEvoy, Ursula Parrott, Polan Banks and Sophie Kerr.

The action of "The Woman Accused" centers around Miss Carroll, who, on the eve of her marriage to Cary Grant, is confronted by a former lover, who demands that she return to him. She refuses fitly. Infuriated and hysterical, he telephones a gangster acquaintance and attempts to order him to put Grant "on the spot." But before he can even mention the latter's name, Miss Carroll in desperation, has hit him over the head with the nearest object—a bronze figurine. Horrified, she finds she has killed him.

With Grant, she flees aboard an ocean vessel on a week-end "cruise to nowhere." Halliday, a friend of the slain man, follows and attempts to secure evidence incriminating her. He is almost successful, but Grant in a dramatic climax, frees her of all guilt and carries her off to safety.

Many Rulers Have Been Victims Of Assassinations

NEW YORK (UP)—Assassinations have laid in wait for rulers since the beginning of history. Greek and Roman mythology are replete with tales of assassinations. Julius Caesar was assassinated by the faithless Brutus. Three presidents of the United States—Abraham Lincoln, in 1865, James A. Garfield, in 1881, and William McKinley, in 1901, died at the hands of assassins.

The most sensational of recent assassinations was the murder of Paul Doumer, president of France, by the Russian, Gorgoulloff.

Since Lincoln's assassination in 1865, more than eighty rulers or high governmental officials have been assassinated. The more important:

Abdul Aziz, Sultan of Turkey, 1876.

Alexander, II, of Russia, 1881.

Marie Francois Sadi-Carnot, President of France, 1894.

Elizabeth of Austria, 1898.

Had Bad Record
 For years, Sing Sing had held a record among American penal institutions that was both unenviable and gruesome. In the days when brutal and barbarous punishment were held to be a necessity of prison life, Sing Sing yielded to no prison in the United States for studied brutality and premeditated cruelty in the treatment of prisoners.

The Sing Sing of 1932, which is admitted by all authorities on penology, to be one of the most enlightened and intelligently administered prisons in the country, is largely the work of Warden Lewis E. Lawes. Appointed to the command of the big prison in 1919, Lawes has held his position without interruption by political comings and goings since that time.

The picture differs materially from most other 'big house' pictures that have been presented on the screen in its accurate and complete presentation for the benefit of the layman, of every phase of a convict's life in such a modern

New Cell Houses
 Four new cell houses, with a total of 1752 cells, have been erected for the accommodation of Sing Sing's grey-suited population. This includes a receiving cell house containing 82 cells, a second cell house with 288, a third with accommodations for 680 on five tiers, and finally a four-tier cell house with 704 cells.

The old system of housing two or more prisoners in the same cell has been done away with by the erection of these new buildings. Each prisoner has his own cell, with toilet and lavatory, a small locker, table and chair, and a spring bed with mattress, sheets, blankets and pillowcase. The other new buildings are a chapel, hospital building and commissary department. The hospital has a capacity of sixty beds, divided into three wards. A thoroughly equipped modern laboratory is available for clinical examinations and tests. Two operating units with X-ray equipment and fluoroscope are provided. The laboratory has bacteriological and chemical features that make it the peer of any American prison laboratory.

Take Our Word for It—

WE HAVE NEVER OFFERED MORE REAL ENTERTAINMENT IN ONE MOTION PICTURE!

For the first time since the Strand Theatre opened its doors to the public, the management feels privileged to make such a statement as the above. We have just seen what we are convinced is a great picture, and we have weighed its merits against those of the other great pictures we have shown in the past.

This is our verdict—

is the greatest SINGLE entertainment the Strand Theatre has ever offered!

Not fiction but fact! Not a "prison story," but—the first and only picture ever written by a prison warden!—astounding inside revelations by world-famous Warden Lawes of Sing Sing—forming a blazing background for the heart-gripping story of one man and one girl—a girl who didn't seem to have the courage to wait for the love the Law had taken from her.

It is distinctly one story—but every episode is a blazing highlight from the endless drama that parades before the "Mayor" of crime's capital city!

There is romance and pathos that will go straight to the heart of women... strong, rugged drama men will love... laughs and action for the children. "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" is a picture which has everything—a picture which is meant for everyone.

Take our word for it—"the greatest single entertainment the Strand Theatre has ever offered!"

MONTGOMERY WARD & Co.

Under The Dome At Austin

BY GORDON K. SHEARER
AUSTIN (UP).—Newspaper men who are members of the state legislature take a varying view of press criticisms of the body. An attack on bills to reorganize the state game department brought a denunciation from Jack O'Brien, sports editor of the San Antonio Evening News, that caused a two-hour house debate. The article was in the popular sports column style, "jazzed up" with fancy typography. In it "debauchery," "rotteness" and similar terms were in the capital letters. Its substance was that plans to change the present organization were for political advantage. W. E. Pope, author of one of the bills, is a former newspaper publisher and associate editor of one now being published. He told the house he would "take care" of the remarks so far as he was concerned but that the house ought to summon the sports writer and find it out for its information if his charges were true. Homer Leonard, McAllen publisher member, says that editorial criticism by a newspaper is desirable. "But," he added, "it ought to be by an editor—not a news writer." P. L. Anderson, world's champion linotype, a house leader says: "In politics you have to take the bitter with the sweet. When they praise you, it's sweet. When they cuss you, it's bitter. A man taking public office must be prepared to take either." Representative J. O. Smith, Elgin 40 years an editor, has this to say of vitriolic attacks: "My son-in-law recently entered the newspaper business. I gave him this advice: 'Whenever you think any one should be chastised editorially, give him everything you've got. Then take the article home, keep it all night, read it in the morning, and you'll tear it up.'"

Ambrose Pierce in a celebrated little volume entitled "Write It Right," gave this definition of sports: "What no sensible man writes nor reads."

Speaker Coke Stephenson now raps for order with a gavel made from a post oak rail split by former Governor James Stephen Hog in Wood county in 1869. The handle of the gavel is made from a limb of a pecan tree planted by Governor Hog in 1884 in the yard of his then home at Mincola. The gavel was presented to the speaker by R. D. Adrian, Mincola.

Mrs. Sarah T. Hughes, diminutive representative from Dallas, recognizes in the sales tax the greatest foe for her graduated income tax bill. Consequently, all through the public hearing on the sales tax Mrs. Hughes has sat attentively with pad and pencil jotting down arguments. She expects to be well loaded with argument when her bill comes up. Proposals to make the University of Texas an advanced school, with work of the freshmen and sophomore years handled in junior colleges, has brought shudders to those who are proud of the athletic fame of the university. With the one-year residence rule enforced by the Southwest conference a player would be eligible only for athletics in his final year in the university.

Anyone who has hunted turkeys knows the difficulty in distinguishing between a hen and a gobbler at a distance. Representative Harold Kayton, San Antonio, therefore wants to amend the game laws so that hens may be shot the same as gobblers but making the limit three for the season. Practically, he says, it will work out in less turkeys being killed. A hunter who kills a hen now, he says, hastily cooks it at his hunting camp and carries only gobblers back, killing the limit of gobblers. If he were allowed the hen, he would count it as part of his bag limit, Kayton says.

$300 Maximum Loan To Farms

Hyde Issues Statement On Method Of Using Ninety Millions

WASHINGTON (UP).—Secretary Hyde announced that $300 will be the maximum loan to any farmer from the $90,000,000 fund set aside by congress for crop production financing. In addition to reducing the maximum from $400 in 1932, Hyde issued regulations providing farmers who are delinquent in repayment of two or more prior loans will be limited to $100 in order to conserve the fund, from which nearly one million farmers are expected to seek assistance. The loan will be a first lien on the crop produced. Congress authorized the secretary of agriculture to require acreage reduction up to 30 per cent as a loan condition, and Hyde said this will be enforced except in the case of minor producers and growers of perennials. Orchardists will not be required to cut down their trees or otherwise reduce their producing capacity to qualify for aid. Denial of Politics Shortly before Hyde's announcement, Don McVay, chief of the crop production loan office, made a vigorous denial before the house expenditures committee that government employees in his division had engaged in unusual political activities. In Hyde's announcement, he said the acreage reduction requirement will not apply to farmers who intend planting no more than 8 acres of cotton; 2 1-2 acres of tobacco, 40 acres of wheat; 29 acres of corn, 2 1-2 acres of truck crops; 12 acres of sugar beets; 8 acres of potatoes; 30 acres of rice, or 3 acres of peanuts.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
"The Smart Thing to Do"

Some days ago The Associated Press quoted Mr. Henry A. Wallace, of Des Moines, as saying in a speech before the Nebraska Legislature that "England has played us for a bunch of suckers. The smart thing to do would be to go off the gold standard a little further than England has. The British debtor has paid off his debts 50 per cent easier than the United States debtor has." Mr. Wallace has earned so high a reputation among farm editors that these utterances may not truly represent his present opinions, and if he has been misquoted I offer him my apologies in advance. The sentiments attributed to him are, however, sufficiently widely held in this country today to call for examination.

Let us begin with the statement that the British debtor has paid off his debts 50 per cent easier than the American debtor. The figures show that as compared with September 18, 1931, that is just before Britain went off the gold standard, sterling prices, as measured by the index of "The London Economist," have risen 1.8 per cent. American prices, as measured by Irving Fisher's index, have fallen 16.8 per cent. Thus as respects debts owed by Englishmen to Englishmen and by Americans to Americans the English debtor has a theoretical advantage of about 20 per cent. So much for domestic debt.

How does it stand as respects debts owed to foreigners? The pound sterling has on the average been worth 70 cents for each $1 he was formerly worth. Therefore an Englishman who owed a debt to a foreigner payable in sterling had to give only 70 cents in gold currency on each $1 owed. On the other hand an Englishman who owed a debt payable in gold dollars or gold francs had to pay $1.30 of his own money for each $1 he owed.

It will readily be seen from these rough calculations that there is no justification for saying that the British debtor has had a 50 per cent advantage over the American. However it cannot be denied that, except on foreign debts payable in gold, the British debtor had some advantage from the fact that British prices have not fallen in the last eighteen months and that externally his currency is depreciated.

Could a similar advantage be obtained for the American debtor by depreciating the dollar? Mr. Wallace is reported as saying that "the smart thing to do would be to go off the gold standard a little further than England has." England is off 30 per cent. Presumably then the smart thing would be to go off 40 or 50 per cent.

Let us see how smart it would be. If we went off 50 per cent, what would England do? Would it stand still? If it was smart to go off while we are on gold, if it would be smart for us to go off further than England, why would it not be smart for England to go off still further? And then would it be smart for us to go off some more and still smarter for England to go off still more? The advice attributed to Mr. Wallace not only requires that we should be smart but that every one else should be deaf, dumb and blind. For what would we accomplish if we debased the dollar to 50 cents and England followed by debasing sterling to 35 cents on the dollar? Sterling would still be worth 30 per cent less than its former exchange value with the dollar.

That this is no theoretical argument but a certain forecast of what would be bound to happen is definitely proved in the last year. Except as against the few countries still on the gold standard England has not been able to maintain the relative advantage of her depreciated currency. There has been a rush to beat her to it, with the result that about 70 per cent of the trade of the world is being conducted in currencies which are depreciated or controlled to offset any British advantage. It is easy for almost any one to be smart.

The able fallacy of the proposal lies in the failure to see that devaluation of currencies is just another name for price reduction and surely real prices cannot rise through a world competition to re-

It's Georgia's Problem

For quite a while residents of other states have had caustic things to say about Georgia's system of prison camps. Now, however a group of 16 prominent citizens, of Georgia have picked up the charges and have asked the state legislature to look into the matter exhaustively and correct any abuses that may exist; and those who live outside of the state might just as well save their breath until this group has got the action it craves.

The problem, after all, is Georgia's. No American state has yet devised a penal system that is really enlightened and humane; the difference that exists between the various state systems are differences of degree and not of kind. Georgia's conscience, evidently has been stirred by the criticisms that have been made. It might be a good thing for non-resident critics to wait, now, and let Georgia handle her own problem in her own way.

Vaudeville Bills In Harley Sadler Show Of High Class

The vaudeville that Harley Sadler secured for his new show at the Municipal Auditorium beginning Monday night is alone well worth the admission that he charges. All specialties on this part of the program have been until recently big headlines on the various vaudeville circuits in the east and on the west coast. They will be presented this year too in an entirely different manner than anything you have seen before in this part of the country. Mr. Sadler takes a great deal of pride in this part of his new show and this year will assume the role of master of ceremonies in the presentation of the vaudeville part of the program. In glancing over the different specialty numbers you will find Erwit and Barry, piano accordionists, whose nimble fingers will enthrall you in the many numbers where two piano accordions are used. Their Tom Thumb baby grand piano of green and gold and handled in the way that only they know how is a big time attraction in itself and has caused no end of comment among the vaudeville fans of the larger cities. The Whitehouse twins, who do harmony singing interspersed with clever dancing, have been headlines in vaudeville for several years and have been featured with big musical comedies the last few seasons. Gibbs and Delaire, who do singing, dancing, talking and impersonations are a featured attraction. Miss Delaire in giving her impersonations of the leading stars of today will delight and surprise you beyond measure. This act alone is outstanding among vaudeville acts. Jimmy Parsons in his Ruby Weidoff style of saxophone playing will keep you calling for more long after he has blown himself out. The quartet numbers in this part of the program with their lilted melodies and beautiful harmony numbers will feature Jack Dual, bass. This is only a small part of the vaudeville sections of Mr. Sadler's new company but it will give you some idea of the caliber of the show proper. The presentation will also give you a thrill and bring you back night after night for more.

Eliminate Waste To Lower Your Gas Service Charge! Waste From Gas Leakage Be sure that all gas cocks, fittings and piping on your premises are tight and in good condition. Waste From High Pressure Do not open the gas cock on any appliance until you hear a hissing sound. This is a gas waste. Waste From Imperfect Combustion Be sure that your appliance is properly adjusted so that the correct amount of air is used. Waste From Low Burners In Cook Stoves The proper position of your burner in the cook stove is 1 1/4 inches below the bottom of the vessel. Waste From Improperly Directed Flames Be sure your cook stove is not in a draft. This causes the flame to blow away from the cooking vessel. Waste From Solid Tops On Cook Stoves Use only skeleton lids or grid tops on your cook stove. A solid top requires more gas than necessary. Gas Waste Before and After Cooking Gas should not be turned on until vessel is ready to place on the fire, and turned off as soon as it is removed. Burn Gas Only In Gas Stoves Do not burn gas in coal or wood stoves or furnaces. They use much more gas than gas stoves. Waste From Excessive Heating Rooms are more healthful if kept at about 68 degrees with proper ventilation. Waste From Dirty Appliances Keep all cook stove, hot water heater and gas heater burners clean. Dirt causes a waste of gas. Empire Southern Service Co. Big Spring, Texas

SPOTLIGHT

CHAPTER XXXV The waitress brought the coffee and set it before the two girls. Coffee in green cups on a silver tray.

"That you mustn't take it that way," Jappy said anxiously. "You mustn't! Why, Jerry Wyman isn't worth your little finger. Please, Sheila—"

"I'm all right," Sheila said. But her face was pale, her lips trembling. "I'm — I'm perfectly all right, Jappy." Her hands, beneath the table's edge, were gripped together. That seemed to help her steady herself.

"Drink your coffee," Jappy urged. "I didn't mean to shock you like that. Only — well, he is married! And he was engaged to that other girl all the time. The one you saw with him at the night club. That's why he didn't introduce you. Don't you see? A man would have been glad to introduce his sister to the featured dancer in a place like that but not the girl he was going to marry. He couldn't do that very well."

"No—I suppose not. Under the circumstances—" Jappy's quick look was a question, unspoken. Sheila laughed bitterly. "I wasn't engaged to him. No. But he had talked about marriage. We both talked about it. Oh, how melodramatic it is a sound! But he had and, Jappy, I believed him. I thought—well, that he was different from the other men I know."

Jappy nodded wisely. "Sure, I know. It's because of this idea of yours about leaving the stage. You thought Jerry Wyman was different because he came from a small town and worked in a factory. Then when you knew he had money you were still sure he wasn't like the rich men in New York. But, Sheila, there are plenty of others. Better men than Jerry Wyman! Why, for half the devotion Dick Stanley has showed your way I'd dance the length of Broadway with hand springs thrown in!"

"But, Jappy, I love Jerry." "He's not worth it!" They finished their coffee in silence, then rose paid the check and went out on the street. It was the same street, familiar, noisy, cluttered with little shops, old houses with grimy stone fronts that had at one time housed the city's social elite. Taxis trucks, private cars milling in the street. The curb was crowded with hurrying men and women, laundry boys, messenger with hands in pockets, whistling. The world was just as it had been, but for Sheila how different!

"Later I joined a show and when we played in Spencer there was Jerry anxious to be seen with me, to show his friends that he knew a girl in the show. Maybe he really was in love with Sheila but he's been engaged to Jean Morgan for years. I guess the match was arranged when they were in their teens. The Wyman and the Morgans are mixed up together in business. The Morgan girls and their set are the only ones who count according to the Wyman. The rest of us who work for a living simply don't rate. We're not important enough to be considered. And as for marrying one of us—well, that would be completely out of the question!"

"I think Sheila's pretty hard hit," Jappy told her. "Maybe she deserves a little punishment for the way she treats that nice Stanley boy."

"What's she done to him?" Jappy's tone became instantly defensive. "You're asking me?" Frances laughed. "When Sheila first met Dick he was a regular play boy. Everybody's friend, always out for a good time. Now you never see him anywhere. They say he's working—trying to write plays or something. Nobody even knows where he's living."

"And he's writing a play?" "Well, so they tell me. They say he gets only a small allowance from his family, keeps himself shut up somewhere in an out-of-the-way place banging away at a typewriter."

"I suppose Dick was in love with Sheila," murmured Jappy. "He is and always will be," the other girl assured her. "And that's why I think Sheila's such a idiot. Waiting her time thinking about Jerry Wyman when she could have Dick!"

Jappy considered this. Fond as she was of Sheila, she saw no way that she could do anything more to help her. It was a few nights later that Tille and Jim Bismie, on their way to see a new musical comedy, urged Sheila to come along with them. Jim was restive between engagements. The other four Samper sisters were appearing together, giving Tille a free evening.

Sheila, wearing a blue Chinese Mandarin coat, was comfortably curled up on the living room divan. She smiled but shook her head. "Run along, I'd rather stay here and be lazy."

They could not persuade her to join them. "Just bring me some salt water taffy," she called after them. Her voice sounded cheerful but when Tille and her handsome young husband had departed Sheila turned her face against the pillow and lay silent for a long time.

"I think we'd better whisper a word or two into Dick Stanley's ear," Tille was saying as she and Jim boarded a downtown bus. "I don't," Jim objected. "But, darling, Dick loves her! Of course he does. And Sheila loves a poor sap answering to the name of Wyman. If we let Dick know, she'll blue and he'll rush in and win he'll always have the sneaking feeling that she said 'yes' on the rebound. Let them alone, Tille. I believe in fate. Dick will find Sheila if it is to be that way just as I found you."

"Maybe you're right," Tille admitted finally. Any rate was to happen could scarcely be ascribed to anything but fate. (To Be Continued)

There are four large mess halls at Sing Sing, and the men sit facing one another at the tables. All of the mess halls are well-lighted and ventilated. The kitchen and storerooms have the latest modern equipment. The bakery is the most complete and efficient of any penal institution in the United States.

The old rule of silence, which used to be regarded as the first law of all prisons, has been discarded. Rules in regard to the writing of letters and the reception of visitors are sensibly liberal. Smoking is permitted in the cells and on the recreation field.

In the lower yard at Sing Sing is the recreation field, which provides space for baseball, football—an innovation of Warden Lawes—field sports and other forms of exercise. During the summer months, the men are given the privilege of the yard as long as daylight lasts after working hours.

The population of Sing Sing is approximately 2,500 men. Warden Lawes, in common with many other leading authorities on prison administration, believes that no prison should contain more than 1,000 inmates, but the present lack of prison facilities in New York and other large states, in respect of population, makes this still an unrealistic ideal.

Bette Davis, Arthur Byron, Lyle Talbot, Grant Mitchell, Warren Hymer, Louis Galbreath and Sheila Terry have important roles in support of Spencer Tracy. Michael Curtiz directed the picture which was adapted by Courtenay Terrett and Robert Lord.

DALLAS (AP)—A. D. Owens and A. N. Callahan, gas company employees, were killed by sewer gas as they worked in an Oak Cliff manhole Friday.

A passerby noticed a hissing noise issuing from the manhole with the men's truck nearby. Investigating, he found the man lying at the foot of a ladder.

AUSTIN (AP)—The "sunrise" session of the house got off to a slow start Friday. Scheduled to meet at 8 a. m. as the result of a motion "in fun" Thursday by Rep. Coombs of Dallas, only 74 members were present when the speaker's gavel fell at the appointed hour.

Two Philathea Groups Are Guests For Party

Members of Mrs. Pritchett's and Mrs. Crocker's groups of the First Methodist Philathea class enjoyed a George Washington 42 Party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Pat Tatum. The color scheme was red, white and blue. Individual tallies were hatched shaped and, cherry embossed. High score was made by Mrs. Peters and second highest by Mrs. Remede. Each member presented a red or blue patch on a white apron, placing a coin under the patch. This apron proceeds from group to group until all class members have sewed a patch. Proceeds will be used for a class debt. Coffee and cake was served to the following: Messdames W. H. Remede, Cecil Collings, W. J. Patterson, F. A. Lane, J. E. Fridge, G. L. James, A. Edens, J. E. ZANGARA

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) shoot down the president-to-be. In Calabria, probably under the guidance of his father, the young Giuseppe became a stonemason and bricklayer. When he reached America through the port of Philadelphia ten years ago he soon found that he could make good money here at his trade. He took out papers of naturalization. He put his savings in the postal savings banks; and he began to talk from soapboxes. Worked on Hotel To those who like to toy with thoughts, it may be set down that in the Alexander Hamilton hotel in Paterson, N. J.—a hotel named for a great American who died from a pistol bullet's wound—are bricks laid by Giuseppe Zangara. Zangara always indicated definite political ideas, yet federal agents seeking to trace his career in America have failed to find any connection between him and any anarchic or anti-government group. He was a lone wolf of the soapbox. He registered once as a republican, and that is the only evidence so far uncovered to indicate a political leaning. Yet when they seized him at Miami, he said his first intention was to kill the republican president Hoover; and that "personally" he liked Mr. Roosevelt "very much." His pastime was checkers. His uncle Vincent Cafuso recalled that it was a major interest. Laid Bricks Well Zangara laid his bricks well. His account in the postal savings bank was said to be more than $800, and there were balances in excess of $2,000 in New Jersey banks. In mid-August of 1931 Zangara withdrew his money from the banks. What he did with it has not been determined. The assumption is that he preferred to guard it himself, for there has been no evidence of any extravagance. His monthly rent for a considerable part of his time was around $20. Once in Italy Zangara said he made an attempt upon the life of the king, so his hatred of rulers traces beyond his arrival in America; but the attempt, if indeed there were an attempt, is not recalled in Rome. Last summer Zangara spent about two months with his uncle in Tolosa, New Jersey. That was after he had been absent for some time. It is believed part of 1931 was spent in California. A Los Angeles tailor identified pictures of Zangara yesterday as those of a man who roomed with him there. The man, said the tailor, tried to get in the fire department and spent some time in night school. He complained often of a "pain in

Metcalfe Attempts To Cut Month From Legislative Session

AUSTIN (AP)—A move to shorten the regular session of the 43rd Texas legislature by thirty days was defeated when the house tabled a resolution setting April 7 for sine die adjournment. The vote was 95 to 25. The resolution was introduced by Representative Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo, who urged its adoption as an assurance from the legislature to the citizenry that the legislature "intended to conclude its business expeditiously and go home." One of the greatest reliefs we could give the people would be speedy passage of the appropriation bills and then go home," Metcalfe said, estimating the shortening of the session would save in excess of $100,000. The 120 day constitutional limit will expire May 7.

CORBETT

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) "could lick any man in the world." Corbett was destined to become a champion who could pound the might John L. Sullivan to the floor, but he also was to introduce a new chapter in the history of prize fighting. His refinement and his efforts "set an example" for American youths made him a unique and towering figure in the history of a sport which previously had been in disrepute in America. "The boy began boxing when he was 12 years old—in school yards from which he was twice expelled; in livery stables; in firehouses along the famous Barbary coast of San Francisco where his stamina and head work even then attracted the delighted comments of the loafers and toughs who watched him. Jena Olympic Club In the early eighties, while he was obediently trying to become a "gentle banker," Corbett joined the Olympic club and took his first boxing lessons. In four years he had advanced to be first middleweight and then heavyweight amateur champion of the club. It was Jack Dempsey (the nonpareil) who gave Corbett the thought that he "could lick any man in the world." A practice bout with Dempsey—30 minutes without an intermission or rest—showed the youth, who then weighed 160 pounds, that he could stay with the cleverest boxer of his day. The entire west, wilder than it is today, although the fighters had to cross state lines, fight in bars and sometimes on boats in order to escape the law, rose in admiration when Corbett settled an ancient grudge with Joe Choyinski, in a fight on a barge in the middle of San Francisco bay. Choyinski wore skin tight gloves "having lost his own pair." Corbett wore five-ounce gloves, and fought with a broken thumb through 28 rounds, with the left hook he had perfected finally to knock out his opponent. Later came his historic fight with Peter Jackson. A few words, Corbett's own, furnish a fitting description of the match. "In the 50th round I loosed a left-hand hook as Jackson was letting the right go for my head, that is the only incident of the ten periods from the fiftieth to the sixtieth that I regard as important." And in the 61st round, the referee called the bout "no contest" three seconds before Jackson collapsed from sheer exhaustion.

PROTECTION

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) secure funds presently to be used in highway construction. It was also proposed that the highway department impound and hold warrants and checks drawn against the escrow accounts pending liquidation in order not to imperil safety of the county funds so involved. The attorney general's department held that there was no law that expressly prohibited the holding of checks. It was held by the department that the counties could not pledge their own bonds to secure payments. Gaines said that when the information was first sought it was assumed the bonds sought to be placed in escrow were the county's own bonds that had been authorized but not yet sold. It was ascertained later, however, he said, that such was the case. Loss Charged Governor Ferguson had complained that the highway department by holding warrants of counties drawn against escrowing banks had caused a loss of more than $1,000,000 to the highway fund because the securities posted by the counties and held by a trustee bank had depreciated in value until they were not worth forty cents on the dollar. Gaines testified that in his opinion the highway commission's administration of the county bond transactions was the only way in which it could have been handled. Gaines told the committee that it was impossible for the commission to suspend work on the project after construction had been started because the commission was under

MAN IS FOUND

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) lief the poison was taken through mistake. There was no other medicine in the room, however, and the preparation had been asked for by name when Styles bought it Tuesday at the Hotel Pharmacy. Styles had been morose since checking into the hotel Monday afternoon, hotel employees said. He was seen out of his room only once, according to Fletcher Curry, hotel manager, and then only briefly. "His accustomed cheerfulness was noticeably lacking," Curry said. "Whereas he generally stops by the desk and talks a few minutes, he apparently did not notice when I waved at him as he went to the elevator, and made no sign of recognition. That was Tuesday afternoon." A "rumpled telegram" in a wastebasket from the firm he represents in Michigan, the Dow Chemical company, Inc., explained that due to the eight-day moratorium declared by Michigan banks no money could be sent him. The telegram was dated Friday on the 15th, Wednesday. Bell boys who knew him well from other visits to Midland had expressed concern over his failure to leave the hotel for food. About a dollar in change was all the money found in his pockets during the inquest. Concern crystallized late Thursday after a higher official of the Dow company, T. S. Cummins of Fort Worth, tried to get in communication with Styles over long distance telephone. As there was no telephone connection in Styles' room, bell boys were sent to have him come down to the lobby telephone. Continual rapping failed to get any response and Curry ordered the door broken in. The body was found stretched out on a bed. Coroner B. C. Girdley traced the telephone call to Cummins and found that Mrs. Styles was registered at the Blackstone hotel. Fort Worth. Girdley informed her by phone of the death of her husband and she grew hysterical while talking. She was expected here to make arrangements for burial. The body is held at the Ellis mortuary.

Lions Show Draws Many Two Performances Provide Many Laughs For Audiences

With "Uncle Henry" thoroughly married, local players in the cast presenting the comedy here Thursday and Friday evenings went about the task of removing grease paint and washing off burnt cork. Observers voiced the opinion the play was exceptionally well staged for a home talent production. Miss Helen Papes of the Universal Production company directed the comedy. Lions club sponsored it to gain money for a milk fund and for underprivileged children. Liberal applause greeted business and professional men both nights as they skipped across the stage in costumes of the gay nineties. Bill Wrigley and W. C. Blankenship announced the men as they paraded across in pairs, exhibiting classic movements with outlandish costumes. C. W. Corley took the lead an

the middle aged bachelor suddenly fallen in love with Mrs. Green, twice a widow. Mrs. George Gearty took the part of Mrs. Green. Wilbur Barrens as Jack Massey. Henry's nephew, succeeded in abducting his uncle only to have gangsters snatch him away. Barrens was to obtain a huge sum of money if he married before his uncle. Miss Jeanette Pickle played opposite him. Eliza, negro cook, possessed with superstitions, was capably portrayed by Mrs. W. O. Lowe. Rastus, her shiftless husband and handy man about the house, was played by Shirley Robbins. Ted and Harris, friends of Jack, were played by Jack Hodges and Louis Rix. Gangsters were Billie Bass and Joe Pickle. Marie and Virginia, friends of the leading lady, were Zelma Chadd and Zillah Mae Ford. D. H. Reed excelled as Lawyer Brown and Dorothy Jordan was equally as good as Susan Christopher, romantic spinster. The self-assured detective who boasts in every line he utters was handled by Coulter Richardson. His snooty aide is taken by Emil Fahrenkamp. High school girls presented a beautiful picture as they sang while vari-colored lights blended perfectly with a pretty evening gown. The dancing chorus was exceptionally clever and received several rounds of applause as it appeared at different intervals in the show. The Mystic Shrine proved one of the most popular parts of the play. More than a score "black-faced" players "got religion" and pleaded with the spirits for visions. Sister Sadie, Mrs. F. M. Purser, got one of Uncle Henry, and amidst groans and moans of her brothers and sisters, described—"in characteristic dandy style. Robert Reigel was scooped after he had given his interpretation of the old negro tap dance. The shrine quartet, composed of E. W. Potter, E. B. Bethel, Herbert Keston and Buel Cardwell were well received. Buel T. Cardwell, president of the Lions club, Saturday issued a statement thanking each person who had a part in putting on the play. "Their unselfish efforts made the production possible," he said.
